Scripture gathered out of the Spble.

Christ vnto the people.

John. v.

Search the Scriptures: For they are they that testifie of me.

Paul to Timothy

ii. Timo. iii.

All Scripture gauen by inspiration of God is profitable to teach, to improve, to amede and to instructe in ryghteoulnes, that the man of God maye be perfecte and prepared to all good workes.

The same to the

Roma. xv

What thinges soener are wrytten, are wrytten for our lernynge: that we thozowe paci-ence and conforzte of the Scripture, myght haue hope.

Salomon

Prover. xxi

All the word of God is pure and cleane, it is a thyld vnto them that put theyr truste in
hym. But nothynge vnto his wordes, lest he reproue the and thou be founde a lyer.

Moses to the people

Deute. xii

Ye shall not do euery man what seemeth him good in his awne eyes. But what soener I commaunde you, that take hede ye do: and put nought therto, ner take ought ther from.

The Lorde vnto Josua

Josue. i

Let not the booke of thys lawe departe out of thy mouth. But recorde therin daye and nyght, that thou mayest be circumspecte to do accordynge to all that is wrytten therin.
For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, ad then shalt thou haue vnderstandinge turne therfore nether to the ryght hande, ner to the lefte: that thou mayest haue vnderstandynge in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people

Exod. xxi

And thou shalt shewe thy sone at that tyme, sayeng: This is done because of that which the Lord byd vnto me when I came out of Egypte. Therfore it shal be a sygne vnto the vpon thynne hande, and a remembraunce betwene thynne eyes, that the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouth. For with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the out of Egypte.

Moses

Deute. xxxi.

So that thou reade thys lawe before all Israel in theyr eares. Gather y people together:
both men, women, and chyldren, and straungers that are in thy cyties, that they maye heare, lerne, and feare the Lorde your God, to kepe all the wordes of thys lawe.

First the holy writings of the Byble teach vs, that there is one God almyghty, that hath neither begynnyng nor endyng: whiche of his owne goodnesse dyd create all thynges: of whom all thynges procede, and without whō there is nothyng: whiche is ryghteous and mercifull: and whiche worketh all thynges in all after his wyll: of whom it maye not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that.

Then that this verye God dyd create Adam

the fyrst man after his owne ymage and spmylltude, and dyd ordeyne and appoynte hym lord of all the creatures in the earth. whiche Adam by the enye of the deuyl disobeinge the commaundment of his maker dyd fyrst synne, and broughte synne into this worlde, suche and so greate, that we whiche be spronge of hym after the flesh are subdued vnto syn, death and dampnacion, brought vnder the yoke and tyranny of the deuyl.

And further that Christ Jesus his son was promised of God the father, to be a sauour to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, and the other fathers: whiche shoulde deliuer them from theyr synnes and tyranny of the deuyl, that with a quye and luyng sayth wolde bylene this promysse: and trust to this Jesus Christ, hoppyng to haue this deliuerance of hym and by hym. And truly this promysse is very oft rehearsed in the booke of the olde Testament, yea, and the olde Testament is this promysse: as it is called the newe, which teacheth that this promysse is fulfilled.

And that in the meane season / whyle the fathers looked for saluacion and deliuerance promysed, by cause mannes nature is suche that he not onely can not, but also wyll not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and speciallye suche a synner that hath neede of the sauyng health promysed, the lawe was gyuen wherethrough men myght knowe synne, and that they are synners: when they se that they doo none of the thynges that the lawe commaundeth with so glad and wyllynge a mynde as God requyeth: but rather agaynst theyr wyll, without affection, and as though they were constrained with the feare of that hell whiche the lawe threateneth, saying: Cursed be he that maynteyneth not all the wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was gyuen, to thynke that synne and the malice of mennes hertes being thereby the better knowne, me shoulde the more feruentlye fyrst the commaunde of Christ, whiche shoulde redeme them from their synnes. As it was figured vnto the Jewes by many ceremonies, doostes, and sacrifices, which were ordeyned of God, not to thynke to take awaye synnes, but to shewe & declare that they shoulde be put awaye by fayth, in the saluacion promysed thowowe Christ: and whiche nowe are put awaye by the commaunde of that Christ, whiche is the verye hooft of the father that taketh awaye all synne.

Laist of all by the booke of the newe testamēt

we are taught, that Christ whiche was promysed and shadowed in the olde Testament, is sent of the father, at suche tyme as he had determyned with hym self, at suche tyme (I saye) as all wyckednesse shoulde be ended. And that he was sent, not for any mannes good workes (for they all were synners) but to thynke that he wolde tryste the we the aboundaunt rychesse of grace, whiche he had promysed.

In the new Testament therfore is moost eu-

idently declared, that Jesus Christ the true lambe and hooft, is come to thynke to recōyle vs to the father, payng on the crosse the punishment due vnto our synnes: and to deliuer vs from the bondage of the deuyl (vnto whome we serued through synne) and to make vs the sonnes of God, syth he hath gyuen vs the true peace and tranquillite of conscience, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: whiche feare is put awaye by the fayth, confydence and assurance that the father gyueth vs drawyng vs vnto his sonne. For that fayth is the gyfte of God, wherby we bylene Christ is come into this worlde to saue synners, whiche is of so greate pryncypall that they whiche haue it desyre to perforce all the duties of loue ges of Iuda and Jerusalem, declarynge whan & vnder what kynge every prophet luyed. And what notable thynges happened in theyr tymes, translated oute of the hebreue.

A descrepyon and successe of the kyn-

David rayned ouer Israell the. iii. C. xix. yere of theyr enterynge into the lande, whych was the. iiii. C. yere of their passynge out from Egypt, and the. ii. M. viii. hundred. lxxviii. yere after the creacion of the worlde: and he rayned. xl. yere and begat Salomon. Salomon buylte the temple. And in hys dayes, Jonathan Iddo & Abia Sylyonites were prophetes. And hys sonne Rehabeam rayned after him. xvi. yere. Semaiah and Iddo propheting. And after hym Abiahu hys sonne rayned. iii. yere, and Iddo was the prophete. Asa hys sonne rayned after hym. xli. yere. Asariahu the sonne of Odad, Hanani the Sear, ad Jehu the sonne of Hanani, Odadia, Micha, Jehiel the sonne of zachary, and Eleazar the sonne of hys vncle prophete. Joiam hys sonne succeeded him in hys kyngdome ad rayned. viii. yere, and the prophete was Elia. After hym rayned Ahaziah hys sonne one yere, & Elia was prophete. After this, Athalia the mother of Azalia dyd ryle and destroyed the kynges stocke, and there was none left, but the lytle chyld Joas: and Athalia rayned. vi. yere, and they kyled her. And Joas rayned. xl. yere. After hym rayned hys sonne Amaziah. xxi. yere. The prophetes were Amos and Amazia brethren, and Amos the father of Elay. After hym rayned Eliah hys sonne. lii. yere. The prophetes were Hosea, Amos & Elay, hys sonne Jonathan rayned after hym. xvi. yere. The prophetes were Hosea, Elay, Amos and Eliah and Micha Morasthites. Then hys sonne Ahas rayned after hym. xvi. yere. And Hosea, Elay, Amos, Micha ad Odad dyd prophete. hys sonne Ezechias rayned after hym. xxix. yere: Hosea, Elay, Amos, Micha were prophetes. Whome succeeded Manasse raynyng. lv. yere, Joell, Nahum and Habakuck were the prophetes. After hym rayned Amon hys sonne. ii. yere, and Joas was prophete, whose sonne Josiah rayned after hym. xxi. yere. The prophetes were zephania Jeremie and holda, Jehozab hys sonne rayned after him thre monethes & Jeremie was prophete. Whose brother Jehoakim rayned after him. xi. yere, Jeremie and Elia were prophetes. The. iii. yere of his rayne Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babylon toke hym captiue, and he dyed in his pryson, that it myght be fulfilled whiche was sayde: the Burvall of an asse shal be buried. And he transposed Ierusalem and al the gouerners, and toke captiue. vii. M. of Beniamyns, and the other trybes, whiche were all valyaunt men of warre. After hym rayned hys sonne Jehoachin thre monethes and. x. dayes, Jeremie prophete, and Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babell carped hym awaye prysoner, and. xviii. M. with hym: and made Ezechia the brother of hys father, the sonne of Josiah kyng, whych rayned. xi. yere, Jeremie and Ezechiel prophete. The. v. yere of his rayne the host of Babylon came agaynst Ierusalem, and in the xi. yere of his rayne the cite was taken captiue and Turpe was altered from hys lande: this was the. viii. C. and. iii. yere of theyr enterynge into the lande: and the. iii. M. iii. c. &. viii. yere of the creacion of the worlde. And there was now left of Dauids stocke but only Jeho-niah, whiche begat Salathiel, Malkirā, Pedaiā and Semariam. Nabuchadnezer rayned vntill the. xxxvii. yere of the transmygracion of kyng Jehochim and Euplmedozach hys sonne rayned. xxiii. yere, and the fyrst yere of hys rayne he brought Jehoacin out of pryson, and after this dyed in Babell after the death of Ezechia. Morouer, Belchazer rayned iii. yere, and Salathiel dyed: and after hym hys sonne zerobabell rayned, that was the. lii. yere of the destruccion of the temple, and the. lxx. yere of the domynion of Babylon. Whyle Darius Medo rayned, the Chaldee kyngdome was destroyed, and zerobabell ascended into Ierusalem the fyrst yere of Chores kyng of the persyans, & the transmygracion with him. Then was Iehosua the sonne of Jezoradac the great prest, and haggai zacharia and Esra were prophetes. But Abasuerus raynyng, dyd let the worke of the house of the tabernacle and indeuored to subuerse Israel. But the holy which is blessed, deliuered the worlde both of hym and also of haman. The. xlviii. yere of the Medians whych was the. lxx. yere of the destruccion of the tēple Ezra the scribe ascended into Ierusalem and the other transmygraciō with hym, and he buylte the wall of Ierusalem and restored the house of the tabernacle: ad zerobabell retorned into Babell and dyed there. After hym rayned hys sonne Mesullam,

A prologue or preeface made by the most reuerende father in God, Thomas Archbyschop of Canturbury Metropolitane and Prymate of Englande.

In two sondre sortes of people/it semeth moche necessary that somthyng be sayde in the entyre of this booke, by the waye of a preeface or prologue: wherby hereafter it maye be both better accepted of them, which hitherto coulde not well beare it: & also the better vnderstanded of them, which heretofore haue mysused it. For truly, some there are that be to slowe, and nede not the spurre: some other seme to quicke, and nede moze of the byddell. Some loofe the game by thoste shotynge, some by ouer shotynge. Some walke to moche on the lefte hande, some to moche on the ryght. In the former sorte be all they that refuse to reade, or to heare redde the scripture in theyr vulgar tonges, moche worse they that also let, or discourage the other from the readyng or hearynge therof. In the latter sorte be they, which by theyr inordinate readyng, vndiscrete speakynge, contentious disputynge, or other wyse, by theyr licencious lyuynge, flatter and hynder the worde of God, mooste of all other, wherof they wolde seme to be greatest furtherers. These two sortes albeite they be moost farre vnpke the one to the other, yet they both deserue in effecte lyke reproche. Neyther can I well all whyther of them I maye iudge the moze offender, hym that doth obstinately refuse to godlye and goodly knowledge: or hym that so vngodly and so vngoodly doth abuse the same: And as touchynge the former I wolde maruaile moche that any man shulde be so madde, as to refuse in darcknes, lyght: in honger, foode: in colde, fyer: for the worde of God is lyght: Lucerna pedibus meis, verbum tuum. Foode: Non in solo pane viuit homo, sed in omni verbo dei. Fyer: Ignem dei mittere in terram, et quid volo, nisi vt ardeat: I wolde maruaile (I saye at this) saue that I consyder, howe moche custome and vylage maye do. So that yf there were a people as some wyte, de Cymerys, which neuer sawe the sunne, by reason that they be situated farre towarde the north pole, and be enclosed and ouershadowed with hygh mountaynes: it is credyble and like ynough, that yf, by the power and will of God, the mountaynes shulde synke downe, and geue place, that the lyght of the sunne might haue entaunce to them: at the fyrst, some of them wolde be offended therwith. And the olde proverbe affermeth, that after tpyllage of cozne was fyrst founde: many delpted moze to feade of masse and acornes, wherwith they had ben accustomed, then to eate breed made of good cozne. Soche is the nature of custome that it causeth vs to beare all thynges well and easelye, wherwith we haue bene accustomed, and to be offended with all thynges therunto contrary. And therfore, I can well thynke them worthy pardon, which at the comynge abroade of scripture doubted and drewe backe. But such as wyl persyste styll in theyr wylfulnes, I muste nedes iudge, not onely foolyshe frowarde and obstinate: but also penyful, peruerse and indurate. And yet, yf the matter shulde be tryed by custome, we myght also allege custome for the readyng of the scripture in the vulgare tonge, and prescribe the moze auncient custome: For it is not moche aboue one hundred yere agoe, sens scripture hath not bene accustomed to be redde in the vulgare tonge within this realme, and many hundred yeres befoze that, it was translated & redde in the Saxones tonge, which at that tyme was oure mothers tonge. Wherof there remaineth yet diuers coppes founde lately in olde abbeyes, of soch antique manners of wytyng and speaking, that fewe men now ben able to reade and vnderstande the. And when this language waned olde and out of comen vylage, because folke shulde not lacke the frute of readyng, it was agayne translated in the newer language. Wherof yet also many copies remaine and be dayly founde. But nowe to lett passe custome, and to wepe as wyse men euer shulde, the thyng in hys awne nature. Let vs here discusse. What it auayleth scripture to be had and redde of the lay and vulgare people. And to this question I entende here to saye nothyng: but that was spoken and wyrtten by the noble doctoure and moost morall diuine saynt John Chrysostome, in hys thyrde sermon de Lazaro: albeite; I wylbe somthyng shorter, and gether the matter into fewer wordes and lesse rowme the he doth there: because I wolde not be tedyous. He exorteth there hys audience, that euery man shulde reade by him selfe at home in the meane dayes and tyme, betwene sermon and sermon: to the entente they myght both moze profoundly fyxe in their myndes and memories that he had sayde befoze vpon soch textes, wherupon he had allready preached: and also that they myght haue theyr myndes the moze reddy and better prepared to receyue and perceaue that which he shulde saye frome thensforth in hys sermones, vpo soche textes, as he had not yet declared and preached vpon: therfore sayth he there: My comen vylage is to geue you warnynge befoze, what matter I intende after to entreate vpon, & you your selues in the meane dayes make the booke in hande, reade, wepe, and perceyue the summe and effect of the matter: and marke what hath bene declared, and what remaineth yet to be declared: so & therby your mynde maye be the more furnyshed, to here the reste, that shalbe sayde. And that I exhorte you (sayth he) and euer haue & wyll exhor- te you, & ye (not only here in the churche) geue eare to that, that is sayde by the preacher: but that also, when ye be at home in your houses, ye applye your selues from tyme to tyme to the reacyng of the holy scriptures: which thyng also I neuer lyme to beate into the eares of them that bene my samplers, and with whom I haue ppyuate aquayntaunce and conuersacion. Lett no man make excuse and saye: (sayeth

 he) I am busied aboute matters of the comon welth, I beare this office or &, I am a craftes-man, I must applye myne occupacion, I haue a wyfe, my chyldren must be fedde, my house-holde must I prouyde for. Briefly I am a man of the world, it is not for me to reade the scriptures, that belongeth to the that hath bedden the world saye well, which lyue in solitaren-es and contemplatyon, that hath bene brought vp, and contynually nospilled in learnynge and religyon. To this answerynge: what sayest thou man (sayeth he) is it not for the to studie and to reade the scripture, because thou art encorced and distracte with cares and busyness?
 So much the more it is behouefull for the to haue defence of scriptures, howe moche thou art the more distressed in worldly daungers. They that bene free and farre from trouble and entremedylng of worldly thynges, lyueth in sauegarde and tranquylte, and in the calme or within a sure haue. Thou art in the myddest of the see of worldly wicke dness, and therfore thou nedest the more of ghostly succoure and comfort: they lytte farre from the strokes of battayll, and fare out of gonnetoute, and therefore they be but seldome wounded: thou &
 standest in the forefront of the host, and nyst to thyne enemyes, must nedes take nowe and then many strokes, and be greuously wounded. And therefore thou hast more nede to haue thy remedies and medecynes at hande. Thy wyfe prouoketh the to anger, thy chyldre gyueth the occasyon to take sorowe and pensyuenes, thyne enemyes lyeth in wayte for the, thy frende (as thou takest him) somtyme enuyeth the, thy neyghboure mysreporteth the, or ppe-keth quarrels agaynst the, thy mate or partynner vndermyne the, thy lord iudge, or iustyce threteneth the, pouertye is paynefull to the, the losse of thy deare and welbeloued causeth the to moorne. Prosperite exalteth the, aduersityte byngeth the lowe. Briefly, so diuerse and so many folde occasyons of cares, tribulacions and temptacions besetteth the and besegeth the rounde aboute. Where canst thou haue armour or fortresse agaynst thyne assautes? Where canst thou haue saluacion for thy sores, but of holy scripture? Thy fleshe must nedes be prone and subiecte to fleshy lustes, which dayly walkest and art conuersaunte amongst women, seyst they be wyues, set forth to the eye, hearest they nyse and waton wordes, smellst their balme, cyuet and muske, with many other lyke prouocations and sterings, except thou hast in a redynes wherwith to suppress and auoyde them, which cannot elles where be had, but onely out of the holy scriptures. Lett vs reade and seke all the remedies that we can, and all shalbe lytell ynough. Howe shall we then do, yf we suffer and take dayly woundes, and whā we haue done, wyll lytte styll and serche for no medecynes? Dost thou not marke and consider, howe the smyth, mason, or carpenter, or any other handy craftesman, what neade so euer he be in, what other thyfte focuer he make, he wyll not sell or laye to pledge the toles of his occupacion, for then howe shulde he worke his feate or get his lyuynge therby? Of lyke mynde and affectyon ought we to be towarde holpe scripture, for as mallettes, hammers, sawes, chesyles, axes, and hatchettes be the tooles of the occupacion. So bene the bookes of the prophetes, and apostelles, and all holpe wyte inspired by the holy ghost, & instrumen-tes of oure saluacion. Wherefore, let vs not speke to hye and prouyde vs the Wyble, that is to saye, the bookes of holy scripture. And lett vs thinke that to be a better Jewell in our house then eyther golde or syluer. For lyke as theues bene lothe to assaute an house, where they knowe to be good armour and artillery, so where soeuer these holy and ghostly bookes bene occupied, there nether the deuell, nor none of his angelles dare come neare: And they that occupye them bene in moche sauegarde, and haue grete consolacion, and bene the reader vnto all goodnes, the flower to all euyl, and yf they haue done any thyng amys, anone euen by the syght of the bookes they consciences bene admonished, and they waxen soze & ashamed of the facts. Paradiuenture, they will saye vnto me: howe and yf we vnderstande nott that we reade, that is conteyned in the bookes. What then? Suppose, thou vnderstande nott the depe and profoūde misteryes of scriptures, yet can it not be, but that moche frute and holynes must come and growe vnto the by the reacyng: for it cannot be that thou shuldest be ignoraunte in all thynges alke. For the holpe ghost hath so ordered and attempered the scriptures, that in them as well publicanes, fylchers, and shepherdes maye fynde they edification, as grete doctoures they eruditon: for those bookes were not made to bayne gloze, lyke as were the wytynges of the gentyle philosphers and rethoricyans, to the entent the makers

makers shulde be hadd in admiration for they hye styles and obscure maner of wywherof nothyng can be vnderstande without a master or an expositoure. But the apostle and prophetes wrote they bookes so, that they speciall entent and purpose might be vndestande and perceaued of euer y reader, which was nothing but the edificacyon and amende-mente of the lyfe of them that reade or heareth it. Who is that reading or hearing reade in the gospel, Blessed are they that bene meke, Blessed are they that bene mercifull, Blessed are they that bene of cleane herte: and soch other lyke places, can perceyue nothing excepte he haue a master to teache hym what it meaneth. Likewise, the signes and myracles with all other hystrories of the doynges of Christ or his apostells, who is ther of so simple witte and capacite, but he maye be able to perceau and vnderstande them? These be but excuses and cloyes for the rayne, and keuerpnynges of they awne ydell slouthfulness, I can not vnderstande
 it. What maruaylle? Howe shuldest thou vnderstande, yf thou wyll not reade, nor loke vpo it: take the bookes into thyne handes, reade the hole storie, and that thou vnderstandest kepe
 it well in memozye: that thou vnderstandest not, reade it agayne and agayne: yf thou can nether so come by it, counsaylle with some other that is better learned. So to thy curate and preacher, shewe thy selfe to be desirous to knowe and learne. And I doubt not, but God sepyng thy diligence and redynesse (yf no man elles teache the) wyll hym selfe wouchsafte w his holy sprete to illuminate the, and to open vnto the that which was locked from the.

Remember the Eunnuchus of Candace queene of Ethioppe, which albeit he was a man of a wyld and barbarous countrey, and one occupied with worldly cares and busynesses, yet ryding in his charet, he was reacyng the scripture. Howe consider, yf this man passyng in his iorney, was so diligent as to reade the scripture, what thinkest thou of like was he wote to do sittynge at home? Agayne, he that letted not to reade, albeit he dyd not vnderstande, What dyd he then, trowest thou, after that when he had learned and had gotten vnderstanding? For that thou maye well knowe that he vnderstode not what he reade: herken what Philippe there sayth vnto hym. Vnderstandest thou what thou reade? And he nothyng ashamed to confesse his ignoraunce, answereth: Howe shulde I vnderstande haupng no body to shewe me the wey? Lo when he lacked one to shewe hym the wey and to expounde to hym the scriptures, yet dyd he reade: and therefore God the rather prouyded for hym a gyde of the wey, that taught hym to vnderstande it. God perceyued his wyllunge and towarde mynde: and therefore he sent hym a teacher by and by. Therefore, let no man be negligēt about his awne health and saluation: though thou haue not Philippe allwayes when thou wol-dest, the holy ghost, which then moued and stered by Philippe, wilbe ready and not faile the yf thou do thy diligence accordingly. All these thynges bene wyrtten for vs to oure edificatiō and amendement, which be bozne towarde the latter ende of the worlde. The reacyng of scriptures is a grete and strong bulwarke or fortresse agaynst synne, the ignoraunce of the same is the greter ruyn and destruccyon of them that will not knowe it. That is the thing that bringeth in herelyes, that is it, that causeth all corrupte and peruerse lyuing, that it is, y byngeth all thynges out of good order. Hether to, all that I haue sayde, I haue take and gathered out of the forsayde sermon of this holy doctour saynt John Chrysostome. Howe yf I shulde in lyke maner byng forth, what the selfe same doctour speaketh in other places, and what other doctoures and wyrtters saye, concerning the same purpose, I myght seme to you to wyte another Wyble, rather then to make a preface to the Wyble. Wherefore in feaw wor-des to comprehend the largenes and vtilyte of the scripture, howe it conteyneth frutefull instruction and eruditon for euer y man, yf any thynges be necessarye to be learned: of the holy scripture we maye learne it. Yf falsch shall be reproved, therof we maye gather wherwith all. Yf any thyng be to be corrected and amended, yf there nede any exhortation or co-solatyon, of the scripture we maye well learne. In the scripatures be the fatte pastures of the soule, therin is no venymouse meate, no vnholysome thyng, they be the very dayntie and pure fedynge. He that is ignoraunte, shall fynde there what he sholde learne. He that is a peruerle synner, shall there fynde his damnatyon to make hym to tremble for feare. He that la-boureth to serue God shall fynde ther his gloze, & the promissios of eternall lyfe, exhortyng him more diligently to labour. Herin maye prynces learne howe to gouerne their subiectes: Subiectes obediēce, loue and drede to they prynces. Husbendes, howe they shulde be haue the vnto their wyfes: howe to educate they chyldren and seruautes. And contrary the wyfes, chyldren, and seruautes maye knowe there dute to they husbendes, parētes and masters.
 Here maye all maner of persons, men, women, yonge, olde, learned, vnlearned, ryche, poore, prestes, laymen, Lordes, Ladyes, offycers, tenantes, and meane men, virgyns, wyfes we-dowes, lawers, marchautes, artifycers, husbände men, and almaner of persons of what estate or condityon soeuer they be, maye in this booke learne all thynges what they ought to beleue, what they ought to do, & what they shulde not do, as well concerning almyghty God concernynge them selues and all other. Breiflye to the readynge of the scrpyture none enemye, but that epther be so fylke, that they loue not to here of any medecyne: or is that be so ignorant, that they knowe not scrpyture to be the most helthfull medecyne.

 Therfore as touchynge this former parte. I wyll here conclude and take it as a conclusion sufficientlye determined and approued, that it is conuenient and good, the scrpyture to be redd of all sortes & kyndes of people, and in the vulgare tonge without farther allegatiōs or probatiōs for the same, which shall not nede, syngs & this one place of John Chrysostome is ynough & sufficient to perswade all the & be not frowardly and peruerse sett in their awne wyllfull opinion, specially now that the kynges hyghnes beyng supreme hede nexte vnder Chyste of this church of Englande hath, approued with his royall assente the setting furthe herof, which onely to all true and obedient subiectes ought to be a sufficiente reason, for the allowaunce of the same, without farther delaye, reclamatiō, or respytaunce although there were no preface nor other reason here in expressed. Therfore now to come to the secōde and latter parte of my purpose there is nothynge so good in this worlde but it maye be abused, and turned from frutefull and holysome, to hurtfull and noysome. What is there aboue, better then the sunne, the moone, the starres? Yet was ther & toke occasion by the great bewte and vertue of them to dishonoure God, and to defyle them selues with ydolatre, geuynge the honour of the lyving God and creatour of all thinges, to suche thynges as he had created.

What is there here beneth, better then sper, water, meates, drynckes, metalles of golde, syluer, yron and stele? Yet, we se daylie great harme and moch mischefe, done by euery one of these, as well for lacke of wysdome and prouidence of them that suffer euill, as by the malice of them that worketh the euill. Thus to them that be euill of them selues, euery thyng setteth forwarde and encreaseth their euill, be it of his awne nature a thing neuer so good, lyke
 as contrariely, to them that studyeth and endeuoreth them selues to goodnes, euery thyng preuaileth them, and profiteth vnto good: be it of his awne nature a thyng neuer so badde.
 As saynt Paul sayth, his qui diligunt deum omnia cooperantur in bonum: euen as out of moost venomous wormes is made triacle, the moost soueraygne medecine for the preseruatiō of mans helth in tyme of daunger. Wherfore I wolde aduise you all, that cometh to the readynge or hearynge of this boke, which is the worde of God, the moost precious Jewell, and moost holy relyque, that remayneth vpon earth, that ye bring with you the feare of God, and that ye do it with all due reuerence, and vse youre knowledge therof, not to vayne glorie and frivollous disputatiō: but to the honour of God, encrease of vertu, and edification both of yd selues and other. And to the entent that my wordes maye be the more regarded, I wyll vse in this parte the auctorite of saynt Gregoie Nazianzene, lyke as in the other I dyd of S.
 John Chrysostome. It appereth that in this tyme there were some (as I feare me, there bene also now at these dayes a great number) which were ydell bablers, and talkers of the scripture out of season, and all good order, and without any encrease of vertu, or exāple of good lyving, to them he wyrteth all his fyrst boke, de theologia. Wherof I shall breiflye gather & the hole effecte, and recite it here vnto you. There ben some (sayeth he) whose not onely eares and tonges, but also their eyes bene whitted and ready bent all to contencion and vnprofitable disputatiō, whom I wolde wishe as they bene vehemente and earnest to reason the matter with tonge: so they were also ready and practie to do good dedes. But for asmoche as they, subuertynge the order of all godlynes, haue respecte onely to this thyng. Howe they maye bynde and loose subtile questions, so that now euery market place, euery alehouse and tauerne, euery feasthouse: breiflye euery company of men, euery assembly of women is fylled with such talke. Sens the matter is so (sayth he) and that our sayth & holy religion of Chyste begynneth to waxe nothing els: but as it were a sophistye or a talkynge craft, I can no lesse do but saye somthing therunto. It is not fitte (sayth he) for euery mā to dispute & hygh questiōs of diuinite, nether is it to be done at all tymes: nether in euery audiee must we discuse euery doubte: but we must knowe whā, to whō, and how farre we ought to enter into such matters. First, it is not for euery man: but it is for suche as be of exacte and exquisite iudgementes, and suche as haue spent the yere tyme before in studye and contemplatiō: and suche as before haue clenfed them selues as well in soule, as bodye: or at the least, endeuored them selues to be made cleane. For it is daungerous (sayth he) for the vncleane to touch that thyng, that is moost cleane: lyke as the soze eye taketh harme by lokynge vpon the sunne.
 Secondarilye, not at all tymes but when we be repored: and at reste some all outwarde dregges and trouble, and when that oure headdes be not encombrd with other worldelye and wanderynge ymaginatiōs: as yf a man shulde myngle balme and dytze together. For he that shall iudge and determyne suche matters and doubtes of scrpytures, muste take his tyme, when he maye applye his wittes therunto, that he maye thereby the better see, and discerne what is true the.

Thyrdelye

Thyrdelye where, and in what audiee. There and amonge those that bene studious, arne, and not amonge suche as haue pleasure to tryple with suche matters as with other thynges of pastyme, which repute for there chiefe delicacies the disputatiō of hygh questiones, to thewe there wittes, learnynge and eloquence in reasonynge of hygh matters. For thye, it is to be considered howe farre to wade in suche matters of difficultie. No further (sayeth he) but as euery mannes owne capacite wyll serue him, and agayne no further the the weakenes or intelligence of the other audiee maye be. For lyke as to great noyse hurteth the eare, to moche meate hurteth a mannes bodye, to heuie burdens hurteth the bettes of them, to moche rayne doth moze hurte then good to the grounde, breiflye in all thynges to moch is noysome, eue so weke wittes & weke consciences maye sone be oppressed wouer hard questios. I say not this to dissuade me frome & knowledge of God, & readynge or studyng of scripture. For I saye, & it is as necessarie for the lyfe of mānes soule, as for y bodye to breathe.
 And yf it were possyble so to lyue, I woulde thynke it good for a man to spende all his lyfe in that, and to do no other thyng. I comende & laue whyche byddeth to meditate & studye the scrpytures all wayes both nyght and daye, and Sermons and preachynge to be made ward, frome bedde, in oure iorneyes, and all oure other workes. For bydd not to reade, but I for bydde to reason. Nether for bydde I to reason so farre as is good and godlye. But I allowe not that is done oute of season, and out of measure and good order. A man maye cate to moche of honeye be it neuer so swete, and ther is tyme for euery thyng, and that thyng, that is good is not good, yf it be vngoodly done. Euen as a flower in wynter is oute of season, and as womans apparell becometh not a man, nether contrariely, the mannes, the woman: nether is weppynge conuenient at a bydeale, nether laughynge at bery all. Howe yf we can obserue and kepe that is comely and tymely in all other thynges, shall not we then the rather do the same in the holpe scriptures? Let vs not runne furth as it were wylde horse that can suffer nether byddell in there mouthes, nor sytter on there backs. Let vs kepe vs in oure boundes, and nether let vs go to farre on thone syde, lest we retorne into Egypte, nether to farre ouer & other, lest we be caried awaye to Babylon. Let vs not spynge the longe auentures, as well where it is not to be reasoned, as where it is, and as well in the eares of them & be not fytted therfore, as of the that be. If we can no wyle forbere, but that we must nedes dispute, let vs forbere thus moche at the leaste, to do it oute of tyme, and place conuenient. And let vs entreate of those thynges which be holye, holyspe, and vpon those thyn-ges & bene mysticall, mysticall, & not to vtter the dyuine mysteries in the eares vnwoorthye to heare them, but let vs knowe what is comely as well in oure sylence: and talkynge, as in oure garmentes wepyng, in oure fedynge, in oure gesture, in oure goynge, and all oure other be haupnge. This contentyon and debate aboute scrpytures, and doubtes therof, specially whan suche as pretende to be the fauorers and studentes therof cannot agre within the selves, doth moche hurte to oure selves, and to the furtherynge of the cause & quarells that we woulde haue forthred aboue all other thynges. And we in this (sayeth he) be not vnylike to them that beynge madde, sett there a wne houses on fyre, and that sle there a wne chyldre, or beate there a wne parentes. I maruaile moch (sayth he) to recompute wherof cometh all this desyre of vayne glorie, wherof cometh all this tongue itche, that we haue so moch delight to talke and clatter. And wherin is our comunicatiō: Not in the commendations of vertuous and good dedes of hospitalite, of loue betwene christiane brother & brother, of loue betwene man & wyfe, of virginite and chastite, and of almosse towardes the poore. Not in Psalmes and godly songes, not in lamentynge for oure synnes, not in repressynge the affections of the bodye, not in prayers to God. We talke of scripture, but in y meane tyme we subde we not oure fleshe, by fastynge, wakyng, and wepyng, we make not this lyfe a meditation of death, we do not stryue to be Lordes of oure appetites & affections. We goo not aboute to pull downe oure proude & hygh myndes to abate oure fynythe & rancorous stomakes, to restrayne oure lufkes & bodely delectations, oure vndiscrete sorowes, oure lasciuious merthe, oure inordinate lokynge, oure vnassurable herpynge of vanities, oure speakynge without measure, oure in-conuenient thoughtes, and breifly, to reforme oure lyfe and maners: but all oure holynes cosysteth in talkynge. And we pardon eche other frome all good lyuynge, so that we maye styck fast together in argumentatiō, as though there were no moore wayes to heauen, but this alone the waye of speculatiō and knowledge (as they take it) but in very dead, it is rather the waye of superfluous contention and sophistificatiō. Hether to haue I receyted the mynde of Gregoie Nazianzene in that booke which I spake of before. The same authour sayeth also in an other place that the learnynge of a Chrysten man ought to begynne of the feare of God, to ende in matyers of hygh speculatiō, and not cōtrarily to begynne with speculation
 and to ende

...de in rears. For speculatio (saith he) other hye connyng and knowledge, if it be not, sayed with the byrdell of feare to offende Godde is dangerous and enough to tumble a man jebellinge downe the hyll. Therefore, sayeth he, the feare of God must be the fyrst begynnynge and as it were an abce or an introductis to all them that shall enter to the very trew and most frutefull knowledge of holpe scriptures. Where as is the feare of God, there is, sayeth he, the keepinge of the commaundementes, and where as is the keepinge of the commaundementes, there is the clensynge of the flesche, which flesche is a cloude before the soules eye, and suffereth it not puerlye to see the beame of heuently light. Where as is the clensynge of the flesche, there is the illumination of the holy ghoost, thende of all oure desyres, and the very lyght wherby the verytie of scriptures is seen and perceyued. This is the mynde and almost the wordes of Gregorie Nazianzene doctour of the greke churche of whom saynt Jerome sayth, that vnto hys tyme, the latten churche had no wyterable to be compared, and to make an euen matche with him. Therefore to conclude this latter parte, euery man that cometh to the readynge of this holpe booke ought to bynne with hym fyrst and forreste thys feare of almyghty godde, and then nexte a fyne and stable purpose to reforme hys awne selfe accordynge ther vnto, and so to contynue procede, and prospere frome tyme to tyme, thewynge hym selfe to be a sober and frutefull herer and lerner, which if he doo, he shall proue at the length well able to teache, though not with hys mouth, yet with hys lypynge and good example, which is fuer the most lyuely, and moste effectouse forme and maner of teachynge. He that other wyse intermedleth with this booke, let hym be assured, that on he shall make accompte therfore, when he shall haue sayde to hym as it is wyrtten in the Prophete Dauid, Peccatori dicit deus ace. Vnto the vngodly sayde God, why doest thou preache my lawes, and takest my testament in thy mouth? Where as thou hatest to be reformed, and hast caste my wordes behynde the. When thou sawest a thefe, thou consentyddest vnto hym and hast bene partetaker with aduoucerers. Thou hast lett thy mouth speake wyckednes, and with thy tonge thou hast sett forth discepte. Thou hast sett and spakest agaynst thy brother and hast sclaundered the awne mothers sonne. These thynges hast thou done, & I helde my tonge and I thoughtest (wyckedly) that I am euen such a one as thy selfe. But I will reprove the, and sett before the, the thynges that thou hast done. Consider this, ye that forget God lest I plucke you a waye, and ther be none to deliuer you. Who so offereth me thakes and prayse he honoureth me, and to hym that ordereth hys conuersation ryght: wyll I shewe the saluation of godde.

God saue the kynge.

In the begynnyng * God created heauen and earthe. The earth was voyde and emptye: and darcknes was vpon the face of the depe: and the spere of God moued vpon the face of the waters. And God sayde: let there be made lyght, and there was light made. And God sawe the light that it was good. And God made a diuision betwene the light and darcknesse. And God called the light, daye: and the darcknesse called he, nyght. And the euenyng and the mornynge was made one daye. And God sayde: let there be a firmament betwene the waters: and let it make a diuision betwene waters and waters. And God made the firmament, and set a diuision betwene the waters which were vnder the firmament, and the waters that were aboue the firmament. And it was so. And God called the firmament, heauen. The euenyng also and the mornynge was made the secōd daye.

And God sayde: * let the waters vnder heauen be gathered together into one place, that the drye lande maye be sene. And so it came to passe. And God called the drye lande Earth: and the gatherynge together of waters called he the seas. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth grene herbe, which maye engendre seed: and fructfull tre, yeldyng frute after hys kynde, whose seed maye be in it self vpon the earth. And it came to passe. And the earth brought forth grene herbe, makynge seede after hys kynde: and tree yeldyng frute, whose seed was in it selfe after hys kynde. And God sawe that it was good. The euenyng also and the mornynge was made the thyrde daye. And God sayde: * let there be made lyghtes in the firmament of heauen: and let them make a difference betwene the daye and the nyght, and let them be vnto signes, and vnto appoynted seasons, and vnto dayes, and vnto yeaeres. And let them be vnto lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, that they maye geue lyght vpon the earth. And so it came to passe.

And God made * two greates lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule the daye, & a lesse lyght to rule the night. And he made starres also. And God set them in the firmament of heauen, that they myght geue lyght vpon the earth, and that they might rule the daye and the night: and to make a difference betwene the lyght and the darcknes. And God sawe that it was good. The euenyng also and the mornynge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayde: * let the waters bryng forth mounyng creature that hath lyfe, and foule that maye flye vpon the earth in the face of the firmament of heauen. And God created great whalles and euery lyuing, and mounyng creature, which y waters brought forth after their kynde: and euery fethered foule after their kynde. And God sawe that it was good. And God blessed them, sayinge: Growe & increace and fyll the waters of the see: and let fethred foules be multiplied in the earth. The euenyng also and the mornynge was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth lyuing creature after his kynde: catell, woyme and beast of the erth after his kynde: and so it came to passe. And God made the beast of the earth after his kynde, and catell after their kynde: and euery thyng that crepeth vpon the earth after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let vs make man in oure ymage after oure lykenes, and let them haue rule of the fyth of the see: and foule of the ayre and catell, and all the earth, and of euery crepyng thyng that crepeth vpon the erth. And so God created man in his awne ymage: in the ymage of God created he hym, male and female created he them. And God blessed them, and God sayd vnto them: Growe and increace and replenysh the erth, and subdue it: and haue dominion of the fish of the see, and foule of the aire: and of euery lyuing thyng that moueth vpon the earth. And God sayde: Beholde, I haue geuen you euery herbe sowynge seed, which is in the vpper face of all the earth: and euery tre in the which is the frute of tree, and that soweth seed, that they maye be meate vnto you. To euery beast of the earth also, and to euery byrde of the ayre, and to euery luche thyng as crepeth vpon the earth (wherin is a lyuing soule) I haue geue all greynenes of herbe to be meate. And it came so to passe. And God sawe euery thyng y he had made, and beholde, it was excreading good. The euenyng also and the mornynge was made the sixth daye.

The second Chapter.

The halowynge of the Sabbath daye. The four floues of Paradise. The setting in of man in Paradise. The tre of knowledge is forbidden him: how Adam named all creatures. The creacion of Eua,
The institucion of marriage.

He heauens also and the erth were fynished, and all the host of them. And in the seuenth daye God ended his worke which he had made. * In the seuenth daye
also, he rested from all hys worke which he had made. * And God blessed the seuenth daye, and sanctified it, because in it he had rested from all his worke, which God ordeyned to make.

These are the generacions of the heauens
and of the earth when they were created, in the daye, when the Lorde God made the earth
and the heauens and euery plant of the felde,
before it was in the earth: and euery herbe of the felde, before it grew. For the Lorde God had not caused it to raygne vpon the earth,
neither was there a man to tyll the grounde.
And there went vp a myste fro of the earth,
and watred the whole face of the grounde.

The Lorde God also * shope man, euen dust from of the grounde, and bryethed
into his nassrels the bryeth of lyfe: and Ada
was made a lyuing soule. And the Lorde God planted a garden eastwarde from Eden,
and there he put man who he had made. Woreouer, out of the grounde made the Lorde
God to growe, euery tre that was pleasaut to the sight, and comodious for meate. The tre of lyfe also and the tre of knowledge of good and of euill was in the myddes of the garden. And out of Eden, there went forth a riuer to water the garden. And from thence
it was deuyded, and became into foure bea-des. The name of one is * Pison. The same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Hauilah, where there is golde. And the golde of that lande is good. There is also Sbellun, and the onix stone. The name of the second ryuer is, Syhon: the same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Ethiopia. The name of the third ryuer is Hidel, & it goth towards the east syde of Assiria. And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

The Lorde God also toke Adam, and put him into the garden of Eden, that he myght dresse and kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Ada, saying: Eating, thou shalt eate of euery tre of the garden. But as touchynge
the tre of knowledge of good and euell, thou shalt not eate of it. For, in what daye soeuer thou eatest therof, thou shalt dye the death.

And agayne, the Lorde God sayd: * It is not good that Adam shulde be alone. * I will make him an helpe, which maye be present to him. And so out of the grounde shope the Lorde God euery beast of the felde, and euery foule of the ayre, and brought it vnto
man, that he myght se howe he wolde call it.
For likewise as man hym selfe named euery
lyuing thyng, euen so was the name therof.
Man hym selfe therfore named the names

vnto all catell, and foule of the ayre, and to euery beast of the felde. And for man founde
he not an helpe that myght be present with him. The Lorde God also caused a slomber to fall vpon Adam, and he slept. And he toke
one of hys ribbes, & closed vp the flesh in stead therof. And the ribbe which the Lorde God had taken from man, * made he a woman, *
and brought her vnto man. And man sayde:
This is nowe bone of my bones, and fleshe of my fleshe. She shalbe called woman, because she was take out of man. * For this cause shall a man leaue hys father and hys mother, & shalbe ioyned with hys wyfe, and they shall become one flesh: and they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

The.iiij. Chapter.

The serpent deceaue the woman. The serpent,
the woman, and the man are cursed, and dyspau-
er of paradys. Christ our sauour is promysed.

But the serpent was sotyller then euery beast of the felde, which the Lorde God made. And he sayde vnto the woman: yee, hath the Lorde God sayde: ye shall not eat
of euery tre of the garden? And the woman sayde vnto the serpent: we eate of the frute of the tre of the garden: but as for the frute of the tre which is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: ye shall not eate of it, neither shal ye touche it, lest happily ye dye. And the serpent sayde vnto the woman: ye shall not dye
the death: but God doth knowe, that the same daye that ye eat therof, your eyes shalbe
opened, & ye shalbe euē as goddes, knowing good and euill. And so the woman (seing that the same tre was good to eate, and lusty to the eyes, & that the same tre was pleasaunt to get wisdom) toke of the frute ther-
of, and dyd eate: and gaue vnto her husband beynge with her, which dyd eate also. And the eyes of them both were opened: and they knewe that they were naked, & they sowed
fygge leaues together, and made the selues aperns. And they heard the voyce of the Lorde God walkynge in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam & his wyfe hid the selues fro the presence of the Lorde God among the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam, and sayd vnto hym: where art thou?

thou which sayde: I hearde thy voyce in the garden, & was afrayed, because I was naked, & hyd my selfe. And he sayde: Who tolde
the, that thou wast naked? hast thou not eaten of the sametre, concernynge the which I commaunded the, that thou shuldest not eate of it? And Adam sayd: The woman, whom thou gauest to be wyth me, she gaue me of the tree, and I dyd eate.

And the Lorde God sayde vnto the woman: Why hast thou done this? And the woman sayde: yonder serpent begyled me, and I dyd eate. And the Lorde God sayde vnto
the serpent: because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all catell, and above euery beast of the felde. Upon thy belly shalt thou go, & dust shalt thou eate all the dayes, of thy lyfe. I will also put enmitye betwene the &
the woman, betwene thy seede and hys seede:
the same shall treade downe thy head, and thou shalt treade vpon hys heele.

But vnto the woman he sayde: In multiplieng wyll I multiplye thy sorowe & thy conceyvinge: In sorowe shalt thou brynge forth chyldren, & thy lust shall pertayne to thy husbnde, & he shall haue the rule of the.

Vnto Adam he sayde: Because thou hast
herkened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, & hast eaten of the tree (concernynge the which I comaunded the, sayinge: Thou shalt not eate of
it) cursed is the ground for thy sake. In sorow shalt thou eate of it all the dayes of thy lyfe. Thorne also & thysle shall it cause to growe vnto the, & thou shalt eate the herbe
of the felde. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eate bread, tyll thou be turned agayne into the grounde, for out of it was thou taken, in
as much as thou art dust, & into dust shalt thou be turned agayne.

And Ada called his wyues name: Heua, because she was the mother of all lyuin-
ge. Vnto the same Adam also & to hys wyfe dyd the Lorde God make letheren garmentes, & clothed them. And the Lorde God sayde: Beholde, yonder man hath bene euen as one of vs, that he myght knowe good and euell. And nowe lest happily he put furth hys hnde, and take also of the tree of lyfe, and ea-te, & lyue forever. And the Lorde God sent them furth from the garden of Eden, to bryese the grounde that he was taken out of. And so he droue out man, & at the east syde of the garden of Eden, he set Cherubins, & the gly-sterynge flame of a shakynge swerde, to ke-pe the waye of the tre of lyfe.

The.iiij. Chapter.

Cain doth not onely kyll his righte brother Abel,
but also dyspayeth: and is cursed. The generacion of Enoch: Methuselah: Lamech: Seth and Enos.

Adā knewe heua his wife: who coceaynge, bare Cain, sayinge: I haue gotten a man of the Lorde. And the proceaynge furth, brought forth hys brother habel, and habel was a keeper of shepe.
But Cain was a tyller of the grounde. And in pcesse of dayes it came to passe, that Cain brought of the frute of the grounde an obla-cyon vnto the Lorde. Habel also brought of the fyrstlynge of hys shepe, and of the fat therof. And the Lorde had respecte vnto
* habel, & to hys oblacyon. But vnto Cain and to hys offrynge he had no respecte. For the whych cause Cain was excedynge wo-the, and hys countenance abated. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou wo-
the, & why is thy countenance abated? * yf
thou do well, shalt there not be a promociō.
And yf thou dost not well, lyeth not thy syn
ne in the doores? Vnto the also pertayneth
the lust therof, and thou shalt haue dominō ouer it. And Cain spake vnto habel hys brother: (let vs go furth.)

And it fortuneth * whan they were in the felde, Cain rose vp agaynst habel hys brother, and slue him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Where is habel thy brother? Whych sayd: I wote not. Am I my brothers keeper?
And he sayde: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloude crieth vnto me out of the grounde. And nowe art thou curs-sed from of the erth, whych hath opened hys mouth, to receaue thy brothers bloude from thy hande. If thou tyll the grounde, the shall not proceade to yelde vnto the hys strength.
Fugitive, and vagabounde shalt thou be in the erth. And Cain sayde vnto the Lorde: Myne * iniquite is more, then yit maye be forguen. Beholde, thou hast cast me out this daye from the vpper face of the erth, and fro thy face shall I be hyd: fugitive also and a vagabounde shall I be in the erth. And it shall come to passe: euery one that fyndeth me, shall slaye me. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: * (it shall not be so) yee, but whosoever
slayeth Cain, it shalbe auenged seven folde.

And the Lorde set a marke vpon Cain,
lest any mā fyndynge him, shulde kyll hym.
And Cain wente out fro the presence of the Lorde, & dwelt in the lode of Moab eastward fro Eden. Cain also knewe his wife, whych coceayned & bare Enoch: & buyldinge a cyte,
he called the name of the same cyte after the name of hys sonne Enoch. Vnto the same Enoch was borne Irad, Irad beget Mea his sonne, Mea beget

hufael, & Methufael begat Methufael. Methufael begat Lamech. And Lamech took unto him two wyues: The name of the one was Ada, & the name of the other was Zilla. And Ada begat Jabal, whych was the father of such as dwell in tentes, & of such as haue catell. His brothers name was Tubal, whych was the father of such as handle harpe & organe. And Zilla also begat Tubal Cain, whych wrought conyngly euery craft of bras & of yron. The sister of Tubal Cain, was Naama.

And Lamech sayde vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: Heare my voyce ye wyues of Lamech, hearken vnto my speche: I haue not slayne a man to the woundynge of my selfe, & a yonge man to myne owne punishment. If Cain shalbe auenged seuffolde, trulye Lamech seuffe tympes and seuen tympes.

Adam knewe his wife agayne, & she bare a sonne, and called his name Seth: For God (sayde she) hath appoynted me another seide in steade of Abel, whos Cain slew. And vnto the same Seth also there was borne a sonne, & he called his name Enos. Then began they to make innocacyon in the name of the Lorde.

The v. Chapter.

The genealogie of Adam and of the other fathers vnto Noe.

In this is the boke of the generacions of Ada. In the daye that God created man, in the lykenesse of God made he him. Male and female created he them, & blessed them, and called their name Adam in the daye of their creacyon.

And Adam lyued an hundred & thyrtye yeres, & begat (a sonne) in hys owne lykenesse after his ymage, & called his name Seth. All the dayes of Adam (after he had begotten Seth) were egypt hundred yeres, & he begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes that Adam lyued, were nyne hundred and thyrtye yeres, and he dyed.

Seth lyued an hundred & fyue yeres, and begat Enos. And Seth lyued (after he begat Enos) egypt hundred yeres & seue yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Seth were, nyne hundred & twelue yeres. And he dyed.

Enos lyued nyntye yeres & begat Kenan. And Enos lyued (after he begat Kenan) eight hundred & fyfene yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Enos were nyne hundred & fyue yeres. And he dyed.

Kenan lyued seuentye yeres, & begat Methael. And Kenan lyued (after he begat Methael) egypt hundred yeres and fortye yeres, and begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Kenan were nyne hundred yeres and ten yeres, and he dyed.

Methael lyued fyrtye yeres & fyue yea-

res, & begat Jared. And agayne, Methael lyued (after he begat Jared) egypt hundred & thyrtye yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Methael were egypt hundred nyntye & fyue yeres. And he dyed.

Jared lyued an hundred & fyrtye and two yeres, & begat Henoch. And Jared lyued (after he begat Henoch) egypt hundred yeres, & begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Jared were nyne hundred and fyrtye and two yeres. And he dyed.

Henoch lyued fyrtye & fyue yeres, & begat Methuselah. And Henoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah, thre hundred yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Henoch were thre hundred & fyrtye & fyue yeres. And Henoch walked with God, & he (was) no moze sene, for God toke hym awaye.

Methuselah also lyued an hundred yeres, & egypt & seue yeres, & begat Lamech. And agayne Methuselah lyued (after he begat Lamech,) seuen hundred yeres, and egypt & two yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Methuselah were nyne hundred yeres and fyrtye & nyne yeres. And he dyed.

Lamech lyued an hundred yeres & egypt & two yeres, & begat a sonne, & called his name Noah, sayenge: This same shall comfort vs as concernynge oure woake & sorowe of oure hades, fro of the erth, which God cursed. And Lamech lyued (after he begat Noah) fyue hundred yeres & nyntye & fyue yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Lamech were seue hundred yeres, and seuentye and seuen yeres, and he dyed.

Noah was fyue hundred yere olde. And Noah begat Sem, Ham, and Japheth.

The vi. Chapter.

The cause of the floude. God warneth Noe of the comynge of the floude. The preparynge of the Arke.

And it came to passe, that man began to be multiplied in the vpper face of the erth, and there were daughters borne vnto the. The sonnes of God also sawe the daughters of man that they were fayre, and they toke them wyues from amonge all y they had chosen. And the Lorde sayde: My sprete shall not allwaye, sturue in man, because he is flesch, and hys dayes shalbe an hundred & twentye yeres. But there were gyantes in the erth in those dayes: yee and after that the sonnes of God came vnto the daughters of men, and they had gedred vnto them, the same became myghty me of the worlde, and men of renoune.

But God sawe that the malice of man was greute in the erth, and all the ymaginacyon of the thoughtes of hys hert was only euell euery daye. And it repented the Lorde, that he had made man in the erth, & he was

was touched with sorow in his harte. And the Lorde sayde: I wyll (from the vpper face of the erth) destroye man, whom I haue created: both man, catell, womme, & foule of the ayre, for it repenteth me y I haue made them.

But Noah founde grace in the eyes of the Lorde: These are the generacions of Noah. Noah was iust & perfect in his generacions, and walked with God. Noah begat thre sonnes: Sem, Ham, & Japheth. The earth also was corrupte before God, & the same earthe was fylled with crueltie. And God looked vpon the erth, and beholde it was corrupt: For all fleshe had corrupt hys waye vpon earth.

And God sayde vnto Noah: The ende of all fleshe is come before me, for the earthe is fylled with crueltie from the face of them. And beholde, I wyll destroye them with the erth, & make the an Arke of fyne trees. Habitacions shalt thou make in the Arke, and shalt ptych it within & without with ptych.

And of this fashion shalt thou make it. The lengthe of the Arke shalbe thre hundred cubytes: The bredth of it, fyfye cubytes, & the heygth of it thyrtye cubytes. A wyndowe shalt thou make in the Arke, and in a cubite shalt thou synthe it aboue, but the doore of the Arke shalt thou set in the syde therof. With thre lottes one aboue an other shalt thou make it.

And beholde, I, euen I, do bring a floude of waters vpon the earthe, that I maye destroye all fleshe wherein is the bryth of lyfe vnder heauen: And euery thyng that is in the erth, shall dye. With the also wyll I make my couenaunt, & thou shalt come into the Arke: thou & thy sonnes, thy wife & thy sonnes wyues with the. And euery lyuing thinge, and of all fleshe, a payre of euery one shalt thou bringe into the Arke, to kepe them alpyue with the. They shalbe male & female. Of fethered foules also after they kynde, & of catell after they kynde, of euery womme of the erth after hys kynde: two of euery one shalt thou come vnto y, that thou mayst kepe them alpyue.

And take thou with the of all meate that is eaten, and thou shalt laye it vp with y, that it maye be meate for the & them. Noah therfore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

The vii. Chapter.

The entrance of Noe, and of them that were with hym, into the Arke. The rising of the floude: wherewith towe all thynges dyd perishe.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Noah: Come thou and all thy house into y Arke, for the haue I sene y ryghteous before me in thys generacyon. Of euery cleane beaste thou shalt take with the seuen and seuen: The male and hys female: But of vncleane catell, two, the male and hys female. Of foules also of the ayre, seuen and seuen, y male & the female, to kepe seide alpyue vpon the face of all the whole erth. For yet after seuen dayes I wyll rayne vnto the erth fortye dayes & fortye nyghtes. All substance that I haue made, wyll I destroye from of the vpper face of the erth.

Noah therfore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym. And Noah was fyue hundred yeres, & the floude of waters was vpon y earthe. And Noah came (and his sonnes, & hys wyfe, & hys sonnes wyues with hym) vnto the Arke, because of the waters of the floude. Of cleane catell, & of vncleane catell, & of spenge foules, and of euery such as crepeth vpon y erth, there came two and two vnto Noah into the Arke, the male and the female, as God had commaunded Noah. It fortuneth also after seuen dayes, and the waters of the floude were vpon the erth.

In the fyue hundred yere of Noes lyfe in the seconde Moneth, the seuenth daye of the moneth. In the same daye were all the fountaynes of the greete depe broken vp, and the wyndowes of heauen were opened. And the rayne was vpon the earthe fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes. In the selfe same daye entred Noah, Sem, Ham, & Japheth, the sonnes of Noah, & Noahs wyfe, and the thre wyues of his sonnes with them into the Arke: They, & euery beast after hys kynde, and all catell after they kynde, yee & euery womme that crepeth vpon y earthe after hys kynde, and euery byrde after hys kynde, and euery flying & fethered foule.

And they came vnto Noah into the Arke two and two, of all fleshe wherein is the bryth of lyfe. And they entrynge in, came male and female of all fleshe, as God had commaunded hym. And God shut hym in rounde aboute. And the floude came fortye dayes vpon the erth, & the waters were increased, and bare vp y Arke, whiche was lyfte vp aboue the erth. The waters also preuapled, & were increased exceedyngly vpon the earthe, and the Arke went on the vpper face of the waters. And the waters preuapled exceedyngly vpon y earthe, & all the hyspylles that are vnder the whole heauen, were couered. Fiftene cubytes vpwarde dyd the waters preuaple, so that the mountaynes were couered.

And all fleshe dyed that moued vpon the erth, in foule, in catell, in beast, and in euery womme that crepeth vpon the erth: yee and euery man also. What soeuer was (in whole noftrils the bryth of lyfe dyd brythe, all these in the dyre lande dyed.) And euery thyng was destroyed, that remayned, & that was in the vpper parte of the grounde (both man and catell, and womme, and foule of the ayre) they were euen destroyed from of y earthe. And Noah onely remayned alpyue, and they that were with hym in the Arke.

water prechaped vpon the earth an bñ-ch and fyfte dapes.

The viij. Chapter.

After the sendenge oute of the rauen and the doue.
For goeth forth of the Arke: and offereth sacrifice.
The naturall corrupcion of mans herte.

AND God remembred Noah, and euery beaste, and all y catell that was with him in y Arke. And god made a wind to passe vpon the earth, and the waters ceased. The fountaynes also of the depe and the windowes of heauen were stopped, and the rayne from heauen was restrayned. And the waters from the erth were returned, gong
and commynge agayne. And after the ende
of the hundreth and fyftieth dape, y waters were abated. And in the seuenth moneth in the scuententh dape of the moneth, the Arke rested vpon y mountaynes of Armenia. And the waters truly were gong and decreacyng vntill the tenth moneth: for in y tenth moneth, & in the fyft daie of y same moneth
were the toppes of the mountaynes sene.

B And after the ende of the fortyeth dape, it happened that Noah opened the wyndowe of the Arke which he had made. And he sent forth a rauen, whiche went out gong forth
and returnyng agayne, vntill y waters
were dyed vpon the earth. And agayne
he sent forth a doue from hym, y he myghte se yf the waters were abated from y upper face of the grounde. And the doue founde no rest for y sole of her fote, & she returned vnto
hym agayne into the Arke: for the waters were in y upper face of the whole erth. And he, whan he had put forth his hãde, toke her,
and pulled her into hym into the Arke.

And he abode yet other seven dapes, and proccadyng further, he sent forth the doue
out of the Arke. And the doue came to hym in y euentide, and lo, in her mouthe was an olive leaf y she had pluckt, wherby Noah did knowe, that the waters were abated vpon
the earth. And he abode yet other seue dapes and sent forth the doue, whiche proceeded
not to retorne vnto hym any moze.

C And it came to passe in the fyre hundreth
& one yere, in the fyft moneth, & in the fyft
dape of the moneth, the waters were dyed vpon the earth. And Noah remoued the couerpyng of the Arke, & looked, & beholde, the upper face of y grounde was dyed vpon. And in the secõde moneth, in the seven & twente
dape of the moneth, was the earth dyed.

And God spake vnto Noah sayeng: Go forth of the Arke, thou & thy wyfe, thy son-nes, & thy sonnes wyues w the. And byng forth with the, euery beaste that is with the:
of all fleshe (both foule & catel, & euery wo-me that crepeth vpon the earth) that they make gendze in y earth, & byng forth frute,

and *increase vpon erth. And so Noah came forth and his sonnes, his wyfe, & his son-nes wyues with hym. Euery beaste also and euery woyme, euery foule, and whatsoeuer crepeth vpon the earth (after they kyndes)
went out of the Arke.

And Noah buylded an altare vnto y lord,
and toke of euery cleane beast, and of euery
cleane foule, & offered sacrifices in y altare.
And the Lord smelled a swete (or quete)
sauoure. And the Lord sayde in his herte:
I will not proccade to curse y grounde any moze for mannes sake, for the ymagynacyon of mans herte is euell: euen fro y yowth.
Neyther wyl I adde to smite any moze eu-
ery thyng liuyng, as I haue done, yet therfore shall not so wyng tyne, & earnest, colde
and heate, sommer & wynter, dape & nyght, ceasse, all the dapes of the earth.

The ix. Chapter.

God blessed Noe & his sonnes. He forbyddeth to eat
the blood of beastes: & to shed mannes bloude. The law of the swerde. He maketh a couenaunt that he wyl de-stroye the world no moze by water: & geueth the raine bois for a token and confirmacion of the same. Noe is dynken. Ham vncouerech hym, and getteth his curse.

AND God *blessed Noah & his sonnes,
and sayde vnto them: byng ye forth
frute and multiplie, and replenysh y earth. The feare of you and the drede of you shal be vpon euery beast of y erth, and vpon euery foule of the ayre, in all such as y earth
byngeth forth, and in all the fyshes of y see.
Into your hande are they deliuered. Eue-ry thyng that moueth it selfe, and that lyueth, shal be meate for you: Euen as y grene herbe haue I geuen you all thinges. But *fleshe in the lyfe therof, and in the bloude therof shall ye not eate. Els your bloude of your lyues wyl I requyre. From the hande of euery beaste wyl I requyre it, and from the hande of man: from the hande of mans brother wyl I requyre y lyfe of man. Who so *sheddeh mannes bloude, by man shall his bloude be shedde: for in the ymage of God, byd God make man. But byng ye forth frute, and multiplie: Gendze ye in the earth, and increase therein.

God spake also vnto Noah & to his son-nes with hym sayeng: Beholde I set vp my
*couenaunt with you, & with your sede after you, and with euery liuyng creature that is with you, both in foule and in catell, and in euery beast of the earth which is with you
of all y go oute of the Arke, accordyng vnto
euery liuyng thyng of the earth. But my couenant wyl I make w you that *from henceforth euery fleshe be not roted out with the waters of a floude, neyther shall there be a floude to destroye y earth any moze.

And God sayde: This is the token of the couenaunt which I geue betwene me & you,
and

and euery liuyng creature that is with you in to perpetuall generacions. I haue set my bowe in the cloude, and it shal be for a token betwene me & the erth. And it shall come to passe, that whan I byng a cloude vpon the erth, the bowe also shal be sene in the same cloude. And I wyl thynke vpon my couena-unt whych is betwene me & you, & euery liuyng creature in all fleshe: & it shall no moze
come to passe, that *waters make a floude to destroye all fleshe. But the bowe shal be in the same cloude, & I wyl loke vpon it, that I maye thynke vpon the euerlastyng coue-naunt betwene God and euery liuyng creature, in all fleshe that is vpon erth. And God sayde vnto Noah. This is the token of the couenaunt which I haue made betwene me
and all fleshe that is vpon erthe.

The sonnes of Noah gong furth of the Arke, were: Sem, Ham, and Japheth. And Ham truly is the father of Chanaan. These are y thre sonnes of Noah, & of the was the whole erth ouerspred. Noah also beganne to be an husbnde man, and planted a vynearde. And he dynkynge of the wyne, was dynken, and vncouerech wythin his tent.

And Ham the father of Chanaan seynge
the nakednesse of his father, tolde his two brethren wythout. And Sem and Japheth, they two, takynge a garment, laped
it vpon their shulders: & comynge bakwarde,
couered the naked prentyes of their father:
namely, they faces beyng turned awaye,
lest they shulde se the fathers prenties.

And Noah awoke from his wyne, and knewe what his yonger sonne had done vn-
to hym. And he sayde: Cursed be Chanaan, a seruaunt of seruantes shall he be vnto his brethren. He sayde mozeouer: Blessed be the Lord God of Sem, & Chanaan shal be his seruaunt. God shall enlarge Japheth; and he shall dwell in the tetes of Sem, & Chanaan shal be their seruaunt. Noah lyued after the floude thre hundreth and fyfte yeaes. And all the dapes of Noah were nyne hundreth &
fyfte yeaes. And he dyed.

The x. Chapter.

The genealogie of Japheth Sem: and Ham.

These are the generacions of the son-nes of Noah, Sem, Ham and Japheth: And vnto them were chyldren borne after the floude.

The chyldren of *Japheth: Gomer and Magog, and Madai, and Iauan, and Tu-bal, Mesech and Theras. The chyldren of Gomer: Akenas and Ripath and Thogarma. The chyldren of Iauan: Elisa and Thariss, Rithim, and Modanin. Of these were the fles of the Gethles deuyded in their landes, euery man after his tonge, & after his kyndes in their nacpons.

The chyldren of Ham: Cush & Mizraim,

and Phut and Chanaan. And the chyldren of Cush: Seba and Hauilah and Sabtha, and Rahma, and Sabthecha. The chyldren of Rahma: Scheba and Dedan. Cush also begat *Nimrod. The same beganne to be my-ghtye in the erth. For he was a myghtye hunter before the Lord. Wherfore it is sayde: Euen as Nimrod the myghtie hunter before the Lord. The begynning of his kyngdome was *Babel and Erech and Accad, and Calne, in the londe of Sinhar. Out of that londe came Assur, and buylded *Niniue, and the stetes of the citie & Calah. Resen also betwene Ninue and Calah, and it is a grete cite. Mizraim begat Ludym, & Ena-nim, & Lehabim, and Nephthim. Pathru-sim also and Casubim, out of whom came Philistim and Capthozim.

Chanaan begat zidon his fyrst borne sonne, and Heth, & Jebusi, and Emori, & Sirgosi. Habiui also and Haarki and Hassini, and Haaruadi, and Hazmari, and Habemathi:
And afterwarde were the kyndes of y Ca-nanites spred abrode. The border of the Ca-nanites was from zidon, as thou comest to Gat vntill Gazan, and as thou goest vnto Sodoma, and Gomora, and Adama, and zeboim, euen vnto Lela. These are the chyldren of Ham in their kyndes, in their ton-ges, countrees and in their nacpons.

Vnto Se also the father of all the chyldren
of Eber (and elder brother of Japheth) there were chyldren borne. The chyldren of Sem:
Elam and Assur, Arphachad, and Lud and Aram. The chyldren of Aram: Uz and Hul, Gether & Mas. Arphachad begat Selah, & Selah begat Eber. Vnto Eber also were borne two sonnes: The name of the one was Deleg, for in his dapes was the erth deuy-
ded. And his brothers name was Jaktan.
Jaktan begat Almodad and Saleph haharmaneth and Terah, and Hodoran & Uzal
and Dickla, Obal also & Abimael and Scheba, and Dphir, and Hauila, and Jobab. All these were the chyldren of Jaktan. And their dwelling was from Mesa, as thou goest vnto Sephar a mount of the east. These are the chyldren of Sem after their kyndes and tonges in their landes and nacpons. And so these are the kyndes of the chyldren of Noah, after their generacions in their peoples, and of these were the nacions deuyded in the erth after the floude.

The xi. Chapter.

The buyldynge of the towre of Babel. The confusiõ of tonges. The generacion of Sem the sonne of Noe: vntill Abram: wher y goeth with Lot vnto Sodoma.

And the whole erth was of one language & lyke speche. And it happened whan they wete furth fro the east, they founde a playne in the londe of Sinhar, & there they abode. And they
a iij sayde

sayd euery one to his neyghbour: Come, let vs prepare bypcke, & burne them in the fyre. And they had bypcke for stone, & syme had they in steade of moztar. And they sayde: Go to, let vs buylde vs a citie & a tower, whose toppe maye reach vnto heauen: & let vs make vs a name, lest haply we be scatred abrode into the vpper face of the whole erth. But the Lorde came downe, to se the cytie and tower whych the chyliden of men buylded.

And the Lorde sayde: Beholde, the people is one, and they haue all one language, & thys they begynne to do, neyther wyll it be restrayned fro them, whatsoeuer they haue ymagined to do. Come on, let vs go downe, and confounde theyr language, that euery one perceaue not hys neyghbours speche. And so the Lorde scatred them fro that place into the vpper face of all the erth. And they left of to buylde the cytie. And therfore is the name of it called * Babel, because the Lorde dyd there confounde the language of all the erth. And from thence dyd the Lorde scatter them abrode vpon the face of all the erth.

These are the generacions of Sem: Sem was an hundreth yere olde, and begat Arphachsad two yere after the floude. And Sem lyued (after he begat Arphachsad) fyue hundreth yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Arphachsad lyued fyue and thyrty yeres, & begat Selah. And Arphachsad lyued (after he begat Selah) foure hundreth & thre yeres, and begat sonnes & daughters.

Selah lyued thyrty yeres, & begat Eber. And Selah lyued (after he begat Eber) foure hundreth and thre yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Eber lyued foure and thyrty yeres, and begat Peleg. And Eber lyued (after he begat Peleg) foure hundreth and thyrty yeres, & begat sonnes and daughters.

Peleg lyued thyrty yeres, & begat Reu. And Peleg lyued (after he begat Reu) two hundreth and nyne yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Reu lyued two and thyrty yeres, and begat Serug. And Reu lyued (after he begat Serug) two hundreth and seue yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Serug lyued thyrty yeres, & begat Nahor. And Serug lyued (after he begat Nahor) two hundreth yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

And Nahor lyued nyne & twentye yeres, and begat Terah. And Nahor lyued (after he begat Terah) an hundreth and nyntene yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Terah lyued seuentye yeres, and begat Abiam, Nahor, and Haran.

These are the generacions of * Terah: Terah begat Abiam, Nahor & Haran. Haran begat Lot. And Haran dyed in the presence of Terah hys father, in the lode of hys natyuite, cut in Air of the Caldees. Abiam and Nahor toke them wyues: The name of Abias wyfe was Sarai, & the name of Nahors wyfe was Milca, the daughter of Haran the father of Milca & the father of Ysca. But * Sarai was baren, & had no chylde.

And Terah toke Abiam * his sonne, and Lot the sonne of Haran, hys sonnes sonne, & Sara hys daughter in lawe, hys sonne Abias wyfe. And they departed together fro Air of the Caldees, that they myght go into the lode of Chanaan, & they came vnto Charan, & dwelt there. And the dayes of Terah were two hundreth and fyue yeres, and Terah dyed in Haran.

The. xij. Chapter.

Abiam is blessed of God: & goeth wyth Lot vnto the lode of Chanaan, whych God promysed to geue vnto hym and hys fede. Abiam goeth into Egypt: & causeth Sarai hys wyfe to call hys selfe hys sister: for whom Pharaon is plagued.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Abia: * Get the out of thy countrey, & out of thy nacyon, and from thy fathers house, vnto a lode that I wyll shewe the. And I wyll make of the a grete people, and wyll * blesse the, & make thy name grete, that I mayest be euen a blessing. I wyll also blesse them that blesse the, & curse suche as curseth the, & in the shall all the kynreds of the erth be blessed.

And so Abia departed euen as the Lorde spake vnto him, & Lot wete wyth hym. And Abia was seuentye & fyue yeres olde, whā he departed out of Haran. And Abiam toke Sarai his wyfe & Lot his brothers sonne, & all theyr * substance that they had in possessyon, & the * soules that they had begotten in Haran. And they departed, & they myght come in to the lode of Chanaan, and in to the lode of Chanaan they came. Abiam passed thorowe the lode vnto the place of Sichem, & vnto the playne of Moze: And the Cananite was then in the lode.

And the Lorde aparynge vnto Abiam: sayd vnto thy * fede wyll I geue this lode. And there buylded he an altare vnto the lorde, euen where he had appeared vnto hym.

And

And remouynge thence vnto a mountayne that was eastwarde from Bethel, he pitched his tent, haupnge Bethel on the west syde, & Hai on the east. And he buyldynge an altare vnto the Lorde, dyd call on the name of the Lorde. And Abiam wente furth goinge and departynge towarde the south.

But there was a derth in that londe, and therfore wente Abia downe in to Egypte, & he myght sojourne there, for there was a soze derth in the londe. And it happened whā he was come nere to entre in to Egypte, he sayde vnto Sarai hys wyfe: Beholde, I knowe, that thou art a fayre woman to loke vpon. Therfore shall it come to passe & whā the Egyptians se the, they shall saye: She is hys wyfe. And they shall kylle me, but they shall saue the a lyue. Saye (I praye the) that thou art my syster, that I maye fare well for thy sake, and that my soule maye lyue thorowe thy occasyon.

And so it happened, whan Abiam was come in to Egypte, the Egyptians behelde & womā, for she was very fayre. The prynces also of Pharaon sawe her, and commended her before Pharaon, and the woman was taken into Pharaons house. And he truly intreated Abiam well for her sake, and he had shepe & oxen and asses, men seruantes and mayde seruantes, she asses & camels.

And the Lorde smote Pharaon and hys house with grete plagis becaule of Sarai Abiams wyfe. And Pharaon callinge Abia, sayde (Why hast thou done thys vnto me? Why dydest thou not tell me, that she was thy wyfe? Nowe therfore beholde, there is thy wyfe, take her, and go thy waye: And Pharaon gaue the men commaundement concernynge him and they conuayed him furth, and his wyfe, and all that he had.

The. xij. Chapter.

Abiam and Lot departe out of Egypte. And Abia deuyded hys lande & catell wyth Lot hys brother: & here agayne is promysed to Abiam the lande of Chanaan.

And so Abiam gat him vp out of Egypte, he & his wyfe, & * all that he had, & Lot wyth hym, towarde the south. And Abiam was very ryche, in catell in syluer & golde. And he wente furth on hys tourney from the south towarde Bethel, vnto a place where hys tent had bene at the begynnyng, betwene Bethel & Hai: Euen vnto a place of the * altare which he had made there at the fyrst, and there Abiam called on the name of the Lorde.

Lot also whych went wyth Abiam had shepe, catell & tentes: & the lande was not able to receaue them that they myght dwell together, for the * substance of their ryches was grete, & they coulde not dwell together. And there fell a stryfe betwene & herdmē of Abiams catell, & the herdmē of Lots catell. Moreover the * Cananytes and the Pherytes dwelled at that tyme in the lande. Then sayde Abiam vnto Lot: Let there be no stryfe (I praye the) betwene the and me & * betwene my herdmē and thynne, for we be * brythren. Is not all the * hole lande before the? & departe I praye the fro me. If thou wilt take the lyste hande, I will go to the ryght: or yf thou departe to the ryght hande I will go to the left. And so Lot lysteynge vpon hys eyes, beholde all the contre of Iordane, which was a plenteous contre of water euery where, before & Lorde destroyed Sodome & Gomorra, euen as the garden of the Lorde, lyke the lande of Egypte as thou comest vnto zoar.

Then Lot chose all the playne countrey of Iordane & toke hys iourney from the east. And so departed the one brother from the other. Abiam dwelled in a lande of Chanaan: and Lot abode in the cyties of the playne, & tented vntyll Sodome. But * the men of Sodome were wycked, and exce dyng synners before the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Abiam, after that Lot was departed from him. Lyste vpon thynne eyes now, & loke fro the place where I art, northwarde, southwarde, eastwarde & westwarde, for all * the lande whych thou seeest wyll I geue vnto the and to thy seed for euer. And I wyll make thy seed, as the dust of the erth: so that yf a man can nombre the dust of the erth, than shall thy seed also be nombred. Arise and walke about in the lode, after the length of it & after the bredth therof, for I wyll geue it vnto the. And Abiam takynge downe hys tente, came and dwelled in the okergroue of Mamre, namely in Chbron, and buylded there an alter vnto the Lorde.

The. xiiij. Chapter.

Lot is taken prisoner. The victorie of Abiam for the Sodomytes. Lot is deliuered by Abiam. Melchisedech offereth gyftes vnto Abiam. Abia parcieth vnto Melchisedech. Abia holdeth nothynge of the kynges of Sodomes goodes.

And it chaunced in the dayes of Amraphael kyng of Synhar, Arioch kyng of Ellasar, Kedorlaomor kyng of Elam, & Chydeall kyng of the nations, and they made warre wyth Seral kyng of Sodome, & wyth Birsa kyng of Gomorra, and with Simeab kyng of Adama, and with Semeabar kyng of Seboim, and with the kynges of Bela. The same is zoar. All these were ioynd together in the vale of Siddim where y salt see is. For twelue yere were they subiecte to kyng Kedorlaomor, and in the. xij. yere rebelled. But in the. xiiij. yere came Kedorlaomor and the kynges that were wyth hym, and smote the Gyautes in Alstaroth karnaim

a v and the

and the Sufymys in Ham, & the Emymys in the playne of Kariathim, and the Hozymys in mounte Seir vnto the playne of Vbaran, whiche bordreth vpon the wildernesse. And they retuerynge, came to En Mispat which is Cades, & smote all the countre of the Amalechytes, and also the Amozites that dwelt in Hazeron Chamar.

And there went out the kynge of Sodome, & the kynge of Gomorra, and the kynge of Adama and the kynge of Zebouim, and the kynge of Bela which is Zoar. And they strooke battell with the in the vale of Syddym, that is to saye, withkedozlaomoz the kynge of Elain and wyth Chydcal kynge of the Nacyons, and wyth Amraphael kynge of Synhar. And wyth Arioch kynge of Ellasar: foure kynges agaynstefyne. And the vale of Syddym was full of flyme pyttes.

And the kynge of Sodome and Gomorra fled, and fell there. And they that remayned, fled to the mountayne. And they takynge all the goodes of Sodome and Gomorra and all their vytalles, wet their waye. And they carped awaye Lot also Abrahams brother, some and hys good (for he dwelled at Sodome) & departed. And there came one that had escaped, and tolde Abraham the hebrewe whiche dwelled in the okegroue of Mamre the Amozyte, brother of Eschol, and brother of Aner, which were confederate w Abraham. When Abraham hearde that hys brother was taken, he harnessed hys frethe younge men borne in hys owne house thre hundred and eyghtene, and folowed on them vntyll Dan: And he was sett in Aray vpo the by nyght, he and his seruantes, and smote them and pursued them vnto Hoba: which lyeth on the lefte hande of Damascus, and recouered all the goodes, and also brought agayne hys brother Lot, and his goodes, the women also and the people.

After that he returned agayne from the slaughter of kedozlaomoz & of the kynges, were with him, came the kynge of Sodome forth to mete him in the playne valeye, which is the kynges dale.

And Melchisedech kynge of Sale brought forth bread & wyne. For he was the prest of the most hygh God: & blessed hym sayinge: Blessed be Abraham vnto the hygh God possessor of heauen and erth. And blessed be the hye God which hath deliuered thyne enemyes in to thy hande. And Abraham gaue him tythes of all.

And the kynge of Sodome sayde vnto Abraham: Gyue me the soules, and take the goodes to thy selfe. And Abraham answered the kynge of Sodome: I haue lyfte vp my hande vnto the Lorde the hye God possessor of heauen and erth, that I wyll not take of all that is thyne so moche as a thred of thoulacet, lest thou shouldest saye, I haue made Abraham ryche. Saue only that whiche the yonge men haue eaten and the partes of the men which wet with me, Aner, Eschol, and Mamre which shall take their partes.

The xv. Chapter.

The lande of Canaan is yet agayne promysed to Abraham. God promyseth hym seed. He beleueth & is iustified. The prophete of the bondage toher in the chyliden of Israel shulde be vnder ybaran: and of their deliuerance from the same.

After these thynges were done, the worde of the Lorde came vnto Abraham in a vpylon sayinge, feare not Abraham, I am thy defence, and thy rewarde shall be exceedinge great. And Abraham sayde: Lorde God what wilt thou geue me when I go chyldelesse, and the chylde of the stewardship of my house is this Eleazar of Damascus: And Abraham sayde: Se, to me hast thou geuen no seed: lo, a lad borne in my house is myne heyre.

And beholde, the worde of the Lorde came vnto hym sayinge: He shall not be thyne heyre, but one that shall come out of thyne awne body shalbe thyne heyre. And he brought him out & sayde: loke vp vnto heauen, and tell the starres, yf thou be able to nombze them. And he sayde vnto him: Cunt so shall thy seed be.

And Abraham beleued the Lorde, and that counted he to hym for ryghtewesnes. And agayne he sayde vnto hym: I am the Lorde that brought the out of the Caldees to geue the this lande, and that thou myghtest possesse it.

And he sayde: Lorde God, wherby shall I knowe that I shall possesse it? He answered vnto hym: Take an heyffer of thre yere olde, and a she goate of thre yere olde, and a thre yere olde ram, a turtell done also and a yonge pigeon. He toke therfore all these vnto him, & deuyded them in the myddes, and layde euery pece, one agaynst another. But the foules deuyded he not. And when the byrdes fell on the carcasses, Abraham bzoune them awaye: And when the sunne was downe, ther fell a slomber vpon Abraham. And loo, a darke and great feare fell vpon hym.

And he sayde vnto Abraham: knowe thys of a surte, that thy seed shalbe a straunger in a lande that pertyneth not vnto them. And shall serue the, & they shall entreate the cuell. .iii. hundred yeres. But the nacyon whom they shall serue, wyll I iudge. And afterwarde shall they come out with great substance. And thou shalt goo vnto thy fathers in peace, and shalt be buryed in a good olde age: But in the fourth generacion they shall come hyther agayne, for the wickednesse of the Amozites ys not yet full.

And it came to passe that when the sonne went downe, there was a dark cloude: beholde, ther was a smoking furnelle, & a fyze brande goynges betwene the sayde peces.

In that same daye the Lorde made a covenante w Abraham sayinge: vnto thy seed haue I geuen this lande, from the ryuer of Egypt, euen vnto the great ryuer the ryuer of Euphrates, the kenytes, the kenyzites, and the Cadmonites, the hethtes, and the pherezites, and the gyauntes, the Amozytes also, & the Canaanites, the Gergetyses and the Jebusytes.

The xvi. Chapter.

Sarai geueth Abraham to take Agar by mapde to wyfe. Agar despyed by mapdes: for whiche she was euill entreated of Sarai: and therfore reueth awaye. The angell metynge by: commaundeth by to curne agayne and both promyseth by seed. And nameth bys chylde Ismael.

Sarai Abrahams wyfe bare hym no chyliden. But she had an hande mayde an Egyptya, hagar by name. And Sarai sayde vnto Abraham Beholde the Lorde hath restrayned me, that I can not bere. I praye the go in vnto my mayde, perauenture I maye be edifyed by her. And Abraham obeyed the voyce of Sarai. And Sarai Abrahams wyfe toke hagar by mapde the Egyptian (after Abraham had dwelled .x. yere in the lande of Canaan) and gaue her to bys husbunde Abraham to be bys wyfe.

Which when he wente in vnto Agar, she conceived. And when she sawe that she had conceyued, bys mastresse was despyed in bys eyes. And Sarai sayde vnto Abraham: Thou dost me wronge: I haue geuen my mayde in to thy bolome. Whych saynge that she hath conceaued, I am despyed in bys eyes, & Lorde iudge betwene the and me. But Abraham sayde to Sarai: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do with bys as it pleaseth the.

And when Sarai fared foule wyth her, she fled from the face of her. And the Angell of the Lorde founde her besyde a fountayne of water in the wylernes: euen by the well that is in the waye to Sur. And he sayde: Hagar Sarais mayde, whence comest thou and whether wilt thou goo? She sayde: I flee fro the face of my mastresse Sarai. And the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto her: retorne to thy mastresse agayne, & submytte thy selfe vnder her handes.

And agayne, the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto her: In encreasinge I wyll encrease thy seed and it shall not be nombred for multitude. And the Lordes angell sayde vnto her, se, thou art with chylde and shalt bere a sonne, and shalt call hys name Ismael: because the Lorde hath herde thy tribulacion. He also will be a wylde man, and hys hande will be agaynst euery man, and euery mans hande agaynst him. And he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethre. And she called the name of the Lorde that spake vnto her: thou God lokkest on me, for she sayde: haue I not sene here the backe partes of hym that seeth me? Wherfore the well was called, the well of him that lyueth & seeth me. And it is betwene Cades and Bared. And hagar bare Abraham a sonne, and Abraham called hys sonnes name which hagar bare vnto him. Ismael. And Abraham was .lxxxvi. yere olde, when hagar bare him Ismael.

The xvii. Chapter.

Abraham is called Abraham: and Sarai is named Sara. The lande of Canaan is here & fourth tyme promysed Circumcyssion is here institute. Israhel is promysed. Abraham prayeth for Ismael.

Abraham was nygetye yere olde & .ix. & the Lorde appeared to Abraham & sayde vnto hym: I am the almyghty God: walke before me and be thou perfecte. And I will make my bonde betwene me and the, and will multiplye exceedingly. And Abraham fell on hys face. And God talked with him sayinge: Beholde, I am, and my testament is with the, & thou shalt be a father of many nacys. Neether shall thy name any more be called Abraham, but thy name shalbe Abraham: for a father of many nacys haue I made the, I will make the to growe exceedingly, and will make nacys of the: & kynges shall sprynge out of the. Moreouer I will make my bonde betwene me and the, and thy seed after the, in the generacions, by an euerlastynge testament, that I maye be God vnto the and to thy seed after the. And I wyll geue vnto the and to thy seed after the, the lande where in thou art a straunger: Euen all the lande of Canaan, for an euerlastynge possession, and wyll be their God.

And God sayde agayne vnto Abraham: Se thou also kepe my testamente therfore both thou and thy seed after the in their generacions. This is my testamente which ye shall kepe betwene me & you & thy seed after the. Euery man chylde amonge you shalbe circumcysed. ye shall circumcysse the fleshe of your foreskyne, and it shall be a token of the bonde betwyxte me and you. And euery man chylde of .viij. dayes olde shall be circumcysed amonge you, & suche as be in youre generacions, and borne at home and he that is boughte wyth money of any straunger whych is not of thy seed. He that is borne in thy house, & he also that is bought wyth money, must nedes be circumcysed. And my testamēt shall be in youre fleshe, for an euerlastynge bonde. And the vncircumcysed man chylde, in whose fleshe the foreskyne is not circumcysed, that soule shall perishe, from his people: because he hath broken my testament

Testament. And God sayde vnto Abraham: Sara thy wyfe shalt thou not call Sara: but Sara shall her name be. And I will blesse her & haue genen the a sonne of her, & wyll blesse her: people also, ye and kynges of people shall sprynge of her. But Abraham fell vpon his face and laughed, and sayde in hys harte: Shall a chyld be borne vnto him that is an blynded yere olde, and shall Sara that is nyette yere olde, bere? And Abraham sayde vnto God: That Imael myghte lyue in thy syghte.

Into whom God sayde: Sara thy wyfe shall * bere the a sonne in dede, & thou shalt call his name Ishaac. And I wyll make my bonde with him, for an * euerlastynge bonde and with his seed after him. And as concerning Imael also, I haue herde the: for I haue blessed him, & wyll make hys to encrease, & will multiplye him exceedynge. * Twelue yeres shall he begette, & I will make a great nacyon of him. But my bonde will I make with Ishaac, which Sara shall bere vnto y: euen this tyme twelue moneth.

And he left of talkynge with hym, & departed vp from Abraham. Abraham toke Imael his sonne and all suche as were borne in his house, and all that was bought w money as many as were men chyldre which were amonge the men of Abrahams house, & circumcysed the fleshe of their foreskynne, euen in that selfe same daye, as God had sayde vnto him. Abraham also him selfe was nyette yere olde & nyne, when the fleshe of his foreskynne was circumcysed. Imaell his sonne was. xiiij. yere olde when he was circumcysed in the fleshe of his foreskynne. The selfe same daye was Abraham circumcysed, and Imaell hys sonne. And all the men of hys house, borne in his house or bought with money (of straungers) were circumcysed with him.

The. xviii. Chapter.

There appeared thre men vnto Abraham. Ishaac is prompted to hym agayne: at which Sara laughed. The destruction of the Sodomites is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

And the Lorde appeared vnto hym in the playne of Mamre and he sat in his tent doze in the heate of the daye. And he lifte vp his eyes and looked: & lo, thre men stode by him. And whē he sawe them, he ran to mete them from the tent doze, and fell to the grounde and sayde: Lorde (I beseeche the) yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght: goo not (I praye the) fro thy seruante. Let a lytle water be sett, and washe your fete, and refrethe your selues vnder the tree. And I wyll sett a * moztell of beede, to comforte your hartes withall. And than shall ye goo your wayes, for euen therfore are ye come to your seruante. And they sayde: Doe euen so as y^e haue sayde. And Abraham went a pase in to his tent vnto Sara, & sayde: make redy attōce thre pecches of fyne meale, kneade it, & make cakes. And Abraham rennyng vnto his beastes, fett a calfe tendre and good, & gaue it vnto a ponge man, & he hasted to make it redy at tōnce. And he toke butter & mylke & the calf whych he had prepared, & set it before the, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree * whan they dyd eate.

And they sayde vnto him: Where is Sara thy wyfe? he answered: beholde, she is in the tent. And he sayde: * in returnynge, I will come agayne vnto the, accordynge to tyme of lyfe. And loo: Sara thy wyfe shall haue a sonne. That hearde Sara, in the tent doze which was behinde him (Abraham and Sara were both olde & well strepen in age, & it cealed to be with Sara after the maner as it is wth women) Therfore Sara laughed with in hys selfe sayynge: Howe I am waxed olde, shall I geue my selfe to * lust, & my Lorde olde also? And God sayde vnto Abraham: wherfore dyd Sara laugh sayynge: Shall I of a surety bere a chyld which am olde: is any thyng wonderfull to God? Accordynge to the tyme * appoynted will I returne vnto the, eue accordynge to the tyme of lyfe, & Sara shall haue a sonne. Thā Sara denyed it sayynge: I laughed not, for she was astrapde. And he sayde: It is not so, but thou laughedst. And y^e men stondynge vp fro thence, looked towarde Sodome. And Abraham went with them to byngge them on the waye. And y^e Lorde sayde: Shall I hyde fro Abraham that thyng which I do: sepynge that Abraham shall be a * great and a myghtie people, and all the nacyns of y^e erth shall be blessed in him? I knowe this also, that he will commaunde his chyldren and hys household after him, that they kepe the waye of y^e Lorde, and do after ryghte and conscynce, that the Lorde maye byngge vpon Abraham all that he hath spoken vnto him.

And the Lorde sayde * The crye of Sodome and Gomorra is great, and theyr synne is exceedynge greuous. I wyll go downe nowe and see whether they haue done all together accordynge to that crye which is come vnto me or not, that I maye knowe knowe. And the men departed thence and wēt to Sodome warde. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and Abraham dwelle here & sayde: Wylt y^e also destroye the ryghtwes with the wicked: parauenture there be l. ryghtwes wthyn the cytie, wylt thou destroye and not spare the place for the sake of l. ryghtwes that are therein? What be farre from the, that thou shuldest do after thys sayynge, & slep the ryghtwes with the wicked, & that the ryghtwes shulde be as y^e wicked, that be farre fro the. Shall not the iudge of all the worlde do accordynge to ryghte? And the Lorde sayde: Yf I fynde in Sodome l. ryghtwes wthyn y^e cytie, I will spare all the place for their sakes.

And Abraham answered sayde, Beholde, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Lorde, * which am but dust and ashes. parauenture there shall lacke fyue of fyfte ryghteous: Wylt y^e destroye all the cytie for lacke offyue? And he sayde: yf I fynde there fourtye & fyue, I will not destroye the. And he proceeded to speake vnto hym agayne, & sayde, parauenture there shall be fourtye founde there. he answered: I will not do it for forties sake. he sayde vnto him agayne: D let not my Lorde be angry that I speake: parauenture there shall thyrtye be founde there. And he sayde: I will do nothyng yf I fynde thyrtye there. he sayde agayne: O le, I haue taken vpon me to speake nowe also vnto my Lorde: parauenture ther shall be twentye founde there. he answered: I wyll not destroye them for twentys sake. And he sayde: D let not my Lorde be angry, & I wyll speake yet but this once. Parauenture there shall ten be founde there. he answered: I wyll not destroye them for tens sake. And y^e Lorde went his waye as soone as he had lefte comynge with Abraham. And Abraham also returned vnto his place.

The. xix. Chapter.

Lot receaued two Angelles in to his house. The synners of the Sodomites. Lot is deliuered and byngge to dwell in y^e cytie zoar. Lottes wyfe is turned into a pillar of salt. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is dyckened & lyeth wth his daughters whych conceaued chyldren by hym.

And there came. ij. angells to Sodome at euen. And Lot sat at the gate of Sodome. And Lot seinge them, rose vp to mete the, and he * bowed him selfe to the grounde w his face. And he sayde: my Lordes, tūne in I praye you in to your seruantes house & tary all nyghte & washe your fete & ye shall ryse vpearly to go on your wayes. Whych sayde: nay, but we wyll byde in the streates all nyghte. And he in maner dyd euen * compelle the vlosely. And they turnynge in vnto him entred in to his house, & he made the a feast & did bakke sweete bred, & they dyd * eate. And before they wēt to rest, y^e men of y^e cytie (euen the men of Sodome) compassed the house rounde aboute both olde & yonge, all y^e people from all quarters. And they callynge vnto Lot, sayde vnto him: where are y^e men whych came into the thys nyght? byngge the out vnto vs & we will knowe them.

And Lot wēt out at the doores vnto the, and whē the doze after hym and sayde: naye for goddes sake brethren, do not so wychedly. Beholde I haue two daughters whych haue knowne no mā, the will I byngge out nowe vnto you: & do with them as it semeth good in your eyes. Only vnto these inē do nothyng, for therfore came they in vnder y^e shadowe of my rofe. And they sayde: stonde back. And they sayde: he came in as one to scourne, & wyll he be nowe a * iudge: we wyll surely deale worse with the than with them.

And they pleased soze vpon the man, euen Lot: & came to breake vp the dooze, but the men put forth theire handes & pulled Lot in to the house to them and shut to the dooze. And the men that were at the dooze of the house, they smote with blyndnesse * both small & greate: so that they saynted and coulde not fynde the dooze. And y^e men sayde vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe or sonnes or daughters or what soeuer y^e haue in the cytie, byngge it out of this place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of them is great * before the face of God: for the Lorde hath sent vs to destroye it.

And Lot went out and spake vnto hys sonnes in lawe which marked his daughters sayynge: stode vp: get you out of this place, for y^e Lorde will ouerthrowe this cytie. But he semed as though he had mocked, vnto his sonnes in lawe. And whan the morninge arose, y^e angells caused Lot to speke hym sayynge: stonde vp, take thy wyfe and thy two daughters at hande, lest thou perishe in the synne of the cytie. And as he prologed the tyme, the men caught both him, his wyfe & his two daughters by the handes, the Lorde byngge mercyfull vnto him, and they brought hym forth and sette hym without the cytie. It fortunēd whan they had brought them out, * he sayde: haue thy lyfe, and loke not behynde the, neyther tary thou in all thys playne countre. haue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perishe. And Lot sayde vnto them. Oh nay Lorde: beholde, thy seruante hath founde grace in thy syghte, and thou hast magnified thy mercye which thou hast shewed vnto me in sayynge my lyfe. Beholde, I can not be saued in the mountayne, lest some misfortune fall vpon me and I dye. Beholde, here is a cytie by, to flee vnto, euen yonder lytle one: Oh let me be saued there: is it not a lytle one, and my soule shall lyue? And he sayde to hym: se I haue receaued thy request as concernynge this thyng, that that I will not overthrowe thys cite for the which thou hast spoken. Haste the, & be sayed there, for I can do nothyng till thou become thyther. And therfore the name of pcyte is called zoar. And the sonne was now rylen upon the erth, when Lot was entred into zoar.

¶ Then the Lorde rayned upon Sodome & Gomorra, by pmysson & spye fro the Lorde out of heauen, & overthrowe those cyties & all p regyon, and all that dwelled in the cyties, and that that grewe upon the erth. But Lot's wyfe looked behynde her, & was turned in to a pyllar of salte. Abraham ryng up early, got him to the place where he stode before p presence of God, & lokynge towarde Sodome & Gomorra & towarde all the lande of that contre he looked: and beholde, the smoke of the contre arose as the smoke of a forname. And it happened that when God destroyed the cyties of that regyon, he thought upon Abraham, & sent Lot & out from the myddes of p overthrowenge, when he overthrowe the cyties where Lot dwelled.

¶ And Lot departed out of zoar & dwelled in the mountayns w his ij. daughters, for he feared to tary in zoar, but dwelled in a caue, he & his ij. daughters. And the elder sayde vnto p yonger: oure father is olde, and there is not a man in the erth to come in vnto vs after the maner of all the worlde. Come, we will make oure father dzoeken with wyne, & lye with him, that we maye saue sede of oure father. And so they made their father dzoeken with wyne that nyght. And the elder daughter went & laye with her father. And he perceaued it not, nether when she laye downe, nether when she rose vp.

¶ And on the morow it happened that the elder sayde vnto the yonger: beholde, yester nyght laye I with my father. Let vs make him dzoeken with wyne this nyght also, & go thou & lye with him, that we maye saue v seed of oure father. And they made their father dzoeken with wyne that nyght also. And the yonger arose & laye with him. And he perceaued it not: nether when she laye downe, nether when she rose vp. Thus were both the daughters of Lot w chylde by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called hys name Moab. The same is the father of the Moabytes vnto thys daye. And the yonger bare a sonne also and called hys name Ben Ammi, The same is the father of the chyl- dren of Ammon vnto this daye.

¶ The xx. Chapter.

¶ Abraham went as a stranger in to the lande of Gerar. The kynge of Gerar taketh awaye his wyfe.

¶ And Abraham departed thence to- ward p south cōtre, and dwelled betwene Cades & Sur, and sojourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayde of Sara hys wyfe: she is my * syster. * Se. p. 1. 2. And Abimelech kynge of Gerar sent & fette Sara awaye. and. p. 1. 1. b.

¶ But God came to Abimelech in a dreame in p nyght and sayde to hym: Se, thou shalt dye for the womans sake which thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mas wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, & he sayde: Lorde wilt thou slep ryghtewes people? sayde not he vnto me, she is my syster? yet, & sayde not she herselfe: he is my brother? with a pure herte and innocent vades haue I done this. And God sayde vnto him by a dreame: I wot it well that thou dydest it in the p- renesse of thy herte. I kepte p also that thou shuldest not sinne agaynst me, & therfore suf- fered I the not to touch her. Nowe therfore deliuer the man his wyfe agayne, for he is a prophete. And he shall praye for p that thou mayst lyue. But and p thou deliuer her not agayne, be sure that thou shalt dye the death, both thou, and all that thou hast.

¶ Abraham answered. For I sayde: surely the feare of God is not in thys place, & they shall slep me for my wyfes sake: yet in verp dede she is my syster, for she is the daughter of my father: though she be not the daughter of my mother: and she became my wyfe. And after, God caused me to wandre, out of my fathers house, I sayde vnto her: Thys kyn- nesse shalt thou shewe vnto me in all places where we come, that thou saye of me, he is my brother.

¶ Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, men seruauntes & women seruauntes & gaue them vnto Abraham, and deliuered hym Sa- ra his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayde: beholde, my lande lyeth before the, dwell where it pleaseth p best. But vnto Sara he sayde: Se, I haue geuen thy brother a thou- sande peces of syluer, beholde, it shall be a couerpyng of thyn eyes vnto all that are w the * & thus with all was she reponed.

¶ And so Abraham prayed vnto God, and God healed Abimelech and his wyfe and his maydens, & they bare chylde. For p Lorde had closed to, all the matryces of the house of Abimelech: because of Abrahams wyfe.

¶ The xxj. Chapter.

¶ Isaac is borne. Agar is cast oute with her yonger sonne Ismael. The Angell comforteth Agar. The con- uersation betwene Abimelech and Abraham.

¶ The Lorde

¶ The Lorde visyted Sara as he had sayde and byd vnto her * accor- dyng as he had promysed. For Sara was wyth chylde and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euen the same season which p Lorde had ap- poynted hym. And Abraham called his sonnes name that was borne vnto hym which Sa- ra * bare hym, Isahac: & Abraham * circumcy- sed Isahac his sonne whē he was. viii. dayes olde: as God comaunded hym. And Abraham was an hūdyed yere olde: whē his sonne Isahac was borne vnto hym. But Sara sayde: God hath made me a laughynge stocke: so that all that heare: wyll laugh at me. She sayde also: who wolde haue sayd vnto Abra- hā: that Sara shulde haue geuen chylde su- che? for I haue borne him a sonne in hys olde age. The chylde grewe: and was wened: and Abraham made a great feast: the same daye that Isahac was wened. Sara sawe also the sonne of Hagar the Egyptian (whych she had borne vnto Abraham) to be a mocker. Wherfore she sayde vnto Abraham: * put awaye this bondmayde & hys sonne: for the sonne of thys bondewoman shall not be hys wyth my sonne Isahac: & thys sayynge was very greuous in Abrahams syght because of hys sonne. And God sayde vnto Abraham: let it not be greuous in thy syght, because of the ladd and of thy bondmayde. All p Sara hath sayde vnto the, heare hys voyce, for * in Isahac shall thy seed be called. Wherouer of the sonne of the bondewoman wyll I make a nacyon: because he is thy * seed.

¶ And so Abraham rose vp early in the mor- ninge, and toke bread and a bottell of water, and gaue it vnto Hagar, puttynge it on hys shulders with the ladd also, & sent her awaye. who departynge, wandred vp and doune in the wyldernes of Beer Seba. And the wa- ter was spent in the bottell, and she cast p ladd vnder a bush and went and sat on the other syde a greate waye, as it were a bowshot of: for she sayde: I will not se the death of the chylde. And she lpytynge doune on the other syde, lyfte vp hys voyce and wepte.

¶ And God herde the voyce of the chylde. And the angell of God called Hagar oute of heauen and sayde vnto her: what ayleth the Hagar? Feare not, for God hath herde the voyce of the childe where he lyeth. Arise, and lyfte vp the ladd, and take hym in thy hande, for I will make of hym a greate people. And God opened hys eyes: and she sawe a well of water. And she went and fylled the bottell with water, and gaue the boye dyynke. And God was wyth the ladd, and he grewe and dwelt in the wyldernesse, and became an ar- cher. And he dwelt in p wyldernesse of Pha- ran. And hys mother gatt hym a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

¶ And it chauced the same season, that Abi- melech and Phicol hys chefe captayne spake vnto Abraham sayynge: * God is wyth the in all that thou doest. And nowe therfore swere vnto me euen here by God, that thou wilt not hurt me nor my chylde, nor my chyldeys chylde. But that thou shalt deale with me and the contre where thou hast bene a stranger, accordynge vnto the kynnesse that I haue shewed the. And Abraham sayd: I will swere.

¶ And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, which Abimelechs seruaun- tes had violently take awaye. And Abime- lech sayde: I wote not who hath done thys thynge. Also thou toldest me not: nether herde I of it, but thys daye. And Abraham toke shepe and oxen, and gaue the vnto Abimelech. And they made both of them a bonde toge- ther. And Abraham set. vii. ewe lambes by the selues. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abra- hā: what meane these. vii. ewe lambes which thou hast set by them selues? he answered: For these. vii. lambes shalt thou take of my hāde, that they maye be a wytnesse vnto me, that I haue dygged thys well. Wherfore the place is called Beer Seba, because that there they swore both of them. Thus made they a bonde to gether at Beer Seba. And Abimelech & Phicol his chefe Captayne rose vp, and turned agayne vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wodd in Beer Seba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the euerylastynge God: and so- journed in the Philistins lāde a longe season.

¶ The xxii. Chapter.

¶ The sayth of Abraham is proued in offerynge hys sonne Isahac. Thys oure sauour is promysed. The generacion of Nachor Abrahams brother.

¶ After these saynges it happened p God byd * proue Abraham and sayde vnto hym: Abraham. Whych answered: here am I. And he sayde take thy * only sonne Isahac whom thou louest, & get the vnto the lande Mozia, and sacrifice hym there for a sacrifice vpon one of the mountayns, whych I will shewe the: Then Abraham rose vp early in the mor- nynge, & saddled his asse, and toke two of hys yonge mē wyth hym, and Isahac hys sonne: and cloue wodd for the sacrifice, and rose vp and gott hym to the place whych God had appoynted hym.

¶ The thyrde daye Abraham lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe the place a farre of and sayde vnto his yonge men: lyde here with the asse. I and the ladd wyll goo yonder and woz- hyppye, & come agayne vnto you. And Abra- ham toke the wodd of the sacrifice and layde it vpon Isahac his sonne, but he him selfe to- ke fyre in his hande and a knyfe. And they went both of them together.

¶ Then

Then spake Isahac vnto Abraham hys father and sayde: My father? And he answered: here am I my sonne. He sayd: Se here is fyre and wodd, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? Abraham answered: my sonne, God wyl prouyde him a shepe for sacrifice. And so they wente both together.

And when they came vnto y place which God had shewed hym, Abraham made an altar there, & dressed the wodd, and bownde Isahac his sonne, & layde him on the altar, aboue vpon the wodd. And Abraham stretchynge forth his hande, toke the knyfe to haue kylled hys sonne. And the angell of the Lorde called vnto him from heauen, saying: Abraham Abraham? And he sayde: here am I. And he sayde: laye not thy hande vpon the chyld, nether do any thinge at all vnto him, for now I knowe that thou fearest God, and hast for my sake not spared thyne onely sonne. And Abraham layfpyge vp his eyes, looked aboute: and beholde, there was a ram caught by the hornes in a thickette. And he went & toke the ram and offred hym vp for a sacrifice in the steade of hys sonne. And Abraham called y name of the place, the Lorde wyl see. As it is sayde thys dape: in y mounte wyl the Lorde be sene.

And the Angell of the Lorde cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the secōde tyme, and sayde: by my selfe haue I sworn (sayth the Lorde) because thou hast done thys thyng and hast not spared thy onely sonne: that in blessinge I wyl blesse the, and in multipliēge I wyl multiplie thy seed as the starres of heauē & as the sande which is vpo the see syde. And thy seed shall possesse the gate of hys enemies. And in thy seed shall all the naciōs of the erth be blessed, because thou hast herde my voyce. So turned Abraham agayne vnto hys pōnge mē, and they rose vp and went together to Beer Seba. And Abraham dwelt at Beer Seba. And it chauned after these thinges, that one tolde Abraham sayinge: Beholde, Milcha, she hath also borne chyldren vnto thy brother Nachor. Hus hys eldest sonne, and Bus hys brother, and Remuell the father of the Syrians, and ceased, & Haso, and Yldas, & Jedlaph, & Bethuel. And Bethuel begat Rebecca. These eyght dyd Milcha bere to Nachor Abrahams brother:

And hys concubyne called Rhuma she bare also Tebah, & Gabam, & Haas, & Maacha.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Sara dyeth and is buried in the felde that Abraham bought of Ephron the Hethite.

Sara was an hūdzēd and. xxvii. yere olde (so longe lyued she) & Sara dyed in kyriat Arba. The same is hebron in the lande of Canaan.

And Abraham came to mozne Sara, and to wepe for her. And Abraham stode vp fro the syght of hys coozle, and talked wth the sonnes of heth sayinge: I am a straunger & a forpyner amonge you, geue me a posseltyon to burye in wyth you, that I maye bury my coarce out of my syght. And the chyldren of heth answered Abraham, saying vnto him: heare vs Lorde, thou art a pryncē of God amonge vs. In the cheffest of oure sepulchres bury thy dead: None of vs also shall forbyd the hys sepulchre, but thou mayest bury thy dead therein: Abraham stode vp and bowed him selfe before the people of the lande y chyldren of heth. And he comoned wth the sayinge: If it be youre mynde that I shall bury my dead out of my syght, heare me, and speke for me to Ephron the sonne of zoar: that he maye geue me the dubbyll caue which he hath, and that is in the ende of hys felde: but for as moche money, as it is worth shall he geue it me in the presence of you, for a posseltyon to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of heth.

And Ephron the Hethite answered Abraham in the audience of the chyldren of heth and of all that went in at the gates of hys cyte, sayinge: Not so my Lorde, heare me. The felde geue I the, and the caue y therein is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it y, bury thy dead. And Abraham bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande, & spake vnto Ephron in the audiece of the people of the cōtre saying: I praye the heare me yf it please the: I wyl geue siluer for the felde, take it & I will bury my deed there. Ephron answered Abraham sayinge vnto hym: My Lorde, hearken vnto me. The lande is worth. iiii. hūdzēd sycles of syluer: what is y betwyxte the and me? bury therfore thy deed. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron & weyed hym the syluer whych he had sayde, in the audience of the sonnes of heth. Euen. iiii. hūdzēd syluer sycles of current money amonge marchantes. And the felde of Ephron with the dubbyll caue whyche was before Mamre: euē the felde and the caue y was therein and all the trees y were in the felde, & that were in all the borders rounde aboute, was made sure vnto Abraham for a posseltyon, in the syght of the chyldre of heth, before all that went in at the gates of the cyte. After thys dyd Abraham burye Sara hys wyfe wyfe in the double caue of the felde y lyeth before Mamre. The same is hebron in the lande of Chanaan. And so both the felde and the caue y is therein, was made vnto Abraham a sure posseltyon to bury in, of the sonnes of heth.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Abraham maketh hys seruant Swere: and sendeth hym to seke a wyfe for Isahac hys sonne. The seruant was saythfull & brought Rebecca wyche Isahac toke to hys wyfe.

Abraham was olde and stryken in dayes, and the Lorde had blessed hym in all thynge. And Abraham sayde vnto his eldest seruaunte of his house whych had y rule ouer all y he had: Put thy hande vnder my thygh, & I wyl make the swere by the Lorde God of heauen and God of the erth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of Chanaan, amonge wyche I dwell. But thou shalt goo vnto my contrey and to my natyue londe, and take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isahac.

But the seruaunte sayde vnto hym: peraduenture the woman wyl not agree to come wyth me vnto thys lande, shall I brynge thy sonne agayne vnto the lāde whych thou camest out of? To whom Abraham answered: be ware, that thou brynge not my sonne thither agayne. The Lorde God of heauen whych toke me fro my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, and whych spake vnto me and that sware vnto me, sayinge: vnto thy seed wyl I geue thys lande, he shall sende hys angell before the, and thou shalt take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuerthelesse yf the woman wyl not agree to folow the, thā shalt thou be wythout daunger of thys my ooth. Onely brynge not my sonne thither agayne. And the seruaunt put hys hande vnder the thygh of Abraham his master, and sware to hym as concernynge that matter. And the seruaunt toke. x. camels of the camels of hys master and departed, and had of all manner goodes of hys master wth hym, and stode vp and went to Mesopotamya, vnto the cytie of Nahor. And made hys camels to lye downe wythout the cytie by a wels syde of water, at euen: aboute the tyme that women come out to drawe water, and he sayde.

Lorde God of my master Abraham, sende me good spede this dape, and shewe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stonde here by the well of water, and the daughters of the men of thys cytye come out to drawe water: Nowe the damsell to whome I saye, stowpe downe thy pytcher I praye the that I maye dryncke. If she saye also:

dryncke, and I wyl geue thy camels dryncke: the same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruaunte Isahac: yee, and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe yer he had left speakynge, beholde, Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuell, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and hys pytcher vpon hys shoulder: The damsell was very sayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknewen of man. And she went downe to the well, and fylled hys pytcher and came vp. And the seruaunte rennyng vnto her, sayde: let me suppe a lytle water of thy pytcher. And she sayde: dryncke my Lorde.

And she hastēd and lett downe her pytcher vpon hys arme, and gaue hym dryncke. And when she had gyuen hym dryncke, she sayde: I wyl drawe water for thy camels also, vntyll they haue dryncke ynough. And she powred out hys pytcher into the trough hastily, and ranne agayne vnto the well to fett water: and drew for all hys camels. And the man wondred at her: but helde his peace, to wete whether the Lorde had made hys iourney prosperous or not. And it fortunēd as the camelles had left drynkyng, the man toke a golden earynge of halfe a sicke waight, and two bracelettēs for hys handes, of. x. sycles weyght of golde, and sayde: Whose daughter art thou? tell me I praye the, is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? She answered him: I am the daughter of Bethuel the sonne of Milca which she bare vnto Nahor: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue litter and prouender ynough, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed him selfe, & worshipped the Lorde, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham, whych ceaseth not to deale mercifully and truly wth my master, and hath brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ranne and tolde them of her mothers house these thynges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And he ranne out vnto the man, euen to the well: for as sone as he had sene the earynges and the bracelettēs in hys sisters handes (and hearde the wordes of Rebecca hys syster sayinge: thus sayde the man vnto me) he went out vnto the man. And loo, he stode wth the camels by the well syde. And he sayde: come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherefore stodest thou wythout? I haue dressed the house, and made rowme for the camels. And than the man came in to the house: and he vnbrylled the camels and (Laban) brought lytter and prouender for the camels, and water to wfete and the menses fete that were in hym, & set meate before hym to eate. But he sayde: I wyl not eate, vntyll I haue sayde myne arande. And he sayde: saye on. And he sayd: I am Abrahams seruaunt, & God hath blessed my master out of measure, that he is become greete, and hath geuen hym shepe, and oxen, syluer and golde, men seruautes, and mayde seruautes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare hym a sonne, when she was olde: and vnto hym hath he geuen all that he hath. And my master made me swere sayinge: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my sonne amonge the daughters of Cananites in whose lade I dwell: But thou shalt go vnto my fathers house & to my kynred, and take a wife vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: peradventure the wyfe wyl not folowe me: And he answered me: The Lorde, before whome I walke, wyl sende hys angell wth the, and prosper thy iourney and thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. Then shalt thou be gyftlesse of my curse, when thou comest to my kynred. And yf they geue the not one, thou shalt be gyftlesse of my curse.

And so I came thys daye vnto the well and sayde: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so nowe that thou makest my iourney whych I go, prosperous: beholde I stonde by thys well of water, and whē a byrgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me (I praye the) a lytle water of thy pytcher to drynke, and she saye to me: drynke thou, and I wyl also drawe for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whom the Lorde hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And before I had made an ende of speakinge in myne harte: beholde Rebecca came forth, and hys pytcher on hys shulder, and she went downe vnto the well & drew water. And I sayde vnto her: geue me drynke I praye the. And she made hast, & toke downe hys pitcher from of hys, and sayde drynke, and I wyl geue thy camels drynke also. And I dracke, & she gaue the camels drynke also. And I asked her, sayinge: whose daughter art thou? She answered: the daughter of Bathuel Rahors sonne * whom Milca bare vnto hym. And I put the earring vpon hys face, and the braceletes vpon hys handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshipped the Lorde, & blessed the Lorde God of my master Abraham whych had brought me the ryght waye, to take my masters brothers daughter vnto hys sonne. Nowe also yf ye wyl deale mercifully and truly wth my master, tell me: and yf not, tell me also: I maye turne me to the ryght hande & lefte.

Then answered Laban and Bathuel, sayinge. This sayenge is proceded euen out of the Lorde, we can not therfore saye vnto the, ether good or bad: beholde, Rebecca is before the, take her and goo, that she maye be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as God hath sayde. And when Abrahams seruaunt heard thes wordes, he worshipped the Lorde, flatt vpon the erth. And the seruaunt toke forth iewelless of syluer and iewelless of golde and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca. And vnto hys brother and to hys mother, he gaue gyftes. And they dyd eate & drynke, both he and the men that were with him, and taried all nyght. And when they rose vp in the mornynge, he sayde: let me departe vnto my master. Hys brother & hys mother answered: let the damsell abyde wth vs a whyle, and it be but euen x. dayes, and than shall she go. He sayde vnto them: hynder me not, beholde, the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye therfore, that I maye goo vnto my master. And they sayde: we wyl call the damsell, and enquire at hys mouth. And they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wylt thou goo with this man? And he answered, I wyl goo.

So they let Rebecca thes sister go and her nozle & Abrahams seruaunt, & hys men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art oure sister, growe in to thousande thousandes * and thy seed possesse the gate of thes enemyes. And Rebecca arose and hys damselfe, and satt them vpon the camels, and wet they waye after the man. And the seruaunt toke Rebecca, and went hys waye.

And Isaac was a comynge from the waye of the well of the luyng and sepunge me, for he dwelt in the south cōtrepe, & Isaac was gone out to praye in the felde at the euē tye. And he lyft vpon hys eyes and sawe the camels comynge. And Rebecca lyft vpon hys eyes, and when she sawe Isaac, she lyghted of the camell, and sayd vnto the seruaunt: what mā is thys that cometh walkinge agaynst vs in the felde? And the seruaunt sayde: it is my master. Therfore she toke hys cloke, and put it about her. And the seruaunt tolde Isaac all thynges that he had done. And Isaac broughte her in to his mother Saras tete, and toke Rebecca, and she became hys wyfe, and he loued her: and so Isaac receaued conforste after hys mothers

The xxv. Chapter.

Abraham taketh Keturah to hys wyfe: and bergeth many chyldren. Abraham dyeth and getteth all hys goodes to Isaac. The genealogie of Isaac. The birth of Jacob and Esau. Esau selleth hys birthryght for a messe of potage.

Abrah-

Abraham proceeded further and toke him a wyfe called Keturah, whiche bare hym Simram, and Jeklan, and Medan, and Midia, and Jesbach and Suah. Jeklan begat Seba & Medan. And the sonnes of Medan were: Asurim, Letusim and Leunim. And the sonnes of Midian: Ephra, and Ephra, Hanoch, and Abida & Elda. All these were the chyldren of Keturah. And Abraham gaue all hys goodes vnto Isaac. But vnto the sonnes of the concubynes whych Abraham had, he gaue gyftes, and sent them awaye from Isaac hys sonne (whyle he yet lyued) castwarde, vnto the lande of Kedes.

And these are the dayes of the yeares of Abrahams lyfe whych he lyued: an hundred and lxxv. yere, and than fell sycke and dyed in a lustye age (whē he had lyued ynough) and was put vnto hys people. And hys sonnes Isaac and Ismael buryed hym in the double caue in the felde of Ephron sonne of zoar yethete besyde the playne of Maare. Whych felde Abraham bought of the sonnes of heth. There was Abraham buryed & Sara hys wyfe. It fortunated after the deeth of Abraham that God blessed Isaac hys sonne, and Isaac dwelled by the well of the luyng and sepunge me.

These are the generacions of Ismael Abrahams sonne, whych Hagar the Egypcyen Saras handmayde bare vnto Abraham. And these are the names of the sonnes of Ismael, in their names accordyng to thes kynredes. The eldest sonne of Ismael: Nebaioth, and Cedar: and Adbeel, and Mibsam, and Misma, Duma, and Mada, & Hadar, Thema, Jetur, Naphis & Kedma: These are the sonnes of Ismael, & these are thes names, by thes townes and castels. xij. princes of their householdes. And these are the yeares of the lyfe of Ismael, an hundred and xxxviij. yere, and he fell sycke, & dyed, & was layde vnto hys people. And they dwelled fro Heulah vnto Sur yis by the border of Egypte, as thou goest towarde y Assirians. And he dyed in the presence of all hys brethren.

And these are the generacions of Isaac Abrahams sonne: Abraham begat Isaac. And Isaac was xl. yere olde whē he toke Rebecca to wyfe, the daughter of Bathuel the Sirian of Mesopotamia and sister to Laban the Sirian. And Isaac made intercessyon vnto the Lorde for hys wyfe: because she was barren: and the Lorde was intreated of hym, and Rebecca hys wyfe conceaued: and the chyldre stroue to gether wythin her. Therfore she sayd: yf it shulde goo so to passe, what helpeth it that I am wyth chylder? Wherfore, she went to aske the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto her: there are two manner of people in thy wombe, & two nacyns shalbe deuyded out of thy bowels, and the one nacyon shalbe myghtyer than the other, and the elder shalbe seruaunte vnto the yonger.

Therfore when hys tyme was come to be deliuered: beholde, there were two twynnes in hys wombe. And he that came out fyrst was redd, and he was all ouer as it were a rough garmēt, & they called his name Esau. And after hym, came hys brother out, & hys hande holdynge Esau by the heele. And hys name was called Jacob. And Isaac was lx. yere olde when they were borne: and the boyes grewe, and Esau became a conynge hunter & a tyller of the erth. But Jacob was a perfecte man, & dwelled in the tentes. Isaac loued Esau, because he dyd eate of hys venyson, but Rebecca loued Jacob.

Isaac sod potage, and Esau came from the felde and was sayntie, and Esau sayd to Jacob: fed me I praye the wth that redde potage, for I am sayntie. And therfore was hys name called Esau. And Jacob sayde: sell me thys daye thy birthryght. Esau sayde: Loo I am at the popyte to dye, and what profyte shall thys birthryght do me? Jacob answered: swere to me then thys daye. And he swere to hym, & solde hys birthryght vnto Jacob. Then Jacob gaue Esau brede and potage of ryll. And he dyd eate and drynke and rose vp, & wet hys waye. And Esau regarded not hys birthryght.

The xxvi. Chapter.

The iorney of Isaac towarde Abimelech. The promises made vnto Isaac and hys seed. Isaac is rebuked of Abimelech for callinge hys wyfe hys sister. The chyldrenge of the shephardes for the well. Isaac is comforted. The atonement betwene Abimelech and Isaac.

And there came a derthin the lade, passinge the fyrst derth that was in the dayes of Abraham. And Isaac went vnto Abimelech kynge of the Philistynes vnto Gerar. And the Lorde appeared vnto him, and sayde: Go not downe into Egypte, but hyde in the lande whych I shall the we vnto the: so iourne in thys lande, and I wyl be wth the, and wyl blesse the: for vnto the and vnto thy sede I wyl geue all thes contreys. And I wyl performe the oothe whych I swore vnto Abraham thy father, and wyl multiplie thy seed as the starrs of heaue, and wyl geue vnto thy seed all thes contreys. And in thy seed shall all the nacyns of the erth be blessed, because that Abraham hath named vnto my voyce and kepte myne ordinaunces, my commaundementes, my statutes, and my lawes.

And Isaac dwelled in Gerar. And the men of the place asked hym of hys wyfe, and he sayde: she is my sister: for he feared to saye: He is my wyfe, lest the men of the place shulde haue kylled him because of Rebecca whych was bewtyfull to the eye. And it happened after he had bene there longe tyme, that Abimelech kynge of the Philistynes looked out at a wyndowe, and sawe Isaac sportynge with Rebecca hys wyfe. And Abimelech called Isaac, and sayde: He is of a suertye thy wyfe, & why saydest thou: He is my syster? To whom Isaac answered: I thought that I myght peradventure haue dyed for hys sake. Abimelech sayd: why hast thou done thys vnto vs? one of the people myght lpghtely haue lync by thy wyfe, and so shuldest thou haue brought synne vpon vs. And so Abimelech charged all hys people, sayinge: he that toucheth this mā or hys wyfe, shall dye the death.

Isaac sowed in that lande, and founde in that same yere an. C. bushels: & the Lorde blessed hym, & the man waxed myghtye, and wēt forth and grewe tyll he was exceedinge great, for he had possession of shepe, of oxen and a myghtye household, and therefore the Philistynes had enuy at hym: for the Philistynes stopped & fylled vp wyth erth all the welles which his fathers seruantes dygged in hys fathers Abrahams tyme. And Abimelech sayde vnto Isaac: get the from vs, for thou art myghtyer then we a great deale.

Therefore Isaac departed thence, and abode in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there. And Isaac returnynge, digged agayne the welles of water whych they dygged in the dayes of Abraham hys father, which the Philistynes had stopped after the deth of Abraham, and gaue them the same names whych hys father gaue the. Isaac's seruantes dygged in the valey, and founde a well of lyuing water. And the herdmen of Gerar dyd stryue wyth Isaac's herdmen, sayinge: the water is oures. Chā called he the well *Eseck, because they stroue wyth hym.

And they dygged another well, and stroue for that also. And he called the name of it *Sitena. And than he departed thence, and dygged another well for the which they stroue not: therefore called he it *Rehoboth, sayinge: the Lorde hath nowe made vs rowme, that we maye encrease vpon the erth. And he went vp thence, to Beer Seba. And the Lorde appeared vnto hym the same nyght, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not, for I am wyth the, & wyll blesse the, and multiplie thy seed for my seruauant Abrahams sake. And he buylded an autler there, and called vpon the name of the Lorde, and ptyched hys tete. And there Isaac's seruantes dygged a well.

Then came Abimelech to hym from Gerar, and Abusath hys frende, and whicoll his chiefe captayne. And Isaac sayde vnto the:

wherefore come ye to me, seinge ye hate me & haue put me awaye from you? Whych answered: In seinge, we sawe that the *Lorde was with the, & we sayde: let there be nowe an othe betwyxte vs euen betwyxte vs and the, and let vs make a bonde wyth the, that thou shuldest do vs no hurte, as we haue not touched the, and as we haue done vnto the nothyng but good, and sent the awaye in peace: for thou art nowe the blessed of the Lorde. And he made them a feast, & they dyd eate & dryncke. And they rose vp by tymes in the moynynge, and swore one to a nother. And Isaac sent them awaye. And they departed from hym in peace. And that same daye it happened, that Isaac's seruantes came & tolde hym of a well whych they had dygged: and sayde vnto hym, we haue founde water. And he called it *Beer Seba. And the name of the cyte is called *Beer Seba vnto this daye. Esau was. xl. yere olde and he toke a wyfe called Judith, the daughter of Beryan hethyte, & Basmath the daughter of Elon hethyte also, which were disobe- dient vnto Isaac and Rebecca.

The xxvij. Chapter.

Isaac stealeth the blessinge from Esau by hys mothers colicell. Isaac is sad. Esau is comforted. The hatred of Esau toward Isaac.

And it came to passe that whan Isaac waxed olde and hys eyes were dymme (so he coulde not see) he called Esau his eldest sonne and sayd vnto hym: my sonne. And he sayde vnto hym: here am I. And he sayde: beholde, I am nowe olde, and knowe not the daye of my deth: and nowe therefore take thy weapons, thy quyer and thy bowe, & get the to the felde, that thou mayest take me some venyson, and make me meate soche as I loue, and bynge it me, that I maye eate, and that my soule maye blesse y before y dye. But Rebecca hearde when Isaac spake to Esau hys sonne. And Esau wente into the felde, to catche venyson, and to bynge it. And Rebecca sayd vnto Jacob hys sonne sayinge: Beholde I haue herde thy father talkynge wyth Esau thy brother and sayinge: bynge me venyson and make me meate, that I maye eate and blesse the before the Lorde, afore my deth. Nowe therefore therefore my sonne heare my voyce in that whych I commaunde the: gett the to the flocke, and bynge me thence two good kyddes, that I maye make meate of them for thy father, soche as he loueth. And thou shalt bynge it to thy father, that he maye eate & that he maye blesse the before hys deth.

Then sayde Jacob to Rebecca hys mother: beholde, Esau my brother is a rough man, and I am smooth. My father shall peradventure fele me, and I shall seme vnto him as though I went aboute to begyle hym, & so shall he bynge a curse vpon me, and not a blessinge: and hys mother sayde vnto hym: wpo me be thys curse my sonne, only heare my voyce, and go and fetch me them. And Jacob wēt and fet them, and brought them to hys mother. And hys mother made meate such as she knewe his father loued. And Rebecca sett goodly rayment of hys eldest sonnes Esau, whych was in the house wyth hys, & put vt vpo Jacob hys yongest sonne, & he put the skynnes of goyds vpo hys handes and vpon the smooth of hys necke. And he put the meate & brede whych he had prepared in the hande of hys sonne Jacob.

Whan he came to hys father, he sayde: my father? And he answered: here am I, who art thou my sonne? And Jacob sayde vnto hys father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done accordynge as thou baddest me: vp and spt and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. And Isaac sayde vnto hys sonne: howe commeth it that thou hast founde it so quykly my sonne? he answered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande. Then sayde Isaac vnto Jacob, come nere and let me fele the my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac hys father, and he felt hym and sayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau.

And he knewe hym not, because hys handes were rough as hys brother Esaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

And he axed hym: art thou my sonne Esau? And he sayde, that I am. Then sayde he: bynge me & let me eate of my sonnes venyson, that my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym wyne also, and he dryncke. And hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym, come nere, and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym and kysed hym. And he smelled the sauoure of hys rayment, and *blessed hym, and sayde, See, the smelle of my sonne is as y smell of a felde whych the Lorde hath blessed. God geue the of the dewe of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the erth, and plentye of corne and wyne. People be thy seruantes, and nacyons bowe vnto the. Be Lorde ouer thy brethren, and thy mothers chyldren stowe vnto the. Cursed be he that curseth the, and blessed be he that blesseth the.

It happened that assoone as Isaac had made an ende of blessinge and Jacob was skace gone out from the ptesence of Isaac his father, then came Esau his brother from his huntynge, and had made alsomeate, and brought it vnto hys father, and sayde vnto his father: let my father arple and eate of his sonnes venyson, & thy soule maye blesse me. Then hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who art thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was greatly astonied out of hys selfe, and sayde: whych is he & where is he then that hath hunted venyson and brought it me? and I haue eaten of all before thou camest, and I haue blessed hym, & he shall be blessed. When Esau herde y wordes of hys father, he cryed out greatly and bytterly, aboue mesure, and sayde vnto hys father: blesse me also my father. Who answered: thy brother came wyth subtilte, & hath take a waye thy blessinge. And he sayd agayne: he maye well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermynded me now two tymes, first he toke a waye my byrthyght: and se, nowe he hath he taken awaye my blessinge also. And he sayde: hast y kept neuer a blessinge for me?

Isaac answered and sayde vnto Esau: beholde I haue made hym thy Lord, and all hys mothers chyldren haue I made hys seruantes. Moreover wyth y corne & wyne haue I stablyshed hym, what can I do vnto the nowe my sonne? And Esau sayde vnto hys father: hast thou but y one blessinge my father? blesse me also: father: soltyted vp Esau his voyce and wepte. Then Isaac hys father answered & sayde vnto hym: beholde, thy dwellinge place shall be the fatnesse of the erth, and of the dewe of heauen from aboue. And wyth thy swerde shalt thou lyue, and shalt be thy brothers seruaut. And it wyll come to passe, that when thou shalt gett the masterye, thou shalt lowse hys pocke from of thy necke.

And Esau *hated Jacob, because of the blessinge that hys father blessed hym wyth. all. And Esau sayde in his harte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, and I wyll slep my brother Jacob: And these wordes of Esau hys eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sent and called Jacob hys yongest sonne, and sayde vnto hym: beholde thy brother Esau threatneth to kyll y: nowe therefore my sonne heare my voyce, make the rdy, & flecto Laban my brother at Haran: & tarpe wyth him a wyple: vntyll thy brothers fearnes be swaged, & vntyll thy brothers wrath turne awaye from the, & he forgett the thynges whych thou hast done to hi. Then wyll I sende and fet the awaye from thence.

thence. Why shulde I be desolate of you both in one daye? & Rebecca spake to Isabac, I am wery of my lyfe, for feare of the daughters of Beth. If Jacob take a wife of y^e daughters of Beth, loche one as these are, or of the daughters of the lande, what good shall my lyfe do me?

C The xxviii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob is sent into Mesopotamia to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marrieth an Hymaleite. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Chyph is promysed. Jacob maketh a vowe.

And so Isabac called Jacob and blessed hym, & charged hym, & sayde vnto him: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Chanaan, but aryse & gett the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy mothers brother. And God almyghty blesse the, & make the to increase, and multiplye the that I mayst be a nombze of people, and geue the the blessing of Abraham: to the and to thy seed wpyth the, that thou mayst possesse the lande (wherin thou art a stranger) whych the God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Isabac sent forth Jacob. And he went to Mesopotamia vnto Laban, sonne of Bethuel the Sirien, and brother to Rebecca Jacob and Esaus mother.

When Esau sawe that Isabac had blessed Jacob, and sent him to Mesopotamia, to set him a wyfe thence, and that as he blessed hym he gaue him a charge, sayinge: thou shalt not take a wyfe of the daughters of Chanaan: and that Jacob had obeyed hys father and mother, & was gone vnto Mesopotamia: & Esau sernge also that the daughters of Chanaan pleased not Isabac hys father: then went he vnto Ismael, and toke vnto the wyues whych he had, Mahala the daughter of Ismael Abrahams sonne, the syster of Nabatoth to be his wyfe. Jacob departed from Beer Seba, to come vnto Haran, and came vnto a place by chaunce, and tarped there all nyghte, because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, and put it vnder hys heade, and layde hym downe in the same place a slepe. And he dreamed: and beholde, there stode a ladder vpon the erth, and the topp of it reached vp to heauen. And se, the angels of God went vp and downe vpon it, yee and God stode vpon it, and sayde.

I am the Lorde God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isabac: The lade whych thou sleepest vpon wpyll I geue the and thy seed. And thy seed shall be as the dust of the erth: and thou shalt spreade abode to the west, to the east, to the north and to the south. And thozowe the and in thy seed shall all the kyndes of the erth be blessed. And se

I am wpyth the, and wpyll be thy keper in all places whether I goest, and wpyll byngge the agayne in to thys lande: nether wpyll I leaue the vntyll I haue made good all that I haue promysed the.

When Jacob was awaked out of hys slepe, he sayde: surely the Lorde is in this place, and I was not aware. And he was affrayed & sayde: howe fearfull is this place! it is none other, but euen the house of God and the gate of heauen. And Jacob stode vp early in the mornynge, & toke the stone that he had layde vnder hys head, and pitched it vp an ende, & poured oyle on the topp of it. And he called the name of y^e place Bethell, but the name of the cytie was called Lus before tyme. And Jacob bowed a vowe, sayinge: If God wpyll be wpyth me, and wpyll kepe me in thys iourney which I goo, and will geue me bread to eate, and clothes to put on, so that I come agayne vnto my fathers house in safte: then shall the Lorde be my God, and thys stone which I haue set vp an ende, shall be goddes house: and of all that thou shalt geue me, wpyll I geue the tith vnto the.

C The xxix. Chapter.

¶ Jacob cometh to Laban and serueth seuen yere for Rachel. Lea was brought to hys bed in steede of Rachel. He marryeth them bothe: and serueth yet. vij. yere more for Rachel. Lea conceaueth.

When Jacob lyfte vp hys feete, & came in to the east countrey. And as he looked aboute, beholde there was a well in the felde, and. iij. flockes of shepe laye therby (for at that well were the flockes watered) and there was a great stone vpon the well mouth. And thither were all the flockes brought, and they rolled the stone from the well mouth, and watered the shepe, & put the stone agayne vpon the well mouth vnto hys place. And Jacob sayd vnto them: brethren whence be ye? And they sayde: of Haran are we. And he sayd vnto them: knowe ye Laba the sonne of Nahor? They sayd: we knowe hym. And he sayde vnto them, is he in good health? And they sayde, he is in good health, and beholde, hys daughter Rachel commeth with the shepe. And he sayde, lo, it is yet but hys daye, nether is it tyme that the catell shulde be gathered together, water y^e shepe and go and fede the. And they sayde, we maye not, vntyll all the flockes be brought to gether, and tyll they roll the stone from the well mouth, and so we water oure shepe.

Whyle he yet talked wpyth them, Rachel came wpyth hys fathers shepe, for she kepte them. As soone as Jacob sawe Rachel, the daughter of Laba his mothers brother, and the shepe of Laban hys mothers brother, he went

he wyl and rowled the stone from the well mouth, and watered the flocke of Laban his mothers brother. And Jacob kyssed Rachel, and lyfte vp hys voyce and wepte: and Jacob tolde Rachel, y^e he was hys fathers brother & Rebeccas sonne. Therfore ranne she and tolde hys father.

And it happened when Laban hearde tell of Jacob his systers sonne, he ranne to mete him, & embraced him & kyssed him, & brought him to hys house. And he tolde Laban all the matter. To whom Laban sayde: well, thou art my bone & my fleshe. And he abode wpyth him the space of a moneth. And Laba sayde vnto Jacob: Though thou be my brother, shuldest y^e therfore serue me for naught? tell me, what shall thy wages be? Laba had. ij. daughters, the eldest called Lea & the yongest Rachel. Lea was fader eyed, but Rachel was bewtyfull & well fauored. And Jacob loued Rachel, and sayde: I wpyll serue the vij. yere for Rachel thy yongest daughter. Laban answered: it is better that I geue her the, than to another man: byde wpyth me.

And Jacob serued. vij. yeres for Rachel and they semed vnto him but a fewe dayes, for the loue he had to her. And Jacob sayde vnto Laba: geue me my wyfe, that I maye lye with hir. For my dayes are fulfilled:

Chan Laban gathered together all the men of that place, & made a feast. And when euen was come, he toke Lea hys daughter & brought her to hym: and he went in vnto hys daughter. And Laban gaue vnto hys daughter Lea, zilpha hys mayde, to be hys seruante.

(To whō whā Jacob came in accōrdynge to y^e custome.) And when the mornynge was come, beholde it was Lea. Cha sayde he to Laba wherfore hast thou played thus w me? dyd not I serue the for Rachel? wherfore thā hast thou beggled me? Laban answered: it is not the maner of thys place, to marpe the yōgest before the eldest. Passe out thys weke, and thā shall thys also be geuen the for the seruyce whych thou shalt serue me yet. vij. yeres more. And Jacob dyden so, and passed out y^e weke, and thā he gaue him Rachel hys daughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rachel hys daughter, Bilha hys handmayde to be hys seruante. So laye he by Rachel also, and loued Rachel more thā Lea, and serued hym yet. vij. yeres more.

When the Lorde sawe that Lea was despised, he made her frutefull. And Rachel remayned baren. And Lea conceaued and bare a sonne, and called hys name Ruben, for she sayde: the Lorde hath looked vpon my tribulacyō. Nowe therfore my husbād wpyll loue me. And she conceaued agayne and bare a sonne, and sayde: the Lorde hath herde that I am despised, and hath therfore geue me thys sonne also, and she called hys name

* Simeon. And she conceaued yet, & bare a sonne, and sayde: nowe thys once wpyll my husbāde kepe me company, because I haue borne hym. iij. sonnes: and therfore was hys name called Leui. And she conceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, sayinge: nowe wpyll I prayse the Lorde: therfore she called hys name Juda, and left bearynge.

C The xxx. Chapter.

¶ Rachel and Lea beynge bothe baren geue thepp maydens vnto thepp husbāde: and thepp beare hym chyldren. Jacob deceaueth Laban in the conceyvinge of the shepe & kyddes. Jacobs rewardes for hys seruyce.

Rachel when she sawe that she bare no chyldren, she enuyed hys syster, and sayde vnto Jacob: Geue me chyldre, or els I am but deed. And Jacob was wrooth w Rachel sayig: Am I in Goddes stead, which keepeth fro the frute of thy wōbe? Then she sayd: here is my mayde Bilha, go in vnto her, & she shall beare vpon my lappe, that I maye be increased by her. And she gaue hym Bilha hys handmayde to wyfe. And Jacob went in vnto her, and Bilha conceaued & bare Jacob a sonne. Chan sayde Rachel: God hath geuen sentēce on my spde, and hath also heard my voyce, and hath geuen me a sonne. Therfore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Racheis mayde conceaued agayne, and bare Jacob another sonne. And Rachel sayde: wpyth Godly wrestlynges haue I wrestled wpyth my syster, and haue gottē the upper hande: And she called hys name: Nephtali.

When Lea sawe that she had left bearynge, she toke zilpha hys mayde, and gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And zilpha Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Chan sayde Lea: Good lucke: and called hys name Gad. And zilpha Leas mayde bare Jacob another sonne. Cha sayde Lea: happy am I, for the daughters wpyll call me blessed. And called hys name Aser.

And Ruben went out in the dayes of the whet haruest and founde mandragoras in the felde, and brought them vnto hys mother Lea. Chan sayd Rachel to Lea: geue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. To whō Lea answered: Is it not ynough that thou hast taken awaye my housbād, but woldest take awaye my sonnes mandragoras also? Cha sayde Rachel: well, let hym slepe w the thys nyghte, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And Jacob came from the felde at euē, and Lea went out to mete hym, and sayde: come into me, for I haue bought the wpyth my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slepte wpyth her that nyghte. And God herde Lea, that she conceaued & bare vnto Jacob the. v. sonne. Cha sayde Lea. God hath geuen me a rewarde, because I gaue

my mayde to my housbade & she called hym Isachar. And Lea conceaued yet agayne, & bare Jacob the. vi. sone. And Lea sayd: God hath enderwed me w^a good dowrye. Nowe wyl my husbade dwell wyth me, because I haue borne hym. vi. sonnes: & called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a daughter, and called hyr name *Dina.

110. a.

And God remembred Rachel, hearde her,
and made her frutefull: so that she conceaued & bare a sone, & sayd: God hath taken awaye
my rebuke. And she called hys name Joseph, sayinge: The Lorde geue me yet a nother sonne. As soone as Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde to Laba: Seide me awaye
that I maye go vnto my awne place and cotre, geue me my wyues and my chyldre for whom I haue serued the, and let me go: for thou knowest what scrupce I haue done the.
To whom Laba answered: yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lorde hath *blessed me for thy sake) appoyne
te what thy rewarde shall be, and I wyl ge-ue it the. But he sayde vnto hym: thou kno-west what scrupce I haue done the, and in what takynge thy cattell haue bene vnder
me: For it was but lytle that thou haddest
before I came, and nowe it is encreased into a multitude, and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But nowe when shall I make prouysion for myne awne house also? And he sayde: what shall I then geue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt geue me nothyng
at all, yf thou wylt do thys one thyng for me: and then wyl I turne agayne, and fede
thy shepe and kepe them.

I wyl go aboute all thy shepe thys daye,
and separate from them all the shepe that are spotted and of dyuers coloures, and all blacke shepe amonge the lammes, & the partye, and the spotted amonge the kyddes: and the same shalbe my rewarde. So shall my syght welnesse answer for me: & to mo-
rowe, and shall come for my rewarde before thy face, and euery one that is not speckled and partye amonge the goates and blacke
amonge the shepe, yf same shalbe theft wyth
me. And Laban sayde: So to, wolde God it myght be accordynge to thy sayeng. Therfore he toke out that same daie the goates
that were partye and of dyuerse coloures,
and all the she gootes that were spotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in the, and all the blacke amonge the shepe, and put them in the keepynge of hys sonnes, & let the dayes journey betwixte hym selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the rest of La-ban's shepe.

Jacob toke rodde of grene poplar, ha-sell & of chestnut trees, & pyllid whyte strakes in them, & made the whyte apere in the rodde. (But they that were whole: remayned grene:

and thus was it made a variable coloure.) And put the rodde whiche he had pyllid, eue before the shepe, in the gutters & watrynge trouges
when the shepe came to dryncke: that they shulde conceaue when they came to dryncke.
And the shepe conceaued before the rodde, & brought forth lammes straked, spotted and partye. And Jacob parted the lammes & turned the faces of the shepe toward spotted thynges, and toward all maner of blacke,
that was amonge the shepe of Laba: namely, puttynge hys awne flockes by the selfe, & not puttynge them wyth Laba's shepe. And it fortuned yf in euery rāpnge tyme of the stronger shepe, Jacob layed the rodde
before the eyes of the shepe in y gutters: namely, that he myght make them conceaue before the rodde. But whē the shepe were fe-ble, he put the not in. And so the febler were Laban's, and the stronger Jacobs. And the man increased exceedingly, and had a great flocke, mayde seruauntes and man seruauntes, camels and asses.

The xxxi. Chapter.

At the commaundment of God: Jacob departed from Laban: & toke hys goddes wyth hym. Rachel stealeth hys fathers ymages. Laban followeth Jacob. The couenaunt betwene Laban and Jacob.

But he heard the wordes of Laba's sonnes sayenge: Jacob hath taken
awaye all that was oure fathers,
and of oure fathers goodes hath he gotten all thys honoure. And Jacob be-helde the countenance of Laban, & beholde
it was not as yesterdape and perpersterdape. And the Lorde sayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne in to the lande of thy fathers and to thy kynred, & I wyl be wyth the. Therfore Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the side vnto hys flocke, & sayde vnto them:
I se youre fathers countenance that it is not toward me as yesterdape & perpersterdape.
But the God of my father hath bene wyth
me. And ye knowe howe that I haue serued poure father with all my myght. But poure father hath disceaued me, and chaunged my wages. x. tymes: but God suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayde, the spotted shall be thy wages, than all the shepe bare spotted. And when he sayde: the straked shall be thy rewarde, than bare all the shepe straked: thus hath God taken awaye poure fathers shepe, and geuen them me. But in rā-pnge tyme it happened, yf I lyfted vp my-ne eyes & sawe in a dreame, & beholde the rā-
mes leaped vpon the shepe yf were straked, spotted & partye. And the angell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayng: Jacob. And I answered: here am I. And he sayde: lyfte vp nowe thine eyes & se all yf rāmes leapyn-ge vpon the shepe that are straked, spotted & partye: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the, I am the God of *Bethel, where thou

thou anointedst the stone, and where thou bowedst a vowe vnto me. Now therfore aryse & get the *out of this countre, and retur-ne vnto the lande wher thou wast bozne.

Then answered Rachel, and Lea, & sayde
vnto hym haue we a porcion & inheritance
in our fathers house? Doth not he count vs euen as straigers? for he hath solde vs, and hath euen eaten vp oure monye. But all the riches whych God hath taken from oure father, that is ours & oure chyldres. And now what souer God hath sayde vnto the, that do. Tha Jacob rose vp, & set hys sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, & caried awaye all hys flockes & all hys substance which he had procured, hys riches and possessions which he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Isahac hys father vnto the land of Canaan. But Laban was gone to *there hys shepe, & Rahel had stolen hys fathers ymages. And Jacob stole awaye the herte of Laban the Syrian, in that he tolde hym not that he fled. So fled he & all that he had, and made hym selfe
redy, & passed ouer the ryuer, & set hys face
streight toward the mount Silcad.

And the thyrde day after, was it told La-ba that Jacob fled. Tha he toke hys brethren with hym and followed after him. vii. dayes journey, & ouer toke hym at the mouite Si-lad. And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by night, & sayd vnto hym: take hede, that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And Laba ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched hys tente in the mouite.
And Laban with hys brethren pitched their tente also vpon the mouite Silcad. And La-ba sayde, to Jacob: Why hast thou thys done to steale awaye my herte, and carpe awaye my daughters as though they had bene taken captiue wyth yf swerde? Wherefore wilst thou awaye secretly vnknewen
to me, & didst not tell me, that I myght haue brought the on the waye wyth myrth, spynge, tymrel & harpe, and hast not suffered me to kisse my chyldren and my daughters? Thou wast *a sole now to do it, for I am able to do you euill. But the God of poure father spake vnto me yesterdape, sayng take hede that yf speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And now though thou wentest thy waye, because thou longest after thy fathers house, yet wherfore hast thou stolen
my goddes?

Jacob answered and sayde to Laban because I was afrayed, & thought that thou wouldest haue taken awaye thy daughters fro me. But *where as thou laiest the to my charge
wyth whome soeuer thou fyndest thy god-
des, let hym dye, here before oure brethren.
Seke that thynge is by me, & take it to the.
But Jacob wylt not that Rachel had stolen
the. Then went Laban into Jacobs tente, and into Leas tete, & into the. ii. maydes ten-tes: but founde them not: Then went he out of leas tente, and entred into Rabels tente.

And Rachel had taken the ymages & put the
in the camels strawe, & late downe vpo the.
And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde he to hys father: my lord, be not angry yf I ca not ryle vp before
the for yf custome of womē is come vpo me,
So serched he but founde not those ydols.

And Jacob was wrooth, and chode with Labā. Jacob also answered & sayde to hym:
what haue I trespassed or what haue I offended, yf thou folowdest so after me? Thou hast serched all my stuffe, & what hast thou founde of all thy household stuffe: put it here
before thy brethren & myne yf they maye iudge betwixte vs both. Beholde: Thys. xx.
pere haue I bene wyth the, thy shepe & thy goates haue not bene harin, & the rāmes of thy flocke haue I not eaten. Whatsoeuer was tozne of bestes I brought it not vnto
the, but made it good my selfe: of my hande yddest thou requyre it, euen as it that was stollen by daye or nyght. Wy daye the lēte consumed me, and the frost by nyght, and my sleepe departed from myne eyes.

Thus haue I bene. xx. pere in thy house, & serued the. *xiii. yeres for thy. ii. dought-
ters, & vi. yeres for thy shepe, and thou hast chaunged my rewarde. x. tymes. And excepte the God of my father, yf God of Abraham, &
the feare of Isahac had bene wyth me: surely thou haddest sent me awaye now allemye. But God behelde my tribulacion, and the labour of my handes, and rebuked the yesterdape.

Laban answered and sayde vnto Jacob:
these daughters are my daughters, and these chyldren are my chyldren, and these shepe
are my shepe, and all that thou seyst, is my-
ne. And what can I do thys daye vnto these my daughters, or vnto theyr chyldre whych they haue borne? Now therfore come on & let vs make a bonde, I & thou, whych maye
be a witness betwene the and me. Tha toke Jacob a stone and set it vp an ende, & Jacob sayde vnto hys brethren: gather stones.
And they toke stones, and made an heape,
& they did cate there vpo the heape. And Laban called it *Jegar Sahadurha, but Jacob called it Silcad. * (either of them accordynge to the propretye of hys awne language.)

Then sayde Laban: thys heape is *wyt-nesse betwene the & me thys daye: therfore
is it called Silcad. * (that is: a heape of witness.)
* Mizaph: for he sayd: The Lorde loke be-twene me & the when we are departed one fro another: yf yf shall bere my daughters
or shall take other wyues beside my daughters. here is no man with vs: beholde, God be witness betwixte the and me. And Labā
b v sayde

sayde moreouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape and this marke whych I haue set there, betwixte me and the: this heape be wytnesse and also this marke that I will not come ouer this heape to the, and thou shalt not come ouer this heape and this marke vnto me: to do any harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, & the God of thy fathers be iudge betwixte vs.

And Jacob sware by the feare of hys father Israhel. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vpon y mounte, & called his brether to eate bread. And they dyd eate bread & tarped all nyght in the byll. And early in the mornynge Laban rose vp and kyssed hys chyldren and hys daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departedynge, went vnto hys place agayne.

The xxii. Chapter.

The vision of y Angels. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto his brother Esau. How he wrestled with y Angel whych chaunged his name and called hym Israhel.

But Jacob went forth on his journey. And the Angels of God came, & met hym. And whē Jacob sawe the, he said this is Goddes boote: & called the name of y same place *Mahanaim. (That is in ar me.) And Jacob sente messengers before him to Esau his brother, vnto y land *of Seir & the felde of Edom. And he commaunded them sayinge. Thus shall ye speake to my Lord Esau: thy seruante Jacob sayth thus: I haue sogeorned & bene a strainger wyth Laban vnto this tyme and haue oxen, asses & shepe men seruantes and women seruantes, and haue sent to shewe it my Lord, that I may fynde grace in thy syghte. And the messengers came agayne to Jacob sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cometh agaynst the & hath. iiii. hundred men wyth hym. But Jacob was greatly affrayed, and wylt not whych waye to turne hym selfe, and deuyded the people that was wyth hym & the shepe, & oxen & camels, into ii. companies: & sayd: If Esau come to the one parte & smyte it, the other shall saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde agayne: O God of my father Abraham, & God of my father Israhel: Lord whych saydest vnto me *returme vnto thy countre and to thy kynred, & I wyll do all well wyth the. I am not worthy of the leaste of all the mercyes and truthe whych thou hast shewed vnto thy seruante. For wyth my staf came I ouer this Jordan, & now haue I gottē ii. droues. Deluyer me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym: lest he wyll come and smyte the mother wyth the chyldren. Thou saydest: I wyll surely do the good, & make thy seed as the sande of the see, which can not be nombred for multitude.

And he tarped there that same nyght, & toke of that whych came to hande, a present, for Esau hys brother. ii. hundred the goates & xx. he goates. ii. hundred shepe and xx. rammes: thyrtye mylch camels wyth theyr coltes. xi. kyne, & x. bulles. xx. she asses & ten foles: and deluyered them into the hande of hys seruantes, euery droue by them selues, and sayde vnto hys seruantes: go forth before me, and put a space betwixte, droue, & droue. And he commaunded y formost sayinge.

If Esau my brother mete the and aske the sayinge: whose art thou, and whether goest thou: & whose are these that goo before the: thou shalt saye, they be thy seruante Jacobs, and it is a present sent vnto my Lord Esau, and beholde, he hym selfe cometh after vs: And so commaunded he the seconde, and the thyrde, and all that folowed the droues sayinge of this maner le that ye speake vnto Esau when ye mete hym, and saye moreouer: thy seruante Jacob also cometh after vs, for he sayde: I wyll please his wrath with y present that goeth before me, and afterward I wyll see hym my selfe, yf peraduenture he wyll receaue me to grace: So went the present before hym and he tarped all that nyght in the company, and rose vp the same nyght, and toke hys two wyues and hys two maydens, and hys eleuen sonnes, and went ouer the foorde Iabok. And he toke the and sent them ouer the river, and sent ouer that he had, and taried behinde hym selfe alone.

And there *wrestled a man wyth hym vnto the breakynge of the daye. And when he sawe that he coude not preuaile against hym, he smote hym vnder the thye, and the senowe of Jacobs thye shooke, as he wrestled wyth hym. And he sayde: let me goo, for the daye breaketh. Which answered: I wyll not let the goo, excepte thou blesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: what is thy name? He answered: Jacob. He sayde: thou shalt be called Jacob nomore, but *Israhel. For as a prince hast thou wrestled wyth God: and wyth man, and hast preuailed.

And Jacob asked hym sayinge: tell me thy name. And he sayde, wherfore dost thou so aske after my *name? and he blessed hym there. And Jacob called the name of y place *Penuel, for I haue sene God face to face, & my lyfe is preserued. And as he went ouer Penuel, the sonne rose vpon hym, and he haltered vpon hys thye. And therfore is it that the chyldren of Israhel eate not of the senowe that shanke in that place of the thye, vnto this daye: because that he touched the place of Jacobs thye in the senowe that shoncke.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Esau and Jacob are agreed: and Jacob came vnto Sichem.

Jacob

Jacob lystynge vpon hys eyes, looked, and beholde, Esau came, haupnge wyth him. iiii. hundred men. And he deuyded the chyldren vnto Lea and vnto Rachel and vnto the. ii. maydens. And he put the maydens and their chyldren formost, and Lea and hys chyldren after, and Rachel and Joseph hyndermost. And he went before them and *fell on the grownde. vij. tymes vntill he came vnto his brother.

Esau *came to mete hym and embraced hym and fell on hys necke and kyssed hym, and they wepte. And he lyfte vpon hys eyes & sawe the women, and y chyldren, and sayde: whence hast thou these? (And do they belenge vnto the.) And he answered: they are the chyldren whych God hath geuen thy seruante. Than came the maydens forth, & their chyldren, and dyd theyr obeysaunce. Lea also with hys chyldren came & dyd theyr obeysaunce. And last of all came Joseph & Rachel, & dyd theyr obeysaunce.

And he sayde: what is all y droue whych I mett? He answered: that I maye fynde grace in the syghte of my Lorde. And Esau sayde: I haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou hast vnto thy selfe. To whom Jacob answered, oh nay, but yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, receaue my present of my hande: for I haue sene thy face *as though I had sene the face of God: And thou hast had a good wyll toward me. Obtake my blessinge that is brought the, for God hath had mercy on me. (Scourge me all thynges.) And I haue ynough. And so he compelled hym, and he toke it. And he sayde: let vs take oure iourney and goo, I wyll goo before the. Jacob answered him: my Lorde, Thou knowest, that the chyldren are tendre, & the ewes & kyne wyth yonge vnder myne hande, which yf men shulde ouerdryue but euen one daye all the shepe wyll dye. Wh let my Lorde goo before hys seruante, and I wyll dryue sayre and softly, accordynge as the catell that goeth before me and the chyldren be able to endyre: vntyll I come to my Lorde vnto Seir.

And Esau sayde: let me yet leaue some of my folke wyth the. And he answered, what needeth it? (Thys one thringe onely haue I neede of.) And he sayde: let me fynde grace in the syghte of my Lord. So Esau went hys waye agayne that same daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke hys iourney towardes Succoth, ad buylt hym an house, ad made boothe for his catell. And therfore is it, that the name of the place is called *Succoth.

And Jacob came to Sale a ctye of Sichem which is in the lande of Canaan, after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pytched before the ctye, and bought a par-

cell of grounde (were he pytched hys tent) of the chyldren of hemor Sichems father: for an hundred peces of money. And he made there an aulter, & called vpon y myghtie God of Israhel.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

The rauynynge of Dina Jacobs daughter by the me of Sichem. And of the great bloude shedynge done by the sonnes of Jacob.

Dina y daughter of Lea * which she bare vnto Jacob, went out to se the daughters of the lade. Whom whan Sichem the sonne of hemor the heuete Lorde of the countrey sawe, he toke her, and laye wyth her, and forced * her: and hys harte laye vnto Dina the daughter of Jacob. And he loued that damsell and spake kyndly vnto her, and Sichem spake vnto hys father hemor sayinge, gett me this mayden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob hearde that he had defyled Dina hys daughter, hys sonnes beynge wyth theyr catell in the felde, and he helde hys peace, vntyll they were come. And hemor the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to comen wyth hym. And whan the sonnes of Jacob comynge out of the felde herde it, it greued the, & they were not a lytle wrooth, because he had wrought folpe in Israhel, in that he had lyeu wyth Jacobs daughter, which thinge ought not to be done. And hemor commened wyth them sayinge: the soule of my sone Sichem longeth for youre daughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make marriages wyth vs: and geue youre daughters vnto vs, and take oure daughters vnto you, & ye shall dwell wyth vs, and the lande shall be before you, dwell and do youre busyness, and haue youre possessions there in. And Sichem sayde vnto hys father and hys brethren, let me fynde grace in youre eyes, and what soeuer ye apoynte me, that wyll I geue. He frely of me both the dowry and gyftes, and I wyll geue accordynge as ye saye vnto me, so that ye geue me the damsell to wyfe.

But the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem & hemor hys father talkynge amonge them selues deceptefully, because he had defyled Dina theyr syster. And they sayde vnto them, we can not do this thyng that we shulde geue oure syster to one that is vncircumcised, for that were a shame vnto vs. But in this wyll we consent vnto you: If ye wyll be as we be and all the men chyldren amonge you be circumcised, then wyll we geue oure daughters to you and take youre daughters to vs, and wyll dwell wyth you and be one people. But and yf ye wyll notarken vnto vs to be circumcised, than will we take oure daughter & goo oure wayes. Their wordes pleased hemor: and Sichem his sonne.

hys sonne. And the ponge man deserde not for to do the thynge, because he had a lust to Jacobs daughter: he was also most sett by of all that were in hys fathers house. Then hemoz & Sychem hys sonne went vnto the gate of their cytie, and comened with the me of their cytie, sayinge: these men are unfayned towarde vs, and dwell in the lande and do their occupacyon therein. And in the lande is rowme ynough for them, we wyll take their daughters to wyues, and geue theioure daughters: only here in wyll they consent vnto vs for to dwell wyth vs & to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are amonge vs be circuncysed as they are. Shall not their goodes and their substance and all theyr cattell be oures, only yf we consente vnto them? For they wyll dwell wyth vs.

And vnto hemoz and Sychem his sonne harkened all that went out at the gate of hys cytie. And all the men chyldren were circuncysed whatsoeuer went out at the gates of his cytie. And it happened the thyrde daye (when it was paynefull to them) .ij. of the sonnes of Jacob Symeon and Leui Dina's byeth, toke ether of them his swerde and wet in to the cytie boldly, and slewe all that was male, and slewe also hemoz and Sychem hys sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke Dina out of Sychems house, and went their waye.

And the sonnes of Jacob comynge vpon the deed, spoyled the cytie, because they had despyled their syster: & toke their shepe, oxen, and their asses and whatsoeuer was in the cytie and also in yfeldes. And all their goodes & all their chyldren, and theyr wyues toke theyr captiue and made hauouck of all that was in the house.

But Jacob layde to Symeon and Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me styneke before the inhabitours of the lade, before the Canaanite and the Pherezite. And I beyngewe fewe in nombre, they shall gather them selues together agaynst me & slepe me, and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered: shulde they deale with oure syster as with an whoore.

The xxxv. Chapter.

Jacob goeth vnto Bethel, and buryeth hys pynages vnder an oke. Deboza dyeth. Jacob is called Israel. The lande of Canaan is promysed him. Rachel dyeth in laboure: Ruben laye wyth hys fathers concubyne. The death of Joseph.

And God sayde vnto Jacob, arse and get y vnto Bethel, and dwell there. And make there an auter vnto God that appeared vnto the, when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother. Then sayde Jacob vnto hys household and to all that were wyth hym: put awaye the straunge goddes that are amonge you and be cleane, and chaunge your garmentes, for we wyll arse and goo vnto Bethel and I wyll make an auter there, vnto God, which berde me in the daye of my tribulacyon, and was with me in the waye which I went.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the straggoddes which they had in their hards, and all their earinges which were in their eares, & Jacob hyd the vnder an oke whych was by Sychem. And whan they departed, the feare of God fell vpon the cyties that were rounde aboute them. And they dyd not folowe after the sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus which is in the lande of Canaan. The same is Bethel, he & all the people that was with him. And he buylded there an auter, and called y place: The God of Bethel, because that God appered vnto hym there, when he fled from the face of his brother.

But * Deboza Rebeccas nole, dyed, & was buryed beneth Bethel vnder an oke. And the name of it was called: the oke of lamentacyon. And God appeared vnto Jacob agayne after he came out of Mesopotamia and blessed hym, and God sayde vnto hym: thy name is Jacob. Not wythstondinge thou shalt be no more called * Jacob, but Israel shalbe thy name. And he called hys name Israel.

And God sayde vnto him: I am God almighty, growe and multiplie, people and a multitude of people shall sprynge of the, pee and kynges shall come out of thy loynes. And the lande whych I gaue Abraham and Israhac, will I geue vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the will I geue that lade also. And so God departed vnto hym in the place where he had talked wyth hym. And Jacob set vnto a marke in the place where he talked with hym: euen a marke of stone and powred oyle vnto the, & powred also oyle thereon, and Jacob called the name of y place where God spake with hym * Bethel.

And they departed from Bethel, and wher he was but a felde byeth fro Ephrath, Rachel began to trauell, and in traueylng she was in pallel. And it happened as she was in paynes of hys laboure, the mydwife sayde vnto her, feare not, for thys sonne is thyne also. Then as hys soule was a departinge, she * must dye, she called his name. Ben Dni. (the sonne of my sorowe.) But hys father called hym Ben Jamin. (The sonne of the right hande.) And thus dyed Rachel and was buryed in the waye to Ephrath, which is Bethlehem. And Jacob sett vnto a stone vnto hir graue, which is called Rabels graue stone vnto thys daye. And Israel went thence, & pitched vnto hys tent beyonde the soure of Eder. And it chaunced as Israel dwelt in the lande, that Ruben went and laye with lape * wyth Bilha hys fathers concubyne, and it came to Israels care. The sonnes of Jacob were. xij. in nombre. The sonnes of Lea. Ruben Jacobs eldest sonne, and Simeon, Leui, Juda, Issachar, and Zabulon. The sonnes of Rachel: Joseph and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rabels mayde: Dan and Neptali. The sonnes of Zilpha Leas mayde, Gad and Aser. These are the sonnes of Jacob whych were bozne hym in Mesopotamia.

And so Jacob came vnto Israhac hys father to Hamre vnto kyriath Arba which is Hebron: where Abraham & Israhac sojourned as straungers. And the dayes of Israhac were an hundred and. lxxx. yeres: & Israhac fell speke and dyed, and was put vnto hys people, beyng old and full of dayes. And his sonnes Esau and Jacob buryed him.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

The wyues of Esau. Jacob and Esau are riche. The genealogie of Esau. Esau dwelleth in the hill Seir.

These are the generacions of Esau. The same is Edom. Esau toke his wyues of the daughters of Canaan. Ada the daughter of Elon an Hethite, & Ahalibama y daughter of Ana, the daughter of Zibeon an Heuyte, and Basmath Jimaels daughter & sister of Nebaioth. And Ada bare vnto Esau, Eliphas and Basmath bare Reguel: And Ahalibama bare Jeus and Jaelan and Kozah. These are the sonnes of Esau whych were bozne him in the lande of Canaan.

And Esau toke his wyues and hys sonnes and daughters and all the soules of hys house: hys goodes and all hys cattell and all hys substance whych he had gott in the lande of Canaan, and went into a countre awaye from the face of hys brother Jacob: for their ryches was moche, and they coulde not dwell together, and the lande where in they were straungers, coulde not receaue the: because of their possession. Thus dwelt Esau in mounte Seir. The same Esau is Edom. These are the generacions of Esau father of the Edomites in mounte Seir, and these are the names of Esaus sonnes: * Eliphas the sonne of Ada y wyfe of Esau, and Reguel the sonne of Basmath the wyfe of Esau. And the sonnes of Eliphas were: Theman, Omar, Zepho, Gaethom and Kenas. And Thimna was concubyne to Eliphas Esaus sonne, and bare vnto Eliphas Amalech. And these be the sonnes of Ada Esaus wyfe. And these are the sonnes of Reguel: Rahath, Serah, Samma and Misa, these were the sonnes of Basmath Esaus wyfe. And these were the sonnes of Ahalibama the daughter of Ana daughter of Zebion Esaus wyfe, and she bare vnto Esau: Jeus, Jealain and Kozah.

These were dukes of the sonnes of Esau. The chyldren of * Eliphas the fyrst sonne of Esau, were these: duke theman, duke Omar, duke zepho, duke kenas, and duke Kozah, duke Gaetha and duke Amalech. These are the dukes that came of Eliphas in the lande of Edom, and these were the sonnes of Ada. These also are the chyldren of Reguel Esaus sonne: duke Rahath, duke Serah, duke Samma, duke Misa. These are the dukes that came of Reguel in the lande of Edom, & these are the sonnes of Basmath Esaus wyfe. These were the chyldren of Ahalibama Esaus wyfe: duke Jeus, duke Jaelan, duke Kozah, these dukes came of Ahalibama y daughter of Ana Esaus wyfe. These are the chyldren of Esau, and these are the dukes of the: which Esau is Edom. These are the chyldren of Seir the Horite, the inhabitoure of the lande: Lothan, Sobal, Zibeon, and Ana, and Dison, Eser and Disan. These also are the dukes of the Horites the chyldren of Seir in the lande of Edom. And the chyldren of Lothan were: Hori and Heman. And Lothans syster was called Thymna.

The chyldren of Sobal were these: Aduan, Manahath and Ebal, Sepho & Oni. These are the chyldren of Zibeon. Aia and Ana, thys was that Ana that founde milles in the wyldernes, as he fed hys father zebeons asses. The chyldren of Ana were these: Dison and Ahalibama the daughter of Ana. These are the chyldren of Dison, Hemandan and Eshan, Jethran and Cheran. The chyldren of Eser are these: Bilhan, Scauan and Ukan. The chyldren of Disan also are these: Uz and Aran. These are the dukes that came of Hori: duke Lothan, duke Sobal, duke Zibeon, duke Ana, duke Dison, duke Eser, duke Disan. These be the dukes y came of Hori after their dukedomes in the lande of Seir. These are the kynges that reygned in the lande of Edom before there reygned any kyng vpon the chyldren of Israel. Bela the sonne of Beor reygned in Edomea, & the name of hys cytie was Dinhaba. And when Bela dyed, Jobab the sonne of Serah out of Bozra, reygned in hys steade. When Jobab also was dead, Husam of the lade of Theman reygned in his steade. And after the deth of Husam, Hadad the sonne of Bedad which slewe the Madianites in the felde of the Moabytes, reygned in hys steade, and the name of hys cytie was Auith. When Hadad was dead, Samla of Hasteke reygned in his steade. Wher Samla was dead, Saul of the ryuer Reboboth reygned in hys steade. When Saul was dead, Baal Hanan y sonne of Achboz reygned in his

in his steade. And after the deth of Baal Hanaan the sonne of Achboz, Hadad reigned in his steade, and þ name of his cytyc was Dahu. And hys wyfes name Hebetabeel the daughter of Hattred, þ daughter of Helaab.

These are the names of the dukes that came of Esau, in þ. xij. kynredes, places and names: duke Thymina, duke Alua, duke Jetheth, duke Abalibama, duke Ela, duke Binon, duke Kenas, duke Theman, duke Abzar, duke Magdiel, duke Fram. These be the dukes of Edomea accordyng to theyr habitacions, in the lande of theyr possessions. Thys Esau is the father of the Edomites.

¶ The. xxxviij. Chapter.

¶ Joseph accuseth hys brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of hys brethren and is sold to the Amariytes. Jacob bewepeth Joseph.

In Jacob dwelt in the lande where in his father was a stranger, even in the lade of Chanaan. These are the generacions of Jacob. When Joseph was. xviij. yere olde, he kepte shepe wyth hys brethren, and the lad was with the sonnes of Bilha and with the sonnes of zilpha his fathers wyues. And he brought vnto their father an euill sayinge of them. But Israel loued Joseph more than all hys chyldren, because he begat him in hys olde age, and he made hym a coote of many coloures.

And when hys brethren sawe that theyr father loued him more than all his brethren, they hated hym & coude not speke peaceably vnto hym. Moreouer whan Joseph had dreamed a dreame, he tolde it his brethren whych hated hym yet the more. And he sayde vnto them: heare I praye yowre thys dreame which I haue dreamed: Beholde we were byndinge sheues in the felde: & lo, my sheffe arose, and stode vpryght, and poures stode rounde aboute and made obeysaunce to my sheffe. To whom hys brethren sayde: shalt thou be oure kynge in dede? or shalt þ in dede haue dominyon ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the more, because of hys dreames, and of his wordes.

¶ And he dreamed yet another dreame and tolde it his brethren sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: me thought the sonne

and the moone & xj. starres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and hys brethren, hys father rebuked him & sayde vnto him: what is thys dreame which thou hast dreamed: shall I & thy mother and thy brethren come to fall on the grounde before the? And hys brethren hated him, but hys father noted the sayinge.

Hys brethren also went to kepe their fathes shepe in Sichem, and Israel sayde vnto Joseph: do not thy brethren kepe in Sichem: come, and I wyll sende the to the. He answered: here am I. And he sayde vnto him: goo and see whether it bewell with thy brethren and the shepe, and byngge me worde agayne. And so he sent him out of the vale of Hebron and he went to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym, and beholde he was wanderyng out of hys waye in the felde, and the ma asked him: what sekest thou? He answered: I seke my brethren, tell me I praye the where they kepe shepe. And the ma sayde, they are departed hence, for I herde them saye: let vs goo vnto Dothan. Thus went Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothan.

And when they sawe him a farre of before he came at them, they toke counsell agaynst him, for to slep hym. For one sayde to another: Beholde this & dreamer cometh: come nowe therfore and let vs slep hym and cast hym in to some pyt, and we wyll sape a wycked beast hath deuoured hym, and we shall se what wyll come of hys dreames.

¶ Whē Ruben hearde that, he & rpd him out of their handes and sayde, we wyll not kyll hym. And Ruben sayde moze ouer vnto them, thede not his & blonde, but cast him in to thys pyt þ is in the wyldernes, and lape no hande vpon him: & (thys he sayde.) Namely, that he myght rpd him out of their handes & deliuer him to hys father agayne.

¶ And it happened that whan Joseph was come vnto hys brethren, they strypte him out of his coot, hys party coloured coote þ was vpon hym, and they toke hym and cast hym into an emptye pyt: wherein was no water. And they satt the downe to eate brede. And as they lyft vp their eyes and looked aboute, there came a compaigne of Amariytes from Gilead, and their camels lade with spicer, baulme, and myrr, and were goynge downe to carpe it into Egypte.

¶ And Juda sayde vnto his brethren: what auayleth it yf we slep oure brother, and kepe hys blonde secrett? come on and let vs sell hym to the Amariytes, and let not oure hande be vpon hym: for he is oure brother and oure fleche. And hys brethren were content. Then as the Amariytes marchant men passed by, they drewe and lyft Joseph out of the pyt and solde him vnto the Amariytes for tes for. xx. peces of syluer. And they brought him into Egypte.

¶ And when Ruben came agayne vnto þ pyt & fonde not Joseph there, he & rent his cloothes and went agayne vnto his brethren sayinge: the lad is not yonder, and whether shall I goo? And they toke Josephs coote and kyled a goote, & dypped the coote in the bloude. And they sent that party coloured coote, and brought it vnto their father and sayde: Thys haue we founde: se whether it be thy sonnes coote or no. And he knewe it sayinge, it is my sonnes coote, a wycked beast hath & deuoured hym, Joseph is rent in peces. And Jacob rent hys cloothes, and put sacke clothe aboute his loynes, and sorowed for his sonne a longe season. But all his sonnes and all hys daughters rose vp to comforte him. Neuertheless he wolde not be comforted, but sayde: I wyll go downe into the graue vnto my sonne, mourninge. And thus hys father wepte for hym. And the Amariytes solde hym in Egypte vnto Putiphar a Lord of Pharaos, and his chefe Steward.

¶ The marriage of Juda. The trespass of Er and Onan, and the vengeance of God that came there vpon. Juda lape with his daughter Thamar. The byeth of Pharez and Zarah.

In fortunat at that tyme, that Judas went downe from his brethren, and gatt hym to a man called Hira of Odollam, and there he sawe the daughter of a man called & Sina a Canaanite: And he toke her and wet in to her. And she conceaued & bare a sonne and called hys name Er. And she conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne and called him Onan. And she conceaued agayne, & bare yet a sonne, whom she called Sela: & and he was at Chesib when she bare him.

¶ And Judas gaue Er hys eldest sonne a wyfe, whose name was Thamar. And Er Judas eldest sonne was & wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, & the Lorde slewe hym. And Judas sayde vnto Onan: goo into thy brothers wyfe and marie her, þ thou mayest styre vp seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceaued that the seed shulde not be his, therfore when he went into his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the grounde, and gaue not seed vnto hys brother. And the rhyng whych he dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherefore he slewe him also. Then sayde Judas to Thamar hys daughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growne: for he sayde: Lest peradventure he dye also, as hys brethren dyd. And Thamar wente and dwelt in her fathers house.

Sina Judas wyfe dyed. Then Judas when he had lest mourninge, went vnto his shepe & herders to Thymnath he and his felede Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar sayinge: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp to Thymnath, to & there hys shepe. And she put hys wydows garmentes of from her & couered her wyth a clooke, and dysgyled her selfe: And satt her downe in a comon place which is by þ hye wayes syde to Thymnath, for because she sawe þ Sela was growne, and she was not geuen vnto him to wyfe.

¶ When Juda sawe her, he thought it had bene an whoore, because she had couered hys face. And he turned to her vnto the waye, & sayde, come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was hys daughter in lawe. And she answered: what wilt thou gyue me, for to lye with me? Then sayde he, I wyll sende the a kydd from the flocke. She sayde, Than geue me a pledge tyll thou sende it. He sayde, what pledge shall I geue the? She answered: thy sygnett, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her and lay by her, and she was with chyld by hym. And she gatt here by and went and put her mantell from her, and put on hys wydows rayment. And Judas sent the kydd by hys frende of Odollam, for to receaue hys pledge agayne from the wyfes hande. But he founde her not, Than asked he the men of the same place sayinge, where is the whoore that satt openly by the waye syde? They answered, There was no whoore here. He came therfore to Juda agayne & sayde vnto him: I can not finde her, and also the men of the place sayde, that there was no whoore there. And Juda sayde, let her take it to her, lest we be named. Beholde I sente the kydd and thou hast not founde her.

¶ And it came to passe that after. iij. monethes, one tolde Juda sayinge: Thamar thy daughter in lawe hath played the whoore, and wyth playinge the whoore is become great with chyld. And Juda sayde, byngge der forth, that she maye be brente. And when they brought her forth, she sent to her father in lawe sayinge: by the man vnto whome these thynges pertayne, am I with chyld. And sayde also, loke whose are thys scale, bracelet, and thys staffe. And Juda knewe the and sayde, she hath bene more ryght wiser than I, because I gaue her not to Sela my sonne. And he laye with her nomore.

¶ It fortunat when tyme was come that she shulde be deliuered, beholde there was ij. twynnes in hys wombe. And it fortunat, that whan she traneled, the one put out hys hande and the mydwife toke and hownde a reed threde aboute it sayinge, thys is come out fyrst. And it chaunced, that he plucked hys hande backe agayne, and beholde hys

The xxxix. Chapter.

God prospereth Joseph. Pharaos wyfe (speteth him. He is accused & cast in pylon. God hath mercy upon hym.

Ioseph was brought vnto Egypte, and Putiphar * a Lorde of Pharaos (a his chiefe steward an Egyptian) bought him of the Chanaanites which had brought him thither. And God was with Joseph, & he became a luckye man, continuing in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that God was with him, & that God made all that he dyd to prosper in his hande. And Joseph founde grace in hys masters syghte, and serued him. And made hym ruler of hys house, and put all that he had in his hande. And it fortuneth from the tyme that he had made him ruler ouer hys house and ouer all that he had, the Lorde * blessed the Egyptians house for Josephs sake, and the blessing of the Lorde was vpon all that he had in the house, and in the felde. And therefore he left all that he had in Josephs hande, and looked vpon nothyng that was wth hym, save only on the bread whych he dyd eate. And Joseph was a * goodly persone & a well fauored. And it fortuneth after this, that his masters wyfe cast hys eyes vpo Joseph and sayde: come lye with me. But he refused, and sayde to hys masters wyfe: Beholde, my master woteth not what he hath in the house with me, and hath commytted all that he hath to my hande. * There is no man greater in the house than I, neyther hath he kept any thynge from me, but only the, because thou art hys wyfe. Howe than can I do this great wickednes, and synne agaynst God? And after this maner spake he to Joseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her company.

And it fortuneth on a certayne conuient daye, that Joseph entred into the house, to do hys busynesse: and there was none of the household by, in the house. And she caught him by the garment sayinge: come slepe with me. And he left hys garment in hys hande and fled, and gott hym out. And it chaunced. When she sawe that he had left his garment in hys hande, and was fled out. * (And he not regarded.) She called vnto the men of his house, and tolde them, sayinge: Se, he hath brought in an Hebrew vnto vs to do vs shame: for he came in to me, for to haue slept wth me. And I begane to crye wth a lowde voyce. And when he hearde y^e lyfte up my voyce & cryed, he left hys garment wth me, and fled awaye, and got him out.

And she layed up hys garment by her, vntyll hys Lorde came home. And she tolde him with these wordes sayinge: Chys Hebrewes seruaunte whych thou hast brought vnto vs, came into me to do me shame. But as soone as I lyft up my voyce and cryed, he left hys garment wth me and fled out. When his master. * (Sprunge to lyght of credence.)

hearde the wordes of hys wyfe whych she tolde hym sayinge: after this maner dyd thy seruaunte to me, he waxed wrooth.

And the master toke Joseph & put hym in * pylon euen in to the place where the kynge's pyloners laye bounde. And there continued he in pylon, but the Lorde was wth Joseph, and she wed hym mercy, and gote hym fauoure in the syghte of the Lorde of pylon. And the keeper of the pylon commytted to Josephs hande all the pyloners that were in the pylon house. And whatsoever was done there, that dyd he. And the keeper of the pylon looked vnto nothyng that was vnder his hande, saynge that the Lorde was with him. If or what soeuer he dyd, the Lorde made it to prosper.

The xl. Chapter.

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two pyloners.

And it chaunced after this, that the buttelar of Phynge of Egypte and hys baker had offended their Lorde the kynge of Egypte. And Pharaos was angrie agaynst his two offycers: agaynst y^e chiefe butler & the chiefe baker: and put them in warde in hys chiefe stewardes house: euen in the pylon and place where Joseph was bounde. And the chiefe Stewarde gaue Joseph a charge with them, & he serued the. And they continued a season in warde.

And they dreamed ether of them in one nyght: both the buttelar and the baker of the kynge of Egypte which were bounde in the pylon house, ether of them his dreame, and eache mannes dreame of a sondre interpretation. When Joseph came in vnto them in the moynynge, and looked vpon them: beholde, they were sadd. And he asked Pharaos offycers that were with hym in hys masters warde sayinge: Wherefore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them: do not interpretynge belonge to God: yet tell me. And the chiefe butlar tolde his dreame to Joseph, and sayde vnto him: In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne before me, and in the vyne were. iij. braunches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth: and the grapes there of waxed ripe. And

And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hande, and I dranke of the grapes, and wth longe them in to Pharaos cuppe, and deliuered Pharaos cuppe in to hys hande. And Joseph sayde vnto hym: this is the interpretation of it. The thre braunches ar thre dayes: wth in the dayes shall Pharaos lyft up y^e hede, and restore the vnto thyne offyce agayne, and thou shalt deliuer Pharaos cuppe in to hys hande, after the old maner wherein thou wast wont to geue hym drynke. But yf thou thynke on me wth the, when thou art in good case, shewe mercye (I praye the) vnto me. And make mencion of me to Pharaos, and bynne me out of this house: for I was stollen out of the lande of the Hebrewes, and here also haue I done nothyng: at all, wherfore they shulde haue put me in to this dungeon. When the chiefe baker sawe that the interpretation was good, he sayde vnto Joseph: me thought also in my dreame, that I had. iij. wyker baskettes on my hede. And in the uppermost basket there was of all maner bakemeates for Pharaos. And the bydes dyd eate the out of the basket: that was vpon my head.

And Joseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretation therof. The thre baskettes are thre dayes, for this daye thre dayes shall Pharaos take thy hede from the, and shall hage the on a tree, and the bydes shall eate thy fleshe from of the.

And it came to passe y^e thyrde daye whych was Pharaos * byrth daye, that he made a feast vnto all hys seruautes. And he lyfted up the hede of the chiefe buttelar and of the chiefe baker amonge hys seruautes. And restored the chiefe buttelar vnto hys buttelarshyppe agayne: whych also reced the cuppe in to Pharaos hande, but he hanged the chiefe baker: euen as Joseph had interpreted vnto them. Nether dyd the chiefe buttelar remember Joseph, but forgot hym.

The xli. Chapter.

Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two wyues: Asenath & Asenath. The death of Asenath in Egypt.

And it fortuneth after two yeres, that Pharaos dreamed, and beholde, he stode by a ryuers syde, & there came out of the ryuer seven goodly kyne and fatt felled, and fedd in a medowe. * vij. other kyne came vth after them out of the ryuer, euell fauored and leane felled, and stode by the other kyne vpon the bynke of the ryuer. And the euell fauored and leane felled kyne dyd eate by the seuē well fauored and fatt kyne: and Pharaos awoke. And he slepte agayne, and dreamed the seconde tyme. And beholde, seven eares of corne grewe vpo one stalk, ranche and goodly. And agayne, seuē thynne eares blasted wth the east wynde, sprange vth after them: and the seven thynne eares deuorred the seven ranche and full eares. And Pharaos awoke: and se, it was a dreame. And wth the moynynge came, hys spete was troubled. And he sent and called for all the sothesayers of Egypte, and all the wyse men therof, and Pharaos tolde the hys dreame: but there was none of the that coulde interpretate it vnto Pharaos. Then spake the chiefe buttelar vnto Pharaos sayinge: I do remember my fautes this daye. Pharaos beyng angrie wth hys seruautes, put in warde iⁿ the chiefe Stewardes house both me & the chiefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, and eche manes dreame of a sondre interpretation.

And there was wth vs a ponge man, an Hebrew bozne, seruaunte vnto the chiefe Stewarde. To whom whā we tolde them, he declared oure dreames to vs accordynge to ether of oure dreames. And as he declared the vnto vs, euen so it came to passe. For he restored me to myne offyce agayne, & hanged hym.

Pharaos sent therfore and called Joseph. And they brought hym hastily out of * pylon. And he shaued hym selfe and chaunged hys rayment, and came in to Pharaos. And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: I haue sene a dreame, and no man can interpretate it, and I haue hearde saye of the, that as soone as thou hearest a dreame, thou canst interpretate it. Joseph answered Pharaos, sayinge: Not I, but God shall geue Pharaos an answer of peace. And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: in my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer seven fatt felled, and well fauored kyne, & fedd in the medowe. And then seven other kyne came vth after them, poore and very euell fauored and leane felled: such as I neuer sawe in all the lande of Egypte, they were so euell fauored. And the seven leane & euell fauored kyne dyd eate by the fyft vii. fatt kyne. And when they had eaten the vth, a man coulde not perceaue that they had eaten them: but they were still as euell fauored as they were at the begynnynge. And I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreame & beholde, vii. eares sprange out of one stalk, full had pet a brother? They answered: The mā asked vs straitly of oure kynred sayinge, is poure father yet alvye? haue ye not another brother? And we tolde hym accordyng to these wordes. Cowld we knowe p̄ he wolde saye: byngge pour brother downe with you?

Then sayde Juda vnto Israel hys father:
Sende thel de with me, that we maye ryse & goo, & that we maye lyue & not dye: both we, thou & also oure children. I wyl be sure-tye for hym, of my hādes thalt thou requyre
hym. If I byngge hym not to the agayne, & set him before thyne eyes, * than let me bere
p̄ blame for euer. Truly excepte we had made thys tarynge: by thys, we had bene there twyle and come agayne.

And the father Israel sayde vnto the: If it must nedis be so now: than do thus. Take of the best frutes of the lāde in poure vesselles, and byngge the man a present, a curtesye bawme, and a curtesye of hony, spy-ces and myre, notts & almondes. And take double money in poure hande. And the money that was brought agayne in poure sackes, take it agayne wyth you, lest peraduen-ture it was some ouersyghte.

Take also poure brother wyth you and,
apple and goo agayne to the man. And God almighty geue you merce in the syghte of the man, p̄ he maye deliuer you poure other brother, & this Ben Jamin, and I. Thalt be robbed of my chylde, as I haue bene.

Thus toke they the present and twyle so moch more money in theyr hande with Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypte, te, and stode before Joseph. When Joseph sa-we Ben Jamin wyth them, he sayde to the ruler of hys house: byngge these men home, and slep and make redye: for these men shall dyne w̄ me at noone. And the mā dyd as Joseph bad, & brought the into Josephs house.

When the men were brought into Josephs house, they were asrayde, and sayde:
because of the money p̄ came in oure sakes mouthes at the fyrst tyme, are we brought in, p̄ he maye pycke a quarell w̄ vs, & to laye
somethynge to oure charge, and to byngge vs in bondage and oure asses also. Therefore came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, & comened with hym at the doore of the house, and sayde:

Oh Syr, we came downe byther at the fyrst tyme to bye foode: & as we came to an inne, it happened p̄ we opened oure sakes:
and beholde, euery mannes * money was in hys sake wyth full weyghte. And we haue brought it agayne in oure hande, and other
mony haue we brought also in oure handes,
to bye foode, but we cannot tell who put oure money in oure sakes. And he sayde:
Peace be vnto you, feare not: poure God
and the God of poure father hath geue you that treasure in poure sakes, I had poure money. And he brought Syme out to the,
and the man led them into Josephs house,
and gaue them water to washe theyr fete, &
gaue theyr asses prauender: And they made redye theyr present agaynst Joseph came at none, for they herde saye that they shulde eate bred there. Whē Joseph came home,
they brought the present into the house to hi, whych was in their handes, & fell flat on the groude before hym. And he welcomed them courteously sayinge: is poure father that old man whych ye tolde me of, in good health?
and is he yet alvye? they answered: thy serua-
nte oure father is in good health, & is yet alvye. And they bowed downe theyr hea-des, and made obaysaunce.

And he lyfinge vp his eyes, behelde his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, and sayde: * is this poure yonger brother of who-me ye sayde vnto me? And he sayde: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast (for * hys hert dyd melt vpon his brother) & sought where to wepe, & entred into his chābre, & wepte there. And he was-shed his face & came out and refrayned hym
selfe, and sayde: set bread on the table.

And they prepared for hym by him selfe,
and for them by the selues, & for the Egyptians which dyd eate with him by them sel-ues, because the Egyptians maye not eate bread with the Hebrewes, for that is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians. And they satt before hym: the eldest accordyng vnto
hys age, & the yongest accordyng vnto hys
youth. And the men merueled amonge them selues. And they broughte rewardes vnto
the frō before hym: but Ben Jamins parte
was syue tymes so moch as any of theyr.
And they byngged were dronke with hym.

Joseph accuseth hys brother of theft. Juda becommeth surety for Ben Jamin.

And he commaunded the ruler of his house sayinge: fyll the mēs sackes w̄ so ode, as moch as they can carpe, and put euery mans money
in his sake mouth, and put my syluer cup-
in the sakes mouth of the yongest, and hys come money also. And he dyd accordyng to the worde that Joseph had sayde. And in the moynge asloone as it was lyghte, the men were let goo, they and their asses. And when they were out of the cytie and not yet
farre awaye, Joseph sayde vnto the ruler
of hys house: vp and folowe after the men,
and whan thou dost ouertake them, thou shalt saye vnto them: wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cuppe
in the which my Lord dynketh, & for the which he prophceyth: ye haue euell done
that ye haue done.

And whan he ouertoke them, he sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayeth my Lord soch wor-des? God forbydd that thy seruantes shul-de doo so: Beholde, the money which we foude in oure sakes mouthes, we brought agayne vnto the, out of the lande of Canaā:
howe then shulde we steale out of thy Lor-
des house, either syluer or golde? wyth whōsoener of thy seruantes it be foude, let him
dye, and we also will be my Lordes bond-
men. And he sayde: Howe also let it be accor-dyng vnto poure woordes: he with whom it is foude, thalt be my seruante: and ye shal-be harmelesse.

And attonce euery man toke downe hys
sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened hys sacke. And he serched, and began at the eldest and left at the yongest. And the cuppe was foude in Ben Jamins sacke.
Then they * rent their clothes, and laded
euery man his asse, and went agayne vnto
the cytie. And Juda and hys brethren came to Josephs house for he was yet there, and they fell before him on the grounde. And Joseph sayd vnto the: what dede is this which ye haue done? wote ye not that soche a man
as I can prophcey?

Then sayde Juda: what shall we saye v̄
to my Lorde? what shall we speake, or what excuse can we make? God hath foude out the wykednesse of thy seruantes. Beholde, both we & he with whom the cuppe is foun-
de, are my Lordes seruantes. And he answered. God forbydd that I shulde do so, but the man with whō the cuppe is foude, he shal-be my seruante. And go ye in peace vnto poure father.

Then Juda went vnto hym and sayde:
oh my Lorde, let thy seruante speake a wor-

de in my Lordes eares, and be not wrooth wyth thy seruante: for thou art euen as Pharao. My Lord asked his seruante sayinge: haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my Lorde: we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge lad which he begat in hys age: and the brother of the sayde lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother.
And hys father loueth hym. And thou saydest vnto thy seruantes: byngge him vnto me, p̄ I maye sett myne eye vpon him. And we answered my Lorde, that the lad coude
not goo from his father, for yf he shulde leaue his father, he were but deed. Then saydest thou vnto thy seruantes: excepte pour youngest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no moare.

And when we came vnto thy seruante
oure father, we shewed hym what my lorde had sayd. And oure father sayd vnto vs: goo agayne, & bye vs a lytle fode. And we answered: we cannot goo downe. Neerthelesse:
yf oure yongeste brother go w̄ vs, then wyl
we go downe, for we maye not see the mannes face, excepte oure yongeste brother be w̄ vs. And thy seruante oure father sayde v̄
to vs: ye knowe that my wyfe bare me. ij.
sonnes. And the one went out from me, and
* I sayde: of suretye he is * tozne in peaces, and I sawe hym not sence. And ye take this also awaye frō me. If some mysfortune happen vpon him, * ye shall byngge my gray heed
in sorowe vnto the graue.

Howe therfore, when I come to thy ser-
uant my father, and the lad be not with vs (seynge that his lyfe hangeth by the laddes lyfe) then shall it come to passe, that as soone as he seeth that the lad is not come, he wyl dye. So shall we thy seruantes * byngge the gray hedde of thy seruante oure father with sorowe vnto the graue. For I thy seruant became suretye for the lad before my father and sayde: * yf I byngge him not v̄
to the agayne, I wyl bere the blame vnto
my father all my lyfe longe. Howe therfore let me thy seruante byde here for the lad, and be my Lordes bondman: and let the lad goo vp w̄ his brethren. For howe can I goo vp to my father, yf the lad be not with me? on-lesse I wolde see the wretchednes that shall come on my father.

Joseph maketh hym selfe knowne vnto hys
brethren: and sendeth for hys father.

Joseph coude no longer refrayne
before all them that stode by hym.
Wherfore he cryed: byngge furth
all the men from me. And there remayned no man wyth him, whyle Joseph bittred hym selfe vnto hys brethren. And he
* wepte alowde, so that the Egyptians, and c iii the

the house of Pharaoh herde it. And Joseph sayde vnto hys brethren: I am Joseph, doth my father yet lyue? And hys brethren coulde not answer hym, they were so abashed at hys presence. And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: come nere to me, and they came nere. And he sayde: * I am Joseph your brother whom ye solde in to Egypte. Nowe therefore be not greued ther wyth, nether let it seme a cruel thynge in your eyes, that ye solde me hyther. For God byd send me before you to saue lyfe. * For this is the seconde yere of derth in the lande, and fyue moo are beynde, in whych there shall nether be earngemenor heruest.

Wherfore God sent me before you to make prouision, that ye myghte cōpme in the erth, and to saue your lyues by a greate deliuerance. So nowe it was not ye that sent me hyther, but God: which hath made me a father vnto Pharaoh & Lorde of all hys house, & ruler thowoe out all the lade of Egypte. hast you, and goo vnto my father and tell him. This sayeth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me Lorde of all Egypte. Come downe therfore vnto me, tarpe not. And y shall dwell in the lande of Goshan and be by me: thou and thy chyldren, and thy chyldrens chyldren: thy shepe, and thy beestes, & all that thou hast. And there wyl I make prouision for the, for there remaine yet. v. yeres of derth, lest thou & thy household and all that thou hast come to pouertye.

And beholde, your eyes do se, & the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, that myne awne mouth speaketh to you. Therefore tell my father of all my honoure in Egypt and of all that ye haue sene, and make hast and brynge my father hyther. And he fell on hys brother Ben Jamins necke and wepte, and Ben Jamin wepte on hys necke. Moreover he kyssed all hys brethren and wepte vpon them. And after that, hys brethren talked wyth hym. And the tydynges came vnto Pharaohs house, so that they sayde: Josephs brethren are come, & it pleased Pharaoh well and all hys seruantes.

And Pharaoh spake vnto Joseph: saye vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade your beestes and get you hence, vnto the lande of Canaan, Take your father, and your householdes and come vnto me, and I wyl geue you the good of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the fatt of the lade. And thou also shalt commaunde them. Chys do ye: take charettes wyth you out of the lande of Egypte, for your chyldren and for your wyues: and brynge your father, and come. Also, regarde not your stuffe, for the good of all the lande of Egypt is yours.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd euen so, And Joseph gaue them charettes accordyng

to the commaundement of Pharaoh, and gaue them vnto eche of them chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin he gaue. iij. hundred peces of syluer and. v. chaunge of rayment. And vnto hys father he sent after the same maner. x. asses laden wyth good, out of Egypt, and. x. she asses laden wyth cozne, bzad and meate: for hys father by the waye. So sent he hys brethren awaye to departe: And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not out by the waye.

They departed therfore from Egypt and came in to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob theyr father, and tolde hym sayinge: Joseph is yet alpye, & is gouerner ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Jacobs hert wauered, for he beleued them not. And they tolde hym all the wordes of Joseph, whych he had sayde vnto them. And when he sawe the charettes whych Joseph had sent to carpe hym, the spete of Jacob theyr father reuyued. And Israel sayde: I haue ynough that Joseph my sonne is yet alpye: I wyl goo, and se hym, yet that I dye.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Jacob toke all hys householdes goeth to Joseph in to Egypt. The genealogie of Jacob. Joseph meeteth hys father.

Isracel toke hys touney w all that he had, and came vn to Beer Seba & offred offrings vnto the God of his father Iahac. And God spake vnto Israel in a visyō by nyght sayenge: Jacob, Jacob. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: I am God, the God of thy father, fere not to goo downe into Egypt. For I wyl there make of the a great people. I will goo downe with the into Egypt, & I will also brynge the agayne, and Joseph shall put hys hande vpon thyne eyes. And Jacob rose vp from Beer Seba. And y sonnes of Israel carped Jacob theyr father, and their chyldre & theyr wyues in the charettes whych Pharaoh had sent to carpe him. And they toke theyr catell and the goodes which they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, & came in to Egypt: both Jacob & all hys seed with hym, hys sonnes & hys sonnes sonnes with hym, his daughters and hys sonnes daughters and all hys seed brought he with hym in to Egypte.

These are the names of the chyldre of Israel whych came in to Egypte, both Jacob & his sonnes: * Rubē, Jacobs first sonne. The chyldren of Rubē: Hanoch, and Pallu, Hezron & Charmi. The chyldre of Da: Husim. The chyldren of Nephtali: Jabezeel, Guni, Jezer and Sillem. These are the sonnes of Bilha, whych Laban gaue vnto Rachel hys daughter, and she bare these vnto Jacob, alltogether. vii. soules. And so the * soules that came w Jacob in to Egypte, whych came out of hys loynes (besyde Jacobs wyfes) were all together. lx. and. vi. soules. And the sonnes of Joseph, which were bozne him in Egypte, were. ij. soules: So that all y soules of the house of Jacob whych came in to Egypte, are. lxx.

And he sent Juda before hym vnto Joseph, to directe hys face vnto Goshan, & they came in to the lande of Goshan. And Joseph made redye hys charett, and wēt vp to mete Israel hys father vnto Goshan, and presented hym selfe vnto hym, and fell on hys necke, and wepte vpon hys necke a good while. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Nowe am I content to dye, in somoch as I haue sene the and because thou art yet alpye.

And Joseph sayde vnto hys brethren, and vnto hys fathers house: I wyl goo vp and shewe Pharaoh & tell hym: My brethren and my fathers house which were in the lande of Canaan, are come vnto me, and they are shepherdes (for they were me of catell) & they haue brought theyr shepe and theyr oxe and all that they haue. And yf it chaūce that Pharaoh call you, and aske you, what your occupacyon is, ye shall answer: thy seruau-tes haue bene men occupped aboute catell, from our chyldhode vnto this tyme, we and our fathers, that ye maye dwell in the lade of Goshan. For eueri shepe keeper is abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Jacob cometh before Pharaoh: and vnto hym is geuen the lande of Goshan. He maketh hys sonne to shewe for hys burpall.

Joseph came therfore and tolde Pharaoh and sayde: my father and my brethren, theyr shepe and their oxen and all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan, and beholde, they are in the lande of Goshan. And Joseph toke of the hymnost of hys brethren: euen fyue men, and presented them vnto Pharaoh. And Pharaoh sayde vnto hys brethren: what is your occupacyon? And they answered Pharaoh: shepherdes are thy seruantes, both we & also our fathers. They sayde moreover vnto Pharaoh: for to * sojorne in the lande are we come, for thy seruantes haue no pasture for theyr shepe, so sore is the famelment in the lade of Canaan. Nowe therefore let thy seruantes dwell in the lande of Goshan.

And Pharaoh sayde vnto Joseph: thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the. The lad of Egypte is before the: In the best place of the lande make both thy father and thy brethren dwell: euen in the lande of Goshan let them dwell. Moreover yf thou knowe any men of actiuite amonge them, make them rulers ouer my catell. And Joseph brought in Jacob hys father, and sett hym before Pharaoh. And Jacob, blessed Pharaoh. And Pharaoh sayde vnto Jacob: howe olde art thou? Jacob sayde vnto Pharaoh: the dayes of my pilgrimage are an hundred and. xxx. yeres. Fewer & euell haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto the yeres of the lyfe of my fathers in the dayes of theyr pilgrimages. And Jacob, blessed Pharaoh, and went out from hym. And Joseph prepared dwellinges for hys father and hys brethren, and gaue them possession in the land of Egypte, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commaunded. And Joseph made prouision for hys father, hys brethren & all his fathers householdes wyth bzad, euen as yonge chyldren are fedd.

There was no bzad in all the lande, for the derth was excedynge sore: so that the lande of Egypte and the lande of Canaan, were famelshed by the reason of the derth. And Joseph brought together all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte and of Canaan, for the cozne whych they boughte: and he layde vp the money in Pharaohs house. When money fayled in the lande

of Egypte & of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph and sayde: geue vs bred: wherfore suffrest thou vs to dye before the whan oure money is spent? Then sayde Joseph: bypunge youre catell, & I wyll geue you for your catell, yf ye be without money. And they brought theyr catell vnto Joseph. And Joseph gaue them bread for horses & shepe, and oxen, and asses, and fed the wyth bread for all theyr catell that yere.

But when that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the nexte yere, & sayde vnto him: we will not hyde it from my Lord how your money is spent, my Lord also had our catell & bestes, neyther is there ought left in the syght of my Lord, but euen oure bodies and our lades. Wherfore letttest thou vs dye before thyne eyes, & the lande to goo to nought: by vs & our lades for bread: & both we and oure landes will be boode to Pharao. Onely geue vs seed, that we maye lyue and not dye, & that the lande goo nat to wast.

And so Joseph boughte all the land of Egypte for Pharao. For y Egyptians solde euery man hys lande because the deth was sore vpon the: & so the lande became Pharaos. And he appoynted the people vnto pcyties, fro one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of the prestes bought he not. For the prestes had an ordinaunce of Pharao, y they shulde eate that which was appoynted vnto the: which Pharao had geue the wherfore they solde not theyr landes.

Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: beholde I haue boughte you this daye & youre lande for Pharao. Take there bread & seide & sowe the land. And of the encrease, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharao, & .iiij. partes shalbe youre a wne, for seed of the feld: & for you, and them of youre householdes, and for youre chyldren, to eate. And they answered: Thou haste saued oure lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syghte of my Lord, & we wyll be Pharaos seruantes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that Pharao shulde haue the fyfte parte, excepte the lande of the prestes only, whych was not Pharaos.

And Israel dwelt in Egypte: euen in the countre of Gosan. And they had theyr possession therein, & grewe and multiplied exceedingly. Moreover, Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte .xviij. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob was an hundred and .xviij. yere.

When the tyme drewe nye, y Israel must dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph, & sayde vnto hym: If I haue founde grace in thy syghte, oh, put thy hande now under my thye, and deale mercifully and truly w me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but I will lye with my fathers, and thou shalt carpe me out of Egypte, & burye me in theyr burpall. And he answered: I wyll do as thou hast sayd. And he sayde: swere vnto me. And he swore vnto hym. And Israel, & worshipped toward the beddes head.

The .xlvij. Chapter.

¶ Jacob lyeth sick. He blesseth Ephraim and Manasses for hys sonnes: and blesseth them.

After these deades it happened, y a messenger sayde vnto Joseph: thy father is sycke. And he toke w him his .ii. sonnes, Manasses & Ephraim. Then was it sayd vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph cometh vnto the. And Israel toke his strenght vnto hym, & satt vp on the bedd, & Jacob sayde vnto Joseph: God almyghtie appeared vnto me at Lus in the lande of Canaan, & blessed me, & sayde vnto me: beholde, I wyll make the growe, & wyll multiplye the, & wyll make a great nombre of people of the, and wyll geue this land vnto thy seed after the vnto an euerylastyng possession. And now thy .ii. sonnes Manasses & Ephraim which were bozne vnto the in the lande of Egypte, before I came to the in to Egypte, are myne: euen as Ruben & Symeon are myne. And the chyldren which thou hast gotten after the, shalbe thyne a wne: & shalbe called after the names of theyr brethren in theyr enheritaunce. And whan I came from Mesopotamia, Rachel dyed vpon my had in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: when ther was but a felde bredde to come vnto Ephrat. And I buried her there in y waye to Ephrat. The same is Bethlehem.

And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes and sayde: what are these? Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sonnes which God hath geue me here. And he sayde: oh, bypunge them to me, & let me blesse the. And the eyes of Israel were dymme for age, so y he coule not well see. And he broughte them to hym, and he kyssed them and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thought to haue sene thy face, ad yet loo, God hath shewed it me and also thy seed. And Joseph toke them a waye from his lappe, & worshipped on the grounde before hym.

Israel's ryghte hande, & broughte them vnto hym. And Israel stretched out hys ryghte hande & layde it vpon Ephraims heade which was the yonger, & hys lyfte hande vpon Manasses heed, gydinge hys handes wylely, for Manasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph & sayde: God, before whome my fathers Abraham & Isahac dyd walke, God whych hath fedd me all my lyfe longe vnto this daye, And the angell whych hath deliuered me from all euill, blesse these laddes: & let my name be named in them, & the name of my fathers Abraham & Isahac, & that they maye growe into a multitude in the myddes of the erth.

When Joseph sawe that hys father layde hys ryghte hande vpon y heade of Ephraim, it displeased him. And he lyfte vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it from Ephraims heade vnto Manasses heade, & Joseph sayde vnto hys father: Not so my father, for this is the eldest. But thy ryghte hande vpon hys heade. And hys father wolde not, but sayde: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He shalbe also a people & shalbe great. But hys yonger brother shalbe greater than he, and hys seed shal be full of people. And he blessed them that daye and sayde: In the let Israel blesse & saye: God make y as Ephraim and as Manasses. And sett Ephraim before Manasses.

And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: beholde, I dye. And God shalbe wyth you and bypunge you agayne vnto y lande of youre fathers. Moreover I haue geuen vnto the, a porcyon of y lande aboue thy brethren, which I gatt out of the hande of the Amorite in my swerde and in my bowe.

The .xlix. Chapter.

¶ Jacob blesseth all his awne sonnes and sheweth the what to come. He apoynteth where he wyll be buried: and dyeth.

And Jacob called for hys sonnes and sayde: come together, that I maye tell you what shal happen you in the last dayes. Gather you together, and heare ye sonnes of Jacob, heken vnto Israel youre father.

Ruben * myne eldest sonne, thou art my myghte and the begynnyng of my strength, & the noblenesse of dignyte, and the noblenesse of power. Unstable as water. Thou shalt not be the cheffest, because thou wentest vp to thy fathers bed. Euen then dydest thou defyle it, & it was nomore my couche.

The brethren Simeon and Leui, cruell instrumentes in their habitacions. In to their secretes come not my soule, vnto their congregacyon be my honoure not coupled: for in their * wrath they slewe a man, & in their selfe wyll they, & digged downe a wall. We sed be their wrath, for it was shamelesse, and their fearlesnes, for it was cruel. I wyll deuide them in Jacob, & scatter them in Israel.

Juda thou art he, who thy brethren shall prayse. Thy hande shalbe in the * necke of thyne enymies, thy fathers chyldren shall stoupe before the. Juda is a * Lyons whelpe, from thy spoule my sonne thou art come an hye. He layde hym downe and couched hym selfe as a Lyon, and as a * lionesse. Who wyll stre hym vp? The sceptre shall not departe fro Juda, and a lawgeuer fro betwene hys fete, vntyll. * Sylo come. And vnto hym shall the gatheringe of the people be. He shall bynde his sole vnto y wyne, and hys asses colt vnto the braunche. He washed hys garment in wyne, and hys mantell in the bloude of grapes. Hys eyes are redder than wyne, & his teeth whytter then mylke.

* Zabulon shall dwell by the heauen of the see and nye the heauen of byppes. His border shalbe vnto Sydon.

Isachar a stronge alle conchyng hym downe betwene .ij. borders, and sawe that rest was good, & the lande that it was pleasant, and bowed hys shulder to beare, and became a seruante vnto tribute. * Dan shall iudge hys people & the trybes of Israel. Dan shalbe a serpet in the waye, an adder in the path, bytyng the heele heles and hys ryder fell backward: after thy saluacyon haue I looked o Lorde.

God, an hoost of men shall overcome him, And he shall overcome at the last.

Ofasser: his bread shalbe fat, and he shall geue pleasures for a kynge.

Rephthalim is a swyfte bynde, genyng goodly wordes. That flozyschyng childe Joseph, that plenteous chyld by the well syde, the daughters ran vpon the wall. They haue prouoked hym, and shot hym through with darteres. The archers haue enuyed him: But hys bowe abode fast, and the arrowes of hys handes were made stronge, by the handes of the myghty God of Jacob. Out of hym shall come an herde man, a stone in Israel: from thy fathers God which hath helped the, and with the almyghty which hath blessed the wyth blesynges from heauen aboue, wyth blesynges of the depe that lyeth vnder, and wyth blesynges of the brestes and of the wombe. The blesynges of thy father were stronger then the blesynges of my elders, vnto the vtmost of the bylles of y worlde, and they shalbe on the heade of Joseph, and on the toppe of the heade of hym y was separat from his brethren.

Benjamin shall rauenhe as a wolfe. In y morninge he shall deuoure the praye, and at nyghte he shall deuoure the spoule.

All these are the .xij. tribes of Israel, and thys their father spake vnto them and blessed them, euey one of them blessed he wyth c v a leuerall

a feuerall blessinge. And he charged them, and sayde vnto them: When I shalbe gathered vnto my * people, burye me wyth my fathers, in the caue that is in the felde of Ephron the hethyte, in the double caue that is in the felde by the countre of Hamre in the lande of Canaan. Whych felde Abraham boughte of Ephron the hethyte for a possession to burye in, where as were buried Abraham and Sara his wyfe. And where as were buried Isahac & Rebecca his wyfe. And there I buried Lea. The felde and the caue that is therein, was bought of the chyldren of heth.

And when Jacob had commaunded all that he wolde vnto his sonnes, he plucked vp his fete vnto the bedd and dyed, and was * put vnto his people. And Joseph fell vpon his fathers face, and wepte vpon hym, and kyssed hym.

The I. Chapter.

Jacob is buried Joseph forgereth his brethren the iurys that they dyd to him. And he dyeth.

And Joseph commaunded his scruauntes the Phisicyns, to embayme his father, and the Phisicyns embaymed Israel xl. dayes longe, for so longe doth the embaymyng last, and the Egyptians bewayled hym lxx. dayes.

And when the dayes of wepyng were ended, Joseph spake vnto the house of Pharaoh sayinge: If I haue founde fauoure in your eyes, speake in the eares of Pharaoh sayinge: my father made me swere & sayde: loo, I dye, * burye me in my grane whych I haue made me in the lande of Chanaan. Nowe therefore let me goo and burye my father, and thā will I come agayne. And Pharaoh sayde, goo and burye thy father, accordinge as he made the swere.

And Joseph went vp to burye his father, and with hym went all the scruauntes of Pharaoh that were the elders of his house, and all the elders of the lande of Egypte, & all the house of Joseph, and his brethren and his fathers house, only theyr chyldren and their wyues and their catell left they behynde in the lande of Gosan. And there went with him also Charettes and horssmen: & it was an exceedyng great companye.

And they came to the cozne flooze of Atad whych is beyonde Jordane, and there they made a great and exceedyng soze lamentacyon. And he * mourned for his father. viij. dayes. And when the inhabitants of the lande (euen the Cananytes) sawe the mournynge in the cozne flooze of Atad, they sayde: this is a greafe mournynge vnto the Egyptians. Wherfore the name of the place is called, The mournynge of the Egyptians, and it is beyonde Jordane: And his sonnes dyd vnto

him accordinge as he had commaunded the. For his sonnes carped hym * in to the lande of Canaan, and buried him in the double caue of the felde: whiche caue * Abraham boughte, and the felde also, to be a place to burye in, of Ephron the hethite before Hamre. And Joseph returned in to Egypte agayne, he and his brethren (and all that went with him to burye his father,) as sone as he had buried hym.

And when Josephs brethren sawe that their father was dead, they sayde: Joseph myghte fortune to hate vs & * rewarde vs agayne all the euell which we dyd vnto him. And they dyd a commaundement vnto Joseph sayinge, thy father charged vs before his deeth sayinge: Thy wyfe shall ye saue vnto Joseph, for geue (I praye the) the trespasse of thy brethren, and theyr synne: for they rewarded the euell. And nowe (we praye the) for geue the trespasse of the scruauntes of thy fathers God. And Joseph wepte, when they spake vnto hym.

For his brethren came vnto hym, & fell flat before his face sayinge: beholde, we be thy scruauntes. To who Joseph sayde * feare not. Am I God? ye thought euell agaynst me: but God turned it vnto good, to byrnyng to passe, as it is this daye, and to saue moche people alpye. Feare not therefore, now, I will noryse you, and your chyldren, and he comforted them, & spake kindly vnto them.

Joseph dwelt in Egypte he and his fathers house, and Joseph lyued an hundred and x. yere. And Joseph sawe * Ephraims chyldren, euen vnto the thyrde generacyon. And vnto Machir the sonne of Manasses were chyldren borne, on Joseph knees.

And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: I dye. And God wyll surely * vylett you & byrnyng you out of this lande, vnto the lande whych he sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And Joseph toke an ooth of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: God wyll not faile but vylett you: and ye shall carpe my * boones hence. And so

Joseph dyed, when he was an hundred & x. yere olde.

And they embaymed hym wyth spices, put = tyng him in a chest in Egypte.

The end of the fyrst booke of Moses: called in the hebreue, Bereschyth, and in the Latyn, Genesis.

The second booke of Moses called in the hebreue: Meelles Schemoth: And in the Latyn, Exodus.

The fyrst Chapter.

The chyldren of Jacob are nombred. The newe Pharaoh oppresseth them. The acte of the godly mydwines.

These are the names of the chyldren of Israel, which came to Egypte wyth Jacob, euery man came wth his household: Ruben, Simeon, Levi, and Juda, Issachar zabulon, and Benjamin, Dan, Reuhtali, Gad and Aser. All the soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob were. lxx. But Joseph was in Egypte alledie. And Joseph dyed and all his brethren and all that generacyon, and the * chyldren of Israel grewe, encreased, multiplied, and waxed exceedingly myghtye: and the lande was full of them.

But there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypte whych knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde, the people of the chyldren of Israel are greater and myghtyer than we. Come on, let vs playe wisely wyth the, lest they multiplye, & lest it happen, that (yf there chaunce any warre) they loyne the felues vnto oure enemyes and spyghte agaynst vs, and so gete them out of the lande.

Therefore dyd they sette taskmasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder w burthens. And they bylte vnto Pharaoh treasure cities: Pithon and Rameses. But the more they vexed the, the moare they multiplied and grewe, so that they abhorred the chyldren of Israel. And the Egyptians helde the chyldren of Israel in bondage without merceye. Therefore was their lyfe bytter vnto the in that cruell bondage, in claye & byrke, and all maner of worke i feldes. For all their bondage which they serued them, was full of tyrannye.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwines of the hebreue women, of which the ones name was Sephora and the other

Phua: when ye do the offyce of a mydwife to the women of the Ebrues and se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, ye shall kyll it. But yf it be a daughter, it shall lyue. Not withstandinge the mydwines feared God and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men chyldren.

And the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwines and sayde vnto them: why haue ye delt on this maner, and haue saued the menchyldren? And the mydwines answered Pharaoh, that the hebreues women are not as the women of Egypte: for they are sturdye women, and are deliuered per the midwyues come at the. And God therfore delt well with the midwyues. And the people multiplied and waxed very myghtye. And it fortuned because the midwyues feared God, he made them houses.

And Pharaoh charged all his people, sayinge: All the menchyldren that are borne, cast into the ryuer, and saue the maydechyldren alpye.

The seconde Chapter.

Moses is borne and cast into the flagges. He is take vp of Pharaos daughter. He killeth the Egyptian. He flyeth and marryeth a wyfe. The Israelites come vnto the Lorde.

And there went a ma of * the house of Levi. And toke a daughter of Levi. And the wyfe concealed and bare a sonne. And when she sawe that it was a proper chyld

she hyd hym thre monethes. And when she coude no longer hyde him, she toke a basket of bulrushes and dawbed it with slyme and pytche, and layde the chyld therein, and put it in the flagges by the ryuers byrke. And his sister stode a farre of, to wete what wold come of it. * And the daughter of Pharaoh came doune * to walke herselfe in the ryuer, and hyr maydens walked alonge by the ryuers syde. And when she sawe the basket amonge the flagges, she sent hyr mayde to fetch it. And when she had opened it, she sawe it was a chyld: and beholde, the babe wepte. And she had compassyon on it, and sayde: it is one of the hebreues chyldren. Then sayde hyr syster vnto Pharaohs daughter: Shall I go and call vnto the a nurse of the hebreues women, to nurse the, the chyld? Pharaohs daughter answered her: Soo. And the mayde ranne and called the chyldes mother. To whom Pharaohs daughter sayde: Take this chyld a waye, and nurse it for me, I wyll rewarde the. And the woman toke the chyld, and nursed it vp.

The chyld grewe, & she brought it vnto Pharaohs daughter, & it was made hyr sone, & she called the name of it * Moses, because (sayde she) I toke him out of the water. And it happened in those dayes, when Moses was waxed waxed great, that he went out vnto his brethren and looked on their burdens, & spied an Egyptian smytynge an hebreue whych was one of hys brethren. And he looked round aboute, and when he sawe no mā by, he slew the Egyptian, and hyd him in the soude. And whā he was gone out another daye: beholde two hebreues strone to gether. And he sayde vnto hym that dyd the wronge: wherfore smyttest thou thy fellowe? he answered: * who made thea man of auctorite to iudge vs? Speakest thou to kyll me, as thou kyledst the Egyptian? And Moses feared & sayde: of a suertie thys thyng is knowne. And Pharaο herbe of it, and went aboute to see Moses: And Moses fleye frō the face of Pharaο, dwelt in the lande of Midian, and he sat doune by a welles syde.

The preast of Midian had. vij. daughters which came and drew water, and fylled the troughes, for to water their fathers shepe. And the shepardes came & drōue them awaye: but Moses stode vp and helped the, and watered their shepe. And when they came to Raguel their father, he sayde: howe happeneth it y pe are come so soone to daye? And they answered: a man of Egypte deliuered vs frō the hande of the shepardes, and so drew vs water, & watered the shepe. he sayde vnto hys daughters. And wher is he? why haue ye so lefte the man? Call hym that he maye eate bread. And Moses was cōsent to dwell with the man. And he gaue Moses zephora hys daughter, which whan she bare a sonne. * called him Gerson: for he sayde: I haue bene a straunger in a straunge lande.

And it chaunced in proceffe of tyme, that the kynge of Egypte dyed, and the chyldren of Israel syghed by the reason of bondage, and cryed. And their cōplaynt came vp vnto God from the bodage: and God hearde their mone. And God remembred hys promysse with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And God looked vpon the chyldren of Israel, and God had respecte vnto them.

The. iij. Chapter.

Moses kepeth shepe. God appereth vnto hym in a bush, & sendeth hym to the chyldren of Israel, and to Pharaο that tyrant.

Moses kept the shepe of * Jethro ^{* Gen. xliij. 1.} hys father in lawe, preest of Midian, and he drōue the flocke to the backeside of the desert, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb.

* And the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto him in a flame of fyre out of the myddes of a bush. And he looked, & beholde, the bush burned wth fyre, and the bush was not consumed. Therfore Moses sayde: I wyll goo nowe, and see thys greatesyght, howe it cometh the bush burneth not. And when the Lorde sawe that he came for to see, God called vnto him out of the myddes of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. he answered: here am I. And he sayde: * come not hyther, put thy shoes of thy fete: for y place where on thou stondest is holy grounde. And he sayde: * I am the God of thy father, & God of Abraham, the God of Isaac & the God of Jacob. And Moses hyd his face, for he was afrayed to lōke vpon God.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue surely sene the trouble of my people whych are in Egypte, and * haue herde theyr crye from the face of their taskmasters. For I knowe their sorowes, and am come downe to deliuer them out of the hande of the Egyptians, and to bynge them out of that lande vnto a good lande and a large: and vnto a lande that floweth wyth mylke and hony: euen vnto the place of the Canaanites and hehitites, and Amorites, and Pherezites, and heuites, and of the Jebusites. Nowe therfore, the complaynt of the chyldren of Israel is come vnto me, and I haue also sene the oppressyon wherwith the Egyptians oppresse them. Come thou therfore, and I wyll sende the vnto Pharaο, that thou mayest bynge my people the chyldre of Israel out of Egypte. And Moses sayde vnto God: what am I to goo vnto Pharaο, and to bynge the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte? And he answered: I wyll be wyth the. And thys shalbe a token vnto the that I haue sent the: after that thou hast brought the people out of Egypte, ye shall serue God vpon thys mountayne.

And Moses sayde vnto God: beholde, when I come vnto the chyldren of Israel, I shall saye vnto them: the God of youre fathers hath sent me vnto you, and yf they saye vnto me, what is hys name, what answer shall I geue them? And God answered Moses: I am that I am: and he sayde: thys shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel. I am hath sent me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moses: thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel * the Lorde God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath sent me vnto you: thys is my name for euer for euer, and thys is my memorypall into generacyon and generacyon. Goo and gather the elders of Israel to gether, and thou shalt saye vnto them: the Lorde God of youre fathers, & God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob appeared vnto me, and sayde: In visyngge haue I visited you, and knowe that which is done to you in Egypte. And I haue sayde, I wyll bynge you out of the tribulacyon of Egypte vnto the lande of the Canaanites, and hehitites, and Amorites, and Pherezites, and heuites, and Jebusites: euen vnto a lande y floweth wyth mylke and hony.

And whan they heare thy voyce then goo, both thou and the elders of Israel shall go vnto the kynge of Egypte, and saye vnto him: The Lorde God of the hebreues hath met wyth vs: and nowe wyll we go therfore. iij. dayes iourney into the wyldecnesse, and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure God. And I am sure, that the kynge of Egypte wyll not let you goo, no not in a myghtye hande: and I wyll stretche out myne hande and smyte Egypte wyth all my wonders which I will do in y myddes therof. And after y he wyll let you goo. And * I wyll gett thys people fauoure in y syghte of the Egyptians: so that when ye goo, ye shall not goo emptye: but a wyfe shall borrow of hir neyghboure, & of her that soeozneth in hir house, iewels of syluer and of gold and rayment. And ye shall put them on youre sonnes and daughters, & shall robbe the Egyptians.

The. iij. Chapter.

Moses receaued signes of his callenge and was sent into Egypte. Hys wyfe zephora circumcised hys sonne. Aaron meteth wyth Moses. Moses saith hys teare of hys father in lawe.

Moses answered and sayde: Se, they wyll not beleue me nor herken vnto my voyce: but will saye the Lorde hath not appeared vnto the. And y Lorde sayde vnto him: what is y whych is in thyne hande? he answered a rodd. And he sayde: cast it on y grounde. And he cast it on the grounde, and it became a serpent. And Moses fled from the syght of it. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: put forth thyne hande and take it by the tayle. And therfore he put forth hys hande & caught it, and it became a rodd in his hande. For thys thynge (sayeth he) shall they beleue the, that the Lorde God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac & the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the Lorde sayde forthermore vnto hym: thrust thyne hande in to thy bosome. And he thrust hys hande in to hys bosome. And whā he toke it out agayne, beholde, his hande was leperous euen as snowe. And he sayde: put thyne hande in to thy bosome agayne. And he put hys hāde into his bosome agayne, and plucked it out of hys bosome, & beholde, it was turned agayne as hys other fleshe. Therfore yf they wyll not beleue the nether heare the voyce of the fyrst token, yet wyll they beleue for the voyce of the seconde token. But and yf they wyll not beleue the two signes, nether herken vnto thy voyce, thou shalt take of the water of the ryuer, & powze it vpon the drye lande. And y water which thou takest out of y ryuer, shall turne to bloude vpon the drye lande.

Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: oh my Lorde, I am not eloquent from yester daye & yester daye, & namely sence thou hast spokē vnto thy seruaute: but I am slowe mouthed and slowe tonged. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: who hath made mans mouth, or who hath made the domme or the deaffe, the seynge or the blynde: haue not I the Lorde? Therfore * I will be with thy mouth, & teache the what thou shalt saye. he sayde: oh my Lorde, sende I praye the by the hāde of him whom thou wilt sende. And y Lorde was angrye with Moses, & sayde: do not I knowe Aaron thy brother the leuyte, that he can speake? For lo, he cometh furth to mete the, & when he seyth the, he wyll be glad in his herte. Therfore thou shalt speake vnto hym, and put these wordes in hys mouth, and I wyll be with thy mouth and wyth hys mouth, and wyll teache you what ye ought to do. And he shalbe thy spokesman vnto the people: & he also shall be thy mouth & thou shalt be hys God: and thou shalt take this rodd in thy hande, wherwith thou shalt do myracles.

Therfore Moses went and returned to Jethro hys father in lawe agayne, & sayde vnto him: I wyll goo nowe, and turne agayne vnto my brethren whych are in Egypte, and se whether they be yet alyue. And Jethro sayde to Moses, goo in peace. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses in Midian: goo, and retorne agayne in to Egypte * for they are dead which wēt aboute to kyll the. And Moses toke hys wyfe, and his sonnes, & put the on an asse, and went agayne to Egypte, & Moses toke the rodd of God in his hande.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: when thou art entred & come into Egypte agayne, se that thou doo all the wondres before Pharaο which I haue put in thy hande: but I wyll holde * hys herte, and he shall not let the people goo. And thou shalt saye vnto Pharaο, thus sayeth the Lorde: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and I haue sayde vnto the that thou shuldest let my sonne goo, that he maye serue me. And thou woldest not let hym goo: beholde, I wyll * see thyne eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the waye in the ynne that the Lorde mett hym, and wolde haue kyllled

kyllid him. And zephora toke a stone, & cut a wape the foretyme of hyr sone, & fell at his fete, & sayde: a bloudyhusbande art thou vnto me. Then he lett him goo. And the saydes a bloudyhusbande, because of the circumcysion. Then sayde the Lorde vnto Aaron: go wete Moyses in the wilderness. And he went and met hym in the mount of God, and kyssed him. And Moyses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lorde which had sent him, and all the tokens which he had charged him withall. So went Moyses & Aaron and gathered all the elders of the chyldre of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes whych the Lorde had spoken vnto Moyses, and dyd the myracles in the syght of the people, and the people beleued. And whē they herde that the Lorde had visited the chyldren of Israel and had looked vpon their tribulacion, they bowed their head, and worshypped.

C The. v. Chapter.

C Moyses & Aaron goeth vnto Pharaon. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more, & they crye oute vpon Moyses & Aaron therfore.

Moyses & Aaron went in after warde, and tolde Pharaon, thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: Let my people goo, that they maye kepe holyc dave vnto me in the wilderness. And Pharaon sayde: who * is þe Lorde, that I shulde heare hys voyce, & let Israel go? I knowe not the Lorde, nether will I let Israel go. And they sayde: the God of the hebrews hath mett with vs: and therfore wyl we go. iij. dayes iourney into the deserte, and sacrificy vnto the Lorde oure God: lest there happen vnto vs ether pestylence or swerde. Then sayde the kynge of Egypte vnto them: wherfore do ye, Moyses and Aaron let the people from their worke, get you vnto your labour. And Pharaon sayde furthermore: beholde, there is moche people now in the lande, and ye make them leaue their worke.

And Pharaon commaunded the same dave vnto the taskemasters which were amonge the people, and vnto the offycers, sayinge: ye shall geue the people no more strawe, to make bycke wyth all, (as ye dyd in tyme past.) let them goo and gather them strawe them selues and the nombre of bycke whyche they were wont to make in tyme past, laye vnto their charges also, and mynys nothyng therof. For they be ydell and therfore sayinge: we wyl goo & do sacrificy vnto oure God. They must haue more worke layd vpon them, that they maye labour therein, & not regarde dayne wordes.

Then went the taskemasters of the people and the offycers out: and tolde the people Thus sayeth Pharaon: I wyl geue you no moare strawe, goo your selues and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shall none of your labour be mynysed. And so were þe people scattered abrode thowowe out all the lande of Egypte for to gather stubbyll in stead of strawe.

And the taskemasters basted them forwarde sayinge: fulfyll your worke dave by dave, euen as ye had strawe. And the offycers of the chyldren of Israel whych Pharaos taskemasters had sett ouer them, were beat. And they sayde vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfyllid your taske in makinge bycke, both yesterdave and to dave, as well as in tymes past?

The offycers also of the chyldre of Israel came & complayned vnto Pharaon, sayinge: wherfore dealest thou thus wyth thy seruantes? there is no strawe geue vnto thy seruantes, and they saye vnto vs: make bycke. And thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. He sayde: ydell are ye, ydell, and therfore ye saye: We wyl goo and do sacrificy vnto the Lorde. Goo therfore now and worke, and ther shall no strawe be geuen you, and yet shall ye deliuer the hole tale of bycke.

And the offycers of the chyldren of Israel dyd wyth heynnes loke on them that sayde: ye shall mynys the nothyng of your daylye makinge of bycke. And they mett Moyses and Aaron, which stode in there wape as they came out fro Pharaon, & sayde vnto the: The Lorde loke vnto you and iudge you, whych hath made the sauoure of vs sincke in þe eyes of Pharaon & in the eyes of his seruantes, and haue put a swerde in their hande to sle vs.

Moyses returned vnto the Lorde & sayde: Lorde wherfore hast thou deale cruelly w this people: and wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence I came to Pharaon to speake in thy name, he hath fared foule wyth this folke, and yet thou hast not deliuered thy people at all. Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Howe shalt thou see, what I wyl doo vnto Pharaon, for in a myghtye hande shall he let them goo, and * in a myghtye hande shall he dypue them out of hys lande.

C The. vi. Chapter.

C God promyseth deliuerance of the Israelites, and the lande of Canaan. The genealogye of Aaron, Simeon and Leui.

And God spake vnto Moyses, and sayde vnto him: I am the Lorde, I appeared vnto Abraham Isaac and Jacob as an allmyghtye God: and in my name Iehouah was I not knowne vnto them. Moysesouer * I made an appoyntment with them to geue the lande of Canaan: þe lande of their pilgremage where in thy were straungers. And I haue also herde the gronyng of the chyldren of Israel, who the Egyptians kepe in bondage.

Wherfore saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: I am the Lorde, I wyl byynge you out from þe burdens of the Egyptians, and wyl rydd you out of their bondage, & wyl deliuer you in a stretched out arme and in great iudgementes. And I wyl take you for my people, & wyl be to you a God. And ye shall knowe, I am the Lorde your God which byynge you out fro the burdens of the Egyptians. And I wyl byynge you vnto the lande concernyng the whych I dyd lyfe vpon my hāde to geue it vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and wyl geue it vnto you for a possession: euen I the Lorde. And Moyses tolde the chyldren of Israel eue so: But they harkened not vnto Moyses, for anguyche of sprete and for cruel bondage.

The Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: Goo in, & speake vnto Pharaon kynge of Egypte, that he let the chyldren of Israel goo out of hys lande. And Moyses spake before the Lorde sayinge: beholde, the chyldren of Israel herken not vnto me, howe than shall Pharaon heare me? which am of vncircumcised lippes? And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and vnto Aaron, and gaue them a charge vnto the chyldren of Israel and vnto Pharaon kynge of Egypte: to byynge the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte. These be the heedes of theyr fathers houses. The chyldren of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel are these: Hanoh, and Pallu, Hebron, and Charimi, these be the householde of Ruben. The chyldren of Simeon: Semuel, and Jamin, Ohad, and Jachim, zohar, ad Saul the sonne of a Cananytish wyfe: these are the kynredde of Simeon. These also * are the names of the chyldren of Leui in their generacions: Gerson, and kahath and Merari. Leui lyued an hundred & .xxxvij. yere. The sonnes of Gerson: Libni and Semei by their kynredde. The chyldre of kahath: Amram, and Jescar, Hebron and Uziel. And kahath lyued an hundred and .xxiiij. yere. The chyldren of Merari: Mahely and Mushi: these are the kynredde of Leui by their generations.

* Amram toke * Jochebed hys nece to wyfe and she bare hym Aaron and Moyses. * (And Miriam.) And Amram lyued an hundred and .xxxvij. yere. The chyldren of Jeseur, kozah, Nepheg and Sichzi: The chyldre of Uziel: Misael, Elzaphan and Sichzi.

And Aaron toke Elizabeth daughter of Aminadab and syster of Nabalon, to wyfe: whych bare hym Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. The chyldren of kozah: Assir, and Elkana and Abiasaph: these are the kynredde of the kozahites. Eleazar Aarons sonne toke him one of the daughters of Putiel to wife, which bare him Pinchas:

and these be the principall fathers of the Leuites thowowe out their kynredde.

This is that Aaron and Moyses to who the Lorde sayde: carpe the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, accordyng to theyr armys. These are þe Moyses and Aaron which spake to Pharaon kynge of Egypte, that they myghte byynge the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte. And in the dave when the Lorde spake vnto Moyses in the lande of Egypte, he spake vnto hym, sayinge: I am the Lorde. speake thou vnto Pharaon þe kynge of Egypte all that I saye vnto þe. And Moyses sayde before the Lorde: Beholde, I am of * vncircumcised lippes, and howe shall Pharaon geue me audience?

C The. viij. Chapter.

C The tokens to knowe God. The rodde of Moyses is toyned to a serpent. The forcerars do euen the same. The waters are turned into bloude.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: beholde, I haue made the Pharaos God, and Aaron thy brother shall be thy pphete. Thou shalt speake all that I commaunded the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharaon, that he sende the chyldren of Israel out of hys lande. And * I wyl harden Pharaos hert, and multiplie my myracles and my wondres in the lande of Egypte. But Pharaon shall not herken vnto you, that I maye sett myne hand vpon Egypte, and byynge out myne armys, and my people the chyldren of Israel out of the lade of Egypte, in great iudgementes, and the Egyptians shall knowe, that I am the Lorde: when I stretche forth my hande vpon Egypte, and byynge out the chyldren of Israel from amonge them.

Moyses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded the, euen so dyd they. Moyses was 137. yere olde, and Aaron. 133. whē they spake vnto Pharaon. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: yf Pharaon speake vnto you sayinge: We we a wondre, thou shalt saye vnto Aaron: take thy rodd and cast it before Pharaon, that it maye be a serpent. Then went Moyses and Aaron in vnto Pharaon, and dyd euen as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron cast forth his rodd before Pharaon and before his seruantes * and it turned to a serpente. Then Pharaon called for the wyse men and * enchaunters, & those wyse men of Egypte dyd in like maner w there sorcery. For they cast downe euery man hys rodd, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodd dyd eate vp theyr rodde: and he hardened Pharaos herte: that he herkened not vnto them, euen as the Lorde had sayde.

The Lorde also sayde vnto Moyses. Pharaos herte is hardened, he refuseth to let the people people go. Get thee unto Pharaoh (in the morning), lo, he will come unto the water; and thou shalt stand upon the rivers: by the way he will come, and the rodd wherewith he turned to a serpent, shalt thou take in thine hand. And thou shalt say unto him: the Lord God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying: let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness. And behold, by the river thou wilt not hear. Thus saith the Lord: In this thou shalt know that I am the Lord. Behold, I will smite (with the staffe) the water that is in the river, and it shall turne to bloud. And the fishes that are in the river shall dye, and the river shall stynke: and it shall greve the Egyptians to drynke of the water of the river.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saye unto Aaron: take thy staffe, and stretch out thine hande over the waters of Egypt, over their streames, over their rivers and pouders, and all pooles of water; whych they haue, & they may be bloude, and that there may be blood thozowe out all the lande of Egypt: both in vessels of wodd and also of stone.

And Moses and Aaron dyd euen as the Lord commaunded. And he lyfte up the staffe and smote the waters that were in the river in the syght of Pharaoh and in the syght of his seruantes, and all the water that was in the river, turned into blood. And the fishes that were in the river dyed: and the river stynke: and the Egyptians coulde not drynke of the waters of the river. And there was bloude thozowe out all the lande of Egypt.

And the enchaunters of Egypt dyd lyke wyse with their sozceres, and he hardened Pharaohs hert: neyther dyd he harken unto them: as the Lord had sayde. And Pharaoh turned hym selfe, and went agayne into his house, and let not his herte there. And the Egyptians dygged rounde aboute the river for water to drynke, for they coulde not drynke of the water of the river. And it continued a weke after that the Lord had smyten the river.

The viij. Chapter.

The plague of frogs. Moses prayeth for Pharaoh. The plague of flies.

The Lord spake unto Moses: Go unto Pharaoh & tell him: thus sayeth the Lord: Let my people go, that they may serve me. If thou wilt not let them go: behold, I will smyte all thy border with frogs. And the river shall swarme with frogs, whych shall go by and come into thine house and into thy prey chamber where thou sleepest, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy seruantes; & upon thy people, and into thine ouens, and upon thy meates. And the frogges shall come vpon the and on thy people and vpon all thy seruantes.

And the Lord spake unto Moses: saye vnto Aaron: stretch forth thine hande with thy rodd ouer the streames, ouer the rivers, and ouer the pouders; that thou mayest bringe vpon frogges vpon the lande of Egypt. And Aaron stretched his hande over the waters of Egypt, and the frogges came vpon, & couered the lande of Egypt. And the sozcerers dyd lyke wyse with their sozcery, and broughte frogges vpon the lande of Egypt.

Then Pharaoh called for Moses & Aaron and sayde: praye ye vnto the Lord, that he maye take awaye the frogges from me & from my people, and I will let the people go, that they maye do sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayde vnto Pharaoh: reioyse thou ouer me, and appoynte when I shall praye for the and for thy seruantes, and for thy people, to drye awaye the frogges fro the, and thy houses, and that they maye remayne but in the river only. He sayde: tomorowe. And he sayde: euen as thou hast sayde, that thou mayest knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lord oure God. And so the frogges shall departe from the and from thy houses, from thy seruantes and from thy people, and shall remayne in the river only.

Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh, and Moses cryed vnto the Lord vpon the apoyntment of frogges, which he had made vnto Pharaoh. And the Lord dyd accordinge to the sayinge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houses, out of the courtes and felde. And they gathered them together vpon heapes, & the lande stynke of them.

But when Pharaoh sawe that he had regeuen hym, he hardened his herte and hekened not vnto them, as the Lord had sayde. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron: stretch out thy rodd and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to lyle thozowe out all the lande of Egypt. And they dyd so. For Aaron stretched out his hande with his rodd he smote the dust of the earth, which turned to lyle in man and best, so that all the dust of the lande turned to lyle, thozowe out all the lande of Egypt.

And the enchaunters allayde lyke wyse with their enchauntmentes, to bringe forth lyle, but they coulde not. And the lyle were both vpon men and bestes. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharaoh: it is the synge of God. And Pharaohs hart remayned obstinate, and he harken not vnto them, euen as the Lord had sayde.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: ryse vpearly

in the morning, and stande before Pharaoh. For he will come forth vnto the water: and thou shalt saye vnto him: thus saith the Lord: Let my people go, that they maye serue me. Else, yf thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will sende all maner of flies both vpon the and thy seruantes, and thy people, and into the houses. And the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of flies, and the grounde wheron they are. And the lande of Goshen where my people are, will I cause to be wonderfull in that daye: so that there shall no flies be there. Wherby thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lord in the myddes of the earth. And I will put a diuision betwene my people and thine. And euen tomorowe shall this myracle be done.

The Lord dyd euen so: and there came noysome flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his seruantes houses, and into all the lande of Egypt: and the lande was corrupte with these flies. And Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go, and do sacrifice vnto poure God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete that we so do. For then we must offer vnto the Lord oure God, that which is an abomination vnto the Egyptians. But and yf we sacrifice that, which is an abomination vnto the Egyptians before their eyes, shulde they not stone vs: we will go thre dayes iourney into the deserte, and sacrifice vnto the Lord oure God as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharaoh sayd: I will let you go, that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lord poure God in the wilderness: but go not farre awaye, praye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I will go out fro the, & praye vnto the Lord, that the flies maye departe from Pharaoh, & from his seruantes and from his people to morow. But let Pharaoh from henceforth decreaue nomore, that he will not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord dyd accordinge to the sayinge of Moses: and the flies departed from Pharaoh, and from his seruantes, and from his people, and there remayned not one. And Pharaoh hardened his herte euen then also, and dyd not let the people go.

The ix. Chapter.

The mozen of beastes. The plague of botches and sores. The horrible hable, thowder and pestynge.

The Lord sayd vnto Moses: go in vnto Pharaoh and thou shalt tell him: thus sayeth the Lord God of the Hebrews: Let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, and wilt holde them styll, behold, the hande of the Lord is vpon thy flocke which is in the felde: for vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen and shepe, there shall be a mighty great mozen. And the Lord shall do wonderfully betwene the beastes of Israel and the beastes of Egypt: so that there shall nothyng dye of all that pertaineth to the children of Israel. And the Lord appointed a tyme, saying: to morow the Lord shall synge this worde in the lande.

And the Lord dyd it on the morow, and all the catell of Egypt dyed: but of the catell of the children of Israel dyed not one. And Pharaoh sent, and beholde, there was not one of the catell of the Israelites deed. And Pharaohs hert was hardened that he wolde not let the people go.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: take poure handes full of ashes out of the fornace, and Moses shall spynke it vnto the ayre, in the syght of Pharaoh, and it shall turne to dust in all the lande of Egypt: that there maye be swellynge sores with blaynes both on man and beaste thozowout all the lande of Egypt. And they toke ashes out of the fornace, and stood before Pharaoh, and Moses spynked it vnto the ayre. And there were sores with blaynes both in men and in beastes: and the sozcerers coulde not stande before Moses because of the blaynes: for there were botches vpon the enchaunters & vpon all the Egyptians. And Pharaoh hardened the hert of Pharaoh, & he hekened not vnto the, as the Lord had sayd vnto Moses.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: ryse vpearly in the morning, and stande before Pharaoh, & thou shalt tell hym: thus sayeth the Lord God of the Hebrews: Let my people go, that they maye serue me: or else I will at this tyme sende all my plagues vpon thine herte, and vpon thy seruantes and on thy people, that thou mayest knowe, that there is none lyke me in all the earth. For nowe I will stretch out my hande, that I maye smyte the and thy people with pestilence: and thou shalt perishe from the earth. And in very dede: for this cause haue I kepte the, for to shewe the my power: and that they might declare my name thozowout all the world.

Yet thou exaltest thy selfe agaynst my people, that thou wilt not let them go: behold, to morow the synge I will sende downe a myghty greete hable: euen soche a one as was not in Egypt, sens it was grounded vnto this tyme. Sende therfore now, and gather thy beastes, and all that thou hast in the felde. For vpon all the men and the beastes which are founde in the felde, and not brought home, shall the hable fall, and they shall dye. And as many as feared the worde of the Lord among the seruantes of Pharaoh, made their seruantes and their beastes flee into the houses: but he that regarded not the worde of the Lord, left his seruants.

E And the Lorde said vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande vnto heauen, that there maye be hayle in all the lande of Egypt: vpon man and vpon beastes and vpon all the herbes of the felde, thozowout plade of Egypt. And Moses stretched out his rod vnto heauen: and the Lorde thondred and hapled, and the fyre ran a longe vpon the groude. * And the Lorde so hapled in the lande of Egypt, y there was hayle and fyre mengled with the hayle, so greuous, and such as there was none thozowout all the lande of Egypt, sence people inhabited it. And y hayle smote thozowout all the lande of Egypt, all that was in the felde both mā and beast. And the hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and broke all the trees of the felde: onely in the lade of Gozan, where the chyldren of Israel were, was there no hayle. And Pharaos sent & called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto the: I haue nowe synned: the Lorde is ryghteous: and I and my people are vngodly. * Hape ye vnto the Lorde: for it is moch that there shulde be thonders of God & hayle. I will let you go, and ye shall tary no longer. Moses sayde vnto him: as sone as I am out of the cite, I will sprede abroad my handes vnto the Lorde, & the thoder shall cease. nether shall there be eny more hayle, y thou mayst knowe howe y the erth is the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruautes yet feare not the face of the Lorde God.

E And so the flaxe and the barley were smytten: for the barley was shot vp, and the flaxe was bouled: but the whete and the rye were not smytten: for they were late sowne.

And Moses went out of the cite from Pharaos and sprede abroad his handes vnto the Lorde: and the thonder and hayle ceased nether rayned it vpon the earth. And when Pharaos sawe that the rayne and the hayle and thonder were ceased, he synned agayne: and hardened his herte, he and his seruautes. And the hert of Pharaos was hardened: nether wolde he let the chyldren of Israel go, as the Lorde had sayde by the hande of Moses.

The .x. Chapter.

The hert of Pharaos is hardened of God. The grethoppers. The thicke darckenes.

E And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go in vnto Pharaos: for I haue hardened his herte and the herte of his seruautes, that I might put these my sygnes amongest them: and that thou tell in the audience of thy sonne, and of thy sonnes sonne, what thynges I haue done in Egypt, and the myracles which I haue done amongest them: y ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde. And so Moses and Aaron came vnto Pharaos, & sayd vnto him: Thus sayth the Lorde God of the Ebrues: howe longe shall it be oz y wylt submitte thy selfe vnto me? * Let my people go, y they maye serue me. Or els, * (y thou do rest:) and wylt not let my people go, behold, to morow will I bring grethoppers into thy coastes, & they shall couer the face of the earth, that it cannot be sene: and they shall eate the residue which remaineth vnto you, and is escaped fro the hayle: & they shall eate euery grene tree that beareth you frute in the felde, and they shall fyl thy houses, and all thy seruautes houses, and the houses of all the Egyptians after soche a manner as nether thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers haue sene, sence the time they were vpon the earth vnto this daye. And he turned him selfe aboute, and went out from Pharaos.

And Pharaos seruautes sayd vnto him: howe longe shall he be a slaunders vnto vs? Let the me go, that they maye serue y Lorde their God: knowest thou not yet y Egypt is destroyed? And Moses & Aarō were brought agayne vnto Pharaos, and he sayde vnto them: Go, and serue the Lorde poure God. Who are they that shall go? And Moses answered: we will go with oure ponge and with our olde: yee, and with our sonnes and with our daughters, and with our shepe, and with our oxen we must go. For we must holde a feaste vnto the Lorde.

And he sayde vnto them: let it be so. The Lorde be with you. When I let you go, and your chyldren also take hede, for ye haue some mischefe in hande. Hape, not so: but go they that are men, and serue the Lorde: for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharaos presence.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: stretch out thyne hande ouer the lande of Egypt for grethoppers, that they maye come vpon the lande of Egypt, and eate all the herbes of y lande, & all that the hayle left behynde. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer the lade of Egypt: & the Lorde brought an east winde vpon the lande, all that daye, and all that nyght. And in the morning, the east wynde brought the grethoppers, and the grethoppers went vp ouer all the lande of Egypt: and remayned in all quarters of Egypt very greuously. Before them were ther no such grethoppers, nether after them shalbe: for they couered all the face of the earth: so that the land was darke. And they dyd eate all the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees, and whatseuer the hayle had lefte: there was no grene thinge lefte in the trees and herbes of the felde thozowe all the lande of Egypt.

Therefore Pharaos called for Moses & Aarō in haste, & sayde: I haue synned agaynst y Lorde

ro. fr. f.

Lorde poure God & agaynst you. And nowe forgene me my sinne only this once: & pray vnto the Lorde your God, that he maye take awaye from me this deeth only. And Moses went out from Pharaos, and prayed vnto the Lorde: & the Lorde turned a myghty strong west winde, and it toke awaye y grethoppers and cast them into the reddy see: so that there was not one grethopper in all the coaste of Egypt. And the Lorde hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not lett the chyldren of Israel go.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: stretch out thy hande vnto heauen, that there maye be vpon the lande of Egypt darcknes, which maye be felt. And Moses stretched forth his hande vnto heauen, and there was a thicke darcknes vpon all the lande of Egypt thre dayes longe, no man sawe another, nether rose vp from the place where he was by the space of thre dayes: but all the chyldren of Israel had lyght where they dwelled.

And Pharaos called for Moses, & sayde: go, and serue the Lorde, only let poure shepe and poure oxen abyde, and let your chyldren go with you. And Moses sayde: thou must geue vs also offerings and burnt offerings for to sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God: our catell also shall go with vs, & there shall not one hofte be left behinde: for therof must we take to serue the Lorde oure God. Nether do we knowe what we shall offre vnto the Lorde, vntyll we come thither.

But the Lorde hardened Pharaos herte: and he wolde not let them go. And Pharaos sayde vnto him: get the fro me, and take hede to thy selfe, and se my face nomore. For whē fouer thou comest in my syght, thou shalt dye. And Moses laide: Let it be as thou hast sayde, I wylle se thy face nomore.

The .xi. Chapter.

The Lorde commaundeth to robbe the Egyptians. The deeth of all the fyrst begotten in Egypt.

E And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: yet wyl I bynge one plage more vpon Pharaos and vpon Egypt: and after that, he wyl let you go hence. And when he letteth you go, he shall vtterly drine you hence. Speake thou therfore in the eares of the people, that euery mā borowe of his neyghbour, and euery womā of her neyghbours, iewels of syluer and iewels of golde. And the Lorde shall gyue the people fauour in the syght of the Egyptians. Moreouer, * Moses was very great in the lande of Egypt, in the syght of Pharaos seruautes and in the syght of the people.

And Moses sayde: thus sayth the Lorde: * At mynighthe wyl I go out into the midde of Egypt, and all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypt shall dye, euen from the fyrst borne of Pharaos y sytteth on his seate, vnto the fyrst borne of the mayde seruaunte that is behynde the mylle, and all the fyrste gedred of the catell. And there shalbe a great crye thozowout all the lande of Egypt, such as there was neuer none lyke, nor shalbe.

But amonge the chyldren of Israel, shall not a dogge moue his tonge, nor yet man oz beast: y ye maye knowe howe y the Lorde, (by a great miracle) putteth a difference betwene the Egyptians and Israel. And these thy seruautes shall all come downe vnto me. And fall before me, and saye: gett the out and all the people that are vnder the, and then wyl I departe. And he went oute from Pharaos with an angry countenance.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Pharaos shall not heare you, y my wonders may be multiplyed in the lande of Egypt. And Moses and Aaron dyd all these wonders. (And tokens which are writen) before Pharaos. And the Lorde hardened Pharaos herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande.

The .xii. Chapter.

The pascouer is eaten. The swete brede. They must teache the chyldren what the pascouer signifieth. The destruction of the fyrst begotten in Egypt. The robbery of the Egyptians. The goynge oute of the Israelites.

E And y Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron in the lande of Egypt, sayinge: Thys monethe shalbe vnto you the beginning of monethes: and the fyrst moneth of the yeaere shall it be vnto you.

Speake ye vnto all the congregacyō of Israel, sayinge: In the .x. daye of thys moneth, euery man take vnto him a lambe, according to the house of the fathers, a labe thozowout euery house. If the household be to lytle, for the lambe, let hym take hym neyghboure which is nexte vnto his house, according to the nombze of the soules: euery one of you, according to his eating, shal make your counte for a lambe. And let y lambe of yours be wout blemys, a male of a yeaere olde, which ye shall take out from amonge the shepe, oz from amonge the goates.

And ye shall kepe him in vntyll the .xiiij. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shall kyl him about enē. And they shall take of the bloud, & strike it on the .ij. syde postes & on y vpper doorepost enē in the houses, where they shall eate hym. And they shall eate the fle: the same nyght: rost w fyre & w unleueded bread, & w sowe herbes they shall eate it. Se that ye eate not therof rawe ner soden in water, but roste w fier: the head, fete, & purtenaice therof. And ye shall let nothyng of it remayne vnto the morning. That which remayneth of it vntyll the morowe, shall ye burne with fyre.

Of this maner shall ye eate it: with your loynes

loynes gyrded, and your shooes on your fete, and your staves in your handes. And ye shall eate it in haste: for it is the Lordes pascouer: for I wyll passe thowowe the lande of Egypt this same nyght, and wyll smyte all the first borne in the land of Egypt, both of man and beast, and vpon all the goddes of Egypt will I the Lord do execution. And the bloude shall be vnto you a toke in y^e houses wherin ye are. And when I se the bloud, I will passe ouer you, and the plage shal not be vpon you to destroye you, when I smyte the lande of Egypte.

And this daye shall be vnto you a remembrance: and ye shall kepe it holy vnto the Lord, euen thowout youre generacions shall ye kepe it holy daie, that it be a custome for euer. *Seuen dayes shall ye eat unleuened bread: and the fyrste daye ye shall put awaye leuen out of youre houses. For whosoener eateth leuened bread from the fyrst daye vntill the seuenth daye, that soule shall be plucked out fro Israel. *The fyrste daye shall be an holy conuocation, and the seuenth daye shall be an holy conuocation vnto you. There shall be no maner of worcke done in them, save about that onely which every man must eate, that onely maye ye do. And ye shall obserue unleuened bread. For this same daye haue I brought your armyes out of the lande of Egypte, therfore ye shall obserue this daye, & all your chyldre after you, by a custome for euer. *The fyrst moneth and the .xiiij. daye of the moneth at euen, ye shall eate swete bread vnto the .xxj. daye of the moneth at euen agayne. Seuen dayes shall there be no leuened breade founde in youre houses. And whosoener eateth leuened bread, that soule shall be rote out from y^e multitude of Israel: whither he be a stranger or borne in the lande. Ye shall eate no thyng leuened: but in all your habitacions shall ye eate swete bread.

Moses called for the elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: chose out and take you to every household of you a shepe, and kyll it for pascouer. And take a bunche of yflope, & dyp it in the bloude that is in the basen, and stryke the vpper poste and the two syde postes with the bloud that is in the basen, and none of you go out at the doore of y^e house, vntill the mornynge. For the Lord will go about to smyte the Egyptians. And when he seeth the bloude vpon the vpper doore poste & on the two syde postes: he will passe ouer the doore, and will not suffer y^e destroyer to come into your house to plage you. Therfore shall ye obserue this thing, that it be an ordinaunce both to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when ye become into the land which the Lord wyll geue you, accordynge as he hath promysed, ye shall kepe thys seruyce.

*And when your chyldren aske you what maner of seruyce is this ye do, ye shall saye: it is the sacrifice of the Lordes pascouer, which passed ouer the houses of the children of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and saued oure houses. And the people bowed them selues, and worshipped: And the chyldren of Israel wote, and dyd as the Lord had commaunded Moses and Aaron. Euen so dyd they.

And at mydnight, the Lord smote all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, from the fyrst borne of Pharaos that satte on y^e seate, vnto the fyrst borne of the captyue y^e was in prison: and all the fyrste gender of catell. And Pharaos arose in the nyght, he and all his seruantes and all the Egyptians: and there was a greete cryng in Egypt: for there was no house where there was not one deere.

And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyght, saying: ryle vp, and get you oute from amonge my people: both ye and also the chyldre of Israel, and go and serue the Lord as ye haue sayde. And take youre shepe and your droues with you as ye haue sayde, and departe and *blesse me. And the Egyptians were fierce vpon the people, that they myght sende them out of the lande in haste: for they sayde: we dye all.

And the people toke their dowgh befoze it was sowred, and they vitayles bounde in clothes vpon theyr shoulers. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to the saying of Moses: and they borrowed of the Egyptians *icwelles of siluer, and icwelles of golde, and rayment. And the Lord gaue the people fauoure in the syght of the Egyptians: so that they graunted such thynges as they required. And they robbed the Egyptians. And the chyldren of Israel toke their iorneye from Rameses to Suchoth *syre hundred thousande men of fote, belyde chyldren. And moche comon people went also wth them, and shepe, and oxen, an exceedynge great flocke. And they baked swete cakes of y^e dowgh which they brought out of Egypt, for it was not sowred. For when they were thrust oute by the Egyptians, they coulde not tarye to prepare them selues any prouision of meate.

The dwellinge of the chyldren of Israel, which they dwelled in Egypte, was .iiij. hundred and .xxx. yeres: and when the .iiij. hundred and .xxx. yeres were expired, euen the selfe same daye departed all the hostes of the Lord out of the lande of Egypt. It is a nyght to be obserued to the Lord, in the which he brought them oute of the lande of Egypte. Thys is that nyght of the Lord which all the chyldren of Israel muste kepe thowout theyr generacions.

And

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: This is the lawe of pascouer: there shall no stranger eate therof. But every seruant that is bought for money (after that thou hast circumcised him) shall eate therof. A stranger and a hyerd seruant shall not eate therof. In one house shall it be eaten. Thou shalt carpe none of the fleshe oute at the house. *Neyther shall ye breake a bone therof. All the multitude shall obserue it.

If a stranger also dwell amonge you, & will holde pascouer vnto the Lord, let him circuncyse all that be males: and then lett him come and obserue it, and he shall be as one that is borne in the lande. For no vncircumcised persone shall eate therof. One maner of lawe shall be vnto him that is borne in the lande, and vnto the stranger that dwelleth amonge you. And all the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commaunded Moses and Aaron. Euen so dyd they. And y^e selfe same daye dyd the Lord bring the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypt with their armyes.

The .xiiij. Chapter.

The fyrst begotten must be sanctified vnto the Lord. The memoriall of theyr deliuerance. Why they were carped thowowe the wilderness. The bones of Joseph. The pyller of the cloude.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: *Sanctify vnto me all the first borne, that open all maner matrices amonge the chyldren of Israel as well of man as of beast: for it is myne. And Moses sayd vnto y^e people: thynke on this daye in which ye came out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage: for thowow a myghtye hande the Lord brought you out from thence. There shall no leuened bread be eaten. This daye come ye out in the moneth when corne be- ginneth to rype.

When the Lord hath brought the into the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Hittites & Jebusites: *which he swa- re vnto thy fathers that he wold geue the a lande wherin mylke & hony floweth, thou shalt kepe this seruyce in thys same moneth: Seuen dayes thou shalt eate swete bread: and in the .seueth daye, it is the feaste of the Lord. Swete bread shall be eaten .seuē daies: and ther shall no leuened bread be sene, nor yet leuen with the in all thy quarters.

And thou shalt shewe thy sonne in y^e daie saying: this is done, because of that which the Lord dyd vnto me, when I came out of Egypte. And it shall be a signe vnto the vpon thyne hande, and for a remembrance betwene thyne eyes, y^e the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouth. For *in a stronge hand the Lord brought the out of Egypt. Kepe therfore this ordynance in his reason fro yere to yere. And it will come to passe, that the Lord shall bring the into the lande of the Ca-

nanites, which he *swaie vnto the and to thy fathers: and shall geue it the. And then thou shalt appointe vnto the Lord all that openeth the matrixe. *And every cast thing, y^e fyrst doth op^e the matrixe of a beast which thou hast: yf they be males, they shall be the Lordes. And every fyrst gender of an asse, thou shalt redeme with a labe: yf thou redeme him not, thou shalt breake his neck. All the fyrst borne amonge thy chyldren also, shalt thou bye out.

And when thy sonne asketh y^e to morrowe, saying what is this, thou shalt saye vnto him: With a myghtye hande the Lord brought vs out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharaos was looth to let vs go, the Lord slewe all the first borne in the lande of Egypte: as well the fyrste borne of man as of beast. Therfore I sacrifice vnto the Lord all the males that op^e the matrixe, and all the fyrst borne of my chyldre I redeme. This shall be a token vpon thyne hande, and a remembrance betwene thyne eyes, y^e the Lord brought vs out of Egypte thowowe a myghtye hande.

It came to passe, that when Pharaos had lett the people go, God carped them not thowowe the waye and lande of the Philistines, which was the more nye waye. But God sayde: lest the people haply rep^et wha they se warre: & so turne agayne to Egypte. But God led the people about thowowe the waye of the wilderness of the redd see. And the chyldren of Israel went by harnessed out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses toke the bones of Joseph with him: for he made the chyldren of Israel swere, saying *God will surely viset you, and ye shall take my bones awaye hens with you. And they toke their iorneye from Suchoth: and abode in Etham in the edge of the wilderness. *And y^e Lord wente befoze them by daye in a pyller of a cloude to leade them the waye: and by nyght in a pyller of fyre to geue them lyght, y^e they might go both by daye and nyght. *The pyller of the cloude departed not by daye, nor the pyller of fyre by night out of y^e sight of the people.

The .xiiij. Chapter.

Pharaos heart is hardened and followeth the Israelites with all his host and captaynes, and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go thowowe the redd see.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Spake to the chyldren of Israel, that they turne and remayne befoze Pi Hicroth betwene Migdol and the see, oueragaynst *Baalzephon: and befoze that shall they pitch by the see. For Pharaos wyll saye of the chyldren of Israel: they are tangled in the lande, the wilderness hath shut the in. And I will harde Pharaos heart, that he shall folowe after you: and I will get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his host, the Egipcians also shall knowe that I am the Lorde. And they dyd euen so.

dij will

B And it was tolde the king of Egypt that the people fled. And the hert of Pharao and of his seruantes turned agaynst the people and they sayde: why haue we this done that we haue let Israel go out of our seruice? and he made ready his charrettes: and toke hys people with him and toke syre hundred chosen charrettes and all the charrettes of Egypt and capaynes vpon euery one of the. And the Lorde hardened the hert of Pharao kyng of Egypt, and he folowed after the chyldren of Israel. But the chyldren of Israel wente out with * an hye hande: and the Egipcians folowed after them, and all the hoxes and charrettes of Pharao and his hoxemen and his host ouertoke them abyding by the see, besyde Di hiroth befoze Baal zephon. And when Pharao drewe nie, the chyldren of Israel lyft vp their eyes and beholde, * Egipcians folowed after them, and they were sore atrapde: * and the chyldren of Israel cryed out vnto the Lorde.

But they sayde vnto Moses: because there were no graues in Egypt, hast thou therfore brought vs awaye for to dye in the wyl-dernes: wherfoze hast y serued vs thus, for to carpe vs out of Egypt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypt, saying: let vs be in rest, y we maye serue the Egipcians? For it had bene better for vs to haue serued the Egipcians then for to dye in the wilderness. And Moses sayde vnto the people: * feare ye not, stande styll, & beholde, howe the Lorde shall saue you this daie. For ye that haue sene the Egipcians this daie, shall se them nomore for euer. The Lorde shall fyght for you, and ye shall holde your peace.

D And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: wherfoze cryest thou vnto me? speake vnto y chyldren of Israel that they go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rodd, and stretche oute thy hande ouer the see, and deuide it a sonde, and let the chyldren of Israel go on drye grounde thozowe the myddest of the see. And behold, I will harden the hert of the Egipcians that they maye folowe them. And I wyll get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his host, and vpon his charrettes and vpon his hoxmen. And the Egipcians shall knowe that I am the Lorde when I haue gorten me honour vpon Pharao, vpon his charrettes and vpon his hoxmen.

And the angell of God which went before the host of Israel remoued, and beganne to go behynde them. And the clowden pillar that was before the face of them beganne to stonde behynde them, and came betwene the host of the Egipcians and the host of Israel. It was also a darcke clowde, and gane lyght by nyght: and all the nyght long the one came not at the other.

And Moses stretched forth hys hande ouer the see: and the Lorde caried awaye the see by a verpe stronge castle wynde all that nyght, and made the see drye lande, and the waters were deuyled. And the chyldren of Israel went into the myddest of the see vpon the drye grounde. And the waters were a walle vnto them, on their ryght hande, and on their lefte hande. And the Egipcians folowed and went in after them to the myddest of the see, euen all Pharaos hoxes, hys charrettes and his hoxemen. * And in the morning watch, the Lorde * looked vnto the host of the Egipcians out of the fyer and clowdy pyller: and troubled the host of the Egipcians, and toke of hys charret wheles & carped them awaye violently. So that the Egipcians sayde: Let vs fle from the face of Israel: for the Lorde fighteth for them agaynst the Egipcians. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: stretch out thyne hande ouer the see, that the waters maye come agayne vpon the Egipcian, vpon his charrettes and vpon his hoxemen.

And Moses stretched forth hys hande ouer the see, and it came agayne to his course rary in the morninge, and the Egipcians fledd agaynst it. And the * Lorde ouertrow the Egipcians in the myddest of the see: and the water returned and couered the charrettes and the hoxmen: and all the host of Pharao that came into the see after them, so that there remayned not one of the. But the chyldren of Israel walked vpon drye lande * thozowe the myddest of the see, and the waters were a walle vnto them on the ryght hande of the, and on the left. * Thus the Lorde deliuered Israel the selfe same daie out of the hande of the Egipcians: and Israel sawe the Egipcians deed vpon the see syde. And Israel sawe y myghtye power which the Lorde shewed vpon the Egipcians: * and the people feared the Lorde, and beleued the Lorde and his seruauit Moses.

The. xv. Chapter.

¶ Moses and the people with the women spunge at the prayer of Moses: the bitter waters were swete. God must be heard, they come to Elim.

When Moses & the chyldren of Israel sange this songe vnto y Lorde and sayde: * I wyll syng vnto the Lorde: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and him that rode vpon him hath he ouertrowne in y see. * The Lorde is my strength and prayle, and he is become my saluacion.

He is my God, and I wyll glorify hym: my fathers God, & I wyll exalte hym. The Lorde is a man of warre. The Lorde is hys name. Pharaos charrettes and his host hath he caste into the see. Hys chosen captaynes also also are drowned in the red see, the depe waters haue couered them: they soncke to y bottom as a stone. Thy ryght hande Lorde, is become glorious in power: thy ryght hande Lorde hath all to dashed the enemy. And in thy greate glory thou hast ouertrowne the that rose vp agaynst the: thou sentest forth thy wrath which consumed the euen as scobell. Thozowe the winde of thy nastreis the water gathered together, the floudes stode styll as an heape, and the depe water congeled together in the hert of the see.

B The enemye sayd: I wyll folowe on the: I will ouertake the, I will deuyle the spoy- le, I wyll satiffye my lust vpon the, I wyll drawe my sword, myne hande shall destrope them. Thou blewdest w thy wynde, the see couered the, they sancke as leed in the myghtye waters. Who is lyke vnto the, o Lorde, among goddes: who is lyke the so glorious in holynes, & fearfull in prayles, shewing wonders? Thou stretchedest out thy ryght hande, the erth swallowed them. Thou in thy merce hast carped thys people which thou deliueredst: & hast brought the in thy strenght vnto thy holy habitayn. The natiōs heard and were afrayed, sorowe came vpon y Philistines. When the dukes of the Edomites were amased, and the mightiest of the Moabites, tremblinge came vpon them: all the inhabiteurs of Canaan wared faynte harted. Lett feare and dreade fall vpon them in the greatnes of thyne arme, let them be as styll as a stone, tyll thy people passe thozowe, o Lorde, whyle thys people passe thozowe, which thou hast gotten. Thou walte byng them in, and plante them in the mountayne of thyne inheritaunce, the place, Lorde, which thou hast made for to dwell in, the sanctua- ry, o Lorde, which thy handes haue prepared. The Lorde shall raigne: euer and all waye. For Pharaos hoxe wet in w his charrettes and hoxemen into the see, & the Lorde brought the waters of the see vpon them. But the chyldren of Israel went on drye lād in the myddest of the see. And Mir Jam a prophetysse the syster of Aaron toke a tym- bzell in her hande, & all the women came out after her w tymbzels & daunces. And Mir Jam sange befoze the: * Syng ye vnto the Lorde: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse & his ryder hath he ouertrowne in the see. And so Moses brought Israel from the redd see, & they went out into the wilderness of Sur. And they wet thre dayes longe in y wilderness, and founde no waters. And whā they came to Mara, they coule not drinke of the waters of Mara: for they were biter: therfoze the name of the place was cal- led, Mara, * (that is to saye bitternes.) And the people murmured agaynst Moses, sayinge: what shall we drinke? * And he cried vnto

the Lorde: and the Lorde shewed hym a tree, which when he had cast into the water, the waters were made swete.

There he made them an ordinaunce and a lawe, and there he proued him, & sayde: If y wylt herken * vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, and wylt do y which is right in his sight, and wylt geue eare vnto his comaun- dementes, & kepe all hys ordinaunces: then wyll I put none of these diseases vpon the which I brought vpon the Egipcians: for I am the Lorde that healeth the.

The. xv. Chapter.

¶ The Israelites come into the desert of Sin. It capeth quailles and manna. They grudge.

When the chyldren of Israel came to Elim where were. xii. welles of water and. lxx. palme trees, and they abode there by the waters. And they toke their iorney from Elim: & all the hole cōpany of the chyldren of Israel came to the wilderness of Sin, which is betwene Elim and Synai: the. xv. day of the. ii. moneth after their departyng out of y lande of Egypt. And y hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel * murmured agaynst Mo- ses and Aaro in the wyldernes: and the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto the: wolde to God we had died by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypte, when we sat by the fleshe- pottes, and when we dyd eate bread our be- lyes full: for ye haue brought vs out into this wilderness, to kyl thys hole multitude with hongre.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto Moses: be- hold, I wyll rayne * bread fro heauē to you, and the people shall go out, and gather daye by daye that I may proue the, whether they will walke in my lawe or no. The. vi. daye they shal prepare for the selues y which they wyl byng in, and let it be twise as moch as they gather in dayly. And Moses & Aaron sayde vnto all the chyldren of Israel: at euen ye shall knowe that it is the Lorde, which brought you out of the lande of Egypt: and in the morning, ye shall see the glory of y Lorde: because he hath heard your grudging agaynst the Lorde. And what are we y ye haue murmured agaynst vs? And Moses sayde: At euen shall y Lorde * geue you flesh to eate, and in the morninge bread ynough: for the

for the Lorde hath heard your murmurings which ye murmur agaynst hi: for what are we? your murmurings are not agaynst vs, but agaynst the Lorde.

And Moses spake vnto Aaron: Saye vnto all the company of the children of Israel, come forth before the Lorde: for he hath heard your grudginges. And as Aaron spake vnto the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel, they looked toward the wilderness: and beholde, the glorie of the Lorde appeared in the cloude. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: I haue heard the murmurynge of the chyldren of Israel, tell them therfore and saye: at euen ye shall eate flesh, and in the morning ye shall be fylled with bread, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God.

And at euen the quaples came and covered the grounde where they laye. And in the morninge, the dewe laye rounde about the hooste. And when the dewe was falle: beholde it laye vpon the grounde in the wilderness, small & round and thyn as the hoze frost on the grounde. And when the chyldren of Israel sawe it, they sayde euery one to hys neyghboure: It is manna. For they wist not what it was. And Moses sayde vnto the: this is the bread which the Lorde hath geue you to eate. This is the worde which the Lorde hath commaunded: gather of it euery man for him self to eate: a gomer full for a man according to the nombre of you, and take euery man for them which are in his tente.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd euen so, & gathered some more, some lesse, and when they dyd mete it with a gomer, vnto hym that had gathered moche, remayned nothing ouer, and vnto him y had gathered litle, was there no lacke: euery man gathered sufficient for his catynge. And Moses sayde vnto the: Se that no man let ought remayne of it tyll the moornyng. Notwithstondyng they hardened not vnto Moses: but some of the lefte of it vntill the moornyng, and it waxed full of wormes and sticke, and Moses was angry with them.

And they gathered it all moorninges, euery man for hys catynge. And as soone as the heate of the sunne came, it moulte. And the sixte day, they gathered twise so moche breed two gomers for one man: & all the rulers of the multitude came, & tolde Moses. He sayd vnto the: this is that which the Lorde hath sayde: tomorrow is the rest of the holy Sabbath vnto the Lorde: bake that which ye will bake, and seth that ye will seth, and y which remayneth, laye vntill the moornyng. And they layde it vntill the moornyng, as Moses bad: and it stanke not, neither breed there any worme therein. And Moses sayde: that eate this daye: for it is the Sabbath vnto the Lorde: todaye ye shall not fynde it in the felde. Syre dayes ye shall gather it, and in the seuenth daye which is the Sabbath, there shall be none. Notwithstondyng, there went out some of the people in the seuenth daye for to gather, & they founde none. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: howe longe refuse ye to kepe my commaundmentes and my lawes? Se, the Lorde hath geuen you a Sabbath, therfore he geueth you the syrte daye bread for two dayes. Wyde therfore euery man at home & lett no man go out of hys place the seuenth daye. And y people rested the seuenth daye. And y house of Israel called it Manna.

And it was lyke vnto coriander seede, whyte: and the taste of it was lyke vnto wafers made with hony. And Moses sayd: this is that which the Lorde commaundeth, fyll a gomer of it, which maye be kept for your chyldren after you: that they maye se y bread wherwith I haue fedd you in wilderness, wher I brought you out of y lande of Egypt. And Moses spake vnto Aaron: take a cruze and put a gomer full of Manna therein, and laye it vp before the Lorde to be kepte for y chyldren after you, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. So Aaron layde it vp before y testimonye to be kept. And the chyldren of Israel dyd eate Manna fourte ycare, vntill they came vnto a lande inhabited. And so they dyd eate Manna euen vntill they came vnto the borders of the land of Canaan. A gomer is the tenth part of an epha.

The xvij. Chapter.

The Israelites come into Raphidim. They grudge. Water is geuen the out of the rocke. Moses holdech by his hādes: & they overcome the Amalechites.

And all the company of the chyldren of Israel thozowout their armies went from the wilderness of Sin after the commaundment of the Lorde, and pyched in Raphidim: where was no water for the people to drinke. And the people chode with Moses, and sayde: geue vs water to drinke. Moses sayde vnto them: why chydye ye with me? wherfore do ye tempte the Lorde? There the people thirsted for water, and the people murmured agaynst Moses, & sayde: wherfore hast thou thus brought vs oute of Egypte: to kyll vs and oure chyldren and catell with thyrste?

And Moses cryed vnto the Lorde, saying: what shall I do vnto this people? they be almost ready to stone me. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go before the people, and take w the of the elders of Israel, & thy rod wherwith y smotest the ryuer, take in thyn hande, and go. Beholde, I stonde before y besyde a rocke that is in Horeb: & thou shalt smyte the rocke, and there shall come water out therof, that the people maye drynke.

And Moses dyd eue so before the eyes of the elders of Israel. And he called y name of the

* Tentacion. i. Sierpe.

of the place: Mass: and Meriba. because of the chydynge of the chyldren of Israel, and because they tempted the Lorde, sayynge: is y Lorde amonge vs or not?

Then came Amalech and fought with Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayde vnto Josua: chole vs oute men, and goo fyghte with Amalech. And tomorrow I will stonde on the toppe of the hyll, and the rodd of God shall be in my hande. Josua did as Moses bad hym, & foughte with Amalech. And Moses, and Aaron, & Hur went vp to the toppe of the hyll. And it happened, that wher Moses helde vp his hande, Israel had the better. And when he late hys hande downe, Amalech had the better.

But Moses handes were heuye, and therfore they toke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he satt downe there on. And Aaron and Hur stayed vp by his handes, the one on the one syde and the other on the other syde. And hys handes remayned stedy vntill the goynge downe of the sonne. And Josua discomfeted Amalech and hys people, with the edge of the swerde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: writte this for a remembraunce in a booke, and comite it vnto the cares of Josua, for I will utterly put out the remembraunce of Amalech from vnder heauen. And Moses made an alter and called the name of it. The Lorde is he that worketh myracles for me. For he sayde: the hāde is on the seate of God the Lorde wyll haue warre with Amalech from generacyon to generacyon.

The xviii. Chapter.

Jethros counsell is receaued of Moses.

Jethro the prest of Midiam Moses father in lawe herde of all that God had done for Moses and for Israel hys people, and that the Lorde had broughte Israel out of Egypte. Therfore he toke ziphora Moses wyfe, (After he had sente her backe) and hys two sonnes, of which the one was called Gerson, for he sayd: I haue bene an alient in a straunge lande. The name of the other was Eliezar: for the God of my father (sayde he) was myne helpe, and deliuered me fro the swerde of Pharaos. And Jethro Moses father in lawe came with his two sonnes & his wyfe vnto Moses into the wilderness: where he abode by the mount of God. And he sayde vnto Moses: Thy father in lawe Jethro am come to the, and thy wyfe also and hys two sonnes with her. And Moses went out to mete hys father in lawe and dyd obeysaunce and kysed hym and eache asked other of hys health, and they came into the tent. And Moses tolde hys father in lawe all that the Lorde had done vnto Pharaos and to the Egyptians for Israels sake, and all the trauayle that had happened them by the waye, and howe the Lorde deliuered them. And Jethro reioysed ouer all the goodnesse whiche the Lorde had done to Israel, and because he had deliuered them out of the hande of the Egyptians. And Jethro sayde: blessed be the Lorde whiche hath deliuered you oute of the hande of the Egyptians and oute of the hande of Pharaos, which hath also deliuered hys people from the captyuite of the Egyptians. Nowe I knowe that the Lorde is greater then all goddes, for in the thynge wherby they dealt cruelly wyth them, are they them selues pershyed. And Jethro Moses father in lawe offred burnt-offerynges and sacrificys vnto God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eate breade wyth Moses father in lawe before God.

And it chaunced on the morow, that Moses satt to iudge the people, and the people stode aboute Moses from moornyng vnto euen. And wher Moses father in lawe sawe all that he did vnto the people, he sayd: what is this that thou doest vnto the people: why syttest thou thy selfe alone, and all the people stonde aboute the from moornyng vnto euen? And Moses sayde vnto hys father in lawe: because the people come vnto me to seke counsell of God. When they haue a matter, they come vnto me, and I iudge betwene euery man and hys neyghboure, and shewe them the ordynaunces of God and hys lawes.

And Moses father in lawe sayd vnto him: it is not well that thou doest. Thou both weryest thy selfe, and this people that is w the: for this thynge is of more weyght, then thou art able to perfourme thy selfe alone. I haue nowe therfore my voyce, and I wyll geue the counsell, and God shall be wyth the. We thou vnto the people to Godwarde, that thou mapest bynne the causes vnto God, and thou shalt teache them ordynaunces and lawes, and shewe them the waye wher in they must walke, and the worke that they must doo. Mozoouer thou shalt sette oute amonge all the people, men of actiuite, and such as feare God: true men, hatynge couetousnes: and make them heedes ouer the people,

And euery bringe vnto the, but let them iudge all small causes them selues, and so shall it be easer for thy selfe, and they shall bere with the. If thou shalt do thys thinge, (and God charge the with all) thou shalt be able to endure, and yet the people shall come to thy place in peace.

And so Moses obeyed the voyce of his father in lawe, and did all that he had sayde, and chose actyue men out of all Israel and made them as herdes ouer the people: namely, captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie and ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, but broughte harde causes vnto Moses: and iudged all small matters them selues. And Moses let his father in lawe departe, and he went in to his awne lande.

The xix. Chapter.

The chyldren of Israel come to the mounte Synay. The people of God are holpe & a royall presthode. He that toucheth the hill dyeth. God appeareth vnto Moses vpon the mounte in thonder & lychtenynge.

In the thyrde moneth, whā the chyldren of Israel were gone oute of the lande of Egypt, the same daye came they into the wyldernesse of Synay. * For they were departed from Raphidim, and were come to the deserte of Synay, and had pitched theyr tentes in the wyldernesse. And there Israel abode before the mounte. * But Moses went vp vnto God. And the Lorde called to hym out of the mountayne, sayinge: thus shalt thou saye vnto the house of Jacob, and tell the chyldren of Israel: ye haue sene what I dyd vnto the Egyptians, and toke you vp vpon Eagles wynges, & haue brought you vnto my selfe. Nowe therfore * pfe ye wyl heare my voyce in dede, and kepe myne appoyntement: ye shall be myne awne, aboue all nacpons, for all the erth is myne. Ye shall be vnto me also a kyngdome of * preastes and an holy people: and these are the wordes which thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel.

Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and layde before theyr faces all these wordes which the Lorde commaunded hym. And the people answered all to gether, and sayde: * All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyl doo. And Moses brought the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I come vnto the in a thicke cloud, & the people maye heare me talkynge with the, and beleue the for euer. Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye, and to morowe, and let them wash theyr clothes: & be redy agaynst the thyrde daye. For the thyrde daye the Lorde wyl come downe in the syght of all the people vpon mounte Synay. And thou shalt set markes rounde aboute the people and saye: beware, that ye go not vp into the mounte, or touche the bordre of it. Whosoever toucheth the * mounte, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touch it: els he shall be stoned or shot thowowe: whether it be beaste or man, it shall not lyue: when the trompe bloweth longe, than maye they come vp into the mountayne.

And Moses went downe from the mounte vnto the people, and sanctified them, and they washed theyr clothes: And he sayd vnto the people: be redy agaynst the thyrde daye, and come not at youre wyues. And the thyrde daye in the moynynge there was thunder, and lychtenynge, and a thicke clowde vpon the mounte, and the voyce of the trompe excedynge lowde, so that all the people that was in the hyste was afayed. And Moses brought the people oute of the tentes to mete with God, and they * stode vnder the hyll.

And mounte Synay was all to gether on a smoke: because the Lorde descended downe vpon it in fyre. And the smoke thereof ascended vp, as the smoke of a kele, and all the mount was excedynge fearfull. And whan the voyce of the trompe blew and waxed lowder and lowder Moses spake, & God answered hi by a voyce: And the Lorde came downe vpon mounte Synay, euen in the toppe of the hyll, and whan the Lorde called Moses vp into the toppe of the hyll. Moses went vp.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go downe: charge the people, that they prease not vp to se the Lorde, and so many of them perishe. And let the prestes also whych come to the Lorde sanctifye them selues, lest the Lorde destroye them. And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: the people cannot come vp in to the mounte Synay, for thou chargedest vs sayng: set markes aboute the hyll, and sanctifie it: And the Lorde sayde vnto him: awake, and get the downe: and thou shalt come vp, thou and Aaron with the. But let not the

not the prestes and the people presume for to come vp vnto the Lorde: lest he destroye the. And so Moses went downe vnto the people and tolde them.

And God spake all these wordes and sayde: I am the Lorde thy God, which haue * brought the out of the lande of Egypt, oute of the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my syght.

* Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage, nether any symilitude that is in heauen aboue, ether in the erth beneath, or in the waters vnder the erth. * Thou shalt not worshyppe them, nether serue them: for I the Lorde thy God, am a zelouse God, and byset synne of the fathers vpon the chyldren vnto the thyrde and fourth generacyon of the that hate me: and the we merce vnto thousandes in them that loue me and kepe my commaundementes.

* Thou shalt not * take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne, for the Lorde wyl not holde him gylelesse that taketh his name in vayne. * Remembre the Sabbath daye that thou sanctifye it. Sixe dayes shalt thou labour and do all that thou hast to do: but the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of the Lorde thy God, in it thou shalt do no maner of worke, thou and thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy man seruaunte and thy mayde seruaunte, thy catell and the straunger that is within thy gates. For in syxe dayes the Lorde made heauen and erth, the see and all that in them is, and * rested the seuenth daye: wherfore the Lorde blessed the Sabbath daye and halowed it. * Honour thy father & thy mother, that thy dayes maye be longe in the lade which the Lorde thy God geueth the.

* Thou shalt not kyll. * Thou shalt not breake wedlocke. * Thou shalt not steale. * Thou shalt not bere false witnesse agēst thy neyghboure.

* Thou shalt not couet * thy neyghbours house: nether shalt thou couet thy neyghbours wyfe, or his man seruaunte, or his mayde, or his oxe, or his asse, or what locuer thy neyghboure hath.

And all the people sawe the thunder and the lychtenynge, and the noyse of the trompe, and the mountayne smokyng, and whē the people sawe it, they remoued and stode a farr of, and sayde vnto Moses: * talke thou with vs, and we wyl heare: but let not God talke with vs, lest we dye. And Moses sayde vnto the people: feare not, for God is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be in youre face, that ye synne not.

And the people stode a farr of, and Moses went into the thicke clowde where God was. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: thus thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel. Ye haue sene that I haue talked with you from oute of heauen. Ye shall not make therfore with me goddes of syluer nether shall ye make you goddes of golde. * An alter of erth thou shalt make vnto me, and thereon offer thy burntofferynge and thy peace offerynge, thy shepe and thyne oxen. In all places where I shall put the remembraunce of my name I thither I wyl come vnto the and blesse the. And if thou wylt make me an alter of stone, let thou make it not of hewen stone. Els if thou lyfte vp thy tole vpon it, thou hast poluted it. Reftber shalt thou goo vpon by stepes vnto myne alter, that thy selfe shall be not shewed there on.

The xxi. Chapter.

Temporall and cyuile ordinaunces.

These are the lawes whyche thou shalt set before them. If thou bye a seruaunte that is an hebreue, syre yeres he shall serue, and in the seuenth he shall goo out fre payinge nothyng. If he came alone, he shall goo out alone. And if he came married, his wyfe shall goo oute with hym: And if his master haue geuen hym a wyfe and she haue borne hym sonnes or daughters: then the wyfe and hyr chyldren shall be his masters and he shall goo oute alone. And if the seruaunte saye: I loue my master, my wyfe and my chyldren, I wyl not goo oute fre. His master shall bynge hym vnto the iudges, and sett hym to the doore or the doorepost and his master shall boze his eare thowowe with a nawle, and he shall be his seruaunte for euer.

And if a man sell his daughter to be a seruaunte: she shall not goo oute as the men seruautes doo. If she also please not hyr master, and he geueth her to noman to wyfe, then shall he let hyr go fre: to sell her vnto a strange nacpon shall he haue no power, seinge he despyled her. If he haue promysed her vnto his sonne to wyfe, he shall deale with her as men do with theyr daughters. And if he take hym another wyfe, yet hyr fode, hyr rayment and dutie of mariage shall be not mynished. And if he do not these thre vnto her, then shall she goo out fre and paye no money. * He that synneth a man that he dye, shall be slayne for it. If a man laye not awayte but God delpue hym into his hande, then I wyl poynte the a place whether he shall fle. If a man come presumptuously vpon his neyghboure to see him with gyle, thou shalt take him from myne * alter that he dye.

dye. He that smyteth hys father or hys mother, let hym be slayne for it.

* Deut. xxi. b.

* He that stealeth a man and selleth him (yf it be proued vpon hym) shall be slayne for it.

* Leuit. xx. b. * Deuter. xv. c. * Math. xii. b.

* And he that curseth hys father or mother, shall be put to death for it. If men stryue together & one smyte another with a stone or with hys fyfte, and he dye not, but lyeth in bedde: yf he crye agayne and walke without vpon hys staffe, then shall he that smote him go quyte: saue onely he shall bere hys charges for letyng hys tyme, and shall paye for hys healyng.

And yf a man smyte hys seruaunte or his mayde with a rodd, and they dye vnder hys hande, it shall be auenged in dede. And yf they continue a daye or two, it shall not be auenged, for they are hys money. Yf men stryue & hurte a woman with chylde, so that hys frute departe from her, and yet no misfortune foloweth: then shall he be merced, accordynge as the womans husband wyll laye to his charge, and he shall paye as the dayes men appoynte hym. * And yf any misfortune folowe, then shall he paye lyfe for lyfe & eye for eye, toth for toth, hande for hande, fote for fote, burning for burninge, wounde for wounde, strype for strype.

And yf a man smyte hys seruaunte or his mayde in the eye that it perperhe, he shall lett the goo fre for the eyes sake. Also yf he smyte oute hys seruautes or hys maydestoth, he shall let them go oute fre for the tothes sake. If an ore goze a man or a woman that they dye, then the ore shall be stoned, and hys fleshe shall not be eaten: but the owner of the ore shall go quyte.

If the ore were wont to pulshe in tyme past, and it hath bene told hys master: and he hath not kept hym, but that he hath kylled a man or a woman: then the ore shall be stoned and hys owner shall dye also. If there be sett to hym a summe of money, then he shall geue for the delyueraunce of hys lyfe, whatsoeuer is put vnto hym. And whether he hath gozed a sonne or hurte a daughter, he shall be serued after the same maner. But yf it be a seruaunt or a mayde that the ore hath gozed, then he shall geue vnto theyr master. xxx. sheles, and the ore shall be stoned.

If a man open a well or dygge a pytt and couer it not, and an ore or an alle fall therein, the owner of the pytt shall make it good, and geue money vnto theyr master, and the dead beast shall be hys.

If one mans ore hurte another that he dye: then they shall sell the lyue ore and deuyde the money, and the deed ore also they shall deuyde. Yf it be knowe that the ore hath used to pulshe in tymes past, and hys master hath not kepte him, he shall paye ore for ore, and the deed shall be his awne.

The. xxi. Chapter.

These lyke lawes as are in the chapter above.

If a man * steale an ore or shepe, and kille it or selle it, he shall re- * Deut. xxi. b. store fyue oxen for an ore, and * foure shepe for a shepe. If a the- * it. xxv. fe be founde breakynge vp and be- * rif. b. smytten that he dye, there shall no bloude be shed for hym: but yf the sonne be vp when he is founde, then there shall be bloude shed for hym.

These shall make restitution: If he haue not wherewith, he shall be solde for his thefte. If the thefte be founde in hys hande alyue (whether it be ore, alle or shepe) he shall restore double. If a man do hurte felde or vineyarde, and put in hys beast to fede in another mans felde: of the best of his owne felde, and of the best of hys awne vineyarde, shall he make restitution.

If fyre breake out and cathe in the thornes, and the stacks of cozne, or the stonbynge cozne, or felde be consumed therewith: he kyndled the fyre shall make restitution. If a man delyuer hys neyghboure money or stuffe to kepe, and it be stolen out of hys house. If the thefte be founde, let hym paye double. And yf the thefte be not founde, then the goodma of the house shall be brought vnto the iudges. * (And shall sweare.) Whether he haue put hys hande vnto hys neyghbours good.

And in all maner of trespass, whether it be for oxen, alle, shepe, rayment or any maner of lost thyng which another chalenge to be hys, the cause of both parties shall come before the iudges. And whom the iudges condemne: let hym paye double vnto his neyghboure.

If a man delyuer vnto hys neyghboure to kepe, alle, ore, shepe or whatsoeuer beast it be, and it dye or be hurte or taken awaye (and no man se it:) then shall an othe of the Lorde be betwene them, that he hath not put hys hande vnto hys neyghbours good, and the owner of it shall take the othe, and the other shall not make it good. And yf it be stollen from hym, then he shall make restitution vnto the owner therof: If it be torne with wyld beasts, then let hym byngge recorde of the tearynge: and he shall not make it good. And yf a man borrowe oughte of hys neyghboure, and it be hurte or els dye, and the owner therof be not by, he shall make it good. But yf the owner therof be by, he shall not make it good: namely, yf it be an hyzed thyng, and came for hys hyze.

But shall cast it to dogges.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Here I set no some, because I wolde all men shoulde reade the chapter thowowe ouer, and the two that are nexte before also.

Thou shalt not accept a bayne tale, nether shalt put thy hande with the wyked to be an vnyghteous witnesse. Thou shalt not folowe a multitude to do euell: nether answer in a matter of plee that thou woldest (to folowe many) turne asyde from the truth, * nether shalt thou paynte a poore mans cause.

* Deut. xxi. b. * Deut. xxi. b.

If thou mete thyne enemies ore or alle gorynge astraye, thou shalt byngge them to hym agayne. * If thou se thyne enemies alle synke vnder his burthen, thou shalt not passe by and let hym alone: but shalt helpe hym to lyfte hym vp agayne.

* Deut. xxi. b. * Deut. xxi. b.

Thou shalt not byndre the ryghte of thy poore, in theyr sute.

* Deut. xxi. b. * Deut. xxi. b.

Kepe the ferre from a false mater, * and Innocent & ryghteous se thou slep not, for I will not iustifye the wyked. * Thou shalt take no gyftes, for gyftes blynde the seynge, and peruerthe the wordes of the ryghteous.

Thou shalt not oppresse a stranger, for ye knowe the herte of a stranger, seinge ye were strangers in the londe of Egypte.

* Syre peres thou shalt sowe thy lande, and gather in the frutes therof: and the seuenth yere thou shalt let it rest and lye still, that the poore of thy people maye eate: & what they leaue, the beastes of the felde shall eate. In lyke maner thou shalt do also with thy vineyarde and thyne olyuetrees.

* Syre dayes thou shalt do thy worcke, and in the seuenth daye thou shalt rest, that thyne ore and thyne alle maye rest, and the sonne of thy mayde and the stranger maye be refreshed. In all thynges that I haue sayde vnto you, be circumspecte. And make no rehersall of the names of strange goddes: nether let it be heard out of thy month.

Thre feastes thou shalt holde vnto me in a yere. * Thou shalt kepe the feaste of sweete bread, that thou eate vnto me bread seuen dayes longe as I commaunded the, in the tyme of the moneth whan cozne beginneth to ripe, for in that moneth ye came oute of Egypte: * and se that no man appeare before me emptye. And the feaste of heruest, when thou reapest thy frutes of thy laboures, which thou hast sowne in the felde. And the feaste of ingatherynge, which is in the ende of the yere: when thou hast gathered in thy laboures out of the felde.

Thre tymes in a yere shall all thy men chyldeyn appeare before the Lord God.

Thou shalt not offer the bloude of my sacrifice vpon leuened bread: nether shall the fatt of my feast remayne vntill the morninge. * The fyrst of the fyrst frutes of thy lande thou shalt byngge into the house of the Lord thy God: * thou shalt also not sech a kydd in hys mothers mylke.

Beholde, I sende an Angell before the, to kepe the in the waye, and to byngge the into the place which I haue prepared. Beware of hym, and heare his voyce, and resyst hym not: for he wyll not spare youre myldebes & my name is in hym. But and yf thou shalt hearken vnto his voyce, & do all that I speake, I wyll be an enemye vnto thyne enemies, and an aduersarye vnto thyne aduersaryes.

For myne * Angell shall go before the, and byngge the in vnto the Amorites, and the Hittites, & the Jebusites, and the Canaanites, Hittites, & Jebusites, and I shall destroye them.

Thou shalt not worshyppe theyr * goddes, nether serue them, nether do after the workes of them: but ouerthrowe them, and breake downe the ymages of them. And ye shall serue the * Lord youre God, and he shall blesse thy bread & thy water, and I will take all synnesse awaye from the myddes of the.

There

There shall be no woman childlesse or un-fruitfull in thy lande: the nōbre of thy dayes wyl I fulfill. I wyl sende my feare before the, and wyl trouble all the people whether thou shalt go. And I will make all thine enemies turne theyr backs vnto þ, and I wyl
sende hornettes before the, which shall dꝛyue out the Hēuites, the Cananites, and the He-thites before þ. Neuertheles I wyl not cast them out in one yere, lest the lande growe to a wyldernes: and the bestes of the felde multiply agaynst the. By lytle and lytle I will dꝛyue them out before the, vntill thou be increased, & inheret the lande. And I wyl make thy costes from the reddy see vnto the see of the Philistines, and from the deserte vnto the ryuer. For I wyl deliuer the inhabiters of the lande into thyne hande, and thou shalt dꝛyue the out before the. * Thou shalt make none appoyntment with them, nor with theyr goddes. Nether let the dwell in thy lande, lest they make the synne against me: for yf thou serue theyr goddes, it wyl be thy decaye.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Moses ascendeth vnto the mount and wryteth the wordes of the Lorde. The bloude of the couenānt.
The elders of Israel iudge the people.

And he sayde vnto Moses: come vp vnto the Lorde: thou & Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the
lxx. elders of Israel, and ye shal woꝛshyppe a farre of. And Moses hym selfe alone shall go vnto the Lorde,
but they shall not come nye, nether shall the people go vp with hym. And Moses came, & tolde the people * all the wordes of the Lorde
and all the lawes. And all the people answered with one voyce, and sayde: all the wordes
whiche the Lorde hath sayde, wyl wee doo.
And Moses wrote all the wordes of þ Lorde.
de, & rose vpe early, and let vpan * an alter vnder
the hyll, & xii. stones according to the xii.
tribes of Israel, and sent yonge men of the chyldren of Israel, which brought burnt-offerynges, and offred peace offeringes of oxen vnto the Lorde. And Moses toke halfe of the bloude, and put it in basens, & the other halfe
he sprenkeld on the alter.

And he toke the boke of the appoyntment and reddy it in the audience of the people. And they sayd. All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyl do and be obedynt. And Moses toke
the * bloude, and sprenkeld it on the people and sayde, beholde þ this is the bloude of the appoyntment, which the Lorde hath made with you vpon all these wordes.

Then went Moses and Aaron, Nadab
and Abihu and þ lxx. elders of Israel vpe,
and sawe the God of Israel, and there was vnder hys fete, as it were a worke of a Sapphir stone, and as it were the heauē whe

it is cleare, and þ vps þ nobles of the chyldren of Israel he sett not his hand. And they sawe God and dyd eate and dꝛyncke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses:
come vp to me into the hyll, and be there, and I wyl geue the tables of stone, and a lawe
and commaundmentes, which I haue writte that thou mayest teach them. And Moses rose vpe & hys minister Jehosua, & Moses went vpe into þ hyll of God, and sayde vn-
to the elders: tarye ye here vntill we come agayne vnto you. Beholde, here is Aaron & hur with you. If any man haue any matters to do, let hym come to them. And Moses went vp into the mounte, and a clowde couered the hyll, and the glorie of the Lorde abode vpon mounte Synay, and the clowde couered it. vi. dayes. And the seuenth daye he called vnto Moses out of the clow-
de. And the facyon of the glorie of the Lorde was lyke consumynge fyre on the toppe of the hyll in the syghte of the chyldren of Israel.
And Moses went into the clowde, and got him vp into the mountayne. And Moses was in the * mount. xl. dayes and xl. nyghtes. * ex. xxxiii.

The. xlv. Chapter.

The Lorde sheweth Moses the facyon of the holy place and the thynges pertainynge thereto.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel that they byynge me an heue offe-rynge: of euery man that geueth it wyllyn-gly with hys herte, ye shall take it. * This is the heue offrynge which ye shall take of the golde and syluer and brasse: yelow spylke,
purple, scarlet, white spylke, and gootes here
rams skynnes that are reddy, and the skynnes
of taxus and sethim wodd, oyle for lyghte,
spices for anopntynge oyle, and for swete ce-
se. Onix stones and stones to be sett in the ephod and in the brest lappe.

And let them make me a sanctuarie (that I may dwell amonge the.) And accordinge to all that I shewe the both after the facyon
of the habitacyon, and after the facyon of all the ornamentes therof, euen so shall ye make
it. And they shall make an * arke of sethim wood. ii. cubytes and an halfe longe, a cubite
and an halfe broade and a cubyte & an halfe
hye. And thou shalt overlape it with pure golde

golde, within and without shalt thou ouerley it, and shalt make an hye vps it a crow-ne of golde rounde aboute. And thou shalt cast foure rynges of gold for it, and put them
in the foure corners therof. ii. rynges shalbe in the one syde of it, and ii. in the other. And thou shalt make barres of sethim wood, and couer them with golde, and put the barres
in the ringes alonge by the sydes of the arke, to bere it with all. And the barres shall be in the rynges of the arke, and shall not be taken awaye from it. And thou shalt put in the attie, the witnesse which I shall geue the.

And thou shalt make a mercyscate of pure golde. ii. cubytes and an halfe longe and a cubite & a halfe brode. And thou shalt make
ii. cherubins of golde: Euen of a whole worke shalt thou make them in the two endes of the mercyscate: and the one cherub shalt thou make on the one ende, and the other on the other ende. Eue of the same mercyscate shall ye make Cherubins in the two endes therof.
And the Cherubins shall stretch theyr wyngges abroad ouer an hye, coueringe the mercyscate with theyr wynges, and theyr faces shall loke one to another: euen to the mercyscate warde, shall the faces of the cherubins
be. And thou shalt put þ * mercyscate aboue vpon the arke, and in the arke thou shalt put the witnesse which I wyl geue the.

And from thence I wyl testifie vnto
the and wyl comon with the from vpon the mercyscate: from betwene the two Cheru-bins which are vpon the arke of witnesse, of all thyng which I wyl geue the in commaun-dement vnto the chyldren of Israel.

* Thou shalt also make a table of sethim
wodd of two cubytes longe, and one cubytt brode, and a cubytt and an halfe hye. And thou shalt couer it with pure golde, and make there to a crowne of golde rounde aboute.
And make vnto that an whope of foure syn-gers brode, rounde aboute. And make a golden crowne also to the whope rounde aboute. And make for it foure rynges of gold, and put the rynges in the corners that are on the foure fete therof: eue ouer against the whope
shall the rynges be, to put in barres, to bere
the table with all. And thou shalt make the barres of sethim wodd, and overlape them with gold, that the table maye be borne with them. And thou shalt make hys dishes, and spones, flatpices, and pottes to powre oute withall: Euen of fyne golde shalt thou make them. And thou shalt sett vpon the table,
and shew befoze me alwaye.

And thou shalt make a candellstycke of pure golde euen of a whole worke shall the candellstycke be made with his shaft, braunches, bolles, knoppes and floures proceadin-ge there out. Syre braunches also shall pro-cede out of the sydes of it: thre braunches of the candellstycke out of the one syde and thre out of the other. Thre cuppes lyke vnto al-mondes with knoppes & floures in one braunche. And thre cuppes lyke almōdes in the other braunche, with knoppes and floures.

And euen so thowme out the fyre braunches
that procede out of the candellstycke: and in the candellstycke selfe foure cuppes lyke vnto
almōdes with theyr knoppes and floures:
and there shall be a knoppe vnder euery two braunches. * (in thre rowmes.) Of the fyre that procede out of the candellstycke. And the knop-pes and the braunches shalbe of it. And it shalbe one worke euen of pure golde.

And thou shalt make the seuen lampes of it: and the seue lampes therof, shalt thou put an hye there on, to geue lyghte vnto þ other syde that is ouer against it. The togges and snuffers therof shalbe of pure golde. Of an hundred poundes weyghte of fyne golde shalt thou make it with all the apparell. * Loke
therfore that thou make them after the facyon
that was shewed the in the mounte.

The tabernacle shalt thou make w
ten curtaynes of whyte twyned spylke: yelow spylke, purple and scarlet. And in them thou shalt make pictures of broderd worke.
The length of one curtayne shalbe eyght and twenty cubytes, & the bredth of one curtayne
foure cubytes, and euery one of the curtay-
nes shall haue one measure: fyue curtaynes shalbe coupled together one to another: and fyue curtaynes shalbe coupled together one to another.

And thou shalt make lowpes of yelow spylke, a lōge by the edge of þ one curtayne which is in the seluge of the couplynge courtayne.
And lykewyle shalt thou make in the edge of the vtmost curtayne that is to be coupled therwith on the other syde: fyfte lowpes
shalt thou make in the one curtayne, and fyfte lowpes shalt thou make in the edge of the curtayne that is to be coupled therwith on the other syde: that the lowpes maye take holde one of another. And thou shalt make fyfte buttens of golde, and couple the cur-taynes together with the buttens: and it shal-
be one habitacyon.

* And thou shalt make. xi. curtaynes of goates heere, to be a coueringe vpon the Tabernacle. The length of a curtayne shalbe
xxx. cubytes and the bredth foure and they shalbe all. xi. of one measure. And thou shalt couple. v. curtaynes by them selues, and the sixe by them selues, and shalt double the fyft
in the fore front of the tabernacle. And thou shalt make fyfte lowpes in the edge of the vtmost curtayne on the one syde: euen in the edge of

edge of the couplynge courtayne: and fyfte lowpes in the edge of the other curtayne that must be ioynd vnto it. And thou shalt make fyfte buttresses of brasce and put them on y lowpes, and couple the couerynge to gether, that it maye be one.

And the remnant that resteth in the curtaynes of the couerynge: euen the halfe curtayne that resteth, shalbe lefte on the backe sydes of the habitacyon: that a cubyte on the one syde and a cubyte on the other syde maye remayne in the length of the curtaynes of the coueryng, and that it maye remayne of ether syde of the habitacyon to couer it with all.

And vpon the Tabernacle thou shalt make a couerynge of ramyskynnes dyed reddy: & yet a couerynge aboue all of taxus skynnes.

And thou shalt make bordes for the habitacyon of sethim wodd to stonde vpryght: ten cubytes longe shall euery borde be, and a cubyte & an halfe brode. Two fete shall there be in one borde: and they shalbe separate one from another. And thus shalt thou make for all the bordes of the Tabernacle.

*Ex. xxi. c.

* And thou shalt make. xx. bordes for the habitacyon on the south syde, and thou shalt make. xl. sockettes of syluer vnder the. xx. bordes two sockettes vnder one borde, for hye two fete, & two sockettes vnder another borde for his two fete. In lyke maner in y north syde of the habitacyon there shalbe. xx. bordes and. xl. sockettes of syluer: two sockettes vnder one borde, and two sockettes vnder another borde.

And in the west ende of the habitacyon, shalt thou make fyve bordes, and two bordes shalt thou make in the corners of the habitacyon in the metynge together of the two sydes. And they shalbe coupled together beneth and lykwysse aboue to a ryng. And thus shalt it be for the two bordes that are in the corners. And they shalbe cyght bordes, hangyng sockettes of syluer, euen fyftene sockettes: that there maye be two sockettes vnder one borde, and two sockettes vnder another borde.

And thou shalt make barres of sethim wodd, fyue for the bordes of the Tabernacle in one syde, and fyue barres for the bordes of the Tabernacle in the other syde, and fyue barres for the bordes of the Tabernacle in the west ende. And the mydle barre shall goo alonge thowowe the myddes of the bordes from the one ende vnto the other. And thou shalt couer the bordes with golde, and make theyr rynges of golde, to put the barres thowowe, and thou shalt couer the barres with golde also. And thou shalt cere vp the habitacyon accordyng to the facion therof, as it was shewed the in the mount.

And thou shalt make a bayle of pelowe sylke, of purpull, scarlet, and whyte twyned

syke. Of broderd worke with pictures shalt thou make it. And hange it vpo foure pillers of sethim wodd couerd with golde. Whose heades shalbe of golde, stondyng vpo foure sockettes of syluer. And thou shalt hange vpon the bayle wpyth rynges, that thou mayest bringe in (with in the bayle) parcke of witnessse. And the bayle shall vnto pou deuyde the holpe from the most holy. And thou shalt put the mercy seate vpon the arcke of witnessse in the holpest place. And thou shalt put the table without the bayle: and the candlestick ouer agaynst the table on the south syde of the habitacyon. And put the table on the north syde.

And thou shalt make an hangyng for the doze of the Tabernacle: of pelowe sylke purple, scarlet, and white twyned sylk wrought with needle worke. And thou shalt make for the hangyng, fyue pillers of sethim wodd and couer them with golde, and theyr knoppes shalbe of golde, and thou shalt cast fyue sockettes of brasce for them.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

The forme of the alter of the burnt offeringe with hye hornes, rynges, scales, greddernes and other vnyamentes.

And thou shalt make an altare of sethim wodd: fyue cubytes longe and fyue cubytes brode. For it shall be foursquare, and thre cubytes hye. And thou shalt make it hornes in the foure corners of it the hornes shalbe of it selfe, and thou shalt couer it with brasce. And make hye althepanes, shouels, basens, fleshhookes, fyrepannes & all the apparell therof for the same, of brasce. And thou shalt make vnto it a gredder also (lyke a net) of brasce. And vpon that net shalt thou make foure brasen rynges in the foure corners therof: and thou shalt put it vnder the compase of the altare beneth, that the net maye be in the myddes of the altare. And thou shalt make (two) barres for the altare of sethim wodd, and couer them with brasce, and let them be put in rynges a longe by the sydes of the altare to beare it w all. And make the auter holowe with bordes: euen as it was shewed the in the mount, so shall they make it.

And thou shalt make the courte of the habitacyon, that there maye be in the south syde hangynges of white twyned sylke, of an hundred cubytes longe, for one syde, and. xx. sockettes of pylles therof, with theyr. xx. sockettes of brasce: but the knoppes of the pylles & theyr whopes shalbe syluer. In lykwysse on the north syde there shalbe hangynges of an hundred cubytes longe and. xx. pylles with their twenty sockettes of brasce, and the knoppes and the whopes of syluer. And the breadth of the

of the court which is eastwarde, shall haue fyfte cubytes. hangynges of fyftene cubytes in y one syde: and their pylles with their thre sockettes: and lykwysse on the other syde shalbe hangynges of fyftene cubytes with their thre pylles and thre sockettes.

And in the gate of the court shalbe a bayle of twenty cubytes of pelowe silk, purple, and skarlet & whyte twyned silk, wrought with needle worke: & foure pylles with their foure sockettes. All the pylles round about the court shalbe whoped with syluer, & their knoppes shalbe of syluer, and their sockettes of brasce. The length of the court shalbe an hundred cubytes, and the breadth fyfte & the heigth fyue. And the hangynges shalbe of whyte twyned sylk, and their sockettes of brasce. All the vessels of the habitation in all maner seruice and the pynges therof: yee, and all the pynges also of the courte shalbe of brasce.

* And thou shalt commaunde the chyldre of Israel, that they geue the pure oyle olyue braten for the lyght, to powze allwape into the lampes. In the tabernacle of witnessse without the bayle which is before the witnessse, shall Aaron and his sonnes dresse it both euening and moornyng before the Lorde: and it shalbe a statute for euer vnto the generations of the chyldren of Israel.

The. xxviii. Chapter.

Aarons apparell and hye sonnes.

And take thou vnto the Aaron thy brother and hye sonnes w him, from amonge the chyldren of Israel, that they maye minister vnto me. Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holy rayment for Aaron thy brother, that they maye be vnto glozy and bewtye. And thou shalt speake vnto all that are wise hearted, and whomsoever I haue filled with the sprete of wysdome: that they make Aarons rayment to consecrate him with, y he maye minister vnto me.

These are the garmetes which they shall make, a brestlapp, Ephod, a tuncle, a strapte cote, a miter and a gzyrdell. These holy garmetes shall they make for Aaron thy brother and his sonnes, that they maie minister vnto me. And lett them take golde, pelowe silk, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned silk. They shall make the Ephod of gold, pelowe sylke, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned silk with broderd worke. The two sydes shal come together, and be closed vp in the two edges therof. And the gzyrdell of the Ephod shalbe of the same workmanship, and of the same stuffe, euen of golde, pelow sylke, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned sylke.

And thou shalt take two onix stones, and graued in them the names of the chyldren of Israel: fyve names of them in the one stone, and the other fyve in the other stone: accordyng to the order of their byrth. After the work of a stonegrauer, and of him that graueth signettes shalt thou graue the two stones with the names of the chyldre of Israel, and shalt make them to be set in golde. And thou shalt put the two stones vpon the two shoulders of the Ephod, that they maye be stones of remembraunce vnto the chyldre of Israel. And Aaron shall beare their names before the Lorde vpon hye two shoulders for a remembraunce. And thou shalt make hokes of golde & two cheynes of fyne golde: linkworke and wretched, and fasten the wretched cheynes to the hokes.

And thou shalt make the brestlapp of iudgement with broderd worke, euen after the worke of the Ephod shalt thou make it: namely of golde, pelow sylke, purple, skarlet, and whyte twyned silk, shalt thou make it. ffoursquare it shalbe and double, an hande brede longe, and an handbrede broade. And thou shalt fill it with foure rowes of stones. In the first rowe shalbe a Sardions, a Topas, and Smaragdus: in the second rowe, a Ruby, Saphir and Diamond: in the thyrde Lygurius, an Achat, & Amatist: in y fourth a Turcas, Onix and Jaspis. And they shall be set in golde in their inclosers. And the stones shalbe grauen as signettes be grauen w the names of the chyldren of Israel, eue with twelue names, euery one with his name accordyng to the twelue tribes.

And thou shalt make vpon the brestlapp two fastenyng cheynes of pure golde & wretched worke. And thou shalt make lykwysse vpon the brestlapp two rynges of golde: and put them on the edges of the brestlapp, and put the two wretched cheynes of golde in the two rynges which are in the edges of y brestlapp. And the other two endes of the two cheynes, thou shalt faste in two close hokes, and put the vpon the shoulders of the Ephod on the foresyde of it. And thou shalt yet make two rynges of golde, which thou mayest put in the two edges of the brestlapp, euen in the borders therof, towarde the insyde of the Ephod oueragenst it. And yet two other ringes of golde thou shalt make: and put the on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth oueragaynst the brestlapp, a lowe where the sydes are ioynd together vpon the broderd gzyrdell of the Ephod. And they shall bynde the brestlapp by hye rynges vnto the ringes of the Ephod with a lace of pelow silk, that it maye lye close aboue the broderd gzyrdell of the Ephod, and that the brestlapp be not losed from the Ephod.

And Aaron shall beare the names of the chyldren of Israel in the brestlapp of iudgement

ment vpon his hert, when he goeth into the holy place for a remembrance before the Lord all waye. And thou shalt put in the brestlappe of iudgement. ¶ And thou shalt make a chymin: and they shall be euen vpon Arons hert, when he goeth in before the Lord: and Aaron shall beare the iudgement of the children of Israel vpon his herte before the Lord all waye.

And thou shalt make the tuncle vnto the Ephod altogether of yelow sylke. And there shall be an hole for the heed in the myddes of it, hauing a bonde of wouen worke rounde about the coler of it (as it were the coler of a partlet) that it rent not. And beneth vpon the hem, thou shalt make pomgranates of yelow sylke and of purple and skarlet, round about the hem, and belles of golde betwene them rounde about: and lett there be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate, a golden bell and a pomgranate, rounde about vpon the hem of the tuncle. ¶ And Aaron shall haue it vpon him, when he ministrerth, and the sounde shall be heard, when he goeth into the holy place before the Lord, & when he cometh out, and he shall not dye.

And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and graue thereon, as sygnettes are grauen. The holynesse of the Lord, and put it on a yelow sylke lace to be vpon the mytre, euen vpon the forefront of it. And it shall be vpon Arons forehead: that Aaron may beare the synne of the holy thynges which the chyldren of Israel halowe in all theyr holynes. ¶ And it shall be allwayes vpon his forehead, for the reconcylyng of them before the Lord.

And thou shalt make a linnen cote, and thou shalt make a mytre of lynn and a girdell of nedle worke.

And thou shalt make for Arons sonnes also cotes, gyrdelles and bonettes, glorious and bewyfull: and thou shalt put them vpon Aaron thy brother, and on hys sonnes with him: and shalt anoynte them, and shalt fylle their handes, and sanctifye them, that they maye minstre vnto me. And thou shalt make them linnen breeches to couer their preuities, from the loynes vnto the thies shall they reach. And they shall be vpon Aaron and his sonnes, when they come into the tabernacle of witness, or when they come vnto the altare to minister in holynesse, that they beare no sinne, and so dye. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto Aaron and his seed after him.

¶ The xxix. Chapter.

And thou shalt do vnto them, when thou shalt haue them to be my prestes. Thou shalt take a calfe, euen a ponge oxe, and two rames that are without blemish, and unleuened breade, and cakes of swete bread tempered with oyle, & wafers of swete bread anoynted with oyle (of wheten flour shalt thou make the) & put them in a maide, and bynge the in the maunde with the calfe and the two rammes.

And bynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and washe them with water, and take the garments, and put vpon Aaron: the strapte cote the tuncle of the Ephod, & the Ephod, and the brestlappe: and gyrd them to hym with the brodered gyrdell which is in the Ephod. And put the mytre vpon his heed: and put the holy crowne vpon the mytre. Then shalt thou take the anoynting oyle, and powze it vpon his heed, and anoynte hym. And byng hys sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrd them with gyrdels, aswell Aaron, as his sonnes. And put the mytres on the, and the preastes office shall be theirs for a perpetual lawe.

And thou shalt fylle the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes: and byng the calfe before the tabernacle of witness. ¶ And Aaron and his sonnes shall put their handes vpon the heed of the calfe, and thou shalt kylle hym before the Lord, by the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And take of the blond of the calfe and put it vpon the hornes of the altare with thy synger: and powze all the bloude besyde the botome of the altare, and take all the fat that couereth inwarde, and the kyll that is on the lyuer, and the two kidneys and the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpon the altare. But the flesch of the calfe and hys skynne, & his donge shalt thou burne wthout the hook. It is a synofferyng.

Thou shalt also take one ram, and Aaron and hys sonnes shall put their handes vpon the head of the ram, & when thou shalt slayne the ramme, thou shalt take hys bloude, and sprynkle it rounde about vpon the altare, & cut the ram in peces, and washe the inwardes of him and his legges, and put the vnto the peces and vnto his heed: and then burne the hole ram vpon the altare for a burnt offering vnto the Lord, & for a swete sauour and a sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And take the other ram, and Aaron & hys sonnes shall put their handes vpon hys heed. Then shalt thou kylle hym, and take of hys bloude, and put it vpon the tpype of the ryght eare of Aaron and of hys sonnes, and vpon the thombe of their ryght handes, and vpon the great to of their ryght fete, & sprynkle the bloude vpon the altare rounde about.

And thou shalt take of the bloude that is vpon the altare, and of the anoynting oyle, and sprynkle it vpon Aaron and hys vestmentes, and vpon his sonnes and vpon their garmentes wth hym. And he shall be halowed & his clothes his clothes and his sonnes and theyr clothes with hym.

And thou shalt take the fatt of the ram and his rompe, and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and the kyll of the lyuer, and the two kidneys and the fat that is vpon them and the ryght shoulder: for that ram is a fullofferyng: and a synnell of bread, and a cake of oyle bread, and a wafer out of the baskette of swete breade that is before the Lord, and putt all vpon the handes of Aaron, and on the handes of hys sonnes: and waue them for a waueofferyng before the Lord. And agayne, thou shalt take it from of their handes, and burne it vpon the altare for a burnt offering, to be a sauour of swetes before the Lord. For it is a sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And thou shalt take the brest of the ram of Arons consecracyn, and waue it for a waueoffering before the Lord: and it shall be thy parte. And thou shalt sanctifye the brest of the waueoffering: and the shoulder of the heueofferyng which is waued and heued vpon of the ram of the consecracyn for Aaron and for his sonnes. And it shall be Arons and his sonnes by a statute for euer of the chyldren of Israel: for it is an heueoffering. Euen an heueofferyng of the chyldren of Israel, and of their peaceofferings. Their heueofferings is the Lordes. And the holy garmentes of Aaron shall be his sonnes after him, to be anoynted therein, and to fylle their handes therein. And that sonne that is preast in his stead after him, shall put the on seven dayes: when he cometh into the tabernacle of witness to minister in the holy place.

And thou shalt take the ram of the consecracyn, and seth his flesch in an holy place. And Aaron and his sonnes shall cate the flesch of the ram, and the bread that is in the baskette: euen by the doore of the tabernacle of witness: and they shall cate them, because the anoyntment was made therewith, to fylle their handes, & to consecrate the: but a stranger shall not cate therof, because they are holy. And yf ought of the flesch of the consecracyn or of the bread remaine vnto the morrowe, thou shalt burne it with fyre, and it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. Therefore shalt thou do vnto Aaron and his sonnes, euen so, according to all thynges which I haue commaunded the: seven dayes shalt thou fylle their handes, and offer euery daye a calfe for a synnofferyng, for to reconcylye withall: that thou mayest clesse the altare when thou reconcelest vpon it, and thou shalt anoynte it, to sanctifye it. Seven dayes thou shalt reconcylye vpon the altare, and sanctifye it, and it shall be as an altare moost holy. Euery one that toucheth the altare, lett hym be holy.

¶ This is that which thou shalt offer vpon the altare: euen two labes of one yeare olde, daye by daye continually: the one thou shalt offer in the mornynge, and the other at euen: And with the one labbe a tenth deale of flour myngled with the fourth parte of an hyn of beaten oyle, and the fourth part of an hyn of wyne, for a bynckofferyng. And the other lambe thou shalt offer at euen, and shalt do thereto accordyng to the meatofferyng and bynckofferyng in the mornynge, to be an odoure of a swete sauour and a sacrifice vnto the Lord. And lett this be a continuall burnt offering amonge youre chyldren after you, before the doore of the tabernacle of witness before the Lord, where I wyll mete you, to speake there vnto the. There I wyll mete with the chyldren of Israel, and wyll be sanctified in myne honour. And I wyll sanctifye the tabernacle of witness and the altare. And I wyll sanctifye also both Aaron and hys sonnes to be my preastes. And I wyll dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel: and will be their God. And they shall knowe that I am the Lord their God, that brought them out of the lande of Egypte: for to dwell amonge them: euen I the Lord theyr God.

And thou shalt make an alter to burne incense: of sethim wodde shalt thou make it, a cubite long and a cubite broade: euen foure square shall it be and two cubites hye: the hornes therof shall procede out of it, and thou shalt overlape it with fyne golde, both the roffe and the walles round about, and hys hornes also, & shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde round about and two golden rynges on epyther syde: euen vnder the crowne, that they may be as places for the barres to beare it withall. And thou shalt make the barres of sethim wodd, and couer them with golde. And thou shalt putt it before the vayne, & is by the arcke of witness, before the mercy seate that is vpon the witness, where I wyll mete the.

And Aaron shall burne thereon swete incense euery mornynge, when he dresseth the lampes, euen then shall he burne it: and lyke wyse at euen, when he setteth vpon the lampes he shall burne incense: and thys incensynge shall be perpetually before the Lord thowout youre generacions. Ye shall putt no strange incense thereon, burnt sacrifice or meat offering, neyther powze any drinck-offeringe thereon.

in the peare shall he receyve it thowow your generacions. It is most holy unto the Lord.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: * If thou takest the summe of the chyldren of Israel after their nombre, they shall geue every man a reconcylyng of hys soule unto the Lord when thou tellest them: that there be no plague amonge them, when thou tellest them. And thus moch shall every man geue, and that goeth into the nombre: halfe a shekel, after the shekel * of the sanctuary: a shekel is twente halfpence. In halfe shekel shall be the heueofferinge of the Lord. All that are nombred from twente peare olde and above, shall geue an heueofferinge unto the Lord. Whereby shall not passe, and the poore shall not go vnder halfe a shekel. But ye shall geue an heueofferinge unto the Lord, that he maye haue mercy vpon your soules. And thou shalt take the reconcylyng money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vse of the tabernacle of witnessse, that it maye be a memorie vnto the chyldren of Israel before the Lord, that he maye haue mercy vpon your soules.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * thou shalt make a lauer of brasie, and his fore also of brasie to washe withall, and shalt putt it betwene the tabernacle of witnessse, and the aulter: and put water therein. For Aaron and his sonnes shall wash theyr handes and theyr fete therein: euen when they go into the tabernacle of witnessse, or when they go vnto the aulter to minystrer and to burne the Lordes offeringe, they shall wash them selues with water, lest they dye. And it shall be an ordinaunce vnto them for euer, both vnto him and his seed thowow out their generacions.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Take vnto the principall spices: of the most pure myrrour spiced sicles, of swete cynamon halfe so muche, euen two hundred and fyftee shekels: of swete calamus, two hundred and fyftee. Of cassia, two hundred and fyftee, after the holy shekel, and of oyle olyfe an hin. * And thou shalt make of the oyle an holy opntment, euen an opntment compoude after the crafte of the apoticarpe. And thou shalt noynte the tabernacle of witnessse therewith, and the arch of witnessse, and the table, and all his apparell: and the candellstick, and all his apparell: and the aulter of incense, and the aulter of burnt sacrifice with all his vessels, & the lauer and his fote. And thou shalt sanctifye them, that they maye be most holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And thou shalt anoynte Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them, & they maye minystrer vnto me.

And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: thys shall be an holy opntyng oyle vnto me, thowowout your generacions. Upon mannes fleshe shall it not be powred: neyther shall ye make any other after the makinge of it, for yt is holy: and shall be holy vnto you: whosoever maketh lyke that, or whosoever putteth any of it vpon a stranger, shall perishe from amonge hys people.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: take vnto swete spices: balme, Onycha, swete galbanum, these spices with pure frankincense, of each lyke moch: and make of them swete smellyng incense, after the crafte of the apoticarpe, myngled together, pure and holy. And beate it to powdye and put of it before the witness in the tabernacle of witnessse, where I wyll mete the. It shall be vnto you most holy. And se that ye make none after the makinge of that, It shall be vnto you holy for the Lord. Whosoever shall make like vnto that, to smell thereto, shall perishe from amonge hys people.

The xxxij. Chapter.

The calling of Bezaleel and Aholiab the workmen. The Sabbath is commaunded. The tables of lawes are geuen Moses.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: beholde, * I haue called by name, Bezaleel the sonne of Ahiur of the trybe of Iuda. And I haue fylled hym wth spere of God, in wysdome, & vnderstandyng, in know- ledge & in all maner worke, to fynd out sottle feates, & to worke in golde, syluer & brasie: and in the crafte to sett stones, and to carue in tymbre, and to worke in all maner workmanshipp. And beholde, I haue geuen hym to be his companion Aholiab the sonne of Ahi samach of the trybe of Man, and in the her- tes of all that are wyser harted, I haue putt wysdome, to make all that I haue commaunded the, the tabernacle of witnessse, the arch of witnessse, and the mercy seate that is therupon: and all the ornametes of the tabernacle, and the table and his ornametes: and the pure candellstick with all his apparell, and the aulter of incense: and the aulter of burnt offer- ings and all hys vessels, and the lauer with his fote. The vestimētes to minystrer in, and the holye garmentes for Aaron the preaste, and the garmentes of his sonnes to minystrer in, and the anoynting oyle: and swete cense for the sanctuary, according to all that I haue commaunded the shall they do.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: In any wise se that ye kepe my Sab- bathes: for it is a signe betwene me and you in your generacions, for to knowe that I the Lord am he & doth sanctifye you. * Kepe my Sabbath therfore: for it is holy vnto you.

He that he that despleth it, shall be slayne. For who- soeuer worketh therein, the same soule shall be roted oute from amonge hys people. * Syre dayes shall men worke. And in the seventh daye is the Sabbath of the holpe rest of the Lord. Whosoever doth any worke in the Sabbath daye, shall dye: wherefore lett the chyldren of Israel kepe the Sabbath, & they obserue it thowowout theyr generacions, that it be an appoyntment for euer. For it is a si- gne betwene me and the chyldren of Israel for euer. * For in syre dayes the Lord made heauen and earth: and in the seventh daye he rested, and was refreshed.

And when the Lord had made an ende of comyng with Moses vpon the mounte Sinai, * he gaue him two tables of witnessse: euen tables of stone, wyrtten with the fyringer of God.

The xxxij. Chapter.

The golden calfe. Moses prayeth for the people: he beareth the tables for anger. He chydeth Aaron. The phylatres are slayne.

And when the people sawe, that yt was longe or Moses came downe out of the mountayne, they gathered them selues toge- ther vnto Aaron, and sayd vnto hym: * Up, make vs goddes to go before vs: for of this Moses (& felowe that brought vs out of the lande of Egypt) we wote not what is become.

And Aaron sayde vnto them: * plucke of the golden earynges which are in the eares of your wyues, your sonnes, and of your daughters: and bring them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, which they had in theyr eares, & brought them vnto Aaron. And he receaued them of their handes, and fashioned it with a grauer, and made of it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: * These be thy goddes, O Israel, which brought the oute of the lande of Egypt.

And when Aaron sawe that, he made an aulter before it. And Aaron cryed, sayinge: to morowe is the holy daye of the Lord. And they rose vp in the mornyng, & offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings also. * And the people sat them downe to eate and dryncke, and rose vp agayne to playe.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: * go, get the downe: thy people which I broughtest out of the lande of Egypt, haue married all, they are turned at once out of the waye, which I commaunded them: * for they haue made them a calfe of molten metall, and haue worshypped it, and haue offered thereto, sayinge: These be thy goddes, O Israel, which hath brought the oute of the lande of Egypt. And the Lord sayde sayd vnto Mo- ses: * I haue sene this people: and beholde, it is a styffnecked people, and nowe suffer me, that my wrath maye ware hote agaynst the, and consume them: and I wyll make of the a myghtye people.

And Moses besought the Lord his God, and sayde: O Lord, why doesthy wrath ware hote agaynst thy people, which thou hast brought oute of the lande of Egypt, wth greate power and with a myghtye hande? * wherefore shulde the Egipcians speake and saye: For a myschefe dyd he bring them oute euen for to sleie them in the mountaynes, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turne from thy fearce wrath, and * turne from thys euell (deuyled) agaynst thy people. Remembre Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruantes, to whom thou swareste by thyne awne selfe, and saydeste vnto them: * I wyll multiplye your seede as the starres of heuen, and all this lande that I haue spoken of, wyll I geue vnto your seed: and they shall enheret it for euer. And the Lord refrayned him selfe fro that euell: which he sayd he wolde do vnto hys people.

And Moses turned hys backe, and went downe from the hyll, and the two tables of witnessse were in hys hande: and the same tables were wyrtten on both the leaues, and were the worke of God, and the wyrtynge was the wyrtynge of God grauen in the tables. And when Josua hearde the noyse of the people, as they shouted, he sayde vnto Moses: there is a noyse of warre in the host. And he answered: it is not the crye of them that haue the mastery, nor of them that haue the worke: but I do heare the noyses of them that synge.

And it fortuned, as soone as he came nye vnto the hooste, he sawe the calfe and the daunsyng, and Moses wrath waxed hote, and he cast the tables out of his handes, and brake them beneth the hyll. * And he toke the calfe which they had made, and burned it in the fyer, and stampet it vnto powder, and strawed it in the water, and made the chyldren of Israel dryncke of it. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: what dyd thys people vnto the, that thou hast brought so greate a synne vpon them?

And Aaron answered: let not the wrath of my Lord waxe ferece, thou knowest the people that they are euen sett on myschefe: For they sayde vnto me: make vs goddes to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moses, the felowe that brought vs out of the lande of Egypt. And I sayd vnto the: * let them that haue golde pluck it of, and bring it me: and I cast it into the fier: and therof came out thys calfe.

Moses therfore sawe that the people were naked (and that Aaron had made them naked vnto theyr shame) amonge theyr enemies) enemies) and he went and stode in the gate of the hoste, and sayde: If any man pertayne vnto the Lorde, let him come to me. And all the sonnes of Levi gathered them selues together, & came vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: Thus saith the Lorde God of Israel: put euery man his sword by his syde, & go in and out, from gate to gate thorowout the hoste: and sleue euery man, his brother and euery man his companion, and euery man his neyghboure. And the chyldren of Levi dyd as Moses had sayde. And there fell of the people the same daye about. iij. M. And Moses sayde: fyll your handes vnto the Lorde this daye, euery man vpon his sonne and vpon his brother. and that ther maye be geuen you a blessing this daye.

And on the morowe it fortuneth p Moses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue synned a great synne. And now I wyll go vnto the Lorde: yf peradventure I maye purchase an atonement for your synne. Moses therefore went agayne vnto the Lorde, & sayde: Oh, thys people haue synned a greatesynne and haue made them goddes of golde. And now I praye the, cyther forgue them their synne: or (yf thou wilt not) wipe me out of thy booke, which thou hast wyrtten. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: I will put hym out of my booke that hath synned agaynst me. And now go thou, byngne the people vnto the place which I sayde vnto thee: beholde, * myne angell shall go before the. * Neuerthelater in the daye when I vyset, I wyll vyset their synne vpon them. And the Lorde plagued the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

The Lorde sendeth an angell before hys people. The Lorde denpeth to goo by with the people. The people lament their synne. Moses talketh wth the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: departe, and go hence: thou and the people, which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte, vnto the land which I swaue vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, sayinge: * vnto thy seed will I geue it: (and I wyll sende an angel before the: and wyll cast out the Canaanites, the Amorites and the Hethites, the Pherezites, the Hevites, and the Jebusites) a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. For I wyll not go amonge you my selfe: * for ye are a stiffnecked people: lest I consume the in the waye. And when the people heard this euell tidynge, they sorowed: and no man did put on hys best rayment.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses: saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye are a stiffnecked people: I must come once sodenly vpon you, & make an ende of you. Therefore now put thy goodly rayment from the, & I maye wete what to do vnto the. And the chyldren of Israel layde their goodly rayment from them, euen by the mount Horeb.

And Moses toke the tabernacle, and pitched it withoute the hoste a farte of from the hoste: and called it the tabernacle of witness. And so it came to passe, that euery one which wolde praye vnto the Lorde, went out vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, which was without the hoste. And it fortuneth, that when Moses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp: and stode euery man at his tente doze: and looked after Moses, vntill he was gone into the tabernacle. And alsoone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stode at the dooze of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And all the people saw the cloudy pyller stande at the tabernacles doze, and they rose vp, and worshipped euery man in his tente doze.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses: * face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende: * and he turned agayne into the hoste. And the chyldre Joshua hys seruante the sonne of Num, departed not out of the tabernacle: And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: se, thou sayest vnto me: leade this people forth, and thou hast not shewed me whom thou wylt sende with me. And thou hast sayde mozeouer: I knowe the by name, and thou hast also founde grace in my syght. Nowe therefore yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, then shewe me thy waye, that I maye knowe the, and that I maye fynde grace in thy syghte. And consyder also, that thys nacyon is thy people. And he sayde: my presence shall go with the: and I wyll geue the rest. He sayde vnto hym: Yf thy presence go not with me, carpe vs not hce: for howe shall it be knowe here, that I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy syght, but in that thou goest wth vs? Yf thou go with vs, shall not I and thy people haue preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth? And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will do this also that thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my syghte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde: I beseech the, shewe me thy gloze. And he sayde: I wyll make all my good go before the, and I wyll be called in this name of the Lorde before the: * and will shewe mercy to whom I wyll shewe mercy, and wyll haue compassion on whom I wyll haue compassion. And he sayd furthermoze: y mayst not se my face: for * there shall no man se me, and lyue.

And the Lorde sayde: beholde, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stonde vpon a rock: and whyle my gloze goeth forth, I will put the in a clyft of the rock: and wyll put myne hande

hade vpon the, whyle I passe by. And I wyll take awaye myne hande, & thou shalt se my back partes: but my face shall not be sene.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

The tables are renewed. The mercy of God. To haue felowshipp with the Gentyles is forbidden: and thers pbolatce also. Of theys feastes.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: * hewe the two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrst, and I wyll write vpon them the wordes that were in the first tables which thou brakest. And be ready in the morynge, that thou mayest come vpearly vnto the mount of Sinai: and stand there with me in the top of the mount. There shall no man come vnto the, neyther let any man be sene thorowout all the mount, neyther let shepe nor oxen fede before the hyll.

And Moses hewed two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrst, and rose vpearly in the morynge, and went vnto the mount of Sinai, as the Lorde had commaunded hym: and toke in his hande the two tables of stone. And the Lorde descended in the clowde, and stode with hym there: and he called vpon the name of the Lorde. And when the Lord walked before him, he cryed, Lorde * Lorde God, mercifull and gracious, long suffering, & abundant in goodness & trouth, & keepyng mercy in store for thousandes, forgerynge wickednes, vngodlynes & synne, & not leauynge one innocent, visyng the wickednes of the fathers vpon the chyldren and vpon chyldrens chyldren, euen vnto the third and fourth generacyon. And Moses bowed him selfe to the earth quckly, and worshipped, and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy syght (O Lorde) then lett my Lorde go wth vs: for it is a stubburne people, and thou shalt haue mercy vpon oure wyckednes and oure synne, and shalt take vs for thyne heritage.

He sayde: beholde, I make an appoyntment before all thy people: and I will do * maruaylles: soch as haue not bene done in all the worlde, neyther in all nacyns. And all the people amonge which thou art, shall se the worke of the Lorde: * for it is a terryble thyng that I wyll do with the: kepe those thynges that I commaunde the thys daye: Behold, I cast out before the the Amorites, Canaanites, Hethites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites. * Take hede to thy selfe, * that thou make no compacte with the inhabitants of the lande whether thou goest, lest it be cause of ruyne amonge you. But ouerthrowe their alters, and breake their ymagines, and cut doune their groues. Thou shalt worshyp no straunge God. For the Lorde is * called gelous, because he is a gelous God: lest yf thou make any agrement with the inhabitants of the lande, and they goo a whoring after they goddes, and do sacrifice vnto they goddes, they call the, and thou eate of they sacrifice: & thou take of their daughters vnto thy sonnes, and they daughters go a whoring after they goddes, and make thy sonnes go a whoring after their goddes also.

Thou shalt make the no goddes of men. The * feaste of swete bread shalt thou kepe. Seuen dayes thou shalt eate vntuned bread, as I commaunded the in the tyme of the moneth, when corne begynneth to rypp. For in the moneth when corne begynneth to ripe, thou comest out of Egypt. * All that breaketh vpon the matryce is myne: and all that breaketh the matryce amonge thy cattell, yf it be male: whether it be ore or shepe. But the fyrst of the asse thou shalt bye out wth a lambe. And yf thou redeme hym not, thou shalt breake hys neck. All the fyrst borne of thy sonnes shalt thou redeme. * And se that no man appeare before me empty.

* Syxe dayes thou shalt worke, and in the seventh daye thou shalt rest, bothe from earyng and reaping. * Thou shalt obserue the feaste of weekes with thy fyrst frutes of whet heruest, and the feaste of ingatherynge at the yeares ende. Thysle in a yeare shall all your mens chyldren appere before the Lorde Jehoua God of Israel. When I cast out the nacions before the, and enlarge thy coastes: so that no man shall despyre thy lande, thou shalt go vnto appeare before the Lorde thy God, thysle in the yeare.

* Thou shalt not offere the bloude of my sacrifice vpon leuen, neyther shall ought of the sacrifice of the feaste of Pascheouer be left vnto the morynge. * The fyrst rypp frutes of thy lande thou shalt byng vnto the house of the Lord thy God. And yf thou shalt not * sette a kydd in hys mothers mylke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: wryte these wordes: for after the tenoure of these wordes I haue made a couenaunt with the and with Israel. * And he was there wth the Lorde fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes, and dyd neyther eate bread ner dryncke water. * And he wrote vpon the tables the wordes of the couenaunt, euen ten verbes.

e lly And it

And it fortuneth, whē Moſes came downe from mount Sinai, the two tables of witnes were in Moſes haide, whē he came downe from the mount. And Moſes wyſt not that the ſkynne of his face ſhone in maner of an hōrne, whyle he talked with him. And Aaron and all the children of Iſrael looked vpon Moſes: and beholde, the ſkynne of his face ſhone, & they were afrayed to come npe him. And whē he had called thē, Aaron & all the chefe that were in the company came vnto him, and Moſes talked with them.

And after ward, all the children of Iſrael came npe, & he cōmaunded them all that the Lord had ſayde vnto hym in mount Sinai. And whan Moſes had made an ende of cōmening with thē, *he put a couerpyng vpon his face. And agayne, whan Moſes went in before the Lord to ſpeake w him, *he toke the couerpyng of vntill he came out. And he came out, and ſpake vnto the children of Iſrael which he was cōmaunded. And the children of Iſrael ſawe the face of Moſes, that the ſhynne of Moſes face ſhone. And Moſes put the couerpyng vpon his face agayne, vntill he went in, to comen with him.

The xxxv. Chapter.

The Sabbath. The ſpynne of the people to offer. Bezaleel and Ahaliab are praped of Moſes, and ſet to worke.

*Exo. xxxv.

And Moſes gathered all the cōpany of the childre of Iſrael together, and ſayd vnto thē: theſe are the wordes which the Lord hath cōmaunded that ye ſhulde do them: *Sixe dayes ye ſhall worke: but the ſeuenty daye ſhalbe vnto you the holpe Sabbath of the Lordes reſte: whoſoeuer doth any worke therein, ſhall die. Ye ſhall kynde no fier thoroowout all your habitacions vpon the Sabbath daye.

And Moſes ſpake vnto all the multitude of the children of Iſrael ſaying: *this is the thing which the Lord cōmaunded, ſaying: Take from among you an heue offering vnto the Lord. Whoſoeuer is of a willing hert, let him byrnyng it for the heue offering of the Lord. Namely gold, ſyluer and braſſe, and pelow ſylk, purple, ſcarlet, whyte ſylke, goates heerre, and rams ſaynes red and taxus ſkinnes with ſethim wodd: oyle for light and ſpices for the anoynting oyle, & for the ſweete cenſe. And Onix ſtones and ſtones to be ſet in the Ephod and in the bzeſtlappe.

23 And let all them that are wyſe herted among you, come and make all that the Lord hath cōmaunded: the habitacyon with the tent therof and his couerpyng, & hys rynges, and his bozdes, his barres, his pylers, and his ſockettes: the arck and the ſtaues therof, with the mercy ſeate and the dayle that couereth it: the table and his barres and all his vessels: and the ſheuebed: the candellſtick of lyght and his apparell and his lampes with the oyle for the light: the cens altar and his barres: the anoynting oyle & the ſweete cenſe: and the hangyng of the doze at the enteryng in of the tabernacle: the altar of burnt ſacrifyce with his braſen greidren, his ſtaues, and all his vessels: ſyluer and hys ſote: and the hangynges of the court with his pylers and their ſockettes, and the hangyng in the doze of the court: the pynges of the habitacio and the pynges of the court w their coardes: the minyſtring garmentes to minyſtre in the holy place: and the holy veſtimētes for Aaron the preaſt, and the veſtimētes of his ſonnes, that they maye minyſtre him.

And all the companye of the chyldren of Iſrael departed fro the preſence of Moſes. And euery one came (as many as they heretes cōraged them, & as many as their ſpzetes made them wylling) & brought a preſent for the Lord, to the making of the tabernacle of witnes, and for all his vſes, and for the holy veſtimētes. And they came both men & women (euē as many as were willing herted) and brought braceletes, and earinges, ringes and chaynes, which iewels were all of golde: & all the men brought a waue offering of golde vnto the Lord. And euery mā, with whom was founde pelow ſylk, purple, ſcarlet, whyte ſylk, and goates heerre and redd ſkynnes of rams & taxus ſaynes, brought them. All that dyd heue vp an oblacon of golde and braſſe, and brought an heue offering vnto the Lord. And all men with who was found ſethim wodd for any maner worke of the minyſtracyon, brought it.

And all the women that were wyſe herted dyd ſpynne with theyr handes, and brought the ſpynne worke both of pelow ſylke, purple, ſcarlet and whyte ſylk. And all the women whom their a wne hert moued, brought goates heerre wiſely. And the Lord brought onix ſtones, & ſtones to be ſet in the Ephod, and in the bzeſtlappe, and ſpyce and oyle for lyght and for the anoynting oyle and for the ſweete cenſe. And the children of Iſrael brought a willpyng offering vnto the Lord, both men and women: as many as had willing hertes to byrnyng, for all maner workes which the Lord had cōmaunded to be made, by the handes of Moſes.

And Moſes ſayde vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: beholde, *the Lord hath called by name Bezaleel the ſonne of Uri the ſonne of Hur of the trybe of Iuda, & hath fylled hym with the ſpze of God, in wiſdome and vnderſtāding, in knowledge, and in all maner worke, to ſynde out curious workes which are made in golde, ſyluer and braſſe. In the craſte of ſtones to ſet them: and in carpyng of wodd to make any maner of ſote worke.

And he

And he hath put in his harte, that he may teache: both he and Aholiab the ſonne of Ahilamach of the trybe of Man. Them hath he fylled with wyſdome of herte, to worke all maner of grauen, and ſote, and nedle worke in pelowe ſylke, and purple, in ſcarlet, and whyte ſylke, and in weupnge. And to do all maner of worke and ſote feates.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

The pynges that Bezaleel and Ahaliab made.

*Exo. xxxvi.

And Bezaleel wrought, & Aholiab and all wyſe herted mē, to whom the Lord gaue wyſdome and vnderſtādyng, to knowe howe to worke all maner worke for the ſeruyce of the Sanctuary, and all that the Lord had cōmaunded. And Moſes called Bezaleel, Aholiab and all the wyſe herted men and ſoche as the Lord had geuen wyſdome vnto, and as many as they hertes cōraged to come vnto that worke to worke it. And they receaued of Moſes all the preſent, whiche the chyldren of Iſraell had brought for the worke of the ſeruyce of the Sanctuary, to make it. And beſyde that they brought giſtes vnto it euery daye in the moynynge.

And all the wyſe men that wrought all the holpe worke, came euery man from hys worke whiche they made, and ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: the people byrnyng to moche and moze then pnyough for the ſeruyce and worke whiche the Lord hath cōmaunded to be made. And then Moſes gaue a cōmaundement, and they cauēd it to be proclaimed thoroow out the hoſte ſayinge: ſe p nether man nor woman prepare any mozte worke for the preſent of the Sanctuary: and ſo the people were forbydden to byrnyng: for the ſuffe they had, was ſufficient for all the worke, to make it, and to moche.

*Exo. xxxvi.

* All the wyſe herted men therfore, and they that wroughte for the habitacyon, made ten curtaynes of whyte twyned ſylke, pelowe ſylke, purple and ſcarlet: * with pictures of broderd worke made he them. The length of one curtayne was, xxviii. cubytes, and the breadth foure and the curtaynes were all of one ſyle. And he coupled fyue curtaynes by them ſelues, and other fyue by the ſelues. And he made lowpes of pelowe ſylke alonge by the edge of one curtayne, euē in the ſeluege of the couplynge courtayne. And lyke wyſe he made on the ſyde of the couplynge curtayne on the other ſyde. And the lowpes helde one curtayne to another.

And he made fyfte rynges of golde, and coupled the curtaynes one to another wyth the rynges: and ſo was it made one dwellynge place.

* And he made xi. curtaynes of goates herre, to be a tent ouer the tabernacle. The length of a curtayne, had, xxx. cubytes and was foure cubites bzode, and they alle euē of one ſyle. And he coupled fyue curtaynes by them ſelues, & ſyre by them ſelues, and he made fyfte lowpes alonge by the border of the vtmoſt couplynge curtayne, and fyfte in the edge of the other couplynge curtayne. * (That they myght be ioyned together.) And he made fyfte rynges of braſſe to couple the tent together, that it myght be one. And he made a couerpyng vpon the tent, of rammes ſaynes redd, and yet another of taxus ſkinnes aboute that.

* And he made ſtōdyng bozdes (for the tabernacle) of ſethim wodd. The length of a bozde was ten cubytes, the breadth one cubyte and a halfe. One bozde had two ſete, wherby they were ioyned one to another. And thus made he for all the bozdes of the Tabernacle. And he made, xx. bozdes for the ſouth ſyde of the habitacyon, and xl. ſockettes of ſyluer vnder the, xx. bozdes two ſockettes vnder one bozde, for his two ſete.

*Exo. xxxvi.

* (where the ſockettes of the ſpdes ende in the corners.) And for the other ſyde of the dwelling which is towarde the north, he made twety bozdes, & theyr fourty ſockettes of ſyluer, two ſockettes vnder one bozde. And towarde the weſt ende of the Tabernacle, * (That is to ſaye, at that ende of the tabernacle which enclyneth towarde the ſee.) he made ſyre bozdes, and two other bozdes made he in the corners of the habitacyon for eyther ſyde, and they were ioyned cloſſe beneth and aboue with a clampe, and thus they dyd to both the corners. And there were eyght bozdes & ſyxtene ſockettes, of ſyluer, vnder euery bozde two ſockettes.

And he made barres of ſethim wodd fyue for the bozdes of the Tabernacle in the one ſyde: and fyue for the bozdes of the Tabernacle in the other ſyde, and fyue barres for the bozdes of the habitacyon in the weſt ende. * (Towarde the ſee.) And he made the myddelt barre to ſpore thoroowe the bozdes: euē from the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the bozdes wyth golde, and made rynges of golde to thruſt the barres thoroowe, and couered the barres wyth golde. And he made an hangyng of pelow ſylke, purple, ſcarlet and whyte twyned ſylke, euē with pictures made he it of broderd worke. And made ther vnto foure pylers of ſethim wodd, and ouerlayde thē with golde. Theyr knoppes were alſo of golde, and he caſt for them foure ſockettes of ſyluer. And he made an hangyng for the tabernacle doze: of pelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet and whyte twyned ſylke of nedle worke. And the fyue pylers of it with theyr knoppes, & ouerlayde the knoppes of them & the whoyes wyth golde. There

fyne sockettes also were of brafle.

The. xxxvii. Chapter.

The arke of witness. The mercyseate. The table. The candlesticke. The lightes. The altare and the incense.

And Bezaleel made the arke of Sethim woodd, two cubites and an halfe long, and a cubite and a halfe broude, and a cubite and a halfe hye: and overlaid it with fyne golde within and without, and made a crowne of golde to it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde for the foure corners of it: two rynges for the one syde, and two for the other, and made barres of Sethim woodd, and couered them with golde, and put the barres in the rynges a longe by the syde of the arke, to bere it with all.

And he made the mercy seate. (That is to saye, Gods answeryng place.) of pure gold: two cubytes and a halfe was the length therof, and one cubyte and a halfe the breadth: & he made two Cherubyns of thycke golde vpon the two endes of the mercyseate. One Cherub on the one ende, and another Cherub on the other ende. Euen of the mercyseate made he the Cherubyns: namely, in the endes therof. And the Cherubyns spred oute theyr wynges aboue an hie, and couered the mercyseate therewith. And theyr faces were one to another: euen to the mercyseate warde, were the faces of the Cherubyns.

* Exod. xxxv. c.

And he made the table of Sethim woodd two cubytes was the length therof and a cubyte the breadth, and a cubyte and a halfe the heygth of it. And he overlaid it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and made therto an whope of an hande breade, rounde aboute and made vpon the whope a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde, and put the rynges in the foure corners that were in the foure fete therof. Euen harde by the whope were the rynges, into the whiche the barres were put, to bere the table withall. And he made the barres of Sethim woodd, & couered the with gold to bere the table with all, and made the vessels (for the table) of pure golde: the dishes, spones, fiat peres and pottes to powze withall.

* Exod. xxxv. d.

And he made the candlesticke of pure golde: euen of one pece made he the candlesticke. For hys fote, hys shafte, hys cuppes, his knoppes and hys floures were of one pece. Syxe braunches proceeding out of the sydes therof, thre out of the one side, and thre out of the other. And in one braunche thre cuppes made lyke vnto almondes with knoppes & floures: and in another braunche thre cuppes made lyke almondes with knoppes & floures. And so thre out of the syxe braunches that proceeded out of the candlesticke. And vpon the candlesticke self were. iiii. cuppes after the facyon of almondes with knoppes & floures: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes and the braunches proceeded out of it, and it was all one pece of pure thycke golde. And he made hys seuen lampes with the tonges and snuffers therof, of pure golde. Euen of an hundred weyght of pure golde, made he it withall the vessels therof.

And he made the cens alter of Sethim woodd. The length of it was a cubyte, & the breadth a cubyte, for it was, foure square & two cubytes hye, with hornes proceeding out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the toppe and the sydes therof rounde about, and the hornes of it, & made vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about. And he made two rynges of golde for it, enen vnder the crowne therof in the two corners of it and in the two sydes therof to put barres in, for to bere it withall: & made the barres of Sethim woodd and overlaid them with gold. And he made the holy anoyntinge oyle, and the swete pure incense after the apotecaryes crafte.

The. xxxviii. Chapter.

The altare of burnt offerings. The brazen laver. The summe of that the people offered.

And he made the burnt offering alter of Sethim, woodd fyne cubytes was the length therof, and fyne cubytes the breadth: euen. iiii. square, &. iiii. cubytes hye. And he made vnto it hornes in the foure corners of it procedyng out of it, & he overlaid it with brafle. And he made all the vessels of the alter: the cauldres, shouels, basyns, fleshhooks and colepannes. All the vessels therof made he of brafle.

And he made a brazen gredpyren of networke vnto the alter, rounde aboute alowe beneth vnto the myddes of the altare, & cast iiii. rynges of brafle for the. iiii. endes of the gredpyren to put barres in. And he made the barres of Sethim woodd and couered them with brafle, and put the barres into the rynges in the foure corners of the altare, to bere it withall, and made the alter holowe with in the bordes. And he made a laver of brafle, & the fote of it also of brafle. In the syghte of them that dyd watch at the doze of the tabernacle of witness.

And he made the courte on the south syde, & the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, hangyng an hundred cubites. Theyr pylers were twenty, & theyr brazen sockettes twenty. But the knoppes of the pylers, & theyr whoopes were of syluer. And on the north syde the hangynges were an hundred cubytes. Theyr pylers were. xx. & theyr sockettes of brafle. xx. But the knoppes & the whoopes of the pylers were of syluer. On the west syde, were hangynges of. i. cubytes. x. pylers pyllers & theyr. x. sockettes. (Of brafle.) But the knoppes & the whoopes of the pylers were of syluer. And toward the east syde, were hangynges of. i. cubytes: the hangynges of the syde of the gate were fyftene cubytes longe, with thre pylers, and thre sockettes. And of the other syde of the court gate were hangynges also of. xv. cubytes longe, with thre pylers and thre sockettes. All the hangynges of the courte rounde aboute, were of whyte twyned sylke: but the sockettes of the pylers were of brafle: and the knoppes and the whoopes of the pylers were of syluer, and the conuerge of the heedes was of syluer, and all the pylers of the courte were whooped about with syluer. And the hangyng of the gate of the courte was nedle worke, of pelowe, sylke purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke. xx. cubytes longe, and fyne in the bredth, ouer agaynst the hangynges of the courte. And theyr pylers were foure and theyr foure sockettes of brafle, and the knoppes of syluer, and the heedes overlaid with syluer, and whooped aboute with syluer, and all the pynnes of the tabernacle & of the courte rounde aboute were of brafle.

This is the summe of the habitacyon of witness, as it was couered accordyng to the comaundement of Moses for the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Jthamar sonne to Aaron the preast. And Bezaleel the sonne of Uri sonne of hur of the trybe of Juda, made all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, and with him was Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, a conninge grauer and a worker of nedle worke in pelowe sylk, purple scarlet and whyte twyned sylke.

All the golde that was occupied for all the worke of the holy place, was the golde of the waueofferyng, euen. xxx. hundred weyght, and seuen hundred and. xxx. sycles, accordyng to the sycle of the Sanctuary. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was. v. score hundred weyght, & a thousande seuen hundred &. lxxv. sycles after the sycle of the Sanctuary. For euery man an halfe weight, euen halfe a sycle after the sycle of the Sanctuary, for all them that went to be nombred from. xx. yere olde and aboue, euen for. vi. hundred thousande and thre thousande and. v. hundred and. i. men.

And of the. v. score hundred weyght of syluer, were cast the sockettes of the Sanctuary, and the sockettes of the vayne: an hundred sockettes of the fyne score hundred weyght, an hundred weyght to euery sockette. And of the thousande seuen hundred &. lxxv. sycles, he made knoppes to the pylers, and overlaid the heedes and whooped them. (with syluer.)

And the brafle of the waueofferyng was lxx. hundred weyght, and two thousande, &. iiii. hundred sycles. And therewith he made the sockettes to the doze of the Tabernacle of witness, and the brazen altare and the brazen gredpyren for it, withall the vessels of the alter, and the sockettes of the courte rounde aboute, & the sockettes for the courte gate, & all the pynnes of the habitacyon, and all the pynnes of the courte rounde aboute.

The. xxxix. Chapter.

The apparell of Aaron and his sonnes. All that the Lorde commaunded was offered.

And of the pelowe sylke, purple & scarlet, they made the vestimentes of ministracyon to do seruice in the holy place, and made the holy garmentes for Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the Ephod of golde, pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet & whyte twyned sylke. And they dyd beate the gold into thynne plates, & cutte it into wyers: to worke it in the pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and in the fyne whyte, with boudred worke. And they made two sydes for it, to cloose them vp by the two edges. And the boudryng of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after the same worke: of golde, pelowe sylk, purple, scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lorde comaunded Moses.

And they wrought Onix stones cloosed in ouches of golde, and graued as sygnettes are graued, with the names of the chyldren of Israel, and put them on the shoulers of the Ephod, that they shuld be stones for a remembrance of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the breastlappe of conyng worke, and lyke the worke of the Ephod: euen of golde, pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, & twyned whyte sylke. It was. iiii. square, and they made the breastlappe double, an hande breadeth longe and an hande breadeth broude. And they fylled it with. iiii. rowes of stones. The fyrst rowe: a Sardios, a Topas and a Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Rubye a Saphir and a Diamonde: in the. iiii. rowe, a Ligurios, an Achat, and an Amatist: in the fourth rowe: a Turcas, and Onix, and a Jaspis. And they were closed in ouches of golde in theyr inclosers. And the. xii. stones were grauen as sygnettes with the names of the chyldren of Israel: euery stone with hys name, accordyng to the. xii. trybes.

And they made vpon the breastlappe, two fastenyng cheynes of wretthen worke and pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde, & two golde rynges, and put the two rynges in the two corners of the breastlappe. And they put the two chaines of golde in the two ringes, in the corners of the breastlappe: And the two endes of the two chaines they fastened in the two hokes, and put them on the shoulers of the Ephod vpon the fore front of it.

And

The tabernacle.

Exodus.

And they made two rynges of golde, and put them on the two corners of the breast-lappe vpon the edge of it whych was on the inlyde by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the fore syde of it and ouer agaynst hys felowe, aboue vpon the bryderynge of the Ephod, and they straped the breast-lappe by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, wyth a lace of yelow sylke: that it myght be vpon the bryderynge of the Ephod, and that the breast-lappe shulde not be lowed fro of the Ephod: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he made the tynycle vnto the Ephod of wouen worke, all together of yelow sylke, and there was an hole in the myddest of the tynycle, as the coler of a partlet, wyth a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it shulde not rent. And in the tynycle they made hemes with pōgranates, of yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put them amon ge the pōgranates rounde aboute vpo the edge of the tynycle: a bell and a pomgrate, a bell and a pomgrate rounde about the hemes of the tynycle to mynstre in, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worke for Aaron and hys sonnes, & a mytre of fyne whyte, and goodly bonnetes of fyne whyte, and lynen breeches of twyned whyte, and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelow sylke, purple and scarlet: ene of nedleworke, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they made the plate for the holy croune of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it wyth gauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde: and tyed vnto it a lace of yelow sylke to fasten it, an hys vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

Thus was all the worke of the habitacyon and of the Tabernacle of witness, fynished. And the chyldre of Israel dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde had commaunded Moyses: Euen so dyd they. And they brought the habitacyon vnto Moyses: the tent and all his apparell, buttones, boordes, barres, pylers & sockettes, the coueryng of rams skynnes redd, and the coueryng of taxus skynnes, and the hangyng vayle, the arke of witness and the barres therof and the mercyseate: the table and all the vessels therof, & the shewbreds: the pure candestye, with the lampes therof: euen with the lampes to be prepared and all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghte: the golden altare, and the anoyntyng oyle, and the swete cens, and the hangyng of the Tabernacle doore, and the brasen alter wyth hys gredyzen of brasle: his barres and all hys vessels, the lauer and hys fote: the hangynges of the courte wyth hys pyllers and sockettes: the hangyng to the courte gate, and hys pyllers and coardes, and all the vessel of the seruyce of the habitacyon for the Tabernacle of witness: the mynsteryng vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes for Aaron the preast, & his sonnes raymentes to mynstre in, accordinge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses: euen so the chyldren of Israel made all the worke. And Moyses behelde all the worke, and se, they had done it euen as the Lorde commaunded: euen so had they done, and Moyses blessed them.

The xl. Chapter.

The Tabernacle is reared vp. The gloze of the Lorde appereth in a clowde coueryng the Tabernacle.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses say-
inge. In the fyrst daye of the first moneth, shalt thou sett vp the habitacyon, and the Tabernacle of witness, and put therein the arke of witness, and coner the arke wyth the vayle, and bryng in the table and apparell it accordyng to the order therof. And thou shalt bryng in the candestye, and lyght hys lampes, and sett the cens alter of golde before the arke of witness, and put the hangyng at the doze of the habitacyon. And set the burnt offering alter before the doze of the habitacyon and Tabernacle of witness, and sett the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of witness and the alter and put water therein, and make the courte rounde aboute, and hange vp the hangyng at the courte gate.

And thou shalt take the anoyntyng oyle, and anoynt the habitacyon, and all that is therein, and halowe it with all the vessels therof, that it maye be holye. And thou shalt anoynte the altare of burnt offering and all hys vessels, and sanctifye the altare, that it maye be an altare moost holy. And thou shalt anoynte also the lauer and hys fote, and sanctifye it.

And thou shalt bryng Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of witness, and washe them with water. And thou shalt put vpon Aaron the holy vestimentes, and anoynte him, and sanctifye hym that he maye mynstre vnto me. And thou shalt bryng his sonnes, and clothe them with garmentes, and anoynte them as thou dydest anoynt theyr father, that they maye mynstre vnto me. For theyr anoyntyng shall be an euerlastyng presthode vnto them: thow out theyr generacions. * And Moyses dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp the fyrst daye in the fyrst moneth in the secōde pere. And Moyses reared vp the Tabernacle and fastened hys sockettes, and set vp the boordes

The thynde boke of Moyses called in the hebrue Tariah: and in the Latyn. Leuiticus.

The fyrst Chapter.

The order of the burnt offeringes.

And the Lorde called Moyses, & spake vnto hym oute of the * tabernacle of witness say- * Exo. xxi. 9
inge. Speake vnto the chyldre of Israel, and thou shalt saye vnto them. If a man of you bryng a sacrifice vnto

the Lorde, ye shall bryng yowre sacrifice fro amōge these catell, euen from amōge the ore and the shepe. If hys sacrifice be a burnt offering, let hym offre a male of the ore with out blemyshe, and bryng hym (of hys own volūtary wyl) vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of witness before the Lorde. And he shal put hys hande vpo the heade of the burnt sacrifice, and it shal be accepted for him, to be hys attonement. And he shal kyll the calfe of the bzoue before the Lorde. And the prestes Aarons sonnes, shall bryng the bloude, and sprayncle it rounde aboute vpon the altare, & is by the doze of the Tabernacle of witness. And then shall he flaye the burnt offering, and hewe hym in peces. And the sonnes of Aaron the preast shal put fyre vpon the altare, and put wodd vpon the fyre. And the prestes Aarons sonnes shall laye the partes (euen the heade and the fatt) vpon the wodd that is on the fyre in the altare. But the inwardes and the legges therof shall he washe in water, and the preast shal burne all in the altare, that they maye be a burnt sacrifice for a swete odoure vnto the Lorde.

And if hys sacrifice be of the flockes (namely of the shepe or goates) let hym bryng a male without blemyshe for a burnt offering. And let hym kyll it on the north syde of the alter, before the Lorde. And the prestes Aarons sonnes shall sprayncle the bloude of it rounde aboute vpon the altare. And it shall be cut in peces: euen with hys heed and hys fatt, and the preast shal put them vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon the fyre in the altare. But he shal washe the inwardes and the legges the boordes therof, and put in the barres of it and reared vp hys pyllers, and sprede abrode the tent ouer the habitacyon, & put the coueryng of the tent an hys aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he toke the testimonye, and put it in the arke, & set the barres to the arke, & put the mercyseate an hys vpon the arke, & brought the arke into the habitacyon, & hanged vpon the vayle, & couered the arke of witness, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of witness in the north syde of the habitacyon, (but without the vayle) and set the bread in ordze before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaunded Moyses.

And he put the candestye in the tabernacle of witness oueragaynst the table towards the south syde of the habitacyon, and set vpon the lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And he put the golden alter in the tabernacle of witness before the vayle, and bzent swete cens thereon, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And he hanged vpon the hangyng at the doze of the habitacyon, and set the burnt offering alter by the entyng in of the habitacyon of the tabernacle of witness, and offred burnt offeringes and meate offeringes thereon, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of witness and the alter, and poured water therein, to wash withall. And Moyses Aaron & his sonnes washed their handes, & their fete therat: when they went into the tabernacle of witness, & when they went to the alter they washed them selues as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And he reared vp the courte rounde aboute the habitacyon and the alter, & set vp an hangyng at the courte gate: and so Moyses fynished the worke.

And the clowde couered the tabernacle of witness, and the gloze of the Lorde fylled the habitacyon. And Moyses coude not entre into the tabernacle of witness, because the clowde abode thereon, and the gloze of the Lorde fylled the habitacyon. * (For the clowde had couered all.)

And when the clowde was taken vp from of the habitacyon, the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iorneyes thow out theyr armyes. And whan the clowde was not taken vp, they iorneyed not tyll it was taken vp: for the clowde of the Lorde was vpon the habitacyon by daye, and fyre by nyght: in the syghte of all the house of Israel thow out all theyr armyes.

The ende of the secōde boke of Moyses, called in the hebrue Telle sche-mothe, and in the Latyn Exodus.

legges with water, and the preste shall bring all together, and burne it vpon the alter for a burnt offering of a swete sauoure vnto y^e Lorde. If the burnt offering for the sacrifice of the Lorde be of the fowles, he shall bring his sacrifice of the furrill dones or of the yong pigeons. And the preste shall bring it vnto the alter, and winge the necke a sundre of it, and burne it on the alter. But the blood therof shall runne oute vpon, by the syde of the alter. And he shall plucke away his croppe with his fethers, and cast them besyde the alter on the east parte in the place of ashes. And he shall breke the wynges of it, but plucke them not asunder. And the preste shall burne it vpon the alter, euen vpon the woodd that is vpon the fyre, that it maye be a burnt sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

The ii. Chapter.

The order of meate offerings.

And the soule that wyll offer a meate offering vnto the Lorde, the same offering shall be of fyne flour, and he shall poure oyle vpon it, and put frankincense thereon, and shall bringe it vnto Aarons sonnes the prestes. And he shall take therout his handfull of the flour, and of the oyle wyth all the frankincense, and the preste shall burne it for a memoriall of hym vpon the alter: to be an offering for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And the remnant of the meate offering shall be Aarons and his sonnes, a thyng most holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde: If thou bringe also a meate offering y^e is baken in the oven, let it be a swete cake of fyne flour myngled with oyle, or an vnleuened wafer anoynted wth oyle. If thy meate offering be baken in the ferynge pan, it shall be of swete flour myngled with oyle. And thou shalt mynce it small, & powre oyle thereon, that it maye be a meate offering.

And yf thy meate offering be a thyng broyled vpon the greddyn, let it be of flour myngled with oyle. And thou shalt bringe the meate offering (y^e is made of these thynges) vnto the Lorde, and shalt deliuer it vnto the preste, that he maye offre it vpon the alter, and the preste shall take of the meate offering a memoriall, and shall burne it vpon the alter: that it maye be a burnt offering for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that whiche is left of the meate offering shall be Aarons and his sonnes. It is a thyng most holy of the offerings of the Lorde.

All the meate offerings which ye shall bringe vnto the Lorde, shall be made without leuen. For ye shall nether burne leuen nor honye in any offering of the Lorde: Notwithstanding ye shall bringe the fyrtlynges of them vnto the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the alter for a swete sauoure.

* All the meate offerings also shalt thou season with salt: nether shalt thou suffer the salt of the couenaunt of thy God to be lacking from thy meate offering. but vpon all thyne offerings thou shalt bringe salt. And if thou offre a meate offering of thy fyrt rype frutes vnto the Lorde, thou shalt offre for the meate offering of thy fyrt frutes, eares of corne dryed by the fyre, and corne beaten as meale. And thou shalt put oyle vpon it, and laye frankincense thereon, that it maye be a meate offering. And the preste shall burne parte of the beaten corne & parte of that oyle wyth all the frankincense, for a remembrance. And it shall be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

The iii. Chapter.

The order of peace offerings.

And yf his sacrifice be a peace offering, and he take it from amonge the dzoues, (whether it be male or female) he shall bringe soch as is without blemyshe, before the Lorde: & put his hande vpon the heed of his offering, and kyll it at the doore of y^e tabernacle of witness. And Aarons sonnes the prestes shall sprinkle the bloude vpon the alter rounde aboute. And he shall offre somewhat of the peace offering to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: euen the * fatt that couereth the inwarde, and all the fatt that is aboute the inwarde: and the two kydneys, & the fatt that is on them and vpon the lynes: and the abudaunce that is on the lyuer shall he take awaye wyth the kydneys. And Aarons sonnes shall burne the on the alter vpon the burnt sacrifice whiche is vpon the woodd y^e is on the fyre to be a burnt sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto y^e Lorde.

If he bringe a peace offering vnto the Lorde from of the flocke, let hym offre male or female: but without blemyshe. As yf he offre a shepe for his sacrifice, he shall bringe it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon his offerings heed, and kyll it before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and Aarons sonnes shall sprinkle the bloude therof rounde aboute the alter.

And of the peace offering, let hym bring a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fatt therof, & the rompe all together, whiche they shall take off, harde by the backe bone: and the fatt that couereth the inwarde, and all the fatt that is vpon the inwarde, and the two kydneys, and the fatt that is vpon them & vpon the lynes, and the abudaunce that is vpon the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kydneys. And the preste shall burne them vpon the alter, to be the foode of a sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

If his offering be a goate, he shall bringe it

ge it before the Lorde, & put his hande vpon the heade of it, and kyll it before the Tabernacle of the couenaunt, and the sonnes of Aaron shall sprinkle the bloude therof vpon the alter rounde aboute. And he shall bringe therof, his offering, eue a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fatt that couereth the inwarde, and all the fatt that is vpon the inwarde, and the two kydneys, & the fatt that is vpon them and vpon the lynes, & the abudaunce vpon the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kydneys. And the preste shall burne them vpon the alter for the food of the sacrifice: that all y^e fat maye be a swete sauoure vnto y^e Lorde. Let it be a perpetuall statute for youre generations thowowe oute youre dwellynge, y^e ye eate nether fatt nor * bloude.

The iii. Chapter.

The offering made for synnes done of ignorance.

And the Lorde shalke vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and sape: yf a soule synne thowowe ignorance, and hath done any of those thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in his commaundementes to be done. As yf the preste that is anoynted do synne, * (accordynge to the synne of the people) let hym bringe for his synne whiche he hath synned a yonge ore without blemyshe vnto y^e Lorde for a synne offering. And he shall bringe the yonge ore vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness before the Lorde, and shall put his hande vpon the yonge ore heade, and kill the yonge ore before the Lorde. And the preste that is anoynted * shall take of the yonge ore bloude, and bringe it into the tabernacle of witness, and the preste shall dyppe his synger in the bloude and sprinkle therof seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some of the bloude before the Lorde, vpon the hornes of the alter of swete cens, which is in the tabernacle of witness, and shall powre all the bloude of the yonge ore vnto the botome of the alter of burnt offering, whiche is at the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And he shall take awaye all the fat of the ore that is for synne, the fatt that couereth the inwarde, and all the fatt that is aboute the inwarde, and the two kydneys, and the fatt that is vpon them, and vpon the lynes, and the abudaunce of the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kydneys: as it was taken awaye in the ore of the peace offerings, and let the preste burne them vpon the altare of burnt offering. * But the skyn of the yonge ore, and all his fleshe, with his heed, and his legges, wyth his inwarde, and his donge, shall he beare oute and carye the yonge ore altogether oute of the hoste vnto a cleane place: euen where the ashes are powred out, and burne hym there on woodd in the fyre: eue

by the place where the ashes are cast oute, shall he be bzent. If the hole congregacyon of Israel synne thowowe ignorance, and the thyng be hyd from theyr eyes, so that they haue committed any of those thynges which the Lorde hath forbydden to be done in his commaundementes, and haue offended. When the synne which they haue synned in, is knowne, the congregacyon shall bringe a yonge ore for the synne, and bringe hym before the tabernacle of witness, and the elders of the multitude shall put theyr handes vpon the heed of the yonge ore before the Lorde. And the yonge ore shall be slayne before the Lorde. And the preste that is anoynted, shall bringe of his bloude into the tabernacle of witness, and the preste shall dyppe his synger in the bloude, and sprinkle it seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the vaille. And shall put of the bloude vpon the hornes of the alter, whiche is before the Lorde in the tabernacle of witness, and shall poure all y^e bloude vnto the botome of the alter of burnt offering whiche is before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and shall take all his fatt from hym, and burne it vpon the alter, and shall do with this yonge ore, as he dyd with the yonge ore for synne: euen so shall he do wth this. And the preste shall make an attouement for them, and it shall be forgiven them. And he shall bringe this yonge ore without the hoste, and burne hym as he burned the fyrt. For it is an oblation for the synne of the congregacyon.

When a Lorde synneth, and commytteth thowow ignorance any of these thynges, which the Lorde has God hath forbydden to be done in his commaundementes, and hath offended. And yf his synne be shewed vnto him which he hath done, he shall bringe his offering: euen an he goate without blemyshe, and laye his hande vpon the heed of the he goate, and kill it in the place where the burnt offering is vsed to be kyled before the Lorde. For it is a synne offering. And let the preste take of the bloude of the offering with his synger, and put it vpon y^e hornes of the burnt offering alter, and powre his bloude vnto the botome of the burnt offering alter, & burne all his fatt vpon the alter, as the fat of the peace offerings. And the preste shall make an attouement for hym, as concernynge his synne, and it shall be forgiven hym.

If one of the comen people of the lande synne thowowe ignorance, and commytte any of the thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in his commaundementes to be done, and so hath trespassed: yf his synne whiche he hath synned, come to his knowledge, he shall bringe for his offering, a she goate from amonge the flockes, without blemyshe for his synne which he hath synned, and laye hys hande vpon the heed of the offeringe, and see it in the place of burntofferings. * And the preste shall take of the bloude therof wth hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burntofferinge alter, and poure all the bloud vnto the botome of the alter, and shall take awaye all hys fatt, as the fatt of the peace offeringes is taken awaye. And the preste shall burne it vpon the alter, that it maye be a swete sauoure vnto the Lord, and the preste shall make an attonement for hym, and it shall be forgiven hym.

¶ And yf he bypunge a shepe for a synne offeringe, he shall bypunge a female without blemyshe, and laye hys hande vpon the heed of the offeringe, and see it for a synofferynge in the place where they kyll the burntofferunge. And the preste shall take of the bloude of the offeringe with hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burntofferinge alter, and shall poure the bloude therof vnto the botome of the alter. * And he shall take awaye all the fatt therof, as the fat of the shepe of the peace offeringe is wont to be taken awaye. And the preste shall burne it vpon the alter, that it maye be the Lordes burnt sacrifice, and the preste shall make an attonement for hys synne, that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven hym.

¶ Of othes. The cleaunse of hym that toucheth vncleane thynges. The purgacion of an othe, and of synne done by ignorance.

¶ A soule synne ad heare the voyce of swerynge, and is a witnesse: whether he hath sene or knowne of it, yf he haue not vttered it, he shall bere hys synne. ¶ Ethe yf a soule touche any vncleane thyng: whether it be the carion of an vncleane best, or of vncleane catell, or vncleane worme, and is not ware of it: beholde, he is vncleane and hath offended. ¶ Ethe yf he touche any vncleane of man (whatsoeuer vncleane it be that a man is wont to be defiled withall) and is not ware of it, and cometh to the knowledge of it, he hath trespassed. ¶ Ethe yf a soule sweare and pronounceth with hys lippes to do euill or to do good (whatsoeuer it be that a man vseth to pronounce with an othe) and the thyng be hyd from hym, and cometh to the knowledge of it, and hath offended in one of these. And it shall come to passe that when he hath synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that he hath synned in that thyng. ¶ Therefore shall he bypunge hys trespass offeringe vnto the Lord, for hys synne whiche he hath synned. A female from the flocke, a lambe or a she goate, for a synne offeringe. And the preste shall make an attonement for hym concernynge hys synne. * And yf he be not able to bypunge soche a shepe, he shall bypunge for hys trespass which he hath synned, two turtill doves or two yonge pygeons vnto the Lord, one for a synne offeringe, and the other for a burnt offeringe. And he shall bypunge them vnto the preste, whiche shall offer the synne offeringe first, and wrynge the necke a sundre of it, but plucke it not cleane of. And he shall sprynkle of the bloude of the synne offeringe vpon the syde of the alter, and the reste of the bloude shall he poure by the botome of the alter: for it is a synne offeringe. And he shall offer the seconde for a burnt offeringe as the maner is: and so shall the preste make an attonement for hym (for the synne whiche he hath synned) and it shall be forgiven hym. And yf he be not able to bypunge two turtill doves or two yonge pygeons, then he that hath synned shall bypunge for hys offeringe: the tenth parte of an Epha of fyne flour for a synofferynge, but put none oyle there to, ne her put any frankincense thereon, for it is a synne offeringe. And let the preste offere it, and the preste shall take hys handfull of it, for a remembrance therof, and burne it vpon the alter, to be a sacrifice for the Lord, it is a synne offeringe. And the preste shall make an attonement for hym as touchynge his synne that he hath synned in one of these, & it shall be forgiven. And the remnaute shall be the prestes, as a meat offeringe.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: ¶ Yf a soule trespass and synne thowowe ignorance in thynges that are consecrated vnto the Lord, let hym bypunge for hys trespass vnto the Lord a ram without blemyshe out of the flockes, valued in money at two shecles after the * syde of the sanctuary, that it maye be for a trespass offeringe. And he shall make amēdes for the harme that he hath done in the holy thing, and let him put the fyfte parte more thereto, and geue it vnto the preste. And the preste shall make an attonement for him with the ram that is for the trespass, and it shall be forgiven hym.

¶ Yf a soule synne, and comyt any of these thynges whiche are forbidden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lord: and wytt it not, and hath offended, he shall beare hys synne, and shall bypunge a ram without blemyshe out of the flocke that is esteemed to be worthe a trespass offeringe, vnto the preste. And the preste shall make an attonement for hym concernynge hys ignorance; wherein he erred and was not ware, and it shall be forgiven hym. ¶ This is a trespass offeringe, whiche he offered vnto the Lord for the trespass.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ The offeringes for synnes which are done wyllyngly. The lawe of the burnt offeringes. The fyre must a hyde euermore vpon the altier. The offeringes of Aaron and his sonnes.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: ¶ Yf a soule synne and trespass agaynst the Lord, and denye vnto hys neyghboure that which was taken hym to kepe, or that was put into hys hande, or doth violent robbery or wronge vnto hys neyghboure, or yf he haue founde that whych was loste, and denyeth it, and sweareth falsely, vpon whatsoeuer thyng it be yf a man doth, & synneth therein: yf he haue so synned or trespassed, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently awaye, or the wronge whych he dyd, or that whych was deliuered hym to kepe, or the lost thinge whiche he founde, and all that aboute whych he hath sworne falsely, he shall restore it agayne in y whole summe, and shall adde the fyfth parte more thereto, and geue it vnto hym to whome it pertayneth y same daye that he offereth for his trespass, and let hym bypunge for hys trespass vnto the Lord, a Ram without blemyshe out of the flocke (y is esteemed worth a trespass offeringe) vnto the preste. And the preste shall make an attonement for hym, before the Lord, & it shall be forgiven hym, whatsoeuer thyng it be that he hath done & trespassed therein.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: ¶ Commaunde Aaron and hys sonnes sayinge: this is the lawe of the burnt offeringe. ¶ The burnt offeringe shall be vpo the harty of the alter all nyght vnto the mornynge, & the fyre shall be kyndled on the alter. And y preste shall put on hys * linnen albe, and hys linnen breeches vpon hys fleshe, and take awaye the ashes vpon the whych the fyre consumed the burnt sacrifice in the alter, and he shall put them besyde the alter, and put of his rayment, and put on other, and carpe the ashes out without the host vnto a cleane place.

¶ The fyre vpon the alter shall burne styll, and neuer be put out. But the preste shall laye wodd on it euery daye in the mornynge, & put the burnt sacrifice vpon it, and he shall burne thereon the fatt of the peace offeringes. The fyre shall euer burne vpo the alter, and neuer go out.

witnesse they shall eate it. It shall not be taken wth leuen. I haue geuen it vnto them for theyr porcion of my sacrifices. It is most holy, as is the synne offeringe and trespass offeringe. All the males amonge the chyldre of Aaron shall eate of it: It shall be a statute for euer in youre generacions concernynge the sacrifices of the Lord: let euery one that toucheth it, be holy.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: this is the offeringe of Aaron and of hys sonnes whiche they shall offer vnto the Lord in the daye when he is anoynted: the tenth parte of an Epha of flour, for a meat offeringe perpetuall: halfe in the mornynge and halfe at nyght: In the fryenge pan it shall be made wth oyle. And when it is fryed, thou shalt bypunge it in, and the baken offeringes of this oblation mynsted small, shalt thou offer for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And that preste of his sonnes that is anoynted in hys steade, shall offer it: It is the Lordes dutye for euer: it shall be burnt all together. ¶ For every meate offeringe that is made for the preste, shall be burnt all together, and shall not be eaten. And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and vnto hys sonnes and saye: ¶ This is the lawe of y synne offeringe. In the place where the burnt offeringe is kyled, shall the synne offeringe be kyled before the Lord, for it is most holy. ¶ The preste that offereth it, shall eate it: In the holy place shall it be eaten: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse. No man touche the fleshe therof, saue he that is halowed. And who so spryngleth of the bloude therof vpon any garment, & thou shalt waiche it in the holy place, there as it is spryckled vpon. ¶ But the erthen pot that it is sodden in, shall be broken. And yf it be sodden in a brasen pot, it shall be scowred, and rynsed in the water. All the males amonge the prestes shall eate therof, for it is most holy. And no synne offeringe, whose bloude is brought into the tabernacle of wytnesse to reconyle wth all in the holy place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ Trespass offeringes, synne offeringes, and peace offeringes. The fatt and the bloude maye not be eaten.

¶ This is the lawe of the trespass offeringe: it is most holy. In the place where they kyll the burnt offeringe, shall they kyll the trespass offeringe also: and hys bloude shall he sprynkle rounde aboute vpo the alter. All the fat therof shall they offer: the rumpe and the fat therof that couereth the inwardes, and the ii. kydneyes, and the fatt that is on them and vpo the loynes: and the aboundance that is on the lyuer shalt thou thou take awaye wth the kyndenes: & the breast shall burne them vpon the altare, to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: for it is a trespass offeringe.

All the males amonge the priestes shall eate thereof in the holy place, for it is most holy. As the synne offeringe is, so is the trespass offeringe, one lawe serueth for both, and it shall be the priestes that receyve the wth. And the breast & offeringe any mans burnt offeringe, which he hath offered. And all the meat offeringe that is bakyn in the oven, and that is dressed vpon the greddyn, & in the frynge pan, shall be the priestes that offereth it. And euery meat offeringe that is myngled with oyle, and that is drye, shall pertaine vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as moche as another. This is the lawe of the peace offeringe, whā it is offered vnto the Lorde.

If he offer it to geue thākes, he shall bringe vnto hys thank offeringe, swete cakes myngled wth oyle, & swete wafers anointed wth oyle, and cakes myngled wth oyle of fyne flour fryed. He shall bringe hys offeringe vpon cakes of leuened bread for hys peace offerings to geue thākes: and of all the sacrifice he shall offer one for an heue offeringe vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the priestes that sprynckled the bloude of the peace offerings. And the fleshe of the thank offeringe in hys peace offerings shall be eaten the same daye that it is offered. And let hym lape vpon nothyng of it vntill the morowe. But if he offre hys sacrifice by reason of a vowe, or of hys awne frewyl, it shall be eaten the same daye that he offereth hys sacrifice. And if ought remayne vntill the morowe, it maye be eaten: but as moche of the offered fleshe as remayneth vnto the thyrde daye, shall be burnt wth fyre. And if any of the fleshe of hys peace offerings be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shall he that offereth it, obtayne no fauoure: neither shall it be rekened vnto hym: but shall be an abhomy nation. Therefore the soule that eateth of it, shall beare hys synne. And the fleshe that toucheth any vncleane thyng shall not be eat, but burnt wth fyre: and all that be cleane, shall eate the fleshe. But if any soule eate of the fleshe of the peace offeringe that pertaineth vnto the Lorde haupnge hys vncleanness vpon hym: the same soule shall perishe fro amonge hys people. Moreover, the soule that doth touche any vncleane thyng, that is of the vncleanness of man or of any vncleane beast or any abhomy nation that is vncleane: and then eate of the fleshe of the peace offeringe which pertaineth vnto the Lorde, that soule shall perishe from hys people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye:

* Ye shall eate no maner fatt of oxen of shepe and of goates: neuerthelater the fatt of the beaste that dyeth alone, and the fatt of that which is tozne wth wyld beasts, shall be occupied in any maner of vse, but ye shall in no wise eate of it. For whosoever eateth the fatt of the beaste of which men vse to bringe an offeringe vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it, shall perishe from his people. Moreover, ye shall eate no maner of bloude, whether it be of foule or of beast. Whatsoever soule it be that eateth any maner of bloude, the same soule shall perishe fro hys people.

And the Lorde talked wth Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: he that bringeth hys peace offeringe vnto the Lorde, let hym bringe hys gyfte vnto the Lorde of hys peace offeringe: let his awne handes bringe the offerings of the Lorde: euen the fatt wth the breast shall he bringe: that the breast maye be wauched for a waue offeringe before the Lorde. And the breast shall burne the fatt vpon the alter, and the breast shall be Arons & hys sonnes. And the ryght shoulder shall ye geue vnto the priest, for an heue offeringe, of your peace offerings. The same that offereth the bloude of the peace offerings and the fatt, amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the ryght shoulder for his parte, for the wauchest and the heue shoulder haue I taken of the chyldren of Israel, euen of their peace offerings, and haue geuen it vnto Aaron & vnto hys sonnes: by a statute for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the anointynge of Aaron and the anointynge of his sonnes in the sacrifices of the Lorde, in the daye when he offered the to be priestes vnto the Lorde. And these be the sacrifices which the Lorde commaunded to be geuen them (in the daye of the anointynge) of the chyldren of Israel, by a statute for euer in the generacions. This is the lawe of the burnt offeringe and of the meat offeringe, and of the sacrifice for synne and trespass, for consecracyn & for the peace offeringe: which the Lorde commaunded Moses in the mount of Synai, when he commaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer their sacrifices vnto the Lorde in the wyldernes of Synai.

The viij. Chapter.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take Aaron & hys sonnes with him, and the vestures & the anointynge oyle, and a ponge ore for synne, & two rāmes, and a basket wth swete breed: and gather thou all the congregacion together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded hym, &

hym, and the people were gathered together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses sayde vnto the congregacion: this is the thyng which the Lorde commaunded to be done.

And Moses brought Aaron & hys sonnes, and washed them wth water, and put vpon hym the albe, & girded him wth a girdle, & put vpon hym the tunicle, & (of palowe spike) and put the Ephod thereon, which he girded wth the broderd gyrdell that was in the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therwth. And he put the breastlappe thereon, and put in the breastlappe Arim & thumim. And he put the myter vpon hys heed, and put vpon the myter (euen vpon the forefront of hys face) the golde plate of the holy crowne, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And Moses toke the anointynge oyle, and anointed the Tabernacle, and all that was therein, and sanctified them, and sprynckled thereof vpon the alter seuen tymes, and anointed the alter, and all hys vessels, the lauer & his fote, to sanctifye the (wth the oyle.) And he powred of the anointynge oyle vpon Arons heed, and anointed hym, to sanctifye hym. And Moses brought Arons sonnes, & put albes vpon them, and girded them wth gyrdels, & put bonettes vpon their heeds: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the ponge ore for synne, and Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ponge ore that was for synne. And Moses slewe hym, & toke of the bloude, which he put vpon the hornes of the alter rounde about wth hys synger, & purified it, and powred the bloude vnto the botome of the alter, & sanctified it, and receyved it. And he toke all the fatt that was vpon the inwarde, and the abundaunce of the lyuer and the two kyndenes, and theyr fatt, & Moses burned it vpon the alter. But the ponge ore and hys hyde, his fleshe and his doge, he burnt wth fyre without the holte, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the ram for the burnt offeringe, and Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ram, which Moses kyled, and sprynckled the bloude vpon the alter rounde about, and Moses cut the ram in peces and burnt the heed, the peces and the fatte, and washed the inwarde & the legges in water, and Moses burnt the ram euer wth vpon the alter, for a burnt sacrifice, that it myght be a swete sauoure, and an offeringe vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the other ram, namely the ram of consecracyn (of the priestes) & Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the rā: which Moses slewe, and toke of the bloude of it, and put it vpon the tpype of Arons ryght eare, & vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, & vpon the gret too of his ryght fote. And Moses brought Arons sonnes, & put of the bloude (of the rā) on tpype of the ryght eare of the, & vpon the thombes of theyr ryght handes, and vpon the greate tooes of theyr right fete, and Moses sprynckled the bloude vpon the alter rounde about.

And he toke the fatte and the roumpe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwarde, and the abundaunce of the lyuer, and the kyndenes wth theyr fatt, & the ryght shoulder. And out of the basket of swete bread was before the Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled bread, & one wafer, & put them on the fatt & vpon the ryght shoulder: & put altogether vpon Arons handes, & vpon hys sonnes handes, & wauched it a waue offeringe before the Lorde. And Moses toke them from euen vpon the burnt offeringe alter: for it was the sacrifice of consecracyn, for a swete sauoure & a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moses toke the breast and wauched it for a waue offeringe before the Lorde, for it was of the ram of the consecracyn, and it was Moses parte, as the Lorde comaunded Moses.

And Moses toke of the anointynge oyle, and of the bloude which was vpon the alter, and sprynckled it vpon Aaron and vpon hys vestimentes, vpon hys sonnes & on hys sonnes vestimentes wth him, and sanctified Aaron, his vestures & hys sonnes, & hys sonnes vestures wth hym. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and hys sonnes: boyle the fleshe in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and there eate it wth the bread that is in the basket of consecracyn, as I commaunded, sayinge: Aaron and hys sonnes shall eate it: & that which remayneth of the bread, shall ye burne wth fyre.

And ye shall not departe from the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. viij. dayes, vntill the dayes of your consecracyn be at an ende. For viij. dayes shall ye fyll your hande as he dyd the daye: euen so the Lorde hath commaunded to do, to reconyle you wth all. Therefore shall ye abide in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse daye and nyght seuen dayes longe: & kepe the watche of the Lorde, and ye shall not dye: for so I am commaunded. And so Aaron & his sonnes dyd all thynges which the Lorde comaunded by the hande of Moses.

The ix. Chapter.

The first offerings of Aaron, Aaron blessed the people the gloire of the Lorde is shewed.

And it fortuned that in the eight daye, Moses called Aaron and hys sonnes, and the elders of Israel: and sayde vnto Aaron: take the a casse, a yoge one out of the droue, & for synne, & a rā for a burnt offeringe:

fringe: both wythout blemyshe, and bypunge them before the Lorde. And vnto the chyldre of Israel thou shalt speake, sayinge: take ye an he goote for synne, & a calfe and a lambe bothe two of a yere olde, wythout blemyshe for a burnt sacrifice, and an oxe and a Ram for peaceoffrynges, to offer before the Lorde, and a meateoffrynge myngled with oyle, for to daye the Lorde will appere vnto you. And they brought that (which Moses commaunded) before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the congregacyon came and stode before the Lorde. And Moses sayd: this is the thing, whych the Lorde commaunded that ye shulde do: and the glorie of the Lorde shall appere vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: go vnto the alter and offer thy sacrifice for synne, and make an attonement for the and for the people: & thou shalt offer the offrynge of the people, to reconceyle them, as the Lorde commaunded.

Aaron therfore went vnto the alter, and slewe the calfe whych he had for synne. And the sonnes of Aaron broughte the bloude vnto hym, and he dypte hys spnger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the alter, and powred the bloude vnto the botome of the alter. But the fatt and the two kydneys and the abundaunce of the lyuer of the synneoffrynge, he burnt vpon the alter, as the Lorde commaunded Moses: The fleshe and the hyde, he burnt wyth fyre without the holste. And he slewe the burntoffrynge * and the sonnes of Aaron brought vnto hym the bloude, whych he sprynkled rounde about vpon the alter. And they brought the burnt offrynge vnto hym with the peccs therof, and the head: and he burnt it vpon the alter, and dyd wale the inwardes and the legges, and burnt them vpon the burntoffrynge in the alter.

And then he broughte the peoples offryng, takinge the goote that the people had for the sacrifice of synne, and slewe it and offered it for synne, as he dyd the fyrst. And brought the burntoffrynge, and offered it as the manner was * and brought the meateoffrynge, and fylled hys hande therof, and burnt it vpon the alter, besyde the burnt sacrifice of the moynynge.

He slewe also the oxe & the Ram for the peaceoffrynge, that the people had for them selues: and Aarons sonnes brought vnto hym the bloude, whych he sprynkled vpon the alter rounde about, and toke the fatt of the oxe and of the Ram, the roupe, and the fatt that couereth the inwardes and the kydneys & the abundaunce of the lyuer: and they put the fatt vpon the bestes, and he burnt the fatt vpon the alter: but the bestes and the ryght shoulders Aaro waued for a waueoffrynge before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded

Moses. And Aaron lyfte vp hys hande ouer the people, and blessed them, and came doune from offrynge of the synneoffrynge, burnt offrynges & peaceoffrynges. And Moses & Aaro went in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, & came out, and blessed the people, and the glorie of the Lorde appered vnto all the people. * And there came a fyre out from before the Lorde, & consumed vpon the alter the burntoffryng & the fatt. Whych whan all the people sawe, they gaue thankes, and felle on theyr faces.

The .x. Chapter.

Nadab & Abihu are slayne. Israel mourneth for them. The 19. verses are for bydden wyne.

And Nadab and Abihu the sonnes of Aaron toke ether of them this censer, & put fyre therein, & put censers ther vpon, & offered strange fyre before the Lorde: whych he commaunded them not, & there went a fyre out from the Lorde, & consumed the. & they dyed before the Lorde. Then Moses sayde vnto Aaron: thys is it y the Lorde spake sayinge: I wyll be sanctified in them that come nye me and before all the people I wyll be glorified. And Aaron helde hys peace. And Moses called Elisapha the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, and sayde vnto the: come on, carpe poure brethren fro the holy place out of the holste. And they went to them, and carped the in theyr albes out of the holste, as Moses had sayde.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes: vncouer not poure heedes, neither rent poure clothes, lest ye dye, and lest wrath come vpon all the people: But let poure brethren the hole house of Israel bewepe the burnynge whych the Lorde hath kyndled. And go not ye out from the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye: for the anoyntynge oyle of God is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses sayde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron, saying: Thou shalt not drynke wyne & stronge drynke, thou and thy sonnes that are wyth the: when ye go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye. Let it be a lawe for euer thow rowe out poure generacions, and y pe may (haue knowledge to) put difference betwene holy & unholy, betwene vncleane & cleane, & y pe may teach the chyldre of Israel all y statutes whych whych the Lorde hath spoken vnto them by the hande of Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar hys sonnes that were left: take the meateoffrynge that remaineth of the sacrifices of the Lorde, and eate it wythout leuen besyde the alter, for it is most holy: ye shall eate it in the holy place, because it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye of the sacrifices of the Lorde: for so I am commaunded. And the wauebest and heue-shoulder shall ye eate in a cleane place: thou and thy sonnes and thy daughters wyth the. For they be thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye geuen out of the peaceoffrynges of the chyldre of Israel: The heue-shoulder and the wauebest shall they bypunge in wyth the sacrifices of the fatt, to waue it before the Lorde, and it shalbe thine and thy sonnes wyth the: by a lawe for euer, as the Lorde hath commaunded.

And Moses sought the goate that was offered for synne, and se, it was burnt. And he was angrye with Eleazar and Ithamar the sonnes of Aaron, whyche were left alyue, sayinge: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offrynge in the holy place, scynge it is moost holy: and God hath geuen it you, to bere the synne of the congregacyon, to make agremment for them before the Lorde? Beholde, the bloud of it was not brought in with in the holy place. Ye shulde haue eate it in the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron sayde vnto Moses: beholde, thys daye haue they offered theyr synneoffrynge and theyr burntoffrynge before the Lorde, & and it is chaunced me after thys maner. And yf I had eaten the sacrifice to daye, shulde it haue bene accepted in the syght of the Lorde? And when Moses hearde that, he was content.

The .xi. Chapter.

Of beastes, whych be cleane, and whych vncleane.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron and sayde vnto them: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, & saye: these are the beastes whych ye shall eate, amonge all the cattell that are on the earth:

whatsoever parteth the hooffe, and deuydeth it into two clawes, and chaweth cud amonge the beastes, that shall ye eate. Neuerthelesse, these shall ye not eate, of them that chewe cud, & deuydeth the hooffes: as is the camell, whych chaweth cud, but he deuydeth not the hooffe, therfore is he vncleane vnto you, eno so the conye, whych chaweth the cud but deuydeth not the hooffe: he is vncleane to you. And the hare though he chawe y cud, yet because he deuideth not the hooffe, he is therfore uncleane to you. And agayne, the swyne, though he deuyde the hooffe i to two clawes, yet he chaweth not the cud. he is vncleane to you. Of theyr fleshe shall ye not eate, & theyr carkasses shall ye not touche, but let them be vncleane to you.

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: whatsoever hath fynnes and scales in the waters, sees and ryuers, that shall ye eate. And all that haue not fynnes and scales in the see and ryuers, of all that mone and lyue in the waters, let them be abhominacyon vnto you: Ye shall not eate of theyr fleshe, but abhorre theyr carkasses. Let all that haue no fynnes nor scales in the waters, be abhominable vnto you. These are they whych ye shall abhorre amonge the foules, and that ought not to be eaten, for they are an abhominacyon. The egles, the goshaue, & the cozmozante, the vulture and the kpte after hys kynde, and all rauens after theyr kynde, the estrich, the nyghtcrowe, the cockowe, and the owle after hys kynde, the falcon, the storcke, the great oule, the bakke, the pellycane, the pye, the heron, the Jape after hys kynde, the lapwynge: and the swalowe. Let all foules that crepe & goo vpon all foure, be an abhominacyon vnto you.

Yet these maye ye eate, of euery creppynge thyng that hath wynges and goo apō foure fete: euen those that haue knes aboue vpon theyr fete, to lepe wyth all vpon the erthe, euen these of them ye maye eate: the. Arbe after hys kynde: the. Selaam after hys kynde: the. Hargol after hys kynde, and the. Hagab after hys kynde. All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shalbe abhominacyon vnto you. In soche ye be vncleane, and whosoever toucheth the carkass of them, shalbe vncleane vnto the euen: and whosoever bereth the carkasse of them, shall walke hys clothes, and be vncleane vntyll euen.

And euery beast that hath hooffe and deuydeth it not into two clawes, ner chaweth cud, suche are vncleane vnto you: euery one y toucheth them, shalbe vncleane.

And what soeuer goeth vpon hys handes amonge all maner beastes that goo on all foure fete, such are vncleane vnto you: & who so doth touche theyr carkasse: shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And he that beareth the carkasse of them, shall walke hys clothes, & be vncleane vntyll the eue, for soche are vncleane vnto you.

And let these also be vncleane to you, amonge the thynges that crepe vpon the erth, the weasell, and the mouse, & the toade, after theyr kynde, the hedgehogge, the stello, the lacerte, the snayle, and the molle: these are vncleane to you amonge all that crepe: whosoever doth touche them when they be dead, f iij shalbe

And what soeuer any of the dead carkasses of the doth fall vpon, shalbe vncleane: whether it be vellell of wodd, or rayment, or skynne, or bagge, or what soeuer vessell it be p any worke is wroughte in. And it must be pliged in the water, & it shall be vncleane vntyll the eue, and so shall it be clenfed.

If All maner of ertben vessell wherinto any of them falleth, shalbe vncleane, wyth all p ther in is: and it shall be broken. All maner meate also that is vled to be eaten, p any soche water come vpon it, it shalbe vncleane. And all maner dypncke that is vled to be droncke in all maner soche vessels, shalbe vncleane. And euery thyng that theyr carcase falleth vpon, shalbe vncleane: Whether it be ouen or kettell, let it be broken. For they are vncleane, and shalbe vncleane vnto you: Neuerthelater, yet the fountaynes and welles & collection of waters shalbe cleane still. And whoso toucheth theyr carkasse, shalbe vncleane.

If the dead carkasse of any soche fall vpo any sced vled to sowe, it shall yet be cleane still: but and p any water be powred vpon the sced, & a dead carkasse fall theron, it shalbe vncleane vnto you.

If any beast of whych ye maye cate, dye and any man touche the dead carkasse thereof, he shalbe vncleane vntyll the eue. he that eateth of the dead carkasse of it, shal walsh his clothes and be vncleane vntyll the eue. And he also that beareth the carkasse of it, shal walsh his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll euen.

Let euery creeping thyng that creepeth vpon the erth be an abhominacyon, and not be eaten. Whatsoeuer goeth vpon the vrest, and whatsoeuer goeth vpon foure, or that hath moo fete amonge all creeping thynges that crepe vpo the erth, of that se ye eate not for they are abhominable. This is the lawe of bestes and foules & of euery lypunge creature that moueth in y waters, and of euery creature that creepeth vpon the erth, that there maye be a difference betwene the vncleane & cleane, and betwene the beaste that maye be eaten, & the beaste that ought not to be eaten.

The. xij. Chapter.

The lawe howe women shulde be purged after theyr deliuerance.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: I speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: p a woman hath conceaued, & borne a manchylde, she shalbe vncleane seuen dayes: euen in lyke maner as when she is put a parte in tyme of hyr naturall dyscase. And in the eyght daye the fleshe of the chyldes * forskynne shalbe cut awaye. And she shall then continue in the bloude of hyr purgynge thre and thyrtye dayes. She shall touche no valed thyng, nor come into the sanctuary, vntyll the tyme of hyr purgynge be out. If she bere a maydechylde, she shalbe vncleane two weekes, as when she hath hyr naturall dyscase. And she shall continue in the bloude of hyr purgynge thre scoze and fyre dayes.

* And when the dayes of hyr purgynge are out: whether it be for a sonne or for a daughter, she shall byynge a labe of one yea- re olde for a burnt offeringe, and a younge pigeon or a turtill done for synne vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse and vnto the Prcast: whych shall offer them befoze the Lorde, and make an attonement for her, and she shalbe purged of the pssue of hyr bloude. * And this is the lawe for her that hath borne a male or female. But and yf she be not able to byynge a lambe, she shall byynge * two turtills or two younge pygeons: the one for the burnt offeringe, and the other for synne. And the Prcast shall make an attonement for her, and she shalbe cleane.

The. xij. Chapter.

The Prcastes must iudge who are Lepers.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: when there appeareth a rpsynge in any mans fleshe, ether a scabbe, or a glystryng whyte: and the plage of leprosy be in the skynne of hys fleshe, he shall be brought vnto Aar the Prcast, or vnto one of hys sonnes the Prcastes: and the Prcast shall loke on the soze in the skynne of hys fleshe. And whan the heere in the soze is turned vnto whyte, and the soze also seme to be lower then the skynne of his fleshe, it wyll be a plage of leprosy, and the Prcast shall loke on hym, and iudge hym vncleane.

If there be but a whyte plecte in the skynne of hys fleshe, and seme not to be lower the skynne, nor the heere thereof is turned vnto whyte, the Prcast shall shut him vp seue dayes. And the Prcast shall loke vpon hym agayne the seuenth daye: And yf p plage seme to him to abyde still, & p plage growe not in the the skynne the Prcast shall shut him vp yet vij. dayes moo. And the Prcast shall loke on hym agayne the vij. daye. Then yf the plage be darcker, & not growen in the skynne, the Prcast shall iudge hym cleane, for it is but a scabbe. And he shall walsh his clothes, & be cleane. But yf the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the Prcast, & iudged cleane, he shalbe sene of the prest agayne. If the prest se p the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, the prest shall make hym vncleane: for it is a leprosy.

When the plage of leprosy is in a man he shall be brought vnto the Prcast, and the Prcast shall se hym. And yf the rpsynge be whyte in the skynne, and haue made the heere whyte, and there be rawe fleshe in the soze it wyll be an olde leprosy in the skynne of his fleshe. And the Prcast shall make hym vncleane, and shall not shutte hym vp seynge he is vncleane.

If a leprosy breake out abrode in the skynne, & couer all the skynne, from hys heed to hys foote, wher soeuer the Prcast loketh, and the Prcast loke vpo him. And yf the leprosy haue couered all hys fleshe, he shall iudge the plage to be cleane because it is all turned into whytneesse, & he shalbe cleane. But ad yf there be rawe fleshe on hys whiche he is sene, he shalbe vncleane. And yf Prcast shall se p rawe fleshe, and declare him to be vncleane. For the rawe fleshe is vncleane seynge it is a leprosy. Or yf the rawe fleshe departe agayne & chaunge vnto whyte, he shall come to the prest, and the prest shall se him & beholde: If the soze be chaunged vnto whyte (and couer the whole man) the Prcast shall iudge the plage cleane & he shalbe cleane: The fleshe also in whose skinne there is a byle & is healed, & in the place of p byle there appeare a whyte rpsynge, ether a chynynge whyte & somwhat reddish, it shall be sene of the Prcast. And yf whiche the Prcast seyth hym, it appeare lower than the skynne, & the heere thereof be chaunged vnto whyte, the Prcast shall iudge hym vncleane: for it is a plage of leprosy, broken out of the byle.

But yf the Prcast loke on it and there be no whyte heeres therein, & yf it be not lower then the skynne, but be darcker, the Prcast shall shut hym vp. vij. dayes. And yf it sprede abrode in the fleshe, the prest shall make hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage. But and yf the spot stode still, & growe not, it is the pynte of an hote byle, and therfore the prest shall declare hym to be cleane. Yf there be any fleshe, in whose skynne there is a hote burnynge, and the fleshe that burneth haue a whyte spott, somwhat reddish or whyte, p prest shall loke vpon it. And yf the heere in that byght spot be chaunged to whyte, and it appeare lower then the skynne, it is a leprosy broken out of the burnynge. And therfore the Prcast shall iudge hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage of leprosy. But yf the prest loke on it & there be no whyte heere in the byghte spott, and be no lower then the other skynne, but be darcker, the prest shall shut him vp seue dayes. And the prest shall loke on hym the seuenth daye: And yf it be growe abrode in the skynne, the prest shall iudge hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage of leprosy. And yf the spot stode still in it, & growe not in the skynne, but is darcke, it is a rpsynge of the burnynge, & the Prcast shall therfore declare hym cleane, seynge it is the pynte of the burnynge.

If man or woman hath a soze vpon the heed or the beard, the prest shall se it. And yf it appeare lower than the skynne, & ther be in it a palowe heere: & thynne (more then it was wont to be) the Prcast shall iudge hym vncleane, seynge that the same fretynge is a token of leprosy vpon the heed or berde. And yf the prest loke on the soze of the pynte, ad it seme not lower then the skynne, and that the heere is not blacke, the Prcast shall shut vp the fretynge soze seuen dayes. And in the seuenth daye the prest shall loke on the soze: and yf the soze be not growen, and there be in it no palowe hayre, and the soze seme not lower then the skynne, he shalbe chaunc: but the place of the soze shall be not chaunc, & the prest shall shut vp the soze seuen dayes moo. And in the seuenth daye the prest shall loke on the soze: And if the soze be not growe in the skynne, ner seme lower then the other skynne, the prest shall clenfe hym, & he shall walsh his clothes, and be cleane. But yf the soze growe in the fleshe after hys clenfynge, the prest shall loke on hym. And yf the soze be growne in p skynne, the prest shall not se he for pelowe heere, for he is vncleane. But if he se the pynte stode still, and that there is blacke heere growne vpon therin, the soze is healed, and he shalbe cleane, and the prest shall declare hym to be cleane. Yf there be whyte spottes in the skynne of the fleshe of man or woman, the prest shall loke vpo it. And yf the spottes in the skynne of theyr fleshe be somwhat darcke & whyte wythall, (he maye be sure, that it is no leprosy) it is a freckell growynge in the fleshe: Therfore is he cleane.

And the man (whose heade is destitute of heere, wherby he is made balde) is cleane. And he that hath hys heere out in his foreheade, is forehead balde and cleane. If there be in the baulde heed or baulde forehead a whyte reddish soze scabbe, there is leprosy spronge vpon hys baulde heed or baulde foreheade. And the prest shall loke vpon him, and yf the rpsynge of the soze be whyte reddish in hys baulde heed or balde foreheade after the maner of a leprosy which is in the skynne skynne of the fleshe, then he is a leperous man and vncleane. And the Preeste shall make hym vncleane, for the plage therof is in hys heed. The leper in whome the plage is, shall haue hys clothes rent, and hys heed bare and shall put a couerynge vpon hys lyppe, and shall be called vncleane and defyled. And as longe as the dyscase lasteth vpon hym, he shall be defyled and vncleane: he shall dwell alone, euen wpythout the host shall hys habitacyon be.

The cloth that the plage of leprosy is in, whether it be linnen or wollen, whether it be in the warpe or woofe of linnen or of wollen: ether in a skynne or any thyng made of skynne, yf the dyscase be pale or somewhat reddish in the cloth or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or woofe or any thyng that is made of skynne, then it is a plage of leprosy, and shall be shewed vnto the preeste. The preeste therfore shall se the plage, and cut it vpon seuē dayes, and loke on the plage the seuēth daye. Whych yf it be increased in the cloth (whether it be in the warpe or woofe, or in a skynne) or in any thyng that is made of skynne it is the leprosy of a frettinge soze: it is vncleane: & that cloth shall be burnt, ether warpe or woofe whether it be wollen or linnen, or any thyng that is made of skynne, where in the plage is, for it is a frettinge leprosy, it shall be burnt in the fyre.

If the Preeste se that the plage is not growen in the cloth: ether in the warpe or woofe or in whatsoeuer thyng of skynne it be, the preeste shall commaunde them to wash the thyng wherin the plage is, and he shall cut it vpon seuē dayes moore. And yf the preeste shall loke on the plage agayne, after that it is washed. And yf the plage haue not chaunged hys colour, and is sprede no further abrode, it is vncleane. Thou shalt burne it in the fyre, for it is fret inwarde: in parte or in all together. And yf the Preeste se that the plage is darker after that it is washed, he shall ret it out of the cloth, or out of the skynne, or out of the warpe or out of the woofe. And yf it appeare any moare in the cloth (ether in the warpe or in the woofe or in any thyng made of skynne) it is a waxinge plage. Thou shalt burne the plage that is in it. And yf the cloth, ether warpe or woofe or whatsoeuer thyng of skynne it be whych thou hast washed, yf the plage be departed there from, it shall be washed once agayne: and then shall it be cleane. This is the lawe of the plage of leprosy in a cloth whether it be wollen or linnen: ether in the warpe or woofe, or in any thyng of skynnes, to make it cleane or vncleane.

The. xliij. Chapter.

The cleansing of the leper, and of the house that he is in.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: * this is the lawe of the leper in the daye of hys cleansing: he shall be brought vnto the preeste, and the preeste shall go out wpythout the hoste, and loke vpon hym. And yf the plage of leprosy be healed in the leper, then shall the Preeste commaunde that he whych is to be cleansed, bringe two luynges byrdes and cleane, and cedar wodd, and purple cloth, and plope. And the Preeste shall commaunde that one of the byrdes be kylled in an erthen vessell & vpon rennyng water. And he shall take the luyng byrde with the cedar wodd, the purple and the plope, and shall dyppe them and the luyng byrde in the bloude of the slayne byrde, vpon the rennyng water, and spraye vpon hym (that must be cleansed of hys leprosy) seuē tymes, and cleanse hym, and shall let the luyng byrde goo fre into the felde.

And he that is cleansed, shall wash his clothes, and haue of all hys heere, and wash hym selfe in water, that he maye be cleane. And after that shall he come into the hoste, & shall tarye wpythout hys tent seuē dayes: but in the seuēth daye he shall haue of all hys heere, namely, hys head, hys verbe and hys browes: euen all hys heere shall be shauen of. And he shall wash his clothes & hys fleshe in water, and he shall be cleane.

In the eyght daye he shall take two lambes wpythout blemyshe, and an yewell be of a yere olde without blemyshe, and thre tenthdeales of fyne floure for a meatoffryng mingled wpyth oyle and a logge of oyle. And the Preeste that maketh hym cleane, shall bringe the man that is to be made cleane and those thynges, before the Lorde, euen before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Preeste shall take one lambe, and offer hym for trespass, & the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And he shall see the lambe in the place where the synnecoffryng and the burnt-offryng are slayne: euen in the holy place. For as the synnecoffryng is, euen so is the trespass offryng the preestes: seying it is moost holy.

And the preeste shall take of the bloude of the trespass offryng, & put it vpon the tpype of the ryght eare of hym that is to be cleansed, & vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote. The preeste shall take of the logge of oyle, & powre it into the palme of hys left hande, and dyppe hys ryght fynger in the oyle that is in hys left hande, and spraye of the oyle wpyth hys fynger seuē tymes before the Lorde,

And of the rest of the oyle that is in hys hande, shall the Preeste put vpon the tpype of the ryght eare of hym that is to be cleansed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote: euen vpon the bloude of the trespass offryng. And the remnaunte of the oyle that is in the Preestes hande, he shall powre vpon the heed of hym that is to be cleansed: and the Preeste shall make an attonement for hym before the Lorde.

And the Preeste shall offer the synne offryng, and make an attonement for hym that is to be cleansed, for hys vncleanness. And then shall he kyl the burnt offryng, and the Preeste shall offer the burnt offryng and the meat offryng vpon the alter: & the preeste shall make an attonement for hym, and he shall be cleane. * If he be poore, and can not gett so moche, he shall take one lambe for a trespass offryng to waue it for hys cleansing, and a tenth deale of fyne floure mingled wpyth oyle for a meat offryng, and a logge of oyle, and two turtill doves or two yonge pigeons, such as he is able to gett, wherof the one shall be for synne, and the other for a burnt offryng. And he shall bringe them the vij. daye for hys cleansing vnto the Preeste before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde.

And the Preeste shall take the lambe that is for the trespass, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And he shall kyl the lambe for the trespass, and the Preeste shall take of the bloude of the trespass offryng, and put it vpon the tpype of hys ryght eare that is to be cleansed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote. And yf the preeste shall powre of the oyle into hys ryght hande, and the preeste shall wpyth hys fynger spraye of the oyle that is in hys left hande, seuē tymes before the Lorde.

And the Preeste shall put of the oyle that is in hys hande vpon the tpype of the ryght eare of hym that is to be cleansed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespass offryng was put. And the reste of the oyle that is in the preestes hande, he shall put vpon the heed of hym that is to be cleansed: that he maye make an attonement for him before the Lorde. And he shall offer one of the turtill doves or of the yonge pigeons, soche as he can gett: the one for a synnecoffryng and the other for a burnt offryng wpyth meat offryng. And the Preeste shall make an attonement for hym that is to be cleansed before the Lorde. This is the lawe of hym in whom is the plage of leprosy, and whose hande is not able to gett that whych pertaineth to hys cleansyng.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan whych I geue you in possession. And yf I put the plage of leprosy in a house of the lande of youre possession, he that oweth the house shall come, and tell the preeste, sayinge: me thynke that there is as it were a leprosy in the house. And the preeste shall commaunde them to emptye the house, before the Preeste goo into it to se the plage: that all that is in the house be not made vncleane, and then must the Preeste go in to se the house.

If the Preeste also se that the plage is in the walles of the house, and that there be howe strakes pale or rede whych seeme to be lower then the wall it selfe, the Preeste shall go out at the house dozes, and shut vp the house seuē dayes. And the Preeste shall come agayne the seuēth daye, and yf he se that the plage be increased in the walles of the house, the Preeste shall commaunde them to take awaye the stones in which the plage is, & let them cast them into a foule place wpythout the cytie, and he shall commaunde the house to be scraped wpythyn rounde aboute, and powre out the dust (that they scrape of) wpythout the cytie into a foule place. And they shall take other stones, and put them in the places of those stones, and other morter, to plaster the house wpythall. And yf the plage come agayne and breake out in the house, after that he hath taken awaye the stones & scraped the walles of the house, and after that he hath playstered the house anewe: the Preeste shall come and se it. And yf he perceaue that the plage hath growne further in the house, it is a frettinge leprosy in the house. It is therfore vncleane. And he shall breake downe the house. And the stones of it, & the tymber therof, & all the morter of the house, shall he carrie out of the cytie vnto a foule place. And yf he that goeth into the house all the while that it is shut vp, shall be vncleane vntyll the euen: he that slepeth in the house, shall wash his clothes: he lykwys that eateth in the house, shall wash his clothes.

And yf the Preeste come and se, that the plage hath sprede no further in the house (after that it is newe playstered) the Preeste shall iudge that house cleane, because the plage is healed. And let hym take to cleanse the house wpythall: two byrdes, cedar wodd, purple clothe and plope. And he shall kyl one of the byrdes in an erthen vessell and vpon rennyng water: & take the cedar wodd, & the plope, & the purple w the luyng byrde, & dyppe the in the bloude of the slayne byrde, and in the rennyng water, and spraye the house seuē tymes, & cleanse the house with the bloude of the of the byrde and wyth the runnyng water, with the luyng byrde, with cedar wodd, and the yfop, and the purple clothe. But he shall lett the luyng byrde flee oute of the towne into the byrde felde, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plage of leprosy and breakyng out, and of the leprosy of clothe and house: for a swellynge for a scabbe, and for a whyte blyster. To teach the whan it must be made vncleane and cleane. This is the lawe of leprosy.

The xv. Chapter.

The manner of purgynge the vncleannes bothe of men and women.

Ad the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayynge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: Whosoever hath a runnyng yssue out of his fleshe, is vncleane by reason of his vncleannes in his yssue: when he is vncleane. If his fleshe runne, or if his fleshe congele by the reason of his yssue, then is it vncleannes. Every couche wheron he lyeth that hath the yssue, is vncleane: and every thyng wheron he sitteth, is vncleane: Whosoever toucheth his couche, shall washe his clothes, & bath him selfe in water, & be vncleane vntill the euen.

And he that sitteth on any thyng wheron he satt that hath the yssue, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, & be vncleane vntill the euenyng. He that toucheth the fleshe of him that hath yssue, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. If he also that hath the yssue, sitt vpon hym that is cleane, he shall washe his clothes, & bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vntill the euen. And what horse harnesser he rydeth vpon that hath the yssue, shall be vncleane. And whosoever toucheth any thyng that was vnder hym, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any soche thynges, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And whosoever he toucheth that hath the yssue (& haue not fyrst washed his handes in water) shall washe his clothes, & bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. The vessel of erth that he toucheth, whych hath the yssue, shall be broken: and all vessels of wodd shall be ryned in water.

When he also that hath an yssue, is clenfed of his yssue, he shall nombe. vii. dayes for his clenfyng, and washe his clothes, & bathe his fleshe in runnyng water, and so shall he be cleane. And the. viij. daye he shall take to him two turtill doves or two pounge pygeons, and come before the Lord vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness, & geue them vnto the prest. And the prest shall offer them: the one for a synne offryng, and the other for a burnt offryng: and the prest shall make an attonement for hym before the Lord, as concernynge his yssue.

If any mans seede departe from hym in his slepe, he shall washe his fleshe in water, and be vncleane vntill the euen. And all the clothes and all the furre wherin is suche seede of slepe, shall be washed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And if he that hath suche an yssue of seide, do lyeth wyth a woman, they shall both washe them selues with water, and be vncleane vntill the euen.

If a womans naturall course of bloude do runne, she shall be put aparte. vii. dayes: whosoever toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth vpon, in the tyme of her naturall disease, shall be vncleane, lyke as every thyng also that she sitteth vpon, is vncleane. Whosoever toucheth her bedd, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And whosoever toucheth any thyng that she sat vpon, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: so that whether he touche her couche or any vessel where on she hath sitt, he shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And if a man lyeth vnto her, and her vncleannes come vpon hym, he shall be vncleane. vii. dayes, and all the couche wheron he lyeth shall be vncleane.

* When a womans bloude runneth longe tyme: out of the tyme of her naturall course: or if it runne beyonde her naturall course, let all the dayes of her yssue be iudged vncleane, euen as the dayes of her naturall disease. And she shall be vncleane. All her couches wheron she lyeth (as longe as her yssue lasteth) shall be vncleane, as is her vncleannes when she is put aparte. And whosoever toucheth any of these, shall be vncleane, and shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water and be vncleane vnto the euen.

And after that she is clenfed of her yssue, she shall counte her seven dayes, and after that she shall be cleane. In the. viij. daye she shall take vnto her two turtills or two pounge pygeons, and byrnyge them vnto the prest before the doze of the Tabernacle of witness. And the prest shall offer the one for a synne offryng, and the other for a burnt offryng: and make an attonement for her before the Lord, as concernynge the yssue of her vncleannes. Therefore shall he separate the chyldren of Israel from their vncleannes, that they dye not in their vncleannes: for they defyle my habitacyon that is amonge them.

This is the lawe of hym that hath a runnyng yssue, and of hym whose seed runneth from hym from hym in his slepe, and is defyled therin, and of her, that (for her naturall disease) is put aparte, and of whosoever hath a runnyng yssue, whether it be man or woman, and of hym that lyeth wyth her whych is vncleane.

The xvi. Chapter.

What Aaron must do. The cleansynge of the sanctuary. Of the feaste of cleansynge. Aaron shall sellect the synnes of the chyldren of Israel.

Ad the Lord spake vnto Moyses * after the deeth of the two sonnes of Aaron, whē they offered before the Lord, and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moyses: speake vnto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all tymes into the holy place wythin the vayne before the mercysate, whych is vpon the arke, that he dye not. For I will appare in the * clowde vpon the mercysate.

But with this thyng shall Aaron come into the holy place: euen wā a bullock for synne, and wyth a ram for a burnt offryng. He shall put the holy linnen albe vpon him, and shall haue a linnen breeche vpon his fleshe, and shall be girded wyth a linnen gyrdell, & put the linnen mytre vpon his heede: These are holy garmentes: therefore shall he washe his fleshe in water, whan he doth put the on. And he shall take of the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, two he goates for synne, and a ram for a burnt offryng.

And Aaron shall offer his bullock for synne, * and make an attonement for hym, and for his house. And he shall take the two goates, and present them before the Lord at the doze of the tabernacle of witness. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the ij. goates: one lotte shall be for the Lord, and the other for the scapegoate. And Aaron shall byrnyge the goate vpon whych the Lordes lotte fell, and offer hym for synne. But the goate on whych the lotte fell to scape, shall be sett alyue before the Lord, to reconyle wyth, and to let hym goo (as a scape goate) fre, into the wyldernesse. And Aaron shall byrnyge his bullock for synne, and reconyle for him selfe, and for his house, and shall kyll his bullock for synne.

And he shall take a censer full of burnynge coles out of the alter before the Lord, and shall fylle his handfull of swete cens, beaten small, and byrnyge them wythin the vayne, and put the cens vpon the fyre before the Lord: that the clowde of the cens maye couer the mercysate that is vpon the wytnesse, and that he dye not. * And he shall take of the bloude of the bullock, and sprynkle it wyth his synger vpon the mercysate eastwarde: and before the mercysate shall he sprynkle of the bloude wyth his synger seven tymes.

Then shall he kyll the goate that is the peoples synne offryng, & byrnyge his bloude wythin the vayne, & doo wyth that bloude, as he dyd wā the bloude of the bullock, sprynklynge it vpon the mercysate, and before the mercysate. And he shall reconyle the holy place from the vncleannes of the chyldren of Israel, and from their trespasses in all they synnes. And so shall he doo for the tabernacle of witness that is set amonge them, euen amonge their vncleannes.

* And let there be no bodye in the tabernacle of witness, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, vntill he come out. And let hym make an attonement for hym selfe and for his house, and for all the multitude of Israel. And he shall go out vnto the alter that is before the Lord, & reconyle vpon it, and shall take of the bloude of the bullock, and of the bloude of the goate, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare rounde aboute, and sprynkle of the bloude vpon it with his synger seven tymes, and clense it, and halowe it from the vncleannes of the chyldren of Israel.

And when he hath made an ende of reconyng the holy place, and the tabernacle of witness, and the alter, he shall byrnyge the lyue goate: and Aaron shall put both his handes vpon the heede of the lyue goate, and confesse ouer hym all the mysdoes of the chyldren of Israel, and all their trespasses, in all their synnes: puttynge them vpon the heede of the goate, and sende hym awaye (by the hande of a conuenient man) into the wyldernesse. And the goate shall bere vpon hym all they mysdoes vnto the wyldernesse, and he shall let the goate goo fre into the wyldernesse.

And Aaron shall come into the Tabernacle of witness, and put of the linnen clothes whych he put on (when he went in into the holy place) and leaue the there. And let hym washe his fleshe with water in the holy place, and put on his owne rayment, and then come out, and offer his burnt offryng and the burnt offryng of the people, and make an attonement for hym selfe and for the people, and the fatt of the synoffryng shall he burne vpon the alter. And he that carryed forth the goate to the Azell, shall washe his clothes, and bathe his fleshe in water, and then come into the hoste.

And the bullock whych is for synne, and the goate that is for synne, (whose bloude was brought in, to clense the holy place) shall one carye out wythout the hoste to be burnt in the fyre, wyth they synnes, their fleshe & their donge. And he that burneth them, shall washe his clothes, and bathe his fleshe in water, and then come into the hoste. And this shall be an ordinaunce for euer vnto you: that

that in the tenth daye of the seventh moneth, ye shall hille your soules, and do no worke at all: whether it be one of your selues or a stranger that sojourneth amonge you, for that daye shall the priest make an attonement for you to cleanse you, and that ye maye be cleane from all your synnes before the Lord. Let it be a Sabbath of rest vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules, by an ordinance for euer.

And the Priest that is anoynted, and whose hande was consecrated (to mynister in his fathers steade) shall make the attonement, and shall put on the linnen clothes & holy vestimentes, and reconyle the holy sanctuary and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall cleanse the altar, and make an attonement then for the priestes and for all the people of the congregacion. And this shall be an euerlasting ordinance vnto you, that he make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel for all their synnes once a yere: & he dyd as the Lord commaunded Moses.

The xvij. Chapter.

All sacrifice must be brought to the doore of the tabernacle. So deupls maye they not offer.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron & vnto his sonnes and vnto all the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: This is the thyng which the Lord hath charged, sayinge: what man soeuer of the house of Israel killeth an ore, or lambe or goate in his holte, or that killeth it out of the holte, and byngeth it not vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, to offer an offering vnto the Lord before the dwellinge place of the Lord, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as though he had shed bloude, and that man shall be rote out from amonge his people.

Wherefore when the chyldren of Israel bynge their offerings, that they offer in the wyde felde, they shoulde bynge them vnto the Lord: euen vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse to the priest, to offer them for peace offerings vnto the Lord. And the priest must sprynkle the bloude vpon the alter of the Lord whyche is before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fatt for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And lett the no more offer their offerings vnto deupls, after whom they haue gone a whoynge. This shall be an ordynance for euer vnto them in their generacions.

And thou shalt saye vnto them: whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers whych sojourn amonge you that offereth a burnt offering or sacrifice, & byngeth it not vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse to offer it vnto the Lord, that man shall perishe from amonge his people: And whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you, that eateth any maner of bloude, I will sett my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloude, and will destroye hym from amonge his people: for the lyfe of the fleshe is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it vnto you vpon the alter, to make an attonement for your soules, for bloude shall make an attonement for the soule. And therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: let no soule of you eate bloude. Neyther let any stranger that sojourneth amonge you, eate bloude.

And whatsoeuer man it be of the chyldren of Israel or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you, whych hunteth and catcheth any beast or foule that maye be eaten, lett him powre out the bloude therof, & couer it with erthe, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in the bloude of it, therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye shall eate the bloude of no maner of fleshe, for the lyfe of all fleshe is the bloude therof: whosoever eateth it, shall perishe. And euery soule that eateth it whych dyed alone, or that which was tozned with wyde beastes: whether it be one of your selues or a stranger, he shall walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen, and then shall he be cleane. If he walsh them not, nor bathe his fleshe, he shall beare his synne.

The xviii. Chapter.

What degrees of kynred maye marre together.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: I am the Lord your God. After the doynges of the lande of Egypte wherein ye dwelt, shall ye not doo: and after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, whether I will bynge you, shall ye not doo, neither walke in their ordinaunces, but do after my iudgements, and kepe my ceremonies, to walke therein: I am the Lord your God: Ye shall kepe therfore myne ordinaunces, & my iudgements: whiche if a man doo, he shall lyue in them. I am the Lord.

Se that none go to his nyghbest kynred, for to vncouer their secrettes. I am the Lord. * The secrettes of thy father, and the secrettes of thy mother, shalt thou not vncouer: for she is thy mother, therfore shalt thou not discouer her secrettes. * The secrettes of thy fathers wyfe shalt thou not discouer, for it is thy fathers secrettes. * Thou shalt not discouer the pzenite of thy syster, the daughter of thy father or of thy mother: whether she be bozne at home or without. Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy sones daughter or thy daughters daughter, for that is thyne awne pzenite. Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers wyues daughter daughter, which was begottē of thy father, and is thy syster: thou shalt not discouer her secrettes. * Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers syster, for she is thy fathers nexte kynswoman. Thou shalt not discouer the secrettes of thy mothers syster, for she is thy mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers brother: for thou shalt not go into his wyfe, which is thyne awne. Thou shalt not discouer the secrettes of thy daughter in lawe: for she is thy sones wyfe: therfore shalt thou not vncouer her secrettes. * Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy brothers wyfe, for that is thy brothers pzenite. Thou shalt not discouer the pzenities of the wyfe and her daughter, nether shalt thou take her sones daughter or her daughters daughter, to vncouer their secrettes: for they are her nexte kyn, and it were wykydnesse. * Thou shalt not take a wyfe and her syster also, to be her, that thou woldest vncouer her secrettes, as long as she lyueth. * Thou shalt also not go vnto a woman to vncouer her pzenite, as long as she is put a parte for her vncleannesse. * Moreover thou shalt not lye with thy neyghbours wyfe, to defyle her wch seide. Thou shalt also not geue of thy seed to offer it vnto Moloch: neyther shalt thou defyle the name of thy God. I am the Lord. * Thou shalt not lye with mankynde as with womankynde, for it is abominacyō. * Thou shalt lye with no maner of beast to defyle thy selfe therewith, nether shall any woman stonde before a beast, to lye downe therto, for it is abominacyō.

Ye shall not defyle your selues in any of these thynges, wherein all synacions are defyled whiche I cast out before you: Where the lande is defyled, and I will byset the wykednesse therof vpon it, yea & the lande it selfe hath cast out her inhabitants. * Ye shall kepe therfore myne ordinaunces, & my iudgements, and commyt none of these abhominacions: nether any of you nor any stranger that sojourneth amonge you (for all these abhominacions haue the men of the lande done whiche were there before you, & the lande is defyled.) Shall not the lande speake you out also (if ye defyle it) as it speweth out the people that were before you: for whosoever shall commyt any of these abhominacions, the same soules that commyt them, shall perishe from amonge their people. Therfore shall ye kepe my watche, that ye committ not one of these abhominable customes whiche were commytted before you: and that ye defyle not your selues therein. I am the Lord your God.

The xix. Chapter.

A repetition of lawes pertaining to the x. cō: maundementes. A consyderacion for the poore. wyche craft is forbydden.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: Ye shall be holy, for I the Lord your God am holy. Ye shall feare euery man his father & his mother, and kepe my Sabbathes, I am the Lord your God. Ye shall not turne vnto ydolles nor make you Goddes of metall: I am the Lord your God.

If ye offer a peace offering vnto the Lord, ye shall offer it that ye maye be accepted. * It shall be eaten the same daye ye offer it: on the morowe. And if ought remaine vntill the thyrde daye, it shall be burnt in the fyre. And if it be eaten the thyrde daye, it is vncleane, and not accepted. He that eateth it, shall beare his synne, because he hath defyled the halowed thyng of the Lord. & that soule shall perishe from amonge his people.

* When ye reape doune the rype corne of your lande, ye shall not reape doune the utmost border of your felde, nether shalt thou gather the whyche is left hebynde in thy harvest. Thou shalt not plucke in all thy bynyarde cleane, nether gather in the grapes that are ouerscaped. But thou shalt leaue them for the poore and stranger. I am the Lord your God.

* Ye shall not scale, nether lye, nether deale falsly one with another. * Ye shall not sweare by my name in vayne: neyther shalt thou defyle the name of thy God. I am the Lord. Thou shalt not do thy neyghboure wronge, nether robbe hym violently: * nether shalt thou the workmans labour abyde with the vntyll the morynge. Thou shalt not curse the deaffe: * nether put a stumblinge blocke before the blynde: but shalt feare thy God. I am the Lord. Ye shall doo no vnyghteousnes in iudgement. * Thou shalt not fauoure the poore nor honoure the myghtye, but in ryghteousnes shalt thou iudge thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not goo vp & downe as a pryuy accuser amonge thy people, nether shalt thou stonde agaynst the bloude of thy neyghboure: I am the Lord. * Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thyne hart, but shalt in any wyse rebuke thy neyghboure: that thou be not synne for his sake. * Thou shalt not

not auerge thy selfe nor be myndfull of wro-ge agaynst the chylde of my people * but thalt loue thy neyghboure euen as thy selfe.
I am the Lorde.

Ye shall kepe myne ordinaunces. Thou shalt not let catell gendre wyth a contrary
kynde, nether sowe thy felde wyth myngled seed, nether shalt thou put on any garment
of linnen and wollen.

Whosoever lyeth and medleth with a woman that is a bondmayde, neuertheless appointed to a husbnde, but not redeemed, ner freedome geuen her, she shalbe scourged wyth
a lethzen whyppe, and they shall not dye, because she was not fre. And he shall byrge for his trespass vnto the Lorde: before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, a ram for a trespass offrynge. And p pcaste shall make an attonement for him w the ram whych
is for the trespass before the Lorde, concernyng his synne which he hath done: & p syn-
ne which he hath done shalbe forgiven hym.

When ye come to the lande, & haue planted all maner of trees conuenient to be eaten
of ye shall put awaye the foresaynne of euery one with the frute thereof: eue the yere shall they be vncircumcised vnto you, & shall not be eaten of. But in the fourth yere all the frute of them shalbe holy and commendable to the Lorde. In the fyfth yere shall ye eate of the frute of them, and ye maye gether in the increase of them: I am the Lorde poure God.

Ye shall not eate vpon bloude, neyther shall ye vse wythcraft, nor obserue ty-
mes. Ye shall not rounde y lockes of poure heedes, nether shalt thou marre the tustes of thy beerde. Ye shall not rent poure fleche for any soules sake, nor pryncle any mar-
kes vpon you: I am the Lorde.

Thou shalt not make thy daughter commen, that thou woldest cause her to be an whoore: lest the lande also fall to whooredome, and be full of wphednesse. Ye shall kepe my sabbathes, and fear my sanctuary: I am the Lorde. Ye shall not regarde them that worke with spytes,
neither seke after sothslayers to be defyled
by them, I am the Lorde poure God.

Thou shalt cyle vp before the hoehed,
and reuerence the face of the olde man, and dread thy God. I am the Lorde. If a straunger sojourneth with the in poure lade, ye shall not vex him. But p straunger that dwelleth wyth you, shall be as one of poure scines, and thou shalt loue hym as thy selfe, for ye were strangers in the lande of Egypt.
I am the Lorde poure God.

Ye shall do no vnryghteousnes in iudge-
ment, in meteyerde, in weyght oz in measure. True balaunces, true weyghtes. A true Ephe & a true hin shall ye haue. I am the Lorde poure God whych broughte you out of the lande of Egypt. Therefore shall ye obserue all my ordinaunces and all my iudgements, and do them. I am the Lorde.

The xx. Chapter.
Other that geue of their seede to Moloch shall dye therfore. Other goodly lawes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses say-
inge. Thys shalt thou saye to the chyldren of Israel, whosoever he be of the chylde of Israel oz of the strangers that dwell in Israel, that geueth of his seed vnto.
Moloch, let him be slayne: the people of the lande shall stone hym. And I wyll sett my face agaynst that man, and wyll destroye hym from amonge his people: because he hath geuen of his seed vnto Moloch, for to defyle
my sanctuary, and to polute my holy name.
And though that the people of the lande by-de their eyes from the man that geueth of his seed vnto Moloch, and kyll hym not:
I wyll put my face agaynst that man,
and agaynst his kyndred, and wyll destroye
hym, and all that goo a whoyrnge after him to commyt whoyrdome with Moloch, from amonge their people.

If a soule turne hym selfe after such as worke wyth spytes, and after sothslayers,
to goo a whoyrnge after them, I wyll put my face agaynst that soule, & wyll destroye hym from amonge hys people. Sanctifye poure selues therfore * and be holye, for I am the Lorde poure God, kepe ye myne ordinaunces, and doo them. I am p Lorde which doth sanctifye you.

Whosoever he be, that curseth his father oz hys mother, let hym dye: for he hath curset hys father and mother, hys bloude be vpon him. * And the man y breaketh wed-locke with another mans wyfe: euen he that breaketh wedlocke w hys neyghbours wyfe
let him be slayne, both the aduoutter and the aduoutresse. And the man that lyeth * with hys fathers wyfe, & vncouereth hys fathers secrettes, let them both dye, their bloude be vpon them. * If a man lye with his daughter in lawe, let them dye both of them: they haue wrought abhominacion, their bloud be vpon them. * If a man also lye wyth mankynde, they haue both commytted an abhominacyon: let them dye. Their bloude be vpon them. And if a man take a wyfe and her mother also, it is wphednesse. They shall be burnt wyth fyre both he and she,
that there be no wphednesse amonge you.
And * If a man lye wyth a beast, let hym dye, and ye shall see the beast also. If a woman go vnto any beast, & lye downe therto:
thou shalt kyll the woma and the beast also,
let them dye, their bloude be vpon them. If a man take hys syster, hys fathers daughter oz his mothers daughter, and se her secrettes
and she hys secrettes, it is a shamefull thinge.

They

They shall perpe in the syghte of their people, he hath vncouered hys systers secrettes,
he shall beare his synne. * If a man lye with a woma hauyng her naturall dysleale, and vncouer her secrettes, & open her fountayne,
and she also open the fountayne of her bloude
they shall both perpe from amonge the people. * Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy mothers syster * nor of thy fathers syster, for he that doth so, hath vncouered hys nexte kyn: they shall beare the myfdoynge.

If a man lye with hys vnckles wyfe, and
vncouer hys vnckles secrettes: they shall beare
their synne, and shall dye chyldelesse.

If a man take his brothers wyfe, it is an vnckleane thyng, he hath vncouered his brothers secrettes, they shalbe chyldelesse.

Ye shall kepe therfore all myne ordinaunces and all my iudgements, and doo the:
that p lande whether I byrge you to dwell
therin, spewe you not out. Ye shall not walke
in the maners of thys nacyon: whych I cast
oute before you: for they: omittet all these thynges, & therfore I abhorred them.

But I haue sayde vnto you: ye shall enioye their lande, and I will geue it vnto you to possesse it, euen a lande that floweth with mylke & honye. I am the Lorde poure God, whych haue separated you from other na-
cions, * and therfore shall ye put difference
betwene cleane bestes & vnckleane, betwene vnckleane foules and cleane. Ye shall not defyle poure soules in bestes and foules, and in all maner creppng thynges y the groun-
de byrgeth furth, whych I haue separated from you as vnckleane. Therefore shall ye be holy vnto me, for I the Lorde am holy, and haue seuered you from other nacjons: that ye shulde be myne.

If there be a man oz woman that wor-
keth wyth a spyte, oz that is a sothslayer, let them dye. Men shall stone the wyth stones, their bloude be vpon them.

The xxj. Chapter.
A lawe for the preestes.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: speake vnto the preestes y sonnes of Aaron, and saye vnto them. Let none be defyled vpon a soule amonge hys people, but vpon hys kynsman, that is nye vnto
hym: vpon his father, & his mother, vpon sonne and daughter, and his brother, and on his syster a mayde y is nye vnto him, whom no man hath knowen: vpon her shall he be defyled. But he shall not be defyled vpon him that hath auctorite amonge hys people, to polute him selfe for him.

Let them not make * baldnesse vpon their breed, nor shawe of the lockes of their bearde, nor make any markes in their fleche. They shalbe holy vnto their God, and not polute

the name of their God, for the sacrificys of the Lorde which are as p bread of their God
they do offer: therfore they shall be holy.

Let them not take a wyfe that is an aduoutresse, oz polluted, nor put fro her hus-bnde: for suche a one is holy vnto his God. B Thou shalt sanctifye hym therfore, for he offereth vp the bread of thy God: he shall therfore be holy vnto the, for I the Lorde whych sanctifye you am holy.

If a preastes daughter fall to playe the whoore, she poluteth her father: therfore must
she be burnt with fyre.

He that is the hys preaste amonge hys
brethren, vpon whose heed the anoyntyng oyle was powred, and * that consecrated hys hande to put on the vestiments, shall not vncouer his heade, nor rent his clothes * nether goo to any deed body, nor make hym
selfe vnckleane on hys father oz hys mother,
nether shall go out of the sanctuary, ner po-
lute the holy place of hys God, for the crowne
of the anoyntyng oyle of hys God, is vpon
him. I am the Lorde. * He shall take a mayde
vnto hys wyfe: but a wedowe, a deuorced woman, oz an harlot, shall he not mary:
But shall take a mayde of hys awne people to wyfe. Nether shall he defyle hys seed amonge hys people: for I am the Lorde which sanctifye him.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and saye: Whosoever of thy seed in their generacions hath any de-formyte, let hym not preace for to offer bread
vnto his God * for whosoever hath any ble-mythe, shall not come nere: as yf he be blynde oz lame, oz that hath a bryled nose, oz that hath any myshapen membre, oz is broken
foted, oz broken handed, oz * haue no heere
on his eye browes, oz haue a webbe oz other blemishe in his eye, oz be mawnged, oz skaul-
de, oz hath hys stones broken.

A man that hath a blemyshe, and is of the seed of Aaron the preaste, shall come nye to offer the sacrificys of the Lorde. Whan he hath a deformyte, let him not preace to offer
the bread of hys God. Let him eate the bread of hys God: euen of the most holy and of the holy: Onely let him not goo in vnto p vayle,
nor come nye the alter, when he is defoymed,
that he polute not my sanctuary, for I am the Lorde that sanctifye them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to hys sonnes, and vnto all the chylde of Israel.

The xxij. Chapter.

Who ought to abstayne from eatynge the thyn-ges that were offered. Howe, what, and when they shulde be offered.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto Aaron and hys sonnes, that they be separated from the holy thyn-ges of the chyldren of Israel, and that they polute not my holy name in those thynges whych they halowe vnto me: I am the Lorde. Saye vnto them: whosoever he be of all youre seed amonge youre generacy-
ons after you, that goeth vnto holy thyn-ges whych the chyldren of Israel halowe vn-
to the Lorde, haupnge hys vncleannes vpon hym: that soule shall perishe from out of my syghe. I am the Lorde.

*Leu. xv. a.

* What man soeuer of the seed of Aaron is a leper or hath a runnyng pssue, he shall not eate of holy thynges vntill he be clea-
ne. And whoso toucheth any man that is vncleane ouer the soule of the deede, or a man whose seed runneth from him in hys slepe, or whosoever toucheth any womme, whereby he maye be made vncleane, or a man, of whom he maye take vncleannes (whatsoeuer vn-cleannes he hath) yf same soule that hath touched any soche, shall be vncleane vntill euen,
and shall not eate of the holy thynges, vntill
he haue washed his fleshe with water. And when the sonne is downe, he shall be cleane, & shall afterwarde eate of the holy thynges: for asmoche as it is hys fode. * Of a beast that dieth alone, or is rent woth wyld beasts (wherby he maye be defyled) he shall not eate:

I am the Lorde. Let them kepe therfore myne ordynance, lest they for the same lade synne vpon them, and dye for it, yf they defyle it. I the Lorde sanctifye them.

There shall no straunger eate of the holy thynges, neither a gese of the preastes, neyther
shall an hyred seruante eate of holy thynges.
But yf the preaste bye any soule woth money, he shall eate of it, lyke as he that is bozne in hys house, shall they eate of hys bread. If the preastes daughter also be maried vnto
a straunger, she maye not eate of the halowed heue offerynges. Not wothstandynge yf the preastes daughter be a wedowe or denuded & haue no chyldre, but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bread, as well as she dyd in her youth.
But there shall no straunger eate thereof. If a man eate of the holy thynges vntwittingly,
he shall put the fyfthe parte ther vnto, and geue it vnto the preaste woth the halowed thynges. And the preastes shall not defyle the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel (whych they offer vnto the Lorde) to lade
them selues w myfdoynge & trespace whyle
they eate their holy thynges, for I the Lorde
do halowe them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and hys sonnes and vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto

the: whatsoeuer he be of y house of Israel or straunger in Israel, y will offer hys sacrifice
for all his vowes, and for all hys frewylofferings whych they will offer vnto y Lorde
for a burnt offeryng, ye shall offre (to recon-cyle youre selues) a male without blempe of the oxen, of y shepe, or of the goates. But whatsoeuer hath a blempe, y shall ye not offre, for ye shall gett no fauoure therwith.

And whosoever bringeth a peace offeryng
vnto the Lorde (accozdyng as he is apoynt-
ed) or a vowe, or a frewyl offeryng, in ore
or shepe, that is without defozmyte, he shall be accepted. There shall be also no blempe therin: blinde, or broke, or wounded, or haue a wen, or be mawnged, or scabbed. Ye shall not offre soche vnto y Lorde, nor put an offeryng
of any soche vpon the alter vnto y Lorde.

An ore or a shepe that hath any membre
out of propozition, mayst thou offer for a fre-will offeryng: but for a vowe it shall not be accepted. Ye shall not offer vnto the Lorde y whych is broosed, or broken, or plucked out,
or cut awaye, neither shall ye make any soch
in youre lande, neither of a straungers hande shall ye offer bread vnto youre God of any soche. Because their corrupcyon is in them, and they haue defozmyte in them selues, and
therfore shall they not be accepted for you.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge:
whē an ore, or a shepe, or a goate is brought forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder y damme:
And fro the viij. daye forth, it shall be accepted, for a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And whether it be ore or shepe, ye shall not kill it and her yonge both in one daye.

When ye wyl offer a thank offeryng vn-
to the Lorde, offre it that ye maye be accepted. And the same daye it must be eaten vp,
so that ye leaue none of it vntill y morowe.
I am the Lorde. Therfore shall ye kepe my commaundementes and do them, I am the Lorde. Neyther shall ye polute my holy name, but I will be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel. I am the Lorde whych halowe you, and that brought you out of the lade of Egypte, to be youre God: I am the Lorde.

¶ The xxij. Chapter.

Of the holy dayes, that they shulde kepe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses,
sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren
of Israel, & saye vnto them: These are my feastes, euen the feastes of the Lorde, whych ye shall call holy conuocacyons. * Syxe dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of rest, an holy conuocacyon: so that ye doo no worke therin, it is the Sabbath of the Lorde, in all your dwellynge. These are the feastes of the Lorde, euen holy conuocacyons, wh-che ye shall proclayne in their seasons. In the xiiij. daye of the fyfth moneth at euen
is the

is the Lordes * Pascheuer. And in the fyfteneth daye of the same moneth is the feast of swete bread vnto the Lorde: seuen dayes ye must eate vntwended bread. * In the fyfth
daye ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therin. But ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lorde thoro-
w out those seuen dayes, and in the seuenth daye
is an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therin.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses
sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel & saye vnto them * when ye be come into the lande (whych I geue vnto you) & reue dou-
ne the harvest thereof, ye shall bringe a shefe
of the fyfth frutes of youre harvest vnto the preast, whych shall waue the shefe before the Lorde to be accepted for you: & euen the mo-rowe after the Sabbath the preaste shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye whē ye waue the shefe, an he labe wythout blempe
of a yere olde, for a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde: and the meat offeryng therof, shall be made of two tenth deales of fyne flour me-gled with oyle, to be a sacrifice vnto the Lor-
de for a swete sauoure: and the drynk offryng
therof shall be of wyne, euen the fourth deale
of an hyne. And ye shall eate neither bread,
nor parched corne, nor furment ye, nor newe
corne, vntill the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offeryng vnto youre God. Let thys be a lawe for euer in youre generacions
and in all youre dwellynge.

And ye shall counte from the morowe
after the Sabbath: euen from the daye that ye brought the shefe of the waue offeryng. viij.
Sabbathes complete: euen vnto the mo-
rowe after the seuenth Sabbath shall ye no-bye fyfthe dayes. And ye shall bringe a new meat offeryng vnto the Lorde. And ye shall bringe out of youre habitacions two waue
loues made of two tenth deales of fyne flour
and that are made wyth leuen for fyfth fru-tes vnto the Lorde. And ye shall bringe with the bread * seuen lambes wythout defozmyte
of one yere of age, and one yonge ore & two rammes, whych shall serue for a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde, wyth meat offrynges
and theyr drynk offrynges, to be a sacrifice
for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

Then ye shall offer an he goate for a syn-ne offeryng: and two laves of one yere olde
for a peace offeryng. And the preast shall wa-ue the wyth the breed of the fyfth frutes before the Lorde, and wyth the two lambes.
And these holy thynges of the Lorde, shall be the preastes. And ye shall proclayne the same daye, that it maye be an holy conuocacyon vnto you: ye shall do no laborious worke the-rin: let it be a lawe for euer in all your dwel-lynges, and in all youre generacions.

*Leu. xvi. a.
Deu. xviij. b.

* And when ye receyue your harvest,

thou shalt not make cleane ryddaunce of thy felde, neither shalt thou make any ascergathe
ryng of thy harvest: but shalt leaue it vnto
the poore and the straunger. I am the Lorde your God.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses say-
inge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: In the seuenth moneth, in the fyfth daye
of the moneth shall ye haue rest, * euen the remembrance of blowyng, an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therin,
but offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, &
sayinge: the * tenth daye also of the selfe seuenth moneth, is a daye of recocilyng, therfore shall it be an holy conuocacyon vnto you, & ye shall humble your soules, and offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Ye shall do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of reconcilyng, to make an atonement for you before the Lorde your God. For whatsoe-uer soule it be that humbleth not hym selfe
that daye, he shall be destroyed from amonge hys people. And whatsoeuer soule do any maner worke that daye, the same soule will I destroye from amonge hys people. Ye shall do no maner worke therfore: Let it be a la-
we for euer in youre generacions and in all your dwellynge. Let it be vnto you a Sab-both of reste, and ye shall humble your sou-
les in the nyth daye of the moneth at euen:
from euen to euen shall ye rest in your Sab-both.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayin-
ge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye:
* the fyfteenth daye of the same seuenth mo-
neth is the feast of tabernacles, seuen dayes vnto y Lorde. The fyfth daye is an holy con-uocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke.
Seuen dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto
the Lorde, and in the eyght daye shall be an holy conuocacyon vnto you, and ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lorde. It is the * collecryon, and ye shall do no laborious worke therin.

These are the feastes of the Lorde, whiche
ye shall call holy conuocacyons, for to offer sacrifice vnto y Lorde, burnt offeryng, meat-
offeryng, peace offeryng, and drynk offrynges:
& euen every daye hys due sacrifice besyde
the Sabbathes of the Lorde, & besyde youre gyftes, besyde all your vowes, and all your frewyl offrynges, whych ye geue vnto the Lorde.

Moreover in the fyfteenth daye of the seuenth moneth whan ye haue gathered in the frute of the lande, ye shall kepe holy daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes. The fyfth daye shall be as a Sabbath: lyke wise in the eyght daye shall be the rest of the Sabbath. And ye shall take you in the fyfth daye, the frutes of goodly trees, bzaunches of palme trees, and
the

the bowes of thycke trees, and wyllowes of the brooke, and shall reioyce before the Lord your God seuen dayes. And ye shall kepe this feast vnto the Lord seuen dayes in the yeare. It shall be a lawe for euer in youre generacions, that ye kepe it in the seuenth moneth. Ye shall dwell in boothes seuen dayes: euen all that are Israelites borne, shall dwell in boothes, that youre chyldre after you maye knowe, howe that I made the chyldren of Israel to dwell in boothes, when I brought the out of the lande of Egypt: I am the Lord your God. And Moyses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel concerninge the feastes of the Lord.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

The oyle for the lampes. Be that curseth must be stoned. Be that killeth shall be killed. &c.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: * commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they brynge vnto the pure oyle olue beaten for lyghtes, to cause the lampes to burne allwaye: without the vayne of wytnesse in the tabernacle of wytnesse shall Aaron dresse them bocheuen and moynynge before the Lord allwayes. Let it be a lawe for euer in youre generacions. Ye shall dresse the lampes vpon the pure candelltycke before the Lord perpetually.

And thou shalt take fyne flour, and bake twelue wafers therof, two tenthdeales shall be in one wastell. And thou shalt set the in two rowes, syxe on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lord, and put pure frankincense vpon the rowes, that they maye be bread of remembrance, and an offerynge to the Lord. Euerij Sabbath he shall put the in rowes before the Lord euermore: of the chyldren of Israel shall they be offered for an euertlastynge couenaunte. * And they shall be Aarons and hys sonnes, whych shall eate them in the holy place. For they are most holy vnto hym of the offerynges of the Lord by a perpetuall statute.

And the sonne of an Israelitish wife whose father was an Egyptian, wet out amonge the chyldren of Israel. And thys sonne of the Israelitish wyfe & a man of Israel, strove together in the holte. And the Israelitish woman sonne * blasphemed the name of the Lord, and * cursed, and they brought hym vnto Moyses. Hys mothers name was Salometh, whych was the daughter of Dibzy, of the trybe of Man: and they * put hym in ward, that the mynde of the Lord myght be shewed them.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: brynge the cursed speaker without the holte, and lett all that hearde hym, put theyr handes vpon hys heed, and let all the multitude ston hym. And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel sayinge: Whosoeuer curseth hys God, shall bere his synne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, let hym be slayne, and all the multitude shall ston hym to deeth.

Whether he be borne in the lande or a stranger, wha he blasphemeth the name of the Lord, let hym be slayne. And * he that killeth any man, let hym dye the death. And he that killeth a beast, let hym make hym good, & soule for soule. And yf a mā maye hys neyghboure, as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym: broke for broke * eye for eye, and toth for toth: euen as he hath maymed a man, so shall he be maymed agayne. And he that killeth a beast, let him paye for it: and he that killeth a man, let hym dye. Ye shall haue one maner of lawe: euen for the stranger as well as for one of youre selues, for I am the Lord your God.

And Moyses tolde the chyldren of Israel, and they brought hym (that had cursed) out of the holte, and stoned hym with stones. And the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commaunded Moyses.

The xxv. Chapter.

The Sabbath of the viij. yeares, and of the yeare of iudic, ocherwyse called the fyfth yeare.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses in mount Sinai sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye be come into the lande whych I geue you, the lande shall rest, & kepe Sabbath vnto the Lord. * Syxe yeares y shall sowe thy felde, and syxe yeare thou shalt cut thy vygarde, and gether in the frute therof. But the * seuenth yeare shall be a Sabbath of rest vnto the lade. The Lordes Sabbath it shall be: y shall nether sowe thy felde, nor cut thy vynegarde. That which groweth of the owne accorde thou shalt not reape, neither gather y grapes that thou hast left behynde, for it is a yeare of rest vnto the lade.

And the rest of the lade shall be meat for you: euen for the, for thy seruaunte, and for thy mayde, for thy hyred seruaunte, and for the stranger that sojourneth with the: and for thy catell, and for the bestes that are in thy lande, shall all the increase therof be meat. And thou shalt nombe seuen Sabbathes of yeares vnto the, euen seuen tymes seuen yeare: and the space of the seuen Sabbathes of yeares will be vnto the xliij. yeare. And then thou shalt make a trowpe blowe: in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, euen in the daye of attonement shall ye make the trowpe blowe, thowowe out all youre lade. And thou shalt halowe that yeare: eue the fyfth yeare, & proclayme lyber-

tye thowowe out the lande vnto all the inhabyters therof, for it shall be a yeare of iudic vnto you, and ye shall retourne: euerij man vnto hys posselpon, and euerij man vnto hys kynred agayne. A yeare of iudic shall that fiftieth yeare be vnto you. Ye shall not sowe nether reape that which groweth of it selfe, nor gether the grapes that are left. For that yeare of iudic shall be holy vnto you: but ye shall eate of the increase therof out of the felde. In the yeare of thys iudic ye shall retourne euerij man vnto hys posselpon agayne.

It thou sellest oughte vnto thy neyghboure, or byest of thy neyghbours hande, ye shall not discaue one another: but accordynge to the nombe of yeares after the iudic yeare thou shalt bye of thy neyghboure, and accordynge vnto the nombe of yeares & of frutes, he shall sell vnto the. Accordynge vnto the multitude of yeares, he shall encrease the pryse therof and accordynge to the fewnesse of yeares, he shall minyche the pryce of it: for the nombe of frutes doth he sell vnto the. * Discaue not ye therfore euerij mā his neyghboure, but thou shalt feare thy God. For I am the Lord your God: wherfore ye shall do after myne ordinaunces and kepe my lawes, and do them, and ye shall dwell in the lande in safete. And the lande shall geue her frute, and ye shall eate youre fyl, and dwell therein in safete.

And yf ye shall saye: what shall we eate the seuenth yeare, for we shall not sowe, nor gether in our increase: I will sende my blessinge vpon you in the syxt yeare, and it shall brynge forth frute for thre yeares: & ye shall sowe the eyght yeare, and eate yet of olde corne vntyll the ix. yeare: euen vntyll her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde store. The lande shall not be solde to be wast: for * the lande is myne, and ye but strangers and sojourners with me. In all the lande of youre posselpon, ye shall graunt a redemption for the lande.

* Yf thy brother be waxed poore, and hath solde a waye of hys posselpon: and yf any of his kyn come to redeme it, let him bye out that whiche hys brother solde. And yf he haue no man to redeme it, let hys hande get as much as maye be sufficient to bye it oute agayne, and let hym counte howe longe it hath bene solde, & deluyer the rest vnto the man to whome he solde it, that he maye retourne to hys posselpon agayne. But and yf hys hande cannot gett sufficient to restore to the other agayne, then that whiche is solde shall remayne in the hande of hym that hath boughte it, vntyll the yeare of iudic: and in the iudic it shall come out, and he shall retourne vnto hys posselpon agayne. And yf a man sell a house or a dwellynge withyn the walles of a cytie, he maye bye it out agayne withyn a whole yeare after it is solde: eue any daye of the yeare shall he redeme it agayne. But and yf he bye it not out agayne withyn the space of a full yeare, then the house that is in y walled citie, shall be established, and be his owne that boughte it, ad hys successours after him, and shall not go out in the iudic. But the houses of vyllages which haue no walles rounde aboute the, are counted as the felde of the countre, & therfore they maye be boughte out agayne, and shall retourne in the iudic.

Notwithstandinge the cyties of the leuytes, and the houses of the cyties of their possession, maye y leuites redeme at all seasons. And yf a mā purchase ought of the Leuites, the house that was solde, and the cite of their possession shall go out in the yeare of iudic: for the houses of the cyties of the leuites, are their possession amonge the chyldre of Israel. But the felde of the suburbe that is beynde their cyties, maye not be solde: but is theyr perpetuall possession.

If thy brother be waken poore, and fallen in decaye with the, thou shalt releue hi, both the stranger and sojourner, that he maye lyue with the. * And thou shalt take none vantage of him, or vantage. But thou shalt feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue with the. Thou shalt not geue hym thy money vpon vsurpe, & nor lende him thy corne for increase. I am the Lord your God, which brought you out of the lande of Egypte to geue you the lande of Canaan, & to be youre God.

* If thy brother that dwelleth by the, be waken poore, and be solde vnto the, thou shalt not compell him to the bondage of seruautes: but as an hyred seruaunte and as a sojourner he shall be with the, and shall serue the vnto the yeare of iudic, & then shall he departe from the: both he and his chyldren with him, and shall retourne vnto his awne kynred agayne, and vnto the posselion of his fathers: for they are my seruautes, whych I brought out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not therfore be solde as bondme. Thou shalt not raygne ouer hym cruelly, but shalt feare thy God. Thy bondseruaunte, and thy bondmayde which thou shalt haue, shall be of the heythen that are rounde aboute you: of them shall ye purchase seruautes and maydes, and of the chyldren of the strangers that are sojourners amonge you, & of the generacions that are with you, which they begate in youre lande. These shall be youre posselpon, and ye shall take them as inheritance for youre chyldren after you, to possesse them, they shall be youre bondmen for euer. But ouer youre brethren the chyldren of Israel, ye shall not raygne one ouer another. If ther ther cruelly.

E If a sojourner or straunger waxe ryche by the, and thy brother that dwelleth by him waxe poore, and sell hym selfe vnto the straunger or sojourner by the, or to any of the straungers kyn: after that he is solde, he maye be redeemed agayne: one of his brethren, or his wife, or his vncle, or his vncles sonne maye bye hym out: or any that is nye of kynne vnto hym of his kynred, maye redeme hym: either yf his hande can get so moch, he maye be loosed. And he shall reken wyth hym that boughte hym, from the yere that he was solde in, vnto the yere of iubelpe & the pryce of hys byenge shalbe valued accordynge vnto the nombre of yeres. As a hyred seruante shal be wth hym. If there be yet many yeres beynde, accordynge vnto the let hym geue agayne for hys deliuerance, of y money that he was bought for. If there remaine but fewe yeres vnto the yere of iubelpe, let hym counte wyth hym agayne, and accordynge vnto his yeres geue hym agayne for hys redempcion, and he shalbe wth hym yere by yere as an hyred seruante & the other shal not raygne cruelly ouer him in thy sighte. If he be not redeemed thus, he shal goo out in the yere of iubelpe, both he and his chyldren wth hym: for the chyldren of Israell are my seruautes, whych I broughte out of the lande of Egypte. I am the Lorde poure God.

¶ The xxvj. Chapter.

¶ There are blessed that kepe those thynges that God breddeth.

I shall make you no ydolles nor grauen ymage, nether reare you vp any stone, nether shall ye sett vp any ymage of stone in your lād to worshippinge it: for I am the Lord poure God: ye shall kepe my Sabbothes, & feare my sanctuary: for I am the Lorde. ¶ If ye walke in myne ordinaunces and kepe my commaundementes, and do them, I wyll sende you rayne in the ryght ceason and the lād shall yelde her encrease, and the trees of the felde shall geue theyr frute. And the threschyng shall reach vnto wyne harvest, and the wyneharuest shall reach vnto sowynge tyme, and ye shall eate your bread in plenteousnes, and dwell in poure lād peacefully. And I wyll sende peace in the lande, & ye shall slepe without any man to make you a frayde.

And I wyll rydd euell beastes out of the lande, and there shall no swerde goo thorow out poure lande. And ye shall chase poure enemies, and they shall fall before you vpon the swerde. ¶ And fyue of you shall chase an hundred, & an hundred of you shall put ten thousande to flyghte, and poure enemies shall fall before you vpon the swerde. For I will haue respect vnto you, and make you encrease, and multiplye you, and sett vp my covenannt with you. And ye shall eate olde store, and carpe out olde for the newe. ¶ And I wyll make my dwellinge place amonge you, & my soule shall not lothe you. I wyll walke amonge you, and wyll be poure God, and ye shalbe my people. ¶ I am the Lorde poure God, whyche broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, that ye shulde not be theyr bondemen, and I haue broken the cheynes of your yoke, and made you go by ryghte.

¶ But and yf ye wyll not harken vnto me, nor wyll do all these my commaundementes: And yf ye shall despise myne ordinaunces, ether yf poure soule abhorre my lawes, so that ye wyll not do all my commaundementes, but breake myne appoyntment, I also will do thys vnto you. For I will bring vpon you fearfulnesse, swellinge of body, and the burnynge agewe, to consume poure eyes, & gendze forowe of hert. And ye shall sowe poure seed in vayne, for poure enemies shall eate it, and I wyll set my face agens te you, and ye shall fall before poure enemies, & they that hate you, shall raygne ouer you: and ye shall see, when no man shall loweth you.

And yf ye wyll not yet for all this herken vnto me, then will I punyssh you seven tymes more for poure synnes, and wyll breake the pryde of poure stubburnesse. And I wyll make poure heauen as yron, and poure erth as brasse. And poure labour shalbe spent in vayne. For poure lande shall not geue byr encrease, nether shall the trees of the lande geue theyr frutes.

And yf ye walke contrary vnto me, and wyll not herken vnto me, I wyll byynge seven tymes moore plagues vpon you, accordynge to poure synnes. I will also sende in wilde beastes vpon you, which shall robbe you of poure chyldren, and destroye poure catell, and make you serue in nombze, and cause poure bye wayes to growe vnto a wyldernesse.

And yf ye maye not be reformed by these thynges but shall walke contrary vnto me, then wyll I also walke contrary vnto you, and wyll punyssh you yet seven tymes for poure synnes. And I wyll sende a swerde vpon you, that shall auenge my testamēt. And when ye are gathered together wythin poure cyties, I wyll sende the pestilence amonge you, and ye shalbe deliuered into the hande of the enemye. And when I haue broken the staffe of poure bread: ten wyues shall bake poure bread in one oven, and they shall deliuer you poure bread agayne by weyght: ye shall eate, and not be satisfied.

And

And yf ye wyll not yet for all this herken vnto me, but shall walke agaynst me, I will walke contrarye vnto you also in indignacion, and wyll chastice you seven tymes for poure synnes. ¶ And ye shall eate the flesh of poure sonnes and the fleshe of poure daughters shall ye deuoure. I wyll destroye poure hye places, and roote out poure ymagges, and cast poure carkasses vpon the bodies of poure ydolles, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I wyll make poure cyties desolate, and byynge poure sanctuarie vnto nought, and wyll not smell the sweetnesse of poure odoures.

I wyll byynge the lande vnto a wyldernesse, and poure enemies which dwell therein, shall wondre at it. And I will strawe you amonge the hethen, and will drawe out a swerde after you, and poure lande shalbe wast, and poure cyties desolate. Then shall the lande enioye her Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde, and ye shalbe in poure enemies lande: euen then shall the lande rest, and reioyse in her Sabbothes. As longe as it lyeth voyde it shall rest, because it dyd not reste in poure Sabbothes, when ye dwelt vpon it.

And vpon them that are left alyue of you, I wyll sende a fayntnesse into theyr hertes in the lande of theyr enemies: & the soude of a shakynge leef, shall chase the, and whā they flee the swerde, they shall fall: no man folowinge vpon them. They shall fall one vpon another, as it were before a swerde, euen no man folowynge vpon them, and ye shall haue no power to stande before poure enemies: And ye shall perishe amonge the hethen, & the lande of poure enemies shall eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, shall pynne awaye in their vnyrghteousnes, eue in their enemies lād, and in the mysdeades of their fathers shall they consume. And they shall confesse their mysdeades and the mysdeades of their fathers for their trespass, which they haue trespassed agaynst me, and for that also that they haue walked contrarye vnto me. ¶ Therefore I also wyll walke contrary vnto them, and wyll byynge them into the lande of their enemies. And then at the leest waye their vncircumcised hertes shall be tamed, and they shall make an attonement for their mysdeades.

And I will remember my covenannt, with Iacob, and my bōde with Iahac, and myne appoyntment with Abrahā, and will thynke on the lande. The lande shall be leste of them, and shall enioye her Sabbothes, whyle she lyeth wast without the. And they shall make an attonement for their mysdeades, because they despised my lawes, and because their soule refused myne ordinaunces: And yet for all that whē they be in the lād of their enemies, I will not cast them awaye, neyther will abhorre the, to destroye them utterly, and to breake myne appoyntment with the: for I am the Lorde their God. I wyll for their sakes remēbre the covenannt made vnto their fathers, whom I brought out of the lande of Egypte in the flyghte of the hethen, that I myght be their God: I am the Lorde.

These are the ordinaunces, and iudgements, and lawes, which the Lorde made betwene him and the chyldren of Israell in mount Sinai, by the hande of Moses.

¶ The xxvij. Chapter.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayynge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto them: If any mā will geue a synfuler bowe vnto y Lorde accordynge to the value of the soules, the value of the male from twentye yere olde vnto sixtye shalbe fyfte of siluer, after the weyght of the sanctuary. And yf it be a female, the value shalbe thirtye sicles. And from fyue yeres to twentye, the male shalbe set at twentye sicles, and the female at ten sicles. And from a moneth vnto fyue yere, the male shalbe set at fyue sicles of siluer, and the female at thre. And he that is fyfte yere olde, and aboue, shalbe valued at fiftene sicles, and the woman at ten. But if he be to poore so to be set, he shall present himselfe before the preast: & the preast shall value him, accordynge as the hande of him y bowed is able to gett, euen so shall the preast value him.

If it be a beaste of which men bringe an offryng vnto the Lorde: all that any mā geueth of soche vnto the Lorde, shall be counted holy. He shall not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. And yf he chaunge beaste for beaste, then both the same beaste and it also wherwith it was chaunged shalbe holy. If it be any manner of vncleane beaste, of which men do not offer a sacrifice vnto the Lorde, he shall set the beaste before the preast, and the preast shall value it, whether it be good or bad. And as y preast setteth it, so shall it be. But yf he will bye it agayne, he shall geue the fyft parte moare aboue that it was set at.

If any man dedicate his house, to be holy vnto the Lorde, the preast shall set it, whether it be good or bad: and as the preast hath set it, so shall the value be. And whan he that sanctified it wyll redeme hys house, lett hym geue the fyft parte of the money that it was iudged at thereto, and it shalbe hys.

If a mā shall halowe a pecc of hys enherited lande vnto the Lorde, it shalbe set accordynge to y scde therof. If it beare an house homer of barley, it shall be set at fyfte cycles of silver. If he halowe his felde immediatly from the yeare of iubely, it shall be worth accordeinge as it is esteemed. But and yf he halowe his felde after the iubely, the preast shall recken the money accordeinge to the nombre of the yeares that remaine vnto the yeare of iubely folowynge, & there after it shall be lower sett.

If he that consecrated the felde, wyl redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyft parte of the pryce that it was set at there vnto, and it shall be his. And yf he wyl not redeme the felde, but selleth the felde to another man, he shall be the preastes posseltyon.

If a man sanctifye vnto the Lord a felde, which he hath boughte, and is not of his enheritaunce, the preast shall reken vnto hym what it is worth vnto the yeare of iubely, & he shall geue the pryce that it is set at, the same daye, as a thyng consecrated vnto the Lord. And in the yeare of iubely, the felde shall returne vnto hi of whome he boughte it, enē to him, whose enheritaunce of lād it is.

And all settinge shall be accordeinge to the cycle of the sanctuary. One cycle cōteyneth twentye halfpens.

* But the fyft bozne of the beastes that is appoynted vnto the Lord, maye no man sanctifye: whether it be ore or shepe, for it is the Lordes allredy. If it be an vncleane beast, he shall redeme it, as it is sett at, and geue the fyft parte moare therto: Or, yf it be not redemed, it shall be solde, accordeinge to the value.

Notwithstandynge, no dāned thyng that a man putteth from hym and dedycateth vnto the Lord, of all his good (whether it be mā or beast or lande of his enheritaunce) maye be sold or redemed: for euery thyng so put awaye, is most holy vnto the Lord. Let no dāned thyng that a mā separateth, be redemed, but dye the death.

Euery tyth of the lande which is of the sede of the lande, or of the frute of the trees, is the Lordes, and is sanctified vnto the Lord. And yf a man wyl redeme ought of his tythes, let him adde the fyft parte therto. And euery tyth of ore and of shepe and of euery beast that goeth vnder the rodde, euery tenth shall be holy vnto the Lord. He shall not loke yf it be good or bad, ncr chaunge it. Els, yf he chaunge it, both it, and that it was chaunged withall, shall be halowed vnto the Lord, and maye not be redemed.

These are the commaundementes, which the Lord commaunded by Moyses vnto the chyldren of Israel in mount Sinai.

The fourth boke of Moyses called in the hebreue, Maicra, and in the Latyn Numeri.

The fyft Chapter.

All that are apte for batell, are nombred. The trybe of Leui must minister in the tabernacle.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses in the wilderness of Synay, in the tabernacle of wytnesse, the fyft daye of the seconde moneth in the secōde yeare after they were come out of the lande of Egypte, Exo. xxx. b. Num. xxi. a. q. lxx. p. lxx. a.

sayinge: * take ye the summe of all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, after they kynredes & householdes of they fathers wyth the nombre of they names, all that are males, heed by heed, from xx. yeare & aboue: enē all that go forth to the warre in Israel, thou and Aaron shall nombre them thowowe out they armyes, and wyth you shall be men of euery trybe, wherof euery one is heed mā of the house of his fathers.

And these are the names of the men that shall stande with you: of the trybe of Rubē, Elizur the sonne of Sedeur: of Simeō, Selumiel the sonne of Suri Sadai: of Iuda, Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab: of Issachar, Nathanael the sonne of Zuar: of Zabulon, Eliab the sonne of Helon. Amonge the chyldren of Joseph: of Ephraim, Elisama the sonne of Amihud: of Manasse, Gamaliel the sonne of Peda zur: of Ben Jamin, Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni: of Dan, Abiezzer the sonne of Ammi Sadai: of Aser, Pagiel the sonne of Ocran: of Gad, Elisaph the sonne of Dequel: of Rephthali, Ahira the sonne of Enan.

These were of greute fame in the congregacyō, Lordes of the trybes of their fathers, and heades ouer thousandes in Israel. And Moyses and Aaron toke these men (which are expelld by they names) and gethered all the congregacyon together, the fyft daye of the seconde moneth, and they were rekened thowowe out their kynredes & householdes of their fathers by name from xx. yeare and aboue, heed by heed. As the Lord commaunded Moses, euen so he nombred them in the wyldernesse of Sinai.

And the chyldren of Ruben Israels eldest sonne thowowe out they generacyōs, & their kynredes, & householdes of their fathers in the nombre of names, heed by heed (all males frō xx. yeare & aboue) as many as dyd go forth to the warre: the nombre of the y were of the tribe of Rubē, was. xlvi. thousande & v. hundred.

Of the chyldren of Simeon thowowe out they generacyons and they kynredes and householdes of they fathers, the summe of the in the nombre of names, heed by heed, all the males from xx. yeares and aboue, whosoever myght go forth to the warre: the summe of them that were of the trybe of Simeon, lxx. thousande and iij. hundred.

Of the chyldren of Gad thowowe out their generacyons and they kynredes and householdes of they fathers, the nombre of the names from xx. yeare & aboue, all that were forth to the warre: the nombre of them that were of the tribe of Gad, was. xlv. thousande, lxv. hundred and fyfte ye.

Of the chyldren of Iuda thowowe out their generacyons and their kynredes and householdes of their fathers, the nombre of names from xx. yeare and aboue, all that were able to go furth to the warre: The nombre of the that were of the tribe of Iuda, was. lxxiiij. thousande and lxv. hundred.

Of the chyldren of Issachar thowowe out they generacions & they kynredes and householdes of they fathers: the nombre of names frō xx. yeare and aboue which went all furth to warre, the nombre of the y were of the tribe of Issachar, was. liij. thousande & iij. hundred.

Of the chyldren of Zabulon: thowowe out they generacyons and they kynredes, and householdes of their fathers, the nombre of names from xx. yeare & aboue, which were all able to go furth in the hoost: The nombre of them that were of the trybe of zabulon, was. lviij. thousande and foure hundred.

Of the chyldren of Joseph: Namely, of the chyldren of Ephraim thowowe out they generacyōs and they kynredes and householdes of they fathers, the nombre of names frō xx. yeares & aboue, all y went out to the warre: the nombre of them that were of the tribe of Ephraim was. xl. thousande, & lxxv. hundred.

Of the chyldren of Manasse thowowe out their generacions, & they kynredes, and householdes of their fathers, the nombre of names frō twēty yeare olde & aboue, all y wēt out to y warre: The nombre of the y were of the tribe of Manasse, was, xxxij. thousande & two hundred.

Of the chyldren of Ben Jamin thowowe out their generacyōs, and they kynredes & householdes of they fathers, the nombre of names frō twentye yeare & aboue, all y wēt furth to the warre: The nombre of the that were

g iiij of the

of the trybe of Beniamin was. xxxv. thousande. and. iiii. hundred.

¶ Of the chyldre of Dan thozowe out their generacions and their kynredes and houses of theyr fathers: the nombze of names from twentye yere olde and aboue, all that wēt furth to the warre: The nombze of the that were of the trybe of Dan was. lxii. thousande and. vii. hundred.

¶ Of the chyldre of Aser thozowe out their generacions and their kynredes and houses of theyr fathers, the nombze of the names from xx. yeres and aboue, all that wente out to warre: The nombze of the that were of the trybe of Aser was. xli. thousande and. v. hundred.

¶ Of the chyldren of Nephthali: thozowe out theyr generacions and theyr kynredes & houses of theyr fathers, the nombze of names from xx. yeres and aboue, all that myght go furth to the warre: The nombze of the that were of the trybe of Nephthali, was thre ad fyfthe thousande and. iiii. hundred.

¶ These are the summes whych Moses & Aaron nombzed and the princes of Israel: those twelue me, which were euery one ouer the house of theyr fathers. And all the nombzes of the chyldren of Israel, thozowe out the houses of theyr fathers, from twentye yere & aboue, all that went furth to the warre in Israel, dze we all vnto the summe of * fyue hundred thousande and thre thousande, fyue hundred and fyfthe. But the Leuites after the trybe of theyr fathers were not nombzed amonge them.

* Exod. xii. f. 32umc. ii. c.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Thou shalt not nombze the trybe of Leui, nether take the somme of them from amonge the chyldren of Israel. But thou shalt appoynte the leuites ouer the habytacyon of witnessse, and ouer all the vessels therof, and ouer all thynges that are in it. Pea they shall beare the tabernacle and all the vessels therof, & they shall minstre in it, & shall dwell rounde aboute the tabernacle. And when the tabernacle goeth forth, & leuites shall take it downe: and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, they shall sett it vp: and yf any straunger come nye, he shall dye. And the chyldre of Israel shall pytch theyr tentes, euery man in hys owne compaigne, and euery man vnder his owne staderd thozowe out theyr hostes. But the leuites shall pytche rounde aboute the tabernacle of wytnesse, that there be no wrath vpon the congregacyon of the chyldre of Israel, and the leuites shall kepe & watch of the tabernacle of witnessse. And the chyldre of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lord commaunded Moses, euen so dyd they.

¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

¶ The order of the tentes. The heades of the kynredes of Israel.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron saying: euery man of & chyldre of Israel shall pytch vnder his owne staderd & vnder the armes of theyr fathers houses: on & other syde & rounde aboute the tabernacle of wytnesse shall they pytch.

¶ On the east syde toward the ryfynge of the sonne, shall they of & staderd of the hoste of Iuda pytch thozowe out theyr armyes: And Nahesson the sonne of Aminadab was captayne of the sonnes of Iuda. And his hoste and the nombze of the. lxxiii. thousande & vi. hundred. Next vnto him & shall they of the trybe of Issachar pytche: & Nathanael the sonne of Zuar was captayne of the chyldren of Issachar: hys hoste & the summe of the nombze therof. lvi. thousande & foure hundred.

¶ On the south syde shall the staderd of the hoste of Ruben kepe thozowe theyr compaignes: & the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ruben, was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And hys hoste and the nombze of the. xlv. thousande, and. v. hundred. And fast by hym shall the trybe of Symeon pytche, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Symeon, was Salumiel the sonne of Zuri Sabai, and his hoste and the nombze of them. lix. thousande & iij. hundred. And the trybe of Gad also: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Gad, was Elisaph the sonne of Dequel: And his hoste and the nombze of them. xlv. thousande. vi. hundred and. i. All that were nombzed wyth the trybe of Ruben: an hundred thousande. li. thousande. iiii. hundred & i. thozowe out their armyes, and they shall go in the secōde place.

¶ And the tabernacle of wytnesse shall go wyth the hoste of the leuites, in the myddes of the hostes: And as they lye in their tētes, euen so shall they procede in the iourney, euery man in hys degree, and vnder theyr owne staderdes.

¶ The west syde shall the standard of the hoste of Ephraim kepe wyth theyr armyes, & the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ephraim, was Elisama the sonne of Amihud: hys hoste and the nombze of them. xl. thousande and fyue hundred.

¶ And fast by hym, shall be the trybe of Manasse, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Manasse was Gamaleel the sonne of Pedazur. hys hoste and the nombze of the. xxxii. thousande and. ii. hundred. And the trybe of Beniamin

Beniamin also: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Beniamin was, Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni. hys hoste and the nombze of the xxxv. thousande and. iiii. hundred. All that were appoynted wyth the hoste of Ephraim, were an hundred thousande. viij. thousande and an hundred, thozowe out their armyes & they shall goo in the thyrde place.

¶ The staderd of the hoste of Dan shall kepe the north syde wyth their armyes: & the captayne ouer & chyldren of Dan, was Abiezzer the sonne of Ammi Sabai. hys hoste and the nombze of them. lxix. thousande and. vi. hundred. And fast by hym shall the trybe of Aser pytche: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Aser was Pagiel the sonne of Ocran. hys hoste and the nombze of them. xij. thousande & v. hundred. And the trybe of Nephthali also, and the captayne ouer the chyldre of Nephthali: was Ahira & sonne of Enan. hys hoste and the nombze of them. lxx. thousande and. iiii. hundred. All they that were appoynted wyth the hoste of Dan, was an hundred thousande. lviij. thousande and. vi. hundred. And they shall go hymmost wyth their staderdes.

¶ These are the summes of the chyldren of Israel thozowe out & houses of their fathers: euen all the nombzes & pytched thozowe out their hostes. vi. hundred thousande. iiii. thousande. v. hundred and fyfthe. But the Leuites were not nombzed amonge the chyldren of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, for so they pytched wyth their staderdes, & so they iourneyd thozowe out their kynredes, & thozowe out & householdes of their fathers.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

¶ The Leuites go not to batell, but minstre in the sanctuary. They pytche their tentes nye to the habytacyon.

¶ These are the generacions of Aaron and Moses, in & dave that the Lord spake vnto Moses in mount Synai, & these are the names of the sonnes of Aaron: Nadab the eldest sonne, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. * These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron which were & prestes anoynted, & whose hande was consecrated to minstre. * And Nadab and Abihu dyed before the Lorde whan they offered straunge fyre before the Lorde in the wyldernes of Synai, and had no chyldren. And Eleazar and Ithamar minstred in the syght of Aaron their father.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: ge: bynge the trybe of Leui, and set them before Aaron the prest: * that they maye serue him and wayte vpon hym and vpon all the multitude, before the tabernacle of witnessse, to do the scrupce of & habytacyon. They shall kepe all & apparell of the tabernacle of witnessse, and wayte vpon the chyldren of Israel, to do the scrupce of the habytacyon. And thou shalt geue the Leuites vnto Aaron, and hys sonnes, for they are geue and deliuered vnto him of the chyldren of Israel. And thou shalt appoynte Aaron & hys sonnes to wayte on their prestes offyce: and the straunger that commeth nye, shall be slayne.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: beholde I haue taken the Leuites from amonge & chyldre of Israel: * for all the fyrst borne & openeth the matrice amonge & chyldren of Israel, and the Leuites shall be myne: because all the fyrst borne are myne: for the same dave & I smote all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, I halowed vnto me all the fyrst borne in Israel, both man & beaste, and myne they shall be: I am the Lorde.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wyldernes of Synai saying: Nombze the chyldren of Leui after the houses of their fathers in their kynredes. All that are males, from a moneth olde and aboue shalt & nombze. And Moses nombzed them, accordynge to the comaundement of the Lord, and as he had comaunded. * And these were the chyldren of Leui in their names: Gerson, & Cahath and Merari. And these are the names of the chyldren of Gerson in their kynredes: Libni and Semer. The sonnes of Cahath in their kynredes: Amram, Jesehar, Hebron & Ozziel. And the sonnes of Merari in their kynredes: Maheli and Musi. These are the kynredes of the Leuites, accordynge to the houses of their fathers.

¶ Of Gerson came the kynred of the Libnites and the kynred of the Semerites. These are the kynredes of the Gersonites. And the summe of the (after the nombze of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue) was. viij. thousande and fyue hundred. And the kynredes of the Gersonites shall pytche behynde the habytacyon westwarde. The captayne & most aunciet of the house of the Gersonites, was Elisaph the sonne of Lael. And vnder the keepynge of the chyldren of Gerson in the tabernacle of witnessse was & the habytacyon and the tente, the couerynge therof, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wytneſſe, and the hangynges of the courte, and the curtayne of the doze of the courte: which is rounde about the Tabernacle, and the alter, and the cordes of it for all the ſeruyce therof. And of Cabath came the kynred of the Amramites, and ſ kynred of the Jezebarites: the kynred of the hebzonites, and the kynred of the Ozielites: Theſe are the kynredes of the Cabathites. And the nombre of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue, was. viij. thouſande and ſyre hundred: and theſe ſhall kepe the thynges that are to be kepte in the holy place. And the kynred of the chyldren of Cabath ſhall pytche on the ſouthſyde of the Tabernacle. The captayne and moſt auncient of the houſe of the kynred of the Cabathites, was Eliſaphan the ſonne of Oziel, and vnder their keepyng was the arcke, the table, the candleſtyck, and the alters, and all the veſſels of the ſanctuary ſ they myniſtre in, and the vayle, and whatſoever belonged to the myniſtracyon therof. And Eleazar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte, was captayne ouer all the captaynes of the Levites, and had the ouerſyght of the that wayted vpon the ſanctuary.

And of Merari came the kynred of the Mahelites, and the kynred of the Muſites: Theſe are the kynredes of Merari. And the ſumme of them accordyng to the nombre of all the males, from a moneth olde and aboue was. vij. thouſande and. ij. hundred. The captayne and the moſt auncient of their houſe that were of the kynred of Merari, was zuriel the ſonne of Biſaſſi: and theſe ſhall pytche on the north ſyde of the tabernacle. And vnder the cuſtody of the ſonnes of Merari ſhalbe the bordes of the dwellinge, and the barres, pylles and ſockettes therof, all the veſſell therof, and all that ſerueth therto: & the pylles of the courte rounde aboute with their ſockettes, their pynnes & their cordes. But on the forefront of the habitacyon before the Tabernacle of wytneſſe eaſtwarde, ſhall Moſes & Aaron and his ſonnes pytche, and wayte to kepe the ſanctuary, and to kepe the chyldren of Iſrael. And ſtraunger that cometh nye, ſhall be ſlayne. And the hole ſumme of ſ Levites whych Moſes and Aaron nombred, at the commaundement of the Lorde thoroowe out their kynredes (euen all the males from a moneth olde and aboue) was * xxxij. thouſande.

* Nu. xxiij.

And the Lorde ſayde vnto Moſes: Nombred all the fyrſt bozne that are males amonge the chyldren of Iſrael (from a moneth olde and aboue) and take the nombre of their names. And thou ſhalt apoynte the Levites to me (for I am the Lorde,) for all ſ fyrſt bozne of the chyldren of Iſrael, and the catell of the Levites, for all the fyrſt gendred of the catell of the chyldren of Iſrael. And Moſes nombred

as the Lorde commaunded hym, all the fyrſt bozne of the chyldren of Iſrael. And all the fyrſt bozne males rehearſed by their names, (from a moneth olde and aboue, accordyng to their nombre) were. xxxij. thouſande. ij. hundred and. lxiiij.

And the Lorde ſpoke vnto Moſes ſayinge: take the Levites for all the fyrſt bozne of the chyldren of Iſrael, and the catell of ſ Levites for their catell: and the Levites ſhalbe myne. I am the Lorde. And for ſ redempcyng of the two hundred and. lxiiij. (whyche are moo then the Levites in ſ fyrſt bozne of the chyldren of Iſrael,) take. v. ſyckles of euery ſ heade, after the weyght of ſ Sanctuary * the ſycle conteynyng twenty halfpens. And geue the money wherwith the odde nombre of them is redeemed, vnto Aaron and his ſonnes. And Moſes toke ſ redempcyon money, of the ouerplus that were moo then the Levites: of the fyrſt bozne of the chyldren of Iſrael toke he thys money: euen a thouſande. ij. hundred and. lxv. ſyckles, after the ſycle of the Sanctuary. And Moſes gaue the money of them that were redeemed, vnto Aaron and his ſonnes accordyng to ſ worde of ſ Lord, euen as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

The. iij. Chapter.

The offyces of the Levites.

And the Lorde ſpoke vnto Moſes and Aaron ſayinge: Take the ſumme of the chyldren of Cabath from amonge the ſonnes of Leui, after theyr kynredes and houſes of their fathers, (from. xxx. yere and aboue vntyll ſyftie) all that are able to go furth to the warre, for to do the worke in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. The offyce of the chyldren of kabath in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, is moſt holy. And when the hoſte remoueth, Aaron & hys ſonnes ſhall come & take downe the vayle, that hāgeth betwene, & wrappe ſ Arke of wytneſſe in it: and ſhall put thereon a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, & ſhall ſprede vpon it a cloth that is altogether of yelow ſylke, and put in the barres therof. And vpon the ſewe table, they ſhall ſprede abroad a cloth of yelow ſylke, & put thereon the dyſches, ſpones, flatpeces, and pottes to powze wyth, and there ſhalbe bred thereon continually: & they ſhall ſprede vpon them a couerynge of purple, and couer the ſame with a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, and put in the barres therof.

And they ſhall take a cloth of yelow ſylke, and couer the candleſtycke of lyght, with his lampes, tōges, and ſnooffers, and all the oyle veſſels which they occupye aboute it, & they ſhall put both it, and all the veſſell therof within a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, & put it vpon a barre. And vpon the golden alter they ſhall ſprede a cloth of yelow ſylke, and couer

it with a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, & put in ſ barres therof. And they ſhall take all the thynges (whyche they occupye to myniſtre within ſ holy place) and put a cloth of yelow ſylke vpon them, and couer them with a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, and put them on a barre. And they ſhall take awaye the aſhes from ſ alter, and ſprede a purple cloth thereon: and put vpon it all the veſſels therof, that they myniſtre wythall: euen ſ cole panes, the fleſhe hokes, the ſpouels, the baſens and ſ other veſſels of ſ alter, and they ſhall ſprede vpon it a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, and put in the barres of it. And when Aaron and hys ſonnes haue made an ende of coueryng the holy thynges, and all the veſſels of the ſanctuary (agaynſt that the hoſte remoueth) then the ſonnes of Cabath ſhall come in for to beare, but they ſhall not touche any holy thyng, leaſt they dye. And thys is the charge of the ſonnes of Cabath in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And to the offyce of Eleazar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte pertayneth the oyle for the lyghte, the ſweete cens, the dayly meatofferyng, & the anoyntpnyng oyle, and the ouerſyght of all the tabernacle, and of all that therein is, both in the ſanctuary and in all the veſſels therof.

And the Lorde ſpoke vnto Moſes and Aaron, ſayinge: Ye ſhall not deſtroye the trybe of the kynred of the Cabathites, from amonge ſ Levites. But thus do vnto them, that they maye lyue and not dye, when they go vnto the moſt holy thynges: Let Aaron and his ſonnes go in, and take them downe, to euery one after hys ſeruyce, and after hys charge. But let them not go in, to ſe when ſ the holy thynges are folden vp, leſt they dye.

And the Lorde ſpoke vnto Moſes ſayinge: Take alſo the ſumme of the chyldren of Gerson, thoroowe out the houſes of their fathers, and thoroowe out their kynredes: from. xxx. yere and aboue, vntyll. l. ſhalt thou nombre them, all that are able to go forth to the warre for to do ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And this is the ſeruyce of the kynred of the Gersonites, to ſerue and to beare. They ſhall beare the curtaynes of the dwellinge, and the rouffe of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, hys couerynge, & the couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, that is an hye aboue vpon it, and the hangyng of the doze which is in the tabernacle of wytneſſe: & the hangynges of the courte, & the hangyng that is in the entryng in of the gate of ſ courte rounde about the dwellinge & the altare, with the cordes, & all the instrumentes that ſerue vnto them, and all that is made for to ſerue them. At the mouth of Aaron and hys ſonnes, ſhall all the ſeruyce of the chyldren of the Gersonytes be done, in all their charges and in all their ſeruyce, and ye ſhall nombre vnto them all their burthens to kepe. And thys is the ſeruyce of the kynred of the chyldren of Gerson in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, & their watche ſhalbe vnder the hande of Ithamar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte.

And thou ſhalt nombre the ſonnes of Merari after their kynredes, & after the houſes of their fathers: from. xxx. yeres & aboue vnto. l. ſhalt thou nombre them, euery one that is able to go forth to the warre, to do the ſeruyce of ſ Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And thys is the charge that they muſt wayte vpon, accordyng to all their ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. The bordes of ſ dwellinge, with the barres, pylles, & ſockettes therof, and the pylles that are rounde aboute the courte, with their ſockettes, pynnes & cordes, & withall the instrumentes of it, for all their ſeruyce. And by name ye ſhall reken ſ thynges ſ they muſt wayte vpon to beare. This is the ſeruyce of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Merari accordyng to all their offyce in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe vnder the hande of Ithamar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte.

And Moſes & Aaron & the prynces of the multitude nombred ſ ſonnes of ſ Cabathites, after their kynredes and houſes of their fathers from. xxx. yere & aboue vnto ſyftie, all that were able to go forth to the warre, to do ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ſ nombres of them thoroowe out their kynredes were two thouſande, ſeuen hundred &. l. This is the nombre of the kynredes of Cabath: namely, all that myght do ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, whych Moſes and Aaron dyd nombre, accordyng to the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moſes.

Theſe are ſ nombres of the ſonnes of Gerson thoroowe out their kynredes & houſes of their fathers, from. xxx. yere vnto ſyftie all ſ were able to go forth to the warre, for to do ſeruyce in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ſ nombres of the thoroowe out their kynredes, and houſes of their fathers, were two thouſande. vij. hundred &. xxx. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Gerson, of all ſ dyd ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, which Moſes & Aaron dyd nombre accordyng to the commaundement of the Lorde.

And theſe are ſ nombres of the kynredes of ſ ſonnes of Merari thoroowe out their kynredes & houſes of their fathers, from. xxx. yere vnto ſyftie: all ſ wente forth to ſ warre, & ſeruyd in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ſ nombres of them after their kynredes were, thre thouſande & two hundred. This is ſ ſumme of the kynredes of the ſonnes of merari, whiche Moſes & Aaron nombred accordyng to the worde of ſ Lorde, by ſ hande of Moſes.

And ſo all the nombres of the Levites whiche Moſes, Aaron, and the Lordes of Iſrael nombred, after their kynredes and houſes, holders of their fathers, from xxx. yere vnto l. every one that came to do hys offyce and scrupce and to beare hys burthen in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: were (whan they were nombred.) viij. thousande, fyue hundred and lxxx. Accordynge to the worde of the Lorde dyd (Aron) nombze them by the hande of Moyses, euery one accordynge to their scrupce and charge, and accordynge to their offyces: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

The v. Chapter.

The knowlege of synne. The cleansynge of synne. The lawe of the spyt frutes, and of gelousye.

Ad the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they put out of the hoste, euery leper and euery one that hath an pssue, and whosoener is defyled vpon a soule. Both male & female shall ye put out: eue out of the hoost shall ye put them, that they defyle not the tentes amonge which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoste, eue as the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be * man or woman. If they haue compted any synne that a man doeth, and haue trespassed agaynst the Lorde, that soule hath done amisse: Therefore they shall knowlege their synne, whyche they haue done, and let hym restore agayne the hurte that he hath done in the hole, and put the fyft parte of it moare thereto, & geue it vnto hym who he hath trespassed agensse. But and yf there be not a man to restore the hurte vnto, ner a kynsman of hys, let yf trespace be made good vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the Preakste, besyde the rams of the attonement wherby an attonement shall be made for him. And euery heueofferinge that is made of the holy thynges of the chyldre of Israel whych they byynge vnto the Preakste, shall be hys: and euery mans halowed thynges shall be hys: and whatsoeuer any man geueth the Preakste, it shall be hys.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: If any mans wyfe goo a syde, and trespace agaynst hym, so that another man lye wyth her fleschely, and it be hyd from the eyes of her husbände, and is not come to lpghte that she is defyled and ther is no wytnesse agaynst her, neyther she taken with the maner, and the spete of gelousye cometh vpon hym, so that he is gelouse ouer hys wyfe whych is defyled: or yf the spete of gelousye come vpon hym, so that he is gelouse ouer his wyfe whych is yet vndefyled: then let the man byynge his wyfe vnto the Preakste, and byynge wyth her an offerynge for her: yf tenche parte of an Epha of barley meale, but let him powze none oyle vpon it, nor put frankencens thereon: for it is an offerynge of gelousye, an offerynge for a remembrance, causynge y synne to be thought vpo.

And the Preakste shall byynge her and set her befoze the Lorde, and let him take holy water in an erthen vessel, & of the dust that is in the flooze of the habitacyn, and put it into the water. And let the Preakste set the woman befoze the Lorde, and vncouer the womans head, and put the memoypall of the offerynge in her handes whyche is the gelousye offerynge, and y Preakste shall haue bytter and curlyd water in hys hande, & the prest shall charge her, and saye vnto the woman. If no man haue lpen wyth the, nether haste gone asyde to vncleynesse without thy husbände, then haue thou no arme of thys bytter, and curlyd waters.

But and yf thou hast gone asyde behynde thynne husbände, and art defyled, and some other man hath lpen with the besyde thynne husbände. (The preaste shall charge the woman with an horrible curse, & the preste shall saye vnto the woman) the Lorde make the to be an abhominacyon and a curse amonge thy people: when the Lorde doth make thy thye rotte, and thy bely swell: These curlyd waters goo into the bowels of the that they maye make thy bely swell, & thy thye rotte, and let the woman saye, Amen Amen.

And let the Preakste wryte these curses: And whan they be clesed, let him cast them in to bytter waters, & geue the woman those bytter & curlyd waters to drynke, that those curlyd & bytter waters maye entre into her. And then the Preakste shall take the gelousy offerynge out of the womans hande, & waue it befoze the Lorde, & byynge it vnto the alter & the preste shall take an handefull of the offerynge for a memoypall, & burne it vpo the alter, & then make the woman drynke y water: & when he hath made the woman drynke the waters (yf she be defyled & haue trespassed agaynst her husbände:) then shall the curlyd & bytter waters goo into her, & her bely shall swell, & her thye shall rotte, & y woman shall be a curse amonge her people. And yf the woman be not defiled but is cleane, she shall haue no harme, but shall conceane and beare.

This is the lawe of gelousye, wher a wyfe goeth a syde behynde hyr husbände, and is defyled, or when the spete of gelousye cometh vpon a man, & he byynge gelouse ouer hys wyfe, doth byynge her befoze the Lorde, And the preaste shall do accordynge vnto all this lawe: and the man shall be gyltlesse, & the woman shall beare her synne.

The vi. Chapter.

The lawe of adynce. The blessinge of the people.

Ad the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ether ma or woman doth separate them selues to vowe a vowe of an absteiner, and appointe them selues vnto the Lorde, he shall separate hym selfe from * wyne and stronge dryncke, and shall dryncke no vynagre of wyne nor of stronge dryncke, nor shall drynke whatsoeuer is pressed out of grapes: & shall eate no frethe grapes nether yet dyed. As longe as hys abstinence endureth, shall he eate nothyng that is made of the vyne tre, or of the cornels, or of the huske of the grape.

And as longe as he voweth, and is separated, there shall no rasure come apon hys heed: But vntyll hys dayes be out, in the which he separateth hym selfe vnto the Lorde, he shall be holy, and shall let the lockes of hys heere growe. As longe as he consecrateth hym selfe vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no deed bodye: he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the death of hys father, mother, brother or syster: because that the vowe of the abstinence of hys God is vpon hys heade. All the dayes of hys abstinence he is holy vnto the Lorde.

And yf it fortune that any man by chance dye sodenly befoze hym, the heed of hys abstinence shall be defyled, and he shall haue hys heed tye dave of hys clesynge: euen the seuenth dave he shall haue it. And the eyght dave he shall byynge two turtels or two yonge pigeons to the Preakste, befoze the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Preakste shall offer the one for synne and the other for a burnt offerynge, and make an attonement for hym, as concernynge that he synned vpon a soule, and shall halowe hys heed the same dave, and he shall consecrate hym selfe vnto the Lorde (y tyme of hys abstinence) and shall byynge a lambe of a yere olde for trespace: but the dayes that were befoze are lost, because hys abstinence was defyled. This is the lawe of the absteiner, when the tyme of hys abstinence is out, he shall be brought vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall byynge hys offerynge vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for a burnt offerynge, and a she lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for synne, a ram without blemyshe also for a peace offerynge, and a basket of swete breed, eue cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, and wafers of swete bread anoynted wyth oyle wyth their meat offerynges and drynk offerynges.

And the Preakste shall byynge hym befoze the Lorde, and offer hys syn offerynge and his burnt offerynge, and shall offer the ram for a peace offerynge vnto the Lorde, wyth the basket of swete breed, and the Preakste shall offer also his meat offerynge and his drynk offerynge. And he shall haue the heed of the absteiner in the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse: euen the heed of his abstinence, and shall take the heed of his sober heed, and put it in the fyze, which is vnder the peace offerynge. And the preaste shall take the sodden shoulder of the ram, and one swete cake out of the basket, and one swete wafers also, and put them vpon the handes of the absteiner (after he hath shaued his abstinence of) and the Preakste shall waue the before the Lorde. And these holy thynges shall be the prestes, wyth the wauebrest and heue shoulder: and then the absteiner maye drynke wyne. This is the lawe of the absteiner whych hath vowed his offerynge vnto the Lorde for his consecracyn: Besydes those thynges that hys hande can gett, accordynge to the vowe whych he vowed, euen so he must do after the lawe of hys abstinence.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto Aron and his sonnes sayinge: of thys wyse ye shall blesse the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them.

The Lorde blesse the, and kepe the.

The Lorde make hys face wyne vpo the, and be mercyfull vnto the.

The Lorde lyfte vp countenance vpo the, and geue the peace. And they shall put my name vpon the chyldren of Israel, and I wyll blesse them.

The vii. Chapter.

The offerynge of the Lorde & heades of Israel.

Ad it fortuneth in y dave, when Moyses had full sett vp the habitacyon & anoynted it & sanctified it, & all y apparell thereof, the alter also and all the vessels thereof: and had anointed them & sanctified them, then the princes of Israel heedes ouer the houses of their fathers whych were the Lordes of the trybes, stondynge in their offyces, offered & brought their sacrifices befoze y Lorde: fyve couered charettes & xij. oxen: one charret for two Lordes, & for one, an ore, & they broughte them befoze the habitacyon.

And y Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge take it of them, that they maye be to do the seruice of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & thou shalt geue them vnto the Leuites, to euery man accordynge vnto his offyce. And Moyses toke the charettes & the oxen, & gaue them vnto the leuites. ij. charettes & iij. oxen he gaue vnto the sonnes of Serlon accordynge vnto their office. And iij. charettes & eyght oxen he gaue vnto the sonnes of Merari (accordynge vnto their offyces) vnder the hāde of Ithamar the sonne of Aron the Preakste. But vnto the sonnes of Gath he gaue none.

none, because they had upon them the offering of holy thynges, whych they dyd beare upon shoulters.

B And the prynces offered for the dedycation of the altar (in the daye that it was anoynted) and brought theyr sacrifices before the altar. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: The prynces shall bypunge theyr offerynge, euery daye one pryncce, for the dedycation of the altar.

lamps shall geue lyght toward the forefront of the candellsticke. And Aaron dyd euen so, and lyghted the lampes toward the forefront of the candellsticke, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and the worke of the candellsticke was of syluer golde, both the shaft and the floures thereof: according vnto the visyō whiche the Lord had shewed Moyses euen so he made the candellsticke.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: take the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israel, and cleanse them. But thus shalt thou do vnto them, when thou cleansest the: sprynckle water of purifyng vpon them, and let them make a rasure to runne alonge vpon all the fleshe of them, and let them washe their clothes, and so make them selues cleane. Then let them take a bullocke with his meatofferynge: eue fyne flour myngled with oyle: and another bullocke shalt thou take for synne.

And when thou doest bypunge the Leuites before the tabernacle of wytnesse, thou shalt gather the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel together, and bypunge the Leuites before the Lorde, and the chyldren of Israel shall put their handes vpon the Leuites. And Aaron shall waue the Leuites before the Lorde, for a waueofferynge of the chyldren of Israel, that they maye execute the mynistracyō of the seruyce of the Lorde.

And the Leuites shall put their handes vpon the herdes of the bullockes, and thou shalt offer the one for synne, and the other for a burntofferynge vnto the Lorde, that thou mayest make an attonement for the Leuites. And

tes. And thou shalt sett ¶ Leuites before Aaron and his sonnes, & waue them for a waue offerynge before the Lorde. And thus thou shalt separate the Leuites from amonge the chyliden of Israel, and the Leuites shall be myne: after that, shall the Leuites goin, to do the scrupce of the tabernacle of wytnesse.
And thou shalt cleanse them and waue the,
for they are geuen and deliuered vnto me
from amonge the chyliden of Israel, for such as open euery wombe: eue for the fyrst bozne
of all the chyliden of Israel haue I taken the vnto me.

* For all the fyrst borne of the chyldren of Israel are myne both man and beest: sence the daye that I smote euery fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, I sanctified them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Leuites for all the fyrst borne of the chyldre of Israel, and haue geuen the Leuites as a gyfte vnto Aaron & his sonnes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, to do the scruyce of the chyldren of Israel in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to make an attouement for the chyldren of Israel, that there be no plage amonge the chyldren of Israel, yf the chyldren of Israel come nye vnto the holy thynges.

And Moses and Aaron and all the congregacion of the chyldre of Israel byd with the Leuytes, accordynge vnto all that the Lorde commaunded Moses concernynge the Leuytes: euen so dyd the chyldren of Israel vnto them. And the Leuytes were purifyed, and washed their clothes. And Aaron waied them before the Lorde, and made an attonement for them, and cleansed them. After that went the Leuytes in to do theyr scrupce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, before Aaron and bys sonnes: as the Lorde had commaunded Moses concernynge the Leuytes, eue so they dyd vnto them.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: thus is it that belongeth vnto the Leuites: * from xxv. yere vpwarde they shall go
in to wayte vpon the scrupce of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and from the age of fyfte yere, they shall ceasse waytynge vpon the seruice therof, & shall serue no moare: & but shall mynistrer vnto the other brethren in the tabernacle of wytnesse, to wayte, but shall do no moare seruice. Thus therefore shalt thou do vnto the Leuites in their watche.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in þe wyldernes of Synay,
in the fyrste moneth of the secōde
yere, after they were come out of the lande of Egypte, sayinge:
let the chyldren of Israel offre Pasche in hys season: euē the .xiiij. daye of thys moneth

at euen let them kepe it in hys season, accordynge to all the ceremonies of it, and accordynge to all the maners thereof. And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde offer Pascheouer, and they offered Pascheouer the xiiij. daye of the fyrst moneth at euen in y^e wyldernes of Synay: accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, euen so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

And certayne men were defyled vpon
the soule of a man, that they myght not offer Pascheouer the same daye. And they came before Moyses and Aaron the same daye. And men sayde vnto hym: We are defyled vpon
soule of a man: wherfore are we kepte backe,
that we maye not offer an offeringe vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge þe chyldre of Israell? And Moyses sayde vnto the: Stand still, & I wyll heare what the Lorde will co-maunde concernyng you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto þe chyldren of Israell and saye: If any man amonge
you or youre chyldren after you be vncleane
by the reason of a carse, or is in the waye
farre from you, and will offer Pascheouer vn-
to the Lorde: the .xiiij. daye of the secōde mo-neth at enē let them offere it, and eate it with swete breede and iowre herbes: let them leane
none of it vnto the moornyng: * nor breake
any bone of it: But accordyng to all the ordynaunce of the Pascheouer let them offer it.

But the man that is cleane and is not in a iourney, & yet was negligēt to offer Pas-
scouer: the same soule shall peryshe from hys
people, because he brought not the offeringe
of the Lord in hys due season: that man shall bere hys synne. And yf a straunger dwell amonge you, and wyll offer Passecouer vnto
the Lorde, accordynge to the ordinaunce of Passecouer and maner therof, he shall offre it thus: Ye shall haue one lawe both for y^e stranger, and for hym that was bozne at home
in the lande.

And the same day that the Tabernacle was reared vp, a * cloude couered the habitacyn, whych was as a tabernacle of the wyntesse: and at euen there was vpo the habitacyn, as it were the similitude of fyre vntyll the moynynge. So it was alwaye, the cloude couered it by daye, and the similitude of fyre by nyghte. And when the cloude was taken vp fro of the tabernacle, then the chylde of Israel iourneyed: and where the cloude abode there the chyliden of Israel pitched theyr tentes. At the ~~the~~ mouth of the Lorde the chyliden of Israell iourneyed, and at the mouth of the Lorde they pytched. And as longe as the cloude abode vpon the habitacyn they laye styll: and when the cloude tarped styll vpon the habitacyn longe tyme, the chyliden of Israell kepte the watche of the Lorde, and iourneyed not.

And it chaunced þ̄ whā the clowde abode a few dayes vpon the habitacp̄, they abode in their tentes, according to the commaundement of the Lorde: and they iorneyed also at the cōmaundment of the Lorde. And it happened that whan the clowde abode vpon the habitacion frō euen vnto the mornynge, and was takē vp in that morning, then they iorneyed. Whether it was by daye or by night that the clowde was takē vp, they iorneyed. Or yf the cloud tarried two dayes or a moneth, or a longe ceason vpon the habitacpon, and remayned thereon, the chyldren of Israel abode styll, and iorneyed not. And as sone as the clowde was taken vp, they iorneyed. At the mouth of the Lorde, they rested in the restes, and at the commaundment of the Lord, they iorneyed, keepyng þ̄ watche of the Lord, at the commaundement of the Lorde by the bande of Moses.

The .x. Chapter.

¶ The trumpettes of spher. The Israelites depart from Sinai. The captaines of the host are nombred. Hobab refuseth to go with Moses.

21 Ad the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Make the two trompettes of syluer: of an whole peece
thalt thou make the, & thou mayst
vie them to call the congregacyon together,
and when the hoost shall ioznepe. Therfore shall they blowe with the, that all the multitude maye resozte to the before the doore of the tabernacle of witnes. And yf they blowe but one trompet, then the princes which are heedes ouer y thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. But yf ye trompe, the hostes y lye on the east partes shall go forwarde. And ye trompe the second tyme, the hoost y lyeth
on the south syde shall take their ioznepe: for they shall trompe when they take their ioz-neyes. But when the congregacion is to be gathred together, they shall blowe only, and not trope. And the sonnes of Aaron y preast shal blowe w their tropettes, & ye shall haue
the as a lawe for euer in pour generacions.

28 And ye shall go to warre in your lāde against your enemies that were you; ye shall blowe with the trumpettes: and ye shall be remembred before the Lorde your God, to be saued from your enemies. Also in the daye of your gladnes, and in your feaste dayes, and in the beginning of your monethes, ye shall blowe the trumpettes ouer your burnt sacrificyes & peaceoffringes, that they maye be a remembrance for you before your God. I am the Lorde your God.

And it came to passe the twētyth daye of the second moneth in the second yeaer, that the cloude was taken vp from of the habitation of wytnesse. And the chyldren of Israel toke their iorney out of the desert of Sinai, & the cloude rested in the wyldernesse of Pharan.

And the first toke their sojney at the mouth of the Lorde, by the hande of Moses. In the first place went the standart of the hooste of Iuda, according to their armies, whose cap-
taine was Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab.
And ouer the hoost of the tribe of s^c children of Issachar, was Nathanel the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hooste of the trybe of the children of Zabulon, was Eliab the sonne of Helon. And the habitacyon was take dowe-ne: and the sonnes of Gerson & Merari went forth bearyng the habitacyon.

And the hoost of Ruben went forth with their standart and armyes, whose captayne was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hooste of the trybe of the chyldren of Simoẽ was Salamiel the sone of Suri Sadai. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Gad was Eliafaph the sonne of Dequel. The Cabathites also went forewarde and bare the sanctuarie, and the other dyd set vp the habitacio agaynst they came. And the standart of the hoost of the chyldren of Ephraim went forth accordyng to theyr armyes, whose captayne was Elisama the sonne of Amird. And ouer the hooste of the tribe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Samael the sone of Bedazur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the sonnes Ben Iamin was Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni.

And the standart of the hoost of the chyl-dꝛ of Dan came forth: hauing all the hostes together) thorowout their armyes: whose captayne was Abiezer the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hooste of the trybe of the chylde of Aser, was Baguel the sonne of Ochram. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chylde of Nephtali, was Ahira p̄iōne of Enā. These are the lozernes of the chyl-dꝛ of Israel thorowout theyꝝ armyes: and thus the hoostes remoued.

And Moyses sayde vnto ¶ Hobab the sonne of Raguel the Midianite: which was Moses father in lawe: we go vnto the place
of which the Lorde sayd: I wyll geue it you.
Come thou therfore with vs, & we wyll do
the good: for the Lorde hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he answered hym: I wyll not go: but will departe to myne awne land and to my kynred. He sayde: Oh naye, leaue vs not: for thou knowest oure mansions in the wyldernesse: and thou hast bene to vs in steade of ¶ eyes. And yf thou go with vs loke what goodnesse the Lorde sheweth vn- ¶ to
to vs, the same wyll we shewe vnto the.

And they departed from the mount of the Lorde, thre dayes iorneye: and the arcke of the testament of the Lord went before them
in the thre dayes iorneye, to serche oute a re-styng place for them. And the Lorde made a shadowe for the thorrowe the cloude by day,
when they went out of the tentes.

And it fortuned, that whā the arch went forth, Moyses sayde: * Ryle vp Lorde, and let thynne enemyes be scattered: and let them that hate the, flye before the. And when the arch rested, he sayde: Returne O Lorde vnto the many thousandes of Israel.

The .xii. Chapter.

The people murmured. They desire fleshe. They lothe manna. The wauncing fapth of Moyses. The Lord beareth the burden of Moyses to seuerall of the auunces, and they prophesye. He rayneth quayles. The first raynment is punished.

And it fortuned, & whā the people dyd wykedlye, it was a dyspleasure in the eares of the Lord. And whē the Lord heard it, his countenance was prouoked to wrath, & the fier of the Lord burnt among the, & consumed the & were the vttemost of & hoost. And & people cried vnto Moyses. And whā Moyses made intercessiō vnto & Lord, & fier quēched. And & name of & place was called & Chaberah, because & fier of the Lord burnt among them.

And the rascall people that was amonge them, fell a lustyng, and turned them selues and wepte: euen as dyd also the chyldren of Israel: and sayde: who shall geue vs flesh to eate? we remembre the fysh which we dyd eate in Egypt for naught, & the Cucumbers, and melons, lokes, onyons & garleke. But now we our soule is dryed awaye, for we can se nothyng els, saue Manna.

The manna was as coriander seed, and (to se to) lyke Bedellid. And the people wēt about and gathered it, and groude it in milles, or bet it in morters, and baked it in panies, and made cakes of it. And the taist of it was like vnto the taist of an oyle kake. And whā the dewe fell downe vpon the hooste in the nyght, the Manna fell vpon it.

And whā Moyses herde the people wepe thowout theyr householdes, eury mā in & doze of his tent, & & face of the Lord was prouoked vnto wrath exceedingly: & it greued Moyses also. And Moyses sayde vnto the Lord: wherfore hast thou dealt cruelly with thy seruānt? And wherfore haue I not found fauour in thy syght, seying that thou puttst the weyght of all this people vpon me: haue I concealed all this people? Or haue I begottē the: hat & shuldest saye vnto me: carie them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the naked chylde) vnto the lande, which thou swarest vnto their fathers: where shulde I haue fleshe, to geue vnto all this people, which wepe before me, saying: geue vs flesh that we maye eate? I am not able to beare all this people alone, seying it is to heuy for me. If thou deale thus with me, kyll me, I praye the, yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght, that I se not my wechednes.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses, * gather vnto me. lxx. mā of the elders of Israel, which thou knowest, that they are & elders of the people and officers ouer the: and thou shalt byng the vnto the tabernacle of witness, that they maye stande there with the: And I will come downe, and talke with the there, and take of the sprete which is vpon the, and put vpo them, and they shall beare the burthen of the people with the, lest thou be constrained to beare it alone.

And saye thou vnto the * people: be halowed agaynst tomozowe, and ye shall eate flesh: for your whynnyng is in the eares of the Lord, seing ye sayd: who shall geue vs flesh to eate? we were happye in Egypt: therfore the Lord wyll geue you flesh, and ye shall eate. Ye shall not eate one daye nor two, nor fyue dayes, neyther ten, nor twentye dayes: but euen a moneth longe, vntyll it come out at the nactrels of you: and make you to parbrake, because that ye haue cast the Lord a-lyde which is amonge you: and haue wepte before hym, saying: why came we thus oute of Egypt?

And Moyses sayde: * spxe hundred thousande fotmen are there of the people, among which I am. And thou hast sayd: I wyll geue them flesh, that they maye eate a moneth lōge. Shall the shepe & the oxē be slayne for them, to fynde them: ether, shall all the fysh of the see be gathered together for the to serue them? And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: Shall * the Lordes hande be waxed shorter? Thou shalt se now whether my word shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

And Moyses went out, and tolde the people the saying of the Lord, and gathered the lxx. elders of the people, and set them rounde aboute the tabernacle. And the Lord came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the sprete that was vpon hym, and gaue it vnto the lxx. elders. And it fortuned that when the sprete rested vpon them, they pphesied, & did not cease. But there remayned two of the men in the hoost: the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of & other Medad. And the sprete rested vpon them, and they were of them that were wyrtten, and went not out vnto the tabernacle, but prophesied in the hoost. And there ran a pōg man, and tolde Moyses and sayd: Eldad and Medad do prophece in the hoost. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruānt of Moyses * one of hys yonge men, answered & sayde: master Moyses, * forbyd them. And Moyses sayde vnto hym: enuyest thou for my sake? * wolde God & all the Lordes people coulde prophece, and that the Lord wold put hys sprete vpon them. And Moyses gat him into the hoost, he and the elders of Israel.

And there went forth a wynde from the Lord: and * brought quayles from the see: and let

and let the fall about the hoost, euen a daies tozney coude about on euery syde of & hoost, and * (they dyd flye in the ayre) as it were two cubites hye ouer the erth. And the people stode vp, and all that day and all & nyght, and on the mozowe they gathered quayles. And he that gathered a lytle, gathered ten homers ful. And they spred them abrode rounde aboute the hoost. * And whyle the flesh was yet betwene their teeth, and yet it was chewed vp: beholde, the countenaunce of the Lord was moued agaynst & people, & the Lord * slewe the people with an exceedyng great plague. And the name of the place was called, the graues of lust, because they buryed the people that lusted, there. And the people toke their * tozneye from the graues of lust vnto hazeroth, and bode at hazeroth.

The .xii. Chapter.

Aaron & Mir Jam grudge agaynst Moyses. Mir Jam is stricken with leprosy, and healed at the prayer of Moyses.

And * Mir Jam and Aaro spake agaynst Moyses, because of & woman of Jude which he had taken: for he had taken to wyfe one of Jude. And they sayde: hath the Lord in dede spoken only thowout Moyses: hath he not spokē also by vs? And the Lord hearde it. But Moyses was a very * meke mā, aboue ail the men of the earth. And the Lord spake at once vnto Moyses vnto Aaron and to Mir Jam: come out ye thre vnto * the tabernacle of witness, and they came out all thre.

And the Lord came downe in the * pyl-ler of the cloude, and stode in the * doze of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Mir Jam: And they went out both of the. And he said: heare my wordes. If there be a prophete of the Lordes amonge you, I wyll be knowine of him in a visyō: and wyll speake vnto him in slepe. My seruānt Moyses is not so, which is faithfull in all myne house. Vnto him wil I speake * mouth to mouth in a visyō: but in rydels and symplitudes doth not he se the Lord. Wherfore then were ye not afrayed to speake agaynst my seruānt Moyses? And the Lord was moued vnto wrath agaynst them, and he went his waye: and the cloude departed from the tabernacle. And beholde, Mir Jam was become * leprous, as it were snowe. And Aaron looked vpon Mir Jam, and beholde, she was leprous, and Aaron sayde vnto Moyses: I beseech the my Lord, put not the synne vpon vs, which we haue folishly commytted and synned. Oh, let her not be as one that commeth out of hys mothers wombe, and whose halfe flesh is eaten awaye.

And Moyses cryed vnto the Lord, saying: heale her, O God, I beseeche the. And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: If her father had spyt in her face, shulde she not be ashamed seuen dayes? let her be shutte out of the hoost seuen dayes, and after that, let her be receaued in agayne. And Mir Jam was shut out of the hoost seue dayes: and the people remoued not, tyll she was brought in agayne. * And after ward the people remoued from hazeroth, and pitched in the wyldernes of Pharan.

The .xiiij. Chapter.

Certaine men are sent to searche the lande of Canaan.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: * Sende me out to searche the lande of Canaan, which I geue vnto the chyldren of Israel: of euery trybe of their fathers shall ye sende a man, and let them all be suche as are rulers among them. And Moyses at the commaundement of the Lord sent forth out of the wyldernes of Pharan suche men as were all heades of the chyldren of Israel: Their names are these.

Of the trybe of Ruben, Sammua the sonne of zacur. Of the trybe of Symeon, Saphat the sonne of hori. Of the trybe of Iuda, Caleb the sonne of Jephune. Of the trybe of Iachar, Igeal the sonne of Joseph. Of the tribe of Ephraim, Osea the sonne of Nun. Of & trybe of Ben Jamin, Palathi the sonne of Raphu. Of the trybe of zabulon, Gadiel the sonne of Sodi. Of the tribe of Ioseph, namelye of the trybe of Manasse, Gaddi the sonne of Suli. Of the trybe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Gemali. Of the trybe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michael. Of the trybe of Nephthali, Nahbi the sonne of Naphfi. Of the trybe of Gad, Sucl the sonne of Wachi. These are the names of the men, which Moyses sent to spye oute the lande. And Moyses called the name of Osea the sonne of Nun, Josua.

And Moyses sent them forth to spye oute the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you vp thys waye southwarde, that ye maye go vp into the hye contrey, and se the lande what maner thynge it is, & the people that dwelleth therein: whyther they be stroge or weake, ether fewe or many, and what the lande is & they dwell in, whyther it be good or bad: and what maner of cyties they be, & they dwell in, whyther they dwell in tentes or walled towne: and what maner of lāde it is: whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not. Be of a good courage, and byng of the frute of the lande. And it was about the tyme that grapes are fyrst ripe.

And so they went vp, & searched out the lande from the wilderness of zin vnto Rehob, as men come to hemath, & they ascended vnto the south, and came vnto hebron, where Abimā was & Secai & Chalmāni, the sonnes

the sonnes of Enack. Iherozon was buylt seven yere before Zoan in Egypt. And they came vnto Iherozon of Escol, and cut downe there a braunch with one cloustre of grapes and twayne bare it vpon a staffe: and they brought also of the pomgranates and of the fygges. And the place was called Iherozon because of y cloustre of grapes which the chyldren of Israel cut downe thence.

And they turned back agayne from searchinge of the lande after forty dayes. And they went and came to Moses and Aaron, and vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, in the wilderness of Pharan: which is Cadess, and brought them worde. and also vnto all the congregacion, and shewed the frute of the lande. And they tolde hym, and sayde: we came vnto the lande whether thou sendest vs, and surely it floweth with mylke and honye: and here is of the frute of it. Neuerthelesse, the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the cityes are walled and excedynge greate: and moreover, we sawe the chyldre of Enack there. The Amaleckites dwell in the south contrey, and the Hethites, Jebusites, & the Amozites dwell in the mountaynes, & the Cananites dwell by the see, and by the coaste of Jordan.

And Caleb spyled the ^{the} murmur that was raised vp. of the people before Moses, saying: we wyll go vp, and conquerre it: for we be able to overcome it. But the men that went vp with hym, sayde: We be not able to go vp against y people: for they are stronger than we. And they brought vpon euell repozte of the lande which they had searched, saying vnto the chyldren of Israel: The land which we haue gone thowowe to searche it out, is a lande that eateth vp the inhabitants thereof: and the people that we sawe in it, are men of a greate stature. And there we sawe also gyautes, the chyldren of Enack, which come of the gyautes. And we seemed in oure syght as it were grechoppers, and so we did in theyr syght.

The. xiiij. Chapter.

The people murmur agaynst God, and wolde haue stoned Caleb & Josue. The searchers of the lande dye. Amalech kylleth the Israelites.

And all the multitude of y people cryed out, and wepte thowowout that nyght, and all the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron.

And the whole congregacion sayde vnto them: wolde God that we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, eyther that we had dyed in thys wilderness. Wherefore hath the Lorde brought vs vnto thys lande to fall vpon the swerde: and that our wyues, and oure chyldren shulde be a praye? Were it not better, that we retourne vnto Egypte agayne? And they sayde one to another: we wyll make a captayne, and retourne vnto Egypt agayne.

But Moses and Aaron fell on theyr faces before all the congregacion and multitude of the chyldren of Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb the sonne of Iephune (which were of them that searched the lande) rent theyr clothes, and spake vnto all the companie of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The lande which we walked thowowe to searche it, is a very good lande. If the Lorde hath lust to vs, he wyll bringe vs into this lande and geue it vs, which is such a lande as floweth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not ye agaynst the Lorde. * Neyther nede ye to feare the people of the lande: for they are but bread for vs. * Theyr shadowe is departed from them, and the Lorde is with vs, feare them not therfore.

But all they which were in that multitude, bade stone them with stones. And the glorie of the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle of wytnesse, before all the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: How longe do this people prouoke me, and howe longe will it be yer they beleue me: for all y signes which I haue shewed among the? I wyll smyte them with the pestilence and destitoe them: and wyll make of the a greater nacion and a myghtier then they.

And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for y broughtest thys people in thy myght from amonge them. And it wylbe tolde to the inhabitants of this lande also: for they haue hearde lyke wyse, that thou Lorde art amonge this people: and that thou Lorde art sene face to face, and that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that * thou goest before them by daye tyme in a pyller of a cloude, and in a pyller of fyre by nyght. If thou shalt kyll all thys people as they were but one man, then the nacions which haue hearde the fame of the, wyll saye: The Lorde is not able to bringe in this people into the lande which he swore vnto them: but hath slayne them in the wilderness.

And nowe I beseech the, let the power of my Lorde be greate, accor dyng as thou hast spoken, saying: the Lorde is longe yer he be angrey, and full of mercy, and suffereth iniquitie, and synne, and * leaueyth no man innocent, and visiteth the vnrightheousnesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, in the third and fourth generacion: be mercifull I beseeche the vnto the synne of thys people, accor dyng vnto thy greate mercede, as thou hast forgiven this people from Egypt, euen vntyll nowe.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue forgiven it

it, according to thy request. But as truly as I lyue, all the erth shalbe fylled with the glorie of the Lorde. But all those men which haue sene my glorie and my miracles which I dyd in Egypt and in the wilderness and haue tempted me nowe thys .x. tymes, and will not herke vnto my voyce, shall not see the lande which I swore vnto their fathers: nether shall any of them that prouoked me see it. But my seruaunt * Caleb: with who there was another manner of spete: and because he hath folowed me vnto y vtmost, hym wyll I bringe into the lande whiche he hath walked in, and his seed shall inheret it, and also y Amalekites & Cananites whiche dwell in the playne contrey. Tomorrow turne you, and get you into the wilderness: euen by the waye of the redd see.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses & Aaron, saying: howe longe doth this euell multitude murmur agaynst me? I haue heard y murmuringes of the chyldre of Israel with the which they murmur agaynst me. Tell them therfore: As truly as I lyue (sayth the Lorde) I wyll do vnto you, euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Your carkasses shall lye in this wilderness. And all you that were tolde thowowout your nombres, from .xx. yere and aboue (which haue murmured agaynst me) shall not come into the land, ouer which I lyfted vp myne hande, to make y dwell therein, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

But your chyldren which ye saye shulde be a praye, them I wyll bring in, & they shall knowe the land which ye haue refused, and your carkasses shall lye in this wilderness. And your chyldren shall wander in this wilderness .xl. yeres, & suffer for your whoredom, vntyll your carkasses be wasted in the wilderness, after the nombre of the dayes in which ye searched out the lande euen forty daies, * euery daye for a yere shall ye beate your vnrightheousnes euen .xl. yere, * and ye shall knowe my displeasure. If the Lorde haue sayde that I wyll do it vnto all thys euell congregacion that are gathered together agaynst me. For in this wilderness they shalbe consumed, and here they shall dye.

And the men which Moses sent to search the lade, & which (when they came agayne) made all the people to murmur before hym, and brought vp a sleaunders vpon the lande, euen those men that did bring vp that sleaunders vpon it, as though it had bene euell dyed in a greate * plage before y Lorde. But Josua the sonne of Nun & Caleb the sonne of Iephune which were of the men y wente to search the lande, lyued still. And Moses tolde these saynges vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and the people toke great sorowe.

And they rose vp early in the morninge,

and gat them vp into the toppe of the mountayne, sayinge: * lo, we be here, and wyll go vnto the place of which the Lorde sayde vnto vs, for we haue synned. And Moses sayde: wherefore wyll ye go on thys maner, beyond the worde of the Lorde: it will not come well to passe: go not vp therfore: (for the Lorde is not amonge you) that ye be not slayne before your enemyes. For the Amaleckites and the Cananites are there before you, and ye will fall vpon the swerde, * because ye are turned awaye fro the Lorde, and the Lorde will not be with you.

But they * presumed obstinately to go vp into the hyll top. Neuerthe later, the arch of the testament of the Lorde, and Moses departed not out of the host. When the Amaleckites and the Cananites which dwelt in that hyll, came downe, and smote the, and bewed them euen vnto Hozma.

The. xv. Chapter.

The dyynckofferinges of them that enter into the lande. The punishment of hym that synneth of arrogancye or pryde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: * when ye be come in to the lande of your habitacions, which I geue vnto you, & wyll offer an offering vnto the Lorde. Namely, a burnt offering or a speciall sacrifice, eyther of a vowe or of a wyllinge mynde, and in youre princypall feastes, to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of the oren or of the flocke.

Then * lett hym that offereth hys offering vnto the Lorde, bring also a meat offering of a tenth deale of flour, myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, & y fourth part of an hin of wyne for a dyynckoffering, and offer with y burnt offering or any other offering: when it is a lambe. Or yf it be a ram, thou shalt offer for a meate offering, two tenth deales of flour, myngled with y thyrde part of an hin of oyle: and for a dyynckoffering, thou shalt offer the thyrde parte of an hin of wyne for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

And when thou offerest a bullocke for a burnt offering or for a speciall vowe or peace offering vnto the Lorde, let him bring with a bullock a meate offering of .iiij. tenth deales of flour myngled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou shalt bring for a dyynckoffering euen halfe an hin of wyne, for an offering of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. After thys maner, shall it be done for an ore, or for a ram, or for a labe or a kyd. Loke what nombre thou makest in these, such a nombre shalt y make in the also. And according to the nombre of suche offeringes, thou shalt encrease y meatofferinges and the dyynckofferinges.

All that are of your selues shall do these thinges after this maner, to offer an offering of swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And yf a straunger sogeyne with you, or whoso euer be amonge you in your generaciōs, and will offer an offering of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde: euen as ye do, so he shall do. One ordinaunce shall be both for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. It shall be an ordinaunce for euer in your generaciōs, both vnto you and to the straunger before the Lorde. One lawe and one maner shall serue, both for you and for the straunger that sogeyneth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * When ye become into the lande to the which I bring you, then whē ye will eate of the bread of the lande, ye shall take vp an heueoffering vnto the Lorde. Ye shall take vp a cake of the fyrst of your dow for an heue offering, * as ye do the heueoffering of the barne, euen so ye shall heue it. Of the fyrst of your dowe ye shall geue vnto the Lorde an heueoffering in your generaciōs.

And yf ye ouersee your selues, and obserue not all these commaundementes, which the Lorde hath spoken vnto Moses: euen all that the Lorde hath commaunded you by the hande of Moses, from the fyrst daie that the Lorde commaunded Moses, and hence forwarde amonge your generaciōs. Yf it happen that ought is commytted ignorantely of the congregacion, all the multitude shall offer a bullocke for a burnt offering, to be a swete sauour vnto the Lorde, with the meat offering and bypnychoffering therto, accordinge to the maner, and an hegoate for synne. And the preast shall make an atonement for all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them: for it is ignorance. And they shall bypnyge theyr offering for a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: & theyr synofferynge before the Lorde for their ignorance. And it shall be forgiven vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonge you: seinge all the people were in ignorance.

* If any one soule synne thozow ignorance, he shall bypnyge a she goate of a yere olde for synne. And the preaste shall make an atonement for the soule that synned ignorantly, with the synneofferynge before the Lorde to reconyle hym: and that it maye be forgiven hym. And both thou that art borne of the chyldren of Israel and the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue both one lawe, whoso doeth synne thozowe ignorance.

But the soule that doeth ought presumptuously, whither he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same blasphemeth the Lorde.

And that soule shall be rote out from among his people, because he hath despyed the word of the Lorde, and hath broken bys commaundement, that soule therfore shall perishe, and his synne shall be vpon him.

And whyle the chyldren of Israel were in the wylderneise, they founde a man that gathered styckes vpon the * Sabbath daye. And they that founde him gatherynge styckes, brought hym vnto Moses and Aaron and vnto all the congregacyon: * and they put him inwarde, seying it was not declared what shulde be done vnto him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Let the man die: and let all the multitude stone him with stones without the hoost. And all the multitude brought him without the hoost, & stoned him with stones, and he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and byd them: that they * make them gardes in the quarters of theyr garmentes thozow out their generaciōs, and put vpon the garde of the quarters a ryband of yelow sylke. And the garde shall be vnto you to loke vpon it, that ye maye remembre all the commaundementes of the Lorde, and do them: and that ye seke not after your awne hert or your awne eyes: after the which ye vse to go a whooring: but ye shall remembre rather and do all my commaundementes, and be holy vnto your God: I am the Lorde your God, which broughte you oute of the lande of Egypte, for to be your God. I am the Lorde your God.

The .xvi. Chapter.

The rebellon of Cozab, Dathan and Abiram.

And * Cozab the sonne of Jezrebar the sonne of Cabath the sonne of Levi, and Dathan & Abiram the sonne of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: rose vp before Moses,

with other men of the chyldren of Israel, two hundred and fiftye, which were captaynes of the multitude great and famous men in the congregacion: & they gathered them selues together agaynst Moses and Aaron, & sayde vnto

vnto them: ye make moche to do, seynge all the multitude are holy euerie one of the, and the Lorde is amonge them: Why heaue ye your selues vp above the congregacyon of the Lorde?

And when Moses heard it, he fell vpon his face, and spake vnto Cozab and vnto all his company, saying: to morowe the Lorde will shewe who are his, who is holy, & who ought to appoche nye vnto him, and whom he hath chosen to come to him. This do therfore, take you spherpannes, both Cozab and all his company and do spher therein, and put censin in them before the Lorde to morowe. And the man whom the Lorde doth chose, the same shall be holy. Ye make much to do, ye chyldren of Leui.

And Moses sayde vnto Cozab: * heare ye chyldren of Leui: Is it but a small thinge vnto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the multitude of Israel: and brought you to him selfe, to do the scrupce of the dwelling place of the Lorde, and to stāde before the multitude, and to minystre vnto him: he hath takē the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and seke ye the offyce of the preaste also. For which cause both thou and all thy companye are gathered together agaynst the Lorde: And what is Aaron, that ye murmur agaynst him?

And Moses sent, and called Dathā and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, which sayde: we wyl not come vp. Is it a small thyng, that thou hast brought vs oute of a lande that floweth with mylke and honny, to kyll vs in the wildernes, and to raygne ouer vs also? Hast thou brought vs vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and honny, and geuen vs inheritaunce of feldes and vyneyardes? Wilt thou pull out the eyes of these men: we wyl not come vp.

And Moses waxed very angry, & sayde vnto the Lorde. Turne not thou vnto theyr offering. I haue not taken so muche as an asse from them, neyther haue I hurte any of them. And Moses sayde vnto Cozab: Be thou and all thy company before the Lorde both thou, they, and Aaron to morowe. And take euery man his censel, and put censin in them, that ye maye offre before the Lorde: euery man of the two hundred and fiftye take his censoure, thou also Aaron, that euery one maye haue his censel. And they toke euery man his censel, and put spher in them, and layd cens theron, and stode in the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse with Moses and Aaron. And Cozab gathered all the congregacyon agaynst them vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witnes.

And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregacion. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: separate your selues from amonge this congregaciō, that I maye consume them atonce. And they fell vpon their faces and sayde. * O moost myghty God of the spretes of all fleshe, yf one man hath synned, wylt thou be wroth with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the congregacyon and saye: Get you awaye from about the dwelling of Cozab, Dathan and Abiram. And Moses rose vp, and went vnto Dathan and Abirā, and the elders of Israel folowed him. And he spake vnto the congregacion, saying: departe from the tentes of these wicked men, and touche nothing of theirs: lest ye perishe in all their synnes. And so they gate them from the dwelling of Cozab, Dathan and Abirā on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stode in the doze of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their lytle chyldren.

And Moses sayd: herby ye shall knowe the Lorde hath sent me to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of mine awne minde. If these men dye & comen deth of all men: or yf they be dyspyed after the visitacyon of all men, then the Lorde hath not sent me. But and yf the Lorde make a newe thyng, and the earth open her mouth and swallowe them vp with all that they haue: and they go downe quykly into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue prouoked the Lorde.

And it fortunēd as he had made an ende of speakyng all these wordes, * the grounde cloued asunder that was vnder the: & the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them vp, and their houses, and all the men that were with Cozab and all their goodes. And they and all that they had, wēt downe alyue vnto hell, and the earth closed vpon them: and they perished from amonge the congregacion. And all Israel were aboute them fledd at the crye of the. And they sayd: lest the earthe swallowe vs vp also. And there came oute a spher from the Lorde, and consumed the two hundred and fiftye men that offred cens.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preaste, that he take vp the censers oute of the burnynge, and skatter the spher here and there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in theyr deathes: and let them make of them thynne beaten plates for a coueryng of the aultare. For they offered them before the Lorde, and therfore they are halowed, and they shall be a sygne vnto the chyldren of Israel.

And Eleazar the preast toke the brasen censers which they that were burnt had offered, and beate them thynne for a coueryng of the aultare, to be a remembraunce vnto

the chyldren of Israel, that no straunger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the Lord, that it happen not vnto hym lyke as vnto Corah and hys companye, as the Lorde sayde of him by the bande of Moses.

But on the morowe all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, sayinge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lord. And it fortuned that when the multitude was gathered agaynst Moses and Aaron, they looked towarde the tabernacle of witness. And beholde, ^{when they were entered into it} the cloude couered it, and the glory of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of witness. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Set you from amonge thys congregacion, that I maye consume them quickly. And they fell vpon their faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censser, and put fier therin out of the aulter, and powre on cens, and go quykly vnto the congregacion, & thou mayest obteyne forgiveness for them. For there is wrath gone oute from the Lorde, and there is a plague begonne. And Aaron toke as Moses comaunded him, and ran into the middes of the congregacion: and beholde, the plague was begonne amonge the people, and he put on cens, and made an atonement for the people. And when he stood betwene the deyd and them that were alyue, the plague ceased. They that dyed in y plague, were .xliij. thousande and seuen hundred: besyde them that dyed aboute the busynes of Corah. And Aaron went againe vnto Moses before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and the plague ceased.

The .xvii. Chapter.

¶ Aarons rodd buddeth & beareth blossomes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: and take of euery pryncce of them a rodd, after the houses of their fathers, euen twelue roddes: and write euery mans name vpon his rodd. And wryte Aarons name vpon the rodd of Leui: for euery rodd is for a house of their fathers. And put them in the tabernacle of witness, eue in the place where I mete you. And the mans rod whom I chosse, shall blossom. And I wyll make cease from me the grudginges of the chyldren of Israel, whereby they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and all the prynces gaue hym euery pryncce ouer their fathers houses, a rod, euen twelue roddes: and the rodd of Aaron was amonge the roddes. And Moses put the roddes before the Lorde in the tabernacle of witness. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle of witness: and beholde, ^{* Heb. 17. a} the rodd of Aaron for the house of Leui was budded, and bare blossomes and almondes. And Moses brought out all the roddes from before the Lorde vnto all the chyldren of Israel: and they looked vpon them, and toke euery man his rodd.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: bring Aarons rod agayne before the witness to be kepte for a token of the chyldrens rebellyon, and that their murmuring maye cease from me, and that they dye not. And Moses dyd as the Lorde comaunded him, euen so dyd he. And the chyldren of Israel spake vnto Moses, sayinge: beholde, we are wasted awaye & consumed: we all come to naught: whosoever commeth nye the dwelling of the Lorde, dyeth. Shall we vterly consume awaye?

The .xviii. Chapter.

¶ The office of the Leuites. The trybes and tryt trytes must be geuen them. Aarons heritage.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Aaron: Thou and thy sonnes and thy fathers house with thee shall beate the faute of that which is done amysse in the holy place.

And thou and thy sonnes which shall beare the faute of that which is done amysse in your presthode. ^{* Num. 18. a} And thy brythre of the trybe of Leui and of thy fathers house: holden shalt take vnto the, that they maye be soyued vnto the and inuynstre vnto the: euen vnto the and thy sonnes with the before the tabernacle of witness. They shall wayte vpon the and vpon all the tabernacle: onely let them not come nye the vesselles of the sanctuary and the alter, that they and ye also dye not. And they shall be by the, and wayte on the tabernacle of witness for all y scrupce of the tabernacle, and let no straunger come nye vnto you.

Therefore shall ye kepe the holy place and the aulter, that ther fall nomore wrath vpon the chyldren of Israel: beholde, I haue take your brythzen the Leuites from amonge the chyldre of Israel, which as a gyft of yours are geuen vnto the Lorde, to do the scrupce of the tabernacle of witness. Therefore shalt thou and thy sonnes with the take hede vnto your preastes offyce for all thynges y pertyne vnto the aulter, and for all y are with in the vayle. And se that ye serue: for I haue geue your prestes office vnto you as a gyft: and therfore the straunger that cometh nye, must be slayne.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: behold, I haue geuen the the keepynge of myne heueofferynges of all the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel. Euen vnto the, I haue geuen them for the anoyntinge, and to thy sonnes, for a dutye for euer. They shall be thyne be thyne of most holy from the fyre of the altare. All theyr sacrifyses for all theyr meate offerpynges, synne offerpynges or trespass offerpynges, which they byngge vnto me, are most holy. It is thyne and thy sonnes. In the most holy place shalt thou eat it: and all that are males shall eat of it: let it be holy vnto y.

And this also is thyne ^{* Leui. 21. d} the heueofferynges of theyr gyftes, thowowe out all the waueofferynges of the chyldren of Israel: I haue geue them vnto the and thy sonnes, and thy daughters with y, to be a dutye for euer and all that are cleane in thy house, shall eat of it, all the fatt of the oyle, and all the fatt of the wyne and of the corne, whiche they shall offre vnto the Lorde for fyrst frutes, the same haue I geuen vnto the. And whatsoeuer is fyrst rype in theyr lande whych they byngge vnto the Lorde, shall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne house, shall eat of it.

All dedicate thinges in Israel, shall be thyne. All that breaketh the matrice in all flethe that men byngge vnto the Lorde, whether it be of men or beastes, shall be thyne. Neuerthe later the fyrst borne of man shalt thou redeme, and the fyrst borne of vncleane beastes shalt thou redeme lyke wyse. Those that are to be redemed, shalt thou redeme fro the age of a moneth, for the value of the money, namely for fyue shylles after the fyre of the sanctuary. A shylle maketh twenty halpēs. But the fyrst borne of oxen, sheepe and goates shalt thou not redeme. For they are holy, therefore shalt thou sprynkle theyr bloude vpon the alter, and shalt burne theyr fatt vpon the sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

And the flesch of the is thyne ^{* Leui. 22. d} as the wauebest and the rpyght shoulde. These are thyne. All the holy heueofferynges whych y chyldre of Israel offre vnto the Lorde, haue I geuen the and thy sonnes and thy daughters with the, to be a dutye for euer: let it be a salted counaunte for euer, before the Lorde, both vnto the & to thy seed with the.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: ^{* deu. 18. 11. a} ^{* Eccl. 1. 10. g} shalt haue none inheritaunce in their lande, nether shalt thou haue any parte amonge them. I am thy parte and thy enherytaunce amonge the chyldren of Israel. Beholde, I haue geuen the chyldre of Leui all the tenth in Israel to enheryte, for the scrupce whiche they serue in the tabernacle of witness. Neither must the chyldren of Israel henceforth come nye the tabernacle of witness, lest they beare synne and dye. But the Leuites shall do the scrupce in the tabernacle of witness & beare theyr synne. It shall be a lawe for euer i youre generacyons, that amonge the chyldren of Israel they possesse none inheritaunce. But the tythes of the chyldren of Israel whiche they paye as an heueofferyng vnto the Lorde, I haue geue the Leuites to enheret. And therfore I haue sayed vnto them. Amonge y chyldren of Israel ye shall possesse none inheritaunce.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the Leuites and saye vnto them when ye take of the chyldren of Israel the tythes which I haue geuen you of the for youre inheritaunce, ye shall take an heueofferyng of that same for the Lorde: euen the tenth parte of that tythe. And thys youre heueofferyng shall be reckened vnto you, eue as though it were of the corne of the barne, or out of the fulnesse of the wyne presse.

Of thys maner ye shall therfore separate an heueofferyng vnto the Lorde, of all youre tythes which ye receaue of the chyldren of Israel, and ye shall geue therof vnto y Lorde an heueofferyng, whiche shall belonge to Aaron the preaste. Of all youre gyftes, ye shall take out all the Lordes heueofferynges & euen the fatt of theyr halowed thynges.

Therefore thou shalt saye vnto them: whē ye haue taken awaye the fatt of it from it, it shall be couēd vnto the Leuites, as yfit were the encrease of the corne floore, or y increase of the wyne presse. And ye shall eat it in all places, both ye and youre houtholdes, for it is youre rewarde for youre scrupce in the tabernacle of witness. And ye shall beare no synne by the reason of it, when ye haue take from it the fatt of it: nether shall ye vnhalowe the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel lest ye dye.

The .xix. Chapter.

¶ Of the redd kowe. The lawe of hym that dyeth in the tabernacle, and of hym also that toucheth any vncleane thyng.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses: ^{* deu. 19. 1. a} ^{* Eccl. 1. 10. g} speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, that they byngge the a redd kowe without spot, and wherin is no blemish, and vpon which neuer came yocke. And ye shall geue her vnto Eleazar the preaste, & he maye byngge her without the hoste, & cause her to be slayne before hys face.

And let Eleazar y preast take of her bloude with hys synger, and sprynkle it before y tabernacle of witness seuen tymes. And cause the kowe to be burnt in his syghte wth hys skynne, fleshe and bloude. And the dounge of hyr shall be burnt also. And let the preast take Cedar wodd, and Isape and purple cloth, and cast it vpon the kowe as she burneth. Then let the preast wash hys clothes, and he shall bathe hys flesch in water, and then come into the hoste, and the preast shall be vncleane vnto the euen.

And he y burneth her, shall wash hys clothes in water, and bathe hys flesch in water, and be

Matana, and from Matana to Bahaliel, & from Bahaliel to Bamoth, and from Bamoth to Balay that is in the felde of Moab vnto the top of the hyll that appeareth before Iesimon. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Amozites, sayinge: * I will go thowowe thy lande: we will not tourne into thy felde or vyneyardes, nether drynke of the waters of y well: but we will go a longe by the kynges hys waye, vntill we be past thy countre. * But Sehon wolde geue Israel no licence to passe thowowe hys countre, but gethered all hys people together and went oute agaynst Israel into the wyl-dernesse. And he came to Iabeza and foughte agaynst Israel.

* And Israel smote him in the edge of the swerde, and conquered hys lande, fro Arnon vnto Jakob: and vnto the chyldren of Ammon. For the border of the chyldren of Ammon was, * ströge. And Israel toke all these cities and dwelt in all the cyties of the Amozites: in Hesbon and in all the townes that longe therto. For Hesbon was the cytie of Sehon the kynge of the Amozites, whyche fought before agaynst the kynge of y Moabites, and toke all his lande out of hys hāde, euen vnto Arnon. Wherefore they saye in the prouerbe: come to Hesbon, and let the cytye of Sehon be bylt & repayred: for there is a fyre gone out of Hesbon, and a flamme fro the cytie of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar in Moab, and the inheritous of the hys places in Arnon. Wo be to the Moab: o people of Chamos, ye are vndone, he hath put his sonnes to flyghte, and hys daughters to captiuite vnto Sehon kynge of the Amozites. Theyr empire is lost from Hesbon vnto Dibon, and we made a wyl-dernesse euen vnto Nopha, whych reacheth vnto Mediba. And thus Israel dwelt in the lande of the Amozites. And Moses sent to serche oute Iazer, and they toke townes belongynge thereto, and rooted oute the Amozites that were there in.

* And they tourned and went by towarde Balan. And w^g the kynge of Balan came out agaynst them, he and all his people to fyght at Adzei. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, feare him not, for I haue deliuered him in thy hande, and all his people, and hys lāde. And thou shalt do to him as thou dydest vnto Sehon the kynge of the Amozites which dwelt at Hesbon. They smote hym therfore, and his sonnes, and all his people, vntill ther was nothinge lefte him. And they conquered hys lande:

¶ The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ The kynge Balac sendeth for Balaam (whose name in the Hebrue is written Bilcam) Balaams alle speake.

And the chyldre of Israel departed and pitched in the felde of Moab, on the other syde of Iordan, ouer against Jericho. And * Balac y sonne of ziphor sawe all that Israel had done to the Amozites: and the Moabites were soze afrayed of the people, because they were many, and * stode in feare of the chyldren of Israel. And Moab sayde vnto the elders of Madian: now shall this companye lycke vs vp all that are rounde aboute vs, as an oxe lycketh vp the grasle of the felde. And Balac the sonne of ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.

He sent messengers therfore vnto * Balaam the sonne of Beor in Bethor (whyche is by the ryuer in the lande of the chyldre of his folke) to call him, sayinge: beholde, there is a people come oute of Egypte, & beholde, they couer y face of the erth, & dwell ouer agaynst me. Come nowe therfore & curse thys people for my sake. For they are to myghtie for me, yf so perauenture I myght be able to synpte them & to dryue them oute of the lande. For I wote that he whome thou blessest, is blessed, and whome thou cursest is cursed.

And the elders of Moab and the elders of Madian departed, hauynge the rewarde of the lothslayinge in theyr hande. And they came vnto Balaam, and tolde him the wordes of Balac. He answered them: tary here thys nyght, and I will brynge you worde, euen as the Lorde shall saye vnto me. And the Lordes of Moab abode with Balaam.

And God came vnto Balaam and sayde, what men are these wyth the? And Balaam sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of ziphor kynge of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayinge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egypt and couereth the face of the erth: come nowe therfore, and curse them for my sake, yf so perauenture I maye be able to ouercome them in batell, and to dryue them oute. And God sayde vnto Balaam: So not thou with them, nether curse the people, for they are blessed.

And Balaam rose vp in the mornynge & sayde vnto the Lordes of Balac: get you vnto youre lande: for the Lorde will not suffre me to go wyth you. And y Lordes of Moab rose vp, & went vnto Balac and sayde: Balaam wolde not come wyth vs. And Balac sent agayne a greater companye of Lordes and more honorable then they: whyche came to Balaam, and told him: Thus sayeth Balac the sonne of ziphor: oh, let not hyngge let y, but come vnto me, for I will greatly promote the vnto greute honoure, and will do whatsoeuer y sayest vnto me, come I praye the, curse thys people for my sake.

And Balaam answered and sayde vnto y seruantes of Balac: * If Balac wolde geue me

geue me hys housefull of syluer and golde, I canot go beyonde the worde of the Lorde my God, to do lesse or moare. Nowe therfore tarye ye here thys nyght: that I maye wete, what the Lorde will saye vnto me moare. And God came vnto Balaam by nyghte, & sayde vnto him: If the men come to call the, ryse vp and go with them: but loke what I saye vnto the, that shalt thou do.

And Balaam rose vpearly, and sadeld hys alle, & went with the Lordes of Moab. And the countenance of God was angrye because he went. And the angell of the Lorde stode in the waye agaynst hym, as he rode vpon hys alle, and hys two seruantes were with hym. And when the alle sawe the angell of the Lorde stād in the waye, and hauynge a swerde drawn in his hande, the alle turned asyde oute of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balaam smote the alle, to turne her into the waye.

¶ But the angell of the Lorde stode in a path betwene the vyneyardes, and there was a wall on the one syde & another on the other. And whē the alle sawe y angell of the Lorde, she wrenched vnto the wall, and thrust Balaams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. And the angell of y Lorde went forther and stode in a narowe place, where was no waye to tourne, ether to the ryght hande or to the lyfte. And whē the alle sawe the angell of the Lorde, she fell downe vnder Balaam: and Balaam was wroth, and smote the alle with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of the alle, & she sayde vnto Balaam: what haue I done vnto the, that thou hast synpten me nowe thre tymes? And Balaam sayde vnto the alle: because thou hast mocked me: I wolde also there were a swerde in myne hande, for euen nowe wolde I kyll the. And the alle sayde vnto Balaam: am not I thyne alle whyche thou hast rydden vpon sence thou wast bozne vnto thys daye? Was I euer wont to do so vnto the? he sayde: nay.

And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balaam and he sawe the angell of the Lorde standinge in the waye, hauynge a swerde drawn in hys hande. He bowed hym selfe therfore, and fell flat on hys face. And the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto hym: Wherefore hast thou synpten thyn alle thre tymes? beholde, I came out as an aduersary, because thou makest thy waye contrary vnto me, and the alle sawe me, and went backe fro me thre tymes: or els yf he had not turned fro me (geynge place to me that stode in the waye.) I had suerly slayne the, and saued her alyue. Balaam sayd vnto the angell of the Lorde: I haue synned: for I wist not that thou stodest in the waye agaynst me. Nowe therfore yf it displeaseth the I will turne home agayne. The angell sayde vnto Balaam: go with the men: but, what I saye vnto the, that shalt thou speake. And so Balaam went with the Lordes of Balac.

And when Balac herde that Balaam was come, he went out to mete hym vnto a cytie of Moab, whiche is in the border of Arnon, euen in the vtmost coast. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: dyd I not sende for the, to call the? And wherefore camest thou not vnto me? because I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? And Balaam made answer vnto Balac: Loo, I am come vnto the. And can I nowe saye any thinge at all. The worde that God * putteth in my mouthe, that shall I speake. And Balaam went wyth Balac, and they came vnto a cytie of Iretes. And Balac offered oxen and shepe, and sent * (rewarde) for Balaam and for the Lordes y were with hym. And on the morowe Balac toke Balaam, and brought hym vp into the hys place of Baal, that thēce he myght se the vtmost parte of the people.

¶ The. xxi. Chapter.
¶ Balaam blesseth the people.

And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: Balaam: bylde me here seuen alters and prepare me here seuen oxen and seuen rammes. And Balac dyd as Balaam sayde. And Balac and Balaam offered on euery alter an oxe and a ram. And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: stāde by the sacrifice, and I will goo yf happily the Lorde will mete me: and whatsoeuer he sheweth me, I will tell the, and he wēt forth alone. But God met Balaam, and Balaam sayde vnto hym: I haue prepared seuen alters, and haue offered vpon euery alter, an oxe and a ram. And the Lorde put a sayinge in Balaams mouth, and sayde: go agayne to Balac and saye on thys wyle. And whan he went agayne vnto him, loo, he stode by hys sacrifice, he and all the Lordes of Moab. And he toke vp hys parable and sayde: * Balac y kynge of Moab hath sett me from Mesopotamia out of y most faynes of y east (sayinge:) come, curse Jacob for my sake: come, & despye Israel. Howe shall I curse hi, who God hath not cursed: or howe shall I despye him, whom God hath not despyed: from the toppes of the rockes I se hym, and from the hylls I beholde hym: loo, the people shall dwell by the selfe, and shall not be rekened among the nacionys. Who can tell y dust of Jacob, and the nobre of the fourth parte of Israel? I praye God, that my soule maye dye the death of the ryghteous, & that my last ende maye be lyke hys. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: what hast thou done vnto me? I fect the to curse myne enemyes, and beholde, thou hast blessed them. He answered and sayde: must I not kepe that & speake it, whyche the Lorde hath put in put in my mouth: And Balac sayde vnto hym: Come I praye the with me vnto another place, whence thou mayest se them, and thou shalt se but the vtmost parte of them, and shalt not se them all: curse them out of y place for my sake. And he brought him into a felde (where men myght se farre of) euen to the toppe of an hyll, and bylt seue alteres, and offered an oxe and a ram on euery alter. And he sayd vnto Balac: stande here by thy sacrifice, whyle I go yonder. And the Lord mette

* Nu. xxi. g. Balaam, and * put a worde in hys mouth & sayd: go agayne vnto Balac, and thus saye. And when he came to hym: beholde, he stode by his sacrifice, & the Lordes of Moab with hym. And Balac sayde vnto him: what hath the Lord sayde?

And he toke vp his parable & answered: ryse vp Balac and heare, and herke vnto me thou sonne of ziphor. * God is not a mā that he shulde lye, nether the sonne of a man that he shulde repent: shulde he saye, and not doo? or shulde he speake, and not make it good? beholde, I haue taken vpon me to blesse, for he hath blessed, and it is not in my power to alter it. * He behelde no vanyte in Jacob, nor sawe tranayll in Israel. The Lord hys God is w him, and the presence of the kyng is amonge them. * God brought them oute of Egypte, he hath strength as an unicorn. There is no forcery in Jacob, nor sothsayng in Israel. * It is nowe tolde vnto Jacob & Israel, what God hath wrought. Beholde, the people shal ryse vp as a lyoness, and heue vp hym selfe as a lyon. he shall not lye downe, vntill he eate of the praye, and dzyne the bloude of them that are slayne.

* Nu. xxi. b. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: nether curse them nor blesse them. But Balaam answered and sayde vnto Balac: tolde not I the sayinge: all that the Lord speaketh, that I must doo? And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: come I praye the, and I wyll byynge the yet vnto another place: yf peradventure it shall please God, that thou mayst thence curse the for my sake. And Balac broughte Balaam vnto the toppe of Beor, that boweth toward the wyldernesse of Iesymmo. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: make me here seuen alteres, and prepare me here seuen oxen, and seuen rammes. And Balac byd as Balaam had sayde, and offered an oxe and a ram on euery alter.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Balaam prophesied of the kynge of Israel and of the comynge of Christ. Balac is angry with Balaam. The destruction of the Amelkites, and of the hemites.

And when Balaam sawe that it pleased the Lord that he shulde blesse Israel, he went not as he byd twyle before to sett sothsayinge, but sett hys face toward the wyldernesse. And Balaam lyfte vp

hys eyes, and loked vpo Israel as he laye accorpyng to his tpybes, and the spirite of God came vpon him. * And he toke vp hys parable and sayde: Balaam the sonne of Beor hath sayde: the man whose eye is open hath sayd: he hath sayde, whiche heareth the wordes of God and seyth the visyons of the almyghtie, and falleth doune with open eyes.

Howe goodly are thy tentes o Jacob, and thyn habitacions o Israel: eue as the valleyes are they layed abrode, and as gardens by the ryuers syde: as the tentes whiche the Lord hath pyched, and as cyper trees besyde the waters. * The water droppeth out of his bouket, and hys seed shal be many waters. * And hys kyngdome shal be exalted. * God broughte hym out of Egypt: as the strength of an unicorn he vnto hym. he shall eate the nacyns hys enemyes, and gnawe the bones, & perce the thozowe with his arrowes. * He couched hym selfe, and laye doune as a lyon, and as a lyoness, who shall sterre hym vp: blessed is he that blesseth the, & cursed is he that curseth the.

And Balac was wroth wth Balaam, and smote hys handes together, and Balac sayde vnto Balaam: I sent for the to curse myne enemyes, and beholde, thou hast blessed the thre tymes. Therfore nowe gett the quickly vnto thy place. I thought that I wolde promote the vnto honoure, but lo, the Lord hath kept the backe fro worshype. Balaam answered vnto Balac: tolde I not thy messengers which thou sentest vnto me, sayinge: * If Balac wolde geue me his house full of syluer and golde, I cannot passe the worde of the Lord, to do ether good or bad of myne awne mynde: But what the Lord sayeth, that am I compelled to speake. And nowe beholde, I go vnto my people: come therfore, and I wyll aduertise the, what this people shal do to thy folke in the later dayes. And he toke vp hys parable and sayde: Balaam the sonne of Beor hath sayde, the man whose eye is open, hath sayde. he hath sayde that heareth the wordes of God, and hath knowledge of the most hye, and beholdeth the visyon of the almyghtie, and that falleth with open eyes: I shall se hym, but not nowe I shall beholde hi, but not nye. * There shall come a starre of Jacob, and ryse a sceptre of Israel, and shal smyte the costes of Moab & vndermyne all the chyldre of Seth. * And Edom shal be possessed, and Seir shall fall to the possession of theyr enemyes, and Israel shall do manfully. Out of Jacob shall come he that shal haue dominio, and shal destrope the remnant of the cytie.

And whan he loked on Amaleck, he toke vp his parable, & sayde: Amaleck is the fyrst of the nacyns * but hys latter ende shall peryshe utterly. And he loked on the Kenytes and toke vp hys parable, and sayde: stronge is thy dwellynge place, and thou puttest thy nest in a rocke, neuerthelesse the Kenyte shal be roted out, vntill Assur take the presoner: And he toke vp his parable and sayd: Mas, who shall lyue when God doeth thys? The Syppes also shal come out of the coste of Italy, and subdue Assur, & subdue Eber, and he hym selfe shall perishe at the last. And Balaam rose vp, and went and returned to hys place: and Balac also went hys waye.

The. xxv. Chapter.

The people commytteth fornicacion with the daughters of Moab. Phinehes killeth zame and Corbi. God commaundeth to kyll the Moabianites.

And Israel dwelt in Sittim, and the people began to committe whoredome with the daughters of Moab, which called the people vnto y sacrifice of theyr goddes.

And the people byd eate, and worshypped theyr goddes, & Israel coupled him selfe vnto Baal Beor. And the indignacion of the Lord was prouoked agaynst Israel, and the Lord sayde vnto Moses: take all the heades of the people, & hange the vp before the Lord agaynst the sonne, that the wrath of the Lordes countenance maye be turned awaye from Israel. And Moses sayd vnto y iudges of Israel: * enery one slaye hys men that were ioyned vnto Baal Beor.

And beholde, one of the chyldren of Israel came and broughte vnto his brethren, a Moabianity wyfe euen in the syghte of Moses, and in the sight of all y multitude of the chyldren of Israel, that wepte before the doore of the tabernacle of witnesse. * And when Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preaste sawe it, he rose vp out of the myddes of the companie, and toke a weapon in hys hande, and went after the man of Israel into the tent, and thrust them thozowe: both the mā of Israel and also the woman, euen thozowe the belly of her. And the plague ceased fro the chyldre of Israel. * And there dyed in the plague. xxiii. thousande.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: * Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preaste, hath tourned myne anger awaye from the chyldren of Israel, why he was gelous for my sake amonge them, that I had not consumed the chyldren of Israel in my gelousye. Wherefore saye: beholde, I geue vnto him my couenaunt of peace, and he shall haue it, & his seed after him, euen the couenaunt of the preastes offyce for euer because he was gelous for his Goddes sake, and made an attonement for the chyldren of Israel. The name of y Israelite whych was slayne with the Moabianity wyfe was zamri the sonne of Salu, a Lorde of an house and kynred of Symeon. And the name of the Moabianity wyfe that was slayne, was Corbi y daughter of Zur, a heed ouer the people of an house and kynred of Moabian.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: * bere the Moabianites, and smyte them, for they trouble you with theyr wyles, whych haue begyled you by disceate in the cause of Beor, and in the cause of theyr syster Corbi the daughter of a Lorde of the Moabianites, which was slayne in the daye of the plague for Beor sake.

The. xxvi. Chapter.

The chyldren of Israel are nombred.

And it fortuned, that after the plague, y Lord spake vnto Moses & vnto Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preste, sayinge: * take the number of all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel from. xx. yeare and aboue thozowe out theyr fathers houses, all that are able to goo to warre in Israel. And Moses and Eleazar the preast spake vnto them in the feides of Moab, by Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, from. xx. yeare and aboue, as the Lord commaunded Moses & the chyldren of Israel, whan they were come oute of Egypte.

* Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel. The chyldren of Ruben: Hanoch, of whome cometh the kynred of the Hanochites: and Palu of whom cometh the kynred of the Palutites. And after theyr nombres, they were * foure and twenty thousande, all males from a moneth olde and aboue.

For they were not nombred amonge the chyldren of Israel, because there was no en- heritaunce geuen them amonge the chyldren of Israel. These are the nombres, when Mo- ses and Eleazar the preast nombred the chil- dren of Israel in the playne of Moab, fast by Jordan, ouer against Jericho. And amog these there was not a man of them, whom Moses and Aaron nombred, when they tolde the chyldren of Israel in the wyldernes of Sinai. For the Lorde sayde of them: they shal dye in the wyldernes: and ther was not left a man of them, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephunc, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

The xxviij. Chapter.

The lawe of the heritage of the daughters of zelaphead. The lande of promys is shewed unto Mo- ses: in whose steade is appointed Josua.

* Jos. xviii. a. And the daughters of Zelaphead the sonne of Heber the sonne of Gilead the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse, of the kynred of Manasse the sonne of Joseph (whose names were Hahela, Hoha, Hagla, Hela and Chirza) came, and stode before Moses and Eleazar the preast, and before the lordes, and all the mul- titude by the doore of the tabernacle of wit- nes, saying: oure father dyed in the wylder- nes: and * was not in the companie of them that gathered them selues together against the Lorde in the congregacyon of Corah. But * dyed in his owne synne, and hadd no sonnes. Wherefore then is the name of our fathers taken awaye from amonge his kin- red, because he hath no sonne? * Geue vnto vs therfore a possession among the brethren of oure father.

And Moses brought theyr cause before the Lorde. And the Lorde spake vnto Mo- ses, sayinge: The daughters of zelaphead speake ryght: thou shalt geue them a posses- syon to enheret amonge theyr fathers bre- thren, & shalt turne the enheritaunce of their father vnto them. And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: If a man dye and haue no sonne, ye shall turne his en- heritaunce vnto his daughter. If he haue no daughter, ye shall geue his enheritaunce vnto his brethren. If he haue also no bre- thren, ye shall geue his enheritaunce vnto his fathers brethren. And yf his father haue no brethren, ye shall geue his enheritaunce vn- to him that is next to him of his kynred, and he shall possesse it. And thus shalbe vnto the chyldren of Israel a lawe of iudgement, as the Lorde hath commaunded Moses.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: * get the vp into this mount Abarim, and behold the lande which I haue geuen vnto the chil- dren of Israel. And when thou hast sene it, & thou shalt be gathered vnto thy people also, as Aaron thy brother was gathered. For ye were disobeyent vnto my mouthe in the deserte of Sin, in the strepe of the con- gregacyon. Neyther dyd ye sanctifye me in the waters before their eyes. * That is the water of strepe in Cades in the wylder- nesse of Sin. And Moses spake vnto the Lorde sayinge: let the Lorde God of the spytes of all fleshe sett a man ouer the congregacyon, which maye go out and in before them, and leade them out and in: that the congre- gacyon of the Lorde be not as shepe which haue not a shepherde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: take Josua the sonne of Nun, in whom is the spere, and putt thyn handes vpon hym, & set hym before Eleazar the preast, and before all the congregacyon: and geue hym a charge in theyr syght. And put of thy prayse vpon him, that all the com- panye of the chyldren of Israel maye be obe- dient. And he shall stode before Eleazar the preaste, which shall aske counsell for hym * after the iudgement of Arim before the Lorde. And accordynge vnto his worde shal they go out and in, both he and all the chyl- dren of Israel wyth hym, and all the con- gregacyon.

And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaun- ded him: and he toke Josua, and set hym be- fore Eleazar the preaste, and before all the congregacyon: * and put his handes vpon him, & gaue him a charge, as the Lorde com- manded thowowe the hande of Moses.

The xxviij. Chapter.

What must be offered on euery feast daye.

And

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: Commande the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: My offering and my bzed for my sacrifices which are made for a swete sauoure, shall ye obserue in theyr due season. And y^e shall saye vnto them: * This is the offering which ye shall offer vnto the Lord. ij. lambes of a yere olde without spot daye by daye, for a continuall burnt offering. One lambe shalt thou offer in the morning, and the other at euen. * And thereto the tenth part of an epha of flour for a meat offering myngled with beaten oyle conteyninge the fourth part of an hin. It is a dayly burnt offering, such as was ordeyned in the mounte Sinai for a swete sauoure a sacrifice vnto the Lord. And let the drinck offering of the same be the fourth part of an hin for one labe, and in the holy place shalt thou commaunde the wyne to be powred vnto the Lord.

B And the other labe thou shalt offer at eue after the maner of the meat offering and the drinck offering of y^e morning: a sacrifice shalt thou offer for a swete sauoure vnto y^e Lord. And on the Sabbath daye two lambes of a yere olde a pece, and without spot, and two tenth deales of flour for a meat offering myngled wth oyle, and the drinck offering thereto. The burnt offering of the Sabbath must be done in the selfe Sabbath, besyde the dayly burnt offering and his drinck offering.

And in the beginninge of youre monethes, ye shall offer a burnt offering vnto the Lord: two yonge bullockes, and a ram, and vij. lambes of a yere olde without spot: and iij. tenth deales of flour for a meat offering myngled with oyle for one bullocke, and ij. tenth deales of flour for a meat offering mingled with oyle for one ram. And a tenth deale of flour myngled with oyle for a meat offering vnto one lambe, for a burnt offering and a swete sauoure and a sacrifice vnto the Lord. And theyr drinck offerings shall be halfe an hin of wyne vnto one bullocke, and the third part of an hin of wyne vnto a ram, and the fourth part of an hin vnto a lambe. Thys is the burnt offering of the moneth

E in hys moneth, thozowout the monethes of the yere: and one hegoate for a syn offering vnto the Lord shall be offered, after the dayly burnt offering and hys drinck offering. * And the fourteenth daye of the fyrst moneth, is the passeouer of the Lord. And in y^e fyrst daye of the same moneth is the feast: and seven dayes longe shall vnleued bzed be eatē. In the * fyrst daye shall be a holy conuocacyon, ye shall do no maner of seruile worke therein. But ye shall offer a sacrifice for a burnt offering vnto the Lord. ij. yonge bullockes, one ram, and seven lambes of a yere olde, which are to you wout spot, and let theyr meat offering be of flour mingled with oyle: the tenth deales also shall ye offer for a bullocke, and two tenth deales for a ram: one tenth deale shalt thou offer for euery lambe of the seven laves: and a hegoate for synne to make atonement for you.

Ye shall offer these, besyde the burnt offering in the morning, which is a continuall burnt sacrifice. After this maner ye shall offer thozowout the vij. dayes: the fode of the sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And it shall be done besyde the dayly burnt offering and his drinck offering. And in the seventh daye ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon, and ye shall do no seruile worke. Therfore in the daye of your first frutes, when ye bzynge a newe meat offering vnto the Lord (accorpyng to your wekes) ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon, & ye shall do no seruile worke in it: but offer a burnt offering for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord: two yonge bullockes, a ram, * and .vij. lambes of a yere olde a pece, with their meat offerings of flour myngled with oyle, the tenth deales vnto a bullocke, two tenth deales to a ram, and one tenth deale vnto a lambe thozowout the seven lambes, and an hegoate to make an atonement for you. This ye shall do besydes the continuall burnt offering, and hys meat offering: & they shall be vnto you without spot, with their drinck offerings.

The xxx. Chapter.
What must be offered the eighth fyrst dayes of the seventh moneth.

And in y^e fyrst daye of y^e vij. moneth ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon: * ye shall do then no seruile worke. For it is a daye of blowing vnto you. But ye shall offer a burnt offering for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord: one yong bullocke, one ram, and .vij. laves of a yere olde a pece that are pure. And their meat offering shall be made of flour mingled with oyle. iij. tenth deales vnto the bullocke, and .ij. vnto the ram: and one tenth deale vnto one lambe thozowout the .vij. lambes. And an hegoate for synne to make an atonement for you, besyde y^e dayly burnt offering of y^e moneth & his meat offering, & besyde the dayly burnt offering & his meat offering, and the drinck offerings of the same, which must be done accorpyng vnto the maner of the for a sauoure of swetnes of the sacrifice of the Lord.

* And ye shall haue the tenth daye of that same seventh moneth an holy conuocacyon: and ye shall humble youre soules, & shall do no maner worke therein. But ye shall offer a burnt offering vnto the Lord for a swete sauoure: one bullocke, a ram, and .vij. laves of a yere olde a pece, which shall be vnto you, without faute. Theyr meat offering shall be shalbe of flour mingled with oyle. iij. tenth deales to a bullocke, and .ij. to a ram, & a tenth deale vnto a labe, thozowout the .vij. lambes. An hegoate for synne, besyde the syn offering of atonement and dayly burnt offering, and the meate and drinck offerings y^e longe to the same. * And in the fyrst daye of the vij. moneth ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon, and do then no seruile worke, and ye shall kepe a feast vnto y^e Lord. vij. dayes longe. And ye shall offer a burnt offering for a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lord thirtene bullockes, two rams, and fourtene lambes of a yere olde: which shall be without blemph. And their meat offering shall be of flour myngled wth oyle. iij. tenth deales vnto euery one of y^e bullockes. ij. tenth deales to eche of the rams, and one tenth deale vnto eche of y^e laves. And one hegoate for synne, besyde the dayly burnt offering with his meate and drinck offering.

E And the second daye ye shall offer twelue yonge bullockes. ij. rams. xiiij. yering lambes without spot: and let their meat offering and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams and lambes be accorpyng to the nombre of them and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, besyde the dayly burnt offering and his meate and drinck offerings. And the thirde daye ye shall offer .xi. bullockes. ij. rams, and xiiij. yering lambes without spot: and let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams, and laves be after the nombre of them and accorpyng to the maner. And there shall be offered an hegoate for synne, besyde the dayly burnt offering and his meate and drinck offering.

In the fourth daye, ye shall offer ten bullockes, two rams, and fourtene lambes yeringes and pure: let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams & lambes be, accorpyng to the nombre of them and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, besyde the dayly burnt offering, and hys meate and drinck offering. In the fyrst daye ye shall offer nyne bullockes, two rams and thirtene lambes of one yere olde a pece without spot. And let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams and lambes be accorpyng to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, besyde the dayly burnt offering and his meate and drinck offering. And in the sixth daye, ye shall offer eight bullockes, two rams and fourtene yering lambes without spot. And let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams and lambes be accorpyng to the maner. And an hegoate for synne, besyde the dayly burnt offering, and his meate and drinck offerings. In the seventh daye, ye shall offer seven bullockes, two rams and thirten lambes that are yeringes and pure.

And let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams and lambes be accorpyng to their nombre, and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, besyde the dayly burnt offering, and hys meate and drinck offering.

In the eighth daye, ye shall haue a conuocacyon of the feast vnto you, and ye shall do no seruile worke therein. But ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord: one bullocke, one ram and seven yering lambes without spot. Let theyr meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullocke, ram and lambes be accorpyng to the nombre, and accorpyng to the maner. And an hegoate for synne, besyde the dayly burnt offering and hys meate and drinck offerings.

These thinges ye shall do vnto the Lord in youre feastes: besyde youre vowes and frew offerings, in youre burnt offerings, meat offerings, drinck offerings, and peace offerings. And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel all that the Lord commaunded him.

The xxx. Chapter.

Of vowes when they shall be kept, and when not.

And Moses spake vnto the heads of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, saying: this is y^e thig which the Lord hath commaunded. * If a man vowe a vowe vnto the Lord, or swere an oth to bynde his soule: he shall not go back with his worde: but shall fulfill all that is proceded out of his mouth.

If a woman also vowe a vowe vnto the Lord, and bynde her selfe bynge in her fathers house in the tyme of her youth, and her father heare her vowe and bonde which she hath made vpon her soule, and holde his peace thereto: then all her vowes & bondes which she hath made vpon her soule shall stande in effect. But and yf her father forbyd her the same daie y^e he heareth it, none of her vowes nor bondes which she hath made vpon her soule shall be of value: and y^e Lord shall forgive her, because her father forbade her.

If she had an husbnde when she vowed or pronounced ought out of her lippes, wherewith she bonde her soule, and her husbnde hearde it and helde his peace there at the same daye he heard it, then her vowes and her bondes wherewith she bounde her soule, shall stande in effecte. And yf her husbnde forbade her the same daye that he hearde it: and made her vowe which she hath vpon her of none effecte, and released the opening of her lippes, wherewith she bounde her soule, the Lord shall forgive her.

But euery vowe of a wedowe and of her

The xxxi. Chapter.

The Madianites and Balaam are slayne. The praye is equally deuorced. A present given of Israel.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: * auenge the chyldren of Israel of the Madianites, and afterwarde shalt thou be gathered vnto thy people.

And Moyses spake vnto þe folke sayinge. Harnessse some of you vnto warre, and let them go vpon the Madianites, and auenge the Lorde of the Madianites. Lett there be chosen a thousande out of euery tribe of Israel, that out of all þe tribes ye may send some to the warre. And there were taken out of the thousandes of Israel, twelue thousande prepared vnto warre, of euery trybe a thousande. And Moyses sent them to the warre, euen a thousande of euery trybe, and with them, Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the preaste, and the guysselles:

and the * trompettes to blowe were in hys

hande. And they warred agaynst the Madianites, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses, & slue all the males. And they slue the kinges of Madian amonge other that were slayne: Namely Eui, and Rekem, zur and Hur and Reba: fyue kinges of Madian w Balaam the sonne of Beor, who they slue w the sweard: And the chyldren of Israel toke all the women of Madian prisoners, & their chyldren: and spoiled all their catell, and all their flockes, and all their goodes. And they burnt all their cityes wherin they dwelt, and all their castels with fier. And they toke all þe spoyle and all that they coulde catch both of me and beastes. And they brought the captiues and that which they had take and the spoyle vnto Moyses and Eleazar the preaste, and vnto the company of the chyldren of Israel, euen vnto the hoost þe were in the felde of Moab by Jordan, oueragaynst Jericho.

And Moyses and Eleazar the preaste, and all the lordes of the congregacion went out of the hoost agaynst them. And Moyses was angrye with the officers of the hoost, with þe captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, which came fro the warre and battayll: and Moyses sayde vnto them: haue ye saued all the women alyue? beholde, * these caused the chyldren of Israel thozow the counsell of * Balaam, to comyt trespass agaynst the Lorde, in the busynesse of Beor, & there folowed a plage among the congregacion of the Lorde. Howe therfore, * slepe all the men chyldren, and the women þe haue lien with men fleshly. But all the women chyldren that haue not lien with men, kepe alyue for your selues. And ye shall remayne without the hoost seven dayes, all þe haue kylled any persone: * & all that haue touched any deede body, and purify both your selues and your prisoners, the. iij. daye & the. vij. And spraye all your raymentes and all that is made of skynnes, and al worke of goates heer, and all thinges made of woodd.

And Eleazar the preaste sayde vnto the me of warre, which came from the battayll: this is the ordynance of the lawe which the Lorde commaunded Moyses: Golde, syluer, brasse, and yron. tyn and lead, and all that maye abyde the fier, ye shall make it go thozowe the fier, and it shall be cleane. Neuerthelesse, it shall be sprayned with sprayning water. And all that suffereth not the fier ye shall make go thozowe the water. And washe your clothes the seuenth daye, and ye shall be cleane. And afterwarde come into the hooste.

And þe Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: take the summe of the praye that was take both of the women and of catell, thou & Eleazar the preaste, and the auncient fathers of the congregacion. And deuoyde it into two two partes, betwene them þe toke the warre vpon them, and wet out to battayll: and all the congregacion. And take a porcyon vnto the Lorde of the men of warre, which went out to battayll: * one soule of fyue hundred, both of the women and of the oren, and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shall take it of the þe halfe, and geue it vnto Eleazar the preaste, as an heue offering of þe Lorde. And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israel, þe shalt take one porcyon of fyfty, of the weme, of the oren, of the asses and of the shepe, and of all maner of beastes: and geue them vnto the Leuites, which wayte vpon the habitation of the Lorde.

And Moyses and Eleazar the preaste dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the botye and the praye which the men of warre had caught, was fyue hundred thousande, and. lxxv. thousande shepe: and. lxxij. thousande oren. lxx. thousande asses: and. xxxij. thousande soules of women, that had lien by no man.

And the halfe which was the parte of the that went out to warre, was thre hundred thousande and seuen and thirtie thousande and. v. hundred shepe. And the Lorde part of the shepe was fyue hundred and. lxxv. And the oren were. xxxvi. thousande, of which þe Lorde part was. lxxii. And the asses were. xxx. thousande and fyue hundred, of which the Lorde part was. lxi. And the soules of women were. xvi. thousande, of whiche þe Lorde part was. xxxij. soules. And Moyses gaue that summe which was the Lorde heue offering, vnto Eleazar the preaste: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the other halfe of the chyldren of Israel whiche Moyses separated from the men of warre, (þe isto wete the halfe þe percyoned) vnto the congregacion) was. iij. hundred thousande, and. xxxvij. thousande & fyue hundred shepe: and. xxxvi. thousande oren: and. xxx. thousande asses, and fyue hundred: and. xvi. thousande soules of women. And Moyses toke of his halfe that percyoned vnto the chyldren of Israel, one porcyon of fyfty, both of þe women and of the catell, and gaue them vnto þe Leuites, which wayted vpon the habitation of the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the offycers of thousandes of the hooste, the captaynes ouer the thousandes, and the captaynes ouer the hundredes came forth, and sayde vnto Moyses: Thy seruantes haue take the summe of þe men of warre, which are vnder oure auctoryte, and there lacketh not one man of vs. We haue therfore brought a present vnto the Lorde what euery man foude of iewels of golde, chepys, bracelletes, rnynges, earpynges and spagels, to make an atonement for our soules before the Lorde.

And Moyses sayde vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben: shall poure brethren goo to warre, and ye shall sit here? Wherfore discourage ye the hert of the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde not goo ouer into the lande, which the Lorde hath geuen them? * Thus dyd your fathers, when I sent them fro Edes Barne to se þe lade. For when they wet vnto the river of Escol, and sawe þe lande: they discouraged the hert of the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde not go into the lande, which the Lorde hath geuen them.

And the Lorde was wroth the same tyme and sware, sayinge: * None of the men þe came out of Egipte from twentye yere olde and aboue, shall se the lande which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not wholly folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune the Kenesite, and Josua the sonne of Nun: for they haue folowed the Lorde. And the Lorde was angry with Israel, and made them wandre in the wilderness fourty yere, vntill all the generacion that had done euell in the syght of the Lorde were consumed.

And Moyses and Eleazar toke the golde of them, iewels of all maner fashions: And all the golde of the heue offering that they heued vnto the Lorde, (of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes) was. xvi. thousande. vij. hundred and fyfty syles, for the men of warre had spoyled, euery man for him selfe. And Moyses and Eleazar the preste toke the golde of the captaynes ouer the hundredes, & brought it into the tabernacle of witness, for a memoziell of the chyldren of Israel before the Lorde.

The xxxij. Chapter.

To Ruben and Gad and to halfe the trybe of Manasse, is promysed the possession beyonde Jordan eastwarde.

The chyldren Ruben and the chyldren of Gad had an exceedynge greate multitude of catell. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer and the lande of Silcad that it was apte place for catell, the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad came & spake vnto Moyses and Eleazar the preaste and vnto the lordes of the congregacyon, sayinge: The lande of Ataroth and Dibon, Jazer and Nemrah, Hesbon and Elealeh, Sabam and Nebo and Beon: which contreye the Lorde smote before the congregacyon of Israel: is a lande mete for a catell, and we thy seruantes haue catell: wherfore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syght, let this lande be geuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and byyng vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moyses sayde vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben: shall poure brethren goo to warre, and ye shall sit here? Wherfore discourage ye the hert of the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde not goo ouer into the lande, which the Lorde hath geuen them? * Thus dyd your fathers, when I sent them fro Edes Barne to se þe lade. to augmente the scarce warth of the Lorde, to Israel warde. For yf ye turne awaye fro after hym, he will yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, and ye shall destroye all thys folke. And they went nere him, and sayde: we will buylde shepfoldes here for oure shepe and for oure catell, and (walled) cities for our chyldren. But we our selues will goo ready armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntyll we haue brought them vnto their place. And our chyldren (and whatsoeuer we maye haue) shall dwell in the fenced cities, because of the inhabytters of the lande. We wyll not returne vnto oure houses, vntyll the chyldren of Israel haue inheretted, euery man his enheritaunce. Neether will we enheret with them on yonder syde Jordan forwarde, because oure enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

And Moses sayde vnto them: yf ye will do this thynge, and goo harnessed before the Lorde to warre, and wyll go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Lorde, vntyll he haue cast out his enemies before him: and vntyll the lande be subdued before the Lorde, then ye shall returne and be without synne before the Lorde and before Israel, and this lande shall be youre possession before the Lorde. But and yf ye wyll not do so, behold, ye haue synned agaynst the Lorde: and be sure, youre synne wyll fynde you out.

Nowe therfore, buylde cities for youre chyldren, and foldes for your shepe, and do that ye haue spokyn. The chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruantes wyll do as my lord commaundeth. Our chyldren, our wyues, oure shepe and our catell shall remayne here in y cities of Gilead. But thy seruantes wyll goo all harnessed for the warre, and vnto battayll before the Lorde, as my lord sayth.

And for theyr sakes, Moses commaunded Eleazar the prest, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel: and Moses saide vnto them: If the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben wyll go with you ouer Jordā, all prepared to fyght before y Lorde, then when the lande is subdued before you, ye shall geue them the lāde of Gilead to possesse: but and yf they wyll not go ouer with you in harnesse, they shall haue their possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaan. And the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben answered, sayinge: As the Lorde hath sayde vnto thy seruantes, so wyll we do. We will go harnessed before the Lorde into the lande of Canaan, that the possession of oure enheritaunce maye be on thys syde Jordan.

And Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and to the chyldren of Ruben, and vnto halfe the trybe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kingdome of Sehon kynge of the Amozites, and the kingdome of Og king of Basan, the lāde w the cities therof in y coastes and cities of the costrey rounde about. And the chyldren of Gad buylde Dibon & Ataroth, & Aroer, and Atroth, Sophan Jafer, & Jeggaben, Bethnimra, & Betharan, fenced cities, & they buylde foldes for the shepe. And the chyldren of Ruben buylde Helbon, Eleale, Kiriatthaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon, & tur ned their names, & Sibama also: and gaue other names vnto y cities which they builded. And the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasse went to Gilead, and toke it, & put out the Amozites that dwelt therein. And Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse, and he dwelt therein. And Jahir the sonne of Manasse went and toke the small townes therof, and called them Hanoth Jair. And Hobab went and toke Kenath, and the townes longynge therto, & called it Hobab after his awne name.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

The iourneys of Israel are nūbered. They are commaunded to kyl the Canaanites.

These are the iourneys of the chyldren of Israel, which went out of the lande of Egypt with their armyes vnder the hande of Moses and Aaron. And Moses wrote their goinge out by their iourneyes, accordyng to the commaundemēt of the Lorde: cū these are the iourneyes of their goynge out. They departed from Rahemes the xv. daye of the fyrst moneth, on the morowe after Passouer: and the chyldren of Israel went out with an hye bande in the syght of all the Egipcians. For the Egipcians buyryed all their fyrst bozne which the Lorde had smyten amonge them. And vpon theyr goddes also the Lorde dyd execucion. And y chyldren of Israel remoued from Rahemes, and pitched in Socoth.

And they departed fro Socoth, and pitched theyr tentes in Ethan, which is in the edge of y wyldernesse. And they remoued fro Ethan, and turned agayne vnto y Hicroth which is before Baal zephō: and pitched before Migdol. And they departed fro y playne of Hicroth: and went thoro the myddes of the see in the wyldernes, and went. iij. dayes iorney in the wyldernes of Ethā, and pitched in Marah. And they remoued from Marah, and came vnto Elim, where were twelue fountaynes of water, and xij. paulmetrees, and they pitched there.

And they remoued from Elim, and laye fast by y red see. And they remoued from the red see, and laye in the wyldernes of Sin. And they toke their iorneye out of the wyldernesse of Sin, and set vp theyr tentes in Daphka.

The iourneyes Numeri. No. lxxviii.

Daphka. And they departed from Daphka, and laye in Alus. And they remoued from Alus, and laye at Rapphedim, where was no water for the people to drynke. And they departed from Rapphedim, and pitched in the wyldernes of Sinai.

And they remoued from the desert of Sinai, and pitched at the graues of lust. And they departed fro the sepulchres of lust, and laye at Hazeroth. And they departed fro Hazeroth, and pitched in Rithma. And departed from Rithma, and pitched at Rimmon Parez. And they departed from Rimmon Parez, and pitched in Libna. And they remoued from Libna, and pitched at Risa. And they iourneied from Risa, and pitched in Rehelatha. And they went from Rehelatha, and pitched in mount Sapper. And they remoued from mount Sapper, and laye in Harada. And they remoued from Harada, and pitched in Makebeloth.

And they remoued from Makebeloth, and laye at Cabath. And they departed fro Cabath, and pitched at Charath. And they remoued from Charath, & pitched in Mithca. And they went from Mithca, and pitched in Halmona. And they departed from Halmona, and laye at Moseroth. And they departed fro Moseroth, and pitched in Bane Jakan. And they remoued from Bane Jakan, and laye at Horgadgad. And they went fro Horgadgad, and pitched in Jathbatha. And they remoued from Jathbatha, and laye at Abzona. And they departed fro Abzona, and laye at Ezeon gaber. And they remoued from Ezeon gaber, and pitched in the wyldernesse of Sin, whych is Cades.

And they remoued from Cades, and pitched in mounte Hoz, whiche is in the edge of the lande of Edom. And Aaron the prest went vp into mount Hoz at the commaundement of the Lorde, and dyed there, euen in the fourtyth yere, after the chyldren of Israel were come out of the lande of Egypte, and in the fyrst daye of y fyfth moneth. And Aaron was an hundred and xxij. yere olde when he died in mount Hoz. And king Erad the Canaanite, which dwelte in the south of the lande of Canaan, hearde of the comming of the chyldren of Israel.

And they departed from mounte Hoz, and pitched in Zalmona. And they departed from Zalmona, and pitched in Phunun. And they departed from Phunun, and pitched in Oboth. And they departed fro Oboth, and pitched in Jhabarim, and toward the border of Moab. And they departed fro Jhabarim, and pitched in Dibon Gad. And they remoued from Dibon Gad, and laye in Almō Diblathaim. And they remoued from Almō Diblathaim, and pitched in y mountaynes of Abarim before Habo. And they departed from the mountaynes of Abarim, and pitched in the felde of Moab, fast by Jordan oueragaynst Jericho. And they pitched by Jordan, from Beth Hatesmoth vnto the playne of Sittim in the felde of Moab.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the felde of Moab by Jordan oueragaynst Jericho, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: when ye are come ouer Jordan to entre into the lande of Canaan, ye shall dryue out all the inhabytters of the lande before you, and destroye all their pictures, and breake asunder all their pynales of metall, and plucke downe all theyr altars. And possesse the lande & dwell therein, for I haue geuen you the lande to enioye it. And ye shall deuyde the enheritaunce of the land by lot amonge your kynredes, and geue to the mo the moze enheritaunce, and to the fewer the lesse enheritaunce. And youre enheritaunce shall be in the trybes of your fathers, euery mans enheritaunce in the place where his lot falleth.

But and yf ye wyll not dryue out the inhabytters of the lande before you, thā those which ye let remayne of the, shall pryck in youre eyes, and dartes in your sydes, and shall bere you in the lande wherein ye dwell. Moreouer, it will come to passe, that I shall do vnto you, as I thought to do vnto them.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

The coastes and borders of the lande of promysse. Certaine men are assigned to drupde the lande.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye come into y lāde of Canaan, thys is the lande y shall fall vnto your enheritaunce, the lande of Canaan with her coastes. And your southquarter shall be fro y wyldernes Sin alonge by the coaste of Edom, so that your southquarter reache vpon the yde of the salt see eastwarde: & set a compasse from the south vp to Acrabim: and recathe to zinna. And go out from the south to Cades Barne, & go out also to hazar Adar, and go alonge to Azmon: and set a compasse agayn from Azmon vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and shall go out at the see.

And let your westquarter be the greete see: let the same see be your westcoaste. And thys shall be your northquarter: ye shall compasse your border from the greete see vnto mount Hoz. And from mount Hoz, ye shall describe your border, tyll it come vnto Hemoth, and the ende of the coaste shall be at zedada, and the coaste shall reache out to ziphon, and go oute at hazar Enan. Thys shalbe your northquarter.

And ye shall compass your eastquarter from Hazeran to Sepha. And the coast shall go downe from Sepham to Ribla on the east syde of Ain. And the same border shall descende and go out at the syde of the see of Cenereth eastwarde. And then go downe alonge by Iordane, & leaue at the salt see. And thys shalbe your lade with the coastes therof rounde aboute.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel sayenge: thys is the lande whiche ye shall inherite by lot, and which the Lorde commaunded to geue vnto nyne trybes and an halfe: * for the tribe of the chyldre of Ruben accordyng to the householdes of theyr fathers, and the trybe of the chyldren of Gad accordyng to theyr fathers householdes, and halfe the trybe of Manasse, haue receaued theyr enheritaunce. Two trybes and an halfe haue receaued their enheritaunce on the other syde of Iordan, oueragaynst Jericho eastwarde.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayenge: These are the names of the men, which shall deuyde the lande vnto you: Eleazar the preaste, and Josua the sonne of Nun. And ye shall take also a Lorde of euery trybe, when ye deuyde the lande. The names of the men are these: Of the tribe of Iuda, Caleb the sonne of Iephune. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Simcon, Semuel the sonne of Amud. Of the trybe of Ben Iamin, Elidad the sonne of Usson. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Dan, the lorde Buki, the sonne of Jagi. From amonge the chyldren of Joseph for the trybe of the chyldren of Manasse, the lorde haniel, the sonne of Ephod. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Ephraim, the lorde Camuel the sonne of Siphthan. Of the tribe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the lorde Balzaphan the sonne of Barnach. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Iachar, the lorde Elithiel the sonne of Assan. Of the trybe of the sonnes of Aser, the lorde Abihud the sonne of Salomi. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Rephraim, the lorde Beda El, the sonne of Ammihud. These are they whom the Lorde commaunded to deuyde the enheritaunce vnto the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Canaan.

The. xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Vnto the Leuites are given cyties and suburbs. The cyties of refuge. The lawe of en inquesting. For one mans witness shall no man be condemned.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the felde of Moab by Iordan, oueragaynst Jericho, sayenge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, that they geue vnto the Leuites of the enheritaunce of theyr possession, * cyties to dwell in. And ye shall geue also vnto the cyties of the Leuites, suburbs hard by theyr cyties rounde about them. The cyties shall they haue to dwell in, and the suburbs for theyr catell, and for theyr possession and all maner of bestes of theyrs. And the suburbs of the cyties which ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the cytie outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde about. And ye shall measure without the cytie of the east syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the south syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the west syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the north syde, two thousande cubytes also: and the cytie shall be in the myddes. And these shalbe the suburbs of the cyties.

And from amonge the cyties whiche ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, * there shall be syre cyties for refuge, which ye shall appointe to that intent, that he which killeth, maye fflye thither. And to them ye shall adde xlii. cyties mo: so that all the cyties whiche ye shall geue the Leuites, maye be. xlviii. with theyr suburbs. And these cyties which ye shall geue, shall be out of the possession of the chyldren of Israel. They that haue many, shall geue many. But of them that haue fewe, ye shall take fewe. Euery one shall geue of hys cyties vnto the Leuites, accordyng to þe enheritaunce which he enheriteth.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: * whā ye be come ouer Iordane into the lande of Canaan, ye shall appointe you cyties to be cyties of refuge for you: that he whiche sleeth a soule vnwares, maye fflye thither. And the cytie shalbe to fflye from the auenger of bloude, that he whiche killeth dye not, vntyll he stande before the congregacion in iudgement. And of these syre fre cyties whiche ye shall geue ye shall gyue thre on thys syde Iordan, and thre in the lande of Canaan. And these syre fre cyties shalbe a refuge both for the chyldren of Israel, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you: that all they which kill any persone vnwares, maye fflye thither.

* And yf any mā smyte another with an instrument of yron that he dye, then is he a murtherer, and shall dye for it. If he smyte hym with a throwynge stone that a man maye dye with, and yf he dye, he that smote hym is a murtherer, let the same murtherer be slayne therfore. Or yf he smyte him with a handweapon of wodde that a man maye dye with, then yf he dye, he is a murtherer: let the murtherer be slayne therfore.

The iustice of bloude shall slaye the murtherer:

therer: whan he meteeth hym, he maye slaye hym. But yf the thrust at hym * of hate, or houre at him with laynge of wayte, that he dye, or smyte hym with hys hande of enuie that he dye, he that smote him shall dye, for he is a murtherer. The iustice of bloude shall slaye þe murtherer, as soone as he findeth hi.

But and yf he pulshed hym by chaunce and not of hate, or cast at him with any maner of thyng and not of laynge of wayte: or cast any maner of stone at him (that a man maye dye with) and sawe hym not. And he cast it vpon hym and he dye, and was not hys enemye, nether sought him any harme. The congregacyon shall iudge betwene the slayer and the executer of bloude in soche cases.

And the congregacyon shall deliuer the slayer out of the hande of the auenger of bloude, and the congregacyon shall restore hym agayne vnto the cytie of hys refuge, whether he was fledd. And he shall abyde there * vnto the deathe of the hye preaste, which was anoynted with holy oyle.

But * yf the slayer come without the borders of his preuiledged cytie whether he was fledd, yf the auenger of bloude fynde him with oute the borders of hys fre towne, and slaye the murtherer, he shal be gyltlesse, because he shulde haue bydden in hys fre towne vntyll the deeth of the hye preaste, and after þe deeth of the hye preaste to retourne agayne vnto the lande of his possession. These commaundementes shalbe a lawe vnto you, for youre generacions in all youre dwellinges.

Whosoener killeth a soule, þe same þe mā slayer must be slayne him selfe * thoro we witnesses. Nether shall one witnesse answere to put a man to death. Moreouer, ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of the murtherer which is worthy to dye: But he shall be put to death. Also ye shall take no money of hym that is fled to a fre cytie, that he shulde come agayne, and dwell in the lade, before the death of the hye preaste. And se that ye polute not the lande which ye shall dwell in: for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lade can none other wyse be clenfed of the bloude that is shed therein, but by the bloude of hym that shed bloude. Defyle not therfore the lande which ye shall inhabyte, for I am in the myddes therof: euen I the Lorde dwell among the chyldren of Israel.

The. xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ An order for the marriage of the daughters of zelaphead. One of the trybes maye not marie with another.

And the auncient fathers of the chyldren of Gilead the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the chyldre of Joseph, came forth & spake before Moses and the prynces, and auncient fathers of the chyldren of Israel, and sayde: * The Lorde commaunded my Lord, to geue the lade to enheret by lotte to the chyldren of Israel. And my Lorde commaunded in gods behalfe, to geue the enheritaunce of * zelaphead oure brother vnto hys daughters. Whom yf any of the sonnes of the other trybes of Israel take to wyues, then shall theyr enheritaunce be take from the enheritaunce of oure fathers, and shall be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe which they are receaued into: and shalbe taken from the lotte of oure enheritaunce. And when the pere of iubelye of the chyldren of Israel cometh then shall theyr enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe wherin to they are receaued: and so shall theyr enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of the trybe of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel accordyng to the worde of the Lorde sayenge: the chyldren of the trybe of Joseph haue sayd well. This therfore doeth the Lorde commaunde the daughters of zelaphead sayenge * let them be wyues to whom they the selfe thynke best, onely to the kynred and trybe of theyr father shall they marie, so that not the enheritaunce of the chyldre of Israel remoue from trybe to trybe, whan the chyldren of Israel abyde euery man in the enheritaunce of the trybe of his fathers. And euery daughter that posselleth any enheritaunce in any trybe of the chyldren of Israel, shalbe wyfe vnto one which is of the kynred of the trybe of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euery man the enheritaunce of hys father: Nether ought the enheritaunce to go from one trybe to another: but euery one of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, must abyde in hys awne enheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moses euen so dyd the daughters of zelaphead. And Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha and Noa were maryed vnto theyr fathers brothers sonnes, which were of the kynred of the chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Joseph: and so theyr enheritaunce remayned in the trybe of the kynred of theyr father.

These are the commaundementes & lawes which the Lorde commaunded by the hande of Moses, vnto the chyldren of Israel in the felde of Moab by Iordane ouer agaynst Jericho.

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ A bryefe reherfall of thynges done befoze.

These be þe wordes which Moses spake vnto all Israel, on the other syde Jordan in the wildernesse, in þe plaine ouer agaynst þe redd see, betwene Pharan and Cophel, Labā, hazeroth and Dilahab, ele-
uē dayes tourney fro Horeb vnto Cades barne, by mount Seir. And it fortuned the fyrst daye of þe eleuenth moneth in þe fortieth yere,
that Moses spake vnto the chyldre of Israel
accordeinge vnto all that the Lorde had geue him in comāndmēt vnto the, after that he had syntrē * Sehon the kyng of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon, and Og kyng
of Basā which dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai.

* Num. xxi. c.

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, beganē Moses to declare thys lawe
sayinge: the Lorde oure God spake vnto vs
in horeb sayinge: Ye haue dwelt lōge ynough
in this mount. departe therfore & take youre
tourney, and go vnto the hyll of the Amorites and vnto all places nye there vnto: both vnto the playne, and hylls and dales: to the south, to the sece syde, to the lande of Canaā,
and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the greate ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue let the land before you: goo in and * possesse the lande
whych the Lorde sware vnto youre fathers Abrahā, Isaac and Jacob, to gene vnto the
and theyr seede after them.

* Gene. xii. b.
and. xlii. b.

And I spake vnto you the same ceason
sayinge: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde youre God had multi-plyd you: and beholde, ye are thys daye as the starres of heauen in nombze (the Lorde
God of youre fathers make you a thousande
tymes so many moo as ye are, and blesse you as he hath promysed you) howe can * I my selfe alone, beare the combrāunce, charge and stryfe that is amonge you: bynge (from amonge you) men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge, and experte, accordeynge to youre

trybes, and I wyll make them ruelars ouer
you: And ye answered me and sayde: that whych thou hast spoken is good for vs to do. And out of youre trybes I toke the captaynes, (men of wysdome and that were experte) and made them ruelars ouer you:
captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes
ouer fyfte and ouer ten, and offycers amonge
youre trybes.

And I charged youre Judges that same tyme sayinge: heare the cause of your brethren and * iudge ryghtcouly betwene euery mā
and hys brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Set that ye knowe no faces in Judgemēt: * but heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayed of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is to
* harde for you, bynge vnto me, and I will heare it. And I commaunded you the same ceason, all the thynges whych ye shulde do.
And when we departed fro Horeb, we went thorowe all that greate and terrible wyldernesse, as ye haue sene alonge by the waye of the hyll of the Amozites, as the Lorde oure
God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne. And I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hyll of the Amozites, which þe Lorde oure God wyll geue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lorde thy God hath set the lande befoze the:
goo vp and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the * feare not, nether be discouraged. But ye came vnto me euery one and sayde * we wyll sende me be-foze vs, to iearche vs oute the lande, and to bynge vs worde agayne, what waye we must go vp by, & vnto what cyties we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue me of you, of euery trybe one.
Whych departed, and went vp into the hye cōtre, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it out, & toke of the frute of the lande
* (to declare the plentifullnesse therof) in theyr hādes & brought it vnto vs, and brought vs wor-
de agayne, & sayde: it is a good lande, whych
the Lorde oure God doth geue vs.

before youre eyes. In the wyldernesse also thou hast sene howe that the Lorde thy God bare the, euen as a man doth be are hys sonne, in all the waye whych ye haue gone by, vntyll ye came vnto thys place. And yet in this thyng ye dyd not beleue the Lorde pou-re God. He went in the waye before you, to serche you out a place to pytche youre tentes
in, * in fyre by nyght, & ye myghte se what waye to go, and in a cloude by daye.

And the Lorde hearde the voyce of youre
wordes, and was wroth, & sware, sayinge:
* there shall not one of these men and of this frowarde generacyon se þe good lande which I sware to geue vnto youre fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, he shall se it * and to hym wyll I geue þe lāde that he hath trodden vpon, and to hys chyldre, because he hath folowed the Lorde * (wonderfull was that indignacyon agayn the people, seynge that) * the Lorde was angrye wyth me lyke wyse for youre sakes, sayinge: I also shal not go in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun which standeth before the, he shal go in thither. Golden hym therfore, for he shal cause Israel to inheret þe lan-
de. * Moreouer youre chyldre, which ye sayde shulde be a praye, and youre sonnes which
in that daye had no knowlege betwene good and euell, they shal goo in thither, and vnto
them will I geue it, and they shal enioye it.
But as for you, turne youre face, and take youre iourneye into the wildernesse: euen by the waye of the reade see. Then ye answered & sayde vnto me: * We haue synned agaynst
the Lorde: we wyll go vp and fyghte, accor-dyng to all that the Lorde oure God comaūded vs. And when ye had gyde on euer y mā his wepōs of warre, beholde, ye were ready to goo vp into the hyll. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: saye vnto the, that they go not vp,
and that they fyghte not, for I am not among you: lest ye fall before youre enemyes I tolde
you therfore, and ye wolde not heare, but disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, & went presumptuously vp into the hyll.

And the Amozites whych dwelt in that hyll, came out agaynst you, and chased you (as bees vse to do) & smote you in Seir, euen vnto Hozma. And ye came agayne, & wepte before the Lorde: but the Lorde wolde not heare youre voyce, nor geue you audience.
* And so ye abode in Cades a longe ceason, accordeynge vnto the tyme that ye remayned in other places.

The. ii. Chapter.

parted from Cades barne, vnto the battell agayn
the kynges Sehon and Og.

Num. xxi. a

¶ Then we * tourned oure face, & to-ke oure iourney into þe wyldernesse euen by the waye of the reade see as the Lorde spake vnto me. And we compassed mount Seir a longe tyme. And the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Ye haue co-passed thys mountayne longe ynough, tour-ne you northward. And warne thou the people sayinge: Ye shall go thorowe the coast of youre brethren the chyldren of Esau whych

dwell in Seir, & they shal be afrayed of you:
Take ye good hede vnto your selues therfore. Ye shall not prouoke them, for I wyll not geue you of their lande, no not so moche as a fote bredth * because I haue geuen mounte
Seir vnto Esau to possesse ye shal bycmeat

And when we were departed from oure
brethren the chyldren of Esau whych dwell
in Seir, the playne waye from Elath & from Ezion Gaber, we turned & went by þe waye of the wyldernesse of Moab. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: * Thou shalt not fyghte a-gaynst the Moabites, nether prouoke the to battell, for I wyll not geue the of their lande to possesse: because I haue geue Ar vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. The terrible prople the * Emims dwell therein in tymes past,
a people great, many & tall, as the Enakims:
whych also were taken for giauntes as the Enakims: whō the Moabites call Emims.
The Hozims dwell in Seir before tyme,
whose posselion the chyldren of Esau occu-pyed, and destroyed the before them, & dwell
in their stead: as Israel dyd vnto the lāde of his posselion, which þe Lorde gaue the. Howe eyle vp (sayd I) & get you ouer the ryuer zared: & we wēt ouer the ryuer zared. The space in whych we came from Cades barne vntill we were come ouer the ryuer zared, was xxxviii. yeres: vntill all the generacyon of men of warre were wasted out fro amonge
the host, as the Lorde sware vnto the. * For

of Moab thys daye: and whan thou comest
nye vnto the chyldren of Ammon, thou shalt not laye sege vnto them, ner moue warre a-gaynst the. For I wyll not geue the of þe lāde of the chyldren of Ammon a posselion, but I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possele. That also is take for a land of giaūtes, and giauntes dwell therein in olde tyme,
whom the Ammonites call zāzunims. * A Enakiings. But the Lord destroyed them before them, & they succeeded the in the inheritaunce & dwelt in theyr steade: as he dyd for

the chylzen of *Eau, which dwell in Seir:
whan he destroyed the hozyms befoze them
they conquered theyr posseltyon, and dwelt in theyr steade vnto this dape. And p Auims which dwell in hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Capthozymys which came out of Capthoz destroyed them, and dwelt in theyr steade.

Rple ye vnto thefoze, and take poure fourney ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen into thy hande Schon the Amozite kyng of hesoon, and his lande. Go to ther-foze and conquere, and prouoke hym to battell. This dape wyll I begynne to sende the feare and drede of the, vpon all naciōs that are vnder all the heauen: so that they whych heare speake of the, shall tremble and quake befoze the.

And so I sent messengers out of the wyl-dernesse of kedemoth vnto Schon kyng of hesoon, with wordes of peace, sayinge: * I wyll go thorowe thy lande. I wyll go alonge
by the hye wape: I wyll nether turne vnto p ryghte hande nor to the lefte. Thou shalt sell me meate for money for to eate, and geue me
drinke for money for to drinke. Onely graūt me, that I maye go thorowe on my fote (as
the chylzen of Eau which dwell in Seir, &
the Moabites whych dwell in Ar, dyd vnto me) vntyll I be come ouer Jordan, into p
lande which the Lord oure God geueth vs.

But Schon the kyng of hesoon wolde
not let vs passe by him, for the Lord thy God hardened his sprete, & made his herte tough,
because he wolde deluyner him into thy hāde,
as it is come to passe thys dape.

And the Lord sayde vnto me: beholde, I haue begonne to set Scho and his lande be-foze the: go to and conquere, and possesse his lande. * Then both Schon & all hys people came out agaynst vs to fygght at Jaza. And the Lord set him befoze vs, & we smote him
and hys sonnes and all hys people.

And we toke all his cyties p same ceason,
and slue the men, women and chylzen of all the cyties, and let nothynge remayne, saue p catell onely we caught vnto oure selues, and the spoyle of the cyties which we toke, from Arer which is by the brynke of the ryuer of Arno, & fro the cytie that is in the ryuer, vnto Gilead: there was not one cytie to strōge for vs. The Lord oure God deluynered all vnto vs: onely vnto p lande of the chylzen of Ammon thou camest not, nor vnto euery place of the ryuer Jabock, nor vnto the cyties in the moūtaynes, nor vnto whatlocuer the Lord
oure God forbadde vs.

The. iii. Chapter.
* Thynge that chaunted from the victorie of the two kynges Schon and Og vnto the Institucion of Josue in Moyses Reade.

Then we turned & wēt vp the wape A to Basan. * And Og the kyng of Basan came out agaynst vs: he and all hys people to battel at Edrai.
And the Lord sayde vnto me: feare him not,
for I wyll deluyner hym, & all his people and
hys lande into thy hande, and thou shalt do vnto him, as thou dydest vnto Schon kin-
ge of the Amozites, which dwelt at hesoon.
And so the Lord oure God deluynered into oure handes, Og also the kyng of Basan
and all hys folke. And we smote him, vntyll none was lefte hym alyue.

And we toke all his cyties the same ceason (nether was there a cytie which we toke not from them) eue thre score cyties thorow out all the regio of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Basan. All these cyties also were made stronge with hye walles, gates and barres,
besyde vntwalled townes a greate meane.
And we vterly destroyed them, as we dyd vnto Schon kyng of hesoon, brynngng to nought all the cyties, with men, women and chylzen. But all the catell and the spoyle of the cyties, we caughte for oure selues.

And thus we toke the same ceason, out of the hande of two kynges of the Amozites,
the lande that was on the other syde Jordan,
from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount hermon (whych hermon the Sidons call Sy-rion, and the Amozites call it Seny) all the cyties that laye in the playne, and all Gilead
and all Basan vnto Salecha and Edrai, cities of the kyngdome of Og in Basan. For onely Og kyng of Basan remayned of the remnant of the gyautes, whose bed was a bed of pzon. And is it not yet at Kabah amonge the chylzen of Ammon: ix. cubytes
doth the length therof conteyne, and foure cubytes the breadth of it, after the cubite of a man. And so we conquered this lande the same tyme, from Arer whych is by the ryuer of Arnon, vnto halfe mount Gilead, & the cities therof gaue I vnto the Rubenites and Gadites. And the rest of Gilead and all Ba-san of the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse: euen all the rygyn of Argob with all Basan: which is called the lande of gyautes. Jair the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coa-stes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called the after hys owne name: Basan hauothe Jair vnto thys dape. And I gaue Gilead vnto Maachir. And vnto the Rubenites and Gad-ites I gaue halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valey & beyonde, euen vnto
the ryuer Jabock, which is the border of the chylzen of Ammon: the playne also (of the wyldeynes) and Jordā and the coast therof, fro Ceneroth euen vnto the see whych is in the playne, euen the salt see vnder the springes
of the hyll, eastwarde.

* And

And I commaunded you the same tyme
sayinge: the Lord poure God hath geuen
you thys lande to enioye it: ye shall go bar-nessed befoze poure brythren the chylzen of Israel, all that are mete for the warre. Poure wyues onely, poure chylzen, and poure ca-
tell (for I wote that ye haue moche catell)
shall abyde in poure cyties which I haue geuen you, vntill the Lord haue geue rest vnto poure brythren as well as vnto you, and vntyll they also haue conquered the lande,
whych the Lord poure God hath geue them
beyonde Jordan: and then shall ye returne a-gayne, euery man vnto hys possession which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Josua the same tyme
sayinge: thynne eyes haue sene all p the Lord
poure God hath done vnto these two kynges
eue so shall he do vnto all kyngdomes why-ther thou goest. Ye shall not feare them, for the Lord poure God, he shall fygght for you.

And I besoughte the Lord the same tyme sayinge: O Lord God, thou hast begonne to shewe thy seruante thy greatnesse and thy myghte hande, for els where is there a God in heauē or in erth, that can do after thy workes and after thy power: let me go ouer
and se the good lande that is beyonde Jordā,
that goodly mountayne, and Libanon.

But the Lord was angrye wyth me for poure lakes, and wolde not heare me. And p Lord sayde vnto me: be content, speake no
moare vnto me of this matter. * Set the vp
into the tope of the hyll, and lyfte vp thynne
eyes westwarde, northwarde, southwarde,
and eastwarde, and beholde it wyth thynne
eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer thys Jordā.
But charge Josua: and courage him, & bolde
him. * For he shal go befoze this people, and
he shall deuyde vnto them the lande whych
thou shalt se. And so we abode in the valey ouer agaynst the house of Deoz.

The. iii. Chapter.

An exhortacion to gene diligent hede vnto the lawe. Images maye not be made to worshippe. The thre cyties of refuge.

And now herke O Israel vnto the or-dinaunces and lawes which I teache
you, for to do the, that so ye maye lyue
& go in and cōquere the lande, which p Lord God of poure fathers geueth you. * Ye shall put nothynge vnto the worde which I commaunde you, nether do ought therfrom, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lord poure God which I commaunde you.
Poure eyes haue sene what the Lord dyd
vnto Baal Deoz * for all the men that folo-wed Baal Deoz, the Lord poure God hath destroyed from amonge you. But ye that cleue vnto the Lord poure God, are alyue eue-ry one of you this dape. Behold I haue tauggt you ordinaunces and lawes, soch as the Lord my God commaunded me, that ye shulde do euen so in the lande, whether ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therfoze and do them, for that is poure wysdome & vnderstandynge in the syghte of the nacyns: that they maye heare
all these ordinaunces, and saye: Surely it is a wyse and vnderstandynge people: it is a greate nacyn. For what other nacyn is so greate, that Goddes come to nye vnto: as p
Lord oure God is nye vnto vs, in all thyn-ges * as oft as we call vnto him: Ye, & what nacyn is so greate, that hath ordinaunces &
lawes so righteous, as all this lawe whych
I sett befoze you this dape:

Take hede to thy selfe therfoze, and kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynge which thynne eyes haue sene, & that they departe not out of thynne harte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but * teache them thy son-nes & thy sonnes sonnes: Specially the dape that thou stodest befoze the Lord thy God in Horeb, when the Lord sayde vnto me: gether me the people together, and I wyll make the heare my wordes, p they maye lerne to feare me all the dayes that they shall lyue vpo the
erth * and that they maye teache their chyl-
zen: ye came & and stode also vnder the hyll,
and the hyll burnt with fyre: euen vnto the
myddes of heauen, & there was darchnesse, cloudes & myst. And the Lord spake vnto
you out of the myddes of the fyre, & ye herde
the voyce of the wordes * but sawe no pma-ge, saue herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt
which he comaunded you to do, euen. x. verses, which he wrote vpon two tables of stone. And the Lord commaunded me that same ceason, that I shulde teach you ordinauces and lawes, which ye ought to do in the lande whether ye go to possesse it.

Take therfoze good hede vnto poure
selues as pertaynyng vnto poure soules,
for ye sawe no maner of ymage in the dape
that the Lord spake vnto you in Horeb out of the myddes of the fyre: lest ye marre poure
selues and make you a graue ymage and picture of any maner of fygure: the lykenesse of man or woman, the lykenesse of any maner of beast that is on the erth, or the lykenesse of any maner feathered foule that flyeth in the ayre, or p lykenesse of any maner worme that crepeth on the erth, or the lykenesse of any maner fythe that is in the waters beneth p erth.

Ye and lest thou lyfte vp thynne eyes vnto
heuen and when p seyst the sonne, the moone
and the starrs with all the host of heauen, shuldest be descaued, and shuldest worshippe
and serue the thynge, which the Lord thy God hath made to serue all nacyns vn-
der the whole heauen.

But the Lord hath taken you, & brought you out

you out of the pyron furnace: even out of Egypte, to be unto him a people and inheritance, as ye be this daye. Furthermore, the Lord was angrye with me for your sakes, and sware, that I shulde not go ouer Jordan, and that I shulde not go in unto that good land, which the Lord thy God geueth the to inheritance. * But I must dye in this land, and shall not go ouer Jordan. But ye shall go ouer, and conquere that good lande.

Take hede vnto your selues, that ye forgett not the appoyntment of the Lord your God whyche he made with you, and that ye make you no grauen ymage, or any picture, that the Lord thy God hath forbidden the.

* For the Lord thy God is a consuming fyre, and a gelouse God.

If thou dost beget chyldren & chyldres chyldren, & whan ye haue dwelt in the lande, ye do wickedly, & make any manner of graue ymage, and worke euell in the syghte of the Lord thy God, to prouoke him to anger, I call heauen and erth to recorde agaynst you this daye, that ye shall shortly perishe from of the lande, whether ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it: ye shall not prolonge your dayes therein. But shall vnto be destroyed. And the Lord shall skater you amonge the nacyns, and ye shall be lesse fewe in nombre amonge the people, whether the Lord shall bypunge you: and there ye shall serue goddes, whyche are the worke of mans hande, wood and stone, which neither se, nor heare, nor eate, nor smell.

* And there thou shalt seke the Lord thy God: & shalt fynde hym, yf thou seke hym wth all thyn herte, and with all thy soule. Whan thou art in tribulacion, and whan all these thynges (that be here spokē of) are come vnto the end in the later dayes, thou shalt be obedient vnto his voyce. For the Lord thy God is a mercifull God: he will not forsake thee, neither destroye thee: nor forgett the appoyntment of thy fathers, which he sware vnto them.

For aske of the dayes that are past, which were before the sence the daye the Lord created man vpon the erth, and (aske) from the one syde of heauen vnto the other, yf euer there came to passe soch a greates thing, or whether any soche lyke thyng hath bene herde. Wold euer a nacyn heare the voyce of God speakinge out of the myddes of a fyre, as thou hast herde, and yet lyued: ether whether God assayed to go and take hym a people from amonge nacyns thowowe temptacions, signes wondres, warre, a myghtie hande, a stretched out arme, and thowowe greates syghtes, accordyng vnto all that the Lord your God dyd vnto you in Egypte before your eyes? Unto the it was shewed, yf thou myghtest knowe, howe that the Lord he is God, and that there is none other but he. * Out of heauen he made the heare his voyce, that he myght nourter the, and vpon erth he shewed the hys greates fyre, & thou heardest his wordes out of the myddes of the fyre. And because he loued thy fathers, he chose theyr seed after them, and broughte the out in his syght, & with his myghtie power out of Egypte: to thrust out nacyns great & myghty: then thou, before the, and to bypunge the in, & to geue the their lande to inheritance: as it is come to passe this daye.

Understande therfore this daye, & turne it to thyn herte, that the Lord, he is God in heauen above, and vpon the erth beneth: neither is there any other. Thou shalt kepe therfore his ordinaunces, and hys commaundementes which I commaunde the this daye, that it maye go well with the and with thy chyldren after the, & that thou mayst prolonge thy dayes vpon the erth, which the Lord thy God geueth the thy lyfe longe.

* Then Moses scuered thre cyties on the other syde Jordan toward the sonne rysyng, that he shulde syle thither, which had kyled hys neyghboure vnwares, & hated hym not in tyme past, & therfore shulde syle vnto one of the same cyties, and lyue: Namely, Bezer in the wyldernesse, euen in the playne contre of the trybe of Ruben: and Ramoth in Gilead of the trybe of Gad, and Golan in Basan of the trybe of Manasse.

And so this is the lawe which Moses set before the chyldren of Israel: These are the witness, statutes, and ordinaunces, which Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel after they came out of Egypte, on the other syde Jordan, in the valey ouer agaynst the house of Deor, in the lande of Sehon kynge of the Amozites which dwelt at Hesbon: whom Moses and the chyldren of Israel smote, after they were come out of Egypte, & conquered hys lande, & the lande of Og kynge of Basan two kynges of the Amozites, which were on the other syde Jordan toward the sonne rysyng: from Arcoer which is by the bancke of the ryuer Arnon, vnto Mount Syon which is Hermon, and all the playne on the other syde Jordan eastwarde: euen vnto the see, which is in the playne vnder the springes of the hyll.

The. v. Chapter.
The ten commaundementes.

And Moses called all Israel, & layed vnto the. Heare O Israel the ordinaunces & lawes which I speake in your eares this daye, that ye maye lerne them, and fullfill them in dede. The Lord our God made an apoyntment with vs in Horeb. The Lord made not this bonde with our fathers, but with vs: euen with vs, which are all here alpyne this daye.

The Lord talked with you face to face in the mount, out of the myddes of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lord and you the same tyme, and shewed you the wordes of the Lord. For ye were afrayed at the syght of the fyre, and went not vnto the mount, & he sayed * I am the Lord thy God, which broughte the out of the lande of Egypte fro the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my presence.

* Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage of any manner of lykenesse yf is in heauen above and that is in erth beneth, and that is in the waters beneth the erth. Thou shalt nether bowe thy selfe vnto them, nor serue the, for I the Lord thy God, am a gelouse God, visitinge the wyckednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen in the thyrde & fourth generation, amonge the that hate me: & the we mercye vpon thousandes, amonge them that loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

* Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vayne: for the Lord will not holde him guiltlesse, yf taketh his name in vayne. Kepe the Sabbath daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded the. Syxe dayes thou shalt labour and do all that thou hast to do, but the seventh daye is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: thou shalt not do any worke, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruante and thy mayde, thyne ore and thyne asse, and all thy catell, and the straunger that is within thy gates, that thy seruante & thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. Remembre, that thou wait a seruante in the lande of Egypt, and howe that the Lord thy God broughte the out thence thowowe a myghtie hande and a stretched out arme. For whyche cause the Lord thy God commaunded the, to kepe the Sabbath daye.

* Honour thy father and thy mother, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded the: yf thy dayes maye be prolonged, & that it maye go well with yf in the lande, which the Lord thy God geueth the.

* Thou shalt not slaye.
* Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.
* Thou shalt not steale.
* Thou shalt not beare false witness agaynst thy neyghboure.
* Thou shalt not luste after thy neyghbours wyfe: yf shalt not couet thy neyghbours house, hys felde, hys seruante, or hys mayde, hys ore, hys asse, or ought that thy neyghboure hath. These wordes the Lord spake vnto all your multitude in the mount out of the myddes of the fyre, cloude and darcknesse, with a greates voyce, added nomore therto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and deliuered them vnto me.

And it fortuneth, that whan ye herde the voyce out of the myddes of the darcknesse, & sawe that the hill dyd burne with fyre, ye came vnto me with the captaynes of your tribes and your elders: and ye sayde: beholde, the Lord our God hath shewed vs his glorye and his greatnesse, & we haue herde his voyce out of the myddes of the fyre: we haue sene this daye, that God doth talke wth a man, and he yet lyueth. Nowe therfore, why shulde we dye, that this greates fyre shulde consume vs? It we heare the voyce of the Lord our God any moare, we shall dye. For what shal hee lathit bene, that euer hearde the voyce of the luyng God speakinge out of the myddes of the fyre (as we haue done) and yet dyd lyue? So thou and here all that the Lord our God sayeth, and tell thou vnto vs all that the Lord our God sayeth vnto the: and we wyll heare it and do it.

And the Lord hearde the voyce of your wordes when ye spake vnto me, & the Lord sayde vnto me: I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of this people, which they haue spoken vnto the, they haue well sayed all yf they haue spoken. * Wh yf ther were such an hert in the yf they wolde feare me, & kepe all my commaundementes alwaye, that it myghte go wel with them, and with theyr chyldren for euer. So and saye vnto them: gett you into your tetes agayne, but stande thou here by me, and I wyll tell the all the commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes, which thou shalt teache them, that they maye do them in the lande which I geue them to possesse.

Take hede therfore, that ye do in dede as the Lord your God hath commaunded you, & turne not asyde: ether to the ryghte hande or to the left: but walke in all yf wayes which the Lord your God hath commaunded you, that ye maye lyue, and that it maye go well with you, and that ye maye prolonge your dayes, in the lande which ye shall possesse.

The. vi. Chapter.
The lawe of God maye not be forgotten.

These are the commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes which the Lord your God commaunded me to teach you that ye might do them in the lande whether ye go to possesse it: namely, yf thou myghtest * feare the Lord thy God, and kepe all hys ordinaunces and hys commaundementes which I commaunde the: thou and thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therfore. O Israel, and take hede, that thou do thereafter, that it maye go well with the, and that ye maye encrease myghtely, eue as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promysed the a lande, that floweth wth mylke and hony.

M * heare O Israel, the Lorde oure God is Lorde only, and * thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne harte, & with all thy soule, & with all thy might. * And these wordes which I comaunde the this daye, shalbe in thine herte, and thou shalt shewe the vnto thy chyldren, and shalt talke of them when thou art at home in thyne house, and as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lvest downe, and when thou ryst vp: and thou shalt hynde the for a sygne vpon thine hande. And they shalbe warnynges betwene thyne eyes and thou shalt write them vpo the postes of thy house and vpon thy gates.

And whē the Lord thy God hath brought the into the lande, whych he sware vnto thy fathers, Abraham Isahac and Jacob, and geueth the greates & goodly cyties whych thou byldedst not, houses full of all maner of goodes whych thou fyllest not, and welles dygged whych thou dyggedst not, vineyardes & olue trees whych thou plantedst not, and when thou hast eaten & art full: Then beware, lest thou forget the Lorde, whych broughte the oute of the lande of Egypt from the house of bondage. * Thou shalt feare the Lorde thy God, & serue him, and sweare by his name. * Se that ye walcke not after straunge goddes: the goddes of the nacjons which are aboute you. For the Lorde thy God is a gelouse God amonge you, lest the countenance of the Lorde thy God be moued to wrath agaynst the, and destroye the from of the erth.

* Ye shall not tempte the Lorde your God as ye dyd in the tentacyon. But kepe the commaundmentes of the Lorde your God, and hys witnesses and his ordinaunces which he hath commaunded the, and thou shalt do that which is right and good in the syghte of the Lorde: that thou mayst prospere, and that thou mayst go in, and coquere that good lade whych the Lorde swarc vnto thy fathers, to cast oute all thynne enemyes before the as the Lorde hath sayed.

* And whē thy sonne asketh the in tyme to come, sayinge: What meaneth these witnessess, ordinaunces & lawes, which the Lorde oure God hath comaunded you? Then thou shalt saye vnto thy sonne: We were Pharaos bondmen in Egypte, and the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte with a myghtie hāde. And the Lorde shewed signes & wondres greates & euell vpo Egypte, vpon Pharaos & vpon all hys household, before oure eyes, but brought vs oute from thence: to bypunge vs in, and to geue vs the lande which he sware vnto oure fathers. And he hath commaunded vs, to do all these ordinaunces, and to feare the Lorde oure God, for oure welch all the dayes of our lyfe, as it is come to passe this daye. * Moreover this shalbe oure ryghteousnes before the Lorde oure God, yf we take hede & kepe all these commaundmentes, as he hath commaunded vs.

The vii. Chapter.

The Israelites maye make no couenaunt with the Gentyles. They must destroye theyr Idolaters. Idolaters must be slayne.

When the Lord thy God hath brought the into the lande whycher thou goest to possesse it, & hath cast out many nations before the: namely, the Hethites, the Gergesites, the Amozites, the Cananites, the Peresites, the Heuites & the Jebusites, seuē nacjons greater, and myghtier than thou * and whē the Lorde thy God hath sett them before the, thou shalt smyte them, & utterly destroye them, and make no couenaunt with them, nor haue compassyon on them. * Thou shalt make no mariages with them, neither geue thy daughter vnto hys sonne, nor take hys daughter vnto thy sonne. For they will disceane thy sonne, that he shuld not feare me and they shall serue straunge goddes, and then wyl the wrath of the Lorde ware whote agaynst you, and destroye you shortly.

But thus ye shall deale with them: * Ye shall ouerthrowe theyr alters, & breake downe theyr pylers, cut downe theyr groues, and burne theyr graue ymages with fyre. * For thou art an holy nacjon vnto the Lorde thy God: the Lorde thy God hath cholen the, to be a seuerall people vnto hym selfe, aboue all nacjons that are vpon the erth. It was not because of the multitude of you aboue all nacjons, that the Lorde had lust vnto you and chose you, for ye were fewest of all nacjons. But because the Lorde loued you, and because he wolde kepe the * othe whych he had sworne vnto your fathers, therfore hath the Lorde brought you oute of Egypte thowrowe a myghtie hande, & deliuered you out of the house of bondage: euen from the hande of Pharaos kynge of Egypte.

Understande therfore, that the Lorde thy God he his God, & that a true God * whych kepeth poyntmēt and mercy vnto them that loue hym & kepe his commaundmentes, eue thowrowe out a thousande generacions: and rewardeth the that hate him & before hys face, so that he byngeth them to naught, and doth not deferre y tyme, but rewardeth him that hateth hym, before his face. * Kepe y therfore the commaundmentes, and ordinaunces and lawes, which I comaunde the this daye that thou do them.

* If ye herken vnto these lawes, and obserue & do them, the Lorde thy God also shall kepe vnto the y poyntement, and the mercy which he sware vnto thy fathers. He wyl loue the, & blesse the, & multiplie the: he wyl also blesse the frute of thy wombe, and the frute of

frute of thy londe, thy cozne, thy wyne and thyne oyle, & the frute of thine oxē, & the flockes of thy shepe in the lande, which he swa- re vnto thy fathers to geue the. * Thou shalt be blessed aboue all nacjons: there shalbe neither man nor woman vnfructfull amonge you, nor any thing vnfructfull amōge your catell. * Moreover y Lorde wyl * take a waye from the all maner infirmityes, and wyl put none of the euell diseases * of Egypte (whiche thou knowest) vpon the, but wyl sende them vpon all them that hate the.

Thou shalt cōsume all the nacjons which the Lorde thy God shall deliuer the: thynne eye shall haue no pytie vpon them, neither shalt thou serue theyr goddes, for that shalbe thy decaye. If thou saye in thynne hert: these nacjons are moo than I, howe can I cast them out? * Thou shalt not feare them, but remēbre, what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto Pharaos and vnto all Egypte: the greates temptacyons whych thynne eyes sawe, and the sygnes, and wondres, and the myghtie hande and stretched out arme, where thowrowe the Lorde thy God brought the out: eue so shall the Lorde thy God do vnto all the nacjons, of whom thou art afrayed.

* Moreover the Lorde thy God wyl sende hoznettes amonge them vntill they that are leste, and hyde them selues from the, be destroyed. Thou shalt not feare them, for the Lorde thy God is amōg you, a myghtie God and a terrible. For the Lorde thy God wyl put out these nacjons before the by a lytle & a lytle * thou mayst not cōsume them at once, lest the bestes of the felde encrease vpon the. But the Lorde thy God shall geue the mōuer before the, and shall destroye the with a myghtie tempest, vntill he haue brought the to naught. * And he shall deliuer theyr kyn- ges in to thynne hāde, and thou shalt destroye their name from vnder heauen. There shall no man be able to stande before the, vntill thou haue destroyed them. The graue ymages of theyr goddes shalt thou burne wth fyre, & * couet not the golde and syluer that is on the, nor take it vnto the, lest thou be snared ther in. For it is an abhominacyō before the Lorde thy God. Bypunge not therfore abhominacyō in to thynne house, lest thou be a damned thynge, as it is: but utterly defye it and vbozre it, for it is a damned thynge.

The viii. Chapter.

Moses putteth the Israelites in remem- brance what God hath done to them in the wyldernesse.

Al the commaundmentes whych I comaunde the this daye, shall ye kepe for to do the, that ye maye lyue and multiplie and go in, and possesse the lade whych the Lorde sware vnto your fathers. And thou shalt thynke on all the waye, which the Lorde thy God ledd the this xl. yere in the wyldernesse, for to humble the, & to proue the, & to wete what was in thynne herte, whether thou woldest kepe hys commaundmentes or no, he * humbled the, and suffred the to hon- gre, and fedd the with Māna, whych neither thou nor thy fathers knewe of, to make the knowe, that * a man doth not lyue by bread only: but by euery * (word) that pcedeth out of the mouth of the Lorde, both a man lyue. * Thy raymēt waxed not olde vpo the, ne- ther dyd thy fote swell these xl. yeres.

Thys also shalt thou consyder in thynne herte, that as a man nourtereth hys sonne, euen so the Lorde thy God nourtereth the. Therfore shalt thou kepe the cōmaundmentes of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and feare hym. For the Lorde thy God bypungeth the into a good lande, a lande in the whych are ryuers of water, and foun- taines and springes that springe out of va- leyes and hylls: a lande wherin is wheat & barley, vyneyardes, figtrees and pōgrana- tes: a lande wherin is oyle olyue and hony: a lande, wherin thou shalt eate bread wyth- out skarcenelle, neither shalt thou lacke anye thynge: a lade * whose stones are yron, & out of whose hylls thou shalt dygge brasle. When thou hast eaten therfore and fylled thy selfe, thou shalt blesse the Lorde thy God in y good lande, whych he hath geuen the.

Beware, that thou forgett not the Lorde thy God, that thou woldest not kepe hys cō- maundmentes, hys lawes & his ordinaunces whych I comaunde the this daye * yee & when thou hast eaten, and fylled thy selfe, & hast bylt goodly houses & dwelt therein, and when thy bestes, and thy shepe are wared manye, and thy syluer & golde is multiplied, and all that y hast is encreased, then beware, lest thynne herte ryle & thou forgett the Lorde thy God, whych brought the out of the lade of Egypte, and from the house of bondage, & whych was thy gyde in the greates and terri- ble wyldernesse (wherin were) fyre serpen- tes, scorpiōs, and brouth without any wa- ter. But he brought out water for the, euen out of the rocke of flynt: he fedd y in the wil- dernesse wyth Māna, whych thy fathers knewe not, euen for to humble the, and to proue the, and that he myght so do the good at thy later ende.

Lest thou shuldest saye in thynne herte * my power & the might of myne awne hāde hath prepared me this abundaunce: But remēbre the Lorde thy God, howe y it is he which geneth the power to get substaunce, for to make good the promesse whych he sware vnto thy fathers, as this daye doth wytnesse.

And yf thou forgett the Lorde thy God, and walke after straunge * goddes, and serue k them them, & worſhippe them, I teſtifie vnto you this daye, that he ſhall ſurely perſiſh. As the nations whych the Lorde deſtroyeth before you, euē ſo ye ſhall perſiſhe, becauſe ye wolde not be obedient vnto the voyce of the Lorde poure God.

The ix. Chapter.

¶ Ther are forbidden to truſt in theyr owne ſtrength.

In Care O Iſrael, I paſſeſt ouer Jordan thys daye, to go in, and conquere nacyns greates & myghtier then thy ſelfe: cyties greates and walled vnto heauen, a people greates and tall, euen the chyldren of the Enakims, whych thou knoweſt of, and of who thou haſt herde ſaye: who wyll ſtāde before the chyldren of Enack? Underſtāde therfore thys daye, that the Lorde thy God is euen he whych goeth ouer before theaſa a deſtroye them and he ſhall bypunge the downe before thy face. He ſhall caſt them out, & bypunge them to nought quickly, as the Lorde hath ſayed vnto the.

Speake not thou in thyne hert (after that the Lorde thy God hath caſt them out before the) ſayinge: for my ryghteouſnes the Lorde hath brought me in, to poſſeſſe thys lande. Nay, but for the wyckedneſſe of theſe nacyns the Lorde hath caſt them out before the. It is not for thy righteouſnes ſake oz for thy ryght hert, that thou goeſt to poſſeſſe theyr lāde. * But for the wyckedneſſe of theſe nations, the Lorde thy God doth caſt them out before the, euē to perſorme the worde, which the Lorde thy God ſware vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Iſahac and Jacob.

Underſtāde therfore that it is not for thy ryghteouſnes ſake, that the Lorde thy God doth geue the thys good lande to poſſeſſe it ſeynge thou art a ſtiffnecked people. Remēbre & forget not, howe thou prouokedſt the Lorde thy God in the wylderneſſe, ſence the daye I thou dyddeſt departe out of the lāde of Egypte vntill ye came vnto thys place, ye haue rebelled agaynſt the Lorde. * Alſo in Horeb ye angered the Lorde, ſo that the Lorde was wroth wyth you, euē to haue deſtroyed you, whan I was gone vp into the mount, to receaue the tables of ſtone, the tables of appoyntment, whych the Lorde made with you. And I abode in the hyll xl. dayes & xl. nyghtes, whan I nether dyd eate bread nor drinke water. * And the Lorde deliuered me two tables of ſtone, wyrtē with the ſpynger of God, & in them was accordynge to all the wordes which the Lorde ſayed vnto you in the moūt out of the myddes of the fyre in the daye, of the gatherynge together.

And whē the xl. dayes & xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me the two tables of ſtone, the tables of the couenaunt, and the Lorde ſayde vnto me. * Up, & get the doune quickly fro hence, for thy people which thou haſt broughte out of Egypte, haue marred all. They are turned attōce out of the waye, whiche I commaunded them, and haue made the a molten ymage. Furthermore, the Lorde ſpake vnto me ſayinge: I haue ſene thys people, and beholde, it is a ſtiffnecked people, let me alone, that I maye deſtroye the, and put out the name of them fro vnder heauen, and I wyll make of the a myghtie nacyn, & greater than they be.

And I turned me, and came doune from the hyll (euen from the hyll that burnt wyth fyre) and the two tables of the appoyntment were in my handes. And I looked, & beholde, ye had ſynned agaynſt the Lorde your God, & had made you a molten calfe, and had turned attōce out of the waye whych the Lorde had commaunded you. * And I toke the two tables and caſt them out of my two handes, and brake them before your eyes. * And I fell doune flat before the Lorde: euen as at the fyrſt tyme, and xl. dayes & xl. nyghtes I dyd nether eate bread nor drinke water, becauſe of all your ſynnes, whych ye ſynned, in doyng wyckedly in the ſyght of the Lorde in that ye prouoked hym vnto wrath. For I was afrayed that for the wrath & fearneſſe wher wyth the Lorde was moued agaynſt you, he wolde haue deſtroyed you. But the Lorde herde me at that tyme alſo.

The Lorde was very angrey wyth Aaron alſo, euen to haue deſtroyed hym: & I made interceſſyon for Aaron alſo the ſame tyme. And I toke your ſynne * the calfe whych ye had made and burnt hym with fyre, & ſtamped hym & grounde hym a good, euen vnto ſmal duſt. And I caſt the duſt therof into the brooke, that deſcēded out of the mounte. Alſo at the burnynge, * at the tentacyon, and at the ſepulchres of luſt ye angered the Lorde, lyke wyſe when the Lorde ſent you from Cadis Barne, ſayinge, go vp, and conquere the lande which I haue geue you * ye diſobeyed the mouth of the Lorde your God, and nether beleued him, nor herkened vnto his voyce. Ye haue bene diſobedient vnto the Lorde, ſence the daye that I knewe you.

And I fell doune flat before the Lorde xl. dayes, and xl. nyghtes whiche I laye there, for the Lorde ſayde, that he wolde deſtroye you. I made interceſſyon therfore vnto the Lorde, and ſayed: * O Lorde God, deſtroye not thy people & thyne inheritaunce, whych thou haſt deliuered thozow thy greatneſſe, and which thou haſt brought out of Egypte thozowe a myghtie hand. Remēbre thy ſeruauntes Abraham, Iſahac and Jacob, and loke not vnto the ſtoburneſſe of this people, ner to theyr wickedneſſe & ſynne: leſt the lāde whence whence thou broughteſt the, ſaye: The Lorde is not able to bypunge them in to the lāde, whych he promyſed them: and becauſe he hated them, therfore hath he carped them out, to ſlaye them in the wylderneſſe. Beholde, they are thy people, and thyne inheritaunce, whych thou broughteſt out in thy myghtie power and in thy ſtretched out arme.

The x. Chapter.

¶ The renewinge of the tables. An exhortacion to geue heede to the lawe.

In the ſame reaſon the Lorde ſayde vnto me * he wey two tables of ſtone lyke vnto the fyrſt, and come vp vnto me in to the mount, & make the an Arcke of wood, & I will wyrtē in the tables, the wordes I were in the fyrſt tables whych thou brakeſt, & thou ſhalt put them in the arcke. And I made an arcke of ſethim wood, and hewed two tables of ſtone * lyke vnto the fyrſt, and went vp in to the mountayne, hauynge the two tables in myne hande.

And he wrote in the tables * accordynge to the fyrſt wyrtynge (the ten verſes whiche the Lorde ſpake vnto you in the mount out of the myddes of the fyre, in the daye of the gatherynge together) and the Lorde gaue the vnto me. And I departed, and came doune from the hyll, and put the tables in the arcke which I had made: and there they be, as the Lorde commaunded me.

And the chyldren of Iſrael toke the journey from Bereth of the chyldren of Jakan to Moſera, where * Aaron dyed, and was buryed, and Eleazer his ſonne became preaſt in hys ſtead. Fro thēce they departed vnto Gadgad: & from Gadgad to Iathbath a lād which hath riuers of water. * ¶ The ſame reaſon the Lorde ſeparated the tribe of Leui to beare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, & to ſtāde before the Lorde, & to miniſtre vnto hym & to bleſſe in his name vnto thys daye. * Wherfore the Leuites haue no parte nor inheritaunce wyth theyr brethern: But the Lorde is theyr inheritaunce, as the Lorde thy God hath promyſed them.

And I taried in the mount, euen as at the fyrſt tyme xl. dayes and xl. nyghtes, and the Lorde herkened vnto me at that tyme alſo, & the Lorde wolde not deſtroye the. And the Lorde ſayde vnto me: vp, and go forth in the iourneys before the people, I they maye go in, and conquere the lande which I ſware vnto theyr fathers, to geue vnto them.

And nowe Iſrael, what doth the Lorde thy God requier of the * but to feare the Lorde thy God, and to walke in all hys wayes, to loue hym, and to ſerue the Lorde thy God with all thyne herte & with all thy ſoule: Namely, that thou kepe the commaundmentes of the Lorde, and hys ordinaunces whych I comaunde the thys daye, for thy welth. Beholde, heauen and the heauen of heauens is the Lordes thy God, and the erth wyth all therein is: Not wythſtādyng, the Lorde had a luſt vnto thy fathers to loue the, and choſe theyr ſeed after them, euen you, about all nacyns, as thou ſeeſt thys daye.

* Circumcye therfore the foreskyne of D poure harte, and be no more ſtiffnecked: For the Lorde your God, is God of Goddes, and Lorde of Lordes, a greates God, a myghtie and a terrible * whych regardeth no man perſon nor taketh gyfte: he doeth ryght vnto the fatherleſſe & wedowe, and loueth the ſtraunger, to geue hym ſode and rayment. * Loue ye therfore the ſtraunger alſo: for ye were ſtraungers your ſclues in the lande of Egypte. * ¶ Thou ſhalt feare the Lorde thy God, & hym (onely) ſhalt thou ſerue, to hym ſhalt thou cleue, and ſwere by hys name: he is thy prayſe and thy God, that hath done for the theſe greates and terrible thynges, whych thyne eyes haue ſene. Thy fathers wet doune in to Egypte * with lxx. ſoules, and nowe the Lorde thy God hath made the & multiplied the, as the * ſtarres of heauen.

The xi. Chapter.

¶ An exhortacion to regarde the lawe.

In herfore thou ſhalt loue the Lorde thy God & kepe his obſeruaunces, his ordinaunces, hys lawes, & his commaundments alwaye. Call to your mynde this daye that which poure chyldren haue nether knowne nor ſene: euen the nourtire of the Lorde your God, hys greatneſſe, hys myghte hāde, and hys ſtretched out arme: his myracles and hys actes whych he dyd in the myddes of Egypte, euen vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypte and vnto all hys lande: & what he dyd vnto the hoſt of Egypt, vnto theyr horſes & charettes * howe he brought the water of the red ſee vpon them as they chaſed you behynde, & howe the Lorde hath brought them to nought vnto thys daye: & what he dyd vnto you in the wylderneſſe, vntill ye came vnto thys place: & what he dyd vnto * Nathan and Abiram the ſonnes of Eliab the ſonne of Rubē, howe the erth opened hys mouth, and ſwalowed them, wyth theyr houſholdes and theyr tētes, & all theyr ſubſtance that was in theyr poſſeſſion, in the myddes of Iſrael.

Doubtles, your eyes haue ſene all the greates actes of the Lorde whych he dyd. Therfore ſhall ye kepe all the comaundmentes, whych I commaunde the thys daye, that ye maye be ſtronger & go in and conquere the lande whether ye go to poſſeſſe it, & that ye maye prōloge your dayes in the lāde which is the

the Lorde sware vnto your fathers, to geue vnto them and to theyr seed, a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. * For the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypte y^e came out of, where thou sowedst thy seed and wateredst it with thy fete as a garden of herbes: but the lande whither ye go ouer to possesse it, is a lande that hath hylls and valeyes, and dryneth water of the rayne of heauen. Thys lande both the Lorde thy God care for, & the eyes of the Lorde thy God are alwayes vpon it, from the begynnyng of the yere, vnto the ende of the yere.

If you shall herken therfore vnto my commaundementes, whych I commaunde you thys daye, that ye loue the Lorde your God & serue him with all your herte, & with all your soule. * I also will geue rayne vnto your lande in due season: the fyrst rayne and the later, that thou mayest gather in thy corne, thy wyne & thyne oyle. And I will sende grasse in thy felde for thy cattell: that thou mayest eate, and fyll thy selfe. But beware that your herte deceaue you not & ye turne asyde, and serue straunge Goddes, and worshipp them, and then the Lorde beyng wroth agaynst you, * shutt vp the heauen, & there be no rayne, and that your lande yelde not her frute, and lest ye perishe quickly from of the good lande, whych the Lorde geueth you.

Therfore shall ye put vp these my wordes in * your herte and in your soule, & bynde the for a sygne vpon your hande, that they maye be as a warninge betwene your eyes, and ye shall * teach them your children that they maye talke of them, when thou syttest in thyne house, and when thou walkest by the waye: when thou lvest downe, & when thou ryllest vp: yee and thou shalt wyte the vpon the doore postes of thyne house, and vpon thy gates, that your dayes maye be multiplied, & the dayes of your chylde, in y^e land whych the Lorde sware vnto your fathers to geue them, as long as the dayes of heauen last vpon the erth. For * yf ye kepe all these commaundementes, whych I commaund you so that ye do them: Namely, that ye loue the Lorde your God, & walke in all his wayes, and cleaue vnto him, Then will the Lorde cast out all these nacions before you, and ye shall be the heppes of great nacions and of the that are myghty then your selues. * All the places where on the soles of your fete shall treade, shall be pourous, euen fro the wilderness and from Libanno, & fro the ryuer Euphrates, eue vnto the vttemost see, shall your coaste be. There shall no man be able to stande before you: for the Lorde your God shall cast the feare & drede of you vpon all the lande that ye shall treade vpon, as he hath sayde vnto you. A

* Beholde, I set before you thys daye, a blessing & a curse: a blessing: yf ye obeye the commaundementes of the Lorde your God whych I commaunde you thys daye. And a curse: yf ye wyll not obeye the commaundementes of the Lorde your God: but turne out of the waye, whych I commaunde you thys daye, to go after straunge goddes, whych ye haue not knowen.

When the Lorde thy God therfore hath brought the in to the lande, whether y^e goest to possesse it, thou shalt put the * blessing vpon mount Garizim, & the curse vpon mount Ebal, whych (mountaynes) are on the other syde Jordan on the backe syde of the waye toward the goynge doune of the sonne, in y^e lande of the Canaanites whych dwel in the playne ouer agaynst Gilgal by syde the groue of Moreh. For ye shall passe ouer Jordan, to go in, and possesse the lande, whych the Lorde your God geueth you, and ye shall coquer it, & dwell therein. Take hede therfore that ye do all the commaundementes and lawes, whych I sett before you thys daye.

The xii. Chapter.

Abolatye must the Israelites destroye and flee from. They must onely do that thynge whych God commaundeth.

These are the ordinaunces and lawes whych ye shall obserue and do in the lande, whych the Lorde God of thy fathers geueth the to possesse it, as long as ye lye vpon the erth. * Ye shall destroye all places where in the nacions whych ye shall conque- re serued their Goddes, vpon hye mountaynes, on hylls, and vnder euery thyck tree.ouerthrowe theyr alters, and breake theyr pilers, and burne their groues with fyre and hewe downe the graue ymagis of the Goddes that they haue, and bringe the names of them to noughte out of y^e place. * Ye shall not do so vnto the Lorde your God, but ye shall seke the place, whych the Lorde your God shall haue chosen out of all your trybes, to put his name there, & there to dwell. And * thither thou shalt come, and thither ye shall bypunge your burnt sacrifices, your offerynges, your tythes, and heueofferynges of your harte, your vowes, your frewill offerynges and the fyrst gendzed of your ore and of your shepe. And there ye shall eate before the Lorde your God, & ye shall reioyse in all that ye put your hande vnto both ye and your householdes, wherein the Lorde thy God hath blessed the.

Ye shall not do after all the thynges y^e we do here thys daye, euery man what semeth hym good in his awne eyes. For ye are not yet come to rest, & to the enheritaunce, whych the Lorde your God geueth you. But wha ye go ouer Jordan, and dwell in the lande whych whych the Lorde your God hath geuen you to enheret, and whan he hath geuen you rest fro all your enemyes rounde aboute, so that ye dwell in safete, then vnto y^e place whych the Lorde your God hath chosen, to put his name there, ye shall bypunge all that I commaunde you: Namely, your burnt sacrifices, your offerynges, your tythes, the heueofferinge of your hande, & all your speciall vowes, whych ye vowe vnto the Lorde. And ye shall reioyse before the Lorde your God, ye and your sonnes, & your daughters, your seruantes and your maydes, and the Leuite that is wythin your gates * for as moch as he hath no parte nor enheritaunce wyth you.

Take hede that thou offer not thy burnt-offerynges in euery place y^e thou seest: but in the place whych the Lorde shall haue chosen in one of thy trybes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerynges, and there thou shalt do all that I commaunde the. Notwithstandynge thou mayst kyll and eate fleshe in all thy cyties, whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth after, accordynge to the blessinge of the Lorde thy God, whych he hath geuen the * both the vncleane and the cleane may eat thereof, eue as the roo, or the hert: only ye shall not eate the bloud, but powze it vpon the erth as water. Thou mayst not eate wythin thy gates the tithe of thy corne, of thy wyne and of thy oyle, and the fyrst gendzed of thine oren, and of thy shepe, neither any of thy vowes whych thou voweest, nor thy frewill offerynges or heueofferynges of thyne hande: but thou must eate them before the Lorde thy God, in the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen: thou, and thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy seruante and thy mayde, & the Leuite that is wythin thy gates: and thou shalt reioyse in all that thou puttest thyne harte to. * Beware, that thou forsake not the Leuite, as long as thou lyvest vpon the erth.

If (when the Lorde thy God hath enlarged thy border as he hath promised y^e) thou saye: I will eate fleshe, because thy soule longeth to eate fleshe: y^e mayest eate fleshe whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth. If the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen to put his name there, be to farre from the, the thou shalt kyll of thy oren & of thy shepe whych y^e Lorde hath geuen the, as I haue commaunded the, & thou shalt eate in thine awne cytie, whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth. * And as the roo & the herte is eaten, eue so thou shalt eate the: both the cleane and the vncleane shall eate of them. But be stryge * that thou eate not the bloude. For the bloude, that is the lyfe, and thou mayst not eate the lyfe wyth the fleshe: thou shalt not eate it, but powze it vpon the erth as water. Se thou eate it not, that it

maye go well wyth the, and wyth thy chylde after the: But thou shalt do that, whych is ryght in the syghte of the Lorde.

But * thy holyc thynges whych thou hast, and thy vowes * thou shalt take, & come vnto the place whych the Lorde hath chosen, and thou shalt offer thy burnt-offerynges, both fleshe and bloude vpon the alter of the Lorde thy God, and the bloude of thyne offerynges shall be powzed out vpon the alter of the Lorde thy God, & thou shalt eate the fleshe. Take hede, & heare all these wordes whych I commaunde the, that it maye go well wyth the, and wyth thy chylde after the for euer, yf thou doest that whych is good and ryght in the syghte of the Lorde thy God.

When the Lorde thy God hath destroyed the nacions before the, whether thou goest to conqueure them, & thou succeedest in theyr enheritaunce, and dwellest in theyr lande: Beware, that thou be not taken in a snare after them, after that they be destroyed before the, and that thou aske not after theyr Goddes, sayinge: howe dyd these nacions serue their Goddes? I will do so lyke wise. * Nay, thou shalt not do so vnto the Lorde thy God: for all abhominacions, & y^e whych the Lorde hateth, the same haue they done vnto theyr Goddes. For they burne both theyr sonnes and theyr daughters wyth fyre before theyr Goddes. Therfore whatsoeuer I commaunde you, that take hede ye do: * (onely, vnto the Lorde) and * put thou nought thereto, nor take ought therfrom.

The xiii. Chapter.

The false prophete must be put to death. God pouerth our sayth by false prophacies.

If there a ryse amonge you a * prophete or a dreamer of dreames, and geue the a sygne, or a wonder, whych he hath sayde come to passe, and then saye: let vs go after straunge Goddes whych thou hast not knowen, and let vs serue the: herken not thou vnto the wordes of that prophete or dreamer of dreames. * For the Lorde thy God proueth you, to wete whether ye loue the Lorde your God with all your herte and with all your soule. Ye shall walke after the Lorde your God, and feare him, kepe his commaundementes, and herke vnto his voyce, serue him, and cleaue vnto hym. * And y^e prophete or dreamer of dreames shall dye, because he hath spoken to turne you awaye from the Lorde your God, (whych brought you out of the lande of Egypte, and deliuered you out of the house of bondage) to thrust the out of the waye, whych the Lorde thy God commaunded the to walke in: and therfore thou shalt put y^e euell awaye from the.

It is thy

If thy brother, the sonne of thy mother, or thyne awne sonne, or thy daughter, or the wyfe that lyeth in thy bosome, or thy frende which is as thyne awne soule vnto the, entice secretly, saying: let vs go & serue straunge Goddes, whych thou hast not knowen nor yet thy fathers. And they be of the Goddes of the people which are rounde aboute you, whether they be nye vnto the or farre of fro the, from the one ende of the erth vnto the other. Thou shalt not consente vnto him, nor herke vnto him: thine eye shall not pitie him, neither shalt thou haue compassio on him, nor kepe him secret: but cause him to be slayne. Thyne hande shall be fyrst vpon him to kyl him: & then the handes of all the people. And thou shalt stone him with stones that he dye, because he hath gone aboute to thrust awaye from the Lorde thy God, which brought the out of the lande of Egypte, and from the house of bondage. And all Israel shall heare and feare, and shall do no moare any soche wyckednesse as this is, amonge you.

If thou shalt heare saie in one of thy cyties which the Lorde thy God hath geue the to dwell in, that certen men beyng the chyldren of Belial, are gone out from amonge you, and haue moued the inhabytters of their cytie, sayinge: let vs go and serue straunge Goddes, which ye haue not knowen. Then thou must seeke, and make serche and enquire diligently. And beholde, yf it be true, and the thyng of a suretye, that soche abhominacio is wrought amonge you: then thou shalt smyte the dwellers of that cytie in the edge of the swerde, and destroye it vterly, and all that is therein, and cut the very catell therof with the edge of the swerde. And gether all the spoyle of it into the myddes of the streete therof, and burne with fyre both the cytie & all the spoyle therof euery white for the Lorde thy God. And it shall be an heape for euer & shall not be bylt agayne. And there shall cleane naught of the damned thyng in thine hande, that the Lorde maye turne from the fearenesse of hys wrath, and shewe the mercye, and haue compassio on the, and multiplye the, as he hath sware vnto thy fathers. Therefore shalt thou herke vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe all hys commandmentes, whych I commaunde the this daye, yf thou do it, which is ryght in the eyes of the Lorde thy God.

The xliij. Chapter.

The maners of the gentyles maye not be folowed. What beastes are cleane to be eaten, and what not.

Are the chyldre of the Lorde pour God. * Ye shall not cut poure felues, nor make you any baldnes betwene poure eyes for any deed man. * For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God, and the Lorde hath chosen the, to be a seuerall people vnto hym selfe, aboue all the nacys that are vpo the erth.

Thou shalt eate no maner of abhominacio. These are the beastes which ye shall eate of oxen, shepe and goates, hert, roo and vngly: wildegoate, vnicorne, wyld oxen & camelio. And all beastes that cleane the hofte, and styte it into two clawes, and chewe & cud, them ye shall eate.

Neuerthelesse, these ye shall not eate of them that chewe cud and of them that deupde and cleane the hofte: the camell, the hare and the conye: whych chewe cud, but deupde not the hofte: therefore are they vncleane vnto you: and also the swine, though he deuide the hofte, yet he cheweth not cud, therefore is he vncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesch of soche, nor touche the dead carkeles of them.

These ye shall eate of all that are in the waters: All that haue fynnes & scales shall ye eate: And whatsoeuer hath not fynnes & scales, of that ye maye not eate, but it is vncleane vnto you.

All cleane byrdes ye shall eate: but these are they of whych ye shall not eate: the Eagle, the gohawk, and the cormerant, the Fion, the vultur, the kpte after her kynde, and all kynde of rauens, the Estrich, the nyghtcrowe, the kuckowe, and the sparowe hawk after her kynde, the lytle oule, y great oule, the back, the bitture, the pye, the storke, the heron, the Jay in his kynde, the lapwinge, the swalone. And let all ceping foules be vncleane vnto you, and not be eaten of: but of all cleane foules ye maye eate. Ye shall eat of nothyng that dyeth alone: But thou shalt geue it vnto the straunger that is in thy cytie, that he eate it, or thou mayst sel it vnto an Aliant. For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt not sette a kynd in hys mothers mylke.

Thou shalt tythe all the increase of thy seed, that the felde byngeth furth ycare by ycare: And thou shalt eate before the Lorde thy God, (in the place whych he hath chosen, and where he hath put his name) the tythe of thy corne, of thy wyne & of thyne oyle, and the fyrst gendred of thyne oxen & of thy shepe, yf thou mayst learne to feare the Lorde thy God all waye.

If the waye be to longe for the, so that thou art not able to carie it, & yf the place be farre fro the, which the Lorde thy God hath chosen to set his name there (and the Lorde thy God hath blessed the) then shalt thou make it in money, & take y money in thyne hande, & go vnto the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen, ad bestowe y money for whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth after: for ore, & shepe, wyne & ströge drynke, & for whatsoeuer thy soule desyareth, desyareth, and eate there before the Lorde thy God and be mercie: bothe thou and thyne householde, and the Leuite that is wythin thy gates, shalt thou not forsake, * for he hath nether parte nor enheritaunce wyth the.

At the ende of thre ycare, thou shalt bypunge forth all the tythes of thyne increase the same ycare, and laye it vpon wythin thyne awne gates. And the Leuite whych hath no parte nor enheritaunce with the, shall come, & the straunger, the fatherlesse and the wedowe, which are within thy gates, shall eate & be fylled: that the Lorde thy God maye blesse the, in all the workes of thyne hande which thou doest.

The xv. Chapter.

The forgiuenes of dettes in the seuenth ycare.

In the seuenth ycare thou shalt make a fredome. * And this is y manner of the fredome: whosoever ledeh ought wyth hys hande vnto his neyghboure, maye not aske agayne (that whych he hath lent) of hys neyghboure or of his brother: because it is called the Lordes fre ycare: yet of a straunger (and of an aleant) thou mayst call it home agayne. But * he that is thy brother, him shalt thou geue remytt, Neuertheles there shall be no begger amonge you. For the Lorde shall blesse the in the lande, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the, an enheritaunce to possesse it: so that thou herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to obserue and do all these comaundmentes, which I commaunde the this daye. For the Lorde thy God hath blessed the as he hath promysed the, and * thou shalt lende vnto many nacys, but thou thy selfe shalt not borowe: And thou shalt raygne ouer many nacions, and they shall not raygne ouer the.

Yf one of thy brethren amonge you be poore wythin any of thy gates in thy lande which the Lorde thy God geueth the, y shalt not harden thine hert, nor shut to thine hande fro thy poore brother: But open thine hande vnto him, & lende hym sufficiet for his nede, which he hath. Beware, that there be not a wycked poynte in thine hert, that thou woldest saie: The seuenth ycare, the ycare of fredome is at hande, and therefore it greueth the to loken on thy poore brother, and geue him naught & he then crye vnto the Lorde against the, and it be synne vnto the: But geue him, and let it not greue thine hert to geue vnto him. Because that for thys thyng, the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all thy workes, & in all that y puttest thine hande to. * The lande shall neuer be wout poore: And therefore I commaunde the sayinge: Thou shalt open thine hande vnto thy brother that is neady and poore in thy lande.

If thy brother an hebreue sell hym selfe to the, or an hebreuelle, & serue the six ycare, in the seuenth ycare thou shalt let hym go fre from the. And when thou sendest him out fre from the, thou shalt not let hym go awaye emptye: but shalt geue hym of thy shepe, of thy corne, and of thy wyne, and geue hym of that, wher w the Lorde thy God hath blessed the. And remembre, that thou wast a seruante in the lande of Egypte, and the Lorde thy God deliuered the thence: and therefore I commaunde the thys thyng to daye.

And yf he saie vnto the: I wyll not go awaye from the, because he loueth the & thyne house, and is well at ease with the: Then shalt thou take an aule, and naye his eare to the doore therewith, & let hym be thy seruante for euer: And vnto thy mayde seruante thou shalt do lyke wise. And let it not greue thine eye, whā thou lettest him go out fre fro the, for he hath bene worth a double hyred seruante to the in hys seruice syre yeres. And the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all that thou doest.

All the fyrst gendred that come of thyne oxen, and of thy shepe that are males, thou shalt halowe vnto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt do no worke with the fyrst gendred of thyne oxen, ner there the fyrst gendred of thy shepe: Thou shalt eate it before the Lorde thy God ycare by ycare, in the place whych the Lorde hath chosen, both thou and thyne householde. If there be any deforimtye therein, as yf it be lame, or blynde, or haue any other euell fauorednesse, thou shalt not offer it vnto the Lorde thy God: But shalt eate it with in thyne awne gates, the vncleane and the cleane indifferently, as the roo & the hert. Only eate not the bloude therof, but poure it vpon the grounde as water.

The xvi. Chapter.

Of Easter, wher contyde, and the feast of tabernacles. What officers ought to be ordeyned.

serue the * moneth of newe corne, that thou mayest offer * passcouer vnto the Lorde thy God. For in the moneth whā corne beginneth to ryse, the Lorde thy God brought the out of Egypte by nyght. Thou shalt therefore offer passcouer vnto the Lorde thy God (and shepe and ore) in the place whych the Lorde shall chose to put his name there. Thou shalt eate no leuened bread with it: but seven dayes shalt thou eate vneuened bred therewith: enē the bread of tribulacion (for thou camest out of the lande of Egypte in haste) that thou mayst remembre the daye, whā thou camest out of the lande of Egypte, all dayes of thy lyfe. And there shall be no leuened bread sene in all thy coastes seven dayes longe, neyther shall there remayne any thyng of the fleshe which thou offrest the fyrst daye at euen, vntill the moynunge.

k iij Thou

Thou mayst not offer pascouer wythin any of thy gates, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the: but * in the place which the Lorde thy God shall chose, to set his name in, there thou shalt offer Pascouer at euē, aboute the goynge downe of the sonne, euen in the creason y thou camest out of Egypte. And thou shalt sette and eate it, in the place which the Lorde thy God hath chosen, and departe on the morowe, & gett the vnto thy tēte. Syxe dayes thou shalt eat swete bread, and the seuenth daye is a gatherynge together before the Lorde thy God: thou shalt do no worke therein. * Seuen weekes shalt thou nōbre vnto the, and begynne to nōbre the seuen weekes, when thou begynnest to put the shevell to the corne, * & kepe the feast of weekes vnto the Lorde thy God, wyth a frewyllofferynge of thyne hande: which thou shalt geue vnto the Lorde thy God, accordynge as the Lorde thy God hath blessed the. And reioyse before the Lorde thy God, thou & thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruaunte & thy mayde and the Leuite that is within thy gates, and the straunger, the fatherlesse & the wedowe that are amonge you, in the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen to put his name there. And remembre, that thou wast a seruaunte in Egypte: and thou shalt obserue & do these ordinaunces.

Thou shalt also obserue the feast of tabernacles seuen dayes, after that thou hast gathered in thy corne and thy wyne. And thou shalt reioyse in that thy feast, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruaunte, and thy mayde, the Leuite, the straunger, and the fatherlesse & the wedowe, that are wythin thy gates. * Seuen dayes shalt thou kepe holy dawe vnto the Lorde thy God, in the place whych the Lorde shall chose: for the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all thy frutes, and in all the workes of thyne hādes, therfore shalt thou be glad. * The tymes in the pere shall all thy males appeare before the Lorde thy God, in the place which he shall chose: In the feast of swete bread, in the feast of weekes, & in the feast of tabernacles. And they shall not * appeare before the Lorde emptye but eueryp man accordynge to the gyfte of his hāde, & accordynge to the blessinge of the Lorde thy God whych he hath geuen the.

Judges and officers shalt thou make the in all thy cyties, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the thozowe out thy trybes: and they shall iudge the people ryghteously. * Wress not thou the lawe, nor knowe any persone, nether take any rewarde: for gyftes blynde the wyse, & peruerce the wordes of the ryghteous. That whych is iust and ryght, shalt thou folowe, that thou mayst lye, and enioye the lande, which the Lorde thy God geueth the.

Thou shalt plante no groue of whatsoeuer trees it be, nye vnto y altare of the Lorde thy God, which thou shalt make y. Thou shalt set the vpon y piler, which the Lorde thy God hateth.

The xviij. Chapter.

The punishment for idolatrye. The punishment of a rebell. The instruction of a kynge.

Thou shalt offer vnto the Lorde thy God no ore nor shepe * where in is blemyshe or any deformite: for that is an abhominacyon vnto the Lorde thy God.

If there be founde amonge you wyth in any of thy gates, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the, man, or woman y hath wrought wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, so that they haue gone beyōde his appoyntment, and gone and serued strange goddes, and worshypped them * the sonne or moone or any of the host of heauē, which I haue not commaunded, & it is tolde the, and thou hast heard of it: then shalt thou enquire diligently. And yf it be true, & the thyng of a suretye, y so the abhominacion is wrought in Israel, then shalt thou bynne forth y mā or that womā (whyche haue committed that wycked thinge) vnto the gates, and shalt stone them wyth stones, tll they dye. * At the mouth of two or thre witnesses shall he that is worthy of death, dye: and at the mouth of one wytnesse let no man dye. The handes of the wytnesses shall be fyrst vpon hym, to kyll hym, and afterwarde the handes of the people, & thou shalt put the wycked awaye from the.

If there ryse a matter to harde for the iudgement betwene bloud and bloud, betwene plee and plee, betwene plage and plage, and the matters come to styfe wythin thy gates, Then shalt thou aryle, ad gett the vnto the place which the Lorde thy God hath chosen, and come vnto the preastes the Leuites, and vnto the iudge that shall be in those dayes, and aske * and they shall shewe the y sentence of iudgement. And thou must do accordynge to that, whych they of that place (which the Lorde had chosen) shewe the and thou shalt obserue to do, accordynge to all that they enfourme the. Accordynge to the sentence of the lawe which they teache the, & accordynge to the iudgement which they tell the, shalt thou do, and * bowe not from that which they shewe the, nether to y right hāde nor to the lefte.

And that mā that will do presumptuously, and wyll not herken vnto the preast (that standeth there before the Lorde thy God to mynistrer) or vnto the iudge, that man shall dye: and thou shalt put awaye euell from Israel. And all the people shall heare and feare, and shall do no more presumptuously.

When thou art come vnto y lande whych the Lorde thy God geueth the, and enioyest it, and dwellest therein: & yf thou shalt saye.

* I wyll set a kynge ouer me lyke as all the nacjons that are aboute me: The thou shalt make hym kynge ouer the, whom the Lorde thy God shall chose: Euen one from amonge thy brethre shalt thou make kynge ouer the, and thou mayst not set a strainger ouer the, whych is not of thy brethzen. * But he shall not multiplie horses to him selfe, ner bynne the people agayne to Egypte thozowe the multitude of horses, for as moche as y Lorde hath sayde vnto you: ye shall hence forth go no moare agayne y waye. Also he * ought not to multiplie wyues to hym selfe, lest his hert turne awaye, nether shall he gether him y spluer and golde to moch.

And when he is sett vpon the seate of his kyngedome, he shall wypte hym out a coppe of this lawe in a boke, before y preastes the Leuites. And it shall be wyth him, & he ought to reade therein * all dayes of his lyfe, that he maye lerne to feare the Lorde his God, & to kepe all y wordes of this lawe and the ordinaunces, for to do them: and that his hert aryle not aboute his brethzen, & that he turne not from the commaundement: to the ryght hande or to the lefte, but that he maye prolonge his dayes in his kyngdome: he, and his chyliden in Israel.

The xviij. Chapter.

The Leuites had no possessions. Idolatrye must be fled. The prophet Christ is y m. fer. The false prophet must be slayne, & how he may be knowne.

The preastes the, Leuites, and all the trybe of Leuy * must haue no parte nor enheritaunce wyth Israel: but shall eate the offerings of the Lorde, and his enheritaunce: Therfore shall they haue no enheritaunce amonge their brethzen: But the Lorde, he is their enheritaunce, as he hath sayde vnto the. And this is the preastes dutie of the people, and of them that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: They must geue vnto the preaste, the shoulder, and the two chekes, and the mawe the fyrst frutes also of thy corne, wyne and oyle, and the fyrst of y woll of thy shepe shalt thou geue hym: * For the Lorde thy God hath chosen hym out of all thy trybes, to stande and to ministrer in the name of the Lorde: he and his sonnes for euer. If a Leuite come out of any of thy cyties of all Israel, wher he is a sojourner, and come wythall the lust of his herte vnto the place whych the Lorde hath chosen: he shall mynistrer in the name of the Lorde his God, as his other brethre the Leuites do, whych remaine there before the Lorde. And they shall haue lyke porcyons to eate, besyde that whych cometh to hym of the patrimonye of his elders.

When thou arte come into y lande whych the Lorde thy God geueth the, se that thou lerne not to do after y abhominacions of thole nacjons. Let ther not be founde amonge you any one, that maketh his sonne or daughter to go thozowe the fyre, or that yseth wythcraft, or a choler out of dayes * or that regardeth the flyenge of foules, or a sozccrar, or a cha-mar, or that counceleth wyth spretes, or a sothfayer, or that asketh * (the truth) at the that be deed. For all that do soch thynge, are abhominacyon vnto the Lorde: and because of these abhominacions the Lorde thy God doeth cast the out before the. Thou shalt be perfecte therfore * (without blemyshe) in the syght of the Lorde thy God. For these nacjons whych thou shalt conquere, herken vnto chosers oute of dayes, and vnto sozccrers: But the Lorde thy God hath not suffred the so to do.

The Lorde thy God wyll * sty y vnto the a prophete amonge you: euen of thy brethzen, lyke vnto me * vnto hym ye shall herke, accordynge to all that thou desyrest of the Lorde thy God in horeb, in the dawe of the gatherynge together, when thou saydest: * Let me heare the voyce of my Lorde God no moare, nor se this greate fyre any moare, that I dye not. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: they haue well spoken: I will raise them vp a prophete from amonge their brethzen lyke vnto the, and wyll put my wordes in his mouth, and he shall speake vnto them all that I shall commaunde hym. And whosoeuer will not herken vnto the wordes which he shall speake in my name, I wyll requyre it of hym.

But the prophete which shall presume to speake a worde in my name, whych I haue not commaunded hym to speake, or that speaketh in the name of strange goddes, the same prophete shall dye. And yf thou saye in thyne hert: howe shall we knowe the worde whych the Lorde hath not spoken? * (The tokens shalt thou haue.) Ene whē a prophete speaketh in the name of the Lorde, & yf y thyng folowe not nor come to passe, that is the thyng which y Lorde hath not spoken. But the prophete hath spoken it presumptuously: Thou shalt not therfore be afayed of him.

The xix. Chapter.

The feynchynged townes. The punishment of hym that beareth false wytnesse.

When the Lorde thy God * hath rosted out the nacys, whose lande the Lorde thy God geueth the, and thou succeedst in their enheritaunce, and dwellest in they cyties, and in they houses: thou shalt * appoynte iij. cyties for y in the myddes of the lande whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to possesse it: * thou shalt prepare the waye, and deuyde the coastes of thy lande, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to enherete, into .iij. partes, that * who-

 * 2ro. xxi. f. fomer commytteth murthur, maye see thy-ther. For thys cause must the slayer flye thy-ther, that he maye lyue. Who so kylleth hys neyghboure ignorantly, and hated hym not in tyme passed: And when a man goeth vnto
 the wodde w^h his neyghboure to hewe wood,
 * 2ro. xxi. f. * (thynkynge no harme.) and as his hāde fetcheth
 a stroke wth the axe do cut downe the tre,
 the heade flyppeth from the helue, and sym-
 teth hys neyghboure that he dyeth: the same shall flye vnto one of the same cyties & lyue.
 Lest the executer of bloude folowe after the slayer whyle hys herte is whote, and ouertake hym, because the wayes is longe, and C slaye hym, and yet there is no cause worthy of death in hym, in as moche as he hated him
 not in tyme passed. Wherefore I commaunde the, sayinge: thou shalt appoynte out .iij. cy-ties for the.

And yf the Lorde thy God enlarge thy coastes (as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers)
 and geue the all the lande whych he sayde he wold geue vnto thy fathers, thou shalt kepe
 all these comaundementes to do them, whych
 I commaunde the thys daye, that thou lone
 the Lorde thy God, and walke in his wayes euer, and adde .iij. cyties mo for y^e vnto those
 .iij. that innocent bloude be not shed in thy lā-de, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to enheret, and so y^e bloude come vpon the.

* But and yf any mā hate hys neyghboure,
 and laye a wayte for hym, and ryse agaynst
 hym, and synce hym y^e he dye, and then flyeth vnto any of these cyties: the elders of his cy-tie shall sende, and fetch him thence, and de-lyuer hym into the handes of the iustyce of bloude, that he maye dye. Thyne eye shall not spare hym, but thou shalt put a waye innocent bloude from Israel, that it maye go well wth the. * Thou shalt not remoue thy neyghbours marke, whych they of olde tyme
 haue sett in thine enheritaunce, that thou shalt enheret in the lande, whych the Lorde
 thy God geueth the to enioye it.

* One wytnesse shall not rise agaynst a man for any maner trespass, or for any manner synne, or for any maner faute, that he offendeth in. * But at the mouthes of two wytnesses or of .iij. wytnesses shall the matter be stablyshed.

* If an vnyghteous wytnesse rise by against a man to accuse him of trespass: then both the men whych strye together, shall stande before the Lorde, before the Prestes
 and the iudges, which shall be in those dayes,
 and the iudges shall make diligent inquisicyon. And yf the witnesse be foude false, and that he hath geue false wytnesse agaynst hys
 brother then shall ye do vnto hym, as he had thought to do vnto hys brother, and y^e shalt put euell awaye from the. And other shall beare, & feare, and shall henceforth comyt no

 more any soche wyckednesse amonge you.
 And thynne eye shall haue no compassyon, but
 * 2ro. xxi. f. * soule for soule, eye for eye, toth for toth, hande for hande, fore for fore.

¶ The .xx. Chapter.
 ¶ Who ought to go to battell. The lawe of ar-
 mes. The Canaanites must they kill.

When thou goest out to battell against thynne enemyes, and seest hoz-les and charrettes, and people mo-
 then thou, be not * afrayed of the, * Deut. i. b.
 for the Lorde thy God is wth the, whych broughte the out of the lāde of Egypte. And whē ye are come nye vnto battell, y^e Prestes shall come forth to speake vnto y^e people, and shall saye vnto them: Heare O Israel, ye are come vnto battell agaynst poure enemyes
 * let not poure hartes faynte, nether feare, nor be amased nor adread of them. For the
 * Lorde poure God goeth wth you, to fighte for you agaynst poure enemyes, & to saue you.

And let the offycers speake vnto the people, sayinge: If any man haue bylt a newe
 house, and haue not dedicate it, let hym go &
 retorne to hys house, lest he dye in y^e battell,
 and another mā dedicate it. And yf any mā haue planted a vyneparde, & haue not made it comē: * (and lawfull for euery mā to eate of) let him go & retorne agayne vnto hys house, lest he dye in the battell, and another make it comē.
 * And yf any mā be betrauthed vnto a wy-
 fe, and haue not taken her, let him go and returne agayne vnto hys house, lest he dye in the battell, and another man take her.

And let the offycers speake further vnto
 the people, and saye: * If any man feare and be faynte herted, let hym go and retorne vn-
 to hys house, lest he make hys brothers hert faynte as well as hys. And when the offy-cers haue made ende of speakynge vnto
 the people, they shall make captaynes of warre ouer them.

When y^e comest nye vnto a cytie to fyght agaynst it * offre the peace. And yf they an-
 were the agayne pleasably, and open vnto y^e,
 then let all the people that is founde therein,
 be tributaryes vnto the, and serue the. And yf they wyll make no peace wth the, but make warre agaynst y^e, thou shalt beseege it. And when the Lorde thy God hath deliuered it into thynne handes, thou shalt synce all the males therof wth the edge of the swerde:
 But the women and the chyldren, * and the cattell, and all that is in the cytie, and all the spoule therof, shalt thou take vnto thy selfe,
 and eate the spoule of thynne enemyes, which the Lorde thy God hath geuen the. Thus shalt thou do vnto all the cyties whych are a greute waye of frothe, and not of the cyties of these nacyns.

But

But of the cyties of these nacyns, which the Lorde thy God shall geue the to enheret,
 thou shalt saue alpye nothinge that bzyetheth.
 * But shalt destroye them without redēp-cyon, namely the Hethites, y^e Amorites, the Cananites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusites, as the Lorde thy God hath comaunded the, that they teache you not to do after all their abhominacyons, whych they haue done vnto their goddes, & so ye shulde
 syne agaynst the Lorde poure God.

When thou hast beleged a cytie longe tyme,
 and made warre agaynst it to take it,
 destroye not the trees therof, that thou wol-dest thrust an axe vnto them: But eate of them, and cut them not downe. For the trees of the feldes are no men, to come agaynst the
 and so beseege the. Onely those trees whych thou knowest that they are not feutefull.
 * (But wylde, and fyt for other bres) those shalt thou destroye and cutt downe, & make bulwokes
 agaynst the cytie that maketh warre wth
 the, vntyll thou subdue it.

¶ The .xxi. Chapter.

¶ Inquisition for murthur. Punishment for chyldren that desobeye father and mother.

If one be fonde slayne in the lande,
 whych the Lorde thy God geueth
 the to possesse it, and lyeth in the felde: and it is not knowne who hath slayne hym: Then thynne elders and thy iudges shall come forth, and mete vnto the cy-ties that are rounde aboute the slayne. And let the elders of that cytie whych is next vn-
 to the slayne man, take out of the droue, an hepyer that is not laboured wth, nor hath drawen in the yocke, and let y^e elders of that cytie brynge the hepyer vnto a harde valeye,
 whych is nether eared nor sowed, and strike
 of the hepyers necke there in the valeye.

And the Prestes y^e sonnes of Levi (whō
 the Lorde thy God hath chosen to mynstre, and to blesse in the name of the Lorde) shall come furth, and at theyr mouthes shall all stryfe and plage be tryed. And all the elders of the cytie that come furth to the slayne mā, shall waite their hādes ouer the hepyer that is beheaded in the valeye, and shall answer
 and saye: oure handes haue not shed thys bloude, nether haue oure eyes sene it. Be mercyfull Lorde vnto thy people Israel, whych thou hast deliuered * and laye no innocent
 bloude vnto thy people of Israels charge: &
 the bloude shall be forgue them. And so shalt thou put innocent bloude frothe, when thou shalt haue done that whych is ryght in the syght of the Lorde.

When thou goest to warre agaynst thynne
 enemyes, and the Lorde thy God hath deli-uered them into thynne handes, and thou hast taken them captiue, and seest amonge the captiues a bewtifull woman, and hast a de-

lyce vnto her, that thou woldst haue her to thy wyfe, Thou shalt brynge her home to thynne house, and let her haue her heade & let her nayles growe, and put her rayment that she was taken in from her, and let her re-mayne in thine house, and bewep her father and her mother a moneth lōge, and after that shalt thou go in vnto her, and marie her, & she shall be thy wyfe. And yf thou haue no fa-uoure vnto her, then let her go whether she lusteth: and sell her not for money, nor make chere saue of her, because thou hast humbled her. * If a man haue two wyues, one loued and another hated, & they haue borne him chyldren, both the loued and also the hated: If the fyrst borne be the sonne of the hated: then when the tyme cometh that he dealeth hys goodes, amonge hys chyldren,
 he maye not make the sonne of the beloued
 fyrst borne, before y^e sonne of the hated why-che is in deade the fyrst borne: But he shall knowe the sonne of the hated for the fyrst-borne, and geue hym dowble porcyon of all y^e he hath. For he is the fyrst of his strength, and to hym belongeth the ryght of the fyrst borne.

* Yf any man haue a sonne that is stobuene and disobedient, that he wyll not he-ken vnto the voyce of hys father and voyce
 of hys mother, and they haue chastened him,
 and he wolde not heken vnto them: Then shall hys father and hys mother take hym, & brynge hym out vnto the elders of that cy-tie, and vnto the gate of that same place, &
 saye vnto the elders of the cytie: Thys oure
 sonne is stoborne and disobedynt, and wyll
 not heken vnto oure voyce, he is a ryoter, &
 a dronkarde. And all the men of that cytie shall stone him with stones vnto death. And thou shalt put euell awaye from the, and all Israel shall heare, and feare. * If a man haue committed a trespass worthy of death, &
 is put to death for it, & thou hangest hym on a tree: hys body shall not remayne all nyghte vpon the tree, but thou shalt burye hym the same daye. For * the curse of God is on him that is hanged. Wefyle not thou thy lande, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to enheret.

 cuseth a man vnyghteously: of an aduouer also
 and of hym that raueth a mayde.

Thou shalt not se thy brothers ore
 or thepe go astraye, & withdraue
 thy selfe from them: But shalt brynge the agayne vnto thy brother. And yf thy brother be not nye vnto y^e, or yf thou knowe hym not, then brynge

byngge it vnto thynne a wone house, & it shall remaine wth the, vntill thy brother aske after them, and then delyuer him the agayne. In lyke maner shalt thou do with his asse and so shalt thou do with his rayment: and with all lost thynges of thy brother which he hath lost & hath founde, shalt thou do lykewise, and thou shalt not withdrawe thy selfe.

* Thou shalt not set thy brothers asse or ore falle doune by the waye, & wythdrawe thy selfe from them: but shalt helpe hym to heue them vp agayne.

The woman shall not weare that whiche pertayneth vnto the man, neither shall a man put on womans rayment. If of all that do so, are abhominacion vnto the Lorde thy God.

If thou chauce vpon a byrdes nest by the waye, in whatsoeuer tree it be or on the grounde, whether they be younge or egges, and the damme syttinge vpon the younge or vpon the egges: Thou shalt not take the damme with the younge. But shalt in any wyse let the damme go, and take the younge to the, that thou mayst prosper and prolonge thy dayes.

23 When thou byldest a newe house, thou shalt make a batelment on the rouffe, that thou lade not bloude vpon thynne house, yf any man fall therof.

* Thou shalt not sowe thy vyneyard with dyuerser seedes: lest the frute of the seede which thou hast sowne, and the frute of thy vyneyard be defyled.

Thou shalt not plowe with an ore & an asse together. Thou shalt not weare a garment made of woll and flaxe together.

* Thou shalt make thy girdles (in thy hemys.) vpon the iij. quarters of thy vesture, where with thou couerest thy selfe.

If a man take a wyfe, and when he hath lye with her, hate her, and laye shamefull thynges vnto her charge, and byngge vpon an euell name vpon her, and saye: I toke this wyfe, and when I came to her, I founde her not a mayde: Then shall the father of the damsell and the mother byngge forth the tokens of the damells virginite, vnto the elders of the cytie in & the gate. And the damells father shall laye vnto the elders: I gaue my daughter vnto this man to wyfe, and he hateth her: and lo, he layeth shamefull thynges vnto her charge, sayinge: I founde not thy daughter a mayde. And yet these are the tokens of my daughters virginite. And they shall sprede the vesture before the elders of the cytie. And the elders of that cytie shall take that man and chastyce him, and meate hym in an hundred syles of syluer, and geue them vnto the father of the damsell, because he hath brought vpon an euell name vpon a mayde of Israel. And she shall be his wyfe, & he maye not put her awaye all his dayes.

But and yf the thyng be of a suertye, that the damsell be not founde a virgen, they shall byngge the damsell & to the doze of her fathers house, and the men of that cytie shall stone her with stones to death, because she hath wrought folye in Israel, to playe the whoze in her fathers house. And so shalt thou put euell a waye from the.

* If a man be founde lyenge wth a woman, that hath a wedded husbande, they shall dye ether other of them: both the man & laye with the wyfe, & also the wyfe: and so thou shalt put a waye euell from Israel.

If a mayde be handfasted vnto an husbande, and then a man fynde her in & towne and lye with her, ye shall byngge them both vnto the gates of the same cytie, & shall stone them with stones to death: The damsell, because she cryed not beyngge in the cytie: And the man, because he hath humbled his neyghbours wyfe, and thou shalt put a waye euell from the.

But yf a man fynde a betrauthed damsell in the felde, and force her, and lye wth her. Then the man that laye wth her shall dye alone, but vnto the damsell thou shalt do no harme: because there is in the damsell no cause of death. For as when a man ryseth agaynst his neyghbour & slepeth him, euen so is this matter. For he founde her in & felde, and the betrauthed damsell cryed: and there was no man to succoure her. * If a man fynde a mayde that is not betrauthed, and take her, and lye with her, and they be founde: Then the man that laye wth her, shall geue vnto the damells father. l. syles of syluer. And the shall be his wyfe, because he hath humbled her, and he maye not put her awaye all his dayes.

* No man shall take his fathers wyfe, nor vnhale his fathers couerynge.

The xxij. Chapter.
What manner of men may not be admitted into the church. Pollucions that happen in the night.

One * that is gelded or hath his priuie membres cutt of, shall come into & congregacion of the Lorde. And he yf bozne of a comen woman, shall not come into & congregacion of the Lorde, no not in & tenth generacion he shall not entre into the congregacion of the Lorde. * The Ammonites and the Moabites shall not come into the congregacion of the Lorde, no not in the tenth generacion, nor they shall neuer come into the congregacion of the Lorde, because they met you not wth bread and water in the waye, when ye came out of Egypt, and because they hyed agaynst the. * Balaam the sonne of Beor of Bethor, of Mesopotamia, to curse the. Neuertheless the Lorde thy God wolde not berken vnto Balaam, but the Lorde thy God turned the curse to a blessing vnto the, because & Lorde thy God loued the. Thou shalt not seke the prosperite or welth of them all thy dayes for euer.

But

* Thou shalt not abhorre an Edomite, for he is thy brother: neither shalt thou abhorre an Egypcian, because thou wast a straunger in his lande. The chyldren that are begotten of them shall come into the congregacion of the Lorde in the iij. generacion.

When thou goest out wth the host agaynst thynne enemyes, kepe the from all wickednesse. If there be amonge you any man yf is vncleane, by the reason of vncleannesse that chaunceth hym by nyght, let hym go out of & host, and not come in agayne, into & host, but at euen let hym walke hym selfe wth water, & then when & sonne is doune, let him come into the host agayne. Thou shalt haue a place also without the host, whether thou shalt resorte to, (for thy naturall necessite) and thou shalt haue a sharpe poynte vpon thy wepon: and when thou wilt case thy selfe, dygge therewith, & turne and couer & which is departed from the. For the Lorde thy God walketh in the middes of thynne host, to rydd the, and to set thynne enemyes before &. Therefore shall the place of thynne host be pure, that he se no vncleane thyng in the, and so turne him selfe from the.

* Thou shalt not delyuer vnto his master the seruant whych is escaped from his master vnto the. He shall dwell with the, eue amonge you in what place he hym selfe lyketh best, in one of thy cyties where it is good for hym, and thou shalt not vex hym. There shall be no whoze of the daughters of Israel, nor whoze keeper of the sonnes of Israel. Thou shalt neither byngge the hyer of an whoze nor the pryce of a dogge into the house of the Lorde thy God, in any maner of vowe, for euen both of them are abhominacion vnto the Lorde thy God.

* Thou shalt not hurt thy brother by vsury of money, ner by vsury of corne, ner by vsury of any thyng & he maye be hurt withall. Vnto a & stranger thou mayst lende vpon vsurye, but not vnto thy brother, that the Lorde thy God may blesse the in all that thou settest thynne hande to, in the lande whether thou goest to conquire it.

* When thou hast vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde thy God, thou shalt not slacke to paye it. For the Lorde thy God wyll surely requyre it of the, and it shall be synne in the. If & shalt leue vowynge, it shall be no synne in the: but that which is once gone out of thy lippes, thou must kepe and do, accordynge as thou hast vowed vnto & Lorde thy God of a freewyll, and as thou hast spoken wth thy mouth.

When thou comest into thy neyghbours

vyneyard, thou mayst cate grapes thy belly full at thine a wone pleasure: but thou shalt put none in thy vessel. Euen so whan thou comest into thy neyghbours corne, * thou mayst plucke the eares with thynne hande, but thou shalt not moue a sycle vnto thy neyghbours corne.

The xxij. Chapter.

Deuozement is permittid. He that is newly married shall not be compelled to go to warre.

When a man hath take a wyfe, & he and married her, yf he fynde no fauour in his eyes, because he hath spied some vncleannesse in her. * Then let him wyte her a bylle of deuozement, and put it in her hande, and sende her out of his house. And when she is departed out of his house, let her go, and be another mans wyfe. And yf the seconde husbande hate her, let him wyte her also a letter of deuozement, and put it in her hande and sende her out of his house: or yf the secōde man dye whych toke her to wyfe, her fyrst man whych sent her awaye, maye not take her agayne to be his wyfe, after & she is defyled. For that is abhominacion in the syght of the Lorde. And thou shalt not cause the lade to synne, whych the Lorde thy God shall geue the to enheret.

* When a man taketh a newe wyfe, he shall not go a warrefare, neither shall he charged wth any busynesse: but shall be free at home one yere, & reioyse with his wyfe whych he hath taken. * No man shall take & neither of the vpper myllstone to pledge, for then he shall hurt a mans lyfe. * If any man be founde stealyng any of his bretheren & chyldren of Israel, and abuseth him, or selleth him, the thefe shall dye. And & shalt put euell a waye from the. Take heade to thy selfe as concerning & plage of leprosy, that thou obserue diligently. And ye shall do accordynge to all that the Preastes the Leuytes shall teache you: Euen as I commaunded them, so ye shall obserue to do. Remembre what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto * Myr Jam by & waye, after that ye were come out of Egypte.

Whan thou doest lende thy brother any thinge, & shalt not go into his house to fetch a pledge fro thence: but shalt stāde without, and the man yf borrowed it of &, shall byngge the pledge out vnto the. Forthermore, yf it be a pore body, thou shalt not slepe with his pledge, but delyuer hym the pledge agayne whan & sonne goth doune that he maye slepe in his a wone rayment, and blesse the.

And it shall be ryghteousnes vnto the, before the Lorde thy God. * Thou shalt not defraude an hyred seruante that is nedye and poore, whether he be of thy brethren, or of the straungers that are in thy lande with in thy gates.

Thou shalt not hynder the ryght of the straunger nor of the fatherlesse, nor take a wedowes rayment to pledge. But remembre that thou wast a seruaunte in Egypte, and howe the Lorde thy God deliuered the thence: And therfore I commaunde the to do thys thyng.

And the eldest sonne which she beareth, shall succede in the name of hys brother whych is deed, that his name be not put out of Israel.

And yf the man wyll not take hys brothers wyfe, then let her go vp to & gate vnto the elders, and saye: My husbandes brother refuseth to sterre vp vnto hys brother a name in Israel, nether will he marie me. Then the elders of hys cytie shall call hym, and comen with hym. And yf he stande and saye: I wyll not take her, then shall hys kynswoman come vnto him in the presence of the elders, & loose hys shewe of hys fote, & spyt in hys face, and answere, & saye: So shall it be done vnto that man, that doth notch bylde vp hys brothers house. And hys name shall be called in Israel, the vnhodhouse.

Blessed shalt thou be in the towne, and blessed in the felde: blessed shalt thou be the frute of thy body, and the frute of thy greasse, and the frute of thy cattell, the frute of thyne oxen, & the flockes of thy shepe: blessed shalt thou be thy basket and thy store. Blessed shalt thou be, when thou goest out, and blessed when thou comest in.
 *Deu. xxviii. a. *The Lorde shall geue ouer thyne enemyes that ryse agaynst the, that they maye fall before thy face. They shall come out agaynst the one waye, and flee before the seven wayes. The Lorde shall put the blessing vpon the in thy store houses, & in all that thou settest thyne hande to, & will blesse the in the lande which the Lorde thy God geueth the.

The Lorde shall make the an holy people vnto hym selfe, as he hath swozen vnto the: yf thou shalt kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God, and walke in his wayes.

And all nacyns of the erth shall se, that the name of the Lorde, is called vpon ouer the, and they shall be asferde, of the. And the Lorde shall make the plenteous in goodes, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy cattell, and in the frute of thy grounde, in the lande whych the Lorde swaue vnto thy fathers, to geue the.

The Lorde shall open vnto the his good treasure, euen the heauē * to geue rayne vnto thy lande in due season, and to blesse all thy labourers of thyne hande. * And thou shalt lende vnto many nacyns, but shalt not borrowe thy selfe. And the Lorde shall set the before and not behynde: & thou shalt be aboue only, and not beneth: yf thou hearken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God, which I commaunde the this daye, to kepe and to do them. And se that thou bowe not asyde from any of these wordes, which I commaunde the this daye, either to the ryght hande or to the left, that thou woldest goo after straunge goddes to serue them.

* But and yf thou wilt not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe & to do all his commaundementes and his ordinaunces, which I commaunde the this daye: * all these curses shall come vpon the, and ouertake the: Cursed shalt thou be in the towne, and cursed in the felde: cursed shalt thou be thy basket, & thy store. Cursed shalt thou be the frute of thy body, and the frute of thy lande, and the frute of thyne oxen, and the flockes of thy shepe. Cursed shalt thou be when thou goest in, and cursed when thou goest out. The Lorde shall sende vpon the, cursynge, destruccyn, and rebuke in all that thou settest thyne hande to, and that thou doest: vntill he destroye the, and brynge the to nought quickly, because of the wyckednesse of thyne inuencion, and because thou hast forsaken me. The Lorde shall make the pestilence cleane vnto the, vntill he haue consumed the from of the lande, whether thou goest to enioye it. * The Lorde shall synke the with swellynge, with fevers, heet, burnynge, and with the swerde, with wetherynge, and with blastynge. And they shall folowe the vntill thou perishe.

* And the heauen that is ouer thy head shall be brasse, and the erthe that is vnder the, yron. The Lorde shall turne the rayne of the lande vnto powder and dust: euen fro heauē shall they come doune vpon the, vntill thou be brought to nought. And the Lorde shall plage the before thyne enemyes: Thou shalt come out one waye agaynst the, and flee seven wayes before them, and shalt be scattered amonge all the kyngdomes of the erthe. And thy carkesse shall be meate vnto all maner foules of the ayre, and vnto the bestes of the erthe, and no man shall fraye them awaye.

* The Lorde wyll synke the with the botche of Egypte, and the emarodes, scalle, & mangenisse, yf thou mayest not be healed therof. And the Lorde shall synke the with madnesse, and blyndnesse and dasynge of herte. Thou shalt grope at noone dayes, as yf blinde gropeth in darkenesse, and shalt not prosper in thy wayes. Thou shalt be oppressed with wronge, and be polled euermore, & no man shall sucker the. * Thou shalt be betrowethed vnto vnto a wyfe, and another man shall lye with her. * Thou shalt buyde an house, and not dwell therein: Thou shalt also plante a vineyard, and shalt not gather the grapes. Thyne oxen shall be slayne before thyne eyes, and thou shalt not eate thereof. Thyne asse shall be violently take awaye euē before thy face, and shalt not be restored to the agayne. Thy shepe shall be geue vnto thine enemyes, and no man shall rescue them. Thy sonnes and thy daughters shall be geuen vnto another nacyn, and thyne eyes shall se it, & dase vpon them all the daye longe, and there shall be no myghte in thyne hande. The frute of thy lande and all thy labourers shall a nacyn whych thou knowest not, eate, & thou shalt continually suffre violence onely, and be oppressed alwaye: so that thou shalt be cleane besyde thy selfe, for the syghte of thyne eyes whych thou shalt se:

The Lorde shall synke the in the knees and legges, with a myschonous botche that can not be healed: euen from the sole of thy fote vnto the toppe of thy head.

* The Lorde shall brynge the and thy kynge (whych thou shalt set ouer the) vnto a nacyn, whych nether thou nor thy fathers haue knowne, that there thou mayest serue straunge Goddes: euē woodd and stone. And thou shalt be wondred at, spoken of, & iested at amonge all nacyns, whether the Lorde shall carpe the. Thou shalt carpe moche seed out in to the felde, and shalt gether but litle in: for yf grechoppers shall destroye it. Thou shalt plante a vineyard and drasse it, but shalt nether dryncke of the wyne, nether gether the grapes, for the wormes shall eate it. Thou shalt haue olive trees thowowe out all thy coastes, but shalt not anoynte thy selfe with the oyle, for thyne olive trees shall be roted out: Thou shalt beget sonnes, and daughters, but shalt not haue them: for they shall be carped awaye captiue. All thy trees and frute of thy lande shall be marred with blastynge.

The stranger that is amonge you, shall clyme aboue the vpon hye, and thou shalt come doune beneth alowe. He shall lende the, & thou shalt not lende hym: he shall be before, & thou behynde.

Moreouer, all these curses shall come vpon the, and shall folowe the and ouertake the, till thou be destroyed: because thou hekenedst not vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commaundementes, and his ordinaunces, whych he commaunded the, and they shall be vpon the as synacles and wonders, and vpon thy seed for ever, because thou seruedst not the Lorde thy God with ioyfulness and with a good herte, whan thou haddest abundance of all thynges, therfore thou shalt

serue thyne enemye, whych the Lorde shall sende vpon the: in hunger and thyrst, in nakednesse, and in nede of all thynges: and he shall put a pocke of yron vpon thy necke, vntill he haue broughte the to nought.

And the Lorde shall brynge a nacyn vpon the from a farre, and from the ende of the worlde, as swifte as an egle flyeth: a nacyn whose tonge thou shalt not vnderstande: a harde fauoured nacyn, whych shall not regarde the person of the olde, nor haue compassion on the younge. The same shall eate the frute of thy cattell, and the frute of thy lande, vntill he haue destroyed the: and shall leaue the nether corne, wyne, nor oyle, neither the encrease of thyne oxen, nor the flockes of thy shepe: vntill he haue broughte the to nought. And he shall kepe the in, in all thy ctyes, vntill he haue cast doune thy hye walles and stronge holdes, wherein thou trustedst, thowowe out all the lande. And he shall besege the in all thy ctyes thowowe out all thy lande, whych the Lorde thy God hath geuen the.

* And thou shalt eate the frute of thyne awne bodye: the fleshe of thy sonnes, and of thy daughters, whych the Lorde thy God hath geuen the, in that straitnesse and sege, wherewith thyne enemye shall besege the: so that it shall greue the man (that is tender & excedynge delicate amonge you,) to loke on his brother and vpon his wyfe that lyeth in his bosome, and on the remnaunte of his chyldren, whych he hath yet left: for feare of geuyng (vnto anye of them) of the fleshe of his chyldren, whom he shall eate, because he hath nothyng left hym in that straitnesse & sege, wherewith thyne enemye shall besege the in all thy ctyes.

Yee and the woman that is so tender and delicate, that she dare not aduenture to set the sole of her fote vpon the grounde, (for softnesse and tenderesse) shall be greued to loke on her husbände that lyeth in her bosome, & on her sonne and on her daughter: and on hyr after hyr (that is come out from betwene her legges,) and her chyldre whych she shall beare: for whan all thynges lack, she shall eat them secretly, in the sege & straitnesse, wherewith thyne enemye shall besege the in thy ctyes.

* If thou wilt not kepe and do all the wordes of this lawe (that are wyrtten in this booke,) and feare this glorious and fearfull name of the Lorde thy God: the Lorde wyll sende vnto the and thy seed, greate plagges and of longe continuance, euell synacles and of longe duraunce. Moreouer he wyll brynge vpon the all the diseases of Egypte, and those whych thou wast afrayed of shall cleane vnto the. And all maner synacles, and all maner plagges whych are not wyrtten

And ye shalbe wasted from of the lād, whether thou goest to enioye it. And the Lorde shall scatter the amonge all nacions, from the one ende of the worlde vnto the other, and there shalbe serue straunge goddes, whych thou nor thy fathers haue knowne: euē wodd and stone.

And amonge these nacions shalbe fynde no ease, neyther shall the sole of thy foote haue rest. But the Lorde shall geue the there an vnquyet herte, and dasyng eyes, and sorowe of mynde. And thy lyfe shall haue before the and thou shalt feare both daye, and nyght, & shalt haue no trust in thy lyfe. In the morninge thou shalt saye, wolde God it were nyght. And at nyght thou shalt saye: wolde God it were morninge: for feare, of thynne herte whych thou shalt feare & for the syghte of thynne eyes, whych thou shalt se.

The xxx. Chapter.

The people are exhorted to obserue the commaundmentes, whych ye shal beake, they are threathned to be plagued.

* Deu. x. d. a

These are the wordes of the * appoyntment, which the Lord commaunded Moyses, to make wryth the chyldren of Israel in the lād of Moab, besyde y appoyntment which he made wryth them in Horeb, and Moyses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the Lorde dyd before poure eyes in the lande of Egypt, vnto Pharaon and vnto all hys scruauntes, and vnto all hys lande, the greates temptacions whych thynne eyes haue sene, those greates myracles and wonders: and yet the Lorde hath not geue you an herte to perceaue, and eyes to se, and eares to heare vnto thys daye.

And I haue led you .xl. yere in the wilderness: and poure * clothes are not waxed olde vpon you, and thy shoue is not waxed olde vpon thy fote. Ye haue eaten no bread, nor droncke wyne or stronge dryncke, that ye myghte knowe, howe that I am the Lord poure God.

* And ye came vnto this place, & Sehon the kynge of Heshbon, and Og kynge of Basan came out agaynst vs vnto battell, and we smote them, and toke the lande, & gaue it for an inheritance vnto the Rubenites & Gadites, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse. * kepe therfore the wordes of this appoyntment and do them, that ye maye vnderstande all that ye ought to do. Ye stande thys daye euery one of you before the Lorde poure God: poure captaynes, poure trybes, poure elders, poure offycers, and all the men of Israel: poure chyldren also, poure wyues & the stranger that is in thynne herte * fro the hewer of thy wodd, vnto the drawer of thy water: that thou shuldest go into the appoyntment of the Lord thy God, & into his othe * which the Lord thy God maketh wryth y this daye. For to make the a people vnto him selfe, and that he maye be vnto the a God, as he hath sayde vnto the, and as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isahac and Jacob.

I make not thys bonde & this othe wryth you only: but both wryth hym that standeth here wryth vs this daye before the Lord oure God, and also wryth hym that is not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe, howe we haue dwelt in the lād of Egypt, and howe we came thowowe the myddes of the nacions whych ye passed by. And ye haue sene the abhominacions and the ydolles: (wodd & stone, syluer and golde) whych were amonge them.

Let there be amonge you man or woman, kynned or trybe, whose hert turneth awaye this daye from the Lord oure God, to go and serue the goddes of these nacions: & lest there be amonge you some roote that beareth gall & wormwood, so that when he heareth the wordes of thys ooth, he blesse hym selfe in hys hert, sayinge: * I shall haue peace. I wylle walke in the meanynge of myne owne hert. * (Thou put the * dronken to the thyrtie.) And so the Lorde wylle not consent to be mercyfull vnto hym, but then the wrath of the Lorde and hys gelousye shall smoke agaynst that mā, & all the curses that are wryte in this booke shall lyght vpon hym, and the Lorde shall do out hys name fro vnder heauen, and the Lorde shall separate him vnto euell out of all y tribes of Israel, accordyng vnto all the curses of the appoyntment, that are wrytten in the booke of thys lawe.

So that the generacion to come of poure chyldre, that shall clype vpon after you, and the stranger that shall come from a farre lande shall saye, when they se the plagis of that lande, and the diseases wherewith the Lorde hath smytten it, howe all the lande is burnt vpon with byrmstone & salt, & that it is nethe-

lowen nor beareth, nor any grasse groweth therein, lyke as in the place of the ouerthrowynge of * Sodome, Gomor, Adama, & Zebolim: whych the Lorde ouerthrewe in hys wrath and angre: Euen then shall all nacions saye: * wherfore hath the Lorde done of this facyon vnto thys lande? Whowse feare is thys great wrath? And me shall saye: because they leste the testament of the Lorde God of they fathers, whych he made with them, when he brought them out of the lād of Egypt. For they went, and serued straunge goddes, & worshipped them: Goddes whych they knewe not, and whych had geuen them nought. And the wrath of the Lorde waxed whote agaynst thys lande, to bynne vpon it all the curses that are wryte in this booke. And the Lorde cast them out of they lād in angre, wrath, and greates indignacion, and cast them into a straunge lande, as this daye beareth wytnesse. The secrettes of the Lord oure God * are opened vnto vs, and to oure chyldren for euer, y we maye do all the wordes of thys lawe.

The xxx. Chapter.

The wordes of God is at hande.

When all these wordes are come vpon the, the blessinge and the curse whych I haue set before the, thou shalt turne vnto thine hert, amonge all the nacions whethere the Lorde thy God hath thruste the, and come agayne vnto the Lorde thy God, and hearken vnto his voyce in all these thynges that I commaunde the thys daye: thou & thy chyldren wrythall thynne herte and all thy soule: And the Lord thy God wylle turne thy captiuite, and haue compassyon vpon the, & wylle turne, and set the agayne fro all the nacions, amonge whych the Lorde thy God shall haue scattered the. Though thou wast cast vnto the extreme partes of heauen: euen from thence wylle the Lorde thy God gether the, & fro thence wylle he sett the, & the Lorde thy God wylle bynne the into the lande whych thy fathers possessed, & thou shalt enioye it. And he wylle shewe the kyndnesse, and multiplye the aboue thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God wylle circumsyse thynne hert, and the hert of thy seed, that y mayest loue the Lord thy God wrythall thynne hert, and all thy soule, y thou mayest lyue. And the Lord thy God wylle put all these curses vpon thynne enemies, and on them y hate the, & y persecute the.

But thou shalt turne, and hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde, and do all hys commaundmentes, whych I commaunde the thys daye. And the Lord thy God wylle make the plentiful in all the workes of thynne hande, in the frute of thy bodye, and in the frute of thy catell, and in the frute of thy lande for thy welth. * For the Lorde wylle turne agayne and reioyse ouer the to do the good, as he reioysed ouer thy fathers: If thou hearken onely vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe his commaundmentes and his ordinaunces whych are wrytten in the booke of this lawe, and yf thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God wrythall thynne hert and all thy soule.

* For the commaundment whych I commaunde the this daye, is not separated from the, nethe farre of. It is not in heauen, that thou nedddest to: * (complayne a) saye: who shall go by for vs to heauen, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it? Nethe is it beynde the see: that thou shuldest saye: who shall go ouer the see for vs, and fet it vs, y we maye heare it, and do it? But the worde is very npe vnto the: enē in thy mouth and in thynne hert, that thou do it.

* Beholde I haue set before the this daye lyfe and good, death and euell: for where as I commaunde the thys daye, to loue the Lorde thy God, to walke in hys wayes, and to kepe hys commaundmentes, his ordinaunces, and hys lawes (yf thou so do) shalbe lyue and multiplye, and the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in y lande, whether thou goest to possesse it.

But and yf thynne herte turne awaye, so that y wylle not heare: but shalt goo astraye, and worshyppe straunge goddes, and serue them, I pronounce vnto you also this daye, that ye shall surely perishe, and that ye shall not prolonge poure dayes vpon the lande whether thou passest ouer Iordan, to go and possesse it.

* I call heauen & erth to recorde this daye agaynst you, that I haue set before you lyfe and death, blessinge & cursynge: Therfore chose lyfe, that both thou and thy seed maye lyue, that y mayest loue the Lorde thy God, and be obedient to hys voyce, & cleaue vnto him. For he is thy lyfe, and the length of thy dayes, that thou mayest dwell vpon the erth whych the Lorde swaue vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, to geue them.

The xxxi. Chapter.

Moyses beinge readye to dye ordereth Ioseph to rule the people in hys steade. Thys booke Deuteronomie is wrytten and layde, in the tabernacle besyde the arcke. The Levites are charged to reade it to the people.

And Moyses went and spake these wordes vnto all Israel, and sayd vnto them: I am an hundred and xx. yere olde thys daye, and can nomore go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayde vnto me * thou shalt not goo ouer thys Iordā. The Lorde poure God he wylle go ouer before the, and he wylle destroye these nacions before the, & thou shalt conquere them. * And Ioseph he shall go before the, as the Lorde hath sayde. And Moses called vnto Josua, and sayde vnto hym in the syghte of all Israel: * We stronge & bolde, for thou must go with thys people vnto the lande, which the Lorde hath sworne vnto their fathers, to geue them, & thou shalt geue it them to inheret. And the Lorde he doth go before y: he shall not faile the, neyther forsake the: feare not therfore, nor be discomforted. And Moses wrote this lawe, and deliuered it vnto the preastes the sonnes of Leui (whych bare the arcke of the testament of the Lorde) and vnto all the elders of Israel, & Moses commaunded them, sayyng: * At the poynt of vij. peares in the solempnyte of the tre ycare, euen in the feast of Tabernacles, when all Israel is come to appeare before the Lord thy God, in the place whych he hath chosen: thou shalt reade thys lawe before all Israel in theyr eares. Gether the people together: men, women and chyldren, and the straunger that is wythin thy gates, that they maye heare, and lerne and feare the Lorde your God, and kepe, and obserue all the wordes of thys lawe, and that their chyldren whych knowe nothyng, maye heare, and lerne to feare the Lord your God, as longe as ye lyue in the lande, whether ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: * Beholde thy dayes are come, y thou must dye. Call Josua therfore, and stande ye in the tabernacle of wytnesse, that I maye geue hym a charge. And Moses and Josua went, and stode in the tabernacle of wytnesse: And the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle: euen in the pylle of the cloude. And the * pylle of the cloude stode ouer the doore of the tabernacle. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: beholde, thou shalt slepe wyth thy fathers, and thys people wyll rylle vp, and go a whoyringe after straunge goddes of the lande (whether they go) and will forsake me, and breake the appoyntment, whych I haue made wyth them. And the my wrath wyll waxe whote agaynst them, and I wyll forsake them, and wyll hyde my face from them, & they shalbe consumed. And moche aduersyte and tribulacions shal come vpo them, so that then they wyll saye: Are not these troubles come vpon me, because God is not wyth me? And I also wyll surely hyde awaye my face in that daye, for all the euils sake whych they shall haue wrought, in that they are turned vnto straunge Goddes.

Now therfore write ye thys songe for you, and teache it the chyldren of Israel, and put it in theyr mouthes, that thys songe maye be my wytnesse agaynst the chyldren of Israel. For I wyll bryng the into the lande, (whych I swore vnto theyr fathers) that floweth w mylke and honye, & they shall eate, and fyll them selues, and waxe fatt, and turne vnto straunge goddes, and serue them, and blasphemie me, and breake my couenaunt. And then when moche myschefe and tribulacion is come vpon the, thys songe shall answer them, as a wytnesse. For it shall not be forgotten out of the mouthes of theyr seed: for I knowe theyr imaginacion, whych they goo about euē now, before I haue broughte the into the lande whych I swore. * Moses therfore wrote thys songe the same reason, and taught it the chyldren of Israel. And he gaue Josua the sonne of Nun a charge, and sayd: * be bolde, & stronge, for thou shalt bryng the chyldren of Israel into the lande, whych I swore vnto them, and I wyll be with the.

And when Moses had made an ende of wyrtynge out of the wordes of this lawe in a booke vnto the ende of them, Moses commaunded the Leuites, whych bare the arke of the testament of the Lorde, sayyng: take ye the booke of thys lawe, & put it in the syde of the arke of the testament of the Lorde your God, y it maye be there for a wytnesse agayst the: for I knowe thy stuburnesse * and thy styffe necke: whyle I am yet a lyue with you this daye, ye haue bene disobedient vnto the Lorde: and howe moche more after my death?

Gather vnto me all the elders of youre trybes, & your officers, that I maye speake these wordes in theyr eares, and call heauen, and erth to recorde agaynst them. For I am sure that after my death, ye wyll vterly be corrupte, and turne from the waye whych I haue commaunded you, and tribulacion wyll come vpon you in the later dayes, because ye shall haue wrought wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde, to prouoke hym thowow the workes of your handes. And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel the wordes of thys songe, vntill he had ended them.

When the most highest, deuyned the nacys, and whan he separated the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nacys, fast by the multitude of the chyldren of Israel.

For the Lordes parte is hys folke, and Jacob is the porcion of hys inheritaunce.

He founde him in a deserte lande, in a voyde grounde, & in a royringe wyldernesse. He led hym aboute, he gaue hym vnderstandinge, and kepte him as the apple of his eye.

As an egle y stereth vp her nest and stoueth ouer her pouge, & stretcheth out hir winges, so doth he take them vp, & beareth the on his shoulers. The Lorde alone was hys guyde, & there was no straunge God w him.

He caried him vp to an hye lande, that he myght eate the increase of the felde, * And he fedd him wyth honye out of the rocke, and with oyle out of the most harde stone. Wyth butter of kyne, & mylke of the shepe, wyth fat of the lambes and of fat rammes and he goates, with y fat of most plectous wheate: and that thou myghtest drynke & the most pure bloude of the grape.

But he that shulde haue bene vpryght, whan he waxed fatt, spurned with his helc.

Thou art well fedd, y art growen thicke: thou art euen laden with fatnesse.

And he sayde: I wyll hyde my face from them, & will se what their ende shall be. For they are a very frowarde generaciō, chyldren in whom is no fayth. They haue angred me wyth that whych is no God, and prouoked me wyth their vanyties. * And I also wyll prouoke them with those whych are no people, I wyll anger them wyth a folye

They shalbe burnt with hunger, and consumed w heate, and with bytter destruction: * I wyll also sende the teeth of beastes vpo them, with the furiosnes of serpentes in the dust. Without forth, shall y swerde robbe the of their chyldren: and within in the chamber, feare: both younge men and younge women, and the suckelinges wyth the men of gray heades. I haue sayde: I will skater them abroad, and make the remembraunce of them to cease from amonge men. Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemye, lest their aduersaries shulde vterly wythdawe the selues, and lest they shulde saye: oure hye hande hath done all thys, and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacys without forcast, nether is there any vnderstandinge in them: that they were wyle, and vnderstode thys, that they wolde consyder their later ende.

Howe shulde one chace a thousande, and two put ten thousande to flyghte: excepte their maker had solde them, and excepte the Lorde had shutt them vp?

For their God is not as oure God: oure enemyes also them selues are iudges.

For their vyne is of the vyngarde of Sodome, and of the felde of Gomorra: they grapes are grapes of gall, and their clusters be bytter.

Their vyne is the popson of draggons, & the cruell gall of aspes. Is not thys layde in store with me, & sealed vp amonge my treasures? * Vengeance is myne, and I wyll rewarde: their fete shall slyde in due tyme. For the daye of their destruction is at hande, and the thynges that shall come vpon the, make haste.

* For the Lorde shall iudge hys people, and haue compassyon on hys seruautes: whan he seyth that their power is gone, and that they be in a maner shutt vp, or brought to naught and forsaken.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Moses praynge blessed all the trybes of Israel.

* Exo. 34. a. This is the blessing wherewith Moses the man of God blessed the chyldren of Israel before hys death, and sayde: * The Lorde came from Sinai and he wed hys beames: from Seir vnto them, and appeared from mount Pharan, and he came wyth thousandes of sayntes, and in his ryghte hande a lawe of fyre for the. And he loued the people. * All hys sayntes also are in thy handes. They were smyttē to go after thy fete, and to receaue of thy wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe to be an inheritauce of the cōgregacyon of Jacob. And he was in Israel kynge whē the heades of the people, and p trybes of Israel were gathered together.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Moses dyeth, Israel wepeth, Josua succeedeth in Moses roume.

* Exo. 34. c. And * Moses went frō the playne of Moab vp into mount Nebo and vnto the toppē of * the hyll that is ouer agaynst Jericho. And the Lorde shewed hym all the lande of Gilead, euen vnto Dan, and all Nephthali and the lande of Ephraim & Manasse, & all the lande of Iuda: euen vnto the vtmost see, and the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho p eptie of paulmetrees, euen vnto zoar. * And the Lorde sayde vnto hym. * Thys is the lande whych I sware vnto Abraham, Issachar and Jacob sayinge: I wyll geue it vnto thy seed. I haue cauled the also to se it wyth thynce eyes, * but thou shalt not goo ouer thither.

So Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde dyed there in the lande of Moab accordyng to the worde of p Lorde. And he buryed him in a valey in the lade of Moab ouer agaynst the house of Deor, but no man knoweth of his sepulchre vnto this dape. Moses was an hundred and twety yere olde when he dyed: hys eye was not dimme, nor hys naturall colour abated. And p chyldren of Israel wepte for Mo. * In p playne of Moab thytwe dapes. And p dayes of wepyng & mourninge for Moses were ended.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was full of the spyte of wyldom: * for Moses had put hys handes vpon hym. And the chyldren of Israel were obedient vnto hym, and drd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And there arose not a prophet sence in Israel lyke vnto Moses, whom the Lorde knewe face to face, accordyng vnto all the myracles and wonders which the Lorde sent him to do in p lade of Egypte, vnto Pharae & all his seruautes & before all his lade: & accordyng to all that myghtie hande, & all p greate visions, which Moses shewed in the syght of all Israel.

The booke of Josua

Whom the hebrues call Ichosua.

The fyrst Chapter.

The Lorde courageth Josua to invade the lande of promysse, and commaundeth him continually to reade Deuteronomie.

After the death of Moyses the seruaunt of the Lorde, it happened also that the Lorde spake vnto Josua the sonne of Nun Moyses minister saying: Moyses my seruaunt is deed. Now therfore vp & goo ouer Jordan: thou & all this people, vnto the lande the whiche I geue vnto the children of Israel. * All the places that the sooles of youre fete shall treade vpon, haue I geuen you, as I sayde vnto Moyses: from the wilderness & this Libanon vnto the greete ryuer Euphrates: all the lande of the heethites, euen vnto the great see towarde the going downe of the sonne, shall be youre coaste. There shall not a man be able to withstande the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was with Moyses, so will I be with thee: and will not fayll the, nor forsake the. * Be strong therfore and bolde: for vnto this people shalt thou deuyde the lande which I swaue vnto their fathers to geue them. Onely be thou strong & as bolde as thou canst, that thou mayest obserue & do according to all the lawe, which Moyses my seruaunt commaunded the. * Courne therfrom nether to the right hand, nor to the lefte: that thou mayest do wysely in all thou takest in hande: * let not the booke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth: But recorde therein daye & night & thou mayest obserue, & do according to all that is writen therein. For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, and then thou shalt do wysely. Haue not I commaunded the, that thou shouldest be strong & hardye & not feare nether be faynt harted? For the Lorde thy God am with thee, whether soeuer thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, saying: God thoroowe the myddes of the hoste, & commaunde the people, saying: prepare you vitayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to goo in &

enioye the lande which the Lorde youre God geueth you, to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, & half the tribe of Manasses spake Josua saying: * Remember the worde, which Moyses the seruaunt of the Lorde comaunded you, saying: the Lorde youre God hath geuen you rest, & hath geuen you this land. Your wyues, your children, and your catell shall remayne in the lande which Moyses gaue you on this syde Jordan: But ye shall go before your brethren armed, all ye men of warre, and helpe them vntill the Lorde haue geue your brethren rest, as he hath geuen you, & vntill they also haue obtayned the lande, which the Lorde youre God geueth them. And they shall ye retourne vnto the lande of youre possession & enioye it, which lande Moyses the Lordes seruaunt gaue you on this syde Jordan towarde the sonne rysynge. And they answered Josua saying: * All that thou hast comaunded vs, we will do, and whether soeuer thou sendest vs, we will go. According as we obeyed Moyses in all thynges, so will we obeye thee: onely the Lorde thy God be with thee as he was with Moyses. And whosoever he be that doth disobeye thy mouth, and will not hearken vnto thy wordes in all that thou commaundest him, let him dye: Onely be strong and of good courage.

The ii. Chapter.

Josua sendeth spies to Jericho, which were hye of Rahab.

And Josua the sonne of Nun sent out of Settim two men to spye secretly, saying: go & see the lande and also Jericho. And they went, and came into a harlotes house, named Rahab, & lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Jericho, and sayd: Beholde, there came men in hyther to nyght, of the children of Israel, to spye out the countrey. And the kynge of Jericho sent vnto Rahab saying: bringe forth the men that are come to the, & which are entred into thyne house: for they be come to searche out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men & hid them. And sayde thus: in dede there came men vnto me, but I wist not whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shuttynge of the gate when it was darcke, the men went out, whether the men went I wot not: folowe ye after them quykly, & ye shall ouer take them. But she brought them vp to the rooffe of the house, and hid them wth the stalckes of flaxe, which she had laynge abroad vpon the rooffe. And the men of the cytye pursued after them, the waye to Jordan, euen vnto the ferie, and as sone as they which pursued after them were gone out, they shutt the gate.

And os

And or euer they were a slepe, she came vnto them vpon þe rooffe, & sayde vnto the men: I knowe, þe the Lorde hathe geuen you the lade * for the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, & the inhabitants of the land faynt at the presence of you. For we haue heard, how þe Lorde * dyed vpon þe water of the reddy see before you when you came out of Egypte, & what you dyd vnto þe two kynges of the Amozites, that were on the other side Jordan * Sehon, & Og, whom ye vtterlyc destroyed. And as sone as we had heard these thynges * (we were sore afraied, &) oure herres dyd faite. And there remayned no more courage in any man at the presence of you. For the Lorde poure God, he is þe God in heauen aboue, & on the erth benethe.

Now therfore I pray you I sweare vnto me * by the Lorde, þas I haue shewed you mercie, ye shall also shewe mercie vnto my fathers house, & geue me a true token. And that ye shall saue alpye, bothe my father, & my mother, my brethzen, & my systers, and all that they haue. And that ye shall deliuer oure soules from death.

And the men answered her: oure liues for you to dye, yf ye vtter not this oure bynes. And when þe Lorde hathe geuen vs the lade, * we will deale mercifully & truly with the. And then she lett them downe by a coarde * thozow a window: for her house was by the towne wall. And she sayd vnto them: gett you into the mountayne, lest the pursuers mete you, & hyde poure selues there thre dayes, vntill the pursuers be returned and then shall ye goo poure awne waye.

And the men sayde vnto her: we will be blamelesse of this thy othe, which thou hast made vs sweare. Beholde, when we come into þe lade, þe shalt bynde this purple coarde in the widow, which þe lattest vs downe bye. And thou shalt bring thy father, & thy mother, thy brethzen, and all thy fathers houthold, euen into thy house. And then whosoever doth go out at the doores of thy house, into the street, & his bloude shall be vpon his awne head, & we wilbe giltylesse. And whosoever shall be with the i the house, his bloude shall be on oure heade, yf any mannes hāde touche him: And yf thou vtter these oure wordes, we wilbe quyte of thy othe, which thou hast made vs sweare. And she sayde: accordige vnto poure wordes, so be it: and she sent them awaye to departe. And she bounde the purple coarde in the window.

And they departed, and came into þe mountayne, and there abode thre dayes, vntill the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers sought them thozowe out all þe waye but founde them not. And the two men returned, & descended from the mountayne, and passed ouer, and came to Joshua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that had chaunced them. And they sayd vnto Joshua: the Lorde truly hathe deliuered into oure handes all þe lade, and all the inhabitants of the contrey faynte at the presence of vs.

The.iii. Chapter.

Joshua with the people passe ouer Jordan.

AND Joshua rose erlye: and they removed from Settim, & came to Jordā, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there, before they went ouer. And after thre dayes it fortuneth, that the officers wēt thozow out the hoste, and comaunded the people sayinge: when ye se þe arcke of the testament of the Lorde poure God, & the preastes that are Leuites bearing it: ye shall departe from poure place, & go after it. So yet that there shall be a space betwene you & it, aboute a two thousande cubites by measure. And ye shal not come nye vnto it, that ye maye knowe the waye, by which ye must go: for ye haue not gone this waye in tymes past * (ye beware, that ye ap- proche not nye vnto the arke) And Joshua sayd vnto the people: * Sanctifie poure selues, for to morowe the Lorde shall do wonders amonge you.

And Joshua spake vnto the preastes, saying: Take vp the arcke of þe couenaunt: & go before the people. And they toke vp the arcke of the testamēt, and went before the people.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Joshua: this daye will I begynne to magnifie the, in the syght of all Israel, & they maye knowe how that * as I was with Moses so wyll I be with the. And thou shalt commaunde the preastes that beare the arcke of the couenaunt sayinge: when ye are come to the edge of the waters of Jordan, ye shall stāde still in it.

And Joshua sayde vnto þe children of Israel: come hither, & heare the wordes of the Lorde poure God. And Joshua sayde, herbye ye shall knowe that the liuyng God is amonge you, & that he will wythout fayle cast out before you, þe Cananites, & the Hethites, þe Heuites, þe Pherezites, þe Gergesites, þe Amozites, & þe Jebusites. Beholde, the arcke of þe apointmēt of þe Lorde of all þe worlde goeth before you into Jordā. Now therfore take from amonge you twelue mē out of þe tribes of Israel, out of euery tribe a man. And as sone as þe sooles of þe fete of þe preastes (þe beare the arcke of the Lorde the Gouernour of all the worlde) tread in the waters of Jordan, the waters of Jordan * (that are beneth, shall come downe, &) shall be diuided: & the waters that come from aboue, shall stāde shall stāde still vpon an heape. And it fortuneth, that when the people were departed fro their tētes to goo ouer Jordā, the preastes bearyng * þe arcke of the apointment, wēt before the people. And as sone as they that bare þe arcke came vnto Jordā, & the fete of the preastes that bare þe arcke were dipped in the byrm of þe water * (for Jordan vseth to fill all his backes all the tyme of haruest) the waters also that came downe fro aboue, did ryle vp vpon an heape * (and appeared as great as a mountayne,) and departed farre fro Adam, & was besyde zarthan, and the waters that were beneth to ward the see of þe wilderness, fell awaye & departed into the salt see, and the people * went ryght ouer agaynst Jericho, and the preastes bare the arcke of the apointmēt of the Lorde, stode dnye within Jordāne ready prepared, & all the Israelites went ouer thozow the dnye, vntill all the people were gone cleane ouer thozow Jordan,

The.iiii. Chapter.

Joshua setteth vp twelue stones in Jordan.

AND it fortuneth, that when the people were all gone ouer Jordan, the Lorde spake vnto Joshua, sayinge: Take you twelue men out of the people, out of euery trybe a man. And commaunde you them, sayinge: take you hence out of the myddes of Jordan (euen out of the place where the preastes stode in a redynes) twelue * (of the most hardest) stones, which ye shall take awaye with you, and leaue them in þe place, where you shal lodge this night. And Joshua called the twelue men, which he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of euery trybe a man, and Joshua sayde vnto them: gett you before the arcke of the Lorde poure God, euen thozow the myddes of Jordā * and take vp euery man of you a stone vpon his shulder, according vnto the nombre of the trybes of the children of Israel, that this maye be a signe amonge you. That when poure childre aske thier fathers in tyme to come, sayige: what meane these stones with you? Ye maye answer them how that þe waters of Jordan deuyded at the presence of the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde. For when it went ouer Jordan, þe waters of Jordan deuided: And these stones are become a memoriaill vnto the children of Israel for euer.

And the children of Israel byd euen so as Joshua commaunded, and toke vp * twelue stones out of the myddes of Jordan, as the Lorde sayde vnto Joshua, accordynge to þe nōbre of þe tribes of the children of Israel, & carped them awaye with them vnto the place where they lodged, & layed the downe there. And Joshua set vp twelue stones also in the myddes of Jordan, in the place where the fete of the preastes which bare the arcke of the testament, stode.

And there haue they continued vnto this daye. For the preastes which bare þe arcke stode in the myddes of Jordan, vntill all was finished that the Lorde comaunded Joshua to saye vnto the people, accordig to all that Moses charged Joshua. And þe people halted, and wēt ouer. It fortuneth also, that when all the people were cleane ouer, þe arcke of þe Lorde went ouer also, & þe preastes before the people. * And the childre of Ruben, & the children of Gad, & halfe the tribe of Manasses went before the children of Israel armed, as Moses charged the. Eue fourty thousande prepared for warre, wēt before the Lorde vnto battell, thozow the playne of Jericho. * That daye the Lorde magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel, and they feared * him, as they feared Moses all dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Joshua, sayinge: comaunde the preastes that beare the arcke of witnesse, to come vp out of Jordan. Joshua therfore comaunded þe preastes, sayinge: Come ye vp out of Jordan, and when the preastes bare the arcke of the apointmēt of the Lorde were come vp out of the myddes of Jordan, and as sone as the soales of the preastes fete were set on the dnye lād, þe waters of Jordan returned agayne vnto thier place, & went ouer all thier banckes, as they byd before. And the people came vp out of Jordan the tenth daye of the fyrst moneth, and pitched in Gilgal, euen in the east border of the cyte Jericho.

And the twelue stones which they toke out of Jordan, did Joshua pitche in Gilgal. And he spake vnto the children of Israel, sayinge: * Yf poure childre aske thier fathers in tyme to come, & saye: what meane these stones? ye shal shewe poure childre, & saye: Israel came ouer this Jordan on dnye lād. For the Lorde poure God dyed vpon the water of Jordan before you, vntill ye were gone ouer, as þe Lorde poure God byd þe red see * which he dyed vpon before vs, tyll we were gone ouer: that all the people of the worlde maye knowe þe hāde of þe Lorde, how myghtie it is, and that ye might feare the Lorde poure God for euer.

The.v. Chapter.

The Cananites are afraied.

AND it fortuneth þe when all þe kynges of þe Amozites which are beyond Jordan west warde, & all þe kynges of the Cananites which were by the see, heard, how the Lorde had dyed vpon the waters of Jordan before the childre of Israel, vntill they wer gone ouer * they herres fainted for feare. And ther was no spere in them any moare, for the presence of the children of Israel.

That same tyme þe Lorde sayde vnto Josua: * Make the sharpe knyues (of stone) & goo to agayne and circumsise the children of Israel þe seonde tyme. And Josua made him sharpe knyues (of stone) & circumsised the children of Israel in the place called þe hille of þe fores hymes. And this is þe cause why Josua circumsised all the people þe came out of Egypte: Namely such as were males because þe all the men of warre, died in the wilderness by þe waye, after they came out of Egypte. For all the people þe came out were circumsised. But all þe people that were borne in the wilderness by the waye after they came out of Egypte, were not circumsised. For the children of Israel walked fourty yeres in the wilderness, tyll all þe people of the men of warre þe came out of Egypte were consumed, because they hardened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde. Wherefore the Lorde sware, that he wolde not geue them the land * which the Lorde sware vnto theyr fathers, that he wolde geue vs, euen a lande that floweth wyth milke & honye. And the children who he sett vp in their stead: the Josua circumsised: for they were uncircumsised, because they circumsised them not by the waye. And when they had circumsised all the people, they abode styll together in the hoste till they were whole. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: this dape I haue taken awaye þe name of Egypte fro you: wherefore the name of the same place is called Gilgal vnto this dape. And þe children of Israel abode in Gilgal * and helde the feast of passeouer the fourtene dape of þe moneth at enē in the playne of Jerico. And they did eat of þe corne of þe land on the morowe after passeouer swete cakes & parched corne in þe selfe same dape. For the * Manna ceased on the morowe, after they had begone to eat of þe corne of the lande, neher had the children of Israel Manna any moare, but dyd eat of the corne of the lande of Canaan that yere. And it fortuneth that when Josua was nyte to Jericho, he lytte vp his eyes & looked: and behold, there stode a man agaynst him, haupng a swerde drawen in his hāde. And Josua wēt vnto him, and sayde vnto him: arte thou on oure syde oz on oure aduersaries. And he sayde, Naye, but as a capayne of the hoste of the lord am I now come. And Josua fell on his face to the erth, and dyd reuerence, & sayde vnto hym, what sayth my Lorde vnto hys seruaunt? And þe capayne of the Lordes hoste sayde vnto Josua: * do thy good of thy fote, for the place wheron thou stādest, is holy. And Josua did so.

The vi. Chapter.

The walles of Jericho fall, and it is destroyed.

And Jericho was shut vp, & locked because of þe childre of Israel, neher myght anye man go out oz in. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: beholde, I haue geuen into thyne hand Jericho and þe hynges and the strong men of warre. And ye shall compass the cite, all ye that be men of warre, & go rōnde aboute it once and so shall you do syxe dayes. And seven preastes shall beare before the Arke, seven trōpettes of rāmes hornes * that be dyed in the jubile. And the seuenth dape, ye shall compass the cite seven tymes, and the preastes shall blowe with the trōpettes. And when they make a longe blaste wyth the rāmes hōrne, & ye heare the sōunde of the hōrne, all the people shall shoute w a great shoute. And the wall of þe cite shall fall doune, and the people shall ascende vp, euery man streight before him. And Josua the sonne of Num, called the preastes, and sayde vnto them: take vp the arke of the appoyntement, & lett seven preastes beare seven trōpettes of rāmes hornes before the arke of the Lorde. And he sayde vnto the people, go and compass the cite: and lett him þe is harnessed, go before the arke of the Lorde. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seven preastes bare the seven trōpettes of rāmes hornes, and went forth before the arke of the Lorde, & blew with the trōpettes, and the arke of the conuait of the Lorde folowed the. And all the men of armes went before the preastes, that blew with the trōpettes, and the comen people came after the arke: and the preastes that went blew with trōpettes. And Josua comaunded the people sayinge: Ye shall not shoute, ner make any noyse w youre voyce, neher shall any worde procede out of youre mōthe, vntill þe dape I bid you shoute, then shall ye shoute. And so þe arke of the Lord compassed the cite, and went aboute it once: and they retourned into the hoste, and lodged there. And Josua rose erly in the mornynge, and the preastes toke vp þe arke of the Lorde, and seven preastes bare seven trōpettes of rāmes hornes, & went before the arke of the Lorde, and blew with the trōpettes. And all the men of armes went before them, but the comen people came after the arke of the Lorde, which wēt before with the blowing of the trōpettes. And the seonde dape they compassed the cite once, & retourned agayne into the hoste, & so they dyd syxe dayes. And when the seuenth dape came, they rose erly: euen with the dawninge of þe dape, and compassed the cite after the same manner seven tymes: only that dape they compassed the cite seven tymes.

And at the seuenth tyme, when þe preastes blew with the trōpettes, Josua sayd vnto þe people: shoute, for þe Lorde hath geuen you þe cite. And the cite shall be dāned bothe it and all that are therein, vnto the Lorde: onlye Rahab the harlot shall lyue, and all that are with her in the house, because she hidde the messengers that we sent. And in anywise be ye ware of the excommunicate thynges, lest ye make poure selues excommunicate, & take of the excommunicate thynges, and make þe hoste of Israel excommunicate and trouble it. But all þe siluer, golde, vessels of brasle, & yron shall be consecrate vnto the Lorde, & shall come into his treasure. And the people shouted, and blew wyth trōpettes. And when the people heard þe sōunde of the trōpe, they shouted w a great shoute: & the wall fell doune, so þe people wēt vp into þe cite, euery man streight before him, & toke þe cite. And they utterly destroyed all þe was in the cite, bothe man and woman, younge and olde, ore, wepe & alle, with the edge of the swerde. Then Josua sayde vnto the two mē that had spyed out þe contrey: * goo into þe harlottes house, and bringe out thence the woman, and all that she hath, * as ye sware to her. And the younge men that were spyes, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father and mother and her brethren, and all þe had. And they brought out all her kered, & put them without the hoste of Israel. And they burnt the cite with fire, and all that was therein. Only the siluer and þe golde, the vessels of brasle and yron, they put vnto þe treasure of the house of þe Lord. * And Josua saued Rahab the harlott, & her fathers housholde, and all that she had, & she dwelt in Israel, euen vnto this dape because she hidde the messengers, which Josua sent to spye out Jericho. And Josua sware at that tyme, sayinge: cursed be the man before the Lorde, that riseth vp, & buildeth this cite Jericho: he shall laye the foundation * in his eldest sonne, and in his yongest sonne shall he sett vp the gates of it. And so the Lord was w Josua, and his fame was noyed thowowe out all landes.

The vii. Chapter.

That is spred out. Acan is stoned.

At pet þe children of Israel trespassed in the * excommunicate thynges: And * Acan the sonne of Carmy, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh of the tribe of Judah, toke of the excommunicate thynges. And the wrath of the Lorde waxed whote agaynst the children of Israel. And Josua sent mē from Jericho to Hai, which is helyde Bethauen, on the east syde of Bethel, & spake vnto them, sayinge: gett you vp, & beue the countrey. And the men went vp, & spyed out Hai. And retourned to Josua, and sayde vnto him, lett not all the people go vp, but let as it were a two oz thre thousande men goo vp, and smyte Hai and make not all the people to labour thether, for they are but fewe. And so there went vp thether of þe people, aboute a thre thousande men, & they fledde before the men of Hai. And the men of Hai smote of them vpo a thyrtye and sixe men: for they chated them fro before þe gate euen vnto Sebarim, & smote them in the goyng doune. Wherefore þe hertes of þe people * for feare melted awaye like water. And Josua rent his clothes, and fell to the erth vpon his face before þe arke of the Lorde vntill the euen tyde, he and the elders of Israel, & put erth vpon their heddes. And Josua sayde * Alas, O Lorde God, wherefore hast þe brought thys people ouer Jordan, to diluer vs into the hande of the Amorites, and to destroye vs: wold to God we had bene content, & dwelt on the other syde Jordan. Oh Lorde what shall I saye, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemyes: Surely the Cananites, and all þe inhabitants of þe lande shall heare of it, & shall conspire agaynst vs, & destroye the name of vs out of the worlde. And what wilt thou do vnto thy myghtie name? And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua, gett þe vp, wherefore lpest thou thus vpo thy face? Israel hath synned, & they haue transgressed myne appoyntement, which I comaunded them: for they haue taken of the excommunicate thynges, and haue stolen, and dissembled, & put them vnto their awne stuffe. And therefore is it that þe children of Israel cannot stande before their enemyes, but shall turne their backs before their enemyes because they be excommunicate. Neher will I be w you any moare, excepte ye rote out þe excommunicate fro amonge you. * Up therfore, & sanctifie the people, and saye: sanctifie poure selues agaynst the morowe: for so sayd þe Lord God of Israel. There is a damned thyng amonge you (O Israel) & therfore ye cannot stande agaynst poure enemyes, vntill ye haue put þe damned thyng from amonge you. To morowe mornig therfore ye shall be brought according to poure tribes. And þe tribe which the Lord taketh, shall come accordig to þe knyres therof. And þe knyred which the Lord shall fyde gyltic, shall come by householders. And þe household which þe Lord shall fynde faulce, shall come man by man. And he þe is foude in þe excommunicacion, shall be burnt with fire, he and all that he hath, because he hath transgressed the couenaunt of the Lord and wrought folpe in Israell.

And so Josua rose vperly in the moynig and brought Israell by their tribes: and þe tribe of Juda was caught. And he brought the kynredes of Juda, and toke the kynred of þe zarchites. And he brought the kynred of the zarchites, man, by man, & zabdi was caught. And he brought his houtholde mā by man, and Acan the sonne of Carny, the sonne of zabdi, the sonne of zareth in the tribe of Juda was caught.

D And Josua sayde vnto Acan: my sone, I beseeche the geue glorie to þe Lord God of Israell, & geue hi praise, & shewe me what thou hast done, hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua, & sayde: of a truthe I haue sinned agaynst the Lord God of Israell, & thus & thus haue I done. I saue among the spoule a goodlye Babylonische garment, & two hundred sicles of siluer, & a tonge of golde of fyftie sicles weyghte, and I coucted them, & toke them. And beholde, they lye hydde in the erthe in my tente and the siluer is ther vnder.

And so Josua sent messengers: which whā they raine vnto his tēt, beholde, they were hid in his tent, and the syluer there vnder. Therfore they toke the out of the myddest of his tent, and brought them vnto Josua, and vnto all the chyldre of Israell, & layed them out before the Lord.

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of zarah, and the siluer, & the garment, and the tōge of golde, and his sonnes & his daughters, his oren, & his altes, his shepe, & his tent, & all that he had: and all Israell wyth hym brought them vnto the valepe of Acoz.

And Josua sayde: In as moche as thou haste troubled vs, the Lord shall trouble þe this daye. And all Israell stoned him with stones, and burned the with fire, and ouerwhelmed them with stones. And they cast vpo him a great heape of stones vnto this daye. And so the Lord turned from the wrath of his indignacion. And the name of the place is called þe valepe of Acoz vnto this daye.

The. viii. Chapter.

The crege and wymping of Hai the kyng therof is haged. Josua setteth vp an altare. He blesteth the people.

Ad the Lord sayde vnto Josua: * feare not, neither be thou saynt harted. Take all þe men of warre wyth the and vp, and gett the to Hai, Beholde, I haue geuen into thy hande, the kyng of Hai, and his people, hys cytie and hys lande.

And thou shalt do to Hai & her kyng, as thou dydest vnto * Jericho and her kyng, neuerthelesse þe spoule and * catell therof, shall ye take vnto poure selues: And laye a watch vnto the towne, on the backsyde therof.

And so Josua arose, and all the men of warre, to go vp agaynst Hai. And Josua chose oute thyrtye thousande stronge men of warre, & sent the awaye by nyght. And he commaunded them, sayinge: beholde, ye shall lye awaye vnto þe towne on the backsyde therof. Go not very farre from þe cytie, but be all readye. And I and all þe people þare with me, will approche vnto the cytie. And when they come out agaynst vs, as they did at the first tyme the will we flee before the. For they will come oute after vs & we will bring them out of the cytie. For they will saye: they flee before vs, as at þe first tyme: & we will flee before the. In the meane tyme shall ye ryle vp fro lyng awaye, & destroye þe cytie: For þe Lord poure God will deliuer it into poure hāde. And whan ye haue taken þe cytie, ye shall set it on fire. Accordinge to the commaundement of the Lord shal ye do: beholde, I haue charged you. Josua therfore sent the forth, & they went to lye awaye, & abode betwene Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of the cite of Hai. But Josua lodged that nyght amōge the people. And Josua rose vperly in the moynynge, and nombred the people, & wēt vp, he & the elders of Israel before the people agaynst Hai. And all the men of warre that were with him, wēt vp and dyne nye, and came agaynst the cytie, and pitched on the north syde of Hai, & there was a valepe betwene them and Hai. And he toke vpo a fync thousande men, and put them to lye awaye, betwene Bethel & Hai, on þe westsyde of þe cytie. And they put þe people (eue all the golte that were on the northsyde) agaynst the cytie, and the lpers awaye on the west. And Josua walked þe same nyght in the myddes of the valepe.

And it fortunēd, þe when the kyng of Hai sawe it they hasted and rose vperly, and the men of the cytie went oute agaynst Israell to battell, he & all his people, at a tyme apoynted, euen before the playne, and wist not that there were lpers awaye on the backsyde of the cytie.

And Josua & all Israel sayned them selues to be put to the worse before the, & fled toward the wilderness. And all þe people of þe towne were called together, to folowe after them. And they folowed after Josua & were drawe a waye from the cytie: And there was not a man left in Hai & in Bethel, þe wēt not out after Israell. And they left the cytie open, & folowed after Israell.

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: stretch out þe spere þe is in thine hād, toward Hai, for I will geue it into thy hād. And Josua stretched stretched out the spere þe he had in his hād, toward the cite. And þe lpers awaye rose quicklye oute of their place, & ranne assone as Josua had stretched oute his hande, and they entred into the cite and toke it, & hasted, & sett the cite on fire. And when þe men of Hai looked backe after them, they sawe þe smoke of the cite assende vp to heauē. And they had no lpsure to flee ether thys waye or þe, & the people þe fledd to þe wyldernesse, turned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

E And when Josua & all Israel sawe that the lpers awaye had take the cite, & that the smoke of it ascēded, they turned agayne and layed on the men of Hai. And the other pssued oute of the cite agaynst them. And so were they in þe myddes of Israel: for these were on the one syde of them, & the reste on the other syde. * And they layed vpo them, so þe they lett none of the scape, nor remayne. And the kyng of Hai they toke alpye, & brought hym to Josua. And when Israell had made an ende of slaying all the enhabiters of Hai in the felde of the wyldernesse, where they chaled them, & when they were all fallen on the edge of the swerde, vntyll they were wasted, all the Israelites returned vnto Hai, & smote it in the edge of the swerde. And all that fell that daye, both of men & women, were twelue thousande, euen all the men of Hai.

For Josua plucked not hys hande backe agayne, which he stretched oute vpo þe spere, vntyll he had vtterlye destroyed all þe enhabitours of Hai. * Only the catell and the spoule of þe cytie, Israel toke vnto them selues, accordinge vnto the worde of þe Lord, which he commaunded Josua. And Josua sett Hai on fyre, and made it an heape for euer, and a wyldernesse, euen vnto thys daye. And þe kyng of Hai he haged on tree, vntyll euen. And assone as the sonne was downe, Josua commaunded * þe they shulde take the carthas doune of the tree, and caste it at the enterig of the gate of the cite, and * laye thereon a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

Then Josua * bylt an altare vnto the Lord God of Israell, in mount Eball, as Moyses the seruaut of the Lord commaunded the chyldre of Israel, and as it is writen in the * boke of the lawe of Moyses: an altare of whole stones, & ouer which no man hath lyft any tole of yron. And they sacrificed thereon burnt sacrifices vnto the Lord, and offered peace offrynges. And he wrote there vpo the stones, a rehearsall of the lawe of Moyses, and wrote it in the presence of the chyldren of Israel.

E And all Israell and the elders therof, and their officers & Judges stode, parte on this syde the arcke, & parte on that syde, before the preastes, & were Leuites, which bare the arcke of the apyntement of the Lord: as well the straunger, as they þe were borne amonge the: halfe on them on þe forefronte of the mounte Garizim, and halfe of them on the forefronte of mount Eball: as Moyses the seruaut of the Lord had commaunded before, that they shulde blesse þe people Israell. Afterward he red all the wordes of the lawe, the blessings and cursynges, accordinge to all that is wyrtē in the boke of the lawe: And there was not one worde of all that Moyses commaunded, which Josua read not before all the cōgregacyon of Israell: The women and chyldre, (and the straungers that were come) stōdyng amonge them.

The. ix. Chapter.

The Gibeonites obtayne grace of Josua.

Ad it fortunēd that whā all the kynges that dwell on thys syde Jordan in the hilles and valeys, and alonge by all the coastes of the great see, ouer agaynst Libanon (namely the Hethites, & Amozites, the Cananites, the Phereites, the Heuites, and the Jebusites) herd therof, they gathered them selues together, to fyght agaynst Josua and agaynst Israell with one accorde.

* And the enhabitours of Gibeon heard what Josua had done vnto Jericho, and to Hai: And they did worke wylylye, & went, and made them selues ambasadours, and toke * (them vitayles, and) olde sackes vpo their asses, and wyne bottelles olde, and rēt and woyn, and olde clouted shoes vpo their feete, and their raynēt was olde, and all their prouysion of bread was dyed vp, and hored. And they came vnto Josua into the hoste, to Gilgall, and sayde vnto him and vnto all the men of Israel: we be come from a farre contreye, and now make ye agreement with vs. And the men of Israel sayde vnto the Heuite: paradventure thou dwellest amōge vs, and then howe can I make peace wyth the?

And they sayde vnto Josua: we are thy seruantes. And Josua sayde vnto them agayne: what are ye? and whence come ye? They answered him: fro a verpe farre contreye thy seruantes are come, for the name of the Lord thy God: for we haue heard þe fame * (of the power) of him, and all that he did in Egypte, and all that he dyd to the two * kynges of the Amozites þe were beyonde Jordan, Sehon kyng of Meson, and Og kyng of Basan, which was at Ashtaroth. Therfore oure elders and all the enhabitours of oure cōtreys spake to vs, sayinge: take vitayles & pou to serue by þe waye, & go mete them, and saye vnto them: we are poure seruantes. And now make ye a cou-maunt of peace with vs. Chys oure foode of bread, we take with vs oute of oure houses whokte, the dape we departed to come vnto you. And now behold, it is dyed vp, and bo red. And these bottles of wyne which we filled, were newe: and se, they be rent. And these oure garmentes and shooes are worne for oltnesse, by the reason of the exceedyng long Iourneye.

C And the men toke of their vitayles, and collected not with the mouth of the Lord. And Josua made peace wpyth them, and made a conenat with the, that they shulde be suffred to lyue: & the Lordes of the congregacyon swore vnto them. And it fortuned, p the dapes after they had made peace wpyth the, they heard that they were their neybouris, & p they dwelte amonge them. And the chyldre of Israel toke their Iourney, and came vnto their cyties the thyrde dape: and their cyties were Gibeon, & Caphira, Beeroth and kariat Jarim. And the chyldre of Israel slewe them not, because p Lordes of p congregacyon had sworne vnto them by the Lorde God of Israel. And all the multitude murmured against p Lordes. But all the Lordes sayde vnto all the congregacyon: we haue sworne vnto the by p Lord God of Israel, & therfore we maye not hurte the. But this we wyll do to the: We will lett them lyue, lest wrath be vpon vs, because of the othe which we swore vnto hem. And the Lordes sayd vnto them a gayne: Let them lyue, & and hewe wodd, & drawe water vnto all the cōgregacion, and they did as the Lordes sayde vnto them.

And Josua sent for them, & talked wpyth them, and sayde: wherfore haue ye begyled vs, sayeng: We dwell farre from pou, whā ye dwell amōge vs: and now are you cursed, & there shall not cease to be of you, bond men and hewers of wodd & drawers of water for the house of my God.

And they answered Josua and sayde: it was tolde thy seruantes, how that p Lord thy God had comaunded his seruant Moses to geue you all the lāde, and to destroye all the inhabytoures therof oute of youre syght, & therfore we were exceedyng sore afrayed: & (as p pource) for oure lyues at p pence of you, & haue done this thinge, & beholde we are i thine hāde, as it semeth good & ryght in thine eyes to do vnto vs, so do.

And euen so dyd he vnto them, and ridde them oute of the hande of the chyldren of Israel, and they slewe them not. And Josua made them p same dape hewers of wodd, & drawers of water for the cōgregacyon and for the altar of God vnto thys dape, in the place which God shulde chose.

C The .x. Chapter.

C The Amozites are ouer come of Josua. It sayeth stones. The sonne standeth still. The .v. kynges are hanged.

And it fortuned, that whē Adonizedec kyng of Ierusalē had heard how Josua had taken Hai, & had destroyed it, and how that as he had done to Jericho and her kyng, eue so he had done to Hai and her kyng, and how the Inhabitoures of Gibeon had made peace wpyth Israel, and were amonge them, they feared exceedingly, for Gibeon was a great cytie, as any cytie of the kyngdome, & was greater then Hai, and all the me therof were very myghty.

Wherfore Adonizedec kyng of Ierusalē sent vnto Hoham kyng of hebron, and vnto Dircā kyng of Iarmuth, & vnto Iaphia kyng of Lachis, and vnto Debir kyng of Eglon, sayeng: Come vp vnto me, & healepe me, p we may smyte Gibeon: for they haue made peace with Josua and wpyth p chyldre of Israel. Therfore p .v. kynges of p Amozites, the kyng of Ierusalem, p kyng of hebron, the kyng of Iarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, p kyng of Eglon gathered the selues to geather, they withall their hostes, & beleged Gibeon, and made warre agaynst it.

And the men of Gibeon sent vnto Josua & to p hoste to Gilgal, sayeng: withdrawe not thy hande frō thy seruantes, come vp to vs, to saue vs, & to helpe vs: For al the kiges of p Amozites which dwell i p mountaynes are gathered togeather agaynst vs.

And so Josua ascended from Gilgal, he and all the people of warre with him, & all the men of myghte, and the Lord sayde vnto Josua, feare them not, for I haue delpyered them into thyne hande. Nether shal any of the stande agaynst p Josua therfore came vnto them lodenlye, and went vp from Gilgal all nyght. And the Lord troubled them before Israel, and slewe them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them a longe the wape that gothe vp to Bethoron, and smote them to Elaka & Makeda. And it fortuned, p as they fled frō Israel, & were in the goyng doune to Bethoron, the Lorde cast doune great stones from heauē vpon them, vntyll Elaka. And there were mo deed with haple stones, then they were, whom the chyldren of Israel slewe wpyth the swerde.

Then spake Josua before the Lorde, in the dape when p Lorde delpyered the Amozites before the chyldren of Israel, and he sayde in the syght of Israel. * Sone stāde thou still vpon Gibeon, and thou Mōne, in Aialon. And the sonne abode, and the mōne stode still, vntyll the people aduēged them selues vpo their enemyes. Is not this writen in p boke of p ryght wgs? The sonne (I saye) abode in the myddes of heauē and halted halted not to goo doune by p space of a whole dape. And there was no dape lyke that, before it, or after it, that the Lorde heard p voyce of a man. For the Lorde fought for Israel.

D And Josua returned and all Israel with hym, vnto the holte to Gilgal: but the fyue kynges fledde, and were hyd in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Josua of one sayeng, the fyue kynges are founde hid in a caue which is at Makeda. And Josua sayd rowle great stones vpon the mouth of the caue, and set men by it, for to kepe them. And stande ye not stille, but folowe after poure enemyes, & smyte all the hindmost, And soffre them not to entre into the cyties, for the Lorde poure God hath delpyered them into poure hāde. And it fortuned, when Josua and the chyldre of Israel had made an ende of slaying them wpyth an exceedinge great slaughter tpyll they were wasted, the rest that remayned of them, entred into walled cyties.

And all the people returned to the holte, to Josua at Makeda in peace, neither dyd any man moue hys tong agaynst the chyldren of Israel. Then sayde Josua: open the mouth of the caue, and byyng oute the .v. kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto hym, oute of the caue, euen the kyng of Ierusalem, the kyng of hebron, the kyng of Iarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, and the kyng of Eglon.

C And it fortuned, that when they brought oute those kynges vnto Josua: Josua called for all the men of Israel, and sayde vnto the chefe of the mē of warre, which wete with hym: come nere, & put poure fete vpo the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere: and put their fete vpo the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto the: Ye shall not feare, ner be faynt harted. But be strōg and plucke vp poure hertes, for thus shall the Lorde do to all poure enemyes agaynst whom ye fyght.

And then Josua smote them, and slewe them, & hanged the on fyue trees. And they hāged still vpo p trees vntill the euenyng. And at p goig doune of p sonne it fortuned that Josua gaue comaundement, and they toke the doune of p trees, & cast the into p caue, (where in they had bene hyd), & layed great stones on p caues mouth, which remayne vnto this dape.

And that same dape Josua toke Makeda, and smote it wpyth p edge of the swerde, and the kyng therof also * destroyed he utterly, wpyth all the soules that were therein, and let nought remayne. And he dyd to the kyng of Makeda * as he dyd to the kyng of Jericho.

Then Josua went from Makeda, and all Israel with hym vnto Libna, & fought against Libna. And the Lorde delpyered it and the kyng therof into the hand of Israel, and he smote it wpyth the edge of the swerde, & all the soules that were therein. He let nought remayne in it, but dyd vnto the kyng therof as he dyd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

And Josua departed from Libna, and all Israel wpyth hym, vnto Lachis, & beleged it, and assaulted it. And the Lord delpyered Lachis into the hande of Israel. Which toke it the secōde dape, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, & all the soules that were theri, doing accordyng to all, as he had done to the cite of Libna.

Then hozam kyng of Geter came vp to helpe Lachis: And Josua smote hym & his people, vntill naught remayned of hym.

And from Lachis Josua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israel with hym, and they beleged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same dape, & smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein he utterly destroyed the same dape, according to all that he had done to Lachis.

And Josua departed vp from Eglon and all Israel with hym, vnto hebron. And they fought agaynst it, and when they had take it, they smote it with the edge of p swerde, and p kyng therof, and all the townes that pertayned to it, & all the soules that were therein, and he left nought remayning: but did accordig to all, as he had done to Eglon, and destroyed it utterly, & all the soules that were therein.

And Josua returned, and all Israel with hym to Dabir, and fought agaynst it. And when he had taken it, and the kyng therof, and all the townes that pertayned therof, they smote them with the edge of p swerde, & utterly destroyed all the soules p were therein, nether let he ought remayne. Euen as he dyd to hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and p kyng therof, as he had done also to Libna and her kyng.

Josua therfore smote all the hill contreys, and the southe contreys, and the valleyes, and the hill sydes, & all their kynges, & lett nought remayne of the, but utterly destroyed all that * breathed, as the Lorde God of Israel comaunded. And Josua smote them from Cades barne vnto Iasah, and all the contrey of Golan, eue vnto Gibeon. All those kynges and their lande dyd Josua take at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israel fought for Israel. And Josua and all Israel returned, vnto the holte that was in Gilgal.

C The .xi. Chapter.

C The battell of Josua with dyuers kynges.

And

Ad it fortuned, that when Iabin kyng of hazor had heard those thynges: he sent to Jobab kyng of Hadô, & to the kyng of Simrô, and to the kyng of Achsaph, and vnto the kynges that are by north in þe mountaynes, & playnes toward the southe syde of Ceneroth, ad in the lowe countreys, & in þe borders of Dor westward and vnto the Cananytes bothe by East & Weste, & vnto the Amozites, Hethites, Phelites, and Jebusites in the mountaynes: & vnto the Huites that were vnder hermon in the lande of Mizpa. And they came out ad all their hostes with them, a multitude of folke, euen as the sande that is on the see more in a greete nobye with hostes & charettes exceeding manye. And all these kynges mett together, and came, and pytched together at the waters of Merom, for to fight agaynst Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: be not afraide at the presence of them: for tomorrow aboute this tyme will I deliuer them all slayne before Israell: thou shalt hough their hostes, & burne their charettes with fire. And so Josua came and all the men of warre with hym agaynst them by the waters of Merom, & sodenlye fell vpon them. And the Lorde deliuered them into þe hande of Israell: and they smote them, and chased them vnto great Sidon, & vnto the whote waters, ad vnto þe valeys of Mizpa which is Eastwarde: and smote them vntill they had none remaynyng of them. And Josua dyd vnto them, as the Lorde had hym: he houghed their hostes, and burnt their charettes with fyre.

And Josua at that tyme turned backe, & toke hazor, & smote the kyng thereof with the swerde. And hazor before tyme was þe head of all those kyngdomes. And they smote all the soules þe were therewith the edge of the swerde, vntill they destroyed all: & no thing that breathed, was let remayne. And he burnt hazor wþer. And all þe cyties of those kynges, and all the kynges of them, dyd Josua take, and smote them wþ the edge of the swerde, and vntill they destroyed them: as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israell burnt none of þe cyties þe stode still in their strenght, save hazor olye that Josua burnt. And all the spoyle of the sayde cyties ad the catell, the chyldre of Israell caught vnto them selues. But the men onlye they smote with the edge of þe swerde vntill they had destroyed them nether left they ought that had breath. As the Lorde commaunded Moses hys seruaunt, so dyd Moses commaunde Josua, and euen so dyd Josua: so that he mynyshed no woide, of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Josua toke all the lande, the hylls and all the southe contrey, and all the lande of Gofan, and the lowe contrey, and þe playne, and the mountayne of Israell, & the lowe countrey of the same, euen from the mounte of parayng, þe gothe vnto Seir vnto the playne of Gad in the valeys of Libanon, vnder mounte hermon. And all the kynges of the same he toke, & smote them, and slewe them.

Josua made warre longe tyme wþ those kynges: nether was there anye cite þe made peace with þe chyldren of Israell, save those Hethites that inhabited Gibeon, and therefore all other they toke wþ battell, for it came of the Lorde, wch dyd harden theyr hartes, that they shulde come agaynst Israell in battell: & that they shulde destroye them vntill they were no more, but to byng them to naught, As the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same reason came Josua, and destroyed the Enakites out of the mountaynes: Namely, out of hebron, Dabir, Anab, and out of all the mountaynes of Iuda, and out of all the mountaynes of Israell. And Josua destroyed them vntill they were no more. There was not one Enakite left in the lande of the chyldre of Israell, only in Arah, Geth, and Adod, the remayned of them.

And Josua toke þe whole lande, according to all that the Lorde sayd vnto Moses, and Josua gaue it for a possession vnto Israell: according to their partes and trybes: & the lande rested from warre.

The .xii. Chapter.

What kynges Josua and the chyldren of Israell kyled, which were in nombr .xxxi.

These are the kynges of the lande whych the chyldre of Israell smote, and possessed theyr land on the other syde Jordan eastwarde, fro the ryuer Arnon, vnto mounte hermon, and all the playne eastwarde: * Sehon kyng of the Amozites, that dwelt in hebron, and ruled from Aroer, whych is besyde the ryuer of Arnon, and from the middell of the ryuer, and from halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer Jabock, whych is the border of the chyldren of Ammon: And from the playne vnto the see of Cynneroth eastward, and vnto the see in the playne: euen the salt see eastwarde, the waye to Beth Jelsmoth, and from the southe vnder the spynges of the hill.

And the coaste of Og kyng of Basan which was of the remaunt of the Gpauites, and dwelt at Astharoth, and Edrai: & ragged in mount hermon, and in Salcah: ad in all Basan, vnto the border of the Gessurites, and rites & the Macathites, & halfe mount Gilead, vnto þe borders of Sehon kyng of hebron. * Moses þe seruaunt of the Lorde & the chyldren of Israell smote them, & Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde, gaue their lande for a possession, vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the trybe of Manasses.

These are the kynges of the countrey, whych Josua & the chyldren of Israell smote on thys syde Jordan, westwarde, from the playne of Gad which is in the valeys of Libanon, euen vnto the partyng mount that gothe vnto Seir. Whych land Josua gaue vnto the trybes of Israell to possesse, to euerie man his parte: in the vpper lande, & nether lande, in playnes, and hyll sydes, in þe wilderness, and southe contrey: the Hethites, the Amozites, the Cananites, the Phelites, the Huites, and the Jebusites.

* The kyng of Jericho: was one. The kyng of Hai which is besyde Bethel: one. The kyng of Jerusalem: one. The kyng of hebron: one. The kyng of Jarmuth: one. The kyng of Lachys: one. The kyng of Eglon: one. The kyng of Gazer: one. The kyng of Debir: one. The kyng of Geder: one. The kyng of Horma: one. The kyng of Arad: one. The kyng of Libna: one. The kyng of Adullam: one. The kyng of Gath: one. The kyng of Bethel: one. The kyng of Capna: one. The kyng of Heber: one. The kyng of Aphik: one. The kyng of Lachar: one. The kyng of Hadô: one. The kyng of Hazor: one. The kyng of Simron: one. The kyng of Achsaph: one. The kyng of Chachach: one. The kyng of Megiddo: one. The kyng of Raedes: one. The kyng of Jokneam of Charmell: one. The kyng of Dor in the contrey of Dor: one. The kyng of the nations of Gilgal: one. The kyng of Therza: one. All þe kynges together thys tyme and one.

The .xiii. Chapter.

Josua is commaunded to deuyde the lande to the chyldren of Israell.

Josua was olde, and strycken in yeres, and the Lorde sayde vnto hym: thou art olde and strycke in yeres, and there remayneth yett ercedyng moche lade to be possessed: This is the lande that yett remayneth: all þe regyons of the Philistines: & all Gessuri: from Nilus which is on þe outward parte of Egypt, vnto þe borders of Aekron northward, whych lande is counted vnto Cananyte, euen fyue Lordshippes of the Philistines, the Aathites, Alodith, Alcalonites, Gethites, Akaronites, & the Guites. And from the south, all the lande of the Cananites, and þe caue, that is besyde the Sidonians, euen vnto Aphik, and to the border of the Amozites. And the land of the Gubites, and all Liba-

non toward þe southe ryng, from þe playne of Gad vnder mount hermon, vntill a man come to Hemath: all the inhabitants of þe hyll country, fro Libanon vnto the whote waters, and all the Sidonians, wyl I cast out from before the chyldre of Israell: onely se that thou in any wyse deuyde it by lotte vnto the Israelites, to enheret, as I haue comaunded the. Now therefore deuide thys land to enheret, vnto the nyne trybes & the halfe trybe of Manasses. For with þe other halfe the Rubenites ad the Gadites haue receaued theyr enheritaunce, * whych Moses gaue them beyonde Jordan eastwarde: euen as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde gaue them: from Aroer that lyeth on þe bym of the ryuer Arnon, ad from the cite þe is in the myddes of the ryuer. And all the playn of Medeba vnto Dibon, & all the cyties of Sehon kyng of the Amozites, whych ragged in hebron, euen vnto the border of the chyldren of Ammon: and Gilead, & the border of Gessuri and Machati, and all mount hermon, with all Basan vnto Salcah: euen all the kyngdom of Og in Basan, whych ragged in Astharoth ad Edrai, whych same remayned yett of the rest of the Gassurites. These dyd Moses smyte, & cast the out.

Reuerthelesse the chyldren of Israell expelled not the Gessurites & the Machathites: But the Gessurites and the Machathites dwell amonge the Israelites euen vnto this daye, Only vnto the trybe of Lem, he gaue none enheritaunce: * But þe offeringe of the Lorde God of Israell is theyr enheritaunce, as he sayde vnto them.

Moses gaue vnto the trybe of the chyldren of Ruben enheritaunce accordyng to theyr kynredes. And theyr coaste was from Aroer that lyeth on þe bancke of the ryuer Arnon, & from the cite that is in þe myddes of the ryuer, and all the playne whych is by Medeba, hebron, wþ all their townes þe that lye in the playne: Dibon and the hyll places of Baal, and the house Baalmeon: and Jahazah, and kedemoth ad Nephaah Kiriathaim, Sabamah and zarathahay in the mounte of the valley, the house of Peor, and the spynges of the hylls: and Bethielmoth: and all the cyties of the playne. And all the kyngdom of Sehon kyng of the Amozites, whych ragged in hebron, whych Moses smote * with þe lordes of Hadrian, Em, Rekem, zur, and Hur and Reba, the whych were dukes of Sehon dwelling in the cotrey. And Balaam also the sone of Beor the soothsayer, dyd þe chyldre of Israell slaye with the swerde, among other of the that were slayne. And the border of the chyldren of Ruben was Jordan with the contrey þe lyeth thereon. This was the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Ruben aft:

after their kynredes, cyties & villages pertayninge therto.

D And Moses gaue enheritaunce vnto the trybe of Gad, euen vnto þe chylde of Gad he gaue by theyr kynredes. And theyr costes were Jazer, & all the cyties of Gilead, and halfe the lade of þe chylde of Ammon, vnto Aroer þe lyeth before Rabba. And fro Heshon vnto Ramoth, Mazphah, & Betonim: and fro Mahanaim vnto þe borders of Aribir. And in þe valeye they had Betharab, Bethnimra, Socoth, and Zaphon, þe rest of the kyngdome of Schon kyng of Heshon, vnto Jordan and the costes that lye therō, euen vnto the edge of the see of Cencroth, on the other syde Jordā eastward. This is the enheritaunce of the chylde of Gad after their kynredes, theyr cyties and villages.

And Moses gaue enheritaunce vnto the halfe trybe of Manasses. And this was þe possession of þe halfe trybe of Manasses by theyr kynredes. Theyr coste was fro Mahanaim, eue all Balan, & all þe kyngdome of Og kyng of Balan, and all þe townes of Jair which lye in Balan, eue the skore cyties, & halfe Gilead, Astaroth, & Edrai, cyties of þe kyngdome of Og in Balan. Which pertayne vnto the chylde of Machir þe sonne of Manasses, eue þe halfe porcion of the chylde of Machir by theyr kynredes.

These are the thynges which Moses did distribute in the felde of Moab, on þe other syde Jordā ouer against Jericho eastward. But vnto the trybe of Leui, Moses gaue none enheritaunce, for the Lorde God of Israel is their enheritaunce, as he sayd vnto them.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Caleb requyeth the heretage that was promysed hym, and Hebron was geuen hym.

And these are the contreyes which the chylde of Israel enheretted in þe lande of Canaan, which Eleazer the preaste, and Josua the sonne of Nun and the auncient heades of þe trybes of the chylde of Israel, distributed to them. By lotte they receaued their possessions as the Lorde comaunded by þe hād of Moses, to geue vnto the nyne trybes, & vnto þe halfe trybe. For Moses had geuen enheritaunce vnto two trybes and an halfe on þe other syde Jordā. But vnto þe Leuites he gaue none enheritaunce amonge the. For the chylde of Joseph were two trybes, Manasses & Ephraim. And therfore they gaue no parte vnto the Leuites in the land, laue cyties to dwell in with the suburbs of the same, for their bestes and cattell. As the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so þe chylde of Israel did whē they deuided þe lade.

B And the chylde of Juda came vnto Josua in Gilgall. And Caleb the sonne of Jephune þe kenefyte sayde vnto hym: thou wottest what the Lorde sayd vnto Moses the mā of God, about my matter ad thyne in Cades Barne. Forty yere olde was I whē Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde sent me fro Cades Barne to spie out the lande. And I brought hym worde agayne eue as it was i myne herte. Neuerthelesse my brethren that went vp wyth me, dyscourage the herte of the people. And I folowed the Lorde God.

And Moses sware þe same dape, saying: the lande wheron thy fete haue troaden, shalbe thyne enheritaunce and thy chylde for euer, because þe hast folowed the Lorde God. And behold, the Lorde hath kept me alpye (as he sayde) this fourtye and fyue yeres, eue sence the Lorde spake this word vnto Moses, whyle the chylde of Israel wanderd in the wyldernesse. And now lo, I am this dape foure skore & fyue yere old: & yet am as stronge at this tyme, as I was when Moses sent me: looke how stronge I was the, so strong am I now whether I go to warre, or come agayne.

Now therfore geue me this mountayne wherof the Lorde spake in that dape, for þe herdest in that dape, how the Enakims are there, and the citis great & walled. Peradventure the Lorde wilbe with me, & I shal be able to dyspue the out, as the Lorde sayd. And Josua blessed hym, & gaue vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephune, & Hebron to enheret. And Hebron therfore became þe enheritaunce of Caleb the sonne of Jephune the kenefyte, vnto this dape: because he folowed þe Lorde God of Israel. And the name of Hebron was called in olde tyme, kariatharbe. For the same was a great mā amonge the Enakims. And the lande ceased from warre.

The. xv. Chapter.

The lotte of the chylde of Juda & the names of the cyties and bylages of the same.

This was the lotte of the trybe of the chylde of Juda by theyr kynredes: Namely, towarde the border of Edom in the wyldernesse of zin, southwarde, euen from the vtmost parte of the southe coste. And theyr south coste was from the bynke of the salt see, from a rock that lea- neth southward. And it wēt out to þe south syde toward the goynge vp to Acrabim, & went a longe to zuma, and ascended vp on the south syde vnto Cades Barne, & went a longe to Hebron, and went vp to Adar, and sette a compase to Karea. From thence went it a longe to Azmon, and reached vnto the ryuer of Egypt: and the ende of that cost was on the west syde. And this is theyr south coste.

Their east coste is the salt see, euen vnto the edge of Jordan. And their border in the north

north quarter was fro the rocke of the see and fro the edge of Jordan. And the same border went vp to Bethhagla, and went a longe by the northsyde of Betharabah, and vp from thence to the stone of Bohem & sonne of Ruben. And agayne, the same border went vp to Dabir fro the valeye of Acor, and so northwarde, turnyng towarde Gilgall, that lieth before þe goynge vp to Adonim, whych is of the southe syde of the ryuer. And the same border wēt vp to þe waters of the fountayne of the Sone, and ended at the well of Rogell. And then went vp to the valeye of the sonne of Hemo, eue vnto the southe syde of Jebusi: the same is Jerusalem. And then went vp to the toppe of the hille that lyeth before the valeye of Hemon, westwarde, and by the edge of the valeye of the Giantes northwarde: And then it compaseth fro the toppe of the hille vnto the fountayne of the water of Nephtoth, and gothe out at the citis of mouit Ephron: and draweth to Baala, whiche is kariathiarim, (that is, a cytie of woodes,) and then it compaseth from Balah westwarde vnto mouit Seir, & then goeth a longe vnto the syde of mouit Jarim, (which is Chesalon) on þe north syde. And cometh downe to Bethsames, and gothe to Chamnah, and gothe out agayne vnto the syde of Akarō northwarde: And then draweth to Secron and gothe a longe to mouite Balah, and goeth out at Jabnel: & the endes of the costes leaue at the west see. And the west border was the gaeat see, and the same coaste was the coast of the chylde of Juda rōnde about in theyr kynredes.

And vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephune dyd Josua geue a parte among the chylde of Juda, accordyng to the mouthe of the Lorde, euen kariatharbe of the father of Enock, whiche cytye is Hebron. And Caleb droue thence the thre sonnes of Enack, Se- lai, and Ahman, and Chalmat, which were, the sonnes of Enack. And he wēt vp thence, to the inhabitoures of Dabir. And the name of Dabir in the olde tyme was kariath sephar. (That is, a cytie of letters.) And Caleb sayde: he that smyteth kariath sepher, & taketh it: to hym wyll I geue Aclah my daughter to wyfe. And Othniel, the sonne of Kenes, the brother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue hym Aclah his daughter to wyfe. And as he went in vnto hym, she moued hym, to aske of her father a felde. And he alpyghted of her alle. And Caleb sayde vnto her, what apleth the? Who answered: geue me a blessing: for thou hast geuen me a south- (and drye) lande: geue me also springes of water. And he gaue her springes of water, bothe aboue and benethe. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chylde of Juda by their kynredes.

And the vtmost cyties of the tribe of the chylde of Juda, towarde þe coastes of Edom southwarde, were: Kabez, Eder & Jagur: kinah, Dimonah, and Adada: kedez, hazor and Jethnan: ziph, Celem and Baloth, hazor, hadathah, karioth, hestō (which is hazor) Eman, Sami, and Moladah: hazargadah, Hasmon & Bethpheleth: Halar lual, Bersabe, and Bazothah: Baalah, Jim, and Azen: Eltholad, Cecill, and Horma: zikelag, Medemenah & Sen: senah: Labaoth, Selhum, Ain and Rimō: all these cyties are twente and nyne with their villages. And in þe lowe cotrepe they had Esthad, zarah, and Akenah: zoneah, Engannim, Chaphuah & Enam: Jarmuth Adulā, Socoh, & Azkah: Saarem, Adithaim, Cederah, and Cederothaim: Four: tene cyties with their villages.

zenan, Hadaiah, and Magdalgad: Deleam, Mizpa, and Jektheel: Lachis, Bazcath and Eglon: Cabon, Lahmam, and Cethlis: Caderoth, Bethdagon, Maamah and Hakedah: Syrtene cyties with their villages.

Lebnah, Ether, and Acan: Jephthah, Anah, and Bezib: keilah, kahezib and Maresah: nyne cyties wyth theyr bylages. Akron with her townes & villages. From Akro & from þe west, all that lyeth aboute Asdod with their villages. Asdod with her townes & villages. Azah with her townes & villages, euen vnto the ryuer of Egypt and the great see was their coaste.

And in the mountaynes, they had Samur Jathir, and Socoh, Danah: and kariathse- nath, which is Dabir: Anab, Esthemoh, & Anim, Gozen, Holon, & Giloh: a leuen cyties with their villages. Arab, Dumah, & Elean: Janim, Beththaphuah & Apcach. Humatah, & kariatharbe: which is Hebron and zior: nyne cyties wyth their villages. Maon, Carmel, Siph, & Jutah: Jethraell, Jukadan, and Sanoch: Cam, Sabaah, and Chamnah: ten cyties with their villages. Halhull Bethzur and Gedō: Maarath, Bethanath, & Elthecon: Sire cyties with their villages. Kariath Baal whych is kariath Jarim: (the cytie of woodes) and Harabba: two cyties with their villages.

In the wyldernesse they had Betharab, Meddin & Sacarah: Hebson, the cytie of salt, and Engaddi: Syre cyties wyth their villages. Neuertheles, the Jebusites that were þe inhabiters of Jerusalem, coulde not þe chylde of Juda cast out. But the Jebusites dwell with the chylde of Juda vnto this dape.

The. xvi. Chapter.

The lotte of parte of Ephraim.

And the lotte of þ childien of Joseph felle frō Jorda by Jericho, vnto the water of Jericho Eastward, and to þ wilderness that goeth vp from Jericho thozow out mount Bethel: & goeth out from Bethel to Lus, & runneth alōge vnto the borders of Aremataroth: & goeth downe agayne westward euen to the coaste of Japhlethi, and vnto the coaste of Bethhoron the nether, and to Gazor, and the endes of their coostes leaue at the west see. And so the childien of Joseph Manasses & Ephraim toke their enheritaunce.

And the border of þ childie of Ephraim was by their kinreds. Their border on the east syde, was: Astaroth, Ador, euen vnto Bethhoron þ vpper, & wēt out westward to Machmathah on þ Northside, and returneth Eastward vnto Chaanath Silo, and past it on the Eastside vnto Janoah, & wēt downe from Janoah to Atharoth & Naarath, & came to Jericho, & wēt out at Jorda. And their border wēt frō Chaphuah westwarde vnto the ryuer Kanah, and the endes were the west see. This is the enheritaunce of þ trybe of þ childie of Ephraim by their kynredes. And the separate cyties for the childien of Ephraim, were amōge the enheritaunce of the childien of Manasses: eue the cyties with their villages. And they draue not out þ Cananites þ dwelte in Gazor: but the Cananites dwell amōge the Ephraim vnto this day, and serue vnder tribute.

The xvii. Chapter.

The lotte of porcion of the halfe tribe of Manasses. The Cananites become tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses & Ephraim require a greater porcion of heritage.

This was the lotte of þ tribe of Manasses, which was the * Eldest sonne of Joseph. And Nachir the Eldest sonne of Manasses which was the father of Gilead (and a mā of warre) had Gilead and Basan, This was the possession of the rest of the childien of Manasses by their kinredes: Namely, of the childien of Abiezer: the childien of Helek: the childien of Aziel: the childien of Sichem, the childien of Ghepser: þ childien of Semida: for these were þ male childie of Manasses the sonne of Joseph by their kinredes.

* But Zelaphead þ sonne of Ghepser, þ sonne of Gilead, þ sonne of Nachir, the sonne of Manasses, had no sones but daughters whose names are these: Mahela, Noa, Hagla, Melcha & Thirza: which came before Eleazar þ preaste, & before Josua the sonne of Nun, & before þ Lordes saying: * the Lord comāded Moses to geue vs an enheritaunce amōge oure brethren. And therefore according to the comāndement of the Lord, he gaue the an enheritaunce amōge þ brethren of their father. And there felle ten porcyōs to Manasses, besyde the lande of Gilead & Basan, which is on the other syde Jordan: because þ daughters of Manasses dyd enherett amōge hys sones. And Manasses other sones, had the lande of Gilead.

And the cooste of Manasses was from Aser to Machmathah þ lieth before Sichem and went a lōge on the ryght hande, euen vnto the enhabiters of Entaphuah, & the land of Chaphuah belōged to Manasses, whych Chaphuah is besyde the border of Manasses, and besyde the border of the childien of Ephraim. And the cooste descended vnto þ ryuer Canah southwarde, eue to the ryuer of the cyties of Ephraim, and betwene þ cyties of Manasses. The cooste of Manasses wente also on þ northsyde to the ryuer, & the endes of it go out at þ see: so that the south pertayned to Ephraim, & the north to Manasses, and the see is hys border. And they mette together in Aser northwarde, and in Astar eastwarde. And Manasses had in Astar & in Aser, Bethsean, & her townes: Ziblean, and hir townes: & the enhabitours of Dor, wyth the townes pertaynyng to the same: & the enhabitours of Endor with the townes of þ same: and the enhabitours of Chaanath with her townes: and the enhabitours of Magedo with the townes of þ same, euen the cōtreys. Yet the childien of Manasses coulde not overcome those cyties. But the Cananites presumed to dwell in the same land. Neuerthelesse, as soon as þ childien of Israel were wared strōg, they put þ Cananites vnder tribute, but expelled them not.

And the childien of Joseph spake vnto Josua saying: why hast thou geuen me but one lotte and one porcion to enheret, seing I am a great people, & for as moche as the Lord hath blessed me hitherto: and Josua answered them: yf þ be moche people, then gett the vp to the wodde cōtreys, and prepare for thy selfe there in the lande of the Phereites & of the Gaintes, yf mounte Ephraim be to narrowe for the. And þ childie of Joseph sayd: The hill is not ynough for vs: & all the Cananites that dwell in þ lowe cōtreys haue charettes of yron, & so haue they that enhabite Bethsean, and the townes of the same, & they also that dwell in the valeys of Jezreel. And Josua sayde vnto the house of Joseph, Ephraim & Manasses: ye be moche people, and haue great power, & shall not therefore haue one lotte. Therefore þ hill shalbe pource, & ye shall cut downe the wodde þ is in it: & the endes of it shalbe pource, yf ye cast out þ Cananites which haue yron charettes, & are very strōge.

The

The xviii. Chapter.

Seven are sent to deuyde the lande to the other seven trybes. The lotte of the childien of Benjamin.

And the whole congregacion of the childien of Israel came together at Silo, and set vp the tabernacle of witness there, and the lande was in subieccion before them. And there remayned amōge the childien of Israel seven tribes, whych had not yet receaued their enheritaunce. And Josua sayd vnto the childien of Israel: how long are ye so slacke to come, and possesse the lande which the Lord God of poure fathers hath geuen you? Geue out from amōge you for euery trybe thre men, that I maye sende the. And that they maye ryle, and walke thozowe the lande and distribute it according to the enheritaunce therof, and come agayne to me.

And let them deuyde it vnto them in to seven partes. And Juda shal abyde in their coaste on þ south, and the house of Joseph shal stande in their coastes on the north. Describe ye the lande therfore vnto seven partes, and byyng the description hether to me, and I shall cast lottes for you here before the Lord oure God. But * the Leuites haue no parte among you, for the preasthode of the lord is their enheritaunce. * And God, and Ruben, and halfe the tribbe of Manasses haue receaued their enheritaunce beyonde Jordan eastwarde, which Moses the seruauit of the Lord gaue them.

And the men arose, & went their waye. And Josua charged the that wēt to describe the lande, saying: departe, & go thozowe the lande, and describe it, & come agayne to me, & I maye here cast lottes for you before þ Lord in Silo. And the men departed,

& walked thozowe the lande, & described it by cyties into seven partes, in a booke, and returned to Josua into the holse at Silo. And Josua cast lottes for the in Silo before the Lord, and there Josua deuyned þ land vnto the childien of Israel, to eche their porcion. And the lotte of the tribe of the childien of Benjamin came vp accordig to their kynredes. And þ coaste of their lotte came out betwene þ childien of Juda and the childie of Joseph. And their north coaste was from Jordan, and went vp to the syde of Jericho on þ northsyde, & went vp thozowe the mountaynes westward, & they ended at the wilderness of Bethauē: and went from thence to the southsyde of Lus (þ same is Bethel) & descended agayne to Atrothadar, vnto þ hylle that lyeth on the southe syde of þ nether Bethhoron. And the coaste turneth thence, & compasseth the corner of þ see southwarde, euen from the hill þ lyeth before Bethhoron southwarde, & goeth out at Iriathbaal which is Iriath Jarim, a cytie of the childie of Juda: this is the west quarter: & the south coaste goeth from the edge of Iriath Jarim, and goeth out westwarde, and thence it turneth to the waterwell of Rephthoah, & cometh downe agayne to þ edge of the hill, þ lyeth before þ valeys of þ sonne of Hennon, euen in the valeys of the Gaintes northwarde and descendeth into þ valeys of Hennon besyde Jebus southwarde, and goeth downe to the well of Rogell, and compasseth frō the north, and goeth forth to the well of þ sonne, and departeth from thence to þ places of Geliloth, which are toward þ goyng vp vnto Adomim: & goeth downe to þ skone of Bohan þ sonne of Ruben: & then goeth alonge toward the syde of the playne, northwarde: and goeth downe into the fel-des: and goeth alōge to the syde of Bethhaglah northwarde, & endeth at the pointe of the salt see north therfro, euen at the south ende of Jordan. This is the southe coaste.

And Jordan kepeth in this coast on the east syde, and this is the enheritaunce of the childie of Benjamin by their coastes rōnde aboute thozow out their kynredes. These were the cyties of the trybes of the childie of Benjamin thozow out their kynredes: Jericho, Bethhaglah, & þ playne of haziz: Betharabah, zamarim, & Bethel: Aum, Bharah, and Dphrah: Chepar Ammona, Dphni, & Sabai, twelue cyties with their villages. Gibeō, Ramah, & Beroth: Mazphah, Caphairah, and Mozah: Rekē, Jarephel, and Charelah, zela, Eleph, and Jebusi, which is Jerusalem, Gibeath, and Iriath, fourtene cyties with their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the childien of Benjamin thozowe out their kynredes,

The xix. Chapter.

The lottes of partes of zabulon, Issachar, Aser, Naphtali, Dan, and Josua.

And the seconde lotte came out for þ trybe of the childien of Simcon by their kynredes. And their enheritaunce was in the myddes of the enheritaunce of the childie of Juda. And they had in theyr enheritaunce, Bersabee, Sabe, & Moladah, Hazorhual, Balah, & Azem, Etcholah, Bethul & Hormah, zikelag, Bethmarcaboth & Hazetfusah, Bethlebaath, and Saruhen thirtene cyties with their villages. Aim, Remon, Ether, & Ahan, foure cyties wyth their villages: & therto all þ villages that were rōnde about these cyties, euen vnto Balaath, Beoz, & Ramath, southwarde. This is þ enheritaunce of þ tribe of þ childien of Simcon thozow out their kiredes. Out of þ lotte of the childie of Juda, came

the enheritaunce

the enheritaunce of the children of Simeon. For the parte of the children of Juda was to moche for them: and therfore the childre of Simeon had their enheritaunce in the enheritaunce of them.

And the thyrde lotte arose for the childre of zabulon thowout their kynredes. And the coastes of their enheritaunce came to Sarid, & went by westwarde, and to Marialah, and reached to Dababeseth, and came thence to Sruer that lyeth before Tokneuen: & turned fro Sarid eastwarde toward Sone ryling vnto Sborder of Chisloth Thaboz: and then goeth out to Dababeseth, & goeth by to Japhia: and from thence goeth a longe eastwarde, to Gethah, Jepher, Jthah, & Jazin, & goeth to Remon, Methoar, & Recob. And compasseth it on Snor: the syde to Nathan, & endeth in the valeye of Jephtahel. And Jatath, Nahalol, Seron, Jedalah, and Bethlehe: twelue cyties wyth their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the childre of zabulon thowout their kynredes, and these are the cyties with their villages.

And S fourth lott came out for S children of Issacar by their kynredes. And their coast was Jesraelah, Casuloth, & Sunem. Hapharaim, Sion, and Anabarith: Harabith Kision, and Abez: Rameth, Enganim, Enhabah, & Bethphazez. And his coast reacheth to Thaboz, & Sahazimah & Bethsames, and endeth at Jordan, Syrteue cyties with there villages. This is S enheritaunce of the trybe of S children of Issacar by their kynredes, And these are the cyties with their villages.

And the fyfte lotte cam out for the trybe of the children of Asser by their kynredes. And their coast was: Helkath, Hali, Bete & Achlay: Alamelch, Amaad and Hileal: & came to Carmel westwarde, & to Sihor Labanath, and turneth toward the sonne ryling to Bethdagon, and cometh to Sabulon & to the valeye of Jephtahel, toward S northsyde of Bethemek & Regel, & goeth out on S lyfte syde of Cabul: & to Hebzon, Rohob, Ramon, & Kanah, euen vnto great Siddo. And then the coast turneth to Ramah and to the strong cytie of zor, and turneth to Hozah, & endeth at the see, by S possessio of Achzivah: Amah also & Apheth and Rohob: Twentye and two cyties with their villages. This is S enheritaunce of S children of Asser by their kynredes: These are the cyties with their villages.

And the sixte lotte cam out for the children of Rephthali by their kynredes. And their coast was from Heleph & fro Elom to Zaananim, Adami, Rekab and Jabneel euen to Lakuni, and doth go out at Jordā. And then the coast turneth westwarde to Asanath Thaboz, and the goeth out from thence to Hukiah, and reacheth to Sabulon on S southe syde, & goeth to Asser on S west syde, and to Juda vpon Jordan toward S sonner ryling. And their strong cyties are zidin, zer, Hamah, Racath and Cenereth, Adamah, Hermah & Hazor: Kedes, Edrai, and Enhafor: Jeron, Magdele: Hozē, Bethanah & Bethsames: nyctene cyties w their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Rephthali by their kynredes: these also are the cyties & their villages.

And the seuenth lotte came out for S trybe of the childre of Dan by their kynredes. And the coast of their enheritaunce was: zaraah, Esthaol. * Jeslames, Saelabin, Aialo Jethlah: Eglon & Chenathah & Aharō: Eltheke, Gibethon & Baalath: Jehud Bancbarak & Cathermon, Hericon and Aracō, w the border that lyeth before Japho. And S coastes of S childre of Dan wēt out fro them. And the children of Dan wēt up to Spyght agaynst Lesen, and toke it, and smote it with S edge of the swerde, and conquered it, & dwelt therein, & called it * Dan after the name of Dan their father.

This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of S children of Dan i their kynredes: these also are the cyties with their villages, Whē they had made an ende of deuyding S lade by her coastes, the children of Issrael gaue an enheritaunce vnto Josua S sonne of Nun amonge them, according to the worde of S Lorde they gaue him the cytie which he asked, euen * Chenath serah in mounte Ephraim. And he bylte S cytie & dwelt therein. * These are the enheritaunces which Eleazar the preast and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the childre of Issrael deuided by lotte in Siloh before the Lorde, in the doore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and so they made an ende of deuiding the contreye.

The .xx. Chapter.

The cyties of refuge or Sanctuaries.

The Lorde also spake vnto Josua sayinge: Speake to S children of Issrael, and saye: * Appointe out fro amonge you cyties of refuge, wherof I spake vnto you by the had of Moses, that the cleare that killeth any person vnwares and vnwittinglye, maye flee thether. And those cyties shalbe poure refuge from the auenger of blood. And he that doth flee vnto one of those cyties, shall stāde at the entryng of the gate of the cytie, and shall shewe his cause in the eares of the elders of the cytie.

And they shall take him into the cytie vnto them, & geue hym a place, that he maye dwel amonge them.

And yf the auenger of bloude folowe after him, they shall not deliuer the cleare into his hande: because he smote his frende ignorantlye, and hated hym not before tyme.

And he shall dwell in the sayde cytie vntill he stāde before S cōgregatio in Judgement, * and vntill the death of the hye preaste that shalbe in those dayes: for then shall the cleare retourne, and come vnto his awne cytie, and vnto his awne house, and vnto the cytie fro whence he fled. And they sanctified Kedes i Calile, in mounte Rephthali, and Sichem in mounte Ephraim, and Kiriatharbe (which is Hebzon) in the mountaine of Juda. And on the other syde Jordā ouer agaynst Jericho eastwarde, they appointed Bozor in S wildernesse vpon the playne, out of S tribe of Ruben: & Ramoth in Silead out of the trybe of Gad: and Golan in Basān out of S trybe of Manasses. These were the cyties appoynted for all S children of Issrael, and for the straunger S sojourned amonge them, that whosoener killed any persō ignorantlye, S same might flee thether, & shulde not die by the hand of the auenger of bloude, vntill he stode before the congregacion: * (to declare his cause.)

The .xxi. Chapter.

The cyties geuen to the Leuites, in nombre .xliiii.

And then came the principall fathers of the Leuities vnto Eleazar S preaste, and vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, and vnto S auncient fathers that were ouer the trybes of the children of Issrael, & spake vnto them at Silo in the lande of Canaan, saying: * the Lorde commaunded by Moses, to geue vs cyties to dwell in, with the suburbs therof, for oure catell. And S childre of Issrael gaue vnto S Leuites out of their enheritaunce at S bidding of S Lorde these cyties folowing w their suburbs.

And the lotte cam out for the kynred of the Cahathites: and the childre of Aaron the preaste, which were of the Leuities, had geuen them by lott, out of the trybe of Juda, out of the trybe of Simeon, and out of S trybe of Beniamin: thirtene cyties. And the reast of the children of Cahath had by lotte, out of the kynredes of S trybe of Ephraim, out of S trybe of Dan, and out of S halfe trybe of Manasses: ten cyties. And the childre of Gerson had by lotte out of S kynredes of the trybe of Issacar, and out of the trybe of Asser, out of the trybe of Rephthali & out of the other halfe trybe of Manasses i Basān: thirtene cyties. And S children of Merari by their kynredes, had out of the trybe of Ruben, and out of the trybe of Gad, and out of the trybe of Sabulon, twelue cyties: And the children of Issrael gaue by lotte vnto the Leuities these cyties with their suburbs, as the Lorde commaunded by Moses.

And they gaue out of the trybe of S children of Juda, & out of the trybe of the childre of Simeon, these cyties by name: which the children of Aaron beig of the kynredes of the Cahathites, & of the childre of Leu, obtayned: for theirs was the fyrst lotte.

And they gaue them Kiriath Arbe of the father of Enack (which is Hebzon) in the hyl contreye of Juda, with the suburbs of the same rounde about it. But the londe that pertayned to the cytie, and the villages therof, gaue they to * Caleb the sonne of Jephune, to be his possession.

And thus they gaue to S children of Aaron the preast, a cyte, to the which S slayer might flye: euen Hebzon with her suburbs: Libna with her suburbs: & Jathir with her suburbs, & Estimoa with her suburbs: Holon w her suburbs, Dabir with her suburbs: Ain with her suburbs: Jutah with her suburbs: Bethsames with her suburbs: nyne cyties out of those two trybes. And out of the trybe of Beniamin, they gaue Gibeon with her suburbs: Caba w her suburbs: Anatoth with her suburbs: Alinon with her suburbs: foure cyties. All these cyties of S childre of Aaron preastes, were thirtene cyties with their suburbs. And S kynredes of the children of Cahath that were Leuities: that is to saye the other childre of Cahath, had cyties geue the for their lotte, out of the trybe of Ephraim. For they gaue them the cytie S the cleare might flye vnto: Sichem with her suburbs, in mounte Ephraim: and Gazer with her suburbs, and Kabzaim with her suburbs: & Bethhoron with her suburbs: foure cyties.

And out of the halfe trybe of Manasses, Chanach with her suburbs: and Gathremon with her suburbs: two cyties. All the cyties for the other kynredes of S children of Cahath, were ten with their suburbs.

And vnto the children of Gerson which were of the kynredes of the Leuities, they gaue out of S other halfe trybe of Manasses, the cytie of refuge for the cleare: Golan in Basān with her suburbs: & Bestheharah with her suburbs: two cyties. And out of the trybe of Issacar, Kision with her suburbs: and Daberah with her suburbs: & Jarimoth with her suburbs: Enganim with her suburbs: foure cyties.

And out of the trybe of Aser, Misael with her Suburbs: Abdon with her Suburbs, Malakach with her Suburbs: & Rohob with her Suburbs: foure cyties. And out of the trybe of Nephtali, the cytie for the hear to flye vnto: kedesh in Galile with her Suburbs: & Hamothdor with her Suburbs: & Carthan with her Suburbs: thre cities. All the cities of the Gersonites thow out their kynredes, were thirtene cyties with their Suburbs.

And vnto the other kynredes of the child of Merari, the rest of the Leuites, they gaue out of the trybe of Zabulon: Iecnan with her Suburbs: & Carthah with her Suburbs: Danna with her Suburbs, & Mahalal with her Suburbs: foure cyties. And out of the trybe of Ruben, Bozor with her Suburbs: and Jabelah with her Suburbs: Kedmoth with her Suburbs, and Naphtaath with her Suburbs: foure cyties. And out of the trybe of Gad, they gaue p cytie for p leat to flye vnto: Ramoth in Gilead with her Suburbs, and Mahanaim with her Suburbs, Hesbon with her Suburbs: & Jaser with her Suburbs: foure cyties in all, so that all the cyties of p children of Merari thow out their kynredes (which were the rest of the kynredes of the Leuites) were by their lot, twelue cyties. And all the cyties p the Leuites had among the possession of p children of Israel were xliiii. with their Suburbs. And these cyties laye euery one seuerally, hauyng their Suburbs rounde aboute them thow out all the sayde cyties. And p Lorde gaue vnto Israel all the lande which he sware to geue vnto their fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelt therein. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde aboute, accordyng to all p he sware vnto their fathers: and there stode not a man of all their enemyes before them. The Lorde also deliuered all theyr enemyes into their handes. * There shapd nothing of all the good thynges, which the Lord had sayde vnto the house of Israel, But all came to passe.

The. xxii. Chapter.

Ruben, Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasses are sent agayne to their possessions. They buyde an altare for a memoriall.

When Josua called vnto the Rubenites, the Gaddites and to the halfe trybe of Manasses, and sayde vnto them: * ye haue kept all that Moyses p seruauit of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: ye haue not leste poure brethren of a long reason vnto this daye, but haue kept the commaundement of the Lorde poure God.

And now that the Lorde hath geuen rest

vnto poure brethren as he promysed them, therfore retourne ye, and go vnto poure tentes, & vnto the lande of poure possession, which Moyses the seruauit of the Lorde gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

But in any wise take diligent hede, and do the commaundement and lawe, whych Moyses the seruauit of the Lorde charged you: * that ye loue the Lorde poure God, and walke in all hys wayes, and kepe hys commaundementes, and cleaue vnto him, and serue him with all poure hertes, & all poure soules. And so Josua blessed them and sent them awaye. And they wet vnto their tentes.

Vnto the one halfe of the trybe of Manasses Moyses gaue possession in Balan: & vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua amonge their brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And Josua sent them awaye also vnto their tetes, and blessed them, and sayd vnto them: retourne with moche ryches vnto poure tentes, and with a great multitude of catell, with syluer and golde, with brasse, and yron, and with moch raiment and * deuide the spoyle of poure enemyes with poure brethren.

And the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and halfe p trybe of Manasses, returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Silo (which is in the lande of Canaan) to go vnto the cōtrepe of Giliad, to the lande of their possession, which they had opteyned, accordig to the worde of the Lorde by the hande of Moyses. And when they came vnto p place of Geliloth belyde Jordan (that is in the lande of Canaan) there the children of Ruben, the children of Gad and p halfe trybe of Manasses, buyt an altare faste by Jordan, and that a great altare to se to. Which when the children of Israel hearde of, they sayd: beholde, p children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasses haue buyt an altare in the forefront of p lande of Canaan euen in Geliloth belyde Jordā on the syde of p children of Israel. And when the children of Israel heard of it, p whole congregation of p childre of Israel gathered the together to Silo, to make batell agaynst them. And the childre of Israel sent vnto the children of Ruben, and to the children of Gad, and to p halfe trybe of Manasses, into the lande of Gilead, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preaste, & with him ten Lordes, of euery chiefe house a Lord, thow out all p tribes of Israel, which were heades of their fathers householdes among p thousandes of Israel. And they wet vnto p children of Ruben, and to the children of Gad, & to the children of the halfe trybe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Gilead, and they

they spake with them, saying.

Thus saye the hole congregaciō of the Lorde: * what transgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynst the God of Israel, to turne awaye this daye fro p Lord in that ye haue bylded you an altare, for to rebele this daye agaynst the Lorde? Is the * wicked deade of Deor to lyttell for vs, wherof we are not yet cleansed vnto this daye, and for the which there was in p congregation of the people a plague of p Lord? Ye also are turned awaye this daye from the Lorde. And seynge ye rebele to daye agaynst the Lorde, it wil come to passe, that to morow he shall be wroth w all the congregation of Israel. Notwithstandyng ye pe thinke, that the lande of poure possession is vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of p Lorde, where in p Lordes tabernacle dwelleth, & take possession amonge vs. But transgresse not agaynst p Lorde, nor prouoke vs, to buyde you anye other altare, saue p altare of the Lorde oure God. * Wpd not Acan the sonne of Zareth trespass i p excommunicate thig, & wrath fell on all p cōgregation of Israel, which notwithstandinge that he was but one man, yet he alone perished not for his wickednesse.

Then p children of Ruben & the children of Gad, and halfe the trybe of Manasses answered, and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel: The God of goddes, the Lorde, God of goddes, euen p Lord he knoweth, & Israel also shall knowe. If it be to rebele, or to transgresse agaynst p Lorde, then thou Lorde saue vs not this daye. * Elles if we haue bylt vs an altare to turne fro folowynge the Lorde, or to offer theron burnt offeringe or meatoffrige, or to offer peace offeringes theron: let p Lorde require it. * (and iudge) And ye haue not rather done it of a carefulesse & of a sure occasiō, sayenge: In tyme to come poure children might laye vnto oures: what haue ye to do with p Lorde God of Israel? p Lorde hath made Jordā a border betwene vs and you (ye children of Ruben and of Gad) ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde: and so shall poure children make oure children cease from fearinge the Lorde.

Therfore we * (toke better aduise) sayd: We wil make vs an altare, not for burnt-offeringe, nor for sacrifice, but for a witness betwene vs and you, and oure generacions after vs, that we shulde serue the Lorde, with oure offeringes, sacrifices and peace offeringes before him: and that poure children shulde not saye to oures in tyme to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde.

Therfore sayde we, that if they shulde so saye to vs or to oure generaciōs in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the fastiō of the altare of the Lorde, which oure fathers made, nether for burnt-offerynges nor sacrifices, but for a witness betwene vs and you. God for byd, that we shuld rebele agaynst the Lorde, and turne this daye fro after him, & buyld any other altare for burnt offeringes, oblaciōs, or sacrifices, saue the altare of the Lorde oure God, that is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the preaste, and the Lordes of p congregation and heades ouer the thousandes of Israel which were with him, hearde these wordes that the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad and the childre of Manasses spake, they were well content. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preaste sayde vnto the children of Ruben, and to the children of Gad, & to the childre of Manasses: this daye we perceaue, that the Lord is among vs, because ye haue not done this trespass agaynst p Lorde: Now ye haue rydde the children of Israel out of the hande of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preaste w the Lordes, returned from the children of Ruben, and fro the children of Gad out of the lande of Gilead vnto p lande of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought them this worde agayne. And the sayeng pleased the children of Israel, and they blessed God, and byd not entende to go agaynst them in batell, & to destroye the lande which the children of Ruben and Gad dwelt in. And the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad called the altare: Dure witness, that the Lorde is God.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Josua exhorteth the people, that they fornye not them selues to the Gentiles.

Ad it came to passe a longe reason after that the Lorde had geuen reste vnto Israel from all theyr enemyes rounde about, that Josua wared olde, and was stricken in age. And Josua called for all Israel, and for their elders, their heades their Judges and officers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and stryken in age.

And ye haue sene all that p Lorde poure God hath done vnto all these naciōs before you, how p Lorde poure God hath foughte for you. Beholde, I haue subdued vnto you these naciōs p remayne, to be an heritage for poure tribes: euen from Jordan, and (from the lande) of all the naciōs that I haue destroyed, euen vnto the great See westwarde. * (And there remayne yet many naciōs.) And the Lorde poure God shall expell the before you, and cast the from out of poure sight, and ye shall conquere their lande, as the Lorde poure God hath saide vnto you.

Go to therfore * as strongly as ye maye,

that ye

that ye take hede and do all that is written in the booke of the lawe of Moyses, * that ye bowe not a syde therfro, to the ryght hand or to the lefte: and lest that wha ye come amonge these nacions, (euen amonge these that are left with you) ye make mencion or sweare by the names of their goddes: and that ye nether serue them, nor bowe youre selues vnto them. But that ye sticke fast vnto y^e Lorde youre God, as ye haue done vnto this daye. So shall y^e Lorde cast out before you great nacions and myghtye, as no man hath bene able to stande before you hitherto. * One man of you shall chase a thousand: for y^e Lorde youre God he fighteth for you, as he hath promised you. Take good hede therfore vnto youre selues, y^e ye loue the Lorde youre God.

Else, yf ye go backe and cleaue vnto the rest of these nacions y^e remayne wyth you, and shall make mariages with them, & go in vnto them, and they to you: be ye sure, that y^e Lorde youre God will nomore cast out all these nacions fro before you. * But they shall be snarres and trappes vnto you and scourges in youre sydes, and thornes in youre eyes, vntyll ye perishe fro of this good lande, whych the Lorde youre God hath geuen you.

And behold, this daye, do I entre in to the waye of all the worlde, & ye knowe in all your hertes & in all your soules, that * nothyng hath fayled of all the good thynges which the Lorde youre God promysed you: But all are come to passe, & nothyng hath fayled therof. Therfore, as all good thynges are come vpon you, which the Lorde youre God promysed you, so shall y^e Lorde byrnyng vpon you all euell, vntyll he haue destroyed you fro of this good lande, whych y^e Lorde youre God hath geuen you, wher ye haue transgressed the appointmēt of the Lorde youre God, which he comaunded you: and haue gone and serued straunge goddes, and bowed youre selues to the. Then shall the wrath of the Lorde waxe whote vpon you, & ye shall perishe quickely fro of the good lande, which he hath geuen you.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Josua exhorteth the people to the keeping of the lawe. He dyeth. The bones of Joseph are buried. Eleazar dyed.

And Josua gathered all the trybes of Israel to Sichem, and called for y^e elders of Israel, and for they^r heades, Judges and officers, and they presented them selues before God. And Josua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: * youre fathers dwelt on the other syde of the floud in olde tyme: euen Chareh the father of Abraham & of Nachor, and serued straunge goddes.

And I toke youre father Abraham from the other syde of the floud, & brought him thorow out all the lande of Canaan, & multiplied his seed, and * gaue him Iahac.

And I gaue vnto Iahac, Jacob & Esau. * And I gaue vnto Esau mount Seir, to possesse it. But Jacob and his childre wet downe into Egypte.

I sent Moyses also & Aaron. And I * plagued Egypte: & whan I had so done among them, I brought you out, and I brought your fathers out of Egypte. And as they came vnto the see, the Egyptians folowed after youre fathers with charettes & horsemen, vnto the redd see. * And whan they cried vnto the Lord, the Lord put darkness betwene you and the Egyptians, and brought the see vpon them, and couered the. And youre eyes haue sene what I haue done to the Egyptians. And ye dwelt in the wilderness a longe ceason.

And * I brought you into the lande of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other syde Jordan. And they fought with you: and I gaue them into your hand, that ye myght conquere their contre. And I destroyed the from out of youre syght.

* Then Balak the sonne of ziphor, king of Moab aroose, & warred agaynst Israel, & sent & called Balaam the sonne of Beor, for to curse you. But I wolde not hearken vnto Balaam, & therfore he rather blessed you: And so I deliuered you out of his hande. And ye wet ouer Iordā, and came vnto Jericho, and the men of Jericho fought agaynst you: the Amorites, Phereites, Canaanites, hethites, Gergolites, heuites, & Jebusites, and I deliuered them in to your hande.

And I sent * hornettes before you, which cast them out of youre sight: euen the two kinges of the Amorites: but not with your owne swerde, or with your owne bowe. And I haue geuen you a lande, in which ye dyd no labour, and cyties which you bilt not, and which ye dwell in: vineyardes also, and Olyue trees which ye planted not, and wherof ye do eate.

* Now therfore feare the Lorde, & serue him in perfectnelle and truth: And put awaye the goddes, which youre fathers serued on the other syde of the floud, and in Egypte, and serue ye the Lorde. And yf it seme euell vnto you to serue the Lorde, the chose you this daye whom you will serue: whether the goddes which youre fathers serued (that were on the other syde of the floud) ether the Goddes of the Amorites, in whole land ye dwell. As for me and my howse, we will serue the Lorde.

The people answered and sayde: God forbyd, that we shulde forsake the Lorde, and serue serue straunge goddes. For the Lorde oure God, he it is that brought vs and oure fathers out of the lande of Egypte, and from the howse of bondage, and which dyd those great miracles in oure syght, & preserued vs in all the waye that we went, & amonge all the nacions which we came thorow. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the nacions, specially the Amorites, which dwelt in the lande. And therfore will we also serue the Lorde, for he is oure God.

And Josua sayd vnto the people, Ye can not serue the Lorde: for he is an holpe God, and a gelous God, and cannot beare youre iniquite and synne. Yf ye forsake the Lorde and serue straunge goddes, * he will turne and do you euell, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. And the people sayde vnto Josua: naye, but we will serue the Lorde.

And Josua sayde vnto the people: ye are witnesses youre selues, that ye haue chosen you the Lorde, to serue him: and they sayd: we are wytnesses. Then put awaye (sayde he) the straunge goddes which are amonge you, and bowe youre hertes vnto y^e Lorde God of Israel. The people sayde vnto Josua: the Lorde oure God will we serue, and his voyce will we obeie, And so Josua * made a couenant with the people the same daye, and set an ordinaunce and lawe before them in Sichem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in the booke of the lawe of God, and * toke a great stone, and pitched it on ende in y^e sayde place, euen vnder an oke that was in the sanctuary of the Lorde. And Josua sayde vnto to all y^e people: beholde, * this stone shalbe a witnesse vnto vs, for it hath hearde all y^e wordes of the Lorde which he spake wyth vs. It shalbe therfore a witnesse vnto you, lest ye denye * (and dissemble with) your God. And so Josua let the people departe, euery man vnto his inheritaunce.

And after these thinges it came to passe, that Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the Lorde died, beinge an hundred and ten yeres olde. And they buried hym in the cōtre of hys inheritaunce, euen in Thānath Sarch, which is in mount Ephraim, on the northsyde of the hill of Gaas.

And Israel serued the Lord * all y^e dayes of Josua, & all the dayes of the elders that ouerlyued Josua, and whych had knowne all y^e wordes of the Lorde that he had done for Israel. And the * bones of Joseph, which the childre of Israel brought out of Egypte, buried they in Sichem in a parcell of grounde, whych Jacob bought of y^e sonnes of Hemor the father of Sichem, for an hundred peaces of syluer, and it became the inheritaunce of the children of Joseph. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron dyed, whom they buried in a hill that pertayned to Phinehes his sonne, which hill was geuen him in mount Ephraim.

Judicum.

The .xv. Chapter.

After Josua was dead, Juda was conditute
Lorde ouer the aempe.

After the death of Josua it came to passe, that the childre of Israel asked y^e Lorde saying: Wh^o all go vp for vs against the Cananites, and who shall first fight agaynst them. And the Lorde sayde: Juda shall go vp beholde I haue deliuered the lande in to hys handes. And Juda sayde vnto Simeon hys brother: come vp with me in my lotte, that we maye fight agaynst the Cananites. And I lyke wyll go with the into thy lotte. And so Simeon went with him.

And Juda went vp, and the Lorde deliuered y^e Cananites & Phereites to thei^r handes. And they slewe of them in Bezek ten thousand men. And they founde Adoni bezek in Bezek. And they fought agaynst him, and slewe y^e Cananites and Phereites. But Adonibeze fled, & they folowed after hym, and caught hym, and cut of his thobes and his great toes. And Adonibeze sayde: thre skore & ten kynges hauing their thombes and great toes cut of, gathered their meate vnder my table: * as I haue done, so God hath done to me againe. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he dyed.

The children of Juda fought agaynst Jerusalem, and toke it * and smote it wyth y^e edge of the swerde, and set the cytie on fire. Afterwarde the children of Juda went to fight agaynst the Cananites, that dwelt in the mountayne, and towarde the south, & in the lowe contreye. And Juda went agaynst the Cananites that dwelt in Hebrō, which befoze tyme was called kariath Arbe. And slew Helai, Ahiman & Chalmi. And fro thence they went to the inhabitants of Debir, whose name i olde tyme was called kariathsepher. (that is a cytie of letters.)

And Caleb sayde * he that smyteth kariathsepher, & taketh it, to him will I geue my daughter to wyfe. And Othniel the sonne of Kenes Calebs younger brother toke it: to whom he gaue his daughter to wyfe, and as they went, he counceiled hym to aske of her father a felde. And then she lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She answered vnto hym: geue me a blessing: for thou hast geue me a Southward (or drye) lāde, geue me also springes of water. And Caleb gaue her springes both aboue & beneath. And the children of the Kenites Moyses father in lawe went vp * out of Egypt of palme trees with the childre of Juda into the wyldernesse of Juda, that lieth in the South of Arad, and they wet and dwelt amonge the people.

And Juda went with Simeon hys brother, and they slew the Cananites that inhabited zephath, and utterly destroyed it, * and called the name of the cytie Horma. And at the last Juda toke Asah wyth the coastes therof, and Ashalon wyth the coastes therof, and Abaron with the coastes therof, and the lorde was wyth Juda, and he conquered the mountaynes, but coulde not dyspue out y^e inhabitants of the valepes because they had charcttes of yron. And they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moyses sayde. And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of Enach.

* And the children of Benjamin dyd not cast out the Jebusites, that inhabited Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwell wyth the childre of Benjamin in Jerusalem vnto this dape.

* And in lyke maner they y^e were of the house of Joseph wet vp to Bethel & y^e lord was wyth the, & y^e house of Joseph serched out Bethel, which befoze tyme was called Lus. And the spyces sawe a man come out of the cytie, and they sayde vnto hym: shewe vs the waye into the cytie, * and we will shewe the mercy. And whan he had shewed them the waye into the cytie, they smote it wyth the edge of the swerd, but let the man and all hys housholde goo free. And y^e man went into the lande of the Hethites, and bult a cytie, and called y^e name therof Lus which is the name therof vnto this dape.

* Nether dyd Manasses expelle Bethseā with her townes, Chaanach wyth her townes, the inhabitants of Dor with her townes, y^e inhabitants of Jebelam wyth her townes, nether y^e inhabitants of Magdo wyth her townes, but the Cananites were bolde to dwell in the lande. But it came to passe y^e as lone as Israell was waxed myghtie, they put the Cananites to tribute and expelled them not.

* In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Cananites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Cananites dwell stille in Gazer amonge them.

Nether dyd Zabulon expelle the inhabitants of Keton, nether the inhabitants of Nahalol: But y^e Cananites dwell amonge them, and became tributaries.

* Nether dyd Aser cast out the inhabitants of Acho, nether the inhabitants of Zidon, & of Ahalab, Aczib, & Halbah, Aphelk, nez of Rohob, but the Aserites dwell amonge the Cananites the inhabitants of the lande, for they might not dyspue them out.

Nether dyd Nephtalim dyspue out the inhabitants of Bethsames, nor the inhabitants of Bethanath, but dwell amonge the Cananites the inhabitants of y^e lande. Nethertheless the inhabitants of Bethsames & of Bethanath became tributaries vnto them.

And the Amorites troubled the childre of Dan in the mountayne, and suffered them not to come downe to the valepe. And the Amorites were content to dwell in mount Heres (which is by interpretacion: a wynter house) in Hailon and in Salabim. And the hand of Joseph preuayled, so that they became tributaries: & the coaste of y^e Amorytes was from the goyng vp to Acrabim, and from the rocke vpwarde.

The .ii. Chapter.

The Angell rebuketh the people, because they had made peace wyth the Cananites. Idolaters are punished.

And the angell of the Lorde came vnto Gilgal to Bochim, & sayde: I made you to come out of Egypte, and haue brought you vnto the lande which I sware vnto youre fathers. * And I sayd: I wyll not breake myne appoyntment y^e I made with you. And ye also shall make no covenant wyth the inhabitants of this lande, but shall breake downe their altars: Nethertheless ye haue not hearkened vnto my voice, why haue ye this done? Wherefoze, I haue lyke wyse determyned, y^e I wyll not cast the out befoze you: but they shall be thornes vnto you, and their goddes shall be a snare vnto you. And when the angell of the Lorde spake these wordes vnto all the childre of Israel, the people cryed out and wepte: And called the name of the sayde place * Bochim, and offered sacrifices vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua had sent the people awaye, the childre of Israel went euerye man into hys inheritaunce to possesse the lande. * And the people serued the Lord all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that out lyued Josua, and had sene all the great workes of the lord that he dyd for Israel: and Josua the sonne of Nun the seruant of the Lorde dyed, when he was an hundred & ten yeres olde: whom they buried in the colles of hys inheritaunce: euen in Chamnath baires in mount Ephraim on the northside of the hyll Gaas. And euen so all that generacyon were put vnto their fathers, and there arose another generacyon after them whych nether knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes whych he had done for Israel.

And then y^e childre of Israel dyd wyche in the syght of the lorde, and serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of their fathers, whych brought them out of the land of Egypte, and folowed straunge goddes, euen of the goddes of the nacjons that were round aboute them, and bowed them selues vnto them and angred the lorde. They forsoke the lord, and serued Baal and Ashtaroth, and the wrath of the lorde waxed hote agaynst Israel, and he deliuered them into the handes of raueners, that spoyled the, and solde them into the handes of their enemyes rounde aboute them, so y^e they had no power any longer to stāde befoze their enemyes. But whether soeuer they went out, the hand of the lord was agaynst them with euell lucke, euen as the lord promysed them, & as he sware vnto them. And he punished them sore.

Nethertheless the lorde raysed vp Judges, which deliuered them out of the handes of their oppressors, and yet for all that they wold not harken vnto their Judges: But rather went a whoyring after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quickely out of y^e waye, which their fathers walked in, obeying the commaundementes of the Lord: But they dyd not so.

And when the lord raysed them vp Judges, he was with the Judge, and deliuered them out of the handes of their enemyes all the dayes of the Judge * for the Lorde had compassyon ouer their sorowinges, whych they had, by the reason of them y^e oppressed them & vexed them: yet for all y^e as lone as the iudge was dead, they turned and dyd wyll y^e their fathers, in folowinge straunge goddes, and in scruping them, and ceased not from their owne inuencions, nor from their malycouse waye.

And the wrath of the Lorde was moued agaynst Israel, & he sayde: because this people hath transgressed myne appoyntment which I commaunded their fathers, & haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, I wyll hence furth not cast out befoze the one man of the nacjons, which Josua leaft when he dyed, y^e though them I maye proue Israell, whether they wyll kepe the waye of the Lorde, & walke therein, as their fathers dyd or not

And so the Lord leaft those naciōs, & droue them not out ynnedyatlye, nether delyuered them into the hande of Josua.

The.iii. Chapter.

Othoniell delyuereth Israel. Ahud killeth Eglon. Samgar killeth the Philistines.

These are the nacys which the Lord left, that he myght proue Israel by the: euen as manye of Israel as had not knowen all the warres of Canaan: Onlye for the lernyng of the generacyon of the chyldre of Israel: he also myght teach them warre, in as much as they were before them, knew nothing therof. Of those who he left, there were fyue lordes of the Philistines, & all the Cananites, & the Sodonites, and the Heuites that dwelt in mount Libanon: euen from mount Baal hermon vnto Hemath. Those remayned to proue Israel by, and to wete, whether they wold hearken vnto the commaundementes of the lord, which he commaunded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

And the chyldre of Israel dwelt amonge the Cananites, Hethites, Amozites, Where sites, Heuites, and Jebusytes, & toke the daughters of them to be their wyues, & gaue their owne daughters to their sonnes, & serued their Goddes. And the chyldre of Israel did wickedlye in the syght of the lord, and forgate the lord their God, and serued Baalim & Aseroth. Therefore the lord was angrye with Israel, & delyuered the into the handes of Chusan Rishathaim kyng of Mesopotamia, and the chyldren of Israel serued Chusan Rishathaim. viii. yeres.

And when the chyldre of Israel cryed vnto the lord, the lord stered vp a sauer, to the chyldre of Israel, & saued the: one Othoniell the sonne of Kenes. Calebs younger brother. And the sprete of the lord came vpon him. And he indged Israel, and wet out to warre. And the lord delyuered Chusan Rishathaim kyng of Mesopotamia into his hande, & his hande preyed agaynst Chusan Rishathaim. And the lande had rest fourtye yeres, and Othoniell the sonne of Kenes died.

ii. par. 1. b.

And the chyldren of Israel wet to agayne, & comitted wickednesse in the syght of the lord. And the Lord strenghted Eglon the kyng of the Moabites, agaynst the chyldre of Israel, because they had comitted wickednesse before the lord. And this (Eglon) gathered vnto hym the chyldren of Ammon, and the Amalekites, and went and smote Israel, & coquered the cite of Paulme trees. And so the chyldre of Israel serued Eglon the kyng of Moab. xviii. yeres. But when they cryed vnto the lord, the lord stered the vp a sauer. Ahud the sonne of Gera the sone of Jemini. a man that coude do nothing hand- some with his ryght hande.

And by him the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab: but Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte length, & he dyd gyde yt vnto his rayment vpon his right thygh, and carryed the present vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab: And Eglon was a very fatte man. And it fortuneth that when he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe turned agayne (fro the place of graue ymages, that was by Gilgal) and sayde: I haue a secret errand vnto the, O kyng. Which sayde: kepe sylence. And all that stode before hym, went out from hym.

And Ahud came vnto hym, and in a somer parler, which he had, sat he by selfe alone, and Ahud sayde: I haue a message vnto the fro God. And he arose out of his seate. And Ahud put forth his lefte hande, & toke the dagger fro his ryght thygh, & thrust it into his belye, and the hyst went in after the blade. And the fatte, closed the hyst, so he myght not drawe the dagger out of his belye, but the dyt came out. Ahud gat him out at a posterne doore, and shut the doores of the parler about him, and locked them.

When he was gone out, his seruantes came, and when they sawe that the doores of the parler were locked, they sayde: peradventure he couereth his fete in his somer chaber. And they taried tyll they were ashamed, and beholde: sayng he opened not the doores of the parler: they toke a keye, ad opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe dead on the erthe. And Ahud eskaped (whyle they tarped) and was gone beyonde, to the place of the graue ymages, and eskaped into Seirath.

And when he was come, he blewe a trompette in mount Ephraim. And the chyldre of Israel wet downe wyth hym from the hyll and he went before them. And he sayde vnto them, folowe me: for the Lord hath delyuered your enemyes, the Moabites into your hande. And they descended after him, and toke the passages of Jordan, towarde Moab, and suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slew of the Moabites the same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, which were all fatte & men of warre, & there shapened not a man, so Moab was subdued that daye, vnder the hande of Israel: and the land had rest. lxxx. yeres.

After hym was Samgar the sonne of Anath, whych slewe of the Philistines. vi. hundred men with an oxe goade, and delyuered Israel also.

The.iii. Chapter.

Deboza and Barak delyuer Israel: Sisera is killeth of Jael.

And the

And the chyldren of Israel beganne agayne to do wickedlye in the syght of the Lord, when Ahud was dead. And the Lord sold them into the hande of Jabin kyng of Canaan, & raygned in Hazor, whose captayne of warre was called Sisera, which dwelt in Haroseth of gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lord: for he had nyne hundred charrettes of yron, & twentie yeres he troubled the chyldren of Israel very sore.

And Deboza a Prophetsse, the wyfe of Lapidoth Judged Israel the same tyme, & the same Deboza dwelt vnder a paulme tree betwene Ramath and Bethell, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came vp to her for iudgement. And she sent & called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedesh Nephtholim, and sayde vnto him. Hath not the Lord God of Israel comaunded the, to leade w faire wordes men to moite Chabor, and take with the ten thousande me, of the chyldre of Nephtholim & of the chyldren of Zabulon: And I will bypnyng vnto the to the ryuer kyslon, Sisera, & Captayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charettes, & his people, and will delyuer him to thyne handes. And Barak sayde vnto her: yf thou wilt go with me, I will go: But yf thou wilt not come with me, I will not goo: She sayde: I will surely go with the, but this iourney thou takest, shall not be for thyne honoure, for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hande of a woman. Deboza wet with Barak to kedesh. And Barak called zabulō & Nephtholim to kedesh, & led after hym ten thousande men: and Deboza went vp with him.

But Haber the Kenite (which was of the chyldren of Hobab the father in lawe of Moses) remoued from the other Kenytes, & pytched his tete vntyll the playne of Zaanaim, whych is by kedesh. And they shewed Sisera, & Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mount Chabor. And Sisera gathered together all his charettes, eue. ix. hundred charettes of yron, & all the people were with him from Haroseth of the gentyles, vnto the ryuer of kyslon. And Deboza sayde vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in which the Lord hath delyuered Sisera into thyne hande: Is not the Lord gone out before the? And so Barak wet downe from mount Chabor, & ten thousande men after him.

But the Lord destroyed Sisera and all his charettes, & all his hoste with the edge of the swerde, before Barak: so the Sisera lyghted downe of his charett, & fled awaye on his fete. But Barak folowed after the charettes and after the hoste, eue vnto Haroseth of the gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisera fell vpon the edge of the swerde, and there was not a man lefte. Now be it Sisera fled awaye on his fete to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite: for there was peace betwene Jabin the kyng of Hazor, & the householde of Haber the Kenite.

And Jael went out to mete Sisera, and sayde vnto him: turne in my lord, turne in to me, feare not. And when he had turned in vnto her into her tete, she couered hym with a matell. And he layd vnto her, geue me a lyttel water to drynke, for I am thirstye. And she opened a bottell of mylke, & gaue hym drynke, & couered him. And agayne he layde vnto her: stāde in the doore of the tete, and when any man doth come and enquire of the, whether there be any man here, thou shalt saye: nape.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a nayle of the tente, & an hammer in her hand, & went softlye vnto hym, and smote the nayle into the temples of his head, and fastened it into the ground, for he slombered sore, and was deerep: And so he dyed.

And Beholde, as Barak folowed after Sisera, Jael came out to mete hi, & sayde vnto him: come, & I will shew the the man, whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tete: Beholde, Sisera laye dead, & a nayle was in his temples. And so God brought Jabin the kyng of Canaan into subieccio that daye before the chyldre of Israel. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered, & preyed agaynst Jabin the kyng of Canaan, vntill they had brought hi to naught.

The.v. Chapter.

The songe and thanckes geuyng of Deboza and Barak after the victorye.

When Deboza & Barak the sonne of Abinoam sang the same daye, sayng: Praise ye the Lord, & for the aueryng of Israel, and for the people that became so willing. Heare O ye kynges, hearken O ye prynces: I eue I, will syng vnto the Lord, I will praise the Lord God of Israel.

Lord, when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou departedst out of the felde of Edō, the erth trembled, & the heauens rayned: the cloudes also dropped water. The mountaynes melted before the lord, euen as dyd Sinai, before the lord God of Israel.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath, in the dayes of Jael, & the wayes were vnooccupied: And the runners of the pathe walked thorow by wayes.

The inhabytors of the towne were gone, they were gone in Israel, vntyll Deboza came vp, which came vp a mother in Israel. & they chose new goddes, and then had they (the enemye) in the gates, though they were wilde and speare. There was not a child or spere sene amonge fourtye thousande lande of Israel.

My hart loueth the gouerners of Israel, and them that are willing amonge the people. O prayse ye the Lorde.

Speake ye & ryde on sayre asses, & p sitt vppermost i iudgemēt, & walke by p wayes

At the cryeng of the archers amonge the drawers of water, there shall they speake of p righteousness of the Lorde, his righteousness in the vnfenced places of Israel: then shall the people of the Lorde go downe to the gates.

Up Deboza vp, get the vp, and syng a son ge: * Aryle Barac, and leade the captiue captiue, thou sonne of Abinoam.

Then shall they that remayne, haue dominio of the proudest of the people (of Jabbin:) The Lorde shall for my sake haue dominion ouer the myghtie. Out of * Ephraim was there a rote of them agaynst Amaleck, and after the, Benjamin amoge thy people. Out of Machir came rulers, & out of Zabulon they that gouerne the penne of the wypter.

And of Isachar, there were pynces with Deboza, Isachar also and Barac were sent on their fete into the valley, whā in the departing awaye of Rubē there were greate men, and wyle of hert.

Why abodest thou among the shepe foldes, to heare the bleatings of the flockes, & to separate thy selfe awaye w greate men and wyle of hert?

Silcad also abode beyonde Iordane: and why doth Dan remayne in thyppe?

After continued on the see shore, and taried in hys decayed places.

But the people of zabulon haue isoperde their lyues euen vnto the dethe, lyke as did Nephtalim in the hye places of the felde.

The kynge came & fought, then fought the kynge of Canaan in Chanah, by the waters of Megiddo, and wanne no money.

They fought frō heauen, euen the starres in their courtes fought agaynst Silera.

The ryuer of Ephon remoued them, that auncient ryuer, the ryuer Ephon: My soule shall treade (hym) downe mightely.

Then were the horse hofessmyttē asunder by p meames of the praisinges p their mightye men made.

Curse ye the cite of Meros (sayd the angell of p Lorde) curse the inhabitours thereof, because they came not to helpe p Lorde, to helpe the Lorde with the myghtie.

Jael the wife of Haber the kenpte shalbe blessed aboue other women, blessed shall she be aboue other women in the tent.

* He asked water, & she gaue him mylk, she brought furth butter in a lordly dish.

* She put hir hande to the nayle, and hir right hande to the synthes hammer: w the hammer smote she Silera, and smote hys heade, wouided him, & pearled his temples.

He bowed hym downe at hir fete, he fell downe & laye still: At hir fete he bowed him downe, & fell. And whē he had soncke downe, he laye still desolate.

The mother of Silera looked out at a wyndowe, & cried thowow p lattesse: Why is his charret so long a comyng? Why tarye the wheles of his cartes?

All the wyle ladyes answered her, ye and her a wne wordes answered hir selfe.

Surely they haue founde, they deuyde the spoyles: euery mā hath a dāsell or two: Silera hath a praye of diuerse couloured garments, eue a praye of raymēt dyed w sōdye colours, & p are made of nedle worke: rayment of diuerse colours & of nedle worke which is mete for him p is chefe in distributige of p spoyles. So perishe all thine enemies: O Lorde, but they p loue hi, let the be as the sonne whan he ryleth in his might, And the lande had rest fourtye yeres.

The. vi. Chapter.

Israel is oppressed of the Madianites: Gedeon is sent of God to be their deliuerer.

And the chyldre of Israel * comitted wpyckednes in the sight of the Lorde. * Jos. xiii. 24

And p Lorde deliuered them into the hādes of Madia seuen yeres. And the hande of Madian preyed agaynst Israel, & because of p Madianites, the chyldre of Israel made them denues in the mountaynes & caues and stronge holdes. And whē Israel had sowē, the Madianites, p Amalechites & they of p east contreye came vp together against them: & ptyched their tētes against them, & destroyed the encrease of the erthe, euen till p come vnto Azah: & lefte no sustenance for Israel, nether shepe, ore, or asse: for they went vp, they and their cattell, & came w their tētes as a multitude of grethopers: so p bothe they & also their camels were w out nōbre. And they etred into p lāde to destroye it. And so was Israel exceedingly impouered in p sight of p Madianites, & cryed vnto p Lorde. And whē p chyldre of Israel cryed vnto p Lorde because of the Madianites, p Lorde sent vnto them a prophet, which sayd vnto the: Thus sayth p lord god of Israel: I sette you frō Egypt & brought you out of p house of bondage, & I rydd you out of the hande of the Egyptians, & out of p hand of all p oppressed you & cast the out before you, & gaue you their land. And I sayd vnto you: I am the Lorde poure God, * feare not the goddesses of the Amorites in whose lande you dwell.

But you haue not obeyed my voyce. And the Angell of the Lorde came, & late vnder an Oke which was i Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas p father of p Eserites. And his his sonne Gedeon pressed out whete out of p eares in a presse, to hyde it from the Madianites: & the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, & sayde: the Lorde is wpth the, thou mightie mā of warre. And Gedeon answered him: Oh my Lorde, p the Lorde be wpth vs, why is all this come vpon vs? & where be all hys myracles which oure fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: Did not p lord bring vs out of Egypte? But now p Lorde hath forsaken vs, & deliuered vs into the hādes of the Madianites. And p Lorde looked vpo him, & sayd: Sobee in this thy might, and thou shalt deliuer Israel out of p hādes of the Madianites: Haue not I sent the? And he answered him: Oh lord, wherewith shall I saue Israel? Beholde, my kinred is poore in Manasses, and I am lytle in my fathers house. The Lorde sayd vnto him: I will be with the: and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one mā. And he answered him: Wh: p I haue soude grace i thy syght, the thewe me a sygne, that it is thou that talkest w me. Departe not hence, vntill I come agayne vnto the, and till I bring myne offryng, & haue sett it before the.

And he sayde: I wpll tarpe vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon went in, & made redye a kydd, and swete hakes of an Ephra of flowre, & put it w the fleshe in a basket, & put p broth i a potte, & brought it out vnto hym vnder the Oke, & presented it. And the angell of God sayd vnto him: take the flesch & p swete hakes, & laye the vpo this rocke, & powre out the broth. And he dyd so. The angell of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe p he helde in his hande, & touched the fleshe and the swete hakes. And * there arose vp fyre out of p rocke, & consumed the flesch & the swete hakes. But p angell of the Lorde vanished out of his syght. And whē Gedeon perceaued that it was an angell of the Lorde, he sayd: Alas, O Lord God, * haue I therfore sene an angell of the lord face to face, & I shulde dye? And the Lorde sayde vnto him: peace be vnto the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. The Gedeon made an aultare there vnto the Lorde, & called it: The Lorde of peace. And vnto thys daye it is yet in Ephrath, p pertayneth vnto the father of the Eserites. And it fortuned that p same nyght the Lorde sayde vnto him: take a pōg bullock out of thy fathers droue, & another of. vii. yeres olde, & destroye the aultare of Baal p thy father hath, & cutte downe the groue p is by it, & make an aultare vnto p Lorde thy God vpo p toppe of this rocke in a couenient place. And take the secōde bullock, & offer burnt sacrifice vpon p wodd of p groue, which p shalt cut downe. The Gedeon toke ten mē of his seruantes, & dyd as p Lorde bad him. But because he durst not do it by daye for feare of his fathers household & of the mē of the cytie, he dyd it by nyght.

And whē the mē of the cytie were vperlye in the morning: Beholde, the aultare of Baal was broken, & the groue cut downe p was by it, & the secōde bullock offered vpon the aultare that was made. And they sayde one to another: who hath done this thing? & whā they enquired & asked, they sayde: Gedeon p sonne of Joas hath done this thing. Then the mē of the cytie sayde vnto Joas: bringe out thy sonne, that he maye dye: because he hath destroyed p aultare of Baal, & cut downe p groue p was by it. And Joas sayde vnto all p stode by him: will ye leade Baals cause? or will ye be his defenders: he p hath medled agaynst hi, let him dye o the morninge. If he be a God, let him be auenged of him, that cast downe hys aultare. And from p daye was Gedeon called: Iero baal, because his father had sayde: Let Baal be auenged of hym, that hath broken downe his aultare.

All the Madianites therfore, & the Amalekites & they of the east, were geathered to geather, & wēt, & pitched in p valeye of Israel: but p sprete of the Lorde came vpo Gedeon. * And he blew a trōpette, & called: Abiezzer to folow hi, & sent messengers thorow out all Manasses, & called them, which also dyd folowe him. And he sent messengers vnto Aler, zabulō and Nephtalim, and they came to mete hym.

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: wilt p saue Israel in my hāde, as p hast sayde: Beholde, I wpll put a fleece of wolle in the threafsyng place. And p de we come on p fleece onlye, & it be drye vpon all the erth besyde, then shall I be sure, p p wilt saue Israel by my hāde, as p saydest. And it came so to passe. For he rose vperlye on the morowe, and thrust the fleece togeather, and wronge the dewe therout, & fylled a bowle of water: & Gedeon sayd agayne vnto God: be not angrye w me, p * I speake once moare. For I wpll proue once agayne by the fleece. Let it be drye onlye vpon the fleece, and dewe vpo all the grounde. And God did so that same nyght: For it was drye vpon the fleece onlye, & there was dew on all the grounde.

The. vii. Chapter.

Gedeon with. iiii. hund:ed men ouercometh the Madianites. dyed and zeb are slayn.

Then * Iero baal (other wylse called Gedeon) and all the people that were wpth hym, rose vperlye, and ptyched besyde the well of Harad, so that the hoste of the Madianites were on the northsyde of the rock that boweth towarde the valley. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: the people that are with p, are to many for me to geue the Madianites

Madianites into their handes, lest Israel make their vaunte agaynst me and saye: myne awne hande hath saued me. Now therfore make a proclamacyon in feares of the people, & saye: * yf any mā drede or be aferde, let him retourne. And y people arose erlye. And there departed & returned of the people which were at mount Gilcad. xxii. thousand, and there abode ten thousande.

B And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: y people are yet to many, byng them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto y there. And of whom I saye vnto the, thys shall go with the, the same shall go with y. And of who soeuer I saye vnto y, this shall not go wyth the, the same shall not go. So he brought downe the people vnto the water, and y Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water wyth theyr tonges, as a dogge doth, them put by them selues, & so do them y knele downe vpon their knees to dryncke. And the nobze of them that put there handes to their mouthes and lapped, were. iii. hundred men. But all y remnant of y people kneled downe vpon their knees to dryncke water. And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: By these thre hūdzd men that lapped water, wyll I saue you: and deliuer the Madianites into thynne hande. And let all the other people go euery man vnto his place.

They therfore of the people toke vitayles with them, & their trompettes. And he sent all y rest of Israel, euery mā vnto his tent, and comforted those thre hūdzd with him. And the host of Madian was benethe hym in a valeye. And it fortuned that the same nyght the Lord sayd vnto him: Arise, get the downe vnto y hoste, for I haue deliuered it into thynne hande. But yf thou feare to go downe, then go y & Pharah thy ladde downe to the hoost, & thou shalt heke what they saye, & so shall thynne handes be strong, to go downe vnto the hoste.

Then went he downe and Pharah hys ladde, euen harde vnto y men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the East, lay a longe in y valeye, lyke a multitude of greeshoppers, and their camelles were without nombze, euen as the sande by the see syde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come:

B Beholde, there was a mā that tolde a dreame vnto his neyghboure, & sayde: Behold, I dreamed a dreame, and me thought that a losse of barley bread, tumbled into y hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it that it felle, & ouerturned it, that the tente laye a longe. And his felowe answered and sayde: this is nothing elles saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel: for into his hāde hath God

deliuered Madian, and all the hoste.

When Gedeon hearde the tellynge of the dreame, and the interpretacion of the same, he wasorryed, and returned vnto the hoste of Israel: and sayde: vp, for the Lord hath deliuered into poure hande the hoste of Madian. And he deuoyded the thre hundred men into thre companies, & gaue euery man a trompet in his hande, wyth an emptye pytcher, and lampes theri, and sayde vnto them: loke on me, and do lyke wyse: that when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you: When I blowe wyth a trompet and all that are wyth me, blowe ye with tromptes also on euery syde of the hoste, & saye: here is the swerde of the Lord and of Gedeon.

And so Gedeon & the thre hundred men y were with him, came vnto the syde of the host in y begynnig of the myddell watche, & repyled vp y watche men. And they blew with their tromptes, & brake the pytchers y were in theyr hādes. And all y thre companies blew w tromptes & brake the pytchers, & helde the lampes in their left handes, and the trompettes in their ryght, to blowe wythall. And they cried: the swerde of the Lord and of Gedeon. And they stode still, euery man in his place rounde about the hoste. And they wythin the hoste, rāne, & cryed & fled. And the thre hundred blew wyth tromptes, & the Lord sett * euery mānes swerde vpon hys neyghboure, throw out all the hoste. And the hoste fled to Bethsitah, to zererath, & to the edge of the playne of Meholah vnto Cabath. And the men of Israel beyng gathered together out of y trybe of Reuphtalim, of Aser, & of all Manasses folowed after the Madianites. And Gedeon sent messengers vnto all moūt Ephraim, sayig: come downe agayst y Madianites, & take before the y waters vnto Bethbarath & to Jordā. Then all y men of Ephraim gathered together, & toke the waters vnto Bethbarath, & to Jordan. And they toke two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb and zeb, and slew Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and zeb at the presse zeb, & folowed after Madian. And brought the heades of Oreb and zeb, to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

The. viii. Chapter.

Ephraim maketh insurrection agaynst Gedeon, but is come pacified.

And the men of Ephraim sayde vnto hym: why hast y serued vs thus, that thou calledst vs not, whē thou wēstest to fyght with y Madianites? And they chode with hym a good, & (and had all most done hym violence.) And he sayde vnto them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto poures: & is not a not a cluster of Ephraim better, then the wyne heruest of Abiezer? God hath deliuered into poure handes the Lordes of Madian, Oreb and zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done? And the their spirytes abated fro of him, whē he had sayde y. And Gedeon came to Jordan to passe ouer, he & the thre hundred men that were with hym, verye faynte, and yet folowed the chace. And he sayde vnto the mē of Socoth: geue I praye you kakkes of bzyed vnto the people that folowe me: for they be fayntie, that I maye folowe after zebath, and zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayde: are the handes of zebath & zalmona now in thynne hādes, that we shulde geue bzyed vnto thynne arme? Gedeon sayde, therfore whē the Lord hath deliuered zebath and zalmona into myne hande, I wyll teare the fleshe of you with the thornes of the wilderness and w briers. And he went vp thence to Phanael, & spake vnto them lyke wyse. And the men of Phanael answered hym, as dyd the men of Socoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of Phanael: when I come agayne in peace, I wyll breake downe this towze. zebath and zalmona were in Carhar, and their hostes with them, vpon a. xv. thousand mē, which were all that were left of all the hostes of them of the East: for there were slayne a hundred and twentye thousande men, that dyed w swerdes.

D And Gedeon went thozowe them that dwell in Cabernacles on the east syde of Robah and Jebah, and smote the hoste: for the hoste did cast no perrelles. And whā zebah and zalmona fledde, he folowed after them, and toke the two kynges of Madian, zebath and zalmona, and discomforted all the hoste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned from battell, afore the sonne was downe, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, & enquired of him. And he wrote hym of y lordes & Elders of Socoth. lxxvii. mē. And he came vnto the men of Socoth, and sayde: Beholde, here I haue zebath and zalmona, w which ye did cast me in the tethe, sayinge: are the handes of zebath and zalmona allredye in thynne hāde, that we shuld geue bzyed vnto thy faintye mē? And he toke the elders of the citie, & thornes of y wilderness & briers, & made the mē of Socoth to fele the. And he brake downe the towze of y Phanael, & slew the men of the cytie.

And the sayd he vnto zebath & zalmona, what maner of mē were they whom ye slew at Chabor: and they answered: the lykenesse of the and them is all one, eue after the fallon of the chyliden of a kyng. And he sayde: they were my bzyethzen, euen my mothers chyliden. As trulpe as the Lord lyueth, yf ye had saued their lyues, I wolde not slepe you. And he sayde vnto Jether his eldest sonne: vp and slepe them: But the lad due not hys swerde, for he feared, because he was yet yong. Then zebath & zalmona sayde: Ryle thou, & falle vpon vs: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gedeon arose and slewe zebath and zalmona, & toke awaye the ornaments, that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon: Raygne thou ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne & thy sonnes sonne, for thou hast deliuered vs out of the hand of Madian. And Gedeon sayd vnto them: I wyll not raygne ouer you, nether shall my childe raygne ouer you, but the Lord shall raygne ouer you.

And agayne Gedeon sayde vnto them: I wolde deliue a certayne request of you, eue y you wolde geue me euery man y carnynges of his praye. For they had gold carnynges, because they were Ismaelites: & they answered: We wyll geue them. And they spreed a mantell, & dyd cast there in euery man y carnynges of hys pray: & the weyght of the golden carnynges y he required, was a thousand & seven hundred syces of golde, besyde cheynes, pomaunders and purple rayment: that was on the kynges of Madian, & besyde the cheynes, that were about their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, & put it in his citie Ephrah. And all Israel went a whoyng after it, in the same place, whych thynge became a ruyne vnto Gedeon and to his house. Thus was Madian brought lowe before y chyliden of Israel, so y they lyfte vp their heades no moare. And y contreye was in quietnes fourtye yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

And Jerobaall the sonne of Joas went, and dwelte in his awne house. And Gedeon had * lxx. sonnes of his bodye begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubine that was in Sichē, bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, in a good age, and was buried in the sepulchre of Joas his father, eue in Ephrah, that pertayned vnto the father of the Ezrites.

But it fortuned, that as sone as Gedeon was deed, y chyliden of Israel turned awaye & went a whoyng after Baalim, & made a counsaill w Baal to be their God, & y chyliden of Israel thought not on y Lord their god, which had deliuered the out of y hādes of all their enemyes on euery syde. Nether shewed they mercy on y house of Jerobaal, other wyse called Gedeon, according to all y goodnesse which he had shewed vnto Israel.

The. ix. Chapter.

Abimelech is made kyng.

Abimelech

*170. r. r. l. a

*171. r. r. l. a
and. r. r. d.

Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal wēt to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethren, and communed with them and with all his mothers fathers kired, saying I praye you, by the eares of all the inhabytours of Sichem: whether is better for you, that all the sonnes of Jerobaal (which are lxx. persones) raygne ouer you, ether that one raygne ouer you? Remembere, that I am of youre bone, and of youre flesh. And his mothers brethren spake of hym in the audience of the men of Sichem all these wordes, and their hartes were moued to folowe Abimelech. For they sayde: he is oure brother. And they gaue him lxx. peces of syluer out of the tēple of Baal Berith, where wyth Abimelech hyed daye and lyght personnes which wēt with him. And he went vnto hys fathers house at Shechem, and slewe all his brethren, the sonnes of Jerobaal, enen lxx. persones, with one stone. Not withstandynge, yet Joatham the yongest sonne of Jerobaal escaped, for he hyd hym selfe. And all the men of Sichem gathered together, and all the house of Hillo, & came and made Abimelech kyng in the playne, where p̄ great stone was by Sichem.

And when they tolde it to Joatham, he went and stode in the toppe of mount Garzim, and lyfte vp hys voyce, and cried, and sayde vnto them: herke vnto me you men of Sichem, p̄ God maye herke vnto you. The trees wēt forth to anoynt a king ouer them, and sayde vnto p̄ olyue tree: raygne thou ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayde vnto them: shulde I leaue my fattenesse, whych both goddes and men praye in me, and go to be promoted ouer p̄ trees? And the trees sayde to the fygge tree: come thou, and be king ouer vs. The fygge tree answered the: shuld I forsake my swetnes, and my good frute, ad go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne: come thou and be kyng ouer vs. The vyne sayde vnto them: shuld I leaue my wyne wherby I cheare bothe goddes and men, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? The trees sayde all the trees vnto the fyre bushe: come thou, & raygne ouer vs. And the fyre bushe sayde vnto p̄ trees: yf it be true p̄ ye will anoynt me kyng ouer you, then come, & put youre trust vnder my shadowe. Yf no, the fyre come out of the fyre bushe, and waste the Cedre trees of Libanon.

Now therfore, yf ye do trulpe and vncorruptlye, to make Abimelech kyng: and yf ye haue dealte well with Jerobaal and his house, & haue done vnto hym accordyng to the deservyng of his handes, iudge ye. For enen he (my father) fought for you, and aduentured his lyfe, and rydde you out of the hande of Hadan. And ye are rylen vp against my fathers house this daye, and haue slayue hys chyldren, enen lxx. personnes with one stone, and haue made Abimelech the sonne of his mayde seruaunt, kyng ouer the men of Sichem, because he is youre brother: yf ye the haue dealte trulpe and purelye with Jerobaal and with his house this daye, then reioyse ye wyth Abimelech, and let him reioyse with you. But yf you haue not dealte trulpe, then I praye God a fyre maye come out of Abimelech, and consume the mē of Sichem and the house of Hillo. And that there maye come a fyre frō amōg the men of Sichem, and out of the house of Hillo, and consume Abimelech. And Joatham ranne awaye, and fledde, and went to Beer and dwelt there, for feare of Abimelech his brother. When Abimelech had raygned thre yere, God sent a spere of hate betwene Abimelech, & p̄ men of Sichem. And p̄ cetezens of Sichem rayled vpon Abimelech, & wished p̄ the wickednes done to p̄ lxx. sonnes of Jerobaal myght come on him, and p̄ god wolde lape the bloude of them vnto Abimelech the brother whiche slewe the, and vpo the other men of Sichem which ayded him in the kylling of his brethren. And p̄ cetezens of Sichem set men to lape awaye for hym in the toppe of the mountaynes, which mē (whyle they taried for his commyng) robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

And Gaal the sonne of Abed came wyth his brethren, and they gat the to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put their confidence in him. And they went out into the felde, & geathered i their grapes, and troade them, and made mery: and went into the house of their goddes, and dyd eate and drynke, and cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Abed sayde: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? that we shulde serue him? Is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and zebul is his officer? Serue soche as come of? Hemoz p̄ father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue him? wold God this people were vnder my hāde, the wolde I take Abimelech out of p̄ waye. And he spake against Abimelech: make thynne hoste greater, & go out. And when zebul the ruler of the cytie hearde the wordes of Gaal p̄ sōne of Abed, he was wroth, and sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuely, saying: Behold, Gaal the sonne of Abed and his brethren be come to Sichem: & beholde, they sett the cytie against p̄. Nowe therfore vp by myght, thou and all the people p̄ is wyth the, and lye in wayte in p̄ felde. And ryse erlye in the mornynge as sone as the sonne is vp, and fall vpo the cite. And yf he and the people that is wyth hym, come out agaynst p̄, do to him what what thine hādes shalbe able. And Abimelech roase vp, & all the people p̄ were w him by night, and they layd awaye against Sichem in foure copanyes. And Gaal p̄ sōne of Abed wēt out, & stode in p̄ entring of p̄ gate of the cytie. And Abimelech rose vp, & p̄ folcke p̄ were w him, frō layig awaye. And when Gaal saw p̄ people, he sayd to zebul: beholde, there come people downe frō p̄ top of p̄ mountaynes. And zebul sayd vnto him: p̄ shadōw of p̄ hylles seme mē vnto p̄. (by that erroure art thou diseaued.) Gaal answered agayne, & sayd: se, there come folcke downe by p̄ myddell of p̄ lād, & another copany come a lōg by p̄ playne of p̄ charmar. Then sayd zebul vnto hi: where is now thī mouth p̄ sayd: what felow is Abimelech, that we shuld serue hi? Is not this p̄ people p̄ p̄ hāt despyled? Go out now & fyght with the. And Gaal went out before the cytizens of Sichem, & fought w Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him, p̄ he fledde before hys (and he droue him in to the cyte) & many were ouerthrowen & wounded, enen vnto p̄ entring of p̄ gate. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah. And zebul thrust out Gaal & his brethren, p̄ thei shulde not dwell in Sichem. (he suffered them not to tarpe therein.) And on p̄ morow, it happened p̄ the people wēt out into p̄ felde. And they tolde Abimelech. And he toke the people, & deuided them into thre copanies, and layd awaye in the felde, and loked, & beholde, the people were come out of the cytie, and he ranne vpon them, and smote them.

And Abimelech, & the copanies p̄ were w him, reached forther, & stode in the entrie of the gate of p̄ cytie. And the two other copanies ranne vpo all the people p̄ were in the felde, & slue the. And when Abimelech had fought against p̄ cytie all that daye, he toke it, & slew p̄ people p̄ was therein, & destroyed p̄ cytie & sowed salt thozow it. And when all p̄ mē of p̄ towne of Sichem heard p̄, they entered into a strong holde of the house of their God Baal Berith. (where they made a bonde with him: & therof dyd the place take the name which place was exceeding strong) And it was tolde Abimelech, that all the mē of the towne of Sichem were geathered together, & Abimelech gat him to mount zelmon, bothe he & all the people p̄ were w him, & toke axes w him and cut downe bowes of trees, & toke them & bare them on his shulder, & sayde vnto the folcke p̄ were wyth hym: what ye haue sene me do, spede youre selues, and do lyke wyse as I haue done. And all p̄ men p̄ were amōg the people, cut downe bowes, and folowed Abimelech, and put the into the holde, and sett the holde a fier by them: so that (with smoke and fyre) all the men of the towne of Sichem were slayne, vpon a thoulāde men and women.

Then wēt Abimelech to Shebez, and besieged it, and toke it. But there was a strōg towne within the cytie, and thither ranne all the men and women, and all the chefe p̄ were in the cytie, and put it to them, and got them vpo (by the bolwozkes) to the toppe of the towne. And Abimelech came vnto p̄ towne, and fought agaynst it, and wēt hard vnto the doze of the towne, to set it on fier. And a certayne woman cast a pece of a mylstone vpon hys head, and all to brake hys brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the young man that bare hys harness, & sayd vnto him: draw thy swerde and slee me, p̄ mē sape not of me: a womā slew him. And hys ladd thrust him thozow, and he dyed. And when the men of Israel sawe p̄ Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery man vnto his awne house. And thus the wyckednesse of Abimelech whych he dyd vnto his father, in slepyng his leuentye brethren and therto all the wyckednesse of the mē of Sichem, dyd God bring vpon their heeddes. And vpon them came the curse of Joatham the sonne of Jerobaal.

Chc. x. Chapter.

Chola and Jair are Judges of Israel.

After Abimelech there arose, to defende Israel, one Chola (the sonne of Phuah) his vncles sōne, a mā of Akkar, which dwelt in Samir in mount Ephraim. And he iudged Israell. xlii. yere and dyed, and was buryed in Samir. And after him arose Jair a Gileadite, and iudged Israel. xlii. yere. And he had thyrtye sonnes that rode on thyrtye Asse coltes, & they had thyrtye cyties, which are called p̄ towne of Jair vnto this daye, and are in the lande of Gilead. And Jair dyed & was buryed in hamon.

And p̄ chyldren of Israel brought wyckednesse yet agayne, i p̄ syght of the Lord, & serued Baalim and Ashtaroth, & p̄ goddes of Siria, p̄ goddes of Sidon, and the goddes of Moab, the goddes of the chyldre of Ammon, and the goddes of the Philistines, and forsoke the Lord & serued not him. And the Lord was wroth with Israel, & solde the into the hādes of the Philistines, & into the hādes of the chyldre of Ammon: which frō that yere forth, p̄ld & oppressed p̄ chyldre of Israel. xlii. yere, all that were on the other syde Jordan: in the lāde of the Amorites which is i Gilead. Moreover, p̄ chyldre of Ammon wēt ouer Jordan to fight agaynst Juda, Beniamin, and the house of Ephraim: so p̄ Israel was sore cōbred. And the chyldre of Israel cryed vnto the Lord, sayinge: we haue synned agaynst the: for we haue forsaken oure awne God, and haue serued Baalim. And the Lord sayde vnto the

to the childre of Israel: dyd not the Egyptians, the Amorites, the childre of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, & the Moabites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me & I deliuered you out of their handes. And for all that ye haue forsaken me, and serued straung goddes, wherfore I will helpe you no more. So & crye vnto the goddes which ye haue chosen, and * lett them saue you in the tyme of youre tribulacion.

* Num. xxi. 22
3. reg. ii. 25

And the children of Israel sayde vnto the Lorde: We haue sined: do thou vnto vs whatsoeuer please, & deliuer vs onely this daye. And they put away the straung goddes fro them, and serued the Lorde. And hys soule had pteie on the miserie of Israel.

Then the childre of Ammon gathered to gether, & pitched in Gilead. And the childre of Israel gathered them together, & pitched in Mizpa. And the Lords of Gilead sayde eche to other: Whosoener will beginne & batte agaynst the childre of Ammon, the same shalbe hed ouer all the inhabitants of Gilead.

The. xi. Chapter.

Jephthah deliuereth Israel from the Ammonites.

And there was one Jephthah a Gileadite, a strong man, & sonne of an harlot: and Gilead begat Jephthah.

And Gileads wyfe bare him sonnes, which when they were come to age, thrust out Jephthah, and sayd vnto him: Thou shalt not inherite in oure fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straung woman. Then Jephthah fledd fro his brethren, & dwelt in the land of Tob. And there gathered ydols & theuethes men to Jephthah, and wet out w him. And it chaunced in procelle of tyme, & the childre of Ammon made warre agaynst Israel.

And when the children of Ammon fought thus agaynst Israel, the elders of Gilead wet to lett Jephthah out of the land of Tob

(to helpe them) and sayd vnto him: come & be oure captayne, & we maye fyght w the childre of Ammon. Jephthah answered the elders of Gilead: did not ye hate me & expell me out of my fathers house? how happeneth it the, & you come vnto me now in tyme of youre tribulacion? And the elders of Gilead sayde vnto Jephthah: Therfore we turne agayne to the now, & thou mayest go w vs, & fight agaynst the childre of Ammon and be oure heed ouer all the inhabitants of Gilead. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Gilead: If ye byynge me home agayn, to fight with the childre of Ammon, then yf the Lorde deliuer them before me, shall I be your heed? And the elders of Gilead sayde to Jephthah: The Lorde be witnesse betwene vs yf we do not accordig to thy wordes. The Jephthah went w the elders of Gilead. And the people made hym heed and ruler ouer the. And Jephthah rehearsed all hys wordes before the Lorde in Mizpa.

And Jephthah set messengers vnto the king of the childre of Ammon, saying: what hast thou to do w me, & thou art come agaynst me, to fight in my land? The king of the childre of Ammon answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah: Because Israel toke away my land, when they came out of Egypt: eue from Arnon vnto Iabok, and vnto Iordā. Now therfore restore those landes agayne w faire meanes. And Jephthah set messengers agayne vnto the childre of Ammon, and sayd vnto hi: thus sayth Jephthah: * Israel toke not away the land of Moab, nor the land of the childre of Ammon. But when Israel came out of Egypt, & walked thowow the wilderness, eue vnto the redde see, they came to Cadēs & sent messengers vnto the king of Edō, saying: let me (I praye) go thowow thy land. But the king of Edō wolde not agre thereto. And in lyke maner they set vnto the king of Moab, but he wolde not cōset. And so Israel abode still in Cadēs. And then they wet along thowow the wilderness, & cōpased the land of Edō, & the land of Moab, & came a long by the east syde of the land of Moab, & pitched on the other syde of Arnon, & wolde not come with in the coaste of Moab: * for Arnon was the vtmost border of Moab. And then Israel set messengers vnto Sehon, king of the Amorites, & king of Heshbon, & sayd vnto him: Lett vs passe thowow thy land vnto oure awne contraye. But Sehon cōseted not to Israel, & he shulde go thowow hys coaste: but gathered all his people together, & pitched in Jahaz, & fought w Israel. And the Lorde God of Israel deliuered Sehon & all his folke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote the & cōquered all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of the land cōtrey. And they cōquered all the coastes of the Amorites, fro Arnon vnto Iabok, & fro the wilderness vnto Iordā. So now, seying the Lorde God of Israel hath cast out the Amorites before hys people Israel, shuldest thou possesse the land? Naye, but what people, Camos thy God dryueth out, that land possesse. Eue so whatsoeuer nacion the Lorde oure God expelleth, that lande ought we to enioye.

* And art thou better then Balack the sonne of Zephor king of Moab? dyd he strue w Israel or fyght agaynst the, all the whyle Israel dwelt in Heshbon and her townes, in Aroer & her townes, & in all the cyties & be a lōge by the coastes of Arnon, thre hundred yerres? why dydst thou not recouer them in all that space? Wherfore I haue not synned agaynst the. But thou doest me wronge, to warre agaynst me. The Lorde therfore which is a Judge be Judge thys daye betwene the childre of Israel, and the childre of Ammon. howbeit the kynge of the of the childre of Ammon, harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, which he sent him.

Then the spere of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer to Gilead & to Manasses, & came to Mizpah that lieth in Gilead, and from thence vnto the childre of Ammon. And Jephthah bowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayd: * If thou shalt deliuer the childre of Ammon into my handes, then that thinge that cometh oute of the doores of my house agaynst me, when I come home in peace, from the childre of Ammon, shalbe the Lorde, and I will offer it vp for a burnt offering. And so Jephthah went vnto the childre of Ammon to fyght w the. And the Lorde deliuered them into hys handes. And he smote them fro Aroer tyll thou come to Menith, euen xx. cytes: and so forth to the playne of the vyneyardes, with an exceeding great slaughter. And thus the childre of Ammon were brought vnder, before the childre of Israel.

When Jephthah came to Mizpah vnto his house, se, his daughter came out agaynst him, with tymberelles & daunces, which was his onely childe: so that besyde her, he had neither sonne, nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes, and sayde: Alas my daughter, thou hast brought me lowe, ad art one of them that trouble me. For I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and cannot go backe. And she sayd vnto him: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lorde, then do w me accordyng to it that proceeded out of thy mouth, for as moch as the Lorde hath aduenged the, & geuen the victory of thynne enemies the childre of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father: do thys moche for me: lett me alone two monethes, that I maye go downe to the mountaynes, & bewaile my virginyte, & my felowes. And he sayd: go, & he sent her awaye two monethes. And so she went with her cōpanions, & lamented her maydenheed vpon the mountaynes. And after the ende of the two monethes, she turned agayne vnto her father, which dyd with her accordyng to hys vowe which he had vowed, & she had knowne no man. And it grew to a custome in Israel. The daughters of Israel came yere by yere to lamēt the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite, foure dayes in a yere.

The. xij. Chapter.

The battayll of Jephthah agaynst Ephraim. After the death of Jephthah succeedeth Elon. After Elon Abdon.

And the men of Ephraim gathered them selues together, & wet northwarde, and sayde vnto Jephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fyght with the childre of Ammon, and dydest not call vs to go with the: we will therfore burne thine house vpon thy fyer. And Jephthah said vnto the: I & my people were at great stryfe w the childre of Ammon. And when I called y ou, ye deliuered me not out of their handes. And when I sawe ye deliuered me not, I put my lyfe in my handes, & wet vnto the childre of Ammon. And the Lorde deliuered them into my handes. Wherfore then are ye come vpon me now, to fyght w me?

Jephthah therfore gathered together all the men of Gilead, & fought w the Ephraimites. And the me of Gilead smote the Ephraimites, because they sayd: Ye Gileadites are but rineagates of Ephraim amonge the Ephraimites & the Manassites. Moreover, the men of Gilead toke the passages of Iordan before the Ephraimites. And when those Ephraimites that were escaped, sayde: lett vs go ouer, then the men of Gilead sayd vnto them: Art thou an Ephraimite? they sayde: naye. Then sayde they vnto hi: then saye: Schibboleth.

And he sayde: Schibboleth: for he coulde not so pronounce. And then they toke him, and slewe hym at the passages of Iordan. And there were overthrown at that tyme of the Ephraimites. xliij. And Jephthah iudged Israel. vi. yere, & dyed, and was buryed in one of the cyties of Gilead. After thys man, iudged Israel one Abazan of Bethlechem, & he had. xxx. sonnes and. xxx. daughters, whom he sent out, and toke. xxx. other in, for his sonnes. And when Abazan had iudged Israel. viij. yere, he dyed, and was buryed at Bethlechem.

After hi, Elon a zabulonite iudged Israel ten yere, & Elon the zabulonite dyed, & was buryed in Aialon, in the countre of zabulon.

After hym, Abdon the sonne of Hellel a pharathonite iudged Israel. And he had. xl. sonnes, and thirty neucus, that rode on. lxx. asse coltes. And when Abdon the sonne of Hellel the pharathonite had iudged Israel cyght yere, he dyed, & was buryed in pharathon in the lande of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

The. xiiij. Chapter.

Israel being an idolater (suppressed of the Philistines. The byrth of Samson. The sacrifice of Samsons father.

And the childre of Israel began agayne to commytte wyckednes in the sight of the Lorde. * And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of the Philistines forty yere. And ther was a man in zarah of the kyned of Dan, named Manoah, whose wyfe was barren, and bare not. And the Angell of the Lorde appeared vnto the woman: and sayde vnto her: Beholde, thou art barren, and bearest not: But thou shalt cōceiue, & beare a sonne. And now beware * & thou drinke no wyne. * And now beware * & thou drinke no wyne, nether eate any vncleane thinge.

thing: for so, thou shalt conceive and beare a sonne. And there may no raso come on hys heed. For the ladd shalbe an abstayner vnto God, euen fro hys (infancie & from hys) byrth. And he shall begyne to deliuer Israell out of the handes of the Philistines.

* Gen. xvi. 1.
* Luth. 1. 1.

Then the wyfe came, & tolde her husband sayenge: a man of God came vnto me, & the fallow of him was yke the fallow of an Angell of God, excedyng fearfull. But I asked hym not whence he was, nether tolde he me hys name, but sayd vnto me: beholde, thou shalt be with childe & beere a sonne, and now drinke no wyne nor strong dryncke, nether cate any vncleane thyng: for the ladd shalbe an abstayner to God, euen from hys (infancie & from hys) byrth, to the daye of hys death.

Then Manoah made intercession to the Lorde, and sayde: I praye the my Lorde, lett the man of God whych thou sendest, come once moare vnto vs, ad teache vs what we shal do vnto the ladd, when he is borne. And God hearde the voyce of Manoah, and the angell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as she sat in the felde. But Manoah her husband was not with her. And the wyfe made hast, and raimed, and she wed her husbunde, & sayde vnto hym: Beholde, the man appeared vnto me, that came vnto me to daye.

And Manoah arose, and went after hys wyfe, and came to the man, and sayde vnto hym: art thou the man that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde: I am. Manoah sayde: now when thy sayeng is come to passe: what shalbe the maner of the childe, ad what shal he do? And the angell of the Lorde sayd vnto Manoah: thy wyfe must absteyne from all that I sayde vnto her: she maye cate of no thyng y cometh of the vyne tree, ner dryncke wyne or strong dryncke, nor cate any vncleane thyng: But must obserue all that I bad her. Manoah sayde vnto the angell of the Lorde: we wyl kepe the styll, vntyll we haue made redye a kydd, and haue sett it befoze the.

And the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: though thou make me abyde. * I wyl not cate of thy bread. And yf thou wylt offere a burnt offering, thou must offer it vnto the Lorde. For Manoah wist not, that it was an angell of the Lorde. And Manoah said agayne vnto the angell of the Lorde: what is thy name, that when thy sayenge is come to passe, we maye do the some wortheppes? And the angell of the Lorde sayd vnto hym: * why askest thou after my name, whych is secrete.

* Gen. xvi. 1.

And so Manoah toke a kydde w a meate offeringe, and offered it vpon a rocke vnto the Lorde. And the angell dyd wonderouslye. Manoah and hys wyfe lokynge vpon. And when the flame came vp toward heauen fro the altare, the angell of the Lorde ascended vp in the flame of the altare. And Manoah and hys wyfe looked vpon it, and fell flat on their faces vnto the ground. But the angell of the Lorde dyd nomoare appeare vnto Manoah and hys wife. And then Manoah knew that it was an angell of the Lorde, and sayde vnto hys wyfe: we shall surely dye, because we haue sene God. But hys wife said vnto him: Yf the Lorde wold kyll vs, he wolde not haue receaued a burnt offeringe & a meate offeringe of oure handes, nether wolde he haue shewed vs all these thynges, nor wolde he haue tolde vs any soche. And the wyfe bare a sonne, and called his name Samson. And the ladd grewe, and the Lorde blessed hym. And the spere of the Lorde begane to moue hym in the host of Dan, betwene Zarahah & Etahal.

The xiii. Chapter.

The marriage of Samson. He kylleth a lyon. He propoundeth a ryddle. He kylleth thyrtye men. Hys wyfe forsaketh hym, and taketh another.

Samson wet downe to Chanath, and saue a woman in Chanath of the daughters of the Philistines, and he came vp, and tolde hys father and hys mother, and sayde: I haue sene a woman in Chanath of the daughters of the Philistines. And now geue me her to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayde vnto hym: * Is there neuer a woman among the daughters of thy brethren, and amonge all my people, but that thou must go, and take a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philistines? And Samson sayde vnto his father: geue me this woman, for she please me well. But hys father and mother wylt not that it was the Lordes doyng, and that he sought an occasion agaynst the Philistines, for at tyme the Philistines raygned ouer Israell.

* Gen. xvi. 1.

Then went Samson and hys father and his mother downe to Chanath, and came to the vineyardes of Chanath. And behold a yong (wood) lyon roared vpon hym. And the spere of the Lorde came vpon hym. And he tare hym, as he wolde haue rent a kydde, and yet had nothyng in hys hande, nether tolde hys father & mother what he had done. And he went downe, & talked with the woman, which semed well fauored in the syght of Samson.

And within a shorte space after, as he went thither agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned oute of the waye, to se the carkasse of the lyon. And beholde, there was a swarme of bees, and honye in the carkasse of the lion. And he toke of the honye in hys handes, and wente catynge, and came to hys father and mother, and gaue them also. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye oute of the carkasse of the lyon.

And so hys father came vnto the woman, and

and Samson made there a feaste, for so vsed the yonge men to do. And when they (the cyprians of that place) saue him, they brought xxx companions to be with hym. And Samson sayd vnto them: I wil now put forth a ryddle vnto you. And yf you can declare it me within vii. dayes of the feast, & fynde it out, I will geue you xxx. shertes, and xxx. chaunge of garmentes: But yf you cannot declare it me, then shall ye geue me xxx. shertes and xxx. chaunge of garmentes. And they answered hym: put forth thy ryddle, that we maye heare it. And he sayd vnto them: Out of the eater came meate: and out of the stronge came swetnes. And they coulde not iij. dayes expounde the ryddle. And when the seventh daye was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe: flatter thyn husband, & (and persuade hym) that he maye declare vs the ryddle, lest we burne the & thy fathers house with fyre. haue ye called vs hyther, to make vs beggers? And Samsons wyfe wepte befoze hym (complayned) and sayde: Surely thou hatest me and louest me not: for thou hast put forth a ryddle vnto the chyldren of my folke, and hast not tolde it me. And he sayde vnto her: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father and my mother, and shall I tell it the?

* Gen. xvi. 1.

And Samsons wyfe wepte befoze hym xij. dayes, whyle the feast lasted. And the vii. daye he tolde her, because she laye so soze vpon him. And she tolde it the chyldren of her folke. And the men of the cypie sayd vnto hym the seventh daye, befoze the sonne went downe. What is sweter then honye, & what is stronger then a lyon? Then sayde he vnto the: I yf ye had not plowed with my cause, ye had not founde out my ryddle. And the spere of the Lorde came vpon hym. And he went downe to Askalon, and slewe thyrty men of them, and spoyled them, and gaue chaunge of garmentes vnto them whych expounded the ryddle. And he was wroth, and wet vp to hys fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen to one of hys companions, that he had taken vnto hym.

The xv. Chapter.

Samson teth fyrebrandes to fyre tayles, with the Jawe bone of an asse he kylleth a thousand men. Out of a great tothe in the Jawe God geueth hym water.

But it chaunced within a whyle after, euen in the tyme of whete heruest, that Samson visited hys wyfe with a kydde, sayenge: I wyl go into my wyfe into the chaumber: but her father wolde not suffre hym to go in. And her father sayd: I thought that thou haddest hated her, and therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy copanions. Is not her yonger syster fairer then she? Take her in steade of the other. Samson sayd vnto them: Now am I more blamelesse then the Philistines, and therfore wyl I do them displeasure.

And Samson went out, and caught thre hundred foxes, and toke fyrebrandes, and fastened taylor to taylor, and put a fyre brand in the myddes betwene two tayles. And wha he had set the brandes of fyre, he sent the out (that they myght runne abrode, which went immediately) into the stading corne of the Philistines, and burnt vp both the repid corne and also the standing, with the vineyardes and olyues. Then the Philistines sayde: who hath done this? And it was tolde them that Samson the sonne in lawe of the Chamnite, because he had taken hys wyfe, and geuen her to hys copanion. And the Philistines came vp and burnt her and her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Though ye haue done this, yet will I be aduenged of you, and then I wyl cease. And he smote them legges and thyghs with a myghtye plague. And then he went and dwelt in the caue of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp, & pitched in Juda, and laye in (a place, that was afterwarde called) Lehi: (that is a Jawe bone, wher theyr host was scattered abrode.) And the me of Juda sayde, why are ye come vp vnto vs? They answered: to binde Samson are we come vp, and to do to hym as he hath done to vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went downe to the caue of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Samson: wottest thou not that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore then hast thou done thus vnto vs? He answered them: as they dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto them.

* Gen. xvi. 1.
* Jud. i. 1.

And they sayd vnto hym agayne: we are come downe to bynde the, and to deliuer the into the hand of the Philistines. And Samson sayd vnto them: swore vnto me (and promise me) that ye shall not fal vpon me your selues. They answered hym, sayenge: No, but we wyl bynde the, and deliuer the vnto their handes: But we wyl not kyll the. And they boude him with two new cordes, & brought hym from the rocke. And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines shewed agaynst him. And the spere of the Lorde came vpon hym, and the cordes that were vpon hys armes, became as flaxe that was burnt w fyre, for the bandes lowled from of hys handes. And he founde a rotten Jawe bone of an asse, and put forth hys hande, and caught it, and slue a thousande men therewith.

And Samson sayde: with the Jawe of an asse, haue I made heapes of them: with the Jawe of an asse haue I slaine a thousand men. And when he had left speakyng, he cast awaye the Jawe bone out of hys hand, and called the place: Ramath Lehi. (That is by interpretation the lyfynge vp of the Jawe bone.) And he was soze a thyrst, and called on the Lorde, & sayde: Thou hast geuen this great victory, in the bande of thy seruaut. And now I must dye for thy self, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth that was in the Jawe, and ther came water therout. And when he had dröcke, his sprete came agayne, and was refreshed, wherfore the name therof was called, vnto this daye, the well of the caller on, which came of the Jawe. And he iudged Israell in the dayes of the Philistines, twenty yeaers.

E iij in the

The .xvi. Chapter.

*Samson lyeth by the gates of Gaza. He was deceit by Dalila: He pulleth downe the house vpon
the Philistines, and dyeth with them.*

 Other wife called Gaza.*

When wente Samson to Azath, *and sawe ther an harlot, and went in vnto her. And it was tolde the Azathites, sayeng: Samson is come hither. And they went aboute, & layde awayte for hym there, all nyght in the gate of y cytie, and were still all the nyght, saying: in the mornynge whan it is daye, we shall kyll hym. And Samson toke his rest tyll mydnyght, & arose at mydnyght, and toke the doers of the gate of the cyte, and the two syde postes, and rent them of, with the barre and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and carped them vnto the top of an hyll, that is before hebron.

And after thys, it fortuneth, that by the ryper of Sozek, he lound a woman, called Dalila: vnto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her: perswade hym, and se wherin his great strengt h lieth, and by what meane we maye overcome him that we maye bynde him, to byng him vnder, and euery one of vs shal geue the alicen hundred syluerlynges.

And Dalila sayde to Samson: Oh, tell me where thy great strength lieth, and how thou myghtest be bounde, and brought vnder. Samson answered vnto her: If they bynde me with seuen grene withes y were neuer dryed, I shalbe weake as other men. And then y lordes of y Philistines brought her seuen wythes that were yet grene and neuer dryed, and she bounde hym therewith. Not withstandynge she had men lyng in wayte with her in the chaubze. And she sayd vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And immediatly he brake the cordes as a strynge of towne * (that is twyned) breaketh, when it fealeth fier. And so his strength was not knowne.

And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: Se, y hast mocked me & tolde me lyes. Now therfore tel me, wher with y mightest be bounde. He answered her: yf they bynde me wyth new ropes that neuer were occupied, I shalbe weake, and as another man. Dalila therfore toke new ropes, and bounde hym therewith, and sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyes of wayte in the chamber, & he brake them from of hys armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: hyther to thou hast begyled me, and tolde me lyes: yet tell me, how thou myghtest be bounde. He sayde vnto her: If thou plattedest the vij. lockes of my head with an heare lace. And she fastened them with a nayle, and sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awaked out of his slepe, & plucked awaye the nayle, that was in the plattinge with the heare lace. And she sayde vnto hym agayne: how canst thou saye that thou louest me, when thyn herte is not with me: beholde, y hast mocked me thys thre tymes, & hast not tolde me, wherin thy greates strength lyeth. And as she laye vpon him with her wordes continually verryng of hym, hys soule was encombred euen vnto the death. And so he tolde her all his herte, & sayd vnto her: there neuer came raser vpon myne heed, for I haue bene an abstayner * (that is to saye consecrate) vnto God, euen from my mothers wöbe: therfore whan I am shauen, my strength wyll go from me, and I shal waxe weake, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalila sawe that he had tolde her all his herte, she sent and called for the lordes of y Philistines, sayeng: come vpyet this once, for he hath shewed me all hys herte.

Then the lordes of the Philistines came vnto her, & brought y money in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her knees * (to saye hys heed downe in her lappe), & she sent for a man, & he byd shaued of the seuen lockes of his heed, & begane to vexe him, & his strength was gone fro him. And she sayde: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, & sayd: I wil go out now as at other tymes before, & shake my selfe, & he wist not y the Lorde was departed fro him. But the Philistines toke hym, and put out his eyes, & brought hym downe to * Azath, * (that is to saye) and bounde hym with two fetters of brasse. And he byd grynde in the prison house, howbeit the heare of hys head beganne to growe agayne after that he was shauen.

Then the lordes of y Philistines gathered them together, for to offer a solempne offryng vnto Dagon theyr God, and to reioyse: for they sayde, oure God hath deliuered Samson oure enemy into oure handes. And when the people sawe hym, they prayled theyr God: for they sayde: oure God hath deliuered into oure handes oure enemy, and destroyer of oure countreye, whych shal mane of vs. And when theyr hertes were merye, it fortuneth, that they sayde: sende for Samson, that he maye make vs laugh. And they fetter Samson oute of the prison house, and he played befoze them, and they set hym betwene the pylers. And Samson sayde sayd vnto the ladd that leed him by the had: sett me that I maye touche the pylers, that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to them. And the house was full of men & women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the rounse a thre thousande men and women, that behelde whyle Samson played.

And Samson called vnto the Lord, and sayde: O Lorde God, thyncke vpon me, and strengthen me, at thys tyme onely, O God, that I maye be aduenged of the Philistines for my two eyes. And Samson caught the two middel pylers on which the house stode, and on which it was bozne vpon, the one i hys ryght hande, and the other in hys lefte, and sayde: my soule shall dye with the Philistines, and bowed them with all hys myghte. And the house fell vpon the lordes and vpon all the people that were therein. And so the deed which he slewe at hys deeth, were moo then they whych he slewe in hys lyfe. And then hys brethren and al the house of hys father came downe, & toke him vpon, & brought hym, and buryed hym betwene zarah and Estahol, in the buryinge place of Hanoah hys father. And he iudged Israell twenty yeaers.

The .xvii. Chapter.

Of Micah whose mother made hym an Idoll of syluer.

There was a man in mount Ephraim named Micah, and he sayde vnto hys mother: the leuen hundred syluerlynges that were taken fro the, aboute which thou cursedst, & spakest it in myne eares. Behold, the syluer is with me, I toke it awaye. And hys mother sayde: blessed be y my sonne, in y Lorde. And when he had restored the leuen hundred syluerlynges to his mother agayne, his mother sayde: I bowed the syluer vnto y Lord of myne hande for the my sonne: that y shuldest make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. Now therfore, I wyll geue it the agayne. And when he restored the moneye agayne vnto his mother, his mother toke two hundred syluerlynges, and gaue them to a goldsmith, which made therof a graue ymage, and a ymage of metall, and it was in the house of Micah. And the man Micah had a temple of goddes, and made an Ephod and Theraphim, * (That is to saye, a garment for the piete, and Idols), and fylled the hande of one of hys sonnes which became hys preste. * In those dayes there was no kyng i Israel, but euery man byd that which was good in hys awne eyes.

And there was a ponge mā out of Bethlehem Juda, of the kynred of Juda: which ponge man was a Leuite, & sojourned ther. And the man departed oute of the cytie of Bethlehe Juda, to go dwel where he coude fynde a coueniet place. And he came to mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah sayde vnto hym. whence comest thou? The leuite answered hym. I am of Bethlehe Juda, & go to dwell where I maye fynde a place * (and where I maye fynde it to be for my profyt). And Micah sayd agayne vnto him: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a preste. And I wyll geue the ten syluerlynges by yeaer, two garmentes, and thy meate and dryncke.

And the Leuite was content to dwell w the man, and was vnto hym as one of hys awne sonnes. And Micah consecrated y hāde of the leuite, and the ponge man became his preste, and was i the house of Micah. Then sayde Micah: now I am sure, that the Lord wyll be good vnto me, seynge: I haue a leuyte to my preste.

The .xviii. Chapter.

*The chyldren of Dan take the goddes and the preste
of Micah awaye. They destroye Laish, & alicer bylde
it agayne.*

In those dayes * there was no kyng i Israel. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan sought then an enheritaunce to dwell in * for vnto y tymes there fel none enheritaunce vnto them amonge the trybe of Israel. And the chyldren of Dan sent of their kyndred fyue actyue men in feates of warre oute of theyr coastes, euen out of zarah and Estahol, to vexe the lande and searche it out, and sayde vnto the: go, and searche out the lāde: which whan they came to mount Ephraim, euen to the house of Micah, they lodged ther. And whē they were in the house of Micah, they knewe the voyce of y ponge mā the leuite: and when they turned in thyther, they sayde vnto hym: who brought the hyther? what makest thou in thys place: and what hast thou here? And he answered them: thus and thus dealed Micah with me, and hath hired me, and I am become hys preste. And they sayde vnto hym agayne: * Alke coucell now of God, y we maye knowe, whether the waye whych we go, shalbe prosperous, or no. And the preste sayde vnto them: go in peace, for the Lorde gydeth your waye which ye go.

Then the fyue mē departed, and came to Laish, and sawe the people that were therein, how they dwelt careles, after the maner of y Sydonis, styll, and without castynge of parelles: and that no man made any trouble in the land, or vsurped any domyniō, but were farre from the Sidons, and had no busines with other men. And they came vnto theyr brethren, to zarah & Estahol. And their brethren sayd vnto them: what haue ye done?

And they answered: Aryste, that we maye

The .iiij. go by

* Num. xxi. a go vp agaynst them, * for we haue sene the lande: surely a very good one. And do ye sytt stil: be not slouthful to departe: But come to conquer the lande. (it shalbe no labour.) If ye wyll go, ye shall come vnto a people that casteth no parelles, & it is a very large countre: which God hath geuen into your handes. It is also a place, which doth lacke nothyng & is in the world.

And there departed thence of the kynred of the Danites, euen out of Zarah and Esthaol, syxe hundred men appoynted with instruments of warre. And they went vp, and pitched in Kariath Jarim which is in Iuda. Wherefore they called the place, the hoost of Dan, vnto this daye: and it is on the backsyde of Kariath Jarim. And they went thence vnto mount Ephraim, & came to the house of Micah. Then answered the fyue men that went to spyre out the countre of Lais, & sayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not y there is in these houses an Ephod, & Theraphim, a grauen ymage, & an ymage of metall? Now therfore conspyde what ye haue to do.

And they turned thitherwarde and came to the house of y pong man the Leuite, euen vnto the house of Micah, and saluted hym peaceably. And the syxe hundred men gyrded with weapons of warre, which were of the chyldren of Dan, stode by y enterpyng of the gate. And the fyue men that wēt to spyre out the lande, went in thither and toke the kerued ymage, and the Ephod, Theraphim, & the ymage of metall. And the prest stode in the enterpyng of the gate with the syxe hundred men y were armed vnto batayl, whyle the other wente into Michas house, and fet the kerued ymage, the Ephod, Theraphim, and the ymage of metall. Then sayd y prest vnto the: what do ye? They answered hym: holde thy peace, & laye thynne hande vpon thy mouth, and come with vs, to be oure father & prest. Is it better for the to be a prest vnto the house of one man, then to be a prest vnto a trybe or a kynred in Israel? And the prest was glad and toke the Ephod, and Theraphim, and the grauen ymage, & went with the people. And they turned and departed, and put the chyldren, the catell and their other substance before them.

And when they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men that were in y houses, and in Michas house, made an outcrye, and folowed after the chyldren of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Micah: what ayleth the, y thou makest an outcrye? And he sayd: ye haue taken awaye my goddes whych I made, and also the prest, & go your wayes with the. And what haue I more? how then saye ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And the chyldren of Dan sayde vnto hym: let not thy voyce be hearde amonge vs, lest angyre fellowes rine vpon the, and thou loose thy lyfe with the lyues of all thynne household. And so the chyldren of Dan wente they wayes. And when Micah sawe that they were to stronge for hym, he turned and went backe vnto hys house agayne.

And they toke the thynges which Micah had made, & the prest which he had, & came vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at rest & without mistrust, & smote them with the edge of the swerd, & burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no mā to helpe, because Lais was farre from Sidon, & they had no medelyng with any other man. And the cyte stode in the valey that lyeth by Bethrachob. And they bilt the there a cytie, & dwelt therein. * And called it Dan, after y name of Dan their father which was bozne vnto Israel. Howbeit, in very dede the name of the cytie was Lais at the begynninge.

And the chyldren of Dan set them vp the grauen ymage. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and hys sonnes were the prestes in y trybe of Dan vntyll they were caried awaye out of the land captiue. And they sett them vp the kerued ymage which Micah made, all the whyle y the house of God was in Silo.

The xix. Chapter.

Of the Leuyte, whose wyfe was vyllanously kyllid in Gibeā.

In thosedayes, when there was no kyng in Israel, that a certayn leuyte sogecurnyng on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubynne out of Bethlechem Iuda: and hys concubynne playd the whoze by hym, and went awaye from hym, vnto her fathers house to Bethlechem Iuda, and there continued foure monethes. And her husbande arose, and went after her, to speake frendely vnto her, and to bring her home agayne, haryng hys ladd with hym, and a couple of asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe hym, he reioysed of hys comyng. And his father in lawe the damosells father kept him. And the Leuyte aboarde with hym thre dayes, and so they dyd eate and drinke, and lodged there.

The fourth daye whan they arose erly in the moynyng, the man stode vp, to departe. And the damoselles father sayd vnto his sonne in lawe: confort thynne hert with a morsell of bread, & then go your waye. And they fate downe, and dyd eat and drinke both of them togeather. And the damoselles father sayd vnto the man: Be content I praye the, & tarye all nyght, and let thynne herte be mery. And when the man stode vp to departe, hys father in lawe cōpelled him to turne againe: and to and to tarye all nyght there. And he rose vperlye the fyfth daye to departe, and the damoselles father sayde, comforte thynne herte: & they taried vntyll after middaye. And they dyd eate bothe of them to geather.

And when the man arose to departe with his concubine and his ladd, his father in lawe the damoselles father sayde vnto hym: beholde, the daye gothe fast awaye & draweth towarde euen, tarye all night: at y least waye tarye this daye here, that thynne hert maye be merye. And to morowe get you erlye vpon your waye, that thou mayest get the to thy tent. Neerthelater the man wolde not tary, but arose and departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, (which is Jerusalem) and his two asses laden, and his concubine and his ladd with him. And when they were fast by Jebus the daye was sore spent, and the younge man sayd vnto his master: come I praye the and let vs turne in, into this cytie of the Jebusites and lodge all night there. His master answered him: we will not turne to a straunge cytie that are not of the chyldren of Israel: we wyll go forth to Gibeā. And he sayd vnto hys ladd, go forwarde, and we shall come to one of these places to lodge all night ether in Gibeā or in Rama: And they went forwarde vpon they waye, and the sonne wēt downe vpon them, when they were fast by Gibeā which belongeth to them of Ben Jamin. And they turned thitherwarde to go in, and lodge all nyght in Gibeā. And when he came, he sat him downe in a street of the cytie, for there was no man that toke them to lodgyng. And behold, there came an olde man from his worke, out of the felde at euē, which was also of mount Ephraim, & dwelt as a stranger in Gibeā. But the men of the place were the chyldren of Zebulun. And when he had lyfte vp his eyes, he sawe a wayefaring man in the streete of the cytie. And the olde man sayde: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? He answered him: we come from Bethlechem Iuda towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: from thence am I, and I wēt to Bethlechem Iuda, and go now to the house of the Lord. And there is no mā that receaueth me to house. We haue strawe and prauender for oure asses, and bread & wyne for me and thy handmayde, and for the ladd that is with thy sernaunt, and we lacke nothyng.

The olde man sayd: peace be with the, all that thou lackest shalt thou fynde with me: onelye abyde not in the streete all nyght, and so he brought him into his house, and gaue fodder vnto his asses. And they washed their fete, and dyd eate and drinke. And as they were makynge their berttes merye, beholde, the men of the cytie which were wicked, set the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the doze, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: bypunge forth the man that came into thynne house, that we maye knowe hym.

And the man of the house, the olde man went out, and sayde vnto the, Oh, maye my brethren, do not so wickedlye, seyng that this man is come into myne house: do not so vnmete a thing. Beholde, here is my daughter a mayden, and this mannes concubine, them I wyll byringe out now vnto you, and humble them, and do with them what semeth you good: but vnto this man, do not so abhominable a thinge. But the men wolde not hearken to him. And the man toke his concubine, and brought her out vnto the, which knewe her, and abused her, all the nyght, euen vnto the moynyng. And when the daye beganne to sprynge, they let her go.

And then came the woman in the daye of the moynyng of the daye, & fell downe at the dooze of the mannes house, where her Lorde was, tyll it was daye. And her Lorde arose vp in the moynyng, and opened the dozes of y house, and went out to go hys waye. And beholde, the woman, euen his concubine laye a longe before the doze of the house, & her handes stretched out vpon the threshold. And he sayde: thinking her to haue bene asleepe, sayde vnto her: vp and let vs be goynge. But she answered not. Then the man (perceauyng that she was dede) toke her vp vpon an Ass, and stode vp, and gat him vnto his awne home. And when he was come vnto his house, he toke a knyfe, & caught hys concubine, and deuided her with the bones into twelue peces, and sent her into all quarters of Israel. And all that sawe it, sayde: there was no soche dede done or sence the chyldren of Israel cā out of Egypt vnto this daye, & conspyder the matter, take aduise ment, and save your myndes.

The xx. Chapter

The battell of the Israelites agaynst the trybe of Ben Jamin for the Leuites wyfe which was kyllid.

Ihen all the chyldren of Israel went out: and the congregacyon was gathered togeather as it had bene but one man, euen from Dan to Bersheba and vnto the lande of Silad, vnto the Lorde in Mizpa, and there stode folke out of al quarters and of all the trybes of Israel, in the congregacyon of the people of God, foure hundred thousande fote men that drewe swerdes. And whan the chyldren of Ben Jamin hearde that the chyldren of Israel were gone vp to Mizpa, and had sayde. O ye chyldren of Israel, tell vs how this wickednesse happened. And the Leuite, the womans husbande that was slayne, answered and sayde, I came into Gibeā that is in Ben Jamin with my concubynne to lodge lodged all nyght. And the men of Gibeon rose agaynst me, and set the house round aboute upon me by nyght, and thought to haue slayne me: and my concubynne haue they so forced, that she is deed. And I toke my concubynne, and cutt her in peces, and sent her thorow out all the landes of the enheritaunce of Israel. For they haue committed abhominacyon and folly in Israel. Beholde, ye are all chyldren of Israel. Donde this matter, and geue your aduys in the case.

And all the people arose, as it had ben one man, saying, there shall not a man of vs go to his tene, nether turne into his house. But this shalbe it that we wyll do to Gibeon: we will go vp by lottte agaynst it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thowowe out all the trybes of Israel, and an hundred of the thowande, and a thowande out of ten thowande, to sett vitayle for the people to make that they maye go agaynst Gibeon. Ben Jamin, because of all the abhominacyon, that they haue wrought in Israel. And so all the men of Israel gathered to geather agaynst the cytie, kuyte to geather, as it had ben but one man. And the trybes of Israel sent men thorow all the trybe of Ben Jamin sayinge

* Josu. xxiij.

* what wyckednesse is this that is happened amonge you? Now therfore deliuer vs the men, those chyldren of Belial which are in Gibeon, that we maye sleie them, and put awaye euell from Israel.

Neuerthelater the chyldren of Ben Jamin wolde not herke vnto the voyce of their brethren the chyldren of Israel: but gathered them selues to geather out of the cyties vnto Gibeon, to come out and fight agaynst the chyldren of Israel. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin were nombred at that tyme, out of the cyties. xxvi. thousand men that drew swerdes, besyde the enhabiters of Gibeon, which were nombred seuen hundred chosen men.

And amonge all these folke were seuen hundred left habed men, which euery one coulde flyng stones at an heare breadeth, and not mysse. And the chyldren of Israel besyde Ben Jamin, were nombred foure hundred thowande men that drew swerdes, ad were all men of warre.

And the chyldren of Israel arose, & went vnto Bethel, & asked counsell of God, who shulde begynne the battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin. And the Lord sayd, Iuda shall begynne. And the chyldren of Israel stode vperlye and beleaged Gibeon. And the men of Israel went out to battell agaynst Ben Jamin, and the men of Israel put them selues in araye to fyghe agaynst the, besyde Gibeon. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out of Gibeon, and destroyed of the Israelites that daye. xxiij. thowande men, and brought them to the erth.

And the folke of the chyldren of Israel plucked vp their hertes, and wet to agayne, ad made battell in the same place where they dyd the fyrst daye. And the chyldren of Israel went vp, and wept before the Lord vnto euen, and asked of the Lord, saying, Shall we go agayne to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin our brethren? And the Lord sayde: go vp agaynst the. And the chyldren of Israel came out agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the seconde daye. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin went agaynst them out of Gibeon, the seconde daye, and destroyed to the erth of the chyldren of Israel once agayne. xviij. thowande men that drew swerdes euery man of them.

Then the chyldren of Israel and all the people went vp and cam vnto Bethel, and wepte and sat there before the Lord, and fasted the same daye vnto eue, & offered burnt-offerynges and peaceofferynges before the Lord. And the chyldren of Israel asked the Lord: for there was the arke of the apoyntment of God, in those dayes. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waytyng vpon it at that tyme, sayde: Shall I get me vp to go out any moare to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin my brethren, or shall I cease? The Lord sayde: go, for to morowe I will deliuer the into your handes. And Israel sett layes a wayte rounde about Gibeon. And the chyldren of Israel wet vp agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the thyrde tyme, and put them selues in araye agaynst Gibeon, as twyse before. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out agaynst the people, and were drawen awaye from the cytie: And they beganne to smyte of the people deed (as twyse before, by two hye wayes of which one gothe vp to Bethel ad the other to Gibeon thowowe the felde) vpon a thyrtye men of Israel. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin sayde: They are fallen before vs, as at the fyrst. But the chyldren of Israel sayde: let vs flye and plucke them awaye from the cytie, vnto the hye wayes.

And all the men of Israel rose vp out of their place, and put them selues in araye at Baal Thamar. And lyke wyse the layers in wayte of Israel came forth out of their places, euen out of the medowes they were aboute Gibeon, & came agaynst Gibeon: ten thowande chosen men out of all Israel, and there was a fore battell. But the other wist not that so great euill was so nye them. And the Lord plagued Ben Jamin before Israel, & the chyldren of Israel destroyed of the Beniamites the same daye. xxv. thowande and a hundred men, that drew swerdes euery one of them. And whan the chyldren of Ben Jamin sawe that they were put to the worst, the men of Israel

Israel gaue rowme to the Beniamites, because they trusted vnto the layers in wayte which they had layde besyde Gibeon. And the layers in wayte hastid, and ranne vpon Gibeon, and went and smote all the cytie with the edge of the swerde. And an apoyntment had the men of Israel from the layers in wayte that they shulde make a greatesmoke rise vp out of the cytie. And whan the men of Israel fledd in the battell Ben Jamin began to smyte deed of the chyldren of Israel, aboute a thyrtye parsonnes, and sayde: the other are put to the worst before vs, as in the fyrst battell. But whan there began to arise out of the cytie a pyller of smoke, the Beniamites looked backe: and beholde, the wastynge of the hole cytie began to ascende vnto heauen.

When the men of Israel also turned agayne, the men of Ben Jamin were abashed: for they saw that euell approached them. And therfore they turned their backs before the men of Israel vnto the waye that leade to the wilderness, but the men of warre ouertoke the. And besyde that, they which came out of the cytie, destroyed them in the myddle of them. And thus they compassed the Beniamites aboute, and chased them to Menuha, and ouerranne them to Gibeon the east syde: and there were slayne of Ben Jamin. xviij. thowande, which were all men of warre. And they turned and fledd to the wilderness warde, and vnto the rocke of Rimmon. And the other slue by the waye of the rest of them, fyue thowande men, and stycked vnto them, vntyll they cam to Gideon, and slue two thowande men of them. So that all that were slayne that same daye of Ben Jamin were. xxv. thowande men that drew swerdes, which were all men of warre: onelye. vi. hundred men turned and fledd to the wilderness, vnto the Rocke of Rimmon, and abode there. iij. monethes. And the men of Israel turned backe agayne vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin, & smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cyties, bothe man and beast and all that came to hande, and sett on fyre all the cyties that they coulde come by.

The. xxiij. Chapter.

The enhabitours of Gilead are bitterly destroyed.

And euery man of Israel sware in Mizpa, sayinge: there shall none of vs geue his daughter vnto any of Ben Jamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode there tyll euen before God, & lyfte vp their voyces and wept sore, and sayde. O Lord God of Israel, why is this chaunced in Israel, that there shulde be this daye one trybe lackinge in Israel? And on the morow the people rose vp by tyme, and made there an altare, and offered burnt-offerynges and peaceofferynges.

And the chyldren of Israel asked, who are they amonge all the tribes of Israel, that came not vp with the congregacyon vnto the Lord? for they had made a greatesmoke concerning him that came not vp to the Lord to Mizpa, sayinge: he shall surelye dye. And the chyldren of Israel had pytie on Ben Jamin they brethren, and sayde: there is one trybe cut of from Israel this daye: what shall we do vnto the remnaunt of them, that they maye haue wyues? we haue swozne by the Lord, that we will not geue the of our daughters to wyues. And they sayde: Is there any of the trybes of Israel, that came not vp to Mizpa to the Lord? And beholde, there came none of the enhabitours of Jabes Gilead vnto the host and congregacyon. For the people were bewed: and beholde, there were none of the enhabiters of Jabes Gilead there. And they sent thether a multitude, euen. xij. thowande men of the strongest of them, and commaunded them, sayinge: go and smyte the enhabiters of Jabes Gilead with the edge of the swerde, both women and chyldren. * And this is it that ye shall do: utterlye destroye all the males and all the women that haue lye by men. And they founde amonge the enhabiters of Jabes Gilead foure hundred damoselles, virgines, that had knowen no man, by lyeng with any male. And they brought them vnto the host to Silo, which is in the lande of Canaan.

And the hole congregacio sent and spake with the chyldren of Ben Jamin that were in the Rocke of Rimmon, and called peccablye vnto them: and Ben Jamin came agayne at that tyme, and they gaue them wyues, which they had sau'd alyue of the women of Jabes Gilead. But they suffysed them not. And the people had compassyon on Ben Jamin, because that God had made a gappe in the trybes of Israel. And then the elders of the congregacyon, sayde: what shall we do to the remnaunt of them, to get them wyues, seinge all the wyues of Ben Jamin are destroyed? And they sayde: there must be an enheritaunce for them that be escaped of Ben Jamin, that a trybe be not destroyed out of Israel: howbeit, we maye not geue them wyues of our daughters. For the chyldren of Israel had swozne, sayinge: cursed be he, that geueth a wyffe to Ben Jamin.

Then they sayde: beholde, there is a feast of the Lord yearly in Sylo, which is on the northsyde of Bethel, and on the east syde of the waye

* Josu. xxiij.

the waye that goeth from Bethel to Sichem and south from Libanon. Therefore they commaunded the chyldre of Ben Jamin, saying: go and lye in waye in the vynyardes. And when ye se that the daughters of Silo come out to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the vynyardes, and catch you euery man a wyfe of the daughters of Ben Jamin. And when they fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we wyll save vnto them: haue pytie on vs for theyr sakes, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre. Neither haue ye geuen vnto the, that ye shulde synne at this tyme.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyen so: and toke them wyues accordynge to the nombre of them that daunced, whom they caught. And they went, and returned vnto theyr inheritaunce, and repayed the cyties, and dwelt in them.

And the chyldre of Israhell departed thence at that tyme, and wet euery man to hys trybe, and to hys kynred, and went out from thence euery man to hys inheritaunce. * In those dayes there was no kynge in Israhell: but euery man dyd p which semed ryght in his awne eyes.

The ende of the boke of Judges, called in the hebreue Sophitim.

The boke of Ruth.

The fyrst Chapter.

Elimelech goeth with hys wyfe and chyldren into the lande of Moab.

In fortunē, that in the dayes of a certayne iudge: whē the Judges indged, there fell a darch in the lande, and a certen mā of Bethlehem Juda went for to sojourne in the countrey of Moab: he and hys wyfe, and hys two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of hys wyfe, Naomi: and the names of hys two sonnes were, Mahlon and Chilion, and they were Ephraites, out of Bethlehem Juda. And whē they came into the land of Moab, they contynued there. And Elimelech Naomis husband dyed, and he remayned with her two sonnes, which toke them wyues of the nacions of the Moabites: the ones name was Orpha, and the others Ruth. And they dwelled there about a ten yere. And Mahlon and Chilion dyed also euen both of them, and the woman was left desolate of her two sonnes and of her husbāde. Then stode she by with her daughters in lawe, and returned from the countrey of Moab: for she had heard saye in the countrey of Moab, how that the Lorde had vsyted hys people, and geuen them byed. Wherefore she departed out of the place where she was, and her two daughters with her. And they went on theyr waye to returne vnto the lande of Juda. And Naomi sayde vnto her two daughters in lawe: go and returne eche of you vnto your mothers house: and the Lorde deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue dealt with the deed, and with me. And the Lorde geue you, that you maye fynde rest, ether of you in the house of her husbāde. And when she kyssed them, they lyst by theyr voyce, and wepte, and sayde vnto her: we wyll go with the vnto thy folke. And Naomi sayde: turne agayne my daughters: for what cause wyll you go with me? Are ther any mo chyldren in my wombe, to be your husbādes? Turne agayne my daughters, and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbāde. And yf I sayde, I haue hope, yf I toke a man also this nyght: yee and though I had all readye borne sonnes, wolde ye tarpe after them, tyll they were of age: or wolde ye for the so long refrayne from takynge of husbādes? Not so my daughters: for it greueth me moch for your sakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone out agaynst me.

And they lyst by their voyces, and wepte agayne, & Orpha kyssed her mother in lawe, but Ruth abode still by her. And Naomi sayde: se, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people and vnto her goddes: returne thou after her. And Ruth answered: entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne fro after the: for whether thou goest, I will go also, & where thou dwellest, there I will dwell: thy people shal be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou dyest, there will I dye, and there will I be buried. The Lorde do so ad so to me, yf ought but death onelye departe the and me asondre.

When she sawe y she was stedfastly mynded to go with her, she left speake vnto her. And so they went both, vntyll they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was nopsed of the thowrow all the cytie, and the women sayd: is not this Naomi? And she answered the: call me not Naomi: (that is to saye, bewyrtfull) but call me Mara, (that is to saye, bytter) for y Almyghty hath made me verie bytter. I went out full: and y Lorde hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why then call ye me Naomi: seynge the Lorde hath hūbled me, and the almyghty hath brought me vnto aduersyte? And so Naomi

Naomi with Ruth the Moabite her daughter in lawe returned out of the countrey of Moab, and came to Bethlehem, in the begynninge of barley harueste.

The ij. Chapter.

Ruth gathereth corne in the felde of Booz.

And Naomis husbāde had a kinsman of strength, and myght, (which was of the kynred of Elimelech) named Booz. And Ruth the Moabite sayd vnto Naomi: let me go to the felde, and geather eares of corne: (such as the reapers leaue) after any man in whose syght, I fynde grace. And she sayde vnto her: go my daughter. And she went, and came to the felde, and geathered after the reapers, and her chaunce was, that the same felde pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelech. And behold, Booz came from Bethlehem, and sayd vnto the reapers: the Lorde be with you. And they answered him: the Lorde blesse the. The sayd Booz vnto his young man that stode by the reapers. Whose damosell is this? And the young man that stode by the reapers, answered, and sayde: it is the Moabite damosell, that came with Naomi out of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde vnto vs: Oh, let me lease & geather after the reapers, the eares that remayne: and so she came, and hath continued euen from the mornynge vnto now, saue that she taried a litle in y house.

Then sayde Booz vnto Ruth: hearest y my daughter: go to no nother felde to geather, nether go from hence: but abyde here by my maydens. Let thine eyes be on the felde that they reape, and go thou after the maydens. Haue I not charged the young men, that they shal do y no hurt? & sooner when thou art a thyrt, go vnto the vessels, and drinke of that which the laddes haue drawē.

Then she fell on her face and bowed her selfe to y ground, and sayd vnto him: how is it that I haue founde grace in thine eyes, ad that thou shuldest knowe me, seing I am an alaunt?

And Booz answered and sayde vnto her: all is tolde ad shewed me, that thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe, sence y death of thyne husbāde, how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and y lande where thou wast borne, ad art come vnto a nacio which thou knewest not in tyme passed. The Lorde quyte thy worke, and a full rewarde be geuen the of the Lorde God of Israhell, vnder whose wynges thou art come to abyde. The she sayde: let me fynde fauoure in thy syghte my Lorde, thou that hast confortd me, and spoken hartely vnto thy mayde, which yet am not like vnto one of thy maydens. Booz sayde vnto her agayne: in tyme of refection come thou hither, and eate of the breed, and

dypp thy soppe in the vinegre. And she sate downe by y reapers, & he reached her a parched corne: of the which she dyd eate, ad was suffled, and left parte. And when she was rylen by to gather, Booz commaunded hys young mē, saying: let her gather eue amonge the heapes, and forbydde her not. And leaue her some of the sheues for the nonce, and let it lye, y she maye gather it by, (without shame) and rebuke her not. And so she geathered in the felde, vntyll euen, and threshed that she had geathered, and it was in measure vpon an Ephah (that is the bushell) of barley. And she toke it by, and went into the cytie: and when her mother in lawe had sene what she had gathered, she plucked out also, & gaue to her that she had reserued, whē she had eaten ynough. And her mother in lawe sayd vnto her: where hast thou gathered to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he, that knewe y. And she shewed her mother in lawe how she had wrought with him, and sayde: the mannes name with whom I wrought to daye is Booz. And Naomi sayd vnto her daughter in lawe: blessed be he of the Lorde, for he ceaseth not to do good to the lyuing and to the deed. And Naomi sayde agayne vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, ad of oure next kynne. And Ruth the Moabite sayde: he sayde vnto me also. Thou shalt be w my young men, vntyll they haue ended all my haruest. And Naomi answered vnto Ruth her daughter in lawe: it is best my daughter that thou go out with hys maydens, that they fall not vpon the in any other felde. And so she kept her by the maydens of Booz, to gather, vnto the ende of barley haruest and of whete heruest also: and dwelt with her mother in lawe.

The iij. Chapter.

Ruth sleapeth at Booz feet, and is knowen bys husbāde.

When Naomi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my daughter, what I not seke rest for the, that thou mayst prosper? And is not Booz oure kynsman, with whose maydens thou wast? Beholde, he wenoeth barleye to nyght in the thresynge floure: wache thy selfe therfore, and anoynt the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and gett the downe to the barne. But let not a man knowe of the, vntyll he haue leaft eatynge and drynkyng. And when he goeth to slepe, marcke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then go and lyfte vp the clothes, that are on his fete, and laye the downe there, and so shall he tell the what thou shalt do. And she answered her: all that thou byddyst me, I will do. And so she went downe vnto the barne, and dyd accordynge to all that her mother in lawe bade her. And when Booz had eaten & droncken, and made made him merve, and was gone in, to lye do-wne besyde the heape of corne, she came softlye, and lifte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her downe. And at mydnight the man was asrayde and groped. And beholde: a woman laye at his fete. And he sayde: what art thou? she answered: I am Ruth thine had mayde, spede thy wynges ouer thine hand

mayde, for thou art the next of the kynne.
He sayd: blessed be y in the Lorde my daughter, for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the later ende, then at the begynnyng, in as moche as thou folowedest not younge men, whether they were poore or riche. And now my daughter feare not, I will do to the all y
thou requirest, for all the cytie of my people doth knowe, that thou art a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy next kynne: howbe it, there is one nyer then I.
Tary this night. And when moorning is come, yf he will marie the, it is good, so let him
do. But and yf he will not haue the, as sure as the Lorde lyueth I will haue the: lye styll vntill y morning. And so she laye at his fete vntill the moorning. And she arose vp before one coulede knowe another. And he sayde: let no man knowe, that there came any woman
into the barne. And he sayde agayne: bringe thy matell that thou hast vpon the, and holde it vp. And whan she helde it vp, he mette in sixe measures of Barlepe, ad layed it on her. And she gatt her into the cytie: and whā
she came into her mother in lawe, she sayde:
how is it with y my daughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And sayde also: these sixe measures of barlepe ga-ue he me, and sayd: thou shalt not come emp-tie vnto thy mother in lawe. Then sayd she,
my daughter, syt still, vntill y knowe how the matter will chaunce. For the man will not be in reast, vntill he haue synysed the thinge this same day.

The. iij. Chapter.

Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whom he begeth Obed.

When went Booz vnto the gate ad
satt him downe there: ad beholde,
the kynsmā of which Booz spake,
cam by. Vnto whom, he sayde: come and sytte downe here, and called him by his name. And he turned in, and sate downe. And he toke ten mē of the elders of the citie, and sayd: syt ye downe here. And they sat downe. And he sayde vnto the kyns-man: Naomi that is come agayne out of the cōtrepe of Moab * will sell a parcell of lan-de, which was oure brother Elimelech. And I thought to do the to wete, and bid the bye
it before the inhabitoures and elders of my people. Yf thou be disposed to redeme it, do:
but and yf thou wilt not poure it, then tell me, y I maye knowe. For there is none to calenge it, saue thou, and I nexte the. And the other answered: I will poure it.

Then sayde Booz, what daye thou blest
the felde of the hand of Naomi, thou must take also Ruth the Moabite the * wyfe of the deede, to sterc vp the name of the deede vpon his enheritaunce. The kynsmā answered: I ca-not purchase it, for marringe of myne a wne enheritaunce: take thou my right to the, for I cannot purchase it. Now, this was the maner of olde tyme in Israell concerninge purches and chaunging, for to stablishe all thin-ge: that a man must plucke of his shoue, ad
geue it his neyghboure, and this was a sure witness in Israell.

Therefore the kynsmā saide to Booz: Wye
it thou: and so dize of his shoue. And Booz sayde vnto the elders and vnto all the people: ye are witnesses this daye, that I haue bought all that was Elimelechs, and all that was Chilion and Mahlon, of the hand of Naomi. And moreover, Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahlon, haue I purchased to be my wyfe, to sterc vp the name of the deede vpon his enheritaunce, and that his name be not put out from amonge his brethzen, and from the gate of his place: ye are witnesses
this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate,
and the elders sayde: we are wytnesses:
the Lorde make the woman that is come into thyne house, lyke * Rachel ad Lea, which twayne dyd builde the house of Israell: do thou also valeauntly in Ephrata, and be famous in Bethlechem. Thy house be like y house of Pharez * whō Chamar bare vnto Juda, euen of the fede which the Lorde shall geue the of this younge woman.

And so Booz toke Ruth, and she was his wyfe. And whā he wēt in vnto her, the Lorde gaue, that she cōceaued, and bare a sonne.
And the women sayde vnto Naomi: blessed be the Lorde, the which hath not left y without a kynsmā, to haue a name in Israell, ad
that shall bring thy life agayne, and cherishe thine olde age. For thy daughter in lawe which loueth the, hath borne vnto him: and she is better to the then seven sonnes. And Naomi toke the childe, ad layed it in her lap-pe, and became nurse vnto it. And her ney-bours gaue it a name, saying: there is a childe borne to Naomi, and called it, Obed. The same is the father of Iai, the father of Da-
uid. These are the generacions of * Pharez:
Pharez begat Hezron: Hezron begat Ram,
Ram begat Aminadab, Aminadab begat
Mahlon, Mahlon begat Salmon, Salmon begat Booz. Booz begat Obed, Obed begat Iai, Iai begat Dauid.

The fyrst Chapter.

Elkana hath. ii. wyues, Hanna and Phenenna.

here was a mā of o-

med * El-kana y on-ne of Iero-
hā. y sonne

of Elthū, the sonne of Thohu, the sonne of zuph, an Ephrathite: whych had two wy-
ues. y one called hāna, & the other Phenenna.
And Phenenna had children, but Hanna had none. * And the sayd mā wēt vp out of his citie euery feastfull daye, to praye & to offer vnto y Lord of hostes in Silo, where were the two sonnes of Eli (Hophni & Phinehas) y lordes prestes. And it fell on a solemne daye, y Elkana offered, ad gaue to Phenenna his wife & to all her sonnes and daughters porcyōs. But vnto Hanna he gaue a porcyōn as a heuyc here, for he loued
Hanna, and the Lorde had made her barren.
And her enemye (Phenenna) vered her sore cōtynually, to moue her, because y lord had made her barrē. And so did she yere by yere
as ofte as she wēt vp to the house of y lord.
And so chafed her, which wepte, ad did not eate. The sayde Elkana her hūbād to her:
Hanna, why wepest thou? and why eatest y
not? and why is thyne herte troubled? am not I better to the, the ten sonnes? So hā-na rose vp after y they had eaten & droncke in Splo. And Eli the pzeaste sate vpon a stole by one of the syde postes of the temple of the Lorde. And she was troubled in her mynde, and prayed vnto the Lorde, & wepte
sore, and vowed a vowe, and sayd: O Lord

of hostes, yf thou wylt loke on the trouble of thine handmayde, & remēbre me, and not forget thine handmayde, but geue vnto thi ne hāmayde a māchylde: I wyl geue him
vnto y Lord all y dayes of his lyfe, * & there shall no raser come vpon his heed. And as she cōtinued praying before y lord, it fortuned, y Eli marked her mouth. For Hanna spake i her herte, & her lyppes did but moue
onely, but her voyce was not heard: & therfore Eli thought she had bene drōcken, and Eli sayd vnto her: how lōg wylt y be drōcken? put awaye from the, the wyne y thou hast. Hanna answered and sayde: not so my Lord, I am a woman of a so:owfull herte:
I haue droncke nether wyne nor stronge
drynck, but haue * powred out my soule
before y Lord. Count not thyne handmayde to be lyke a daughter of Belial, for out of the aboundance of my heuynes & greafe:
haue I spoken hitherto.

Eli answered her agayne: & sayde go in peace: y God of Israell graunt the thy peti-cyōn, y thou hast asked of hym. She sayde:
let thyne hāmayde fynde grace i thy sight
And so y woman went her waye, & dyd eat, & loked no more so sadde. And they rose vp earlye, & worshipped before y lord, & the returned, & came to the y house to Ramath.
And whā Elkana knew hāna his wyfe, y
Lord remēbred her: for in pzeccle of tyme
it came to passe, y she cōceaued, & bare a sonne, & called his name Samuel (sayeng:) because I haue asked him of y Lord. And El-kana & all his house went vp to offer vnto
the Lorde, the offeringe due for y feast, & also his vowe: Neuer theles, hāna wēt not vp, but sayde vnto her hūbād: I wyl tar-rye vntill y ladde be wened, & then I wyl
bring him y he maye appeare before y Lord, & there abide for euer. Elkana her hūbād answered her: do what semith y best: tarpe
at home, vntill y hast wened hi, & I besech
y Lord, to make good his sayeg. And so the womā abode, & gaue her sonne lucke, vntill
she wened him. And whē she had wened him
she toke hym with her, with thre bullockes & an Ephā of floure, & a bottel of wyne, and brought him vnto y house of y Lord in Silo, & the childe was yet but tēder of age. And they slue a bullocke, & brought in y ladd to Eli, and she sayd: Oh my Lord: as truly as thy soule lyueth my Lord, I am the womā
y itode before the here, praying vnto y Lor-
de. For this ladde I prayed, and the Lorde hath geue me my desire, whych I asked of him: and therefore I haue geuen hym vnto
the Lorde, as long as he is mete for the lor-
de. And they worshipped the Lorde there.

The. ii. Chapter.

The song of Hanna. The offence of the sonnes of Eli.

Ad Hanna prayed and sayde: myne herte reioyseth in ϕ Lord, and myne horne is exalted in the Lorde. My mouth is wyde open ouer myne enemyes, for I reioyse in thy saluacyō. There is none so holpe as the Lord, for without the, is nothing. Nether is there any of strength as is our God. Talke not to moche proudele let olde thynges depart out of your mouthes, for the Lorde is a God of knowledge, and his purposes come to passe. The bo- we with the myghte men are broken: and they that were weake, haue girded the sel- ues wth strength. They that were full, haue hired out them selues for breed, & they that were hongre, ceasse so to be, tyll the baren hath borne seuen: & she ϕ had many chyldre, is wared feble. * The Lord kylleth, and ma- keth aloue: byngeth downe to the graue and fetcheth vp agayne. * The Lorde ma- keth poore, & maketh ryche: byngeth lowe, and heueth vp on hye. * He repleth vp the poore out of the dust, and lyfteth vp ϕ beg- ger from the dong hyll: to sett them amōge princes, and to inherett the with the seate of gloire. For the pillers of the erth are the lordes, and he hath sett the rounde worlde vpon the. He wyll kepe the fete of hys sayn- tes, and the wycked shall kepe splence in darcknesse, & * in his awne myght shall no mā be strōge. The lordes aduerlaries shall be destroyed of hym: and out of beaue shall he thūder vpon euery one of the. The Lorde shall iudge the endes of the worlde, & shall gyue myght vnto his kyng, and exalte the horne of his anoynted. And Elkana wēt to Ramath to his house, & the ladd dyd my- nistre vnto the Lorde before Eli the preaste.

But the sonnes of Eli were chyldren of Belial, and knewe not the Lord. And the preastes made a lawe for ϕ people, ϕ when- soeuer any man offered any offeringe, the preastes ladd came, while the fleshe was in seking, & a fleshope wyth thre tethe in his hand, and thrust it into the pane: kette, cal- dren, or potte. And all that the fleshe hoke brought vp, that the preaste toke awaye. And so they did vnto all ϕ Israelites, that came thither to Silo. Pee & therto, before they burnt ϕ fatte, the preastes ladd came and sayd to the man that offered: geue flesch that I maye dresse it for the preaste, for he wyll not haue foddre fleshe of the, but rawe.

And yf any man sayde vnto hym: let them burne the fatt according to the dape, & then take as moche as thine herte desyreth. The ladd wold answer him, yee, ϕ shalt geue it me now: and yf thou wyll not, I wyll take it with violence. And the synne of ϕ young- mer: was very great before the Lorde. For men abhorred the offeringe of the Lorde.

But the child Samuel ministered before the Lorde, girded about wyth a lpyne Ephod. Moreover, hys mother made him a lpyle coate, & brought it to him from pere to pere, whē she came vp with her hus- bande to offer the offeringe in the solempne feastes: and Eli blessed Elkana & his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde geue the seede of thys womā, for the pettyō that she asked of the Lorde. And they went vnto their awne ho- me. And the Lorde visited Hāna, so that she conceaued & bare thre sonnes & two daugh- ters. And the chyld Samuel grewe before the Lorde.

Eli was very olde, & herde all that his sonnes dyd vnto all Israel, and how they laye with the women ϕ wayted at the dore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & he sayde vnto them: why do ye soche thynges? For of all these people I heare euell reportes of you. Oh, naye my sonnes: for it is no good reporte that I heare, how that ye make the lordes people to trespasse. If one mā synne agaynst another, & dayemen maye be iud- ges: but yf a man synne agaynst the Lorde who will be his dayleman? Not wythstan- dyng, they hekened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the Lorde wolde slaye them. The chyld Samuel profyted* and grew, and was in fauoure both with ϕ Lorde, and also with men.

And there cam a man of God vnto Eli, & sayd vnto him: thus sayeth the Lorde: dyd not I apere vnto the house of thy father, whē they were in Egypte subiect vnto Pha- raos house? And I chose thy father out of all ϕ trybes of Israel to be my preaste, for to offer vpon myne aultare, & to burne in- cense, & and to weare an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto ϕ house of thy father all the burnt offeringes of the chyldren of Is- raell. Wherfore treade ye downe my sacri- fice and myne offeringe, which I commaun- ded to be made in the Tabernacle, & hono- rest thy chyldren aboue me, to make poure selues fatt of the first frutes of all the offe- ringes of Israel my people? Wherfore the Lorde God of Israell sayeth: I sayde, that thy house and the house of thy father shuld walke before me for euer. But now the Lorde sayeth: that be farre from me: for them that worshippe me, I will worshippe, & they ϕ despyse me, shall come to shame. Behol- de, the dayes come, ϕ I will cut of thynne ar- me, & the arme of thy fathers house, ϕ there shal not be an elder i thine house. And thou shalt be thynne enemye in the tabernacle of ϕ Lorde, & in all that welthe which God shal giue Israell, & there shal not be an elder in thynne house for euer. Neuer thelesse, I wyll not destroye all the males that come of the seede of thyne aultare. But to make thynne eyes dale, & to make thynne herte melte. And all they

they ϕ be multiplyed in thynne house, * shall dye, yf they be men.

And this shal be a signe vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes: Hophny & Phinehes: euē in one dape they shall dye both. And I wyll sterre me vp a fapthfull preste, ϕ shall do accordyng to my herte and mynde: And I will buyde him a sure house. And he shall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they ϕ are left in thynne house, shall come, and crouch to him for a lpyle pece of syl- uer & a cake of bread, & shall saye: put me (I praye the) in one offyce or other amonge the prestes, that I maye eate a morsell of bread.

The. iij. Chapter.

The Lorde calleth Samuel thre tymes.

Ad the chyld Samuel mynistred vnto the Lorde before Eli: & ϕ worde of the Lorde was precious in those dayes, nether was there any open visyon. And it chaūsed at ϕ tyme, that Eli laye in his place, and hys eyes be- ganne to waxe dymme that he coulde not se. And yf the lāpe of God went out, Samuel layde hym downe to slepe in the tēple of the Lorde, where the arke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel, & he sayde, here am I, and he ran vnto Eli, & sayd: here am I, for ϕ calledst me. And he sayd: I called the not: go agayne, & slepe. And he went, and layde him downe to slepe. And the Lorde called once a- gayne: Samuel, & Samuel arose & went to Eli, & sayd, I am here, for thou dydest call me. And he answered: I called ϕ not, my son- ne. Go agayne, and take thy rest. Samuel knewe not yet the Lorde, nether was ϕ worde of ϕ Lorde yet opened vnto hym. And the Lorde went to, & called Samuel ϕ thyr- d tyme. And he arose, & went to Eli, & sayde: I am here, for ϕ hast called me. And Eli perceaued ϕ the Lorde had called the chyld. Ther- fore, Eli sayde vnto Samuel: go, & lye dow- ne: & yf he call the agayne, then saye, speake on Lorde, for thy seruaunt heareth. So Sa- muel went, & layde hym downe in hys place. And the Lorde came, & stode, & called as befo- re, Samuel Samuel. Samuel answered: speake on: for thy seruaunt heareth. And the Lorde sayde to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thinge in Israel, ϕ both the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tynge. In ϕ dape I wyll rapse vp agaynst Eli, all thynges whych I haue spoken concernyng his house: from the begynnyng to the endyng. I haue tolde him, * that I wyll iudge hys house for euer. For ϕ wicke dres which he knoweth, & for whē the people cursed hys sonnes for ϕ same wic- kednes, he hath not corrected the. And ther- fore, I haue sworn vnto the house of Eli, ϕ the wyckednesse of Elies house, shall not be purged wth sacrifice nor offering for euer. Sa- muel laye tyll the moynge, and opened the dore of the house of the Lorde.

And Samuel feared to shewe Eli the vi- sion. Then Eli called Samuel, & sayde: Sa- muel my sonne. And he answered: here I am. He sayde: what is that the Lorde hath sayde vnto the? I praye the, se thou hyde it not fro me. * God do so, & so to the, yf thou hyde any thyng from me, of all that he sayde vnto the. And Samuel tolde hym euery whytte, and hydd nothyng from hym. And he sayd: it is the Lorde, let him do what semeth hym best.

And Samuel grewe, & the Lorde was wyth him, & left none of hys wordes vnpers- formed. And all Israel from Dan to Bersa- be wytt that fapthfull Samuel was made the Lordes prophete. And the Lorde appered agayne in Silo: for the Lorde opened hym selfe to Samuel in Silo, thowow the worde of the Lorde.

The. iij. Chapter.

The arke of the Lorde is taken. Eli & hys chyldren dye.

Ad Samuel spake vnto all Israel. * And it fortuneth that in those dayes the Philis- tynges came together to fyghe. And Israel went out against the Philistynes to battay- le, and pyched besyde the * helpe stone. And the Philistynes pyched in A phelk. And put them selues in araye agaynst Israel. And whē they ioynd the battell, Israel was put to the worle before the Philistines. And the Philistynes slue in araye alonge by the fel- des, about a foure thousande men.

And when the people were come into their tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lorde cast vs downe this dape be- fore the Philistines: let vs fetch the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of Silo vnto vs, ϕ whē it cometh amōge vs, it maye saue vs, oute of the hāde of oure enemy. And so the people sent to Silo, & fet fro thens the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde of 1200- stes, which dwelleth betwene the cherubins. And there were the two sonnes of Eli, Ho- phny, & Phinehes with the arke of the appo- yntment of God. And it fortuneth, ϕ whē the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the hoost, all Israel thowted a myghtie showte, so that the erthe rangge agayne.

And whā the Philistines herde the noyse of the howte, they sayd: what meaneth ϕ soude of this myghty howt in ϕ hoost of ϕ Ebues? And they vnderstode, howe that the arke of the Lorde was come into the hoost: And the Philistines were afrayed, and sayde: God is come into the hoost. And they sayd agayne: Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this: Wo vnto vs, who shall deluyne vs out of ϕ hande of these myghty Goddes: these are the Goddes that smote the Egyptians with so many plagues in the wyldernes. *Jud.iii.a. Echues, *as they haue bene to you. We of a manly corage therfore & fyght. And the Philistines fought, & Israel was put to p worse & fledd euery mā into his tete. And ther was an exceeding great slaughter, for there were ouerthrowe of Israel xxx. vj. foremen. And the arcke of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Eli, *hophni, & Phinehes were decd. And there ran a mā of Ben Jamin out of the arape, and came to Silo the same dape with his clothes rent & earth vpon hys heed. And when he came, Eli sate vpon a stole, and looked toward the wape: for his hert feared for the arcke of God. And when the mā came in to the cytie, and tolde it, all the cytie cryed.

*1. Reg. iii. a. And when Eli herde the noyse of the cryēg he sayd: What meaneth this noyse of the rumor? And y mā came in hastily, & tolde Eli. Eli was xcviij. yere olde, and *hys sygh sapled him p he could not se. And the mā sayd vnto Eli: I am he p came out of the arape, & fled this dape out of the hoost. And he sayde: what thing is fortunēd my sonne? The messenger answered & sayd: Israel is fled before the Philistines, & there is a greate slaughter chauned amonge the people, & thy two sonnes, hophni & Phinehes are decd, & the arcke of God is taken. And it fortunēd that whan he made mencio of the arcke of God, Eli fell from of hys stole backward vpon the threholde of the gate, and hys necke brake, and he dyed: for he was an olde man and heuye, and indged Israel foure yeres.

*1. Reg. iii. a. And his daughter in lawe Phinehes wife was wchilde & nye the byrthe. And whē he hearde the tydinges p the arcke of God was taken, & p her father in lawe, & her husbāde were decd, she bowed her self, and traueled, for her paynes came vpon her. And about y tyme of her deeth, the women p rode aboute her, sayd vnto her: feare not, for p hast borne a sonne: but she answered not, nor regarded it. And she named the childe *Ichabod, sayinge: The glozy is departed frō Israel. Because the arcke of God was taken, & because of her father in lawe and her husbāde. And she sayde agayne: The glozy is gone frō Israel, for the arcke of God is taken.

*The glozy is gone. Che. v. Chapter. Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the arcke.

And the Philistynes toke the arcke of God, and carped it from the helpe stone vnto Asdod, agayne the Philistynes toke the arcke of God, & brought it into the house of Dago, and sett it by Dago. And when they of Asdod were vp in the nexte dape in the moynynge, beholde, Dagon laye vpon the erth before the arcke of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon, & set him in hys place agayne. And when they were vp erly in the nexte moynynge, beholde, Dago laye vpo the

groūde before the arcke of the Lorde, and his heed, & his two handes cut of vpon the threholde, & only the shape of a fyzt was left on hym. And therfore is it, p the prestes of Dago (nether any mā that cometh into Dagon's house) treade not on the threholde of Dagon in Asdod, vnto thys dape. But the hāde of the Lorde was heuy vpon the of Asdod, & he destroyed the, & smote the wemerodes, bothe Asdod & in all p coastes therof. Che. vi. Chapter. The bylages also & the felde in the myddes of the coūtre were ful, & ther came by myce, & ther was a consufion of great death in the cytie. And when the men of Asdod sawe p it was so, they sayde: the arcke of the God of Israel shall not abyde here with vs, for hys hāde is soze vpo vs & vpo Dago oure God. They sent therfore & gathered all the lordes of p Philistines vnto the, & sayde: what shall we do w the arcke of the God of Israel? They answered: let p arcke of p God of Israel be carped aboute vnto Gath. And they carped the arcke of the God of Israel about. And it fortunēd, that whē they had carped it about, there was by the hande of the Lorde a myghtye greate noyse in the cytie, & he smote the men of the cytie both small and greate: & they had secrete diseases, & the Bethites toke counsell, & made them selues ppepe seates of skennes. Therfore they sent the arcke of God to Akaron. And allone as the arcke of God, came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed out saying: they haue brought the arcke of p God of Israel to vs, to see vs and oure people.

And so they sent, and gathered together all the lordes of the Philistines & sayde: send awape the arcke of the God of Israel, to go agayne to his awne place, that it see vs not and oure people. For there was greate lamētacyon ouer the deade thozowout all the cytie, & the hāde of God was exceedynge soze there. And the mē that dyed not, were impyten wth the Emerodes: and the crye of the cytie went vp to heauen.

Che. vi. Chapter. The kyne bypunge home the arcke wth the rewardes.

The arcke of the Lord was in the coūtre of the Philistines seuen monethes: and the Philistynes called for the prestes & p loth sayers, sayinge: what shall we do wth the arcke of the Lorde: tell vs, where with we shall sende it home agayne? They sayde: If you sende the arcke of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not empyte. But rewarde it w a trespasse offeringe: and then ye shalbe whole, and it shalbe knowne to you, why hys hāde departeth not from you.

Then sayde they: And what shalbe the trespasse offeringe, whych we shall rewarde hym w? They answered: fyne golden arlles and

and. v. golden myce, according to the nombze of the lordes of the Philistines. For it is one maner of plage on you all, & on your lordes. Therfore ye shal make ymages like to your arlles, and ymages lyke to your myce p corrupt the lande, and ye shal geue glozy vnto the God of Israel: that he maye take his hād from of you, and frō of your goddes, and frō of poure lande.

Wherfore do ye harden your hertes as p Egyptians and Pharao hardened their hertes: which when he toke on agaynst the, dyd they not let the people go, & they departed? Now therfore, make a newe carte, and take two melche kyne: on whose necke there hath come no yock. And tye the kyne to the carte, and bring the calues home frō them. And take the arck of the Lord, and laye it vpon the carte, and put the iewels of golde (which ye rewarde him with for a synoffering) in a cofre by the side therof: and send it awape, p it maye go. And yf ye se p he go vp by y wape of his awne coaste to Bethlames: then it is he p dyd vs this great euyl. If no, we shall knowe then, that it is not his hande p smote vs: but it was a chaunce that happened vs. And the mē dyd euen so: and toke two kyne that gaue mylke, and tyed them to the carte, and kept the calues at home, and they layde the arck of the Lorde vpon the carte and the cofre w the myce of gold, and w the ymages of their arlles. And the kyne toke p streyght wape to Bethlames, & went on p streyght wape: & as they wēt, lowed, & turned nether to the right hāde ner to the left. And the lordes of the Philistines went after them, vntyll the borders of Bethlames.

And they of Bethlames were reappynge their wheate herust in the valey. And they lift vp their eyes, and spied the arck. And reioyced whē they sawe it. And the carte came into the felde of one Jehosua a Bethlamite, and stode still there. There was also a great stone. And they claue the wod of the carte & offered the kyne a burnt offering vnto p Lord. And the Leuites toke downe the arck of the Lorde & the cofre that was with it, wherein the iewels of golde were: and put them on the great stone. And the men of Bethlames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offeringes p same dape vnto the Lorde. And when the fyne lordes of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Akarō the same dape. And these are the golden arlles which the Philistines gaue to amēdes for a trespasse offering, to the Lorde: for Asdod one: for *Gaza one: for Akarō one. And golden myce, accordyng to the nombze of all the cyties of the Philistines, euen accordyng to the fyne lordes, both of walled townes and of townes unwalled: euen vnto the greate stone of lamentacyon, wherō they set downe the arcke of the Lorde: which stone remaineth vnto this dape in the felde of Jehosua the Bethlamite. And he plaged the men of Bethlames, because they had sene the arcke of the Lorde. And he slue amonge the people fyfte thousande and thre scoze and ten men. And the other people lamented, because the Lorde had slayne the people with so great a slaughter. Therfore the men of Bethlames sayde: who is able to stande before the Lord so holy a God: and to whom shall he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the enhabiters of Kariath Jarim, saying: The Philistines haue brought agayne the arke of the Lorde: come ye downe therfore, and fet it vp to you.

Che. vij. Chapter. The arcke is brought to Kariath Jarim.

And so the men of Kariath Jarim came, and fet vp the arck of the Lorde: and brought it into the house of Aminadab in Gibeā, & sanctified Eleazar his sonne, to kepe the arck of the Lorde: and whyle the arcke abode in Kariath Jarim, the dayes multiplied, and ther passed ouer. xx. yeres, and the house of Israel lamented after the Lorde. And Samuel spake vnto all p house of Israel, saying: yf ye be come agayne vnto the Lorde with all your hertes, then put a wape the straunge goddes and Ashtaroth from amonge you: and prepare your hertes vnto the Lorde, and serue hym *only: for he shall ryd you out of the hande of the Philistines. Then the chyldren of Israel dyd put awaye Baalim and Ashtaroth, and serued the Lorde onely. And Samuel sayde: gather all Israel to Mizpa, and I will praye for you vnto the Lorde. And they gathered together to Mizpa, and dreyne water: and powred it out before the Lorde, & fasted the same dape and sayde there: we haue synned against the Lorde. And Samuel indged the chyldren of Israel in Mizpa. Whē the Philistines heard p the chyldren of Israel were gathered together to Mizpa, p lordes of p Philistines wēt vp against Israel. And when the chyldren of Israel heard p they were afrayed of p Philistines, & the chyldren of Israel saide to Samuel: ceasse not to crye vnto the Lorde oure God for vs, that he maye saue vs out of the hād of the Philistines. *And Samuel toke a suckynge lambe, and offered it all together for a burnt offering vnto the Lorde: & cryed vnto the Lorde for Israel, & the Lord heard him. And as Samuel offered p burnt offering, the Philistines came to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lorde thondered a great thonder p same dape amonge the Philistines, and scattered them, p they fell before Israel. And p men of Israel went out of Mizpa, and pursued the Philistines, & folowed vpon them,

untill the place that is vnder Bethel:

D And then Samuel ^{* 1. reg. xiii. f} toke a stone, and pitched it betwene Mizpa and the mark of the rock, and called the name thereof, ^{* 1. reg. xiii. a} stone of helpe, saying: hitherto hath the Lord helped vs. And so the Philistines were brought vnder, & they came nomore into the coastes of Israel: & the hand of the Lord was agaynst Philistines all dayes of Samuel. Thereto, the cities which the Philistines had taken fro Israel, were restored agayne to Israel, euen fro Bezon to Gath, in the coastes of the same, & Israel plucked them out of the handes of the Philistines. And there was peace betwene Israel & the Amorites. Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and wet about yere by yere to Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpa, & iudged Israel in all those places, & came agayne to Rama: for there was his house, & ther he iudged Israel also, & there he buylt an aulter vnto the Lord.

The viij. Chapter.

The people requyre a kynge.

When Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes iudges ouer Israel. The name of his eldest sonne was Joel, and name of second Abia: & they were iudges in Beerseba. And his sonnes walked not in his wayes: but turned a syde after lucre, and ^{* 1. reg. x. b} toke rewarde, and peruerced the ryght. Then all the elders of Israel gathered the together, and came to Samuel vnto Rama, & sayd vnto him: behold, thou art olde, and thy sonnes walke not in thy wayes. Now therfore ^{* 1. reg. x. c} make vs a kynge to iudge vs, as all other nations haue. But ^{* 1. reg. x. d} the thing displeased Samuel, when they sayde: geue vs a king to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord sayde vnto Samuel: heare the voyce of the people in all that they saye vnto the. For they haue not cast the awaye, but me: that I shulde not raygne ouer the. And as they haue euer done (since I brought them out of Egypte vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other goddes) euen so do they vnto the. Nowe therfore hearken vnto their voyce: howbeit, yet testifie vnto the and shewe the ^{* 1. reg. x. e} the auctorite of the king that shall raygne ouer the. And Samuel told all the wordes of the Lord vnto the people, that asked a kynge of him, and he sayde: this shalbe the auctorite of the kynge that shal raygne ouer you: ^{* 1. reg. x. f} he wyll take your sonnes and put the to his charettes, and make his horsmen of the, to runne before his charret: and will make him of them, captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer fiftyes, and wyll let them to care his groude, and to gather in his heruest, and to make instrumentes of warre, and apparell for his charettes. And he wyll take your daughters, & make the apoticaries, cookes and bakers. And he shall take the best of youre feldes, ^{* 1. reg. x. g} and of youre vyneyardes, and of your olyue trees, and geue them to his seruantes. And he shall take the tenth of your seed, and of your vyneyardes, and geue it to his chamberlaynes, and to his seruantes. And he shall take the best of your mēseruautes and maydseruautes and yong men, and of your asses, and put the to his worke. And he shall take the tenth of your shepe, and ye shalbe his seruantes. And ye shall crye out at that tyme vpon your kynge, which ye shall haue chosen you, & the Lord will not heare you at that daye.

Neuertheles, the people wolde not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd say: naye, not so. But there shalbe a king ouer vs, that we maye be lyke other nacjons, and that oure kynge maye iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fyght our battayles. ^{* 1. reg. x. h} Therfore, when Samuel hearde all the wordes of the people, he rehearsed them in the eares of the Lord. And the Lord sayde to Samuel: herken vnto the people, and make the a king: And Samuel sayde vnto the men of Israel: go euery man vnto his cite.

The ix. Chapter.

Saul the sonne of Cis is chosen kynge.

Ther was a man of Beniamin named Cis the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of zeror, the sonne of Bechorath, the sonne of Aphiah, sonne of a man that was a Jeminite, a man of strength and might: and the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yong mā and a fayre: so that amonge the chyldren of Israel there was none goodlyer then he. For from the shoulders vwarde, he was hyer then all the other people. And the asses of this Cis Sauls father were lost: and Cis sayde to Saul his sonne: take one of the laddes with the and go vp & seke the asses. And he went thorow mount Ephraim, & thorow the lade of Salisa: but they founde them not. Then they went thorow the lade of Salim, and there they were not. When they wet also thorow the lade of Jemini, they founde the not. At the last, when they were come to the land of zuph, Saul saide to his lad the was with him: come, let vs retorne, lest my father leaue caring for the asses, & take thought for vs. He sayd vnto him: behold, there is in this cite a mā of God, & he is a worshipfull mā: all the he sayth, cometh suerly to passe. Nowe then let vs go thither: peradventure he shal shewe vs what waye we maye go. Then sayd Saul to his lad: yf we will go, what shall we buy the mā? For our bread is all spent out of oure vessels, & there is no nother present to bring the man of God: what haue we? And the lad answered Saul agayne, and sayde: I haue founde about me the fourth parte of a shele, that that will I geue the man of God, to tell vs oure waye.

Before tyme in Israel when a man wet to seke an answer of God, thus wise he spake, come, and let vs go to the sear. For he that is now called a prophet, was in the olde tyme called a sear. Then sayde Saul to his lad: well sayde of the: come, let vs go. And so they went vnto the cite where the man of God was. And as they were goinge vp into the cite, they mett wyth damoselles the came out to drawe water, and sayd vnto them: is there here a sear? And the maydens answered the, yee, ^{* 1. reg. x. i} (here is one) beholde, he is before you. Make hast now, for he cam this daye to the cite for the there is an offering of the people this daye in the hill. When ye be come into the cite, ye shall fynde hym strayght waye, yf he go vp to the hill to eate: for the people wyll not eate vntill he come, because the doth blesse the offering. And then eate they the be bydden to the feast. Nowe therfore get you vp, for this daye shall ye fynde hym. And they went vp into the cite. And when they were come into the myddes of the cite: beholde, Samuel came out agaynst the, for to go vp to the hill. ^{* 1. reg. x. j} But the Lord had tolde Samuel in his care (a daye before Saul came) sayenge: to morowe this tyme I wyll sende the a man out of the lande of Beniamin, hym shalt thou anoynte to be captayne ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people out of the hande of the Philistines: for I haue looked vpon my people, and they crye is come vnto me. When Samuel therfore saw Saul, the Lord answered hym: se, this is the mā, who I spake to the of. This same shall raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the myddle of the gate, & sayde: tell me I praye the, where the sears house is. Samuel answered Saul, and sayde: I am the sear, go vp before me vnto the hill, for ye shall eate wyth me to daye. And to morowe I wyll let the go, and wyll tell the all that is in thynne hert. And as for thynne asses the were lost thre dayes ago, care not for them, for they are founde. And mozeouer, whose shall the bewtiful thinges of Israel be: belonge they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers house? But Saul answered and sayde: am not I the sonne of a Jeminite of the smallest trybe of Israel? and my kynred is the least of all the kynredes of the trybe of Beniamin. Wherefore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and his lad, and brought them into the parler, and made the sytt in the cheffest place amonge them the were bydden: which were vpon a thirtie persones. And Samuel sayde vnto the cooke: bynge forth the porcyon whych I gaue the, and of whych I sayd vnto the: kepe it with the. And the cooke toke by the shoulder, & that whych was vpon it, & set it before Saul. And Samuel sayd: beholde, the which is left: put it before the, & eate, for hitherto hath it bene kept for the, of purpose, when I called the people. And so Saul dyd eat wyth Samuel the daye. And when they were come downe from the hill into the cite, Samuel comuned wyth Saul the vpon the toppe of the house: and when they arose etye about the synginge of the daye, Samuel called Saul vpon the toppe of the house, sayenge: vp, the I maye sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they wet out at the doores both, he & Samuel. And when they were come almost out of the towne, Samuel sayd to Saul: byd the lad go before vs (and he wet before) but stande thou still a whyle, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

The x. Chapter.

Saul is anoynted kynge, and propheseth.

And the Samuel toke a vessell of oyle, & powred it vpon his heed, & ^{* 1. reg. x. k} kysed him, & sayde: hath not the Lord anoynted the, to be captayne ouer his inheritaunce? (and thou shalt deprecate thy people out of the handes of thy enemies, which are rounde aboute the. And this token shalt thou haue, that the Lord hath anoynted the to be kynge.) When the art departed fro me this daye, the shalt fynde two me by Rahels sepulchre in the border of Beniamin, euen at zalezah. And they will saye vnto the: the asses which the wentest to seke, are founde. And lo, thy father hath left the care of the asses, & soroweth for you, sayenge: what shall I do for my sonne? The shalt the go forth fro thence, & shalt come to the playne of Chaboz. And there shalt mete the thre me goinge vp, & to God to Bethel: one carpeng thre kiddes: & another carpeg thre lones of breed: & another carpeg a botell of wyne. And they wyll salute the, & geue the two lones of breed: which thou shalt receaue of the the hādes. After the shalt thou come to the hill of God, where the Philistines kepe their watche. And when thou art come thither to the cite, the shalt mete the a companye of prophetes cōminge downe fro the hill, wā psalter, a tymbrell, a pype, & a harpe before the, & the they shall prophesye. And the swete of the Lord wyll come vpon the also, & the shalt prophesye, ^{* 1. reg. x. l} the wyth

with them, and shalt be turned into another man. Therefore whē these signes are chaūced the, do what thou hast to do, for God is wyth the. And I shalt go before me to Gilgal. And I also wyll come downe vnto the, to sacrifice burnt sacrifices, and to offere peace offeringes. Carry for me seue dapes, till I come to the, and thew the, what thou shalt do. And as sone as he had turned hys shoulder to go fro Samuel, God gaue hym another maner of herte, & all those tokens came to passe that same dape. And whē they came to the hill: beholde, the companye of prophetes met hym, and the sperte of God cam vpon hym also, & he prophesied amōg them. And all that knewe hym before, when they sawe that he prophesied amōg the prophetes, they sayd eche to other: what is this? is happened vnto the sonne of Cis? Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And one of the same place answered & sayde: who is their father? And therof came the prouerbe: what is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And when he had made an ende of prophesying, he cam to the hill. And Sauls fathers brother sayde vnto hym and to hys lad: whether wēt ye? he sayde: to seke the asses: & whē we saw that they were no where, we came to Samuel. And Sauls vncle sayde: tell me what Samuel sayde vnto you? Saul answered his vncle: he tolde vs planely, that the asses were founde. But of the kyngdome wherof Samuel spake, tolde he hym not. And Samuel called the people together vnto y^e Lord to Mizpa, and sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: I brought Israel out of Egypt, and deliuered you out of the hande of the Egypciāns, & out of the hādes of all kyngdomes that troubled you. And ye haue this dape cast awaye youre God that helped you out of all youre aduersities & tribulacyōs. And ye haue sayd vnto hym: make a kyngge ouer vs. Howe therfore stande ye before the Lord by youre trybes & youre thousands. And whā Samuel had brought all the tribes of Israel, the tribe of Beniamin was caught. Whē he had brought the tribe of Beniamin by their kynredes, the kynred of Manasse was caught: and at the last Saul y^e sonne of Cis was caught. And whā they sought hym, he coule not be founde. Therefore they asked the Lord further, yf the man shulde come thither. And the Lord answered: beholde, he hath hydd hym selfe amonge the stuffe. And they ranne & fet him thēce. And when he stode amōg the people, he was hyper then any of the people, fro y^e shoulders vpwarde. And Samuel sayde to all the people: Se ye not him, whō the Lord hath chosen, & howe there is none lyke hym amonge all the people. And all the people howled & sayde: God lend the kyngge lyfe.

Then Samuel tolde the people the dutye of the kyngdome, & wrote it in a booke, and layde it vpon the Lord, and sent all the people awaye, euery man to hys house. And Saul also went home to Gibea. And there folowed him strong men, whose heretes God had touched. But the chyldre of Beniamin sayde: howe shall he saue vs? and they despised him, and brought him no presentes. And he helde is tongue.

The xj. Chapter.

The people reneweth the kyngdome of Saul.

Nahas the Ammonite came, & beleaged Iabes in Gilead. And all the men of Iabes sayde vnto Nabas: make a couenaunt wyth vs, and we wyll be thy seruantes: And Nabas the Ammonite answered them: In this will I make a couenaunt wyth you, yf I maye thrust out all youre eyght eyes, and bypunge that shame vpon all Israel. To whō the elders of Iabes sayd: geue vs seue dapes respite: that we maye sende messengers vnto all the coastes of Israel. And then yf there be no man to helpe vs, we wyll come out to the. Then came the messengers to Gibea vnto Saul, and tolde thys tydynge in the eares of the people. And all the people lyfte vpon theyr voyces and wept. And beholde, Saul came folowynge the catell out of the felde, & Saul sayde: what ayleth thys people, that they wepe? And they tolde hym the tydynge of the men of Iabes. And the sperte of God came vpon Saul, when he heard those tydings, and he was excedyng angrey, and toke a pocke of oxen, and hewed them in peces, & sent them thowowe out all the coastes of Israel by the hādes of messengers, sayng: whosocuer cometh not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall hys oxen be serued. And the feare of the Lord fell on the people, and they cam out as it had bene but one man. And when he nombred them in Bezek, the chyldren of Israel were thre hundred thousande men, and the men of Iuda thirtie thousande. And they sayde vnto the messengers y^e cam: so saye vnto the men of Iabes in Gilead: to morow by that tyme the sonne be hote, ye shal haue helpe. And the messengers cam & shewed the men of Iabes, which were glad. Therefore the men of Iabes sayde: to morow we wyll come out vnto you, and ye shall do wyth vs all that please you. And on the morow it fortuneth, that Saul put the people in .iij. partes. And they cam in vpon the host in the mooryng watche, & slue the Ammonites, vntill the heat of the dape. And they that remayned, were skattered: so y^e two of them were not left together. And the people sayde vnto Samuel: what is he that darre saye: shall Saul raygne ouer vs? bypunge those men, that we maye slaye them.

And Saul sayde: there shall no mā dye thys dape, for to dape y^e Lord hath saued Israel.

Then sayde Samuel vnto the people: come, that we maye go to Gilgal, and renewe the kyngdome there. And all the people wēt to Gilgal, & made Saul kyng there, before the Lord in Gilgal. And there they offered peaceofferings before the Lord. And there Saul and all the mē of Israel reioysed excedyngly.

The xij. Chapter.

Samuel declareth hym selfe to be an innocent iudge.

Samuel sayd vnto all Israel: beholde, I haue hekened vnto your voyce in all that ye sayde vnto me, & haue made you a kyngge. Howe therfore, youre kyngge walketh before you. And I am olde and graye headed: and behold, my sonnes are with you, and I haue walked before you fro my chyldhode vnto thys dape. Beholde, here I am: beare recorde of me before the Lord and before hys anoynted: whole ore haue I taken: or whole alle haue I take: whō haue I done wroge to? Whom haue I hurt? Or of whole hande haue I receaued any bypbe, to blynde myne eyes therwyth? I wyll restore it you agayne. They sayde: thou hast done vs no wroge, nor hurt vs, nether hast thou take ought of any mannes hande. he sayde vnto them agayne: the Lord is witnesse agaynst you, & hys anoynted is wytnesse thys dape, y^e ye haue founde naught in my hādes. And they answered: he is wytnesse. And Samuel sayd vnto the people: it is the Lord, y^e made Moses & Aaron, & y^e brought youre fathers out of the lāde of Egypt. Howe therfore stāde still, y^e I maye reason wth you before the Lord, accordyng to all the rypghtousnesses of the Lord, which he shewed both you and youre fathers.

After y^e Jacob was come into Egypte, and youre fathers cryed vnto the Lord: the Lord sent Moses & Aaron, which brought your fathers out of Egypt, & made the dwell in this place. And whā they forgot the lord their God, he deliuered the into the hande of Sisara captaine of the host of Hazor: and into the hande of the Philistynes, and into the hande of the kyng of Moab, and they fought agaynst them. And they cryed vnto the Lord, & sayde: we haue sinned, because we haue forsaken the Lord, and haue serued Baalim and Ashtaroth. Howe therfore deliuer vs out of the handes of oure enemyes and we wyll serue the. And the Lord sent Jerobaal & Nadab & Jephthah, & Samuel, and deliuered you out of the handes of youre enemyes on euery syde, and ye dwelled safe. And for all that, whē you sawe that Nabas the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon cam agaynst you, ye sayde vnto me: not so but a kyng shall raigne ouer vs, whē yet the Lord poure God was poure kyngge. Howe therfore, beholde, the kyng whō ye haue chosen, and whom ye haue despised: lo, the Lord hath set a kyngge ouer you. Yf ye wyll feare the Lord & serue hym, and heare hys voyce, & not disobeie the worde of the Lord: both ye & the kyng that raygneth ouer you, shall folowe the Lord poure God: yf ye wyll not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord, but disobeie the Lordes mouth: then shall the hande of the Lord be vpon you and on youre fathers. Howe also stande, and se thys great thyng, whych the Lord will do before your eyes: is it not now wheatherest? I will call vnto the Lord, and he shall sende thunder and rayne: that ye maye perceaue and se, howe that youre wickednes is great, which ye haue done in the syght of the Lord, in a kyngge you a kyngge. And so, Samuel called vnto the Lord, and the Lord sent thunder and rayne the same dape. And all the people feared the Lord and Samuel excedyngly. And all the people sayde vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruantes vnto the Lord thy God, that we dye not: for we haue sinned in askyng vs a kyngge, besyde all the synnes y^e euer we dyd.

And Samuel sayde vnto the people: feare not. Ye haue in dede done all thys wyckednesse, yet departe not from folowynge of the Lord. But serue hym euen wyth all youre hertes. Nether turne ye after wayne thynges whych are not able to profyt you, for they are but vanities. For the Lord wyll not forsake hys people, because of hys great names sake: because it hath pleased the Lord, to make you his people. More ouer God forbiddeth, that I shulde synne agaynst the Lord, and ceasse prayng for you, but to shewe you the good & rypght waye. Therefore feare you the Lord, and serue hym in the tract, and wyth all youre hertes: & consyde, howe great thynges he hath done for you. But and yf ye do wyckedlye, then shall ye perishe, both ye and youre kyngge.

The xij. Chapter.

The Philistines are smitten of Saul and Jonathan. Saul beynge disobeynt to Goddes commaundement, is shewed of Samuel, that he shall not raygne.

Saul had bene kyngge one yere (whā these thynges came to passe) and he raygned two yeres ouer Israel. And Saul chose him thre thousand men of Israel: two thousande were wyth Saul in Michmas and in mount Bethel, & a thousande wyth Jonathan in Gibea Beniamin. And the rest of the people he sent, euery man to hys awne house agayne. And Jonathan smote the holde of the Philistines, y^e was in the hyll, and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul blew the tropet thow rowe out all the lade, saye ge: let the Ebryes heare. And all Israel hearde saye, howe that Saul had destroyed an holde of the Philistines, wherfore Israel stanche before Philistines. And the people gathered together after Saul to Gilgal.

The Philistines also geathered them selues together to fyght wyth Israel, thirtie thousand charettes and spre thousand horse men, with other people like the sand by the sees syde in multitude, and came vp, and pitched in Michmas eastwarde from Bethanien. And when the me of Israel sawe it, they were in a strypte, & feare came vpo the people, and they hydd them selues in caues, and in pny holes, and in rockes, and in hye places, & in pittes. And some of the Ebryes went ouer Jordan to go vnto the lande of Gad & Gilead. And Saul was yet in Gilgal, & all the people that folowed him were astonied.

And he tarped seue dayes, euen vnto tyme Samuel had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Gilgal, & the people were therefore skatered fro him. And Saul sayd: bring a burnt sacrifice to me & peace offerings. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as sone as he had made an ende of offeringe & burnt sacrifice, beholde, Samuel cam. And Saul went agaynst him, to blesse him. And Samuel sayde: what hast thou done? Saul sayde: because I saw that the people skatered fro me, and I came not wthin the dayes apoynted, and the Philistines geathered the selues together to Michmas: therfore sayd I: Philistines shall come downe nowe vpon me to Gilgal, & I haue not made supplicacio vnto the Lord. And wha I had ouercome my selfe, at the last I offered a burnt offeringe.

And Samuel sayde to Saul: part become a sole, thou hast not kept the comaundment of the Lord thy God, which he comaunded the: for at this tyme wold the Lord haue stablyshed thy kingdome vpo Israel for euer. But nowe, thy kyngdome shall not continue. The Lord hath sought him a man after his awne hart, & the Lord hath commaunded him to be captayne ouer his people: because thou hast not kept & whych the Lord commaunded the. And Samuel arose & gat hym vp from Gilgal to Gibeon Beniamin.

And the remnant of the folke went vp after Saul, to mete the people, whych sought agaynst them, as they were coming from Gilgal to Gibeon in the hill of Beniamin. And Saul nobred the people that were founde w him, & they were about a syre hundred men. And Saul and Jonathas his sonne and the people that were founde wyth the, had they abydynge in the hill of Beniamin. But the Philistines pitched in Michmas. And there came out of the host of Philistines thre compaignes, to destroye: one compaigne turned vnto the waye & leadeth to Ephraim vnto the lande of Saul. And a nother compaigne turned the waye to Bethoron. And the thyrde compaigne turned to the waye of cost & is sene aboue the vale of seboim toward the wyldernesse. There was no syneth founde thowowe out all the lade of Israel. For the Philistines sayde: Lett happily the Ebryes make them swerdes or speeres. But all Israelites went downe to the Philistines, to mend euerie man his share, his mattock, his axe & his necessary toles. And then the edges of the shares, mattocks, doge foxkes, and axes were blunt, and also the foxkes were to be set in. And so in tyme of battell there was neither swerde nor speere founde in the handes of any of the people that were wyth Saul and Jonathas. But with Saul and Jonathas hys sonne was there somewhat founde. And the watch of Philistines came out, to go ouer vnto Michmas.

The xliij. Chapter.

Jonathas and hys harnesse bearer putteth the Philistines to flight. He casteth the honpe.

And it fortuneth the same tyme, Jonathas the sonne of Saul sayd vnto hys younge man that bare hys harnesse: come, and let vs go ouer to the Philistines watche that are pouder on the other syde, and he tolde not his father. And Saul tarped in the vtmost parte of Gibeon vnder Rimmon, whych is in Aigron, & the people that were wyth him were vpon a syre hundred men. And Ahia the sonne of Abitob Jehabods brother, the sonne of Phineches, the sonne of Eli, was the Lordes preaste in Silo, & ware an Ephod. And the people wist not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the myddes of the passage (by which Jonathas sought to go ouer vnto the Philistines watch) were there two sharpe rockes, euen one on the one syde, & the other on the other syde: the one called Bozez, & the other Sene. The forefront of the one, leaned northwarde toward Michmas, & the other was southwarde, toward Gibeon. And Jonathas sayd to the younge man that bare his harnesse: come and let vs go ouer vnto the watch, of these vncircumcised, peradventure the Lord will worke w vs: for it is no hardnesse w the Lord to saue ether in manye or in fewe. And his harnesse bearer sayde vnto hi: do all this in thyne hert: So where it pleaseth the: Behold, I am w the, as thine hert lusteth. The sayde Jonathas: beholde, we go ouer vnto these me, & shall shew oure selues vnto the: if they saye on this wise to vs: tarpe, vntill we come to you, the we will stode stil in place, & not go vp vnto the. But if they saye: come vp vnto vs, the we will go vp, for the Lord hath deliuered them into oure handes. And thus shalbe a sygne vnto vs. And they bothe shewed the selues vnto the watch of Philistines.

Philistines. And Philistines sayde: se, the hebryes come out of holes where they had hydd the selues in. And men of the watche answered Jonathas and his harnesse bearer, & sayde, come vp to vs, and we will shew you a thinge. And Jonathas sayde vnto his harnesse bearer, come vp after me, for the Lord hath deliuered them into the hande of Israel. And Jonathas claime vp vpo handes & fete, & his harnesse bearer after him. And they fell before Jonathas: & his harnesse bearer shue the after hym. And that first slaughter which Jonathas and his harnesse bearer made, was vpon a twentie men, within the compasse as it were about an halfe caker of lade. And ther was a feare in the host, in the felde, & amonge all people: in so moche that they were gone out of the watche to robbe, were a frayde also: and the erth trembled, for the feare that was sent of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gibeon Beniamin, sawe. And beholde, the people (of the Philistines) were skatered & were synette as they went. Then sayde Saul vnto the people: I was with him. Searche and se, who is gone a waye fro vs. And when they had nobred, beholde, Jonathas & hys harnesse bearer were not there. And Saul sayde vnto Ahia: bringe hither the arcke of God. For the arcke of God was at that tyme wyth the chyldren of Israel. And it fortuneth while Saul talked vnto the preaste, the people that was in the hoste of the Philistines spred further abrode, & increased.

And Saul sayde vnto the preaste: drawe thyne handes. And Saul ioynded hymselfe vnto all the people that were with him, & they came to the battell. And beholde every manes swerde was agaynst his felowe, and there was a very greete rumore. Moreover, the Ebryes were wyth the Philistines before that tyme, and were come with them in all partes of the hoste, turned, to be with the Israelites & were wyth Saul & Jonathas. And all men of Israel also, which had hydd them selues in mount Ephraim, as sone as they heard howe that the Philistines were fled, they folowed after them in the battell. And so God holpe Israel that daye. And the battell continued vnto Bethanien.

And whyle the men of Israel were kepte downe wyth hunger that daye, Saul charged the people with an ooth sayinge: Cursed be the man that eateth any foode vntill nyght, tyll I be aduenged of myne enemyes: And so, none of the people tasted any sustinaunce. And all the inhabyters of the lade came to a wood where honpe laye vpon the groude. And the people came into the wood: And beholde, the honpe dropped, and no man moued hys hande to his mouth, for the people feared the ooth. But Jonathas hearde not wher hys father charged the people with the ooth, wherfore he put forth the ende of the rodd that was in his hande, and dypt it in an honpe combe, & put his hande to his mouth, and his eyes receaued syght. Then answered one of the people and sayde: thy father adured the people, sayinge: Cursed be the man that eateth any sustinaunce this daye, & the people were fayntye. Then sayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled the lande: se howe myne eyes hath receaued syght, because I tasted a lytle of this honpe: howe much more then to daye if the people had eaten of the spople of their enemyes whych they founde. And had there not bene then a moche greater slaughter amonge Philistines? And they layed on the Philistines & daye, from Michmas to Aialo. And the people were exceedinge fayntie.

And the people gat the to the spoyles, & toke shepe, oxen, & calues, & shue the on the graffe, & the people dyd eate the w the bloude. Then men tolde Saul, sayinge: Beholde, the people synne agaynst the Lord, in that they eate with the bloude. And he sayde: ye haue trespassed. Rowle a great stone vnto me this daye, and Saul sayde agayne: So abroade amonge the people & bydd them bynge me euerie man his ore & euerie man his shepe, and slave them here, and synne not agaynst the Lord in eatinge w the bloude. And the people brought euerie man hys ore in his hande, by nyght, & shue them there. And Saul made an altare vnto the Lord. And that was the fyrst altare he made vnto the Lord. And Saul sayde: lett vs go downe after the Philistines by nyght and spople the, vntill it be daye in the morninge, & lett vs not leaue one ma of the. And they sayd: do whatsoeuer thou thinkest best. Then sayde the preast: lett vs come hither vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shall I go downe after the Philistines? Wilt thou deliuer them into the handes of Israel? But he answered him not at that tyme. And Saul sayde: let the people come hyther out of all quarters, and knowe & se by wher thys synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lord lyureth which saueth Israel, though it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye the death. But there was no man amonge all the people that answered him.

Then he sayde vnto all Israel: be ye on one syde, and I & Jonathas my sonne wilbe on the other syde. And the people sayde vnto Saul: what thou thynekst best, & do. Therfore Saul sayde vnto the Lord God of Israel: geue a perfect lott. And the Lord answered him, & shue the judgement. Howe happeneth it, that thou geuest the lott no answer to daye? At this synne be in me or in Jonathas my sonne, shewe it, or if this iniquite be in the people. And Saul & Jonathas were caught, but the people shaped free. And Saul sayde, cast lottes betwene me & Jonathas my sonne. And Jonathas Gathas was caught. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathas tolde him, & sayde. I tasted a lytle honye with the ende of the rodd that was in mynne hande: and lo, I must dye.

* Ruth. i. c.

Saul answered: * God do so and so to me, thou shalt dye the death Jonathas. And the people sayde vnto Saul: Shall Jonathas dye, which hath so myghtely helped Israel? God forbode. As truly as the Lorde lyueth * there shall not one here of hys heed fall to the ground: for he hath wrought with God this daye. And so the people deliuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saul departed vp fro folowinge the Philistines. And the Philistines went to their awne place. And so Saul helde the kyngdome ouer Israel, & fought agaynst all his enemyes on euery syde: agaynst Moab: agaynst the chyldren of Ammon: agaynst Edom: agaynst the kynges of zoba, and agaynst the Philistines. And whether so euer he turned him selfe, there he wane: and he gathered his host together, and smote the * Amaleckites, & rydd Israel out of the handes of them that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul were: Jonathas, Jesui, and Melchisua. And hys two daughters were thus named: the elder was called Merob, and the younger Michol. And the name of Sauls wife, was Abinoa the daughter of Ahimaaz. And the name of hys chiefe captayne was Abner the sonne of Ner, Sauls vncle. And * Cis was Sauls father. And Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel. And there was sore warre agaynst the Philistines, all the dayes of Saul. And whomsoever Saul sawe to be a stronge ma, and mete for the warre he toke him vnto him.

The xv. Chapter.

Saul is commaunded to slaye Amalek. He is disobedient to the voyce of God. Samuel mour- neth for Saul.

* i. Reg. ix. c.

Samuel sayde vnto Saul: * The Lorde sent me to anoynt the, to be kyng ouer his people Israel. Nowe therfore hearken thou vnto the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I remembre the whych Amalek dyd to Israel * howe they laped wayte for the in the waye, as they came out of Egypte. Nowe therfore go, & smyte Amalek, and destrope ye all the pertayneth vnto them, & se thou haue no compassion on the * (couete nothyng that they haue) slaye both man & womā, infant & sucklynge. oxe, and shepe, camell and Asse.

* Ero. xv. d.

* Au. xlii. d.

* i. Reg. x. c.

And Saul gathered the people together, & * nombred them in Telaim, two hundred thousande foote men, and ten thousande me of Juda. And Saul came vnto a crite of Amalek, & set watche in the valeye. And Saul sayde vnto the kenites: go, & departe, & gett you downe from amonge the Amaleckites, lest I destrope you with them: for ye shewed mercy to all the chyldren of Israel, whē they came out of Egypt. And so the kenites departed from amonge the Amaleckites.

And Saul smote the Amaleckites from Heula, as thou comest to Sur, that lyeth befoze Egypt, and toke Agag the kyng of the Amaleckites alyue, & vterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the swerde. * But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the better shepe, & the fatter oxen, & the lambes, and all that was good, & wolde not destrope them. But all the was foule & naught worth, that they destroyed vterly. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Samuel, sayinge: it * repenteth me, that I haue made Saul kyng. * For he is turned from me, and hath not performed my commaundementes. And Samuel was euell apayed, and cried vnto the Lorde all nyght. And whan Samuel rose erly, to mete Saul in the mornynge, it was tolde Samuel, that Saul was come to Carmel, & beholde, he * hath made him there a place, & is turned, and departed, and gone downe to Gilgall.

And Samuel came to Saul, & * (Saul offered burnt sacrifice vnto the Lorde of the spirit of the people, whych he had brought fro Amalek. And whan Samuel was come vnto Saul.) Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue fulfilled the commaundement of the Lorde. Samuel sayde: what meaneth then the bleatynge of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyle of the oxen which I heare? Saul answered: they haue brought them from the Amaleckites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oxen, to sacrifice them vnto the Lorde thy God. And the remnant haue we destroyed vterly.

Samuel sayde to Saul: lett me tell the what the Lorde hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayde vnto hym: saye on. Samuel sayde: * when I waiste a lytle in thyne awne syght, wast I not made the heed of the trybes of Israel? And the Lorde anoynted the kyng ouer Israel. And the Lorde sent the on a iourneye, & sayde: Go, & vterly destroye those synners the Amaleckites, and fyghe agaynst them, vntill thou vterly destroye them. And wherfore hast thou not hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but hast turned to prayer, and hast done the whych is wycked in the syght of the Lorde?

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: yee, I haue harkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde, & haue gone the waye which the Lorde sent me vnto, and haue brought Agag the kyng of Amalek, and haue vterly destroyed the Amaleckites. But the people toke of the shepe, oxen, and the chiefe of the thynges whych shulde haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Gilgall. And Samuel sayde: hath the Lorde as great pleasure in burnt sacrifices & offeringes, as whan the voyce of the Lorde is obeyed? Behold, to obeye is better then sacrifice, & to hearken, is better then the fatt of rammes. For rebellynge is as the synne of witchcraft, and stubbornesse is as the wickednesse of Idolatrie. Because thou hast cast awaye the worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also, from beynge kyng.

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue synned, for I haue gone farther then the sayinge of the Lorde and thy wordes, because I feared the people, & obeyed their voyce. Nowe therfore take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, & I maye worshippe the Lorde. And Samuel sayde vnto Saul: I will not retorne with the: for thou hast cast awaye the worde of the Lorde, and the Lorde hath cast awaye the, that thou shalt not be kyng ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned hym selfe to go awaye, he caught the lappe of hys coat, & it rent. And Samuel sayde vnto hym: the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel fro the this daye, & hath geue it to a neyghboure of thynne, that is better then thou. The strength of Israel will not begyle nor repēt: for he is not a man, that can repent.

He sayde: I haue synned. But nowe honoure me befoze the elders of my people, and befoze Israel, & turne agayne with me, that I maye worshippe the Lorde thy God. And so Samuel turned agayne, & folowed Saul. And Saul worshipped the Lorde. Then sayde Samuel: Brynge ye hithe to me, Agag the kyng of the Amaleckites. And Agag came vnto hym & delycately. And Agag sayde: truly the bytter deeth cometh on. And Samuel sayde: As thy swerde hath made wemen chyldelesse, so shall thy mother be chyldelesse aboue other women. And Samuel hewed Agag in peces befoze the Lorde in Gilgal. And then * Samuel departed to Rama. And Saul went home to his house to Gibea. And Samuel came nomore to se Saul vntill the daye of his deeth. Neuertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, & the Lorde * repented, that he had made Saul kyng ouer Israel.

The xvi. Chapter.

David is anoynted kyng. An euell sprete cometh vpon Saul.

The Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: howe longe wilt thou mourne for Saul, saynge I haue cast hym awaye from raygnynge ouer Israel? I will thynne borne with oynment, and come, that I maye sende the to Isai the Bethlehemit, for I haue provided me a kyng amonge hys sonnes. And Samuel sayde: howe can I goor? For yf Saul heare it, he will kyll me. The Lorde answered: Take an heifer with the, and saye: I am come to offer to the Lorde. And call Isai to the offeringe, and I will shewe the, what I wylt do: And thou shalt anoynt hym whom I name vnto the. And so Samuel dyd as the Lorde bad him, and came to Bethlehem, and the elders of the towne were astonied at his comynge, and sayde: * Comest thou peaceably? He answered: Yee, I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. * Sanctifye poure selues, & come with me to the offeringe. And he sanctified Isai & his sonnes, & bad the to the offeringe. And whē they were come, he looked on Eliab, & sayde: Surely the Lorde anoynted is befoze hym. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: loke not on his fasthyon, or on the height of hys stature, because I haue refused hym: for God seyth not as man seyth. For man loketh on the outwarde apperance but God beholdeth the harte. Then Isai called Abinadab, and made him come befoze Samuel. And he sayde: nether hath the Lorde chosen this. Then Isai made Shamina come, and he sayde: nether yet hath the Lorde chosen him. Agayne, Isai made seue of his sonnes to come befoze Samuel. And Samuel sayde vnto Isai: the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

And Samuel sayde vnto Isai: are here all thy chyldren? He sayde: there is yet a lytle one behynde, that kepeth the shepe. And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: sende and fette him, for we will not sytte downe, tyll he be come hyther. And he sent, & brought hym in. And he was browne, and of an excellēt bewtye, & well fauored in syght. And the Lorde sayde: Aryse, and anoynt him, for this is he. Therfore Samuel toke the horne wyth the oynment, & anoynted him in the myddes of hys brethzen. And the sprete of the Lorde came vpon David, from that daye forwarde. And Samuel rose vp, and went to Rama.

But the sprete of the Lorde departed fro Saul, and an euell sprete sent of the Lorde vexed him. And Sauls seruantes sayde vnto him: Beholde, an euell sprete sent of God vexed the, lett oure Lord therfore comaunde his seruantes (that are befoze the) to seke a man, & is a comynge player wyth an harpe: that when the euell sprete sent of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe with hys hāde and thou shalt be eased. Saul sayde vnto his seruantes: prouide me a man then that can playe well, and brynge him to me. Then answered one of his seruantes and sayde: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Isai the Bethlehemit, that can playe vpon instrumentes, and is an actiue felowe, and a man of warre and prudent in doyng of feates, & well made and the Lorde is with hym. Wherfore Saul sent messengers vnto Isai, and sayde: sende me David thy sonne, which is wyth the shepe. And Isai toke an asse laden with bzyed, and a flacke

a flacket of wyne, and a kyb, and sent them by David his sonne vnto Saul. And David came to Saul, & stode before him, & he loued him very well, and he was made his barnes-bearer. And Saul sent to Iai, sayinge: lett David remaine with me, for he hath founde fauour in my syght. And so it fortunied, that when the euell sprete sent of God came vpon Saul, David toke an harpe, & played wyth his hande, & so Saul was refreshed, & dyd amende, and the euell sprete departed fro him.

¶ The. xvij. Chapter.

¶ David ouercometh great Goliath.

The Philistines geathered their hoste to battell, and came together to Socoth which is in Iuda, and pitched betwene Socoth & Azekah, in y coast of Dammin. And Saul and the me of Israel came together, and pitched in the Oke valley, and put them selues in aray, to fyght agaynst the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyll on the one syde, and Israel stode on an hyll on the other syde; and there was a valeye betwene them: And there came a man betwene them both, out of the tentes of the Philistines, named Goliath * of Gath syre cubytes and an handbredth lōge, and had an helmet of brasle vpon hys heed, and a coate of maple about hym. And the weyght of hys coate of maple was syue thousande spyles of brasle. And he had bootes of brasle vpon his legges, and a shyld of brasle vpon his shoulders. And the shafte of his spere was like a weuers beame. And his speare heed weyed. viij. hūdyed sikles of yron. And one bearynge a shyld went before hym.

And he stode and cryed agaynst the hoste of Israel, & sayde vnto the: Why are ye come out in aray to battell: am not I a Philistine and you seruautes to Saul: chole you a mā from amonge you, & lett him come downe to me. And yf he be able to fyght with me, & to beate me, then will we be your seruautes. But yf I can ouercome him and beate him, then shall ye be our seruautes, & serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I desyre the host of Israel this daye, geue me a man, y we maye fight together. When Saul and all Israel hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged, & greatly afrayed. David was the sonne of an Ephraimite * (of whome: cron is made afoze) of Bethlehem Iuda, named Iai, whych had eight sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, and came to age amonge men. And the thre eldest sonnes of Iai went, and folowed Saul to the battell. And the names of hys thre sonnes that went to battell, were: Eliab the eldest, & the next, Abinadab, and the thyrde Sama, and David was y least. And the thre eldest went after Saul. David also went and departed fro Saul, to fede his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth in the moynynge and euenynge, and continued fouertye dayes.

And Iai sayde vnto David his sonne take for thy brethren an Epha of this parched corne and these ten loanes, and bynge it vnto the hoste to thy brethren. And carpe these ten frethe cheles vnto y captayne, & loke howe thy brethren fare, and sett out their pledge. And Saul and they, and all the mē of Israel were in the oke valey, fightinge with y Philistines. And David rose vp crye in the moynynge, and leste y shepe with a keper, & toke and went as Iai had commaūded him, and came with in y compasse of the host. And the hoste went out in aray, and shewed in the battell: for Israel & the Philistines had put the selues in aray, the one agaynst y other. And David toke downe the gear from him, and put them vnder the handes of the keper of the vessels, & ranne into y hoste, and came, and saluted his brethren. And as he talked w them, Beholde: there stode a mā in the myddes (Goliath y Philistine by name) of Gath out of the aray of the Philistines, & spake of the maner aboue rehered, that David heard it. And all the men of Israel, when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from hym, and were soze afrayed. And cuery man of Israel sayde: Sawe ye thys man come forth: euen to reuple Israel is he come. * And to hym y beateh hym, wll the kyng geue great ryches, and will geue him his daughter therto: yee & make his fathers house free in Israel.

And David spake to the men that stode by, and sayde: What shalbe done to the man that beateh this Philistine, & taketh awaye the shame fro Israel: And what is thys vncircumcised Philistine, that he shulde reuple the hoste of the lpyunge God: And the people answered him (after this maner,) sayinge: so shall it be done to the mā, that beateh hym. And Eliab his eldest brother hearde whē he spake vnto the men, and Eliab was angrey w David, and sayde: Why camest y downe hither: and with whom hast thou leste those few shepe in y wilderness: I know thy pryde, and the malpce of thyne herte, y thou art come downe to se y battell. And David sayd: And

And what haue I nowe done: is there not a worde: And he departed from hym into the presence of another, and spake of y same maner, and the people answered hym agayne, as before.

And they that hearde the wordes whych David spake, rehearsed them before Saul, which caused him to be fett. And David sayd to Saul: Let no mannes hert fayle hym because of him. Thy seruaunt wll go, & fyght with yonder Philistine. And Saul sayde to David agayne: y art not able to go agaynst yonder Philistine, to fyght w him. For thou art but a chyld, but he is a mā of warre cūe fro his youth. David answered vnto Saul: Thy seruaunt kept his fathers shepe, & there came * a Lyon and lyke wille a Beare, & toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote hym, and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose agaynst me, I caught him by the bearde, and smote hym, & slue hym. And so thy seruaunt slue the Lyon & y beare (also) hath thy seruaunt slayne. And truly thys vncircumcised Philistine shalbe as one of the. * (Now, wll I go, & take awaye the rebuke of the people, for what is thys vncircumcised Philistine?) I saynge he hath rayled on the hoste of y lpyunge God. And David spake mozeouer: the Lorde that deliuered me out of the hande of y Lyon & out of the hande of y beare, he shall deliuer me also out of the hande of this Philistine.

And Saul sayde vnto David: go, and the Lorde shall be with the. And Saul put hys rayment vpon David, and put an helmet of brasle vpon hys heed, & put a coate of maple vpo him, and gyrded David with hys a wne swerde vpon his rayment. And he assayed to go. And because he neuer proued it, David sayde vnto Saul: I cannot go with these, for I haue not vsed my selfe therto: and David put them of hym, and toke hys staffe in hys hande, and chose him syue smoth stones oute of a broke, and put the in a sheperdes bagge which he had, & in a syngre poke: & his syngre was in his hāde, & he went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drue nere agaynst David, and the man y bare the shilde went before hym. And when the Philistine loked aboute, and sawe David, he dysdayned him, for he was but yōge, and well coloured, and goodlye to loke vpon. And the Philistine said vnto David: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me with a staffe: and the Philistine cursed David in the name of his goddes. And the Philistine sayde to David: come to me, & I wll geue thy flethe vnto the foules of the ayre, & to the beastes of the felde. Then sayde David to the Philistine: thou comest to me wyth a swerde, a speare and a shyld: But I come to the in the name of the Lorde of hostes, the God of the hoste of Israel, whom thou hast rayled vpon. This daye shall the Lorde deliuer the into my hande, and I shall smyte the, & take thine heed from the, and wll geue y karcares of the hoste of the Philistines thys daye vnto the foules of the ayre, and to the beastes of the erth, that all they whych be in the worlde, maye knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all thys congregacyon shall knowe, that the Lorde saueh not with swerd and speare. For y battell is the Lordes, and he shall geue you into oure handes.

And whē the Philistine arose to come and drawe nie vnto David, David hastid, & rāne into the battayll euen agaynst the Philistine. And David put his hande in hys bagge, and toke out a stone, and slange it, & smote the Philistine in his forehead, y the stone souncke into his forehead * and he felle grouelynge to the erth. And so David ouercame the Philistine with a syngre and a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slue hym, euen whan David had no swerde in hys hande. But David rāne, and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke hys swerde, and drue it out of hys sheath, and slue hym, & cutte of hys heed therewith. And when the Philistines sawe, that theyr champion was deed * they fled. And the men of Israel and of Iuda arose, and shewed, & folowed after the Philistines, vntyll they came to the valeye, and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe wounded by the waye to Saaraim, euen vnto Gath & Akaron. And the chyldren of Israel returned fro chalyngge after the Philistines, and spoyled theyr tentes. And David toke the heed of the Philistine, and brought it to Ierusalem: But he put his armour in hys tente.

When Saul sawe David go forth agaynst the Philistine, he sayde vnto * Abner y cap- tayne of his hoste: Abner, whose sonne is this yōng man: Abner answered: as truly as thy soule lpyeth (O kyng) I canot tell. And the kyng sayde: Enquere thou, whose sonne the yōngelinge is. And when David was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke hym, and brought hym before Saul, wyth the heed of the Philistine in hys hande. And Saul sayde to hym: whose sonne art thou, thou yōng man: David answered: I am the sonne of thy seruaunt Iai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The. xviii. Chapter.

¶ The bonde betwene David and Jonathan. Saul goeth aboute to slie David.

And when he had made an ende of speakynge vnto Saul, the soule of Jonathan was knyt wyth the soule of David, and Jonathan loued hym as hys awne soule. And Saul toke him that daye, and wolde let him go no more home to hys fathers house. And Jonathan made a couenaunt wyth David, because he loued loured him as his awne soule. And Jonathas put of his a wne coate that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, & therto his cloke, his sword, his bowe and hys gyrdle. And Dauid went ouer whether soeuer Saul sent hym, and behaued him selfe wysely. And Saul sett hym ouer hys men of warre, and he was accepted in the syght of all the people, and in the syght of Sauls seruantes.

25 And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, y women came out of all cyties of Israel spynge & daunsyng, agaynst kyng Saul, and wyth tymbrelles, wyth ioye, and wyth instrumentes of musick. And the wemen answered one another in theyr playe, & sayde

* i. Regum. xxi. b. and. xxx. b.

* Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid hys ten thousande. And Saul was excedyng wroth, and the sayinge displeased him, and he sayde: they haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, and to me but a thousande, & what can he more haue, saue the kyngdome? Wherefore Saul looked on syde of Dauid from that daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe, that the euell sprete sent of God came vpon Saul, and he prophesied in the myddes of y house. And Dauid played with hys hande lyke as at other tymes, and there was a iauclyng in Sauls hande. And Saul toke the iauclyng, & sayde: I wyll naye Dauid to the wall with it. And Dauid auoyded oute of hys presence two tymes. And Saul was afearde of Dauid, because y Lord was with hym, & was departed fro Saul. Therefore Saul put him from hym, and made him a captyne ouer a thousand, and he went out & in before y people. And Dauid behaued him selfe wysely in all his wayes, & the Lord was with him. Wherefore when Saul saw y he was so excedyng wysely, he was afrayd of him. But all Israel and Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them. And Saul sayde to Dauid. Beholde, my eldest daughter Merob, her I wyll geue y to wyfe. Only playe the man with me, and fyght the Lordes batelles. For Saul thought: myne hande shall not be vpon hym, but the hand of y Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul: what am I? and what is my lyfe or the kynred of my father in Israel, that I shulde be sonne in lawe to the kyng? howbeit when the tyme was come y Merob Sauls daughter shulde haue bene geue to Dauid, she was geuen vnto Adriel a Bethleothite, to wyfe. howbeit, Michol Sauls daughter loued Dauid. And they shewed Saul: & the thyng displeased him not. And Saul sayde: I wyll geue hym her y she maye be a snare to hym, & that the hande of the Philistines maye be agaynst him. Wherefore Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalt this daye be my sonne in lawe in the other daughter. And Saul commaunded hys seruantes, to come wyth Dauid secretlye & to saue: Beholde the kyng hath a fauoure to the, and all his seruantes loue the, be nowe therfore the kynges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruantes spake those wordes in the eares of Dauid. And Dauid sayde: semeth it to you a lyght thyng to be a kynges sonne in lawe: I am a poore man and of small reputacio. And the seruantes brought Saul worde agayne, sayinge: of this maner spake Dauid. And Saul sayd: this wise shal ye saue to Dauid: the kyng careth for no nother dowrye, but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines, to be aduenged of the kynges enemyes. But Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the handes of the Philistines. And when hys seruantes tolde Dauid these wordes, it pleased Dauid well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And for y dayes were expyed, Dauid arose with his men, and wet & slue of the Philistines, two hundred men, and Dauid brought theyr foreskynnes, and satisfied the kyng therof, to be hys sonne in lawe. * Wherefore Saul gaue hym Michol hys daughter to wyfe. And Saul sawe and understode, howe that the Lord was with Dauid, and that Michol his daughter loued hym, and he was the moare afrayed of Dauid, and Saul became alwaye Dauids enemye. The lordes of y Philistines vsed to go furth. And it fortuned y when they went furth, Dauid behaued hym selfe wyselyer the all the seruantes of Saul: so that his name was moche set by.

The. xix. Chapter.

Saul commaundeth to slie Dauid. Michol hys wyfe saureth hym.

Saul spake to Jonathas hys sonne, and to all hys seruantes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. * But Jonathas Sauls sonne had a greates fauoure to Dauid, and Jonathas tolde Dauid sayinge: Saul my father goeth aboute to slaye the. Nowe therfore take hede to thy selfe vntyll the morowyng, and abyde in some secret place, and hyde thy selfe. And I wyll go oute, and stande by my father in the felde where thou art, and wyll comen wyth my father of the, and whatsoeuer I se, I wyll tell the.

And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto Saul hys father, and sayde vnto hym: let not the kyng synne agaynst hys seruant Dauid, for he hath not synned agaynst the, and hys workes haue bene to the ward very good. For he dyd * & put hys lyfe in hys hande, and slue the Philistine, and the Lord brought to passe a greates heath for all Israel. Thou sawest it, and thou reioysedest, wherefore then wilt thou synne agaynst innocent bloude, and slaye Dauid without a cause? And Saul harkened vnto the voyce of y Jonathas, Jonathas, and sware: as truly as the Lord lyueth, he shall not dye. And Jonathas called Dauid, and shewed hym all those wordes, & brought Dauid to Saul. And he was in his presens as in tymes past.

And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought wyth the Philistines, and slue them with a great slaughter, & they fledde fro him. And the euell sprete sent of the Lord was vpon Saul, as he sat in hys house hauinge a Janelinge in his hande, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saul entended to naye Dauid to the walle with the Janelinge. But he ryd hym selfe out of Sauls presens, as he smote the speare * (wyth a bayne broke) into y walle. And Dauid fledde & was saued the same nyght. Saul also sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to watch him, and to sleve him in y morowyng. And Michol Dauids wyfe tolde it him, sayinge: If thou saue not thy selfe this night, to morowe y wilt be slayne. And so * Michol lett Dauid downe thowowe a wyndowe, and he wet, & fled, and was saued. And then he toke an Image and layed it in the bed, and put a pylowe stuffed with goates hearre vnder the heed of it, and couered it with a clothe. And when Saul sent messengers to fetch Dauid, he sayde, he is sycke. And Saul sent the messengers agayne to se Dauid, sayinge: bringe him to me, bed & all, y I maye slaye him. And when y messengers were come in: Beholde, there laye an ymage in the bed, with a pylowe of goates hearre vnder the heed of it. And Saul sayde vnto Michol: why hast thou mocked me so, and sent awaye myne enemye that he is escaped? Michol answered Saul. For he sayde vnto me, let me go, or elles I wyll kyll the. And so Dauid fledde, and escaped, & came to Samuel to Rama, tolde hym all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went, and dwelt in y Ramoth.

And one tolde Saul, sayinge: Beholde, Dauid is at Ramoth in Rama. And Saul sent messengers to sett Dauid. And when they sawe a companye of prophetes prophesyinge, & Samuel stadyng fast by the, the sprete of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, and they prophesied to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, & they prophesied lyke wyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thyrde tyme, and they prophesied also. Then wet he hym selfe to Rama, & came to a great well that is in Serchu, & he asked and sayde: where are Samuel and Dauid? And one sayde: Beholde, they be at Ramoth in Rama, & he went thither, eue to Ramoth in Rama, and the sprete of God came vpon him also, & he went prophesyinge, vntyll he came to Ramoth in Rama. And he wrote a scrypte of his clothes, & prophesied before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all that daye & all that nyght. * And therof it is, that they saue: is Saul * i. i. c. also amonge the prophetes?

The. xx. Chapter.

Dauid complaineth vnto Jonathas.

And Dauid fled from Ramoth which is in Rama, came, & layde before Jonathas. What haue I done? wherein am I faultie? what is the synne that I haue committed before thy father, that he sekerh my lyfe? he sayde vnto him: God forbyd, y shalt not dye. Beholde, my father will do nothyng eether great or small, but that he will shewe it me. And howe shulde my father hyde thys thyng from me? he wyll not do it. And Dauid sware agayne, and sayde, thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyn eyes, and therfore he sayeth: Jonathas shall not knowe it, lest he be sorre. And in very dede, euen as truly as the Lord lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a steppe betwene me and death. Then sayde Jonathas vnto Dauid: whatsoeuer thy soule desyrez that I wyll do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde to morowe is the begynnyng of the moone, and I shulde syt w the kyng at meate. But let me go, that I maye hyde my selfe in the felde vnto the thyrde daye at euen. If thy father speake of me, then saue, Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehem to his awne cytie, for there is holden a perely feast for all y kynred. And yf he saye: it is well done, then thy seruant shall haue peace. But and yf he be angrey, then be sure that wyckednesse is vtterly concluded of hym. And then thou shalt shewe mercy vnto thy seruant: for thou hast made wyth me thy seruant a bonde in the Lord. Notwithstandinge, yf there be in me any trespass, then sleve me thy selfe, and bypunge me not to thy father.

And Jonathas answered, God kepe that from y * (neither is it possible to come to passe.) It is yf I knowe, that wyckednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the, thynkest thou that I shulde not tell it the? Then sayde Dauid, who shall tell me, yf thy father answered cruelly? And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid, come and lett vs go out into y felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: The Lord God of Israel loke on it, when I haue groped my fathers mynde, one tyme or other within this thre dayes, yf it stande well with Dauid. If I then sende not vnto the & shewe it the, the Lord do so and so vnto Jonathas. But yf my father haue any pleasure to do y euell, I wyll shewe the also, and sende the awaye that thou mayst go in peace. And the Lord be wyth the, as he hath bene with my father.

* i. c. xvi. d. and. xxi. c.

father. And thou shalt performe vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, not onely whyle I lyue but euen whē I am deed, and plucke not thy mercy awaye from my house for euer: No not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemyes of Dauid, euerie one from the face of the erth.

And so Jonathas made a bonde with the house of Dauid, desyringe y^e the Lorde shulde seke it out by the hādes of Dauid's enemyes (yf it were broke.) And wth other wordes dyd Jonathas sweare vnto Dauid, because he loued him. For he loued hi, as his awne soule.

Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: to morowe is the first daye of the mone. And thou shalt be missed, because the place where thou wast wont to lyt, shall be emptye. Wherefore this daye thre dayes come downe i any wyse vnto the place where thou dydest hyde thy selfe, & whan the busynes was in hande:

euen by y^e stone Csell. And I wyll shote thre arrowes by the one syde therof, as though I shott the at a marke, & will sende a lad, and byd hym go seke the arrowes. And yf I saye vnto the lad: se, the arrowes are on thys syde the, byynge them: then come y^e: for it is peace, & no hurte, as sure as the Lorde lyueth. But and yf I saye vnto the lad, beholde, the arrowes are be yonde the, then go: (in peace) for y^e Lorde hath sent y^e a waye. And as touchynge this which thou and I haue spoken: beholde

the Lorde be betwene the & me for euer. And so Dauid byd him selfe in the felde. And when the newe mone was come, the kynge sat him downe to eate meate. And the kynge sat him downe after the olde maner, in hys seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose and Abner late by Sauls syde, & Dauid's place was emptye. Neuerthelesse, Saul sayde nothinge at all that daye. For he thought: some thynge hath chaunced him y^e he is not cleane.

But on the morowe which was the seconde daye of y^e newe mone, it happened that Dauid's place was emptye agayne. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sone. Wherefore cometh not y^e sonne of Isai to meate, nether yesterdaye nor to daye? And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked lycēce of me, to go to Bethlehe, for he sayde: let me go I praye the for oure kynred dothe holde an offerynge in the cytie, and my brother hath sent for me.

And therfore yf I haue founde fauoure in thyn eyes, lett me go, and se my brethren. This is the cause, that he cometh not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angrey with Jonathas, & sayde vnto him: Thou wycked rebell, do not I knowe, y^e thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai vnto thyn awne rebuke, & vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother: For as longe as the sonne of Isai lyueth vpon the erth, thou shalt not be stablished, nor yet thy kingdome, wherefore now sende and fette him

vnto me, * for he is the chylde of deeth.

And Jonathas answered vnto Saul his father, and sayde to him. Wherefore shulde he dye: what hath he done? And Saul lyfte vp a speare to hyt him, wherby Jonathas wyll well, y^e it was vtterlye determined of his father, to sleve Dauid. And so Jonathas arose fro the table in a greate anger, & dyd eate no meate the secōde daye of y^e moneth, for he was sorowful for Dauid, because hys father had done him shame. On y^e nexte morninge, Jonathas wēt out into the felde, at the tyme apoynted with Dauid, & a lytle ladd with him. And he sayde vnto his boye: runne & seke out myne arrowes whych I shote. And as the boye ran he shot an arrowe beyonde him. And when y^e lad was come to y^e place whether Jonathas had shot the arrowe, Jonathas cryed after y^e lad, and sayde: Is not the arrowe beyonde the? And Jonathas cryed after y^e lad agayne: make spede, and stande not styll. And Jonathas had geathered vp the arrowes, & came to his master. But the lad wist nothinge of the matter. Onely Jonathas and Dauid wist it. And Jonathas gaue his weapōs vnto y^e lad that was wyth him, & sayde vnto him: go & carye them to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose out of a place y^e was towarde the south, and fell on hys face to the grounde, and worshypped thre tymes. And they kissed ether other, & wept together so lōge, tyll Dauid exceded in weping. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace. And y^e thynge which we haue sworn both of vs in the name of the Lorde, sayynge: y^e Lorde be betwene y^e & me, & betwene thy seide & myne, lett the stonde for euer. And he arose, & departed. And Jonathas went into the towne.

The xxj. Chapter.

Dauid fleeth into Nob to Ahimelech the prest, and getteth of hym the shewe breade to satisfye his hunger. Afterwarde he flyeth to kynge Achis, and there sayneth hym selfe to be mad.

Then came Dauid to Nob to Ahimelech the prest: And Ahimelech was astonyed at the sodayne comynge of Dauid, & sayd vnto him: Why art thou alone, & no man wth y^e? And Dauid sayde to Ahimelech y^e prest: the kynge hath commaunded me to do a certeyn thynge, and hath sayde vnto me, let no man knowe where aboute I sende the, and what I haue commaunded the to do. And I haue appoynted my seruantes, to soche and soche places. Nowe therfore yf y^e hast ought vnder thyn hande * geue me fyue loues of breade, or what cometh to hande.

And the prest answered Dauid, and sayde: there is no comen bread vnder myne hāde, but here is halowed bread, yf the younge men haue kepte them selues from vncleane thynge especiallye women. Dauid answered the prest, and sayde vnto hym: 26 of a

of a truth women hath bene locked vp from us about a thre dayes. When I came out, & the vesselles of the younge men were holpy. How be it this waye is vnpure, and how much more shal there be holynes in the vessel. * And so the prest gaue hi halowed bred, for there was no nother bred there, saue the shewebred, that were take from before the Lorde, to put freshe bred there, the daye that it was taken awaye.

And ther was there the same daye a certē man of the seruantes of Saul abydyng before the Lorde, named Doeg an Edomite, the cheffest of Sauls hearde men.

And Dauid sayd vnto Ahimelech: is not here vnder thyn hāde other speare or swerde? for I haue nether brought my swerde nor my harnesse with me, because the kynge busines required haste. And the prest sayd: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine whome thou sleest in y^e Dcke valley, beholde, it is here wrapt in a cloth behynd the Ephod. If thou wilt take that, take it, for there is no nother saue that here. And Dauid sayd: there is none to that, geue it me.

And Dauid arose and fled the same daye from the presence of Saul, & wēt to Achis the kynge of Geth. And the seruantes of Achis sayd of him: is not this Dauid the kynge of the lande: dyd they not syng vnto him, in daunces sayng * Saul hath slayne his thousand, & Dauid his ten thousand? And Dauid put those wordes into his heart, & was sore afrayed of Achis the kynge of Geth. And he chaunged his speche before them, & sayned him selfe madd in theyr handes, & scrabled on the doores of the gate, and let his spittel fall downe vpon his bearde. Then sayde Achis vnto his seruante: Loo, y^e se y^e this man is belyde hym selfe, wherefore then haue ye brought hym to me? haue I nede of madd mē that ye haue brought this felow to playe the mad mā in my presence? Shall he come into my howse.

The xxii. Chapter.

Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Ahimelech is accused of treason and slayne, & xxxiii. prestes mo with him because they receaued Dauid. Nob is destroyed of Saul, Abiathar fleeth to Dauid.

And therfore departed thence, and escaped, and came vnto the caue Ddollar. When his brethren also ad all his fathers house heard it, they went downe thither to hym. And there geathered vnto him all men that were in combrance, and in dett, and troubled in their mindes, & he became a captayne ouer them. And there were with hym vpon a foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Mizpa in the lande of Moab, and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father &

my mother (I praye the) come forth vnto you, tyll I knowe what God will do for me. And he brought them before the kig of Moab. And they dwelt wth hi all the while that Dauid kepte him selfe i hold. And the prophet Gad sayde vnto Dauid: abide not in holde, but departe and go into the lād of Iuda. Then Dauid departed and came into the forest hareth. And Saul heard y^e Dauid was come abrode, and also the mē that were wyth hym. And Saul satt in Gibea vnder a tree in Rama, haupng hys speare in his hand, & all his men stode about hym. And Saul sayde vnto his seruantes that stode about hi. heare I praye you y^e you sonnes of Benini: will the sone of Isai geue enery one of you felde and vineardes, & make you all captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes: that ye haue also conspired agaynst me, and there is none that telleth it me in myne eare. * And where as my sone hath made a bonde wth the sone of Isai, ther is none of you that mourneth for me, or sheweth it in myne eare: beholde, my sone hath stered vp my seruaut to lye awaye agaynst me thys same daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite which also stode by the seruantes of Saul, and sayde: I saw the sone of Isai, whē he came to Nob, to Ahimelech the sone of Ahitob, which asked counsell of the Lorde for hym, & gaue hym vitayles, & the swerde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the kynge sent & called for Ahimelech y^e prest y^e sone of Ahitob, & all his fathers house: that is to saye, the prestes that were in Nob. And they cam all to the kynge. And Saul sayde: heare now y^e sone of Ahitob. he answered: here I am, my Lorde. And Saul sayde vnto hym: why haue ye conspired agaynst me, y^e the sone of Isai, in y^e thou hast geuen him vitayle, & a swerde, and hast asked counsell of God for hi, that he shuld aryse agaynst me, & lye awaye for me this daye? Ahimelech answered the king & sayd who is so faithfull amōg all thy seruantes as Dauid, & therto the kinges sone in law, & goeth at thy bydding, & is had in honoure in thyn house: haue I this daye begone first to aske counsell of God for hi. That be farre fro me: yf I had knowen it, lett not y^e kynge put soch a thynge vnto his seruaut, in all y^e house of my father. For thy seruaut knew nothig of all this, ether leile or moare. The king sayde: thou shalt surelye dye. And the king sayde vnto the fote men that stode about him: turne, & sleve the prestes of the Lorde, both because theyr hād is with Dauid, & because they knewe when Dauid fled, & shewed it not to me. But y^e seruantes of tes of the kyng wolde not moue their handes, to fall vpon the preastes of the Lorde. And the kyng sayde to Doeg: turne thou, and fall vpon the preastes. And Doeg the Edomite turned, and ranne vpon the preastes, and slue that same daye foure thowse & fyue persones, & dyd weare a lynne Ephod. And Rob the cytic of the preastes smote he wyth the edge of the swerde, both men & women, children and sucklynges, oxen and asses and shepe.

And one of the sonnes of Ahimelech the sonne of Abitob (named Abiathar) escaped & fled to David. And Abiathar shewed David, how that Saul had slayne the lordes preastes. And David sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it the same daye, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wolde tell Saul. And I am cause of the deeth of all & soules of thy fathers house. Abide thou w me, and feare not: for yf anye man seke my soule, he shall seke thynne also, w me thou shalt be in sauegard.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

David fleeth into the wilderness of ziph.

When they told David sayig: Behold the Philistines fight agaynst keilah, and spoyle the barnes.

Therefore David asked the Lords aduyse, saying: Shall I goo and smyte these Philistines? And the Lorde answered vnto David: go and smyte the Philistines, and saue keilah. And Davids men & were with him, sayd vnto him: se, we be afrayed here in Iuda: how much more then yf we come to keilah agaynst the host of the Philistines? Then David asked & Lorde agayne. And the Lorde answered him and sayde: Arise, & go downe to keilah, for I will deliuer the Philistines in to thynne hande.

And so David and his men went to keilah, and fought with the Philistines, & dzoue awaye their catell, and smote them with a great slaughter. And so David saued the inhabitants of keilah. And it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled to David to keilah, that he brought an Ephod with him in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that David was come to keilah. And Saul sayde: God hath deliuered hi into myne had. For he is shut in now & he is come into a towne that hath gates & barres. And Saul called all & people together to warre, for to go downe to keilah, and to beslege David & his men. And David hauig knowlege that Saul imagined myschef agaynst him, sayd, to Abiathar & prest: * Wrynge the Ephod. Then sayde David: O Lord God of Israel, thi seruaut hath heard, & Saul is about to come agaynst keilah to destroye & cytic for my sake: Wylle the men of keilah deliuer me into hys hande? And will Saul come downe, as thy seruaut hath heard saye: O Lord God of Israel, tell they seruaut. And the Lorde sayde: he will come downe. Then sayd David: Will the men of keilah deliuer me and & men that are with me into the hand of Saul? & the Lorde sayde: they will betraue you.

Then David & his men which were vpon a syre hūdyed, arose & departed out of keilah & wēt whether they could. And it was told Saul, that David was fled from keilah, & he let the iourney a lone. David abode i the wilderness in strōg holdes, & remayned in a mountayne in the wilderness of ziph. And Saul sought hi euery daye, but God deliuered him not ito his had. And David saw & Saul was come out, to seke his life. And David was in the wilderness of ziph in a thicket. And Jonathas Sauls sōne arose, & went to David in to the thicket, & comforted his hand in God, & sayde vnto hym: feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shall not fynd the, & thou shalt be hig ouer Israel, & I must be next vnto the. And that doth Saul my father know. And they made abonde both of them together before the Lorde. And David tarped & yll in the thicket, and Jonathas went to his house. Then came & ziphites to Saul, to Gibea, saying: Dost thou not David hyde hi selfe fast by vs in strōg holdes, in a thicket that is by & hyl of hachila, on the ryght syde of & wilderness? Now therefore kyng, & mayest come downe according to all the lust of thy soule: come downe, & oure parte shall be to deliuer hym into the kynges hande. And Saul sayde: Blessed are ye in the Lorde: for ye haue compassiō on me. So I praye you, & ordre the matter well, know & se his haunt, where hys fote hath bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me, that he is very sottel, & worketh craftely. Se therefore, & know all & lurking places, where he hideth him selfe, and come ye agayne to me with the certentye, & I will go wyth you. And yf he be in the lād, I will serche hi out thorow out all the thousandes of Iuda.

And they arose, and went to ziph before Saul, But David and his men were in the wilderness of Maon, in the playne & is, on the righe

the ryght hand of Jesimon. Saul also and his men wente to seke: and they tolde David. Wherefore he went vnto a Roche, and abode in the wilderness of Maon. And whē Saul hearde that, he folowed after David in the wilderness of Maon. And Saul & his men went on the one syde of the mountayne, & David & his men on the other syde. And David toke thought, how to get frō Saul. For Saul & his mē compassed David & his men, rounde about, to take them.

But there cam a messenger to Saul, sayig: Hast the, & come, for the Philistines are come into the lād. Wherefore, Saul returned from persecuting David, & went agaynst the Philistines. And therefore is it, & they called the place: The rock of separacion. And David went thence, & dwelt in strong holdes at Engadi.

The. xxxiii. Chapter.

David fleeth into Engadi and there hym hym in a caue. Saul commeth in thither to do hys easement.

When Saul was come agayne from folowig after the Philistines, it fortuned, that there were, which told hi sayig: beholde, David is in & wilderness of Engadi. Then Saul toke thre thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seke David and his mē in the heigth of the Rockies, where wilde gootes remayne.

And he cam to the flockes of shepe in the waye. And Saul went in to a caue & to couer his fete. And David and hys mē remayned in the inward partes of the caue. And the men of David sayd vnto him: se, & daye is come, of which the Lorde sayde vnto the: Beholde: I will deliuer thynne enemies into thynne had, & & shalt do to him as it shall seme good in thy syght. Then David arose and cutt of a lappe of Sauls garment priuelye. And immediatly & David hert smote hym because he had cutt of a lapp of Sauls garment.

And he sayde vnto his men: the Lorde kepe me frō doing that thig vnto my master & Lords anoynted, to lape mine hande vpon hym, seying he is the anoynted of the Lorde. * (For as truly as the Lorde lyueth, excepte the Lorde smyte him, or excepte his daye come, or yf he go not downe to warre and perishe: the Lorde be mercifull vnto me, that I lape not my had vpon the Lordes anoynted.) And so David kept of hys seruantes with these wordes, and soffred them not to ryle agaynst Saul.

But Saul rose vp out of the caue & went awaye, David also arose and went out of the caue, and cryed after Saul, sayig: My Lorde kyng. And when Saul looked behynde hym. David stowped to the erth, and bowed him selfe, & sayd to Saul: wherefore geuest thou an eare to mennes wordes that lape, David sekethe euell agaynst the? Beholde, this daye thynne eyes haue sene.

how that the Lorde had deliuered the thys daye into myne hand in the caue. And some bad me kyll the, but I had compassiō on the, and sayde: I will not lape my handes on my master, for he is the Lordes anoynted. And mozeouer, my father, behold, & se yet the lapp of thy garment in my hand: in as moch as I kyled the not, when I cutt of & lapp of thy garment. Understande therfore & se, & there is nether euell nor wickednesse in me, and that I haue not spynned agaynst the. And yet thou hunttest after my soule to take it. The Lorde be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lorde aduenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpon the. According as the olde prouerbe sayeth: wyckednesse proceedeth from the wycked: But myne hande be not vpon the. After whom is the kyng of Israel come out? After who dost thou moue persecuciō? after & a deed dogg, and after a flee. The Lorde be iudge, and iudge betwene the and me, & se & pleate my cause, and avenge me of thynne hande.

When David had made an ende of speaking these wordes to Saul, Saul sayde: is this thy voyce my sōne David? and Saul lyfte vp his voyce, and wepte, and sayde to David: thou art ryghtcouser then I, for thou hast rewarded me with good, where as I haue rewarded the wyth euell. And thou hast shewed thys daye, how that thou hast dealt lounglye wyth me, for as moche as whē the Lorde had locked me in thynne handes, & kyledst me not. For who shall finde his enemye, & lett him depart in to a good waye? Wherefore the Lorde reward & with good, for that thou hast done vnto me this daye. And now beholde, I wote well that thou shalt be kyng, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be stablyshed in thynne hāde. Sware now therefore vnto me by the Lorde that thou shalt not destroye my seade after me, & that thou shalt not put my name out of my fathers house. And David & were vnto Saul, and Saul wēt home. But David and his men gatt the vp vnto an hold.

The. xxxv. Chapter.

Samuel dyeth. David fleeth into the wilderness of Itharan.

Ad Samuel dyed, and all the Israelites gathered together and lamented hym, and buried hym in his owne house at Rama.

And David arose, and gat hym to & wilderness of Itharan. And there was a man in Maon whose possession was in Carmel, and the man was exceeding myghtie, and had thre thousand shepe & a thousand gootes. And he was shepynge his shepe in Carmel.

The name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and she was a woman of a singular wisdom and betwixtfull. But the man was churlishe, ad of shrewde condicions, and was of the kyn- red of Caleb. And David heard in the wil- dernesse, y^e Nabal dyd there hys shepe. And David sent out ten yowng men, and sayde vnto them: get you vp to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and grete hym in my name. And thus shal ye saye: peace be to y^e, peace be to thyne house, & peace be vnto all that thou hast. Beholde, I haue heard saye, y^e y^e hast shepers. Now thy sheperdes were with vs ^{in the wilderness} and we dyd the no synne, nether was there ought ^{of the flocke} mys- sing vnto them, all the while they were in Carmel: aske thy laddes, & they will shew the. Wherfore let these yowng men fynde fauore in thine eyes (for we come in a good reason) and geue I praye the whatsoeuer cometh to thyne hande, vnto thy seruau- tes, and to thy sonne David.

And whan Dauids yowngmen came, they tolde Nabal all those wordes in y^e name of David, & the helde theyr peace. And Nabal answered Dauids seruantes, & sayde: what is David? & what is the sone of Isai? there is plente of seruantes now a dayes, that breake awaye euery man from his master. Shal I the take my breed, my water & my fleshe, y^e I haue kylled for my shepers, & geue it vnto me who I wote not wher they be? And so Dauids seruantes turned their waye, and went agayne, and came and told him all those saynges. And David sayd vnto hys men: gyrd euey man hys swerde aboute him. And they gyrded euery mā his swerde aboute him, & David was gyrded with his swerde. And there folowed David vpon a foure hundred men, and two hun- dred abode by the stuffe. But one of the lad- des tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, saying: Beholde, David sent messengers vnto oure master out of the wilderness to salute him & he rayled on the. And yet the men are ve- ry good vnto vs, & dyd vs no displeasure, nether missed we any thing, as long as we were conuersant with the, when we were in the felde. They were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyght & daye, all the while we were with the keeping shepe. Now ther- fore, take hede, and se what y^e hast to do, for there is an occasion of euell geuen agaynst oure master and all his housholde, scyng: he is as a sonne of beliall vnglacious to spea- ke to. Then Abigail made hast, & toke two hundred lours, & two bottelles of wine, and fyue shepe reade dyessed, and fyue measu- res of parched cozne, and an hundred frap- les of fyngges, and laded the on asses, & say- de vnto her yowng mē: go ye before me. Be- holde, I come after you. But she tolde her husbād Nabal nothing the of. And as she rode on her asse she came pzeuely downe y^e syde of the hyll, & beholde, David and hys mē came downe agaynst her, & she met the.

And David sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felow hath in y^e wilderness: so that nought was mysled of all y^e pertayned vnto hym. And he hath quire me euell for good. So and so do God vnto the enemyes of dauid, yf I leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawnyng of the daye, any thig that pisseth agaynst the walle.

And when Abigail saw David, she hasted & lyghted of her asse, and fell before David on her face, and bowed her self to y^e ground and fell at his fete, and sayde: Let this vn- happie deade be counted myne, my Lorde, & let thine handmayde speake in thine au- dience, and heare the wordes of thy hande- mayde. Let not my Lorde ^(the kyng) regard this vnthyspe mā Nabal: for as his na- me is, so is he. Nabal is his name, & fol- lic is w^h hi. But I thine hādmayd saw not y^e yowng men of my Lorde who y^e sendest.

Now therfore my Lorde, as sure as y^e lord lyueth, & as thy soule lyueth, y^e Lorde hath withholden the fro coming to shede bloud, & withdraw y^e thine hand fro bloude shede. Now, I praye God, y^e thine enemyes & they y^e entende to do my Lorde euell, may be as Nabal. And now this is the blessing which thyne hād mayde hath brought vnto my Lorde: & lett it be geuen vnto y^e yowng men, that folow my Lorde. For geue the trespass of thine handmayde, for the Lord will make my Lorde a sure house, because my Lord fyghteth y^e batayles of y^e Lorde, and there coulde none euell be founde in the in all thy dayes. And yf any man ryse to persecute the, & to seke thy soule, y^e soule of my Lorde shall be bound as y^e in y^e bōdell of y^e lyuing w^h y^e Lord thy God. And y^e sou- les of thy enemyes shal God cast out, euen as out of the myde of a slyng. And when y^e Lord shall haue done to my Lord all the good y^e he hath promised y^e, & shall haue ma- de the ruler ouer Israel: then shall it be no decaye vnto the, ner discourage of herte vnto my Lorde, y^e thou hast not shedde bloud causelesse, ner aduenged thy selfe.

But when the Lord shall haue dealt well with my Lorde, the thynck on thyne hand- mayde. And David sayd to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, which sent the this daye to mete me. Blessed is thy sayeg, & blessed art thou, which hast kept me thys daye from coming to shede bloud, and from aduengyng my self with myne awne hand. For in very deade, as sure as y^e Lord God of Israel lyueth, which hath kept me backe from hurtynge the, excepte thou haddest ha- sted and met me, thinkest y^e, there had be- ne left vnto Nabal by the dawnyng of the daye, a daye, a pisset agaynst the walle. And so Da- uid receaued of her hād, that which he had brought him & sayd to her: go vp in peace to thyne house. Beholde, I haue herde thy voyce, and haue accepted thy persone.

And Abigail came to Nabal: and behold, he held a feast in his house, lyke the feast of a kyng, & Nabals herte was mery within hi, for he was very droncke. Wherfore he tolde him nothing, nether lytle nor moare, vntill y^e morow daye. But in y^e mornynge, whē the wine was gone out of Nabal, hys wife tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed within him, and he became as a stone & vpon a ten dayes after, the Lorde smote Nabal, y^e he dyed. And when David heard that Nabal was deed, he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hād of Nabal, and hath kept his seruaint from euell, and hath recou- sed the wickednesse of Nabal vpo his aw- ne heed. And David sent to comen w^h Abi- gail: to thyntēt to take her to his wife. And when the seruantes of David were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her saying: David sent vs vnto the, to take y^e to his wife. And she arose, & bowed her self on her face to the erth, and sayde: Beholde: let thy handmayde be a seruaint, to waite the fete of the seruantes of my Lord. And Abigail hasted, and arose, and gat her vp vpon an asse, w^h fyue damoselles of hers y^e went at her fete, and she went after y^e mes- sengers of David, and became hys wif. David also toke Abinoam of Jezrahel, & they were both his wyues. But Saul gaue Michol hys daughter Dauids wyfe to phalti y^e sone of Laish which was of Gali.

The. xxvi. Chapter.

Saul sleapeth in his tent: and David takeeth awaye his speare and a cruise of water, that stode at his heed.

He ziphites came vnto Saul to Gibea, saying: Doth not David hyde hym self in the hill of Hachila which is before Jerusalem? Saul arose, and went downe to the wilderness of ziph, haunyng thre thou- sande cholen mē of Israel with hym, for to seke David in the wilderness of ziph. And Saul pitched in the hyll of Hachila which lyeth before Jerusalem, by y^e waye side. But David dwelt in y^e wilderness. And he saw that Saul cam after hym into the wilder- nesse. David therfore sent out spyes, & vnderstode, that Saul was come i very dede.

And David arose and came to the place where Saul had pitched, & David beheld the place, where Saul laye, and Abner the sone of Ner which was his chefe captayne Saul laye within, & the people & the hooft rounde about him. Then answered David and spake to Ahimelech the Hethite, & to Abisai the sonne of Zarnia and brother to Joab, saying: Who will go downe with me to Saul to the hoste? And Abisai laide: I will go downe with the.

And so David and Abisai came downe to y^e people by nyght. And behold, Saul laye sleping within the hooft, & his speare stakke in the ground at his heed. But Abner & the people laye round about hym. Then sayde Abisai to David: God hath deliuered thy- ne enemye into thyne hād this daye. Now therfore, lett me smyte hym once with my speare to the erth, & I wyl not smyte hym the secōde tyme. And David sayde to Abi- sai: destroye him not. For who can laye his hād on the Lordes anoynted, & be gyltles? And David sayde furthermore: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, the Lorde shall smyte hi or his daye shall come to dye, or he shall descende into battell, & there perishe. The Lord kepe me from laying myne hād vpo the Lordes anoynted: But take thou now the speare that is at his heed, & the cruise of water, & let vs go. And so David toke y^e speare & the cruise of water from Sauls heed, and they gatt them awaye, and no man saw it or marked yt or awaked. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a deade sleape vpon the. Then David went ouer to the other syde, and stode on the toppe of an hyll a farre of (a great space beynge betwene them) and David cryed to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner, saying: Hearest thou not Abner? Ab- ner answered, and sayde: What art thou that cryest to the kig? and David sayd to Abner: art not thou a man: and who his lyke the in Israel? Wherfore the hast thou not kept thy Lord the kyng? For there is me one of the folke in, to destroy the kyng thy lord. It is not good that y^e hast done. As truly as the Lorde lyueth, y^e are wo- thy to dye, because ye haue not kepte poure master, the Lordes anoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is and the cruise of water, that was at his heed.

And Saul knew Dauids voyce, & sayde: Is this thy voyce my sone David? & Da- uid sayd: it is my voyce, my Lord, O kyng. And he sayde: wherfore doth my lord thus persecute his seruaint? for what haue I do- ne? or what euell is in myne hād? Now ther- fore let my Lord the kyng heare y^e wordes of his seruait. If y^e Lorde haue stered y^e vpon agaynst me, let hi smell the sauoure of a sa- crifice. But yf they be y^e children of men, cursed are they before y^e lord for they haue cast me out this daye fro abiding i y^e enbe- ritaunce of the Lord, saying: hece, & go serue other gods. Now therfore let not my bloud fall to the erth before the face of the lord. For the kyng of Israel is come out to hys

III a flee,

a flee, as whan one doth hunt a partridge in the moystaynes. Then sayde Saul: I haue synned, come agayn my sone David, for I will do y^e no moare harme, because my soule was precious in thine eyes thys daye. Beholde, I haue playd the fole, & haue erred exceedingly. And David answered and sayd: Beholde, y^e kyngs spere, lett one of y^e young men come ouer, & fette it. The Lorde reward euery man accordyng to his ryght wellesse. & sayth: for y^e Lorde deliuered the into my hand thys daye, but I wolde not laye myne hand vpon y^e Lorde's anoynted. And beholde, lyke as thy lyfe was moche set bye this daye in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulacion. Then Saul sayd to David: Blessed art thou my sone David, for thou shalt be a doer and preuayle. And so David went his waye, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

The xxvii. Chapter.

David fleeth to Achis kyng of Geth.

And David sayde in his hert: I shall perishe one daye or other by the hand of Saul. Therefore is there nothing better for me, then to flee and saue my selfe in the land of the Philistines, and Saul shall cease & seke me nomore in all the coastes of Israel, & so shall I escape out of his hand. And David arose, & he & y^e syre hundred men y^e were wth him went vnto Achis, y^e sonne of Maach, kyng of Geth. And David dwelt wth Achis at Geth, both he & his men, euery man wth his houtholde, & David wth hys two wiues: Abinoa y^e Jezraelite, & Abigail Nabals wife of Carmel. And it was tolde Saul, y^e David was fled to Geth, and he sought no moare for him. And David sayd vnto Achis: If I haue now found grace in thine eyes, lett thegeue me a place in some towne iⁿ y^e felde, y^e I maye dwell there. For why shulde thy seruaut dwell iⁿ y^e heed of thy kyngdome? Then Achis gaue hym zikleg y^e same daye, for which cause zikleg pertauneth vnto the kynges of Iuda vnto thys daye. And y^e tyme that David dwelt iⁿ y^e cotrepe of the Philistines, was foure monethes, and certayne dayes. And David & his men wet v^p, and ranne v^p the Gelurites, the Gerzites & y^e Amalekites: For those nacions were fro the begynnyng the inhabiteres of the lande, as men go to Sur, vnto the lade of Egypte. And David smote the land, and lett nether man ner woman alpye, and droue awaye the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camelles, and clothes, and returned, and came to Achis. And Achis sayde: Where haue ye bene a roug this daye? And David answered: Toward y^e south of Iuda, & toward y^e south of the Jezraelites,

& toward the south of the Kenites. And David saued nether man nor woman alpye ner suffred them to come to Geth, for feare (sayeth he) lest they shuld telle on vs saig to y^e David & so wylde his maner all the while he dwelleth in the cotrepe of the Philistines. And Achis beleued David saying he abhorreth his people of Israel, & therefore he shalbe my seruaut for euer.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul which sekech after an enchaunter.

And it chaunced in those dayes, that the Philistines gathered their hoost together to warre, to fyght with Israel. And Achis sayde to David: Behold, thou shalt goo out with me to the battell, thou & the men y^e are with the. And David sayde to Achis: then y^e shalt know, what thy seruaut can do. And Achis sayde agayne to David: Then I will make y^e keeper of my heed for euer. Samuel was then deed, & all Israel had lameded hym, & buryed him iⁿ Rama his awne cytie. And Saul hat put y^e women that had spyetes of prophesye, & y^e sothsayers out of the lade. And the Philistines gathered together, & came, & pitched in Sunem. And Saul gathered all Israel together, & they pitched in Giboa: And whē Saul saw the hoste of the Philistines, he was afraied, & his hert was sore astonyed. And whan Saul asked counsell of the Lorde, the Lorde answered hi not, nether by dreames, nor by Urim nor yet by prophetes. The sayd Saul vnto his seruantes: seke me a woman that hath a spyete of prophesye, y^e I maye go to her & aske of her. And hys seruantes sayde to him: Beholde, there is a woman that hath a spyete of prophesye at Endor.

And Saul chaunged him self, and put on other rayment, & then went he & two men with hym, and they came to the woman by nyght. And he sayde: prophesye vnto me by y^e spyete, & brig me him v^p whō I shall name vnto the. And the womā sayde vnto hym: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed y^e women that had prophesying spyetes, & the sorcerars out of the lade. Wherefore then sekest thou an occasion agaynst my soule, that he maye kyll me? And Saul swore to her by the Lorde sayig: As lierly as y^e Lorde lyueth, there shall no harme chaunce y^e for this thyng. The sayd y^e womā: whō shall I fetch v^p vnto the? he answered: Brig me v^p Samuel. Whē y^e woman saw Samuel, she cryed wth a lowde voyce, and spake to Saul saying: why hast thou disceaued me? for y^e art Saul. And y^e kyng sayde vnto her, be not afraide: What seest thou? The womā sayd vnto Saul: I se goddes ascēdig v^p out of

out of the erth. He sayde vnto her agayne: what fastid is he of? She answered: there cometh v^p an olde man wth a mantell v^p hym. And Saul perceaued y^e it was Samuel & he stouped wth his face to the grounde, & bowed hym selfe. And Samuel sayd to Saul: why hast thou vnquited me, to make me be brought v^p? Saul answered: I am sore encombred. For the Philistynes make warre agaynst me, & God is departed from me and answereth me no more, nether by prophetes, nether by dreames. And therefore I haue called the, y^e thou mayest tell me, what I shall do. Then sayd Samuel: wherfore doest y^e aske of me, whyle y^e Lorde is gone from the, & is become thine enemye? Truly y^e Lorde hath done for hym selfe, euen as he spake & by my hād. For the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome out of thine hande, & geue it thy neybour David. Because thou obeydest not y^e voyce of the Lorde, nor executedst hys feare wth y^e Amalekites, therefore hath y^e Lorde done this vnto the this daye. And moreover, the Lorde wyl deliuer Israel wth the, into the hādes of the Philistines. Comowen shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me, and the Lorde shall geue the hoste of Israel into the hādes of y^e Philistines. Then Saul fell streygth waye flatte on the erth a longe as he was, and was sore adread because of the wordes of Samuel.

And there was no strength in hym, for he had eatē no bread all the daye and the nyght before. And the womā cam vnto Saul, and saue that he was sore troubled, and sayde vnto hym: Se, thine hād mayd hath obeyed thy voyce, & I haue put my soule in my hande, and haue harkened vnto thy wordes, which thou saydest vnto me. Nowe therefore harken thou also vnto y^e voyce of thine hād mayd, and let me sett a morsell of bread before the, that thou mayest eate and gett the strength, & then go on thy iourneye. He refused, and sayde: I wyl not eate. But hys seruantes & the womā together cōpelled him, and he hearkened vnto they^r voyce. And so he arose from the erth, and sat him on a bedd. The woman had a fat calfe in the house, and she halsted & kyllid it, and toke flowre & kneaded it, and dyd bake swete cakes therof, and brought the before Saul and before his seruantes. And whē they had eatē, they stode v^p, and went awaye the same nyght.

The xxix. Chapter.

David goeth wth kyng Achis to fyght agaynst Saul.

And the Philistines were gathered together wth all their armyes vnto Aphec: And y^e Israelites pitched in Aia, which is iⁿ Jezrael. And y^e Lorde of the Philistines wet forth wth the hundredes & thousandes. But David & his men came behide wth Achis. Then sayde the Lorde of the Philistines, what are pouder & brues? Achis sayd vnto y^e Lorde of y^e Philistines: Is not thys David the seruaut of Saul the kyng of Israel, whych hath bene wth me these dayes of yeres? I haue founde no fault in hym, sence he fled vnto me vnto thys daye. And the Lorde of the Philistines were wroth wth hym and sayde vnto hym: Make this felowe retorne, that he maye go agayne to hys place whych thou hast appoynted hym: and let hym not go downe wth vs to battell, lest in the battell he be an aduersarye to vs. For wher wth coulde he better obtayne the sauoure of hys master, then wth the herdes of these men? Is not thys David, to whō they singe in daunces? Saul slue hys thousande, and David hys ten thousande? Then Achis called David, and sayde vnto hym: As sure as the Lorde lyueth, thou hast bene honest, and good in my syght, whan thou wentest out & in wth me in the hoost: neyther haue I founde euell with the, sence thou camest to me vnto thys daye: neuerthelesse the Lorde of y^e Philistines sauoure the not: wherfore now retorne, & go in peace, that thou displeast not the Lorde of the Philistynes. And David sayde vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what hast thou founde in thy seruaut, as long as I haue bene wth the vnto thys daye, y^e I maye not go fyght against the enemyes of my Lorde the kyng?

Achis answered & sayd to David: I know that thou art good, & art in my syght, as an Angell of God. Not wythstandinge the Lorde of the Philistynes haue sayde: Let hym not go v^p wth vs to battell. Wherfore nowe ryle v^p earlye in y^e mornynge wth thy masters seruantes that are come to the: and when ye be v^p earlye (as sone as ye haue lyght) departe. And so David and his men rose v^p earlye to departe in the mornynge, & to retorne into the land of the Philistines. And y^e Philistines went vnto Jezrael.

The xxx. Chapter.

David returnyng from kyng Achis smyteth zikleg burnt.

At whan David & hys men were come to zikleg the thirde daye, the Amalekites had rushed in vpon the south, and vpon zikleg, & had smytten zikleg, & burnt it wth fyre, & had taken the women (y^e were therin) prisoners, both small & great: but slew not a mā, saue carped them wth the, & wet they^r wayes. So David and hys men came to the cytie: & beholde, it was burnt wth fyre, & their wyues, they^r sonnes and their daughters were carped awaye. Then David and the people that was wth hym, lyfte v^p their voyces & wept, vntill they coulde wepe no more. And David & his men were take prisoners also: Abinoam the Jezrahelite, and abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And Dauid was in a shewe combrance: for the people entended to stone hym, because the vertes of all the people were vexed for theyr sonnes & theyr daughters.

But Dauid toke a good courage to hym in the Lorde hym God & sayde to Abiathar the preste Abimelechs sonne: I pray þ, bring me the Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to Dauid. And Dauid asked counsell at the Lorde, sayinge: Shall I folowe after this companie: and shall I ouertake them? And he answered him: folow, for thou shalt ouertake them, and recouer the praye.

So Dauid and the syre hundred men that were with hym, wēt & cam to the riuier Besor, where a part of them abode. But Dauid and foure hundred men folowed: For two hundred abode behinde, bryngge to werpe to go ouer the ryuer Besor. And they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and brought hym to Dauid & gave hym bread to eate, & water to dryncke, & gave hym a fewe fygges & two clousters of reasings. And when he had eaten, hym spere cam agayne to hym: for he had eaten, no bread nor dryncke no water in thre dayes & thre nyghtes. And Dauid sayd vnto him: to whom belogest thou: & whence art thou? he sayd: I am a yoge mā of Egypt and seruaunt to an Amalekite: and my master left me behynde, because it is thre dayes gone, & I fell sycke: we came a roung vpo the south of Chetius, and against Iuda, and towarde the south of Caleb. And we burnt zikleg with fyre. And Dauid sayde to hym: canst thou bryngge me to this companie? And he sayde: swere vnto me by God, that thou wilt nether kyll me, nor deliuer me into the handes of my master, and I will bryngge the to the companie. And whē he had brought hym thither, beholde, they laye skatered a-broade vpo the erth, eatynge & drynckynge, & daunsynge, because of the pleuous & great pray, þ they had caried awaye out of þ land of the Philistines, & out of the lāde of Iuda.

And Dauid layd vpon the from the enen, & vntill the twylyght on the morow: so þ there escaped not a man of them, save foure hundred young men which rode awaye vpo camels, and fledd. And Dauid recouered all þ the Amalekites had caried awaye, & Dauid rescued hym two wyues: so that ther was no person of them lacking, small or great, sonne or daughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had take awaye, Dauid recouered them all agayne. And Dauid toke all the shepe, & the oxen. And they draue them before his catell, & sayd: this is Dauids pray. And Dauid came to the two hundred mē, þ were to werpe for to folowe Dauid, whom they had made also to abyde at the ryuer Besor. And they

cam to mete Dauid, & þ people þ were wyth him. And whē Dauid cam to þ people, he saluted the. Then answered all the wycked & the vntyftes (of the men þ went wyth Dauid) & sayde: because they went not wyth vs, therfore will we geue them none of þ praye, that we haue recouered. But let euery man take hym wyfe and hym chyldren: Those lett them carpe awaye, and be walkynge.

Then sayde Dauid: ye shall not do so (my brethren) w that which the Lorde hath geuen vs, & hath preserued vs, & deliuered the companye þ came agaynst vs, into oure handes. For who shuld herke vnto you in this matter? But as hym parte is þ goeth downe & fyghteth, so shall his parte be, that tarpyth by the stuffe, þ it maye be parted alpe. And so from þ daye forwarde: was that made a statute & lawe in Israel, vntill this daye. When Dauid therfore cam to zikleg, he sent (aptes) of the praye vnto the elders of Iuda: and to hym frendes sayinge: se, there is a blessing for you, of the spoyle of the enemyes of the Lorde. He sent to them of Bethel: to them of south Ramoth: to the of Jathir: to them of Aroer: to them of Sephamoth: to them of Ekhemoa: to them of Rachel: to them of the cyties of Ierahmeel: to them of the cyties of the benites: to them of Bozma: to them of Bozalan: to them of Aithach: to the that are in Hebrō, and in all places, wher Dauid and hym men were wont to haunt.

The xxxi. Chapter.

Saul killeth hym selfe, and hym chyldren are slayne in the battell.

he * Philistines fought agaynst Israel and the men of Israel fledd awaye from the Philistines, & fell downe wounded in mount Gilboa. And the Philistynes preased fore vpon Saul & his sonnes, & slewe Jonathan, & Abinadab & Melchisua Sauls sonnes. And whā the battell went fore agaynst Saul, the archers with bowes founde hym, & he was fore afayed of the archers. Then sayd Saul vnto his harnesberer * draw out thy swerde, & thrust me thorowe therwyth, lest these vncircused come, & thrust me thorowe and make a mockynge stocke of me. But hym harnesberer wolde not, for he was fore afayed. And Saul toke a swerde, and fell vpon it. And whē his harnesberer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell lykewyse vpon his swerde, & dyed wyth hym. And so Saul dyed, & his thre sonnes, and his harnesberer, and all hym men that same daye togeather.

And when the men of Israel that were on þ other syde of þ valeye, & they of þ other syde Jordan, heard, that the men of Israel were put to flight, and that Saul and hym sonnes were deed, they left the cyties, & rāne awaye and the Philistines cam, and dwelt in them.

* On the

On the morowe when þ Philistines were come to spoyle them that were slayne, they founde Saul and hym thre sonnes lyenge in mount Gilboa. And they cut of his heed, and stripped him out of his harnesse: & sent into the lande of the Philistines on euery syde, & they shulde publyshe it in the temple of their Idolles, and amonge the people. And they layd vpon hym harnesse in the house of Ashtaroth, but they hanged vpon hym body on the wall of Bethsan. When the enhabiteres of Iabes in Gilead hearde therof, what the Philistines had done to Saul, they arose (as many as were stronge men) and went all nyght and toke the body of Saul, and the bodyes of hym sonnes fro the wall of Bethsan, and came to Iabes, and burnt them there and toke their bones and buryed them vnder a tree at Iabes, and fasted seuen dayes.

of Samuel otherwyse called the seconde boke of the kynges.

The fyrst Chapter.

The lamentacion of Dauid for Saul & Jonathan.

After the death of Saul when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, and had bene two dayes in zikleg: Beholde, there came a mā the thyrde daye out of the hoste from Saul, with his clothes rent and erth vpon hym heed. And when he came to Dauid, he fell to the erth and dyd obeysaunce. Dauid sayde vnto him: whence comest thou? he sayde vnto him: Out of the hoste of Israel am I escaped. And Dauid sayde vnto him: And what is chauced? tell me. he sayde: the people is fled from the battell: and many of the people are ouerthrowen, and deed. and Saul & Jonathan his sonne are deed also.

And Dauid sayde vnto the yonge man that tolde him these thynges: how knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan hym sonne be deed? The yonge man that tolde him, answered: I came by chaunce to mount Gilboa: And beholde, Saul leane vpon his speare. For the charrettes and companyes of horsemen folowed harde after him. And whan he looked backe he sawe me, and called me. And I answered: here am I. And he sayde vnto me: what art thou? I answered hym: I am an Amalekite. he sayde vnto me agayne: Stonde vpo me, and sle me: for anguysh is come vpon me, though my lyfe be yet all in me. And so I stode vpo hym, and sle him: for I was sure þ he coude not lyue, after that he had fallen. And I toke the crowne þ was vpon hym heed, and the Brafelet that was on hym arme, and haue brought them hyther vnto my Lorde.

Then Dauid toke holde on hym clothes, & and rent them, and so dyd all the men that were w him. And they mourned, and wepte, and fasted vntill euen, for Saul and Jonathan his sonne, & for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowen with the swerde.

And Dauid sayde vnto the yonge man that brought him these tydings. Whē art thou? And he answered. I am the sonne of an alpaunt an Amalekite. And Dauid sayde vnto him: Howe is it þ thou wast not afayed, to laye thyne hande on the Lordes anoynted, to destrope hym? And Dauid called one of his yonge men and sayde: Go to, and runne vpon him. And he smote hym: that he dyed: then sayde Dauid vnto him: thy bloude be vpon thyne awne heed. For thyne awne mouth hath testyfyed agaynst the sayinge: I haue slayne the Lordes anoynted.

And Dauid mourned with thys lamentacyon ouer Saul and ouer Jonathan hym sonne, and bad teache the chyldren of Israel the vse of the bowe. And Beholde, it is wyrtten in the boke of the ryght wes. And he sayde: Consider, O Israel, these that be deed and wound: ded vpon the hye helles. O noble Israel, the wounded are slayne vpo thy helles: Oh howe are the myghtie ouerthrowen. Tell ye not in Gath, nor publyshe it in þ streets of Ailahon: lest the daughters of the Philistines reioyse, and lest the daughters of the vncircused triumph. Ye mountaynes of Gilboa, vpon you be nether dewe nor rayne, & not vpon these felde of offerynges. For there þ shilde of the myghtie is cast downe: þ shilde of Saul, as though he had not bene anoynted with oyle. The bowe of Jonathan & the swerde of Saul turned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the slayne, & from

the fatte of the myghtye warryoures.

Saul and Jonathan were louely & pleasant in their lyues, and in their deahtes they were not deuided: They were swifter then Eagles, and stronger then Lyons. Ye daughters of Israel, wepe ouer Saul, which clothed you in purple with pleasures, and hanged ornaments of golde vpon your apparell. Howe were the myghtye slayne in battell: Jonathan is deed on y^e hylles. Woo is me for the (my brother Jonathan) verie kynde hast thou bene vnto me. Thy loue to me was wonderfull, passynge y^e loue of women. (As a mother loueth hyr onely chyldre, euen so dyd I loue the.) Howe are the myghtie ouerthrowen, and the wepons of warre destroyed?

The second Chapter.

David is anoynted in Hebron. The battell of the seruauntes of David, and Ishbosheth.

After thys it fortuned, that David * asked counsell at the Lorde, sayinge: Shall I go vp into any of the cyties of Iuda? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: go. And David sayde agayne: Whither shall I go? he answered: vnto Hebron. And so David went thither with his two wyues, Ahinoam y^e Jezrahelite, & Abigail Nabals wyfe the Carmelite. And the men that were wth hym, dyd David carpe vp also, euery man with his houtholde. And they dwelt in the townes of Hebron. And the men of Iuda came, and there they anoynted David kyng, ouer the house of Iuda. And they tolde David sayinge: It is * the men of Iabes in Gilead y^e buried Saul. And David sent messengers vnto the men of Iabes in Gilead, and sayde vnto them: blessed are ye vnto the Lorde, that ye haue shewed soche kyndnesse vnto your Lorde Saul, and haue buried him. And now the Lorde shewe mercede & trueth vnto you. And I wyll do you also soche kyndnesse as ye haue done in thys thyng. Therefore now let your handes be stronge, and playe ye the m^e: for your master Saul is deed. And they that are of the house of Iuda, haue anoynted me kyng ouer them. But Abner the sonne of Ner that was captayne of Sauls host, toke Ishbosheth the sonne of Saul, and brought him to Mahanaim, and made hym kyng ouer Gilead, and ouer the Ashurites, & ouer Jezrahel, Ephraim, Beniamin, and ouer all Israel. And Ishbosheth Sauls sonne was fourtye yere olde, when he began to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned two yere: But the house of Iuda folowed David. * And the tyme which David raygned in Hebron ouer the house of Iuda, was. viij. yere and fyve monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner and the seruauntes of Ishbosheth the sonne of Saul went out of Mahanaim, to Gibeon. And Joab the sonne of zarua and the seruauntes of David went out, and mette them by the Dole of Gibeon. And they satt downe the one, on the one syde of the Dole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayde to Joab: let the yowge men aryse, and playe befoze vs. And Joab sayde: Let them aryse. Then there arose and went ouer. twelue of Beniamin by nombre, which pertayned to Ishbosheth the sonne of Saul, and twelue of the seruauntes of David. And euery one caught hys felowe (that came agaynst hym) by the heed, and thrust hys swerde in hys syde, and so they felle downe together. Wherefoze the place was called: The felde of the myghtye. And it is in Gibeon. And there beganne an exceeding cruell battell that same daye. For Abner and the men of Israel fell befoze the seruauntes of David.

And there were thre sonnes of zarulab there: Joab, Abisai and Asahel. And Asahel was as lyght of fote as a wyldc Roo, and Asahel folowed after Abner, and * turned nether to the ryght hand nor to the lefte, fro Abner. Then Abner loked behynde hym, and sayde: art thou Asahel? he answered: yee that I am. Abner sayde: turne the ether to y^e ryght hand or to y^e lefte and catche one of the yowge men, and take the his weapōs. But Asahel wolde not depart fro hym. And Abner sayde agayne to Asahel departe fro me. Wherefoze shulde I synne the to the grounde, and not be able to holde vp my face to Joab, thy brother? howbeit, whan he wolde in no wyse departe, Abner with the hynder ende of the speare smote hym vnder * y^e short rybbes, that the speare cam out behynde hym: y^e he fell downe in y^e same place, and dyed there. And as many as cam to the place where Asahel fell downe and dyed, stode still. Joab also & Abisai folowed Abner. And the sonne went downe, when they were come to y^e hylle Ama that lyeth befoze Giah by the waye y^e goeth thowowe the wylde-nesse of Gibeon. And the chyldren of Beniamin gathered them selues together on a heape, to Abner, & stode on the toppe of an hyl. The Abner called to Joab, and sayde: Shall the swerde deuoure styll for euer? knowest thou not, that it wyll be * bitternesse in the latter ende? howe longe shall it be, y^e thou hydde y^e people retorne from folowynge their brethren? And Joab sayde: as truly as God lyueth y^e yf thou haddest not spoken in the mozynge, the people had bene departed, euery one from persecutynge hys brother. And so * Joab blew a trompet, and all the people stode styll, and pursued after Israel no more nether fought they any more. And Abner & his men walked all that nyght thowowe the playne, & went ouer Jordan, & past thowowe all Bethbozon tyll they cam to Mahanaim. And

And Joab returned fro persecuting Abner. And whā he had geathered all y^e people together, there lacked of Davids seruauntes nyntene men, & Asahel. But the seruauntes of David had slayne of Beniamin, and of Abners men, thre hundred & thre scoze men. And they toke vp Asahel, and buried hym in the sepulchre of his father i Bethlehem. And Joab and his men went all nyght, vntyll the dawnyng of the daye, and came to Hebron.

The. iii. Chapter.

Abner cometh to David and byngeth hym hys wyfe Michol. Joab kylleth Abner.

Here was longe warre betwene the howse of Saul, and y^e howse of David. But David wared stronger and stronger, & the house of Saul wared weaker and weaker. * And vnto David were * (y^e) chyldren bozne in Hebron: his eldest sonne also was Ammon, of Ahinoam the Jezrahelite: the secōde Cheleab, of Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite: the thyrde Abisai, the sonne of Maachah y^e daughter of Chalmat, the kyng of Gessur: the fourth, Adonia, the sonne of Hagith: the fyfte, Serphatia the sonne of Abital: y^e sixte Jethreā by Eglā Davids wyfe. These were bozne to David in Hebron. And it fortuned, that whyle there was warre betwene the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner helde vp the house of Saul. And Saul had a concubyn named Rizpa, the daughter of Aia. And Ishbosheth sayde to Abner: Wherefoze hast thou * gone into my fathers concubyn? Then was Abner very wroth for the wordes of Ishbosheth, & sayde: Am I not a * dogges heed, which agaynst Iuda do shewe mercede thys daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, & to his brethren and frendes, and haue not deliuered the into the hande of David: and thou syndest a fault in me this daye for this woman? * So and so do God to Abner. For as the Lorde hath sworne to David, so wyll I be on hys syde, to byng the kyngdom from the house of Saul, that the throne of David maye be stablyshed ouer Israel, and ouer Iuda eue from Dan to Bersabe. And he coulde geue Abner neuer a woorde to answer, because he feared hym.

And Abner sent messengers to David: secretly, sayinge: Whose is y^e lande? Make a bonde with me, and beholde, my hande is wth the, to byng all Israel vnto the. he sayde: It is good, that I make a bonde with the. But one thyng I requyre of the, that thou se not my face, except thou fyrt byng Michol Sauls daughter, when thou comest to se me.

And David sent messengers to Ishbosheth

Sauls sonne, sayinge: * deliuer me my wyfe Michol, which I married with * an hundred forskynnes of y^e Philistines. And Ishbosheth sent, and toke her from her husband * Pal-tiel the sonne of Laish. And her husband went with her, & cam wepyng behynde her, tyll they cam to Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto hym, go and retorne. And he returned. And Abner had comunicacyon with the elders of Israel, sayeng: ye sought for David in tymes past, that he might be your kyng. Now then do it: for the Lorde hath sayd of David: * By the had of my seruaunt David, I will saue my people Israel, out of y^e handes of all their enemyes. And Abner spake in y^e eares of Beniamin, and went to tell in the eares of David in Hebron, all that Israel was content wth, and the whole house of Beniamin. And so Abner came to David to Hebron, haupng twenty men wth hym, & David made him & the men that were wth him a feast. And Abner sayde vnto David: I wyll vp, and go geather all Israel vnto my Lorde the kyng, that they maye make an appoyntment wth the, and that thou mayst commaunde all, as thyn hart desyareth. And whan David had lett Abner departe, he went in peace.

And beholde, the seruauntes of David, & Joab came from chasping the robbers, and brought a great praye with them. But Abner was not wth David in Hebron: for he had sent him a waye to depart i peace. Whē Joab and all the host that was wth hym, were come, men tolde Joab sayng: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kyng, and he hath sent hym a waye, y^e he is gone in peace. Then Joab came to the kyng, and sayde: What hast thou done? Beholde, Abner cam vnto the: & why hast thou sent hym a waye, that he shulde scape quyte? Thou knowest Abner y^e sonne of Ner, for he came to disceane the, & to know thy outgoing & ingoing, and to know all that thou doest. And when Joab was come out fro David, he sent messengers after Abner, which brought him agayne from the well of Sira, unknowyng to David. And when Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab toke hym a syde in y^e gate * to speake with him secretly, & smote him vnder y^e short rybbes y^e he dyed, & for the bloud of Asahel his brother. And when after warde it cam to Davids eare, he sayd. I and my kyngdom are giltye befoze the Lorde for euer conceyning the bloude of Abner y^e sonne of Ner. Let the bloude remayne on y^e heed of Joab & on all his fathers house y^e y^e house of Joab be neuer wthout one o^r other that hath runyng issues o^r leper, and pleaneth on a staff, and that doth fal on the swerde, & lacketh y^e breed. And the cause wher

The. iiii. Chapter.

Baanah and Rechab ſlew Iſboſeth the ſonne of Saul.

When Sauls ſonne heard that Abner was deed in Hebron, his handes were feble, & all the Iſraelites were afrayed: & Sauls ſonne had two men & were captaynes ouer the ſouldiars, & one called Baanah, and the other Rechab, the ſonnes of Rimmon a Berothite, of the chyldren of Benjamin: for Beroth was rekened to Benjamin. And theſe Berothites fled to Githaim, and ſoiourned there vntill the ſame tyme. * And Ionathas Sauls ſonne had a ſonne that was lame on his feete. And he was fyue yere olde, when the tydings cam of Saul & Ionathas out of Iſrael. And his nourse toke him vp, & fled awaye. And as he made haſt to flee, the childe fell, & began to halt, and his name was Giphioſeth. And the ſonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah wet, and cam in the heat of the daye to the houſe of Iſoſeth, which ſlept on a bed at none. * (And the woman that was the keper of the doore, and clenſed the wheate, was a ſlepe.) And they cam into the myddes of the houſe: * as though they wold haue fetched whete, and Rechab and Baana his brother ſmote him vnder the ſhort rybbes and fled. For when they cam into the houſe, he ſlept on his bed in his reſting chamber, and they ſmote hym and ſlue him, and beheaded hym, and toke his heed, & gat them awaye thorow the plaine all the night. And they brought the heed of Iſoſeth vnto David, to Hebron, and ſayde to the kyng: behold, there is the heed of Iſoſeth Sauls ſonne, thine enemy which ſought after thy lyfe. And the Lord hath aduenged my lord the kyng this daye of Saul and of his ſeede.

And David answered Rechab and Baana his brother, the ſonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, and ſayde vnto them: * as ſurely as the Lord lyueth, which hath deliuered my ſoule out of all aduerſities: When one tolde me & ſayd that Saul was deed, thinking to haue brought good tydings, I caught hym, and ſlue hym in ziklag: whych thought that I wolde haue geuen hym a rewarde for his tydings bringyng. How much more ſhall I requyte men haue ſlayne a ryghteous perſon, in his awne houſe and vpon his bed: Shall I not requyte his blood of your hande, and take you from the earth? And David commaunded his young men, & they ſlue them, and cut off their handes and fete, & hanged them vp ouer the pole in Hebron. But they toke the heed of Iſoſeth, and buried it in the ſepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

The. v. Chapter.

David is yet agayne anoynted kyng: and taketh the Arcke from Gyon.

When cam all the trybes of Iſrael * to David, vnto Hebron and ſayd, Be holde, we are of thy bone, and of thy fleſhe. And in tyme paſt when Saul was ouer kyng, thou leddeſt Iſrael in and oute. And the Lord hath ſayd to the: thou ſhalt fede my people Iſrael, and thou ſhalt be a captayne ouer Iſrael. And ſo all the elders of Iſrael came to the kyng to Hebron. And kyng David made a couenaunt wyth them in Hebron before the Lord. And they anoynted David kyng ouer Iſrael. David was thirty yere olde, when he began to raygne, and he raygned fourty yere. In Hebron he raygned ouer Iuda ſeven yere, and ſyre monethes: And in Ieruſalem he raygned thirtye and thre yeres ouer all Iſrael and Iuda.

The kyng alſo and his men went to Ieruſalem, vnto the Jebuſites, the inhabitants of the land. Which ſpake vnto David ſayng: * except thou take awaye the blynde and the lame, thou ſhalt not come in hither. For they ſayd: Thou art not able to come in hither. Neuertheleſſe David toke the ſtrong holde of Sion. The ſame is the citie of David. And David ſayd the ſame daye: Who ſoeuer ſoeuer ſmyteth the Jebuſites, & getteth vp to the gutters of the houſes, & ſmyteth the lame & the blynde & hate * David ſoule: * Wherefore: they ſayd, the blynde and the lame ſhall not come into the houſe. And ſo David dwelt in the towre, & called it the citie of David, & buylt round about it fro Millo inwarde. And David prospered & grew, and the Lord God of hoſtes was with him. And Hiram kyng of Tyre ſent meſſengers to David, and Cedar trees, and carpenters & Maſons for walles: and they built David an houſe. And David perceaued, that the Lord had ſtabliſhed hym kyng ouer Iſrael, & that he had exalted his kingdom for his people Iſraels ſake. And David toke him concubynes and wyues out of Ieruſalem, after he was come from Hebron, & mo ſonnes & daughters were yet borne to David. * And theſe be the names of the ſonnes & daughters that were borne to David in Ieruſalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan, & Salomo, Ithar alſo and Eliſua, Nepheg, & Iaphia, Eliſama Eliada, and Eliaphalet.

But when the Philiftines heard, & they had anoynted David kyng ouer Iſrael, they cam all vp to ſeke David. And as ſone as David heard of it, he gat hym to an holde. And when the Philiftines cam, they layde the a long in the valeye of Rephaim. * And David asked counsell of the Lord ſayeng: Shall I go vp to the Philiftines? wilt thou deliuer them into my handes? And the Lord answered vnto David: go vp, for I will doubtleſſe deliuer the Philiftines into thy handes. And David cam to the playne of Berazim, and ſmote them there, and ſayd: the Lord hath deuided myne enemies aſondre before me, as waters be deuyded aſondre. And therefore, the name of the place was called: the playne of Berazim: And there they left their Images, & David & his men toke them vp. And the Philiftines cam yet agayne, and layd them ſelues in the valeye of Rephaim. And when David asked at the Lord: * (Shall I go vp agaynſt the Philiftines? & wilt thou deliuer them into my handes?) He answered: Thou ſhalt not go vp: but compaſſe them on the backſyde, & come vpon the ouer agaynſt the Peretrees. And when thou heareſt the noyle of a thing going in the toppes of the Peretrees, then remoue. For thou ſhalt the Lord go out before thee, to ſmyte the hoſte of the Philiftines. And David did as the Lord had commaunded hym, & ſmote the Philiftines from Gaba, vntill thou come to Gazer.

The. vi. Chapter.

The arcke is brought forth of the houſe of Abinadab. Dab is ſtrecken & dyeth, David daunceth before the Lord, & is therefore deſpyſed of his wyfe Achish.

Again: David gathered together all the choſen men of Iſrael, euen thirtye thouſand, & aroſe, & went withall the folke that were with hym of the men of Iuda, to ſett awaye from thence, the Arcke of God: whoſe name is called the name of the Lord of hoſtes that dwellyth vpon it, betwene the cherubyns. And they put the Arcke of God vpon a new cart, and brought it out of the houſe of Abinadab & was at Gibeon. And Uzza and Ahio the ſonnes of Abinadab draue the new carte. And when they brought it out of the houſe of Abinadab that was at Gibeon, with the Arcke of God, Ahio wet before the Arcke. And David and all the houſe of Iſrael playde before the Lord in ſondrye instruments made of Cete wood, with harpes, psalteries, timbrells, fedylles, and ſymbals.

And when they cam to Nachons threſhyng floure, Uzza put his hand to the arcke of God, and held it, for the oxen ſtumbled. And the Lord was wroth wyth Uzza, and God ſmote him in the ſame place for his fault, and there he dyed before the Arcke of God. And David was diſpleaſed, becauſe the Lord had ſmytten Uzza. And the name of the place was called Perez. The retyng of Uzza, vntill thys daye. And David was then afrayed of the Lord, and ſayde: how ſhall the Arcke of the Lord come to me? And ſo David wolde not bring the Arcke of the Lord vnto him into the citie of David. But David caried it into the houſe of Obeth Edom a Gethite. And the Arcke of the Lord continued in the houſe of Obeth Edom the Gethite, thre monethes, and the Lord bleſſed Obeth Edom, and all his houſholde. And one tolde kyng David, how that the Lord had bleſſed the houſe of Obeth Edom, and all that pertayned vnto hym, becauſe of the Arcke of God. And David went and brought the Arcke of God from the houſe of Obeth Edom, into the citie of David wyth gladneſſe. * (And there were with David ſeven ſortes of dauncers, & calues for ſacrifices.) And when they that bare the Arcke of the Lord, had gone ſyre ſpaces, he offered an ox and a fat ſhepe. And David * (played on harpp ſtringes, and) daunced before the Lord withall his myght, and was gyrded with a linnen Ephod. So David and all the houſe of Iſrael brought the arcke: * (of the couenaunt) of the Lord, wyth ſhowtyng and trumpet blowing.

And it fortuneth, that as the arcke of the Lord cam into the citie of David, Michol Sauls daughter looked thorow a window, and ſaw kyng David ſpyng, and daunce before the Lord, and ſhe deſpyſed hym in her heart. And when they brought in the Arcke of the Lorde, they set it in his place, even in the myddes of the tabernacle & David had pitched for it. And David offered burnt offerings & peace offerings before the lord. And as sone as David had made an ende of offering burnt offerings & peace offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lord of hostes, & gaue among all the folke, even amonge the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, to euery one a Cake of bread, & a peece of fleshe, & a flasket of dryncke. And so all the people departed euery one to his house.

Then David returned to & blessed hys household: and Michol & daughter of Saul came out to mete David, & sayd: & had glorious was & hig of Israel this daye, which was vncouered to daye, in & eyes of & maydens of his seruantes, as if it had bene a lyght brayned felow vncouered. And David sayd vnto Michol. I thought to dance before the Lord, which chose me rather the thy father, & all his kynne, and commaunded me to be ruler ouer all the people of & Lord eue ouer Israel. And therefore will I playe before the Lorde. And wilbe yet more vyle then so, & wilbe meke in myne awne syght: & of the very same maydeseruantes which thou hast spokē of: shal I be had in honoure. Therefore Michol & daughter of Saul had no chylde, vnto the daye of her deeth.

The vii. Chapter.

David wold buyde God a house: but is forbyden of God.

Fortuned, that as the kyng satt in his house (after & the Lord had geuen hym rest roude about fro all his enemies) he sayde vnto Nathan the prophet: behold, I dwell now in an house of Cedar trees, but & the Arcke of God dwelleth within the curtayne. And Nathan sayd vnto the kyng: go & do all that is in thine hert for the Lord is with the.

And it fortunēd the same nyght that the word of the lord came vnto Nathan sayeg: go and tell my seruant David, thus sayth the Lorde: shalt thou bylde me an house to dwelle in? For I haue not dwelt in any house, sence the tyme & I brought the chylde of Israel out of Egypt, vnto this daye: but haue walked, in a tent and tabernacle. In all the places where in I haue walked with all the children of Israel, spake I one word w any of the tribes of Israel (& sence I commaunded the iudges to fede my people Israel) sayeng: why bylde ye not me an house of Cedar trees? Now therefore, so saye vnto my seruant David: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes. * I toke the from the shepe cote (as thou wast folowynge shepe) that thou myghtest be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And I was with the in all that thou wentest to, & haue destroyed all thyne enemies out of thy syght, and haue made the a great name, lyke vnto the name of the great men that are in the worlde. And therefore, I will appoynt a place for my people Israel, and will plant it, & they maye dwell in a place of their awne, and moue no moare, nether shall wyckyd people trouble the any moare, as they did at the beginnyng: sence the tyme that I sett Iudges ouer my people Israel. And I will geue the rest from all thine enemies. And the Lord telleth the, that he will make the an howse.

And when thy dayes he fulfilled, & shalt slepe wyth thy fathers, and I will set vp thy seele after the, which shall proceed out of thy bodye, & will stablyshe his kyngdome. * He shall bylde an house for my name, & I will stablyshe the seate of his kyngdome for euer. * I will be his father, and he shalbe my sonne: * & if he synne, I will chasten hym & wyth soche a rodde as men be chastened w, & w soche plagis as the chylde of me be plagued w. But my mercie shal not depart awaye fro hi, as I toke it fro Saul, whom I put downe before the. And thynne house ad thy kyngdome shall endure w out ende after the, * and thy seate shalbe stablyshed for euer. According to all these wordes and accordyng to all thys visyon, dyd Nathan speake vnto David. Then went David in, and set hym downe before the Lord, and sayde: what am I, O Lord God? and what is my & house? that thou shuldest haue brought me this farre forth? And this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God, but & hast spokē also of thy seruantes house for a great while to come: For & this is & vyle of mā, O Lord God. And what can David saye moare vnto the: for thou Lord God knowest thy seruant. & Eue for thy wordes sake & according to thine awne hert hast & done all these greates thynges to make them knowen vnto thy seruant.

Wherefore thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none lyke the * nether is there any God saue thou, accordig to all that we haue heard w oure eares. * And what one people in the erth is lyke thy people Israel? * whose God, went & deliuered them, that they myght be his people, & that he myght make hym a name, & to shewe great & terrible things in & erthe, for thy people * which thou redemedst to the out of Egypt, eue the people with their & goddesses. For thou hast ordeyned thy people Israel, to be thy people for euer. And & Lorde art become the & God. And now (Lord God) the worde that thou hast spoken concernyng thy seruant and his house: make it good for euer, and do as thou hast sayd. For so shall thy name be magnified magnified for euer, of men & shall saye: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel: and the house of thy seruant shall be stablyshed before the. For & O Lord of hostes, God of Israel, hast tolde in the care of thy seruant, sayeng: * I will bylde the an house. And therefore hath thy seruant found in his herte, to praye this prayer vnto &. * Therefore now Lord God, thou art God, and thy wordes must be true, thou that hast tolde this goodnesse vnto thy seruant. And now go to, and blesse the house of thy seruant, that it maye contynue for euer before the. For & Lord God hast spokē it, and with thy blessing shall the house of thy seruant be blessed for euer.

The viii. Chapter.

David ouercometh the Philistines.

After this it fortunēd & David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, & toke the byrdell of bondage out of the hande of the Philistines. * And he smote & Moabites & & measured them with a lyne, & cast the downe to the groude. & Euen wyth two lynes measured he them whom he slue, and the length of one lyne saued he a lyne. And so became the Moabites Davids seruantes, & payed tribute. David smote also, Hadarezer the sonne of Rehob kyng of zoba as he went to recouer his border at the ryuer Pherat. And David toke a thousand & seuen hundred horsmen of his hoost, and twenty thousand fote men, and cut of the hofe of all his charette horses, referuyng onely one hundred charettes. And whā the Sirians of Damascon came to succoure Hadarezer kyng of zoba, David slue of the Sirians two and twenty thousand men, and put souldyours in Siria Damascon. And & Sirians became seruantes, to David, payeg tribute. And thus & Lord saued David, in all that he wet vnto. And David toke & shildes of gold that belonged to the seruantes of Hadarezer, & brought them to Jerusalem. And out of Betan & Berothai (cittes of Hadarezer) did David bring exceeding moch brasle. * (whereof Salomon made all the brasen vessel in the temple, & the brasen lanterns, and the pillars, and the altars.)

Whē Choi kyng of Amath heard how David had smytten all the hoste of Hadarezer, he sent Jooram his sonne vnto kyng David, to salute hym with peace, & to blesse hym, because he had fought agaynst Hadarezer, and beaten hym: for Choi had greate warre w Hadarezer, which Jooram brought with hi, vesselles of siluer, vesselles of golde, and vesselles of brasle. Which brasle kyng David dyd dedicat vnto the Lord w the syluer and golde that he had cosecrated of all nacpions, whych he subdued: of Siria of the Moabites, & of the chylde of Ammon, of the Philistines, & of Hamalek, and of the spoule of Hadarezer sonne of Rehob kyng of zoba. And David gat hym a name after that he returned & had smytten of the Sirians in the valeye of Salt. xviii. thousand men. * And he put keepers in Edō, euen thorow out al Edō put he souldyours, & all they of Edom became Davids seruantes. And the Lorde kept David whatsoeuer he toke in hand. And David raygned ouer all Israel, and executed ryght, & Justice vnto all his people. And * Joab the sonne of Zarahiah was ouer the host, and Jehoshaphat & sonne of Ahilud was recorder. And Sadoch the sonne of Ahitob, & Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the Priestes, and Sarai was the Scribe. And * Banaiahu & sonne of Jehoiada was ouer & the Crechites and the Phelthites: & Davids sonnes were chiefe rulers.

The ix. Chapter.

David restorēth all the felde of Saul, to Giphith: bofeth the sonne of Jonathan.

And David sayd: is there yet any mā left of & house of Saul? For I will shew hym mercie for Jonathan sake. And there was of & household of Saul a seruant who se name was ziba: & whan they had called hym vnto David, the kyng sayd vnto him: art thou ziba? he sayd: thy seruant is he. And & kyng sayde: remaineth ther yet any man of & house of Saul, who I maye shew the mercie of God vpo: ziba answered the kyng: * Jonathan hath yet a sonne, which is lame on his fete. The kyng sayd vnto him: where is he? ziba sayd vnto the kyng: behold, he is in the house of Machir & sonne of Amiel of Lodeber. Then kyng David sent, & fett hym out of the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel, out of Lodeber. Now whan Giphitholeth the sonne of Jonathan, & sonne of Saul was come vnto David, he fell on his face, and did reuerēce. And the kyng sayde: Giphitholeth: he answered: Behold thy seruant. David sayde vnto him: feare not, for I will surely shew the kindnesse for Jonathan thy fathers sake, & will restore & all the felde of Saul thy father, & þu shalt eate bred on myne awne table continually. And he bowed hym self, and sayde: what is thy seruaut, that thou shuldest vouchsafe to loke vpon soche a deed dogg as I am?

* 2. Sa. i.

Then the kyng called vnto ziba Sauls young man & sayd vnto him: I haue geuen vnto thy masters sonne, all that pertayned to Saul and to all his house. Se therfore þu thou, & thy sonnes and thy seruantes tyll the lande, and byng in, that * thy masters sonne maye haue fode to eate. But Michiboseth thy masters sonne shall eate bred all-
 * 2. Sa. i. waye vpon my table. For ziba had fiftene sonnes and twente seruantes. Then sayd ziba vnto the kyng: According to all þu my Lord the kyng hath commaunded his seruaut, so shall thy seruaut do. Well, sayd þu kyng Michiboseth shall eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. Michiboseth had a sonne that was younge, named Micha, and all that dwelled in the house of ziba were seruantes vnto Michiboseth. And Michiboseth dwelt in Jerusalem, for he dyd eate euer at the kynges table, * and was lame on both his fete.

* 2. Sa. i. b

The .x. Chapter.

The messengers of David are villainously entreated of the kyng of Moab.

It happened after this, þu the hig of the children of Ammon died, & Hanon his sonne raygned in his steade. Then sayd David: I will shewe kynnesse vnto Hanon þu sonne of Na has, as hys father shewed kynnesse vnto me. And David sent to comfort hym by the hand of his seruantes ouer * (the death of) hys father. And Davids seruantes came into the lande of the childre of Ammon, and the Lordes of the children of Ammon sayd vnto Hanon their Lord: thynekst thou þu David dothe honoure thy father, that he hath sent comfortours to the? hath not David rather sent his seruantes vnto þu, to searche þu cytie, & to spye it out, and to ouerthrow it?

* 2. Sa. i.

Wherfore, Hanon toke Davids seruantes, & shaued of the one halfe of euerye manes berd and cut of their garmentes in the myddle, euen harde to the buttockes of the, & sent them awaye. When they tolde it vnto David, he sent to mete the (for they were men exceedingly a shamed) & the kyng sayd: tarye at Jericho untill your beerdes be growen, and then retorne. And when the children of Ammon saw that they stanche in þu sight of David, they sent and hired the Syrians of the house of Rehob, & the Syrians of zoba. xx. thousand fote men, and of kyng Maacha a thousand me, & of Istob twelue thousand men. And when David hearde of it, he sent Joab & all the host of strong men. And the children of Ammon came out, and waged battell at the entring in of þu gate, & the Syrians of zoba, of Rehob, Istob and Maacha were by them selues in the felde.

When Joab saw þu the front of the battell was agaynst hym before and after, he chose of all the fresh young men of Israel, & put them in araye agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of the people he deliuered into the had of Abisay hys brother, þu he myght put the in araye agaynst þu children of Ammon. And he sayd, þu the Syrians be stronger then I, thou shalt helpe me. But þu the children of Ammon be to strong for the, I will come ad succoure the. Therfore quyte the lyke a man, & let vs stonde stiff for oure people, & for the cities of oure God. And the Lord do þu which is good in his owne eyes. And Joab proceeded forth, & þu people þu was with hym, to fight with the Syrians. But they fled before him. And when the children of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fled, the fled they also before Abisay, and entred into the cytie. And so Joab returned from þu childre of Ammon, & came to Jerusalem. And when the Syrians saw that they were put to þu worlde before Israel, they gathered them to geather. And Hadarezer sent, & brought out the Syrians þu were bepounde the ruuer. And they came with their armpe and Hobab the captayne of the host of Hadarezer went before them.

And when it was shewed David, he gathered all Israel togeather, ad passed ouer Jordan, & cam to Helam: And the Syrians set them selues in araye agaynst David, & fought with him: and the Syrians fled before Israel. And David destroyed seven hundred charettes of the Syrians, and fourty thousand horsemen, and smote Sobah the captayne of their host, which also dyed there. And when all the kynges (that were seruantes to Hadarezer) saw that they were put to the worlde before Israel, they made peace with them, & serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe þu children of Ammon any moare.

The .xi. Chapter.

The aduoutye of David with Bethsabe the wyfe of Urias.

Adit came to passe þu (after the year was expyred) in the tyme when kynges * use to go forth to battell, David sent Joab and hys seruantes wyth hym, and all Israel, whych * destroyed the children of Ammon, and beleged Raba. But David tarped styll at Jerusalem. And it chaficed in an euynge, that David arose out of hys bed, and walked vpon the roufe of the kynges palace, and from the roufe he sawe a woman * washyng her selfe: and the womā was very be wyfull to loke vpon. And he sent to enquire what womā it shuld be, sayenge: is it not Bethsabe the daughter of Eliam, and wyfe to Urias the hethite? And David sent messengers, and fett her. And she came in vnto hym * & he laye wyth her. And * (immediatly) she was * purisped from her vncleynesse, and returned vnto her house. And the woman conceaued, & sent and tolde David, & sayd: I am wyth chyld. And David sent to Joab, (sayenge:) sende me Urias the hethite. And Joab sent Urias to David. And whē Urias was come vnto hym, David demaunded of him: howe Joab dyd, and howe the people fared, and howe the me of warre prospered. And David sayd to Urias: go downe to thyne house, and washe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace, and there folowed hym a serupce from the kynges table. But Urias slept at the doore of the kynges palace wythall the seruantes of hys Lorde, and wēt not downe to hys house.

Which whē they had tolde David (sayenge: Urias wēt not downe into hys house.) David sayde vnto Urias: Camst thou not fro thy iorney? why dydest thou not go downe then vnto thyne house? Urias answered David. The arcke & Israel and Juda dwell in paylions: and my Lorde Joab and the seruantes of my Lorde lye vpon the flatterthe: and shall I then go into myne house, to eate, and to dryncke, and lye wyth my wyfe? * By thy lyfe and by the lyfe of thy soule, I wyll not do thys thyng. And David sayde vnto Urias: * tarpe here this daye also, and to morowe I wyll lett the depart. And so Urias abode in Jerusalem that daye, and the morowe. And whā David had called hym, he dyd eate and dryncke before hym, and he made hym droncke. And at eue he went out to lye on hys couche wyth the seruantes of his Lorde, but went not downe to hys house. On þu morow David wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hande of Urias. And he wrote thus in þu letter, sayeng: put Urias in the forefront of the sharpe battell, and come þu backe from hym, that he maye be smytten and dye. So whan Joab beleged the cytie, he assygned Urias vnto a place, where he wyll that stronge men were.

* 2. Sa. i. q.

And the me of the cytie cam out, and fought wyth Joab. And there were certē ouerthrowen of the people, and of the seruantes of David, and Urias the hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sent, and tolde David all the thynges concernynge the warre, and charged the messenger, sayenge: when thou hast made an ende of tellynge the matters of the warre vnto the kyng, þu he begynne to summe, and saye vnto the: wherfore approched þu so nye vnto the cytie, whan þu dyd fyght? wyll þu not that they wolde hurle and hote from the wall? who smote Abimelech sonne of Jeroboam? * dyd not a woman cast a pece of a myllstone vpon hym from of the wall, and he dyed in Thebes? why went þu nye the wall? then saye thou: thy seruaut Urias the hethite is deed also.

So the messenger went, and came, and shewed David all that Joab had sent hym for, and the messenger sayd vnto David: þu me pccapled agaynst vs, and cam out vnto vs into the felde, & we * (wyth violence) take he vnto them, euen vnto the enterpyng of the gate. And the hoters hote from the walles, vpon thy seruantes, and some of the kynges seruantes be deed. And thy seruaut Urias the hethite is deed also. And David sayde vnto the messenger: thus shalt þu saye vnto Joab: let not that thyng trouble the. For * (the chaunce of warre is byrte, and) þu werde deuoureth one as well as another: make thy battell more stronge agaynst the cytie to ouerthrowe it, & se that thou courage Joab. And when the wyfe of Urias heard that her husbāde was deed, she mourned for hym. And whan the mournynge was past, David sent and fett her to hys house, and she became hys wyfe, and bare hym a sonne. But this thyng that David dyd, displeased the Lorde.

The .xii. Chapter.

David is rephoned for the slaughter of Urias. The chyldre conceaued in aduoutye dyeth. Alys is Salomon boyme.

And the Lorde sent Nathan vnto David. And he came vnto him and tolde hym: there were two men in one cytie, the one ryche, and the other poore. The ryche man had exceedynge many shepe and oxen. But the poore had nothyng saue one lytle shepe, whych he had bought, and noyrshed vp. And it grewe vp wyth hym and wyth hys children also, and dyd eate of hys awne meate, and dranke of hys awne cuppe, and slept in hys bosome, and was vnto hym as hys daughter. And there cam a straunger vnto the ryche mā. And he coude not fynde in hys heart to take of hys awne shepe, and of hys awne oxen, to dreffe for the stranger that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mānes shepe, and dresled it for þu man that

* 2. Sa. i. b.

That was come to him. And David was exceeding wroth wth the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, the man that hath done this thyng is the chylde of death. He shall restore the lambe * twyle foure folde, because he dyd thys thyng, and had no pitie. And Nathan sayth to David: thou art the mā. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, * I anoynted the kyng ouer Israel, and rydde the out of the hāde of Saul, I gaue the thy masters house, and thy masters wyues into thy bosome, and gaue the the house of Israel and of Juda, & might (yf that had bene to lytle) haue geuen the so moche moare. Wherfore then hast thou despised the commaundement of the Lorde, to do wyckednesse in hys syght: thou hast kylde Urias the hethite with the swerde, and hast takē his wife to thy wyfe, & hast slayne hym with the swerde of the chylde of Ammon.

Nowe therfore, the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because thou hast despyled me, and taken the wyfe of Urias the hethite, to be thy wife. Wherfore thus sayth the Lorde: beholde, I wyll steepe euell agaynst the, euen out of thyne awne house, & wyll * take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and geue them vnto thy neyghboure, and he shall lye wth thy wyues in the syght of the sonne. For thou dydest it secretly, But I wyll do thys thyng before all Israel, and in the open sonne lyght.

And David sayde vnto Nathan: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde. And Nathan sayd vnto David: the Lorde also hath put awaye thy synne, thou shalt not dye. Howbeit, because in doyng thys deade, thou hast geuen the enemyes of the Lord a cause to rale, the chylde that is borne vnto the, shall surelye dye. And Nathan departed vnto hys house. And the Lorde stroke the chylde that Urias wyfe bare vnto David, and it sickened sore. David therfore besought God for y^e chylde, and fasted and went in, and laye all nyght vpon the erthe. And the elders of hys house arose and went to hym, to take him vp from y^e erth. But he wolde not, nether dyd he eate meat wth them.

And it happened the seuenth daye, that y^e chylde dyed. And the seruantes of David durst not tell him, that the chylde was deed. For they sayd: beholde, while the chylde was yet alyue, we spake vnto hym, and he wolde not hearken vnto oure voyce. Howe wyll he then beke hym selfe, yf we tell hym, that the chylde is deed? But David seynge hys seruantes whysperynge, perceaued, that the chylde was deed, & David sayd vnto hys seruantes: is the chylde deed? They sayde: yee. And David arose fro the erth, and washed and anoynted hym selfe, and chaiged his apparell, & came into the house of the Lorde, &

worshypped, & after ward cam to hys awne house and badd y^e they shulde set a bryd before hym, and he dyd eate. Then sayd his seruantes vnto hym: what thyng is thys, that thou hast done? Thou dydest faste and wepe for the chylde, while it was a lyue, & as sone as it was deed, thou diddest eate vp, and eate meate. He sayde: while the chylde was yet a lyue, I fasted and wepte. For this I thought: who can tell whether God wyll haue mercey on me, that the chylde maye lyue. * But nowe, seynge it is deed, wherfore shulde I fast: can I byynge him agayne any moare? I shall go to hym, rather the he shall come agayne to me. And David comforted Bethsabe his wyfe, and went in vnto her, and laye wth her, and she bare a sonne, and called his name * Salomon, and the Lorde loued hym. And he sent by the hande of Nathan the prophete, and called his name * Jedidia, of the Lordes behalfe.

Joab fought agaynst Raba the cytie of the chylde of Ammon, and toke the cyty of the kyngdome. And Joab sent messengers to David, sayeng: I haue made assawt to Raba, and haue taken the cytie wth waters. Nowe therfore geather y^e rest of the people together, and besege the cytie, that thou mayest take it: lest I take it, and call it after my name. And David geathered all y^e people together, and went agaynst Raba, & beleged it, and gatt it. * And he toke the kynges crowne from of hys heed, which was yed an hundred wayght of golde, and in it were pcepyous stones. And it was set on Davids heed. And he brought out the spoyle of the cytie in exceeding great aboundance. And he carped out the people that was therein, and put them vpon sawes and vpon yron harowes, and vpo axes of yro, & thrust them into the tylekell. Thus dyd he with all the cyties of the chylde of Ammon. And so David and all the people returned vnto Jerusalem.

The xliij. Chapter.

Amnon Davids sonne despyeth hys syster Thamar. Absalom therfore killeth Amnon.

After this it chaunced that Absalom the sonne of David had a fayre syster, named Thamar, whom Amnon the sonne of David loued. And he was so sore vexed, that he fell sycke for the loue of hys syster Thamar: for she was a veyrgyn, and he thought it harde for hym to haue hys purpose of her. But Amnon had a frende, called Jonadab, y^e sonne of Simeah Davids brother: and Jonadab was a very wyse mā. And he sayde vnto him: how cometh it, that thou beyng the kynges sonne, art thus consumed euery daye? Wylt thou not tell me? Amnon answered hym: I loue Thamar

Thamar my brother Absaloms syster. Jonadab sayde vnto him: laye y^e downe on thy bedde, & make thy selfe sicke. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: Oh let my syster Thamar come, and geue me meate, & dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it and eate it of her hande.

And so Amnon laye downe, & made hym selfe sicke. And when the kyng was come to se him, Amnon sayde vnto him: Oh let Thamar my syster come, & make me a couple of frytters in my syght, that I maye eate of her hande. Then David sent home to Thamar, sayeng: go now to thy brother Ammons house, and dresse him meate. So Thamar went to her brother Ammons house, and he was layed downe. And she toke flour, and made paste, and dresed frytters in his syght, & dyd bake them, and toke a platter, & powred them out before him, but he wolde not eate. And Amnon sayde: haue out all men from me. And they went all out from hym. And Amnon sayde vnto Thamar: byynge the meate into the chambze, that I maye eate of thyne hād. And Thamar toke the frytters, whych she had made, & brought them into the chambze to Amnon her brother. And when she had set the before him, to eate, he toke her, and sayd vnto her: come lye wth me my syster. And she answered him: nay my brother, do not force me, for there hath no such thinge bene done in Israel: do not thou this abhominacion. For whither shall I be able to go wth my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the foles in Israel. O speake vnto the kyng, and he shall not denye me vnto the.

Howbeit he wolde not hearken vnto her voyce but toke her, & forced her, and laye wth her. And the Amnon hated her exceedinglye: so that y^e hate wher wth he hated her, was greater then y^e loue, wth which he before loued her. And Amnon sayde vnto her: vp, & get y^e thee. She answered hi: Thou hast no cause. This euell y^e y^e puttest me awaye is greater then y^e other that y^e dydest vnto me. Neuerthelesse he wolde not heare her, but called his boye that serued him, & sayd: put awaye this woman fro me, & bolt y^e doze after her. And she had a kirtell of diuerse coloures vpo her: for soche were y^e kynges daughters (that were virgines) appareled. The his seruante brought her oute, ad locked y^e doze after her. And Thamar toke & put allthes on her heed, & rent her gaye kirtell y^e was on her, & layed her hande on her heed, & so wet: & as she wet, cryed. And Absalom her brother sayde vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother bene with the? Nowe yet be still my syster: he is thy brother. Let not this thyng greue thine hert. And so Thamar remayned desolate in her brother Absaloms house. But when kyng David heard of all these thynges, he was very wroth.

(And he wolde not here the speche of Amnon hys sonne: for he loued hym, because he was hys synboorne.) And Absalom sayde vnto hys brother Amnon nether good ner badd. Howbeit Absalom hated Amnon because he had forced hys syster Thamar.

And it happened after two yere, that Absalom had * shepe shearers in y^e playne of Ba: for besyde the trybe of Ephraim, & bad all y^e kynges sonnes, and cam to the kyng, & sayd: beholde, thy seruant hath shepe shearers, let the kyng & his seruantes come to thy seruante. The kyng answered Absalom: naye my sonne. We will not go all, ner be chargeable vnto the. And Absalom laye soze vpon hym: howbeit he wolde not go, but blessed hym. Then sayd Absalom: yf thou wilt not come, then let my brother Amnon go wth vs. And the kyng answered hym: what nedeth it, that he go wth the? But Absalom made soche instace that he let Amnon, & all y^e kynges chylde go with hym.

Nowe had Absalom comaunded his younge men, sayeng: marke when Ammons hert is mery wth wyne. & when I byd you slayte Amnon, then kyll hym: and feare not, haue not I bydden you: be bolde therfore, & playe the men. And the younge men of Absalom dyd vnto Amnon euen as Absalom had comaunded. And all the kynges sonnes arose, & euery man gat hym vp, vpon hys hule, & fled. And it fortunied, that while they were yet in the waye, rydynge cam to David sayeng: Absalom hath slayne all the kynges sonnes, & there is none left alyue. Then David arose, & tare his garmentes, and laye along on y^e erth: & all his seruantes stode by with theyr clothes rent. And Jonadab the sonne of Simeah Davids brother, answered, and sayde: let not my Lorde suppose y^e they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon only is deed. For that hath bene determined in Absaloms mynde, sence he forced hys syster Thamar. Nowe therfore, let not my Lorde the kyng take the thyng so greuouslye, to thincke that all y^e kynges sonnes are deed, saue Amnon only is deed.

But Absalom fled. And the younge man that kept the watche, lyfte vp hys eyes, and looked: And beholde, ther cam moche people by a waye, a longe by the hynder parte on an hylls syde. And Jonadab sayde vnto the kyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes come. As thy seruant sayde, so it is. And as sone as he had lefte speakynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and lyfte vp theyr voyces, and wepte. The kyng also and all hys seruantes wepte exceedingly. But Absalom escaped, and wet to Gethaim the sonne of Amihur kyng of Gethur. And David mourned for hys sonne euery daye. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gethur, and was there thre yeares. And kyng David desired to go forth unto Absalom: for where as Amnon was deed, he was comforted ouer hym.

The. xliij. Chapter.

*¶ The wife of the woman of Tekoa
Absalom is called agayne.*

The sonne of zaruta perceaued, that the kynges heart was toward Absalom, & he sent to Tekoa, and fett thence a wyle woman, and sayde vnto her: sayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mourning apparel. And anoynt not thy self with oyle. but be as a woman that had longe tyme mourned for some deed bodye. And come to the kyng, and speake of thys maner vnto hym. And so Joab taught her what she shuld saye.

And when the woman of Tekoa had fallen on her face to the ground, and done obeysaunce, she sayde vnto the kyng: helpe me O kyng. The kyng sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? She answered: I am a wedowe, and myne husbnde is deed. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, and they two fought together in the felde, where was no man to go betwene them) but the one smote the other and slewe hym. And beholde, the whole kynred is rylen agaynst thy handmayde, and they sayd: *delyuer vs him that smote hys brother: that we maye kyll hym.

 Deu. xij. c.* And for þe soule of his brother whome he slewe. We will destroye the heyre also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle which is left, that he shall steepe vnto my husbnde) nether name ner issue vnto þe erth. And the kyng sayde vnto the woman: go home to thyne house, I wyll geue a charge for the. And the woman of Tekoa sayde vnto the kyng: My Lord O kyng, thys trespase be on me and on my fathers house, and the kyng and hys seate be gyltlesse. And the kyng sayd: yf any man saye ought vnto the, byng hym to me, and he shall hurte the no moare. Then sayde she: *let the kyng remember hys Lord God, that the auenger of the bloude geather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they slaye not my sonne. And he answered: as sure as the Lord lyueth * there shall not one heere of thy sonne fall to the erthe.

 i. reg. xliij. s.* The woman sayde: let thyne handmayde

speake one worde moare vnto my Lord þe kyng. And he sayde: saye on. The woman sayde: wherfore the hast þe determined such a thyng agaynst þe people of God? For þe kyng doth speake this thyng as one which is fauoure, that he shulde not sett home agayne hys banesched. For we must nedes dye, & perishe as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be geathered vp agayne: * Neither doth God spare any soule. Let the kyng therefore fynde þe meanes, þe hys banesched be not vterly expelled fro hym. Nowe therefore am I come, to speake of this thyng vnto the kyng my Lord: for they þe of the people, haue feared me. And thy handmayde sayde: Nowe wyll I speake vnto þe kyng, parauenture the kyng will perfourme þe request of his handmayde. And the kyng shall heare his handmayde, to delyuer her out of the hande of the man, that wolde haue destroyed me and also my sonne out of þe inheritaunce of God. And thyne handmayde sayde: the worde of my Lord the kyng shall nowe be comfortable: for my Lord the kyng is as an Angel of God, in hearyng of good and badde: therefore the Lord thy God be with the.

Then the kyng answered, & sayde vnto þe woman: hyde not from me (I praye the) the thyng that I shall aske the: And the woman sayde: let my Lord the kyng nowe saye on. And the kyng sayde: Is not the hande of Joab wyth the in all this matter? The woman answered, and sayde: * as sure as thy soule lyueth my Lord kyng, there is els no man on the ryght hande nor on the left) but as my Lord the kyng hath spoken, thy seruauent Joab he bad me, and he put all these wordes in the mouthe of thyne handmayde. For to the intent that I shulde alter my communicacō, hath thy seruauent Joab done this thinge. And my Lord is wise, euen as an Angel of God, to vnderstand all thynges that are in the erthe. And the kyng sayde vnto Joab beholde, I am content to do this thing. So, and fett home the chylde Absalom agayne. And Joab fell to the ground on his face, and bowed hym selfe, & blessed the kyng. And Joab sayde: nowe thy seruauent knoweth, that I haue founde grace in thy syght (my Lord O kyng) in that the kyng hath fulfilled the request of hys seruauent. And so Joab arose, and wēt to Gesur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. And the kyng sayd: let him turne to hys awne house, and not se my face. And so Absalom returned to hys awne house, and sawe not the kynges face.

But in all Israel there was not so goodlye a mā as Absalom, for he was very beutifull: so moche þe fro þe sole of his fote to þe toppe of his heed, there was no blemethe in hym. And whē he shaued hys heed (for at euery yeares end he shaued it, because þe heer was heyle on hym, hym and must nedes shauē it) the heere of his heed wayed two hundred cycles after the kynges weyght. And this Absalom had thre sonnes borne hym and one daughter, named Thamar, whyche was a fayre womā to loke vpon. So Absalom dwelt two yere in Jerusalem, & sawe not the kynges face. Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to haue sent hym to the kyng. But he wolde not come to him. And whan he sent agayne, he wolde not come. Therefore he sayde vnto hys seruantes: beholde, Joab hath a parcell of lande fast by my place, and he hath barlye therein. Go, and set it on fire. And Absaloms seruantes sett it on fyre. * (And Joabs seruantes came wyth their garments rent, and sayde: Absaloms seruantes haue burnt the pce of lande wyth fyre.

Then Joab arose & came to Absalom vnto his house, & sayde vnto him: wherfore haue thy seruantes burnt my felde wyth fyre. And Absalom answered Joab: beholde, I sent for the, desyringe the to come, because I wolde haue sent the to þe kyng, for to saye: wherfore am I come from Gesur. It had bene better for me, to haue bene there still. Nowe therefore, wolde I se the kynges face. And yf there be any trespase in me, kyll thou me. And so Joab came to the kyng, & tolde him: whych whan he had sent for Absalom, he came to the kyng, and fell to the ground on hys face before hym. And the kyng kysed Absalom.

The. xv. Chapter.

¶ Absalom maketh insurreccion agaynst hys father. David is fayne to flee for feare of hym.

After this it fortuned, that Absalom gatt hym charrettes and horses, and cytic men to runne before him. And he roale vp & crye in the morninges, and stode in the place of the entring in of the gate. And euery man that had anye matter and came to the kyng for iudgement, him dyd Absalom call vnto hym, and sayde: of what cytic art thou? he answered: thy seruauent is of one of the trybes of Israel. And Absalom sayde vnto hym: se, thy matter is good and ryghteous, but there is no man deputed of the kyng to heare the. Absalom sayde mozeouer: Oh, that I were made iudge in the lande, that euery man which hath anye pleye and matter in the lawe, myght come to me, and that I myght do him iustice: And whā any man came nye to hym, and dyd him obeysaunce, he put forth his hande and toke hym to hym, and kysed hym. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Israel that came to the kyng for iudgement, and he stole the hertes of the men of Israel. And after fourtye yeres it fortuned that Absalom sayde vnto the kyng: let me go nowe, & to Hebron, and paye my vowe which I haue vowed, vnto the Lord: for thy seruauent bowed a vowe * (when I was in Gesur in the lāde of Siria) sayng: yf the Lord shall bringe me agayne to Jerusalem, I will * serue þe Lord. And the kyng sayde vnto hym: go in peace. And so he arose, and went to Hebron.

But Absalom sent spyes thowowe out all þe trybes of Israel sayng: as sone as ye heare the voyce of the tropet blowe, ye shall saye: Absalom raigneth kyng in Hebron. And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were called. And they went w pure hertes, not knowinge of any thyng. And Absalom sent also for Ahithophel the Gilonite Davids counsellor, that he shulde come out of hys cytic Gilo, whyle he offered sacrificys. And there was wrought stronge treason. For the people went and increased w Absalom in multitude. And there cam a messenger to David & sayd: the hertes of the men of Israel are turned after Absalom. And David sayde vnto all his seruantes þe were w him at Jerusalem: vp, y we maye be gone, for we shall not else escape from Absalom. Make spede, to departe: lest he come sodēlie, and catche vs, & bringe some myscheffe vpon vs, and synpte the cytic with the edge of the swerde. And þe kynges seruantes sayde vnto him: beholde, thy seruantes are redye, to do whatsoeuer my Lord þe kyng shall apoynte.

And the kyng & all his household departed a fote. And he left behinde hym * ten concubines, to kepe the house. And so þe kyng & all the people went out a fote, & tarried in a place that was farre of. And all his seruantes wēt about him. And all the Gethites and all the Phelthites and all þe Gethites * (myghtie men of warre) (euen. vij. hundred men which were come a fote from Geth) went before the kyng. Then sayde þe kyng to * Jthai the Gethite, wherfore comest thou wyth vs? Returne and abide with the kyng, for thou art a straunger, and art removed fro thyne awne place. Thou camest but yesterdaye, and shulde I vnuyct the to daye to go w vs? I will go whether I can. Therefore returne thou, & carpe agayne thy brethren. Mercye and truthe * (shall the Lord shew vnto the). And Jthai answered the kyng and sayd: as trulpe as God lyueth & as my Lord the kyng lyueth, in what place my Lord the kyng shalbe, whether in deeth or lyfe, euen there also wyll thy seruauent be. And David þe kyng sayde to Jthai: come then, and go forwarde. And Jthai the Gethite went forth, & all hys men, & all the chylde that were w hym. And all the countrepe wepte wyth a loude voyce, & so dyd all the people that wēt forth. The kyng also hym selfe passed ouer the broke Lydon. And all the people went towarde the waye þe leadeth to the wyldernes. And Sadock and all þe Leuites were w hym.

wyth him, and bare the arcke of the apoyntment of God. And there they set downe the Arcke of God. And Abiathar went vp, vntill the people were all come ouer, out of the cytie. And the kynge sayde vnto Sadock. Carpe the Arcke of God agayne into the cytie. If I shall fynde fauoure in the eyes of the Lorde, he will bringe me agayne, and shewe me both it, & the tabernacle therof. But and yf the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the, beholde, here am I, let him do wyth me, what semeth good in his eyes.

¶ The kynge sayde also vnto Sadock the preaste: Art not thou a Seer? Returne into the cytie in peace. And take your two sonnes wyth you: Ahimaaz thy sonne, and Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar. Beholde, I will tarpe in the felde of the wyldernesse, vntill there come some worde from you to be tolde me. Sadock therfore and Abiathar carped the Arcke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and they tarped there. And David went vp on mount olyuet, and wepte as he went, and had his heed couered, & went barefote. And all the people that was wyth hym, had euery man hys heed couered, and as they went vp, they wepte also. And one tolde David sayenge: Abithophel is one of them that haue conspired wyth Absalom. And David sayde. O Lorde, turne the counsell of Abithophel into folyshenes.

When David was come to the toppc of the mount, he worshipped God: and beholde, Husai the Arachite came agaynst hym wyth hys coote torne, and haupnge erth vpon his heed. Vnto whome David sayde: pf thou go wyth me, thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou returne to the cytie, & saye vnto Absalom: I wyll be thy seruauit. O kynge: (as I haue thus longe bene thy fathers seruauit, so am I nowe thy seruauit) thou mayst for my sake destroye the counsell of Abithophel. And thou hast there with the Sadock and Abiathar the Preastes, vnto whom thou shalt shewe all that thou canst heare out of the kynge's house. And beholde, they haue there wyth the two sonnes: Ahimaaz Sadockes sonne, and Jonathan Abiathars sonne: by them also shall ye sende me all that ye can heare. And so Husai Dauides frende gat hym to the cytie. And Absalom also entred into Jerusalem.

¶ The. xvj. Chapter.

¶ Ziba bypnyng pntences to David, dothe falslye accuse: asiphiboth. Semei curseth David, & howleteth stones at hym. Absalom (by the counsell of Abithophel) lyeth wyth hys fathers concubines.

¶ And when David was a lytle past the toppc of the hyll: beholde ziba the seruauit of Asiphiboth came to mete hym with a couple of Asles saddle, and vpon them two hundred lounes and one hundred bunches of Resynges, and an hundred trapples of dyed sygges, and a bottell of wyne. And the kynge sayd vnto ziba: what meanest thou wyth these? And ziba sayde. They be Asles for the kynge's household to ryde on, and bread and frute for the younge men to eate, and wyne: that such as be saynt in the wyldernesse, maye drynke. And the kynge sayde: where is thy masters sonne? ziba answered vnto the kynge: beholde, he tarpyeth styll at Jerusalem. For he sayde: this daye shall the house of Israel restore me the kyngdome of my father. Then sayde the kynge to ziba, beholde, thynne are all that pertayned vnto Asiphiboth. And ziba sayde: I do homage to the. I beseeche the that I maye fynde grace in thy syght, my Lorde, O kynge.

And when kynge David came to Bahurim: beholde, thence cam out a man of the kynred of the house of Saul, named Semei the sonne of Gera, and he cam out cursyng. And he cast stones at David, and at all the seruantes of kynge David: And all the people also and all the men of warre were on hys ryght hande, and on hys left. And thus sayde Semei whan he cursed: come forth, come forth thou bloudesteder, and thou man of Belypall. The Lorde hath brought vpon the all the bloude of the house of Saul, in whose steade thou hast raygned, and the Lorde hath deliuered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And beholde thou art come to thy mischefe, because thou art a bloudesteder.

Then sayde Absalom the sonne of zarnia vnto the kynge: why doth this deed dogg curse my Lorde the kynge: let me go nowe, and take of the heed of hym. And the kynge sayde: what haue I to do wyth you re sonnes of zarnia: let hym curse: for the Lorde hath bydden hym curse David. Who dare then saye: Wherefore hast thou done so? And David sayde to Absalom, and to all his seruantes, beholde, my sonne whych cam of myne awne bodye, seketh my lyfe. How moche more then maye this sonne of Zarnia do it? Suffre him to curse: for the Lorde hath bydden him: haplye the Lorde wyll loke on my wepyng eyes & wretchednesse, & do me good for hys cursyng this daye. And as David and his men went by the waye, Semei wet alowe on the hylls syde ouer agaynst hym, & cursed as he wet, and threwe stones at him, and cast dust. And the kynge and all that were with him cam wepyng, and refreshed the selues there.

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem, and Abithophel was wyth him. And as sone as Husai the Arachite was come vnto Absalom, he sayde vnto hym: God saue the kynge, God saue the kynge. And Absalom sayde agayne to Husai: is this thy kyndnesse thou owest to thy frende?

frende? Why wentest thou not wyth hym? Husai answered vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whom the Lorde and this people and all the men of Israel chole, hys will I be, and wyth hym wyll I dwell. Moreover, vnto whome shall I do seruice, but euen to hys sonne? And as I was seruauit before to thy father, euen so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Abithophel: gene counsell, what is best for vs to do. And Abithophel sayde vnto Absalom: get the in vnto thy fathers concubines, which he hath left to kepe the house. And all Israel shall heare, that thou art cast out of thy father: then shall the handes of all that are wyth the, be stronge. And so they pitched Absalom a tent vpon the toppc of the house. And he went in vnto hys fathers concubynes in the syght of all Israel.

And the counsell of Abithophel which he counceled in those dayes, was as a man had asked counsell of God: euen so was all the counsell of Abithophel, both wyth David and wyth Absalom.

¶ The. xvij. Chapter.

¶ Abithophel, seynge hys counsell dysalowed of Husai and forsaken, hangech hym selfe.

¶ Abithophel sayde vnto Absalom: let me chole out nowe twelue thousande men. And I will vp, & folowe after David this nyght. And I wyll come vpon hym, whyle he is wepyng and weake handed, and wyll feare hym: And all the people that are wyth hym, shall flee. And so will I smyte the kynge onely, and wyll bypnyng agayne all the people vnto the, & euen as casely as yf I wolde bypnyng anye other thing. And whan I haue slayne the man whom thou sekest, all the people shall haue rest. And yf saying pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai the Arachite, and let vs heare his counsell. Whē Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, sayenge: Abithophel hath geuen soche counsell: Shall we do after his saying, or no? tell thou.

Husai answered vnto Absalom: the counsell that Abithophel hath geuen, is not good at this tyme: For (sayd Husai) I knowest thy father, & his men, howe that they be strong. And they be chafed in their myndes, and are euen as a Beare robbed of her whelpes in the felde. Thy father is a man also practised in warre, & maketh no tarienge with people. Beholde he lurketh now in some caue, or in some other ströge place. And though some of his men be ouerthrowen at the fyrst brunt, yet they that heare it will saye: The people that foloweth Absalom, be put to the worlde. And the best men thou hast whose hertes are as the hertes of Lyons, shall saynke the-

rat. For all Israel knoweth, that thy father is a myghty man, and they whych be wyth him are all men of warre.

Therefore my counsell is, that all Israel be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Beerseba, (which are as the lande of the see in nobte) and that thou go to batayle in thynne awne person. For so shall we come vpon him in one place or other, where we shall fynde hym, & we will fall vpon him, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And of all the men that are wyth hym, we shall not leaue hym one. Moreover, yf he be gotten into a towne, then shall all the men of Israel bringe ropes to that cytie, and we wyll drawe it into the ryuer, vntill there be not one stone founde there. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayde: the counsell of Husai the Arachite is better, then the counsell of Abithophel. For it was euen the Lordes determination to destroye the good counsell of Abithophel: that the Lorde myght bypnyng euell vpon Absalom. Then sayde Husai vnto Sadock and Abiathar the Preastes: of this and that maner dyd Abithophel and the elders of Israel counsell Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counceled. Nowe therefore send quicklye, and shewe David saying: tarpe not all nyght in the felde of the wyldernesse, but gett the ouer, lest the kynge be deuoured and all the people that are wyth hym. Nowe Jonathan and Ahimaaz abode by the well Rogell: for they myght not be sene to come into the cytie. And a weche went and tolde them. And they went, & shewed kynge David.

Neuerthelesse a lad sawe them, and tolde it to Absalom. But they went both of them awaye quyklye, and cam to a manes house in Bahurim, which had a well in his yarde, into the whych they went downe. And a woman toke and spredde a couerlet ouer the welles mouth, and strawed spymment cometheron. And the thynge was not spyed. And when Absaloms seruantes came to the wyfe to the house, they sayde: Where is Ahimaaz & Jonathan? The woman answered the: they be gone ouer the lytell broke of water. And when they had sought them and coulde not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the well, and went and tolde kynge David, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and get you quyklye ouer the water for soche counsell hath Abithophel geuen, agaynst you. Then David arose, & all the people that were wyth hym, and they were come ouer Jordan be that it was daye: so yf there lacked not one of the, yf was not come ouer Jordan. And when Abithophel sawe, yf his counsell was not followed, he saddle his Asse, & arose, & gate hym home to hys awne house, and to hys frende.

awne cytie, and put hys household in order, and hanged him selfe, and dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of hys father.

Then David came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with him. And Absalom made Amasa captain of hys hoste in stede of Joab, whych Amasa was a mannes sonne named Jethra an Israelite, that went into Abigail the daughter of Nahas syster to Zeruia Joabs mother. So Israel and Absalom pitched in the lande of Gilead. And whē David was come to Mahanaim, Hobi the sonne of Nahas out of Rabba the citie of the children of Ammon, & Machir the sonne of Ammiel out of Lodeber, and Berzelai the Gileadite out of Roglim, brought beddes, basens, erthen vessels, wheat & barley, floure, and parched corne, beanes, rice, oormell, hony, butter, shepe and cheefe of kyene, for David and all the people that were with him, to eate. For they sayd: The people is hongrye, wecrye, and thyrstye in the wyldernesse.

The xviij. Chapter.

¶ Absalom is overcome in battell. He hangeth by the beere in an Oke. He is killed & put in a pyche. David is so sorowfull for the deeth of Absalom that he wepeth.

AND David nombred the people that were wth hym, and sett captaines of thousandes and of hundredes ouer them. And David sent forth y^e thirde parte of the people vnder the hande of Joab, and another parte vnder the hande of Abisai the sonne of Zeruia Joabs brother, and the other thyrde parte vnder the hande of Ittai the Gethite. And the kyng sayde vnto the people: I wyll go with you also. And the people answered: Thou shalt not go forth: for yf we fle, oure aduersaries will not care for vs: nether shall they regard vs, though halfe vs were slayne: but part worth ten thousande of vs: wherfore it is better, y^e thou succoure vs out of the cytie. And the kyng sayde vnto them: what semeth you best, that wyll I do.

AND the kyng stode by the gate syde, and all the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And y^e kyng commaunded Joab & Abisai, & Ittai sayeng: Intreate y^e yonge man Absalom gently for my sake. And all the people hearde, that the kyng gaue all y^e captaines charge concernynge Absalom. And so the people wet out into the felde agaynst Israel, and the battell was in the woode of Ephraim: where the people of Israel were put to the worst before the seruauntes of David, & there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twentye thousande men. For y^e felde was fought there in dyuerse places, all abroade vpon the erthe. And y^e wodd deuoured moo people that daye, than dyd the swerde. And Absalom came before the seruauntes of David rydyinge vpon a Mule, whych carped hym vnder y^e thicke bowes of a great Oke. And y^e mule was caught of the Oke, and he was lifte vp betwene heuen & erthe: & y^e mule that was vnder hym, wet his waye. And one y^e saw it tolde Joab, sayeng: beholde, I sawe Absalom hange in an Oke: and Joab sayde vnto the man y^e tolde him. Yf thou dydest se hym, why dydest not thou there smyte him to the ground, & I wold haue geuen the ten sicles of siluer, & a girdle.

The man sayde vnto Joab: though thou woldest laye a thousande sicles of syluer in my hande, yet wolde I not stretche out myne hande agaynst the kynges sonne. For we hearde with oure eares whē the kyng charged the, and Abisai and Ittai, sayenge: Beware, y^e none touch the yonge mā Absalom. Moreover, yf I had done it, I shulde haue done agaynst myne owne life: for there is no matter hyd from the kyng: yee and thou thy selfe woldest haue bene agaynst me. Then sayde Joab: I may not stande thus taryeng wth the.

And he toke thre speares in his hande, & thrust them thorowe Absalom, while he was yet a lyue on the bodye of the tree. And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs wepōs, turned, and smote Absalom and slue him. And whē Joab blewe the trompet, the people returned from folowynge Israel: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Absalom, and cast hym into a great pytt in the wood, & layed a myghtie great heape of stones vpon hym. And all Israel fled to their tentes. And thys Absalom yet in hys lyfe tyme * toke counsell & reared vp a pyller, whych is in kynges dale. For he sayd: I haue no sonne. And therefore to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called the pyller after hys awne name. And it is called vnto thys daye: Absaloms pyller.

Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: let me runne now, and beare the kyng tydings, how y^e Lorde hath iudged hym quyte of the hande of hys enemyes. And Joab sayd vnto hym: y^e art no man to beare good tydynge to daye: y^e shalt beare tydynge another tyme: but to daye y^e shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is deed. The sayde Joab to Chusi: go and tell the kyng, what thou hast sene. And Chusi bowed him selfe vnto Joab, and ranne. Then sayd Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me also rāne after Chusi. And Joab sayd: wherfore wilt thou runne my sonne: seing that for the tydynge thou shalt haue no rewarde: well (sayde he) come what will, let me runne. He sayd vnto him: runne. The Ahimaaz rāne by y^e playne waye, and came before Chusi.

And

AND David sat betwene the two gates. And the watchman went vp to the rouffe ouer the gate vnto the walle, & lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe: & beholde, there cam a man runnyng alone. And y^e watchman cryed, & tolde y^e kyng. And the kyng sayde: yf he be alone, there is good tydinges in his mouth. And he came, & drewe nye. And y^e watchman sawe another man runnyng, and he called vnto the porter and sayde: beholde, there cometh another man runnyng alone. And the kyng sayde: he is also a tydinges bynger. And the watchman sayde: me thynketh the runnyng of the formost is lyke y^e runnyng of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock. The kyng sayde: he is a good man, and cometh with good tydings. And Ahimaaz called, & sayde vnto the kyng: good tydings, and he fell downe flat to the erth vpon his face before the kyng, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God, which hath shutt vp the men that lyft vp their handes agaynst my Lorde the kyng. And the kyng sayde: is the yonge mā Absalom safe? Ahimaaz answered: Whē Joab sent (Chusi) the kynges seruaunt, and me thy seruaunt, I sawe much a doo. But I whotte not what it was. And y^e kyng sayde vnto him: turne, and stande here. And he turned, and stode still.

And beholde, Chusi came also, and sayde: Good tydings my Lorde the kyng, for y^e Lorde hath quytte the thys daye out of the hande of all them y^e rose agaynst the. And the kyng sayde vnto Chusi: Is the yonge mā Absalom safe? Chusi answered: The enemyes of my Lord the kyng, and all that ryl agaynst y^e, to do the hurt, be as that yonge man is. And the kyng was moued, and went vp to a chambze ouer the gate, and wept. And as he went, thus he sayde: O my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde God I had dyed for the: O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

The xix. Chapter.

¶ David is restored to his kyngdome, and brought agayne to Ierusalem.

AND it was tolde Joab: beholde, y^e kyng wepeth and mourneth for Absalom. And the victorie of that daye was turned into mournynge vnto all y^e people. For the people hearde saye that daye, howe the kyng sorowed for hys sonne. And the people stode a waye that daye from goynge into the cytie, as people conformed stele a waye, when they flee in battell. But the kyng hyd his face, and cryed with a loude voyce. O my sonne Absalom, O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

And Joab came into the hogg to y^e kyng, and sayde: thou hast shamed this daye the faces of all thy seruauntes, which this daye haue saved thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes

and of thy daughters, & the lyues of thy wiues, and of thy concubynes, in that thou louest thyn enemyes, and hatest thy frendes. For thou hast declared thys daye, that thou regardest nether thy Lordes nor seruauntes. And this daye I do perceaue, that yf Absalom had lyued, & all we had dyed this daye, that had pleased y^e well. Howe therfore vp, and come out, and speake kyndely vnto thy seruauntes: for I were by the Lorde, except thou come out, there will not tarpe one man with the thys nyght. And that wilbe worse vnto the, then all the euell that fell on the from thy youth vnto thys houre. Then the kyng arose, and satt downe in the Gate. And they tolde vnto all the people, sayenge: Beholde, the kyng doth lytt in y^e Gate. And all the people came before the kyng. But Israel fled, euery man to hys tent.

And it fortunēd y^e all the people were at stryffe thorowe out all the trybes of Israel, sayenge: the kyng saved vs out of the hāde of oure enemyes, he deliuered vs out of y^e hāde of y^e Philistines, and now he is fled out of the lande for Absalom. But Absalom whō we anoynted ouer vs, is deed in battell. Therefore, why are ye so still, that ye bynge not y^e kyng agayne? And kyng David sent to Sadock and Abiathar y^e preastes, sayenge: speake vnto the elders of Iuda & saye: why are ye behynde, to bynge y^e kyng agayne to his house, seynge that such tydings is come fro all Israel vnto the kyng euen to hys house?

(For the kyng had sayde: Thus shall ye saye vnto the people of Iuda.) Ye are my brethzen, my bones & my fleche: wherfore then are ye the last that bynge the kyng home agayne? And saye ye to Amasa: art thou not of my bone & of my fleche? God do so and so to me, yf thou be not captain of y^e host to me for euer in y^e roume of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Iuda, euen, as the hert of one man: so y^e they sent this worde to the kyng: Returne thou with all thy seruauntes. So the kyng returned, & came to Jordan. And Iuda came to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete y^e kyng, & to conuey him ouer Jordan. And Simei y^e sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, whych was of Bahurim, hastēd, and came with the men of Iuda to mete king David, and there were a thousande men of Benjamin wth hym, & 300 the seruaunt of the house of Saul and his. xv. sonnes and twentye seruauntes wth hym. And they went quykly ouer Jordan before the kyng. And there went ouer a boate that carped ouer y^e kynges household and they dyd him pleasure.

And Simei the sonne of Gera fell before the kyng (as he was come ouer Jordan) and sayde vnto hi: let not my Lorde impute wickednesse vnto me, ner remember the thynges (that they seruaunt dyd wickedly when my

ff v Lorde

Lozde the kyng departed out of Jerusalem that the kyng shulde take it to herte. For thy seruauit doth knowe, howe I haue done amysse. And therfore beholde, I am the fyrst this daye. Of all the house of Joseph, that am come to go downe, to mete my Lozde the kyng. But Abisai sonne of Nerua answered, and sayde: shall not Semai dye for this, because he cursed the Lords anoynted? And Dauid sayde: what matter is betwene you and me ye sonnes of Nerua? For thys daye ye be aduersaries vnto me. Shall there any mā dye this daye in Israel? Do not I knowe, that I am this daye kyng ouer Israel? And therfore the kyng sayde vnto Semai: thou shalt not dye, & the kyng swaue vnto him.

And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kyng, & had nether washed his fete, ner shauen his beard, ner washed his clothes from the tyme the kyng departed, vntill he came agayne in peace. And it fortuned that when he was come to Jerusalem, and mett the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: wherfore wentest not thou wyth me Miphiboseth? he answered: my Lozde, O kyng, my seruauit decaued me. For thy seruauit sayde I wolde haue mine Ass led to ryde theron, for to go to the kyng, because thy seruauit is lame. And ziba hath falsely reported of thy seruauit vnto my Lozde the kyng. And my Lozde the kyng is as an angel of God: do therfore what semeth good in thine eyes. For all my fathers house were but deed in befoze my Lozde the kyng: and yet dydest thou put thy seruauit amonge the ydols at thine awne table. What ryght therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto y kyng? And the kyng sayde vnto him: why speakest thou yet in thine awne cause? (It is determined, that) I haue sayde: thou and ziba denide the landes betwene you. And Miphiboseth sayde vnto y kyng: pee lett him take all: for so moch as my Lozde the kyng is come agayne in peace vnto his awne house.

And Berselai the Gileadite came downe from Roglim, and went ouer Jordan with the kyng, to conuaye him ouer Jordā. Berselai was a very aged man, euen foure score yere olde, & prouyded y kyng of sustenance, whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verpe great substance. And y kyng sayde vnto Berselai: come thou with me, & I will fede the with me in Jerusalem. And Berselai sayde vnto the kyng: I am thus olde, and howe am I able to go by with the kyng vnto Jerusalem? I am this daye foure score yere olde: and can I decerne betwene good and euell: hath thy seruauit any fast in that he eateth or drinketh? Can he heare any more the voyce of synginge men & women? Wherfore then shulde thy seruauit be yet a burthen vnto my Lozde the kyng?

Thy seruauit will go a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kyng: and why wyll y kyng reconpence it me with soch a rewarde? Let thy seruauit turne back agayne, that I maye dye in myne awne cytie, and (be buryed) in y graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy seruauit. Chimeam let him go with my Lozde the kyng, and do to him, what shall please the.

And the kyng answered: Chimeam shall go with me. And I will do to him that thou shalt be content with. And whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan. And whē the kyng was come ouer Jordā, he kyssed Berselai, and blessed him, & he wēt backe agayne vnto his awne place. And then the kyng went to Gilgal, and Chimeam wēt with him, & so dyd all the people of Judā, and brought ouer the kyng, and there were but halfe the men of Israel.

And beholde, all the men of Israel came to the kyng, and sayde vnto him, why haue our brethren y me of Juda stolen the awaye and haue brought the kyng & his household, and all Dauids men with him ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered the men of Israel: the kyng is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angrye for y matter? thynke ye that we eate of y kynges cost, or that we take vs any gyftes? And the men of Israel answered y men of Juda and sayde: we haue ten partes in the kyng, & haue therto more ryght to Dauid then ye. Why then dyd ye despyle vs, y oure aduise shulde not be fyrst had in restoringe oure kyng agayne? And y wordes of the me of Juda were fearcer, then the wordes of the men of Israel.

¶ The xx. Chapter.

¶ Seba the sonne of Bichri repleth Israel agaynst Dauid. Joab kylleth Amasa traperously. The heed of Seba is deliuered to Joab. Dauids receauers are nombred.

¶ Whan there cam thither a certayne mā of Belial (named Seba, the sonne of Bichri, a mā of gemini) he blew a troybet & sayde: we haue no parte in Dauid, neither haue we inheritaunce in the sonne of Isai, let the men of Israel departe vnto there tentes. And so euery euery man of Israel went from Dauid, and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Juda claued fast vnto their kyng, fro Jordanto Jerusalem.

And Dauid came to his house to Jerusalem, & and toke the ten women his concubines, that he had left behynde him to kepe the house, and put them in warde, and fedd the: but laye no moare wyth them. And so they were enclosed vnto the daye of their deeth, lyvinge in weddowhede.

¶ Then sayde the kyng to Amasa: call me the men of Juda togeather agaynst the thirde daye, and be thou here also. And so Amasa went to gather the men of Juda togeather: but taried longer, then the tyme which he had appoynted him. And Dauid sayde to Abisai: now shall Seba the sonne of Bichri do vs more harme, then dyd Absalom. Take thou therfore y thy Lordes seruantes, & folowe after him: lest he gett him walled cyties, and escape vs. And there went out after hym Joabs men, and the Crethites and the Phelthites, and all the myghtiest me. And they departed out of Jerusalem to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bichri. And when they were at the great stone in Gibeon, Amasa went befoze them. And Joabs garnēt (that he had about him) was gyrded vnto him, and he had gyrded theron, a knyfe, which was ioynd fast to hys loynes, in soch a wyth, y (as he wēt) it fell some tymes out. And Joab sayde to Amasa: art thou in health my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chymme with the ryght hande, to & kylle hym. But Amasa toke no hede to the knyffe that was in Joabs hande, for therwith he smote hym in the thort rybbes, and shedd out hys bowelles to the grounde, and thrust at him no more, and he dyed.

¶ So Joab and Abisai his brother folowed after Seba the sonne of Bichri. And one of Joabs men stode by him, and sayde: he y beareth any fauoure to Joab, or good will to Dauid, let him go after Joab. And Amasa laye walowed in bloude, in the myddes of the waye. And there was a man, which whē he sawe that all the people stode still, he rowled Amasa out of the waye into the felde, & cast a cloth vpon him, because he sawe that euery one that came, stode still by hym. And as sone as he was tombeled out of the waye, all the people went after Joab, to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bichri.

¶ And he went thorowe all the trybes of Israel vnto Abel, and to Bethmaacha and all the places of Barim. And they geathered together, and went after him. And they came, & beleged him in Abel & in Bethmaacha. And they cast vp a bancke agaynst the cytie that stode in the valleye. All the people that was with Joab, thrust at the wall to ouerthrowe it. Then cryed a wyle woman out of the cytie, heare heare, byd Joab come hither, that I maye speake with hym. When Joab was come vnto her, the woman sayde: art y Joab? he answered: I am he. She sayde vnto him: heare the wordes of thy handmayde. And he answered: I do heare. And she sayde agayne: They spake in the olde tyme, sayinge: men must aske peace first, how mocherather shulde they so do to Abel? For so haue they contynued hytherto: I am one of them that are peaceable and fapthfull in Israel. And thou goest about to destrope a cite and a mother in Israel. Why wilt thou deuoure the inheritaunce of the Lozde?

And Joab answered, and sayde: God forbyd, God forbid it me, that I shulde ether deuoure or destrope. The matter is not so: but a man of mount Ephraim (Seba y sonne of Bichri by name) hath y lyfte vp his hade agaynst the kyng, euen agaynst Dauid. Destroyer vs him only, and I will departe from the cytie. And the woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shall be throwē to the, ouer the wall. And then the woman went vnto all y people, with her wysdome. And they smote of the heed of Seba y sonne of Bichri, and cast it out to Joab. And he blew a trompet, and they scattered from the cytie, euery man to his tent. And Joab returned to Jerusalem, vnto the kyng.

¶ Joab was ouer all the hoste of Israel. And Banai y sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites & Phelthites. And Aduram was ouer the tribute. And Jeholaphat the sonne of Ahilud was Recorder. Seua was scribe. And Sadock & Abiathar were the preastes. And Ira the Jairite was Dauids preast.

¶ The xxj. Chapter.

¶ The deare peres. The vengeance of the synners of Saul lyghthe on hys seven sonnes, which are daged. Foure great barcelles, whych Dauid had agaynst the Philistines.

¶ When there fell an hongre in the dayes of Dauid, thre peres together. And Dauid enquired of the Lozde. And the Lozde answered: it is for Saul, and y house of bloude, because he slue the & Gibaonites. And the kyng called the Gibaonites, & sayde vnto them: Nowe the Gibaonites were, not of the & chyldren of Israel, but a remnant of the Ammonites, and the chyldren of Israel swaue vnto them: And Saul sought to slep them, for a zeir that he had to the chyldren of Israel and of Juda. Wherfore Dauid sayde vnto the, what shall I do for you, and wherwith shall I make the attonemēt, that ye maye & blesse the inheritaunce of the Lozde?

¶ The Gibaonites answered hym: we wyll haue no syluer ner gold, of Saul ner of hys house: nether is it oure mynde, y thou shuldest

Sauls sonnes ii. Samuel. are hanged

Wdest kyll any man in Israel. he sayde: what save ye then? I shall do for you? They answered the kinge: the man that consumed vs, & ymagined to byrnye vs to nought him will we destroye, that nought of him continewe in any of the coastes of Israel. Let seven men of his sonnes be deliuered vnto vs, and we will hange them vp vnto the Lorde, in Gibeath of Saul, whom the Lorde dyd chose. And the kynge sayde: I will geue them you.

But the kynge had compassyon on Miphibosheth the sonne of Jonathas, the sonne of Saul, because of the Lorde: for he was bewene them: eue betwene Dauid and Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rizpa the daughter of Aia (whom he bare vnto Saul) euen Armoni and Miphibosheth, & the fyue sonnes of Michol (the daughter of Saul) whom she bare to Adriel the sonne of Barzilai the Gethite. And he deliuered them vnto the handes of the Gibeonites, which hanged them in the hill before the Lorde. And they fell all seven to geather, and were slayne in the dayes of heruest: euen in the fyrst dayes, and in the begynnyng of Barley heruest.

And Rizpa the daughter of Aia toke sackcloth and hanged it vp for the vpon the Rocks, euen from the begynnyng of heruest vntill rayne dropped vpon them out of heuen: and suffered nether the byrddes of the Ayre to fall on them by daye, nor bestes of the felde by nyght. And it was tolde Dauid what Rizpa the daughter of Aia the concubine of Saul had done: and Dauid went, & toke the bones of Saul and of Jonathas his sonne, fro the men of Jabes in Gilead (which had stolen them from the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them whē the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gilboa.) And he brought thence the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathas his sonne, & they toke vpon the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul and Jonathas his sonne buried they in the contrey of Benjamin, in zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they had performed all that the kynge commaunded. God was then at one with the lande.

It fortuned, that the Philistines had yet warre agayne with Israel. And Dauid wēt downe & his seruantes with hym, & fought agaynst the Philistines. And Dauid waxed fayntie, and Ielhy of Nob one of the sonnes of the gyautes (the pryn of whose speare wayded thre hundred syces, and he beyng gwyded with a newe swerde) thought to haue slayne Dauid. * But Abisai the sonne of zarua succoured hym, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the seruantes of Dauid sware vnto him, sayinge: Thou shalt go no moare out with vs to battell, that y quench not the lyght of Israel. And yet after this, there was a battell with the Philistines at Nob, and then Sibbechai the Hushathite slewe Haph which was one of the sonnes of the gyautes.

And there was yet another battell in * Nob with the Philistines, where Elhanan the sonne of Jaere Dargin, a Bethlemitte slewe one Goliath a Gethite: the staffe of whose speare was as great as a weeners cloth beame.

And there was yet another battell in Geth where was a man of a great stature, & had on every hand. vi. fyngers and on every fote vi. toes. xxiij. in all. And was borne also of the kynred of the gyautes in Geth. And whā he defyed Israel, Jonathas the sonne of Simea the brother of Dauid slewe hym. These foure gyautes were borne in Geth, & fell into the hande of Dauid and into the handes of his seruantes.

The xxij. Chapter.

The songe of Dauid for his deliuerance from his enemyes.

And Dauid spake the wordes of this songe vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had deliuered him out of the hande of all his enemyes, and out of the hande of Saul.

And he sayde the Lorde is my rocke, and my castel, and my deliuerer. God is my strength, in him will I trust: he is my shyld, and the horne of my saluacyon: my wyrtshyp and my refuge: my sauour, thou shalt saue me from wronge.

* I will call on the Lorde which is prayse worthy, and so shall I be saued from myne enemyes. For the corrupcyons of deeth closed me about: the floudes of Belial put me in feare. The sorowes of hell compassed me about: the snares of deeth ouertoke me. In my tribulacyon will I call vpon the Lorde, and crye to my God. And he shall heare my voyce out of his temple, and my crye shall enter into his eares. The erth trembled and quaked: the foundacyons of heuen moued and shoke, whan he was angrie.

Smoke went vp in his wrath, and consuming fyre out of his mouth, coles were kindled therof. And he bowed heuē, and came downe, and there was darcknesse vnder his fete. And he satt vpon Cherub & dyd flye he was sene caried vpon the wynges of the wynde. He made darcknesse a tabernacle rounde about hym, with waters geathered to geather in thicke cloudes. Thowowe the byghtnesse of his presence were the fyre coles kindled.

God thundred from heuen, and he that is most hye, doth put out his voyce. He shotte arrowes, and skatered them: he hurled lyghtenynge, tenynge, and ouerthrowe them. The flowinges of the see appered, and the foundacyons of the world were sene, by the reason of the rebukinge of the Lorde, and thowowe the blastynge of the breeth of his nostrelles. He shall sende from heauen, and sett me, he shall plucke me out of many waters.

He shall deliuer me from my myghtye aduersarye, and fro myne enemyes, for they are to stryde for me. When they had ouertaken me in the dape of my calamitye the Lorde stayed me vp. For he brought me out into rowmth: he deliuered me, because he had a loue vnto me.

* The Lorde will rewarde me accordinge to my ryghtwysnesse: accordynge to the purenesse of my handes will he recompense me. For I haue kept the wayes of the Lorde, & done no wyckednesse agaynst my God. For all his lawes are in my syght, & his statutes wyll not I put awaye fro me. In his syght also haue I bene vndefyled, & haue kepte me fro myne awne iniquite.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordynge to my ryghtwysnesse, eue after my purenesse in his eyesyght. Wyth the godly thou shalt be godly, and wth the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde. And the poore people y are in aduersyte, y shalt helpe. And on y proude shalt thou cast thine eyes. Thou art my light O Lorde: y Lorde shall lyght my darcknesse.

For with thy helpe I will runne thowowe an hoste of men, and in my God wyll I sprynge ouer a walle. God is vncorrupt in his waye: the worde of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre: he is the defender of all them that trust in him.

For who is a God, saue the Lorde: & who is myghtie, saue our God? God strenghteth me with power, and y pwyth the waye in battell cleare before me. He maketh my fete lyke hartes fete, & setteth me fast vpon my hye holde.

* He teacheth my handes to fyght, y ene a bowe of slele is to weake for myne armes.

Thou hast geuen me the shield of thy saluacyon, and with thy louinge mekenesse thou dost multiplie me. Thou shalt make me space to walke in, and my legges shall not faile me. I wyll folowe vpon myne enemyes and destroye them, and turne not agayne vntill I haue consumed them.

I will wastethem and smyte them, that they shall not be able to aryse: yee, they shall fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast gwyded me about with myght to battell, and them that roase agaynst me, hast thou subdued vnder me.

And thou madest myne enemyes (& them that hated me) to turne their backs to me, that I myght destroye them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to saue them: yee, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he heareth them not.

I will beate them as smalle as the dust of the erth: I will stampe them as the dytte of the strete, and will spreade them abroad.

Thou shalt deliuer me from the dyscencion of my people: thou shalt kepe me to be an heed ouer nacyns: the people whych I knewe not, shall serue me.

Strange chyldren dissemble with me: As the hearynge of the eare they obeye me.

Strange chyldre will spycke a waye, and they shall be smytten with feare in their preyre chamber. God is a lyue, and blessed be my maker: magnified be God, my most stronge saluacion. It is God that aduengeth me, and byngeth downe the people vnder me. He deliuereth me fro myne enemyes, y also shalt lyfte me vpon hye from them that crye agaynst me, thou shalt deliuer me from the wicked men.

And therfore I will prayse y (O Lorde) amonge the nacyns, and wyll synge vnto thy name. Whych sheweth greate saluacyon for his kynge, and dealeth mercifully with his anoynted: euen wyth Dauid, and wyth his seide for euer moze.

The xxij. Chapter.

The last communicacyon of Dauid, and the description of the myghty men to hym belonging.

These be the last sayinges of Dauid. Dauid the sonne of Isay sayde. And the mā which was made, the anoynted of the God of Jacob, and the noble Psalmist of Israel sayde: y spake of the Lorde spake by me, & his worde was in my tonge. The God of Israel spake of me, euen y most myghtie of Israel, sayde: he y beareth rule ouer me, ought to rule iustlye in y feare of God. And as y moynynge lyght when the sonne is vp, a moynynge in whych are no cloudes to lett the byghtnesse, and as the grasse of the erth is by the vertue of the rayne. Shall not my house be so w God? * For he hath made with me an euerlastynge coneuant, perfecte and sure in all poyntes: & this is truly all my health & all my desire y it growe but not as grasse. But y vngodly mā of Belial shall be as a thorne cleane pluckt vp, which can not be taken w handes: But the man that shall touche them, must haue pryn, or a longe helue. * Ozeis must they be burnt with fyre in the same place.

These be the names of the myghty men whom Dauid had: & one y satt in y seat of wysdome, beige cheffest amonge thye, pleasaunt was he and stronge: he sleue ryght hundred at one tyme. After him was Eleazar the sonne of Dodi the sonne of Ahobi, one of the thye worthies wth Dauid, which besyde the Philistines that were there geathered together to battell: whā the men of Israel were gone by. he arose & layed on the Philistines, vntill hys hande was weyre, and claue vnto the swerde. And the Lorde gaue great victorie the same daye. And the people (which had fled) returned, and went after him to runne to the spoyle. After him was Samma the sonne of Age the Hararite: and the Philistines geathered together besyde a towne. (Where was a parcell of lande full of eyce) and the people fled from the Philistines. But he stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it, and slue the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue great victorie.

i. Para. xii. b.

* These thre (which were of the thirte chiefe captaynes) went downe to Dauid in þ harvest tyme vnto the caue Adullam, & the hoost of the Philistines abode in the valeye of Grauntes. And Dauid was then in an holde. And the Soudiours of the Philistines were in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and sayde. Oh, that I had of the water that is in the well by the gate of Bethlehem, for to drinke. And the thre myghtie brake thorow the hoost of the Philistines, & fette water out of the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid: & euer thelesse he wolde not drynke thereof, but offered it vnto the Lorde, and sayde: the Lorde forbyd that I shulde do so. Is not this the blonde of the men that wente in leoparde of their lyues: and therfore he wolde not drynke it. And these thinges dyd these thre myghtie men. * Abisai the brother of Joab, þ sonne of Saruiab, was chiefe amonge the thre, and he lyfte vp hys speare agaynst the hundred, & slue them, and had the name amonge the thre. For he was nobler man then the thre and was their captayne. Howbeit he attayned not vnto (the first) thre.

ii. Reg. xxi. d.

And Banaiab the sonne of Jehoiada (þ sonne of a myghtie man) valiant in actes, of Iabzeel. slue two stronge lyons, euen lyons of Moab. he went downe also, & slue a lyon in a pyt in tyme of snowe. And he slue an Egypcian, a goodly bygge man, which had a speare in his hande. But he went downe to him with a staffe, and plucked the speare out of the Egypcians hande, and slue him wth hys awone speare. These thynges dyd Banaiab the sonne of Jehoiada, & had the name amonge the thre worthies. he was honorable amonge thirte, but he attayned not to þ (first) thre. And Dauid made him of hys counsell. Aisabel the brother of Joab also was one of the thirte. Then Elhanā the sonne of Dodo of Bethlehem: Samma the haronite: Elica the Harodite: Helez the Palite: Ira the sonne of Akas the Chekoite: Abieser of Anathoth: & Jeonai the Iusathite: zelmōn an Aphite:

Maharai the Netophatite: Heleb the sonne of Baanah an Netophatite: Ittai the sonne of Ribai out of an hill of the chyldre of Benjamin: Banaiab the Phiratonite: Bedai, of the ryuer of Gaas: Abialbon the Arbathite: Ainaueba Barhumite: Elibaba a Saalbonite: and the sonnes of Isen, Ionathas. Samma the Hararite. Abiam the sonne of Sarat an Hararite: Eliphelet the sonne of Asbati the sonne of a Maachathite: Eliam the sonne of Aithophel the Gilonite: Hezrai the Carmelite: Paarai the Arbite: Igal the sonne of Nathan of Zoba: Bani the Gadite: zelec an Amomite: Maharai a Berotphyte, which was the harnesser of Joab þ sonne of Zarua. Ira the Jethrite: Gareb þ Jethrite: & Ira the Jethrite, thirte & seven in all.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Dauid causeth the people to be nombred, and therfore is Israel plagued with pestilence: so that in thre dayes there dyed. lxx. thousande.

And agayne, the Lord was wroth agaynst Israel, and he moued Dauid agaynst the, in þ he sayde: * go and nombre Israel and Juda. For the kyng sayde to Joab the captayne of his host: go thou abroade now, thorow out all the trybes of Israel, euen from Dan to Beer Seba, & nombre ye the people, that I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kyng: I beseeche þ Lorde thy God, to make þ people as many moo as they be: ye and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kyng maye se them. And what is the cause þ my Lorde the kyng hath a lust to this thinge? For wilt thou dyng the kynges worde preuayled agaynst Joab and agaynst the captaynes of þ hoost: And Joab and the captaynes of the hoost went out from the presence of the kyng, to nombre the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pitched in Arcoer on the ryght syde of the cyrie that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad, ouer agaynst Jazer. And then they came to Gilead, and to the nether lande, where was a newe habitacyō, & from thence they came to Dan Jaan about to Sidon, & came to the strōge holde of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the Heuites and of the Cananites, & then went out to þ South of Juda, euē to Beerseba. And so, whē they had bene abroade thorowe out all the lande, they returned to Ierusalē agayne, after the ende of nyne monethes and twentye dayes. And Joab deliuered vp the nombre and summe of the people vnto the kyng. And there were in Israel eyght hundred thousande men of myght þ drewe swerdes. And the men of Juda were fyue hundred thousande men.

And Dauid's hert smote hym, after that he had nombred the people. And Dauid sayde vnto the Lorde: I haue synned exceedingly in that in that I haue done. And nowe Lorde take awaye the trespase of thy seruaut: for I haue done very folyshep. And when Dauid was vp in a mornynge, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophet Gad Dauid's sear, sayinge: go and saye vnto Dauid, thus sayth þ Lorde: I offer the thre thynges, chole þ which of them I shall do vnto the.

xxiii. c.

So Gad came to Dauid, and shewed him, & sayde vnto him. Wilt thou haue seven yeres hunger to come in thy lande, or wilt þ see. iij. monethes before thyne enemies, they folowinge the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy lande? Nowe therfore aduise the, & se, what answer I shall geue to him þ sent me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. * We will fall now into the hāde of the Lorde, for moch is his mercye, and lett me not falle into the hande of man.

And so þ Lorde sent a pestilence in Israel. fro the mornynge vnto the tyme appoynted. And there dyed of the people from Dan to Beerseba seventy thousande men. And when the Angell stretched out his hāde vpon Ierusalem to destroye it, the Lorde had compassion to do that euell, and sayde to the Angell that destroyed þ people: it is nowe sufficient: holde thyne hande. And þ angell was by the threshinge place of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauid spake vnto the Lorde (when he sawe the angell that smote the people) and sayde: loo, it is I that haue synned, and I þ haue done wyckedly. But these shepe, what haue they done: lett thyne hande (I praye the) be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him: go vp and reare an altare vnto the Lorde in the threshinge flowre of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauid (accordinge to the sayinge of Gad) wēt vp, as the Lorde commaunded. And Arefna looked, and sawe the kyng and his seruantes cominge towarde him. And Arefna wēt out, and bowed him selfe before the kyng flat on his face vpon the groude, and Arefna sayde: wherefore is my Lorde the kyng come to his seruaut? Dauid answered: to bye the threshinge flowre of the, and to make an altare vnto the Lorde, that the plage maye cease from the people.

And Arefna sayde vnto Dauid: let my Lord the kyng take and offer what semyth him good in his eyes: Scholde, here be oxen for burnt sacrifice, and sleades and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. All these thynges dyd Arefna geue vnto the kyng, & sayde mozeouer vnto the kyng: þ Lorde thy God accept the. And the kyng sayde vnto Arefna: not so, but I wyll bye it of the at a pryce, and wyll not offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde my God of þ which doth cost me nothyng. And so Dauid bought þ threshinge flowre, & the oxen & for fyfte pyles of syluer. And Dauid buyt there an altare vnto þ Lorde, & offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerings. And so the Lorde was intreated for the lāde. And the plage ceased fro Israel.

The ende of þ second boke of Samuel: other wyse called the seconde of the kynges.

The thirde boke of the kynges after the rekonyng of the Latynistes: which thirde boke and the fourth also, is but one with the hebrues.

The first Chapter.

The younge virgin Absag kepeth Dauid in his extreme age. Adonia occupieth the realme vnto his tyme to his father. Salomō is annoynted kyng, and so Adonia getteth him awaye.

And kyng Dauid was olde & stryken in yeres: so þ whan they couered hym wth clothes, he caught no heat. wherfore his seruantes sayde vnto hi: let there be sought for my Lord þ kyng a younge mayden, to stonde before þ kyng and to cheryshe hi. And let her lye in thy bosome, þ my Lorde the kyng maye get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damosell thorow out all þ coastes of Israel, & founde one Absag a Sunamite, & brought her to the kyng. And the damosell was exceedinge fayre, & cheryshed þ kyng, & ministred to hi. But þ kyng knewe her not.

And Adonia the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe, sayinge: I will be kyng. And he gatt him charettes & horsmen, and fyfte men to runne before him. And his father wolde not displease him at anye tyme, nor sayd so moch to him as, why doest thou so? And he was a goodlye mā, & his mother bare him next after Absalom. And he toke counsell at Joab the sonne

the sonne

the sonne of zarua, & at Abiathar p̄ prest: And they helpeſed Adonia. But Sadock the prest, Banaiahu p̄ sonne of Jehoiada, Nathan the prophet, Semel and Rei, and all the men of myght which were with David, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia sacrificed shepe and oxen, and fatt catell, by the stone of zobelet, which is fast * by the well of Rogell, and called all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and the men of Iuda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the prophet and Banaiahu, and the other myghtie men, and Salomon his brother, he called not.

* 2. Reg. 15. b.

Wherefore, Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayinge: hast thou not hearde howe that Adonia p̄ sonne of Hagith doth rayne, and David oure Lord knoweth it not: Nowe therfore come, & I will geue p̄ counsell, howe to saue thyne a wone lyfe, & the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. So and get the in vnto kyng David, and saye vnto him: didst not I (my Lord & kyng) sweare vnto thy handmayde, sayinge: Salomō thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate: why is then Adonia kyng? Beholde, whyle thou yet talkest there with p̄ kyng, I will come in after p̄, & cōfirme thy wordes.

And Bethsabe went in vnto the kyng in to the chāber. And the kyng was very olde, and Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto p̄ kyng. And Bethsabe stowped, & made obeysaunce vnto the kyng. And p̄ kyng sayde: what is thy matter? She answered him: My Lord, thou swarest by the Lord thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomō thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate. And beholde, nowe is Adonia kyng, & my Lord the kyng wotteth not of it. And he hath offered oxen, fatt catell, & many shepe, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng, & Abiathar the prest, and Joab the captayne of the hoste. But Salomon thy seruant hath he not byddē. And nowe my Lord (p̄ kyng,) the eyes of all Israel waite on the, p̄ thou shuldest tell them, who ought to syt on the seate of my Lord the kyng after him. For elles when my Lord the kyng shall sleape with his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shalbe synners.

* 2. Reg. 15. b.

And whyle she yet talked with the kyng, Nathan p̄ prophet came also. And they tolde the kyng sayinge: beholde, here cometh Nathan the prophete. And whē he was come in to the kyng, he made obeysaunce before the kyng vpon his face on the ground, & Nathan sayde: My Lord (p̄ kyng) hast thou sayd, Adonia shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this daye, & hath slayne many oxen, & fatt shepe, and hath called all the kynges sonnes, & the captaynes of the host, & Abiathar the prest. And beholde, they eate and dryncke before him, and saie: God saue kyng Adonia. But me thy seruant, and Sadock the prest, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, & thy seruant Salomon hath he not called. Is this thyng done of my Lord the kyng, & p̄ hast not shewed it vnto thy seruant, who shulde syt on p̄ seate of my Lord p̄ kyng after him?

Then kyng David answered & sayde: call me Bethsabe. And she came into the kynges presence, and stode before him. And p̄ kyng iware sayinge: As truly as the Lord lyueth (p̄ hath rydd my soule out of all aduersyte) euen as I sware vnto the by the Lord God of Israel, sayinge: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate for me, so will I do this daye. Then Bethsabe bowed on her face to the erth, & dyd reuerence vnto the kyng, & sayde. I praye God p̄ my Lord kyng David (p̄ maye lyue euer. And kyng David sayde: call me Sadock the prest, & Nathan the prophet, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada. And they came before the kyng. The kyng also sayde vnto them: take vpon the seruantes of poure Lord, & set Salomon my sonne vpon myne a wone chyle, & carpe him downe to Gihon. And let Sadock the prest, & Nathan the prophet anoynte him there, kyng ouer Israel. And blowe ye w̄ trompettes, & saie: God saue kyng Salomō. And then come vp after him, that he maye come and syt vpon my seate. For he shalbe kyng in my steade. And I will cōmaunde him to be captayne ouer Israel and Iuda. And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada answered the kyng, & sayde, Amen. I praye God p̄ the Lord God of my Lord p̄ kyng saye so to. And as God hath bene with my Lord the kyng, eue so be he with Salomō also, & make his seate greater, then the seate of my Lord kyng Davids hath bene.

And so Sadock the prest, and Nathan the prophet, & Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, & the Crethites and Phelchites went downe, & sett Salomon vpon kyng Davids chyle, and brought him to Gihon. And Sadock the prest toke an horn of oyle out of the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomō. And all they of the people blew trompettes, and sayde: God saue kyng Salomō. And all the people cam vp after him, pyping with pipes and reioysynge greatlye, so p̄ the erth range with the sounde of them.

And Adonia and all the gesses p̄ he had called vnto him, hearde it, euen as they had made an ende of eatynge. And when Joab hearde the sounde of the trompet, he sayde: howe happeneth it p̄ there is soche a noyse in the cytie? And as he yet spake: beholde, Jonathan p̄ sonne of Abiathar p̄ prest came. And Adonia sayde vnto him: come in, for p̄ art a valeant man, and byrnyng good tydynges. And Jonathan answered & sayd to Adonia: Merely Merely oure Lord kyng David hath made Salomon kyng. And the kyng hath sent to him, Sadock the prest, & Nathan the prophet, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Crethites, and the Phelchites, and they haue set him vpon p̄ kynges mule. And Sadock the prest, and Nathan the prophet haue anoynted hym kyng in Gihon. And they came vp agayne, and reioysed, that the cytie dyd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse, that ye haue hearde. And Salomon syteth on the seate of the kingdome. And mozeouer the kynges seruantes came to blesse oure Lord kyng David, sayinge: thy God make the name of Salomon moze honorable then thy name, and make hys seate greater then thy seate. And the kyng bowed hym selfe vpon the bedd. And thus sayde the kyng: Blessed be the Lord God of Israel: which hath made one to syt on my seate this daye, myne eye seynge it.

And all the gesses that were with Adonia were afrayed, and rose vp, and went euery man hys waye. And Adonia fearyng the presence of Salomon, arose, and went to the tabernacle of the Lord and caught holde on the hornes of the aultare. And one tolde Salomon, sayinge: beholde, Adonia doth feare kyng Salomon: for he hath caught holoe on the hornes of the aultare, sayinge: let kyng Salomon swere vnto me this daye that he wyl not slep his seruant with the swerde. And Salomon sayde: yf he wylbe a chyld of vertue, there shall not an heer of hym fall to the earth. But and yf wickednes be foude in him, he shall dye. And so kyng Salomon sent, and they brought hym fro the aultare. And he came, and dyd obeysaunce vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayde vnto hym: gett the to thyne house.

Kepe thou the watch of the Lord thy God, that thou walke in hys wayes, and kepe his statutes, and his preceptes, hys iudgements, and hys testimonyes, euen as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses: that thou mayest prospere in all that thou doest, and in euery thyng that thou medlest withall.

That the Lord also maye make good hys worde which he spake vnto me, sayinge: yf thy chyldren take heade to theyr waye, that they walke before me in truethe, with all their hertes, and with all their soules, * then shalt thou not be without a man on the seat of Israel.

* Mozeouer, thou wottest howe Joab p̄ sonne of zarua serued me, and what he dyd to that two captaynes of the hostes of Israel: vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amasa the sonne of Jether: whom he slue and shed bloude in tyme of peace (euen as it had bene in warre) and put the bloude of warre vpon hys gyrdle that was about hys loynes, and in hys shoes that were on hys fete. Deale with hym therfore accordynge to thy wylsome, and byrnyng not hys hoore heed downe to the graue in peace. * But shewe kyndnes vnto the sonnes of Berselai the Gileadite, that they maye eate at thy table. For they came to me, when I fled from Abisalon thy brother.

* And beholde, thou hast with the Semel the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Gemin, of Bahurim, which cursed me with an horrible curse, in the daye whā I went to Mahanaim. But he came to mete me at Jordan, and I sware to hym by the Lord, sayinge: I wyl not slep the with the swerde: But thou shalt not counte him as vngyltic. For thou art a man of wylsome, and knowest what thou oughtest to do vnto hym. His hoore heed shalt thou byrnyng to the graue with bloude.

And so * David slepte with hys fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of David. And the dayes which David raygned vpon Israel, were fourtye yeres: seuen yeres raygned he in Hebron: and thirtie and thre yeres raygned he in Ierusalem. * Then satt Salomon vpon the seate of David his father, & his kyngdome was stablished mightely.

And Adonia the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she sayde: * Comest thou peaceably? And he sayde: peaceably. He sayde mozeouer: I haue somwhat to saye vnto the. She sayde: saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel set their faces on me, that I shulde raygne, howbeit, p̄ kyngdome is turned awaye, and geue to my brother: for it is appoynted him of the Lord: and nowe I aske a petition of the: denye me nott. And she sayde vnto him: Saye on. And he sayde: speake, I praye the, vnto Salomon the kyng, for he will not saye the naye, that he geue me Abisag the Sunamite to wyfe. And Bethsabe sayde: well, I will speake for the vnto the kyng.

Bethsabe therfore went vnto the kyng Salomon, to speake vnto him for Adonia. And the kyng rose vp to mete her, and bowed hym selfe vnto her, and satt him downe on his seate. And there was a seate sett for the kynges mother, and she sat on his right syde. Then she sayde: I desyre a lytell petition of the

the, I praye the, save me not naye. And the kyng sayde vnto her: Alke on, my mother: for I will not save the naye. She sayde: lett Abisag the Sunamite be geuen to Adonia thy brother to wyfe. And kinge Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why doest thou alke Abisag the Sunamite for Adonia: alke for him the kyngdome also: for he is myne elder brother, and hath for hym Abiathar the prest, and Joab the sonne of zarua. Then kyng Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: God do so, and so to me, yf Adonia haue not spoken this word agaynst his awne lyfe. Howe therefore, as trulye as the Lorde lyueth, which hath ordeyned me, and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and made me an house, as he promised, Adonia shall dye thys daye. And kyng Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and he smote hym, that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the prest, sayde the kyng: get the to Anatoth vnto thynne awne felde: for thou arte worthy of deeth: but I wyll not at this tyme kylle the, because thou barest the arke of y^e Lorde God befoze Dauid my father, and because thou hast suffred with my father in all hys afflictions. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from being prest vnto the Lorde: that he myght fulfill the wordes of the Lorde which he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then tidynge came also to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonia: though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and caught holde on the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde kyng Salomon, howe that Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and stode by the altare.

Then Salomon sent Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, sayinge: go and fall vpon him. And Banaiahu came into the tabernacle of the Lorde, and sayde vnto hym, Thus sayeth the kyng: come out. And he sayde: naye, but I will dye eue here. And Banaiahu brought the kyng worde agayne, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me.

And the kyng sayde. Do euen as he hath sayde: smyte hym, and burpe hym, that thou mayest take awaye the bloude, which Joab shed causelesse, from me, and from the house of my father. And the Lorde shall bypnyng hys bloud vpon his awne heed, for he smote two men right wyse and better then he, and slue them with the sward, my father Dauid not knowynge therof: euen Abner the sonne of Ner, captayne of the hoost of Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether captayne of y^e hoost of Iuda. Theyr bloude shall therfoze retorne vpon the heed of Joab, and on the heed of hys seed for euer. But vpon Dauid, and vpon his seed, and vpon hys house, and vpon hys seate shall there be peace for euer of the Lorde. So Banaiahu y^e sonne of Jehoiada wet vp, and smote hym, and slue hym, and buried hym in hys awne house in the wylder-nesse. And the kyng put Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada in hys rowme ouer the hoost and put Sadock the prest in the rowme of Abiathar.

And the kyng sente and called Semei, and sayde vnto hym: buylde the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there: and se that thou go not forth thence any whether. For be thou sure, that the daye that thou goest out, and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye y^e daye, and thy bloude shall be vpon thynne awne heade. And Semei sayde vnto the kyng. Thys is a good thinge: as my Lorde the kyng hath sayde: so wyll hys seruauit do. And Semei dwelt in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaunced after thre yeres, that two of the seruantes of Semei ranne away vnto Achis, sonne of Maacha king of Geth. And they tolde Semei, sayinge: beholde, thy seruantes be in Geth. And Semei stode vp, & sadled hys asse, and gat hym to Geth to Achis, to seke hys seruantes, and returned, and brought hys seruantes agayne from Geth.

And it was tolde Salomon, howe that Semei hath gone from Jerusalem to geth, and was come agayne. And the kyng sent, and called Semei, and sayd vnto hym: whyd I not charge the by the Lorde with an othe, and testified vnto the, sayinge: be sure, that whensoever thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whether, thou shalt dye y^e deeth. And thou saydest vnto me: it is good tidynge that I haue hearde. Why then hast thou not kept the othe of the Lorde, and the commaundement that I charged the withall?

The kyng sayde mozeouer to Semei: thou remembrest all the wyckednesse which thynne hert knoweth, and that thou dydest to Dauid my father. The Lorde also shall bypnyng thy wyckednesse vpon thynne awne heed: and kyng Salomon shall be blessed, and the seat of Dauid stablyshed befoze y^e Lorde for euer. So the kyng commaunded Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada: which went out, and smote hym that he dyed: And the kyngdome was stablyshed in the hande of Salomon.

The. iij. Chapter.

Salomon taketh Pharaos daughter to wyfe. The Lorde apereyth to hym and geueth hym wys- dome. The pleasyng of the two harlottes who shulde owe the lpyng chylde: and Salomons sentence therein.

Salomon made affinite with Pharaos kyng of Egypt, & toke Pharaos daughter, and brought her in to y^e cytie of Dauid, vntyll he had made an ende of buyldinge his awne

his awne house, & the house of the Lorde, and the wall of Jerusalem rounde about. Onely the people sacrificed in altars made on hyll-les, because there was no house buylte vnto the name of y^e Lorde, vntill thole dayes. And Salomon loued y^e Lorde, and walked in the ordynaunces of Dauid hys father, saue one-ly that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon altars in hyllles.

And the kyng went to Gibeon, to offer there: for that was a speciall offerynge place. A thousand burntofferings dyd Salomon offre vpon that altare: and in Gibeon the Lorde aperead to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God sayde: aske what thou wilt, that I maye geue it the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruauit Dauid my father great mercy, when he walked befoze the in trueth, in ryghtewesnes, & in playnesse of hert with the. And thou hast kepte for hym this greute mercy, that y^e hast geuen hym a sonne, to sytt on hys seate: as it is come to passe thys daye. * And nowe, O Lord my God, it is thou y^e hast made thy seruauit kyng in steade of Dauid my father, * And I am but ponge, and wote not howe to go out and in. And thy seruauit is in the myddes of thy people, which thou hast chosen. And verely, the people are so manye, that they cannot be tolde nor nombred for multitude. * Geue therfoze vnto thy seruauit an vnderstandynge hert, to iudge thy people, y^e I maye decerne betwene good and bad. For who is able to iudge thys, thy so myghtye a people?

And thys pleased the Lorde well, y^e Salomon had despyred thys thynge. And God sayde vnto him: because thou hast asked this thynge, and hast not asked longe lyfe, nether hast asked ryches, nor y^e soule of thynne enemyes, but hast asked vnderstandynge and discrecyon in iudgement.

Beholde, I haue done accordynge to thy petycon. For I haue geuen the a wyse and an vnderstandynge herte, so that there was none like the befoze the, nether after the shall eny aryle lyke vnto the. And I haue also geuen the, that which thou hast not asked, eue rychesse and honoure, so that there shall be no kyng lyke vnto the all thy dayes. And yf y^e wilt walke in my wayes, to kepe myne ordynaunces and my commaundmentes, * as thy father Dauid dyd walke, I will lengthen thy dayes. When Salomon awoke, behold, it was a dreame. * And he came to Jerusalem and stode befoze the arke of the testament of the Lorde, and offered burntofferings and peaceofferings, and made a feast to all his seruantes.

Then came there two women, that were harlottes, vnto the kyng. and stode befoze hym. And the one woman sayde: O my Lorde, I and thys woman dwell in one house. And I was deliuered of a chylde with her in the house. And the thyrde daye after that I was deliuered, she was deliuered also: and we were together, and no straunger with vs in the house, saue we two. And thys wyues chylde dyed in the nyght, for she smothered it. And she rose at mydnyght, and toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thynne handmayde slepte, and layde it in her bosome, and putt her deed chylde in my bosome. And when I rose vp to geue my chylde sucke: beholde, it was deed. But wha I had looked vpon it in the moynyng, beholde, it was not my sonne, which I dyd beare.

The other woman sayde: it is not so: but my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is deed. And she sayde agayne: No, but thy sonne is deed, and my sonne is alpye. And thus they pleated befoze the kyng. Then sayde the kyng: the one sayth, this that is alpye is my sonne: and the deed is thynne. And the other sayth, naye: but thy sonne is the deed, & the lyuing chylde is myne. And the kyng sayde: bypnyng me a swerde. And they brought out a swerde befoze the kyng. And the kyng sayde. Deuyde the lyuing chylde in two, and geue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other.

Then spake the woman, whose the ly-uyng chylde was, vnto the kyng, for her bowelles yerned vpon her sonne, and sayde: I beseeche the my Lorde, geue her the lyuing chylde, and in no wyse slepe it. But the other sayd: let it be nether myne nor thynne, but deuyde it. Then the kyng answered and sayd: * geue her the lyuing chylde, and slepe it not: for she is the mother therof. And all they of Israel hearde of the iudgement, which the kyng hath iudged, and feared the kyng: for they sawe that the wysdome of God was in hym, to do iustice. R

The. iij. Chapter.

The pynces and rulers vnder Salomon. The purpauce for his sayles. The nombze of his houses and of hys parables.

And so kyng Salomon was a kyng ouer all Israel. And these were hys lordes. Azariahu the sonne of Sadock the prest. Elihozeoph and Abiah the sonnes of Sifa, scriybes. Jehosaphath the sonne of Ahilud, the recorder. Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the hooste. And Sadock and Abiathar were the prestes. And Azariahu the sonne of Nathan was ouer the officers. And zabud the sonne of Nathan was a prest, the kynges companyon. And Abisar stewarde of household. And Adoniram the sonne of Abda was ouer the trybutes.

And Salomon had twelue officers ouer all Israel

all Israel, which prouyded vitayle for the kyng and his houtholde: eche man hys moneth in a yere, made prouision for necessary thinges. And these are they names: the sonne of Hur in mount Ephraim: the sonne of Dekar in Makaz, and in Shaalbin & Bethsames, Elon and Bethhanā: the sonne of Hefed in Aruboth, to whom perteyned Socho and all the land of Isepher: the sonne of Abinadab in all the region of Dor, which had Tapheth the daughter of Salomō to wyfe. Baana the sonne of Ahilud was ouer Chanach & Hagiddo, & ouer all Bethsan, which is by zarthana beneath Jezrael, frō Bethsan to the playne of Mehola, eue vnto the place that is oueragaynst Tcherneam: the sonne of Gaber had Ramoth Gilead, & his were the townes of Iair: the sonne of Manasse, which are in Gilead, & vnder him was the region of Argob which is in Basan thre skore greete cyties with walles and barres of brasse.

Ahinadab the sonne of Hiddo had Ahenaim. Ahimaz was in Nephtalim, and he toke Basmath the daughter of Salomō to wyfe. Baana the sonne of Husai was in Aser & in Aloth. Icholaphat the sonne of Paruah was in Issachar. Semel the sonne of Elai was in Benjamin. Gaber the sonne of Ery was in the countrey of Gilead, the lande of Schon kyng of the Amozites, & of Og kyng of Basan, and was officer alone in the lande. And Juda and Israel were many, euen as the land of the see in nobre, eatyng, drynkyng & making mery. And Salomō raygned ouer all kyngdoms, frō the ryuer vnto the lande of the Philistines: eue vnto the border of Egypt, and they brought presentes, and serued Salomon all the dayes of hys lyfe.

And Salomons breed for one daye was xxx. quarters of māchet flour, and thre skore quarters of meale: ten stalled oxen, and xx. out of the pastures, and a hundred shepe, besyde hertres, buckes, and wilde goates, and capons. For he ruled in all the region on the other side Euphrates, frō Chiphlah to Azaz, ouer all the kynges on the other syde the ryuer. And he had peace with all hys seruantes on euery syde. And Juda and Israel dwelt without feare, euery man vnder hys vyne and vnder hys fygg tre, from Dan to Beerseba, all the dayes of Salomon.

And Salomō had xl. M. stalles of horses for charrettes, and xij. M. horsmen. And the officers prouyded vitayle for kyng Salomon and for all that came out of any place to kyng Salomons table, euery man hys moneth, so that there lacked nothyng. Barlye also and straw for the horses and mules, brought they vnto the place where the officers were, euery man in hys offyce.

And God gaue Salomō wysdome and vnderstandyng exceedinge moche, and a large hert, euen as the sand that is on the see shore: and Salomons wysdome excelled the wysdome of all the chyldren of the east contrey, and all the wysdome of Egypt. For he was wyser then all men, pee then, Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, Chalcol, & Darda the sonnes of Mahol. And his name was spoken of thowowe out all nacjons on euery syde. And Salomō spake thre thousand prouerbes. And his songes were a thousand and fyue. And he spake of trees, euen frō the Cedar tre that groweth in Libanon, vnto the floe that spryngeth out of the wall. He spake also of beastes, of foules, of wormes, and of spylhes. And there came of all nacjons to heare the wysdome of Salomō, and from all kynges of the earth, which had hearde of hys wysdome.

The v. Chapter.

King Hiram sendeth Cedar timber to the buyldyng of the temple. The description of the workes.

And Hiram kyng of Tyre sent his seruantes vnto Salomon, for he had heard, that they had annoynted hym kyng in the rowme of hys father. For Hiram was euer a louer of Dauid. And Salomon sent to Hiram, saying: thou knowest how that Dauid my father coule not builde an house vnto the name of the Lorde hys God, for the warres which were aboute hi on euery syde, vntyll the Lorde putt them vnder the soles of hys fete. But now the Lorde my God hath geue me rest on euery syde, so that there is nether aduersarye, nor anye euill plage. And behold, I am determined to buyld an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God, as the Lorde spake vnto Dauid my father saying: thy sonne whom I wyll set vpo thy seate for the, he shall buyld an house vnto my name. Nowe therfore, comaunde thou that they heve me Cedar trees out of Libanon. And my seruantes shalbe with thyne, and vnto tye, wyll I geue the hye for thy seruantes, accordyng to all soche thynges as thou shalt appoynte, for thou knowest that there are not amonge vs, that can skyll to heve tymber, lyke vnto the Sidonys.

Whā Hiram heard the wordes of Salomō, he reioysed greatly, & sayd. Blessed be the Lorde this daye which hath geue vnto dauid a wyse a wyse sonne ouer this myghty people. And Hiram sent to Salomō, saying: I haue conseyded the thynges which thou sentest to me for: & will accōplysh all thy desyre, concerning tymber of Cedar trees & fyre. My seruantes shal bring them frō Libanon to the see. And I will conuey them by ship vnto the place that thou shalt therewe me: & wyll cause the to be discharged there, & thou shalt receaue the. And thou shalt do me a pleasure agayne if thou mynstre fode for myne house. And so Hiram gaue Salomon cedar trees & fyre trees, accordyng to all hys desyre. And Salomon gaue Hiram. xx. M. quarters of whete for fode to his houtholde, and twente buttes of pure oyle. Thus much gaue Salomō to Hiram yere by yere.

And the Lorde gaue Salomon wysdome as he promised him. And ther was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon: & they two were cōfedered together. And king Salomon reysed a some out of all Israel. And the some was thirtie thousande men, whom he sent to Libanō. & a moneth by course, so that when they had bene one moneth in Libanō, they abode two monethes at home.

And Adonira was ouer the some. And Salomon had thre skore and ten thousande that bare burthenes, and foure skore thousande masons in the mountaynes, besydes the lordes, whō Salomō appoynted to ouer se the worke, euen thre thousand and thre hundred, which ruled the people (and them) & wrought in the worke. And the kyng commaunded them to bring great stones, weighty stones and hewed stones for the foundation of the house. And Salomons masons and the masons of Hiram dōd heve them, w the worke of the corners. And so they prepared both tymber & stones for the buyldyng of the house.

The vi. Chapter.

Howe, and when the temple was buylded.

And it came to passe in the iij. C. and lxxx. yere (after the chyldren of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt) and the iij. yere of the raygne of Salomon vpo Israel: and in the moneth xij. which is the ij. moneth, he beganne to buylde the house of the Lord. And the house which Salomon buylt for the Lorde, was lx. cubytes longe, and xx. cubytes broad, and xxx. cubytes hye. And he made a porche before the body of the temple, which was xx. cubytes long after the bredth of the house, and lx. cubytes broad, euen in the forefront of the house. And in the house he made wyndowes broad without, and narrow within.

And in the wall of the house, he made chambers rounde about, (eue in the walles of the house) rounde about the temple & the queer: and made sydes rounde about. The nether-

most chamber was fyue cubytes broad, and the myddle was fyue cubytes broad, & the thyrde was leue cubytes broad. For without in the wall of the house he layd beames round about, that the beames of the chambers shuld not be fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buylt of stone, made perfecte already before it was brought thither, so that there was neither hammer, ner axe, ether any tole of yron heard in the house, whyle it was in buyldyng.

The doore of the myddle chamber was in the ryght syde of the house: and men went vpo windyng stappes into the myddle chamber, and out of the myddle, into the thyrde. And so he buylt the house and fynylhed it, and rouffed it with beames of Cedar timber. And then he buylt chambers to all the temple, of fyue cubytes heygth, and they were ioyned to the house with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, saying: concerninge the house which thou arte in buyldyng, if thou wilt walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe my commaundementes, to walke in the: then wyll I make good vnto the my promys, which I promysed Dauid thy father. And I wyll dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel. Salomon therfore built the house and fynylhed it, and syled the walles of the house within, w borders of Cedar tre: euen frō the panemēt of the house vnto the rouffed he syle the walles of it within, with Cedar tre: and boarded the floure of the house w planckes of fyre.

And he syled xx. cubytes in the sydes of the queer of the temple, both floore & walles with bordes of Cedar, & dressed it within in the secrete place of the temple, euen in the moost holpe. And the fyrst house, that is to saye, the body of the temple without, was fourty cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within, was kerned with knoppes, & graue with floures, and all was Cedar timber, so that no stone was sene. And the queer that was within the temple, he prepared, to set there the arke of the appoyntemēt of the Lorde: And the queer before was twente cubytes lōge, and twente cubytes in bredth, and twente cubytes in heygth. And he syled it with pure golde, and boarded the aultare with Cedar.

And Salomō also syled the house within with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne alonge the queer, which he had couered with golde. And the whole house, he ouerlayd with golde vntyll he had ended it. And the aultare was in the queer he ouerlayde with golde also.

And within the queer he made ij. chambers of olyue tree, ten cubytes hye. If yue cubytes longe was a wyng of the one Cherub, and fyue cubytes longe was a wyng of the other Cherub: so that fro the vntermost parte of one wyng vnto the vntermost part of the other, were ten cubytes.

And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hie also, so y both the Cherubes were of one measure & one syde. For the heigth of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of y other. And he put the Cherubes within the pinner house. * And the Cherubes stretched out their winges, so that the one wyng of y one touched the one wall, and the one wyng of the other touched the other wall. And the other two winges of them touched one another in the myddes of y house. And he overlaid the Cherubs with golde.

And in all the walles of the house round about, he made fygures of carued and syled worke: as namelpe, pictures of Cherubs and Palmetrees and grauen floures, both within in the queer, & without in the temple. And the floure of the house he couered with golde both within in y queer and also without in the temple. And in the enterpyng of the queer he made two dozes of Oliue tree. And both the upper & two syde postes were .v. square. The two dozes also were of Oliue tree, and he graued them with grauyng of Cherubs and Palmetrees, and grauen floures, & couered them with gold, and layed thynne plates of golde vpon the Cherubs and Palmetrees. And in like maner dyd he in the doze of the temple, sauyng that the postes were of Oliuete founsquare. The two dozes were of fyre tree: and epyther doze with two folding leaues, he graued therō Cherubs Palmetrees, and flours: and couered them with golde, which was layed thynne vpo the carued worke. And he buylt the pinner court w thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourth pere was the foundation of the house of the Lorde layed: euen in the moneth ziff. And in the eleuenth pere in the moneth Bull, which is the eyght moneth, was the house full fynished thowout all the partes therof, and accordyng to all the fashyon of it. And so was he seuen pere in buyldyng it. The. vii. Chapter.

The buyldyng of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The forme of the pylers of brasle, of the brasen see &c.

But Salomon was buyldyng his awne house thirtene pere, & fynished it all. And he buylt the house in the wodd of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe, and fyfthe cubytes broad, & .xxx. cubytes hie. And it stode vpon foure rowes of Cedar pylars, and Cedar beames were layed vpon the pylers. And y rounke was Cedar aboue vpon the beames, that laye on the pylers: euen fyue and four-tye beames in fyftene rowes. And there were wyndowes in thre rowes: and the wyndowes were one agaynst another thre folde. And the dozes with the syde postes, and the upperposte were founsquare, and had wyndowes one agaynst another thre folde.

And he made a porch by the pylars, that bare vpo the house. I. cubytes longe, and .xxx. cubytes broad: & that porch was before those & the other pylers. For there was a thicke tree set before them. Then he made a porche to spt a iudge in, syled with Cedar & thowout all the pauementes. And hys awne house (that he kept residue in: & that was in another court without y porch) was made of that same worke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaos daughter: who he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto the fashyon of that porche. And all these were of the best stones, hewed after a measure, and sawed w sawes within and without, from the foundation vnto the beames that laye aboue, after the measure, & euen so on the outsyde toward the great court. And the foundation was layed vpon ryche stones & y very great stones: wherof some were .x. cubytes, & some viij. cubytes. And aboue were good stones squared after a certayn rule, & couered w Cedar. And the great court round about was w thre rowes of hewed stone, & one rowe of Cedar plackes, after y maner of the pinner court of the house of the Lorde, & of the porch of the temple. * And kyng Salomon sent and fett one hiram out of Tyre, a wedowes sonne of the tribe of Nephtalim, his father beyng a man of Tyre. Which hiram was a craftesman in brasle: full of wysdome. vnderstandyng and conyng: to worke all maner of worke i brasle. And he came to kyng Salomō, & wrought all his worke. For he cast * two pylers of brasle of .xviij. cubytes hie a pece, & a stringe of .xij. cubytes dyd compass ether them about. And he made .ij. heed peeces of molten brasle (after the fashio of a crowne) to sett on the toppes of the pylers. The heigth of the one heed pece contained .v. cubytes, & the heigth of the other heed pece cōteyned .v. cubytes also: he made also net worck & garlandes of cheyne worcke, vpo the heed peeces that were on the top of the pylers, euen seuen rowes vpo the one heed pece, and seue vpon the other. And so he made the pylers, and two rowes round about, in the one wethen worcke, to couer the heed peeces y were vpon the pomgranates. And thus dyd he also for the other heed pece. And the heed peeces that were on the toppes of the pylers, couered he aboue with a curyous worke of roses: toward the palace by the space of .iiij. cubytes. Likewyle, vnder y heed peeces in those .ij. pylers beneath, oueragaynst y myddes & before y net worke. And vpo the secōde heed pece were were ther .ij. pomgranates in two rowes round about. And he set vpo the pylers in the porch of the tēple. And whē he had set vpo the right pillar, he called y name therof: Joachi: & whā he had set vpo the left pillar, he called y name therof: Boaz. And in the toppe of the pylers was a worke of roses, and so was y workmanshyp of the pylers fynished.

And he made a molten lauatory, ten cubytes wyde fro byrm to byrm, round in compass, & .v. cubytes hie. And a stryng of thitye cubytes dyd cōpasse it about: and vnder the byrm of it, there were knoppes round about, ten in one cubite: and they cōpassed the lauatory round about. And y knoppes were cast w it, in two rowes, when it was caste. And it stode on twelue oxen: of which thre looked toward the north, .ij. toward the west, .ij. toward the south, & .ij. toward the east. and the lauatory stode vpo them, & all they hinderpartes were inward. It was an hand breadeth thyecke, & y byrm wrought lyke the byrm of a cup w floures of lylies. And it cōteyned two thousand & bates.

And he made .x. sockettes of brasle .iiij. cubytes longe, and .iiij. cubytes broade a pece, & .iiij. cubytes hie. And the worke of the sockettes was on this maner. They had sides, and the sydes were betwene the ledges. And on the sydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, oxen and cherubs. And lykewyle, vpo the ledges that were aboue: and beneth the lyons and oxen were certayne addicions made of thynne worke. And vnder euery socket, were foure brasen wheles, and bordes of brasle. And in the foure corners therof, were vnderletters vnder the lauatory, cast eche oueragaynst hys felowe.

And the stalle of the lauatory was in the myddle of it, (where it is sente on the out syde) one cubite hie, and a cubite and an halfe rounde: and in the heigth of it were grauen worckes, whose sydes were made founsquare, and not rounde. And vnder the sydes were .iiij. wheles: and the axeltrees ioynd fast to the botome. And the heigth of euery whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the workmanshyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charret whele. And the axeltrees, the nauelles, spokes and shaftes were all molten: And there were foure vnderletters in the .iiij. corners of one socket: and the vnderletters were of the very bottome selfe. And in y heigth of the bottome was there round compass of a cubite hie: and in that heigth of the bottome, there proceeded both ledges & sydes out of the same. For in the bordes of the ledges, and on the sydes, he had grauen pyctures of cherubins, lyons and palmetrees, one by another rounde aboute. Thus made he the ten sockettes after this maner. And they had all one fashyon of castyng: one measure, and one life. Then made he .x. laucers of brasle, one lauer conteyning .xl. bates: and one lauer was ffoure cubytes, and vpon euery one of the ten sockettes, he put one lauer. And he put fyue of those sockettes on the right syde of y house and other fyue on the lefte. And he set the lauatory on the ryght syde of the house eastward and toward the south.

And hiram made pottes, shouels and basens, and so fynished all the worke y he made kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde: y is to saye, two pylers, two round heed peeces, that were to be sett on the toppes of the two pylers. .ii. net worckes to couer the two round heed peeces set vpo the toppes of the pylers, and .iiij. pomgranates for the two net worckes, eue two rowes of pomgranates in one net worke, to couer the two heed peeces that were to be sett on the toppes of the pylers. And the ten sockettes, and ten laucers on the sockettes. The lauatory and .xij. oxen vnder it: and pottes, shouelles and basens. And all these vessels which hira made to kyng Salomō for the house of y Lord, were of bright brasle. In the playne of Jordan did the kyng cast them: euen in the thyecke claye betwene Sococh and zarthan. And Salomon left all the vessels vnwayed, because they were so excedyng many, neyther founde they oure the weyght of the brasle.

And so Salomō made all the vessels that pertayned vnto the house of the Lorde: the golden aulter and the golden table, wher on the shewe bread was. And fyue candellstyeckes, for the ryght syde, and fyue for the lefte before the queer of pure golde: with floures, lampes, and snuffers of golde: & boules, flat peeces, basons, spones and masoures of pure golde: and hinged made he of golde for the dozes of the queer, the place moost holy, and for the dozes of the temple also.

And so was ended all y worke that kyng Salomon made for the house of the Lorde. And Salomō brought in y thinges which Dauid his father had dedicated: euen the siluer, golde, & vessels: and layed the vpon amōge the treasures of the house of the Lorde.

The. viij. Chapter.

The ark is borne into the temple. A cloude fyllech the temple. The temple is blessed.

Then Salomō gathered together the elders of Israel, all y heades of the tribes, and them that were captaynes among the father of y childre of Israel, vnto him in Jerusalem, that they might byng vpo the ark of the appointemet of the Lorde: out of the cite of Dauid, which is Syon. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto kyng Salomon to the festac that falleth in the monethe Chananim, which is the seuenth moneth. And all the elders of Israel were come and the prestes toke vp the arke. They bare the arke of the Lord into the tabernacle of witness, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle: those dyd the prestes and the Levites beare. And kyng Salomon and all the congregacion of Israel that were assembled vnto hym, and went wyth hym before the arke, dyd offer shepe and oren, that coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And so the prestes brought the arke of appoyntement of the Lord vnto his place: euē into the queer of the temple a place most holy, vnder the wynges of the cherubs. For the cherubs stretched out their wynges ouer the place of the arke, & couered both it & also the stauers therof a hie vpon it. And they drew out the stauers, & the endes of the myght appeared out of the holy place within the queer:

but they were not sene wout. And there they haue bene vnto this daye: and ther was nothynge in the arke, & saue the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at horeb, in the which tables the Lord made an apoyntement with the chyldren of Israel, when he brought them out of the lande of Egypt.

And it fortuned when the prestes were come out of the holy place, the cloude fylled the house of the Lord, & the prestes coulde not stāde and minister, because of the cloude: for the glory of the Lord had fylled the house of the Lord. Then spake Salomon: the Lord & sayde: the wolde dwell in the darck cloude. I haue built the an house to dwell in an habitacō for the, to abyde in for ever. And the kyng turned his face, and blessed all the congregacion of Israel: and all the congregacion of Israel stode styl. And he sayd: Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which spake whys mouth vnto Dauid my father, and hath whys hande fulfilled it, saying: Sene the daye I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no cytie of all the trybes of Israel, to buyde an house, & my name myght be therein. But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to builde an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And the Lord sayd vnto Dauid my father. Where as it was thyne herte to buyde an house vnto my name, thou didest well, & thou was so mynded. Neuertheless I shalt not buyde the house, but thy sone that shall come out of thyne loynes, he shall buyde the house vnto my name. And the Lord hath made good his worde & he spake. And I am rylen vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and sitt on the seate of Israel as the Lord promised and haue buylt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And I haue prepared therein a place for the arke wherein is the couenānt of the Lord, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the lande of Egypt, Salomon stode before the aultare of the Lord in the syght of all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out hys handes toward heauen, and sayde: * Lord God of Israel, ther is no God like the in heauen aboue, or in the earth beneth, thou that kepest couenānt and mercy for thy seruantes that walke before the with all their hert: thou that hast kept with thy seruānt Dauid my father, & thou promysedest hym. Thou spakest also with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it w thyne hāde, as it is come to passe this daye. Therefore nowe Lord God of Israel kepe with thy seruānt Dauid my father & thou promysedest hym, saying: * thou shalt not be without a mā in my syght to syt in the seate of Israel: so that thy chyldre take hede to their waye, that they walke before me as thou hast walked in my syght. And nowe, O God of Israel, let thy worde be verifed, which thou spakest vnto thy seruānt Dauid my father.

Will God in dede dwell on the erth? We holde the heauens, and heauens of all heuens are not able to cōteyne the. And howe shulde thā this house do it, that I haue builded: haue I therfore respect vnto the prayer of thy seruānt, and to hys supplicacyon, O Lord my God, to heare the voyce and prayer before the this daye: that thyne eyes maye be open toward this house, night and daye, euen toward this place, of which thou hast sayde: * My name shall be there. That I mayest herken vnto the prayer which thy seruānt prayeth in this place. And regarde I, & supplicacyon of thy seruānt & of thy people Israel, whē they praye in this place. And heare thou in heauen thy dwelling place, & when thou hearest, haue mercy. * If any man trespass against his neyghbour, and there go an oth betwene them, and the one cōpelled the other, and come I wearyng before thyne aultare in this house, then herken thou in heauen, and worke and iudge thy seruantes, that I condempne the vngodly to byrnyng hys waye vpon his head, and iustifye the righteous to geue hym accordyng to hys ryghteousnesse. * When thy people Israel be put to the worse before the enemye, because they haue synned agaynst the: and afterwarde turne agayne to the, and knowledge vnto thy name, and praye and make intercessiō vnto the in this house: then heare thou in heauen, to be mercifull vnto the synne of the people Israel, & byrnyng them agayne into the lande, which thou gauest vnto their fathers.

* If heaue be shut vp, & there be no rayne because they haue synned agaynst the: yet if they praye in this place, & knowledge vnto thy name, & turne from their synne, thozow thy scourgyng of them: then heare thou in heauen, and be mercifull (vnto the synners) of thy thy seruantes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe them a good waye to walke in, and geue rayne vpon thy lōde that thou hast geuen vnto thy people to enheret.

If there be in the lande derty, or pestilence, or drought, blastynge, grechopper or caterpillar, or if they enemye belege them in the lande of theyr cyties, or whatsoeuer plague or synnelle chaunce: * then what prayers & supplicacyon soeuer be made of any man of all thy people Israel, which shall knowlege euery man the plague of his awne hert, and stretch forth hys handes toward thy house: heare thou then in heauen, euen in thy dwelling place, and be mercifull, and worke, and geue euery man accordyng to all hys wayes (eue as thou that only knowest his hert, for thou onely knowest the hertes of all the chyldren of men:) that they maye feare the as lōge as they lyue in the lāde, which thou gauest vnto our fathers. And lyke wyse, if a straunger that is not of thy people Israel * come out of a farre contrey for thy names sake, for they shall heare of thy grete name, & of thy myghtie hāde and of thy stretched out arme & shall come and praye in this house. Therefore, heare thou in heauen thy dwelling place, and do all that the straunger calleth to the for: that all nacions of the erth maye knowe thy name and feare the, as do thy people Israel: and that they maye knowe that thy name is called vpon in this house whych I haue buylt.

If thy people go out to batell agaynst their enemye, whether soeuer thou shalt sende the and shall praye vnto the, (O Lord) * toward the waye of the cytie whyche thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I haue buylt for thy name: heare thou in heauen theyr prayer and supplicacyon, and iudge their cause.

If they synne agaynst the * (for there is no man that synneth not) and thou be angrie with them, and deliuer them into the hande of theyr enemyes: so that they carye them awaye prysoners vnto the lande of theyr enemyes, whether farre or neare, yet if they turne agayne vnto theyr hertes in the lande (to the whych they be carryed awaye captiue,) and retorne and praye vnto the in the lāde of theyr enemyes, saying: we haue synned, we haue done wyckedlye, and haue committed vngodlynesse, and so turne agayne vnto the with all theyr herte, and all theyr soule in the lande of their enemies, which led them awaye captiue, and praye vnto the toward the waye of theyr lande, whych thou gauest vnto theyr fathers, and toward the cytie, which thou hast chosen, & toward the house which I haue buylt for thy name: then heare thou theyr * prayer and supplicacyon in heauen thy dwelling place, & iudge theyr cause:

and be mercifull vnto thy people, that haue synned agaynst the, and vnto all theyr iniquities, wherby they haue done wyckedlye agaynst the, and get thou them the fauoure of those which led them awaye captiue, that they maye haue compassyon on them. For they be thy people, and thyne enheritaunce, which thou broughtest out of Egypte, euen from the myddes of the fornace of yron. And let thyne eyes be open vnto the prayer of thy seruānt, and vnto the prayer of thy people Israel * to herken vnto the, in all that they call for vnto the. For thou dydest separt the, from amonge all the nacions of the erth, to be thyne owne enheritaunce (as thou saydest by the hande of Moses thy seruānt, when thou broughtest our fathers, & out of Egypte O Lord God.

* And when Salomō had made an ende of prayinge all this prayer and supplicacyon vnto the Lord, he arose from before the aultare of the Lord, and from knelyng on hys knees, and from stretchynge of his hādes vp to heauen, an stode and blessed all the congregacion of Israel with a loude voyce, saying. Blessed be the Lord, that hath geuen reste vnto hys people Israel, accordyng to all that he promised, * there hath not failed one word of all the good promysse, which he promysed by the hande of Moses hys seruānt. The Lord our God be with vs, as he was with our fathers, and forsake vs not, neither leaue vs: but that he maye bowe our hertes vnto hi, that we maye walke in all his wayes and kepe hys commaundementes hys statutes and hys lawes, whyche he commaunded our fathers. And these my wordes whych I haue prayed before the Lord, be nye vnto the Lord our God daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruānt, and the cause of hys people Israel: what thyng soeuer chaunce at any tyme that all nacions of the erth maye knowe, that the Lord is God, and none but he. Let youre herte therfore be perfecte with the Lord our God, that ye walke in hys statutes, and kepe hys commaundementes, as this daye.

And the kyng and all Israel with hym, offered offerynges before the Lord. * And Salomon offered a sacrifice of peace offeringes vnto the Lord, and he offered vnto the Lord. xxi. thousande oren and an hundred & twenty thousande shepe. And so the kyng & all the chyldren of Israel dedicated the house of the Lord. The same daye dyd the kyng halowe the myddel of the court, that was before the house of the Lord: for there he offered burnt offerynges, meate offerynges and the fat of peace offeringes: because the brazen aultare that was before the Lord, was to lytle to receaue the burnt offerynges, meate offerynges, and the fat of the peace offerynges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast & all Israel with hym, a very great congregacyon, euen from the entrynge in of hemath vnto the ryuer of Egypt, before the

* Deu. xvi. c. Lorde oure God, * seuen dayes & seuen dayes euen, xiiii. dayes. And the eyght daye he sent the people a waye. And they blessed the kyng and went vnto theyr tentes ioyous and with glad herte, because of all the goodnesse that the Lorde had done for Dauid his seruaunt, and for Israel hys people.

The. ix. Chapter.

The Lorde appeareth the seconde tyme to Salomon. Salomon geueth Tributes to Hyram. The Canaanites become tributaries. He sendeth Shyppes for golde. He buyldeth many cyties.

And when Salomon had * fynys-shed the buyldynge of the house of the Lorde and the kynges palace, & all that he had in hys mynde, and was apoynted to make: the Lorde appered vnto hym agayne, as he appered to hym at Gibeon. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: I haue hearde thy prayer and thy intercessyon, that thou hast made before me. For I haue halowed this house (which thou hast buylt) to put my name there for euer, and myne eyes and myne herte shalbe there perpetuallye. And yf thou wilt walcke before me (as Dauid thy father walcked) in purenesse of herte and in ryghteousnesse, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and wilt kepe my statutes, & my lawes, then will I stablyshe the seate of thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer, as I promysed to Dauid thy father sayinge.

* Thou shalt not be without a man vpon the seate of Israel.

But and yf ye and youre chyldren turne awaye from me, and will not kepe my commaundementes and my statutes (whyche I haue set before you) but go and serue other Goddes, and worshyppe them: then will I wede Israel oute of the lande, whyche I haue geuen them. And this house whyche I haue halowed * for my name, will I cast oute of my syght. And Israel shalbe a prouerbe and a fable amonge all nacjons. And this house shalbe taken awaye: so that euery one that passeth by it, shalbe astonied, and shall hyffe, and they shall saye: * why hath the Lorde done thus vnto this lande and to this house? And they shall answer: because they forsoke the Lorde theyr God, whyche brought theyr fathers out of the lande of Egypt, and haue taken holde vpon other Goddes, and haue worshipped them, and serued the, therefore hath the Lorde brought vpon them all this euell. * And it fortuneth, that at the ende of twente yeres, Salomon fynys-shed the buyldynge of the two houses, that is to wete, the house of the Lorde and the kynges palace. And Hyram the kyng of Tyre brought Salomon tymbre of Cedar, and fyre trees, golde, and whatsoeuer he desired. And Salomon agayne gaue Hyram xx. cyties into the lade of Galile. And Hyram came oute from Tyre to se the cyties whyche Salomon had geuen hym, and they pleased hym not. And he sayde: what cyties are these, which thou hast geuen me, my brother? and he called them the lande of Canaan vnto this daye. And Hyram sent the kyng fyre skore hundred wayght of golde. And this is the summe, which kyng Salomon rayled for a tribute whan he buylded the house of the Lorde and hys awne house, and the wyllo, and the wall of Jerusalem, and Hazor, and Megiddo, and Gazer.

For Pharaos kyng of Egypte went vp, & toke Gazer, and burnt it with fyre, and shue the Canaanites ydwell in the cytie, and gaue it for a present vnto hys daughter, Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazer and Beth Horon the nether: and Baalath and Chammar in the wyldernesse and in the lande: and all the treasure cyties that Salomon had, (and were unwalld: those he made stronge) and cyties for hys charettes, & cyties for hys horsen, and all that Salomon desired and wolde buyld in Jerusalem, in Libanon, and in all the lande of hys dominyon.

And all the people that were left of the Amorites, Hethites, Pheresites, Heuites ad Jebusites, (whyche were not of the chyldren of Israel) theyr chyldre that were left after them in the lande, whom the chyldren of Israel also were not able to destroye. Those dyd Salomon compell to byng tribute vnto this daye. But of the chyldren of Israel dyd Salomon * make no bonde men. But they were men of warre, hys ministers, hys Lordes, his captaynes, and rulers of his charettes, and of hys horsen. And these were the Lordes, that were sett ouer Salomons worke: euen fyue hundred were they and fyfte, and they ruled the people that wrought the worke.

And Pharaos daughter came vp oute of the cytie of Dauid vnto the house which Salomon had buylt for her. And then dyd he also buyld the wyllo. And this ye dyd Salomon offer burnt offerings and peace offerings vpon the altare, whyche he buylt vnto the Lorde. And he burnt incense vpon the altare that was before the Lorde, and so he fynished the house.

And kyng Salomon made a nauye of shyppes in Azion Gaber whyche is besyde Elath, on the byrnke of the redd see, in the lande of Edom. And Hyram sent by shyppe also of hys seruautes, that were shypmen, and had knowledge of the see, with the seruautes of Salomon. And they came to Ophyr and fet from thence one and twente skore skore hundred weyght of golde, & brought it to kyng Salomon.

The. x. Chapter.

The quene of Saba cometh to heare the wysdome of Salomons, whose royallte is here described.

And the * Quene of Saba hearyng the fame of Salomon (concernynge the name of the Lorde) came to proue hi with harde questyons. And she came to Jerusalem with a very great trayne: with Camelles that bare swete odoures, and golde exceedynge moche, and precious stones. And she came to Salomon and comened with him of all that was in her hert. And Salomon declared vnto her all her questyons, so that there was not one thinge hydd from the kyng, which he expounded not vnto her.

And the quene of Saba cōspydred all Salomons wysdome, and the house that he had buylded, and the meate of his table, & the sytynge of hys seruautes, the order of hys mynisters, and theyr apparell, hys dryncke, and his burnt sacrifices that he offered in the house of the Lorde, and she was astonied. And she sayde vnto the kyng. It was a true worde that I hearde in myne awne lande of thy sayinges, and of thy wysdome. Howbeit I beleued it not, tyll I came, & sawe it with myne eyes. And beholde, the one halfe was not tolde me: for thy wysdome and prosperite exceedeth the fame whych I hearde of the. Happy are thy men: and happye are these thy seruautes, which stāde euer before the, and heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lord thy god, which loued the, to set the on the seat of Israel, because the Lord loued Israel for euer, and made the kyng, to do equyte and ryghte wysnesse.

And she gaue the kyng fyre skore hundred weight of golde, and of iwete odoures exceedynge moche, and precious stones. There came nomore soche aboundaunce of swete odoures, as the quene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomon. The nauye also of the * shyppes of Hyram (that carped golde from Ophyr) brought lyke wyse greate plenty of Almyge tre and precious stones. And the kyng made of the Almyge trees, pillers for the house of the Lorde and for the kynges palace, and made harpes and psalteryes for syngers. There came no moare suche Almyge trees, nor were anye moare sene vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the Quene of Saba accordynge to all her desire whatsoeuer she asked: besydes that he gaue her of a fre wyll with his awne hande. And so she returned vnto her awne countrey: both she, and her seruautes.

The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was fyre hundred thre score and fyre talentes of golde, besydes that he had of chapmen and of marchautes and of Botycarres, and of all the kynges of Arabia, and of the Lordes of the countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beate gold, fyre hundred sycles of gold went to a buckler. And he made thre hundred shylde of beaten golde, thre ponde of golde went to one shylde, and the kyng put them in the * house of the wood of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of pure yre, and couered it with the best golde. And the seate had fyre steppes. And the toppe of the seate was rounde behynde, & there were pomelles on ether syde on the place of the seate and two Lyons stode besyde the pomelles. And there stode xii. Lyons on the steppes. vi. on a syde. Ther was none lyke (worke) sene in any kyngdome. * And all kyng Salomons drynckynge vessels were of golde, & lyke wyse all the vessels of the house of the wood of Libanon were of pure gold. And as for syluer, it was nothing worth in the dayes of Salomons, for the kynges nauye of shyppes wet on the see vnto Charis with the nauie of Hyrams shyppes: eue once in the yere wet the nauye to Charis, & brought golde and syluer, & Elephantes teth, apes and peco-

kes. * And so kyng Salomon excceeded all the kynges of the erth both in riches & wysdome. And all the worlde resorted to Salomon, to heare his wysdome, which God had put in hys herte. And brought him euery man his present, vessels of syluer and vessels of golde, rayment, harnesse, and swete odoures and horsen and Mules, yere by yere. And Salomon gathered together charettes and horsen: and he had a thousande and foure hundred charettes, & twelue thousande horsen, whom he bestowed in the charette cyties, and with the kyng at Jerusalem.

* And the kyng made syluer in Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, & Cedar as plenteous as the wyld fygge trees that growe abundantly in the felde. The byngynge of horsen also out of Egypt: & the collection of the wares: dyd the kynges marchautes take agayne, and sold the stuffe for a pryce. A charet came vp out of Egypt for fyre hundred sycles of syluer: that is, one horse for an hundred and fyfte. And euen so for all the kynges of Syria, dyd they byngynge them oute thowowe theyr handes.

The. xi. Chapter.

Salomons hath seuen hundred quenes and thre hundred Concubynes, which byngynge hym to Idolatrye. His aduersaries rebell agaynst hym. He dyeth.

And kyng * Salomon loued many outlandishe women: and the daughter of Pharaos: and women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Idomites, uites and heathens. Where as yet (concernynge these nacyns) the Lorde sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: * Come not ye at them, nor let them come at you: elles wyll they turne youre hertes after theyr goddes. Neuerthelesse, Salomō claued vnto them in lone. * And he had seuen hundred Quenes, and thre hundred concubines, and his wyues turned a waye his hert. For it came to passe, when Salomon was olde, hys wyues turned his herte after other Gods: and his herte was not perfecte with the Lorde his God, as was the herte of Dauid his father: for Salomon folowed Astaroth the God of the zydons, and Milcom, the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomō wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde, & folowed not the Lorde perfectly, as dyd Dauid hys father. For than did Salomō buylde an hye place for Chamos the abominacyon of Moab, in the hyll that is before Jerusalem, & vnto Moloch the abhominacyon of the chyldren of Ammon. And lykewise dyd he for all his outlandish wyues, which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr gods. And the Lorde was angrie with Salomon, because hys hert was turned from the Lorde God of Israel: * which had appeared vnto him twyfe, and gaue him a charge (concerninge this thinge) that he shuld not folowe other gods. But he kepte not that, which the Lorde commaunded him, wherfore the Lorde sayde vnto Salomon: for as moch as this is done of the, and thou hast not kepte myne appoyntment, and my statutes (which I commaunded the) I wyll rent the kyngdome from the, and wyll geue it to thy seruauant. Notwithstandynge in thy dayes I will not do it because of Dauid thy father but will take it fro the hāde of thy sonne. Howbeit, I will not take awaye all thy kyngdome: but will geue ¶ one trybe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruauant, and because of Ierusalem which I haue chosen.

And the Lorde stered vpon an aduersarye vnto Salomō: euen one Hadad an Edomite of the kynges seide, which was in Edō. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the capayne of the hoste was gone vp to burie the that were slayne, he smote all the men chyldren in Edom. For syxe monethes dyd Joab remayne there and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And thys Hadad fled and certen other Edomites of hys fathers seruantes with him, to come into Egypte: Hadad beyng yet a lytle chyld. And they arose out of Madian, and came to Paran, and toke mē with them out of Parā and came to Egypte vnto Pharaō kyng of Egypte, which gaue him an house, & appoynted him vitayles, and gaue him lande.

And Hadad gat greate fauoure in the syght of Pharaō, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the lyster of his awne wyfe, euen the lyster of Chahpenes the quene. And the lyster of Chahpenes bare him Genubath his sonne, whom Chahpenes nozished in Pharaos house. And Genubath was of Pharaos household amonge the sonnes of Pharaō. And when Hadad hearde in Egypte, that Dauid was layde to slepe wyth hys fathers, and that Joab the capayne of the host was deed also, he sayd to Pharaō: let me departe, that I maye go to myne awne contreye. Pharaō sayde vnto hym: what hast thou lacked here with me, & thou woldest thus go to thine awne contreye? he answered. Nothing. howbeit, let me go. And God stered him vpon an other aduersarye, one Rezon the sonne of Eliada, whiche fled from his Lorde Hadadezer kyng of Zobā. And he gathered men vnto hym, and became capayne ouer the companye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelt there, and reigned in Damasco. Therfore was he an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomō. And this was the myschefe, in that Hadad dyd abhorre Israel, and raygned ouer Syria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephraimite of Zareda (whose mother was called Zerah, which was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruauant) ¶ lyfte vpon his hande agaynst the kyng. But this was the cause, that he lyfte vpon his hande agaynst the kyng. Salomon buylte Bethel, & mended the breke places of the cytie of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was a man of warre. And Salomon sawe the younge man, that he was able to do the worke, he made hym ruler ouer all the tribute of the house of Ioseph. And it chaunced at that ceason, that Jeroboam went out of Ierusalem, and the prophete Abiah the Silonite mett him by the waye haupnge a newe mantell on hym, and they two were alone in the felde. And Abiah caught the newe mantell that was on hym and rent it in twelue peces, and sayde to Jeroboam take the ten peces. For thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: behold, I wyll rent the kyngdome oute of the handes of Salomon, and wyll geue ten tribes to the: * and he shall haue one, for my seruante Dauid sake and for Ierusalem the cytie whiche I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel: because they haue forsaken me, and haue worshypped vnto Astaroth the God of the zydons, & Chamos the God of the Moabites, and Milcom the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes (to fulfill my pleasure, my statutes and my lawes) as dyd Dauid hys father.

I wyll not take the whole kyngdome out of his hāde: but wyll make hym chiefe all hys lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruantes sake, whom I chose: because he kepte my commaundementes

dementes and my statutes. * But I wyll take the kyngdome out of his sonnes hande, & wyll geue it vnto the, euen ten tribes of it: and vnto hys sonne wyll I geue one trybe, & Dauid my seruauant maye haue a lyght allwaye before me in Ierusalem, the cytie which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, & thou shalt raygne accordynge to all that thy soule desyret, & shalt be kyng ouer Israel. And yet thou heke vnto all that I commaunde the, & wyll walke in my wayes & do that is ryght in my syght, that thou kepe my statutes & my commaundementes (as Dauid my seruauant dyd) then wyll I be with the, & buylde the a sure house that shall contynewe, as I buylte for my seruauant Dauid, and wyll geue Israel vnto the. And I wyll for thys offence (which Salomon hath commytted) bere the seede of Dauid, but not for euer.

Salomon sought therfore to kyll Jeroboam, and Jeroboam arose, and fled into Egypte vnto Sisak kyng of Egypte, and continued there in Egypte vntill the deeth of Salomon. The rest of the wordes that concerne Salomon, and all that he dyd, and hys wysdome: are they not wyrtten in the booke of the wordes of Salomon: The tyme that Salomon raygned in Ierusalem vpon all Israel, was fourtye yere. And Salomon slepte and he layde him with hys fathers, and was buried in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in hys steade.

The .xii. Chapter.

The kyngdome is deuyled, Rehoboam raygneth ouer ii. trybes, and Jeroboam ouer x. Aduam is founded. Jeroboam maketh golden calves.

¶ Rehoboam went to Sichem: for all Israel were come to Sichem, to make him kyng. And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which was yet in Egypte) hearde of it: for he fled to Egypte from the presence of kyng Salomon, & dwelt in Egypte. So they sent and called hym, and Jeroboam and all the congregacyon of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayenge thy father made oure greuous pocke greuous, now therfore, make thou the greuous service of thy father and hys fore pocke which he putt vpon vs, lyghter, & we wyll serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam toke coucell with the olde men that stode before Salomon hys father, while he yet lyued, and sayde: what coucell geue ye, that I maye haue matter to answer thys people? And they sayde vnto hym: If thou be a seruauant vnto thys people this daye, and folowe theyr myndes and answer them, and speake kynde wordes to them: they wyll be thy seruantes for euer.

But he forsoke the counsell that the olde men had geuen him, and called vnto hys counsell yonge men, that were growen vp with him, and wayted on hym.

And he sayde vnto them: what counsell geue ye, that we maye answer thys people? for they haue commoned with me, sayenge: make the pocke which thy father dyd putt vpon vs, lyghter: And the yonge men that were growen vp with hym, spake vnto hym sayenge: Thus shalt thou speake vnto thys people (that haue sayde vnto the: thy father made oure pocke heuye, butt make thou it vs lyghter) Euen thus shalt thou saye vnto them: * My lytle synger shall be wayghtier, than my father was in the loynes. And nowe where as my father did lade you & put a greuous pocke vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. My father also corrected you with scourges, but I wyll chastyse you with scorpions. And so Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kyng had apoynted, sayenge: come to me agayne the thyrde daye. And the kyng answered the people churlyshly, and left the olde mens counsell (that they gaue hym) & spake to them after the counsell of the yonge men, sayenge. My father made youre pocke greuous, and I will make it greuouser. My father also chastised you with whippes, but I wyll chastise you with scorpions. And the kyng hekened not vnto the people. for it was the ordinaunce of God, that he myght performe hys sayenge, which the Lorde spake by Abiah the Silonite vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

And so, when all Israel sawe, & the kyng regarded them not, the people answered the kyng with these wordes, sayenge. * what porcion haue we in Dauid: we haue no inheritance in the sonne of Isai. * To youre tentes, O Israel, nowe se to thine awne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto theyr tentes. howbeit, ouer the chyldren of Israel which dwelt in the cytie of Iuda, dyd Rehoboam raygne styll. Then kyng Rehoboam sent Adura the receauer of the tribute. And all they of Israel stoned hym to deeth. But kyng Rehoboam made spede to gett hym vp to hys charet, and to fflye to Ierusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst the house of Dauid, vnto thys daye. And when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent and called hym vnto the multitude, and made hym kyng ouer all Israel: and there was no trybe that folowed the house of Dauid, but Iuda onely. * And when Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda, with the trybe of Beniamin an hundred & foure skore thousande of chosen men (which were good warryours) to fyght agaynst the house of Israel, rael, and to bynne the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon.

And the worde of God came vnto Se-maia the man of God, sayenge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Juda, and vnto all the house of Juda & Ben-Jamin, and to the remnant of the people, sayenge: Thus sayth the Lorde. Ye shall not go vp, nor yet fyght agaynst your brethren
the chyldren of Israel, retorne euery man to his house, for this thynge is my doing. They herkened therfore to the worde of the Lorde, and returned to departe, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. Then Jeroboam buyt Sichem in mount Ephraim, & dwelt therein.
And went from thence, & buyt Peniel.

* Judi. viii. d

And Jeroboam thought in his hert: nowe shall the kyngdome retorne to the house of David. For yf this people go vp and do sacrifice in the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem,
then shall I hert of this people turne agayne
vnto the Lorde Rehoboam kyng of Juda:
and so shall they kyll me, and go agayne to Rehoboam kyng of Juda. * Wherupon the kyng toke counsell, and made two calves of golde, and sayde vnto them. It is muche
for you to go vp to Ierusalem. * Beholde, O Israel: these are thy goddes, which brou-

the one in Bethel, and the other set he in Dan.
And this thynge turned to synne. for the people went (because of the one) as farre as Da.
And he made an house of hillaultares, * and
made preastes of the lowest of the people, which were not of the sonnes of Levi. And Jeroboam made a feaste the xv. daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto the feaste that is in Juda, and offered on the aultare. And so did he in Bethel, to offer vnto the calves that he had made. And he put in Bethel the prea-stes of the hillaultares, which he had made.
And he offered burnt offerings vpon the alter, which he had made in Bethel, the xv.
daye of the eyght moneth: eue in the moneth
which he had ymagined of hys awne herte:
and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldre
of Israel, and offred vpon the aultare, and burnt incense.

The. xiiij. Chapter.

Jeroboam doynge sacrifice vnto the calves, is reprehended of the prophete. Hys hande dyeth vp, while he putteth it out agaynst the prophete. The prophete is kyled, and buried.

And beholde, there came a man of God out of Juda (by the worde of the Lorde) vnto Bethel, & Jeroboam stode by the aultare to put incense. And he cried agaynst the aultare in the worde of the Lorde & sayde. O aultare, aultare, thus sayth the Lorde: Beholde, a chyld shall be borne vnto
the house of David, (Josia by name) & vpon
the shall he offer the preastes of the hillaulta-res that burne incense vpon the, & menkes

bones shall be brent vpon the. And he gaue a token the same tyme, sayenge: thus is the token, that the Lorde hath spoken it. Beholde, the aultare shall rent, and the ashes that are
vpon it, shall fall out.

And when the kyng heard the sayenge
of the ma of God (which had cryed agaynst
the aultare in Bethel) he stretched out hys hande from the aultare, sayenge: hold him. And his hande which he put forth agaynst him, dyed
vp, & he coude not pull it in agayne to hym:
the aultare also claued asunder, and the ashes fell out from the aultare, accordynge to the token which the man of God had geuen by the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng answered, and sayde vnto the man of God. * Oh
praye vnto the Lorde thy God, and make in-tercessyon for me, that my hande maye be restored me agayne. And the man of God besought the Lorde, and the kynges hande was restored agayne, & became as it was afore.

And the kyng sayde vnto the ma of God
come home with me, that thou mayest dyne,
and I will geue thee a rewarde. And the ma of God sayde vnto the kyng: yf thou wol-dest geue me halfe thyne house, I will not go in with thee, neither will I eate breade or drincke water in thy place. For so was it charged me, thou owe the worde of the Lorde, sayeng: eate no bread nor dryncke water, nor turne agayne by the same waye that thou camest. And so he went another waye, & returned not by the waye that he came to Bethel.
And there dwelt an olde prophet in Bethel, & hys sonne came, and tolde hym all the wordes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethel: & the wordes which he had spoken vnto the kyng & tolde they the father also. And the father sayde vnto the what waye went he? And his sonnes shewed him what waye the ma of God went, which came from Juda. And he sayde vnto hys son-nes: saddle me the Ass. Which whan they had saddled, he gatt hym vpon theron, & went after the man of God, & founde hym syttinge vnder a tre. And he sayde vnto him: art thou the ma of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde: I am.

He sayde vnto him: come home with me,
and eate bread. He answered: I maye not returne with thee, to go in with the nether will I eate bread or dryncke water with thee in this place. For it was sayde to me in the worde of the Lorde: Thou shalt eate no bread, nor drincke water there, nor turne agayne to go by the waye that thou camest. He sayde vnto him:
I am a prophet also as well as thou, and an Angell spake vnto me in the worde of the Lorde, sayenge: bynne him agayne with the in-

bread in hys house and dryncke water,

And it fortuneth, that as they late at the table, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete, that brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto the man of God that came from Juda, sayenge: thus sayth the Lorde: because thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and hast not kept the comaundement which the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne, and hast eaten bread and dryncke water, in the place (concernynge the
which the Lorde dyd saye vnto the: Thou shalt eate no bread nor dryncke water) thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And so it came to passe, that when he had eaten bread and dryncke, the prophete which brought him agayne, saddled him an ass. And whan he was gone, * a Lyon mett hym by the waye, and slue him, and his carkasse was cast in the waye, and the Ass stode therby, and the Lyon stode by the coarfe also. And men that passed by, sawe the carkasse cast in the waye, and the Lyon standynge therby:
& they came and tolde it in the towne where the olde prophete dwelt. And when the pro-phete that brought him backe agayne from the waye, heard the thereof, he sayde: it is the ma
of God: he was disobedient vnto the worde
of the Lorde, and therfore the Lorde hath de-lynced him vnto the Lyon, which hath rent
him and slayne him, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, which he spake vnto hym. And he spake to his sonnes, sayenge: saddle me an Ass: and so they dyd. And he went, and foude hys bodey cast in the waye, and the Ass and the Lyon stode by the coarfe. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkasse, nor hurt the Ass.
And the prophete toke vpon the bodey of the man of God, and layed it vpon the Ass, and brought it agayne: and the olde prophete came to the cytie to lament, and to burye hym.
And he layde hys bodey in hys awne graue,
and they lamented ouer him. (Alas my brother.) And when he had buried him, he spake to his sonnes, saying. whē I am deed, se that ye burye me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried: laye my bones beynde hys bones. * For the sayenge which he cryed at the worde of the Lorde agaynst the aultare in Bethel (and agaynst all the houses of hill aultares which are in ycyties of Samarie)
shall come to passe.

Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsell of Ahia the prophete. Jeroboam dyeth. Shisack kyng of Egypte robberth the house of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth, and Abiam succedeth hym.

That tyme Abia the sonne of A-Jeroboam fell sycke. And Jer-oboam sayde vnto hys wyfe: vp (I praye the) and disguise thy selfe, that thou be not knowen
to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and get the to Silo. For ther is Ahia the Prophete which tolde me * that I shulde be kyng ouer this people. And take with the ten loues, and cracknelles, and a cruse of honye, and go to him:
that he maye tell the what shall become of the childe. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: and arose, and wet to Silo, and came to the house of Ahia. But Ahia coude not se, for hys eyes were woren dymme for age.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Ahia: beholde,
the wyfe of Jeroboam cometh, to aske a thynge shalt thou saye vnto her. And when she came in, she feyned her selfe to be a nother woman.

But when Ahia hearde the sounde of her fete
as she came in at the doze, he sayde: come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe so, to be another? I am sent to the to shewe the heuy thynges.

¶ Wicked Abia raygneth ouer Juda, & epyhtewes Ala succedeth in hys rowme. The battell betwene Ala & Baasa. Jehosaphat succedeth Ala. Nadab succedeth Jeroboam. Baasa killeth Nadab.

^{19. 1. c. r. b. a} In the xvij. yere of kyng Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, raygned Abia ouer Juda. The yere raygned he in Jerusalem. And hys mothers name was Maacha the daughter of Abisalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father, which he had done before hym and hys hert was not perfect with the Lorde hys God * as the hert of Dauid his father. ^{19. 1. c. r. b. a} Neuerthelesse for Dauids sake dyd the Lorde hys God geue hym a lyght in Jerusalem, that he sett vp his sonne after hym, and to stablishe Jerusalem: because Dauid dyd that which was ryght in the syght of þ Lorde, and turned from nothyng that he commaunded hym all the dayes of hys lyfe. ^{19. 1. c. r. b. a} He onely in the matter of Arias the Hethite. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam as longe as he lyued. The rest of the wordes that concerne Abiam, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda: And ther was warre betwene Abiam and Jeroboam. And Abiam slepte with hys fathers, and they buried hym in the cytie of Dauid. And Ala his sonne raygned in his steade.

^{19. 1. c. r. b. a} In the. xx. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, raygned Ala ouer Juda. xli. yere raygned he in Jerusalem, & hys mothers name was Maacha, the daughter of Abisalom. And Ala dyd that semed ryght in the eyes of the Lorde, as dyd Dauid his father. * And he toke awaye the whoze keepers out of the lande, and put awaye all the abhominable Idols that his fathers had made. And he put downe Maacha & hys mother from beyng rule, because she had made ymages in groues. And Ala destroyed her ymages, and burnt them by the broke Cedron. ^{19. 1. c. r. b. a} But þ hyllalters were not put downe. Neuerthelesse Alaes herte was perfecte with the Lorde all all his dayes. He brought in the holy vessels of his father, (& þ he had dedicat) vnto þ house of the Lorde: golde & syluer, & Jewelles. And there was warre betwene Ala & Baasa kyng of Israel all theyr dayes.

^{19. 1. c. r. b. a} And Baasa kyng of Israel, went up agaynst Juda, & buyt Rama, so þ he wolde let none go out or in, to Ala kyng of Juda. Then Ala toke all the syluer & golde, that was lefte in the treasures of the house of the Lorde, & the treasures of the kynges house, and deliuered them vnto the handes of hys seruantes, & Ala sent them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabzimmon the sonne of Hezion kyng of Siria, (that dwelt at Damasco,) sayenge: there is a bonde betwene me & the, betwene my father and thy father. And beholde, I haue sent vnto the a present of syluer & golde þ thou come & breake the bonde þ thou hast w Baasa kyng of Israel, that he maye departe from me. So Benhadad herkened vnto kyng Ala, and sent the captaynes of the hostes (which he had) agaynst the cyties of Israel, & smote Hion, & Da, & Abel, Beth Macab, & all the region of Ceneroth with all the lande of Nephtali. And whan Baasa heard therof, he lefte buylding of Rama & dwelt i Thirza. Then kyng Ala made a proclamacyon thowout all Juda, þ none shuld be excused. And so they toke the flores of Ramah & the tymber (wherwith Baasa had buylded,) & kyng Ala buyt with them the hyll of Ben Amin and Mizpa.

The remnaunt of all the wordes that concerne Ala, and all hys myght and all that he dyd, & the cyties whych he buylded, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Juda: Neuerthelesse in hys olde age he was diseased in hys fete. And Ala slepte wyth hys fathers, & was buried besyde his fathers in the cytie of Dauid hys father. And Jehosaphat his sonne raygned in his steade. And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam beganne to raygne vpon Israel the seconde yere of Ala kyng of Juda, and raygned vpo Israel two yere. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, walkynge in the waye of hys father and in hys synne wherwith he made Israel synne. And Baasa the sonne of Abia (whych was of the house of Achab) conspired agaynst hym, and Baasa smote him at Gibbethon which is a cytie of the Philistines: for Nadab & all Israel layed seage to Gibbethon. Euen in the thirde yere of Ala kyng of Juda, dyd Baasa slaye him, and raygned in his steade. * And it fortuneth that whan he was kyng, he smot all þ house of Jeroboam, and lefte him naught that breathed, vntyll he had put hym cleane out, accordynge vnto the sayeng of the Lorde, which he spake by his seruauit Abia the Shelonite: because of the synnes of Jeroboam wherwyth

he synned and made Israel synne, whan he wyth hys prouocacyon angred the Lorde God of Israel.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Nadab, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtte in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel: And there was warre betwene Ala and Baasa kyng of Israel all theyr dayes.

So in the thyrde yere of Ala kyng of Juda, began Baasa the sonne of Abia to raygne ouer all Israel in Thirza. xliij. yere. And he dyd þ which is euell in the syght of þ Lorde, walkynge in the waye of Jeroboam, & in his synne, which made Israel to synne.

The. xvi. Chapter.

¶ Jehu propheth agaynst Baasa, whom Ela succedeth. Zimri killeth hys master Ela, and destroyeth þ house of Baasa. Abab succedeth Amri, and taketh to wyfe wycked Jezabel.

^{19. 1. c. r. b. a} Then the worde of the Lorde came to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baasa, sayeng: for as moch as I exalted the out of þ dust, & made the captayne ouer my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to synne, to angre me w theyr synnes: Beholde, I wyll roote out the posterite of Baasa, and the posterite of hys house, and wyll make hys house lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. * That man of Baasa whych dyeth in the cytie, hym shall the dogges eate: and that man of hym whych dyeth in the felde, shall the fowles of the ayre eate.

The rest of þ wordes þ concerne Baasa, & what he dyd, & his power, are they not wyrtten in þ boke of þ chronicles of the kynges of Israel: And so Baasa slepte w hys fathers, & was buried in Thirza. And Ela his sonne raygned in his steade. And by the hãde of the prophete Jehu þ sonne of Hanani, came the worde of the Lorde agaynst Baasa, and agaynst his house, & agaynst all the wyckednesse that he dyd in the syght of the Lorde (in angrenging hym w the worke of his awne handes) that he shulde be lyke the house of Jeroboam, & because he kyled hym. (that is to saye Jehu the sonne of Hanani the prophete.

The. xvij. yere of Ala kyng of Juda beganne Ela þ sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Thirza, two yere. And his seruauit zimri (which was captayne of halfe his charrettes) conspired agaynst hym, as he was in Thirza dynckynge: and was droncken in þ house of Arza stuard of hys house in Thirza. And zimri came, and smote him, and kyled hym in the xvij. yere of Ala kyng of Juda, and raygned in hys steade. And it fortuneth that whan he was kyng * and satt on hys seate, he slue all the house of Baasa, not leauynge therof, one to pille agaynst a wall: Pee, he slue hys kynskolles and frendes, also. And

* 11. 1. c. r. b. a

* 19. 1. c. r. b. a

* 19. 1. c. r. b. a

And thus dyd zimri destrope all the house of Baala, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, whych he spake agaynst Baala by the hande of Ichu the prophet, for all the synnes of Baala & synnes of Ela hys sonne, whych they synned, and made Israel to synne, and angre the Lord God of Israel with their vanities. The rest of þ wordes þ concerne Ela, & all he dyd, are they not wyrtte in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel?

In the xxvij. yere of Aia kyng of Iuda, dyd zimri raygne. vij. dayes in Chirza, and the people was then in the hoost besegunge Gebethon a citie of þ Philistines. And þ people in the hoost heard one saye: zimri hath conspired, & slayne þ kyng: Wherefore, all they of Israel made Amri (the captayne of the hoost) kyng ouer Israel that same daye, euē in þ hoost. And Amri departed by fro Gibethon, and all Israel with hym, & they beseged Chirza. And when zimri sawe þ the citie must nedes be taken, he went into the pallas of the kynges house, and burnt him selfe and the kynges house wþ fyre, and so dyed, for his synnes whych he synned, in doyng þ which is euell in the syght of the Lorde, and in walkyng in the waye of Jeroboam and in hys synnes whych he dyd, and in that he made Israel to synne.

The rest of the wordes þ concerne zimri and the treason þ he wrought, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel? Then were the people of Israel deuyded into two partes, for halfe þ people folowed Chibni þ sonne of Sinath, makynge hym kyng: & the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preuailed agaynst the people that folowed Chibni the sonne of Sinath. And so Chibni dyed, and Amri raygned.

In þ xxxi. yere of Aia kyng of Iuda, beganne Amri to raygne ouer Israel. xii. yere. Sixe yere raygned he in Chirza. he bought the hyll * Schomron of one Schemar for two talentes of syluer, and buyt in the hyll, and called the name of the cytie whych he buyt, after the name of Schemar whych had bene owner of the hyll Schomron. But Amri wrought that which is euell in þ eyes of the Lorde, and dyd worse then all þ were before hym. For he walked in all þ waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & in hys synnes, þ made Israel synne, to angre þ Lorde God of Israel wþ their vanities. The rest of the wordes þ concerne Amri, & all þ he dyd, & his strength þ he shewed, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of þ kynges of Israel: And so Amri slepte wþ hys fathers and was buryed in Schemaron, and Ahab hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

In þ xxxviij. yere of Aia kyng of Iuda, beganne Ahab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and the same Ahab the sonne of Amri raygned ouer Israel i Samaria. xxiij. yere. And Ahab the sonne of Amri dyd euell in the syght of the Lord, aboue all that were before. For it semed vnto hym but a lyght thinge to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. he toke Jezabel also the daughter of Ethbaal kyng of the Sidonites to wyfe, and * went and serued Baal, & worshypped hym. And he reared vp an altare for Baal in the temple of Baal, whych he had buylded in Schomron. And Ahab made groues, and proceeded further in angryng the Lorde God of Israel then all the kynges of Israel that were before hym.

In his dayes dyd Hiel of Bethel buylde Jericho. And it * coste him Abirā his eldest sonne whē he layde þ foundation, & his youngest sonne Segub, whē he sett vp the gates, accordyng vnto the worde of þ Lorde * whych he spake by Iosua the sonne of Nun.

The xxvij. Chapter.

Elia is noryshed and fed of rauens, and after is sent to zarphath (otherwyse called Saraptha) to a woman, whose chyld he rapseth to lyfe.

And Elia the Thelbite (whych was of þ inhabitants of Gilead) layde vnto Ahab: * as truly as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stande * there shalbe nether dewe nor rayne these yeres, but accordyng to my worde.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto hi, sayng: gett the henc, & turne the estwarde, & hide thy selfe in þ brooke Cherith, þ is it that lyeth before Jordā: Thou shalt drynck of þ ryuer, & I haue comaunded the rauens to fede þ there. And so he wēt, & dyd accordyng vnto the worde of þ Lorde: For he wēt, & dwelt by þ brooke Cherith, þ is before Jordan. And þ rauens brought him bread & fleshe in the mornynge, & lykewise bread & fleshe in þ enenig, & he dranke of the brooke. And it chaunced after a while, þ the brooke dryed vp, because ther fell no rayne vpo þ erth. And þ word of the Lorde came vnto him, sayng: * vp & gett the to zarphath, whych is in Sidō, & dwell there. Beholde I haue comaunded a wydowe there to sustayne the. So he arose, & went to zarphath. And whē he came to the gate of the cytie, the wedowe was there, gathering stikes. And he called to her, & sayd: * fet me I praye þ, a lytle water in a vessell, þ I maye dryncke. And as she was goyng to fet it, he cryed after her, and sayd: byyng me I praye the, a morsell of bread also in thyne hande. She sayd: As truly as the Lord thy God lyueth, I haue no bread readye, but euē an handfull of meale in a barell, and a lytle oyle in a cruse. And behold, I am gathering two stikes for to go in, & dresse it for me and my sonne, that we maye cate it, and dye.

And Elia sayde vnto her: feare not, come and do do as thou hast sayde: but make me therof a lytle cake fyrst of all, & bringe it vnto me: and afterwarde make for the and thy sonne. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: the meale in the barell shall not be wasted ne the oyle in the cruse be mynished, vntyll the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the erthe. And he went, and dyd as Elia sayde. And she & he & her house dyd eate a good space, and the meale wasted not out of the barell, nether was the oyle spent out of þ cruse accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, whych he spake by the hande of Elia.

And after these thynges, it happened, that the sonne of the wyfe of the house fell sycke. And his sycknesse was so soze, þ there was no breath left in him. And she sayde vnto Elia: what haue I to do with the, O thou man of God: art thou come vnto me, to call my sonne agayne to forembraunce, & to slaye my sonne? he sayde vnto her: geue me thy sonne. And he toke him out of her lappe, and carped him vp into a loft where he abode, & layde him vpo his awne bedd, & called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou punysshed also this wedowe (wþ whom I dwell as a stranger) & hast slayne her sonne? And he stretched hym selfe vpon the chyldre thre tymes, & called vnto the Lorde, and sayd: O Lorde my God, let this childe soule come into him agayne. And the Lorde hearde the voyce of Elia, and the soule of the chyldre came into hym agayne, & he reuyned. And Elia toke the boye, and brought hym downe out of the chambere into the house, & deliuered hym vnto hys mother, and Elia sayde: beholde, thy sonne lyueth. And the woman sayde vnto Elia: nowe I knowe, that thou art a man of God, and that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouth, is true.

The xxvij. Chapter.

Elia is sent to Ahab. Obadia (otherwyse called Abdia) hyeth an hundred prophetes. Elia killeth all Baals prophetes: & afterwarde obtayneth rayne.

After procelle of many dayes þ worde of the Lord came to Elia in the thyrde yere, sayng: go shewe thy selfe vnto Ahab, and * I wyll sende rayne vpon the erth. And Elia went to shewe hym selfe vnto Ahab, & ther was a great fa-mement in Schomron. And Ahab called Obadia, whych was the gouernour of hys house: & Obadia feared God greatly: For when Jezabell destroyed the prophetes of þ Lorde, he toke an hundred prophetes and hyd the, liffie mē in one caue & fytie in another, & prouyded bred & water for the. And Ahab sayde vnto Obadia: Go into the lāde, vnto all fountaynes of water, & vnto all brokes, þt haply we maye fynde grasse, to saue the horsēs & the mules, & that we destrope not some of the beastes. And so they deuyded the lāde betwene the, to walke thorow it. Ahab went one waye by hym selfe, and Obadia went another waye by hym selfe.

And it chaunced that as Obadia was in the waye, Elia mett hi. And Obadia knewe hym, & fell on hys face, & sayde: art not þ my Lord Elia? And he answered hym: I am he. So and tell thy Lorde: beholde, Elia is here. he sayde: what haue I synned, that þ woldest deliuer thy seruāt into þ hād of Ahab, to slei me? As trulic as the Lord thy God lyueth, there is no nacyon or kyngdome, whether my Lorde hath not sent, to seke the. And when they sayde: he is not there, he tooke an othe of the kyngdome & nacyō, whan he founde the not. And nowe thou sayest: goo & tell thy Lorde, that Elia is here. And as soone as I am gone from the, the spete of the Lord shall carie the into some place that I do not knowe. and so when I come and tell Ahab, & he canne not finde the, he shall slei me. But I thy seruāt feare the Lorde from my youth vp. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Jezabell slue the prophetes of þ Lorde howe I hydde an hundred men of the Lordes prophetes, fytie mē in one caue and fytie in another, and prouyded the of breed and water: And nowe thou sayest, goo thou nowe and shewe thy Lorde. Beholde, Elia is here, that he maye slei me?

And Elia sayde: as truly as the Lorde of hostes lyueth, before whō I stande, I wyll shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. So Obadia went to mete Ahab, and tolde hym. And Ahab went to mete Elia. And it fortunēd þ whan Ahab sawe Elia, he sayde vnto him: art thou he that troubleth Israel? he answered: it is not I that haue troubled Israel, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lorde, and thou hast folowed Baal. Nowe therfore sende and geather to me all Israel vnto mount Carmel, and the prophetes of Baal * foure hundred and fytie, and the prophetes of the Idols groues foure hundred, which cate of Jezabels table. So Ahab sent vnto all the chyldren of Israel, & gathered þ prophetes togeather vnto mount Carmel.

And Elia came vnto all the people, and sayde: howe lōge halte ye betwene two oppo-

nions: If the Lord be God, folowe hym: but yf Baal be he, then go after hym. And the people answered hym not one worde. Then sayde Elia vnto the people agayne. I onely remaine a prophete of y Lord: but Baals prophetes are foure hundred and fyftie. Let them therfore geue vs two oxen, & let them chose the one, & cut hym in peces, & lape hym on wodd, and put no fyre vnder: and I will dresse the other oxe, & lape him on wodd, and will put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of youre God, & I wyll call on the name of the Lord: and then the God that answereth by fyre, let him be God.

* i. reg. ix. c. And all the people answered & sayde. yf is well spoken. And Elia sayd vnto the prophetes of Baal: chose you an oxe, and dresse hym fyrst (for ye are many) and call on the name of your goddes, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke the one oxe that he dyd geue them, & they dresse it: & called on the name of Baal from moorninge to noone: sayng. O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce nor one to answer. And they lepte vpon the altier that they had made. And at none it fortuned, that Elia mocked them, and sayde: crye lowde, for he is a God: peradventure he is talkinge or occupied (in folowinge vpon his enemyes) or is in his iourneye, or happily he slepeth, & must be awaked wth the poure crye. And they cryed lowde, and cut the selues, as their maner was, wth knyues & lasticers, tyll the bloude folowed on them. And it chaunced, y when myddaye was passed

* Mat. vi. a. they prophesied vntill y tyme of y eue nyng sacrifice. But there was nether voyce ner one to answer, ner any y regarded the.

And Elia sayde vnto all the folke: come to me. And all y people came to hym. & And he repayred the altier of the Lord, that was broken. * And Elia toke xij. stones accordig to the nombre of the xij. trybes of the sonnes of Jacob: vnto who the worde of the Lord came, sayng. * Israel shal be thy name. And with the stones he made an altiare in the name of the Lord. And he made a dyche rōnde about y altier, & as brode as two forowes of the corne felde. And he put the wodd in order, & he wed the oxe in peces, & laped hym on the wodd, and sayde: fyll foure barels w water, and powre it on the burnt sacrifice & on the wodd. And he sayd: do so agayne. And they dyd so the seconde tyme. And he sayde agayne: do it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd it the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne rōnde about the altier, and he fylled the pitte wyth water also.

* i. reg. xiii. c. And it fortuned whē y tyme came (when y burnt sacrifice of y eveninge vled to be offered) Elia the prophete came & sayd: Lord God of Abraham, Isaac & of Israel, it shal be knowen this daye, that thou art the God in Israel, & that I am thy seruant, & y I haue done all these thynges at thy commaundemēt: Heare me (O Lord) heare me, y this people maye knowe, that thou art y Lord God, & y hast turned theyr herte agayne now at the last. * And the fyre of the Lord fell, & consumed the burnt sacrifice & y wodd, the stones & the dust, & lyked vpon the water y was in y pitte. And whē all y people sawe it, they fell on their faces, & sayd. The Lord, he is God, y Lord, he is God. And Elia sayde vnto the. Take the prophetes of Baal, & let not one of them escape. And they toke them, and Elia brought the vnto y brooke Rison, & slue the there. And Elia sayd vnto Ahab: gett y vp, eate and drinke, for ther is a soude of moche rayne. And so Ahab went vp to eate and to drinke, & Elia wēt vp to y toppe of Carmel. And he layde y selfe flat vpon the erth, & put his face betwene his knees, & sayd to his seruāt: go vp (I praye y) & looke toward the wape of the see. And he wēt vp & looked, & sayde: there is nothyng. And he sayde: go agayne. vij. tymes. And it fortuned, y at y seuenth tyme he sayd: behold, there ariseth a little clowde of the see, lyke a mānes hande. he sayde: go, & saye vnto Ahab, Make fast thy charret, & gett the downe, y the rayne stoppe the not. And it came to passe, y in the meane while, y heuē was blacke w clowdes & wide, & there was a great rayne. And Ahab gatt vnto Jezreel. And the hād of y Lord was on Elia, & he gyrded vpon his loynes, & ranne before Ahab, tyll he came to Jezreel.

The xix. Chapter. Elia fleing from Jezabel is nourished of the Angell of God, and is commaunded to annoynte Ahab, Jehu and Eliseus, whom the Hebrewes call, Elisa.

And Ahab tolde Jezabel, all that Elia had done, and howe he had slayne all the prophetes wyth the swerde. Then Jezabel sent a messenger vnto Elia, sayng: * so & so let the goddes do to me, yf I make not thy soule lyke one of theyrs, by to morowe thys tyme. When he sawe that, he arose & went for his lyfe, and came to Beerseba in Iuda, & left his seruāt there. But he hym selfe went a dayes iourney into the wyldernesse, and came and satt downe vnder a Juniper tree, and despyred for his soule: that he myght dye, and sayde, * it is nowe ynough (O Lord) take my soule, for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Juniper tree: beholde, an Angell touched hym, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and eate. And whā he looked aboute hym: beholde, there was a loaffe of bryled breade & a vessel of water at his heed. And he dyd eate and drinke, and layde him downe agayne to slepe. And the Angell of the Lord came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayde: vp, and eate, for thou hast yet a great iourneye. And

And he arose, and dyd eate and dryncke, and walked in the strength of that meate * fourtye dayes & fourtye nyghtes, euen vnto hored the mount of God. * Whan he came thither into a caue, he lodged there in, all nyght.

And beholde, the worde of the Lord came to him & sayde vnto hym: what doest y here Elia? And he answered. I haue bene gelouse for the Lord God of hostes sake. For the chyldre of Israel haue forsake thy couenāt, & broken downe thyne altiers and slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, and I onely am lefte, and they seke my lyfe to take it awaye. And he sayde: come out & stande vpon the mount, before the Lord. And beholde * y Lord went by, & a myghtie stronge wynde that rent the mountaynes & brake the rockes before the Lord. But the Lord was not in the wynde. And after the wynde came an erth quake. But the Lord was not in the erthe quake. And after the erthe quake, came fire: but the Lord was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small styll voyce. And when Elia hearde it, he couered his face with his mantle, & went out & stode in the entringe in of the caue. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto him, & sayd. what doest thou here Elia? And he answered. I haue bene gelouse for y Lord God of hostes sake: because the chyldren of Israel haue forsaken thy couenānt, cast downe thyne altiers, & slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, & I onely am lefte, & they seke my lyfe to take it awaye. And the Lord sayde vnto him: go & turne thy wape to the wyldernesse vnto Damasco, that thou mayest annoynte * hazael, kyngue ouer Siria. And Jehu y sonne of Nimsi, shalt thou annoynt kyng ouer Israel. And Elysa the sonne of Saphat of Abel Meholah shalt y annoynt to be prophete in thy rowme. And it shal come to passe that whoso escapeth y swerde of hazael, hym shall Jehu slaye: and yf any man scape the swerde of Jehu, hym shall Elisa put to death. And therto * I haue lefte me seuen thousande in Israel, of whych neuer man bowed his knees vnto Baal, nor kyssed him wyth his mouth.

So he departed thence, & founde Elisa the sōne of Saphat plowynge, & hauyng twelue yocke of oxen before him, & he w the twelue. And Elia wēt by him, & cast his matell vpon him. And he lefte the oxen, & ranne after Elia & sayde: * let me y praye the, kysse my father & my mother, & then I will folow y. he sayd vnto him: go backe agayne, for what is it, y I haue done to y? And whā he wēt backe agayne frō him, he toke a couple of oxen, & slue them, and dresse the fleshe wyth the instrumentes of the oxen, & gaue vnto the people, and they dyd eate. And then he arose, & went after Elia, and mynistred vnto hym.

The xx. Chapter.

The first and seconde tyme y Samaria was beseged of Benhadad kyng of Syria.

And Benhadad the kyng of Siria gathered all his hoste together, hauyng. xxij. kynges w hym, and hostes and charrettes: & went vp and beseged Samaria, & warred agaynst it. And he sent messengers to Ahab kyng of Israel into the cytie, and sayde vnto him: thus sayeth Benhadad. Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and the sayrest of thy wyues, and of thy chyldren be myne. And the kyng of Israel answered and sayde. My Lord kyng accordynge to thy sayeng, I am thyne and all that I haue.

And whan the messengers came agayne, they sayd: thus sayeth Benhadad. For as moche as I haue sent vnto the, sayinge: thou shalt deliuer me thy syluer & thy golde, and thy wyues, & thy chyldren. I wyll therfore sende my seruātes vnto y to morow this tyme: & they shal serche thyne house, & the houses of thy seruātes. And what soeuer is pleasaunt in thyne eyes, they shal take it in their hādes, and bryng it awaye. Then the kyng of Israel sent for all the elders of the lande, & sayde: take hede I praye you & se, howe thys felow goeth about myschefe. For he set vnto me, for my wyues, for my chyldre, for my syluer & for my golde: & I denyed hym not. And all the elders & all the people sayde: herken not vnto hym, nor consent.

Wherfore he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lord the kyng, all that thou dydest send for to thy seruāt at the fyrst tyme, that I wyll do, but this thing I maye not do. And the messengers departed, and brought answer agayne. And Benhadad sent vnto hym agayne, and sayd: and thus do the Gods vnto me, yf y dust of Samaria be ynough for all the people that folowe me, to take euery man an hādfull. And the kyng of Israel answered, & sayde: tell hym: let not him that putteth on his harness boote hym selfe, as he that putteth it of. And it fortuned, that whē Benhadad hearde that tydynge, as he was w y kynges drynkyng within the payllyons, he sayde vnto his seruātes, put on y harness. And they set them selues in aray agaynst the cytie.

And beholde there came a Prophet vnto Ahab kyng of Israel, sayinge: thus sayeth the Lord. Halt thou sene all this great multitude: beholde, I wyll deliuer it into thyne hande this daye, and thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lord. And Ahab sayd: By who? he sayde: thus sayeth the Lord: euen by the seruātes of y gouernours of the sheres. he sayde agayne: who shal ordre the batayll? And he answered: thou. phetes y^e were at Bethel, came out to Elia, & sayde vnto him: knowest thou not, howe that the Lorde will take awaye thy master fro thy head this daye? he sayde: I knowe it also holde ye your peace.

And Elia sayde vnto him. Elisa, tary here I praye the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jericho. he sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth and as surely as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue the, & so they came to Jericho. And the chyldren of the prophetes y^e were at Jericho came to Elia and sayde vnto him: knowest thou not, that the Lorde will take awaye thy master from thy head this daye? he answered: I knowe it also, holde ye your peace. And Elia sayde vnto him: tarye I praye the here, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jordan. he sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue y^e. And so they two went together. And fyftie men of the sonnes of y^e prophetes came and stode on y^e other syde a farre of, and they two stode by Jordan.

And Elia toke his mantell and wrapte it together, & smote the waters, and they were deuicd, parte the one waye & parte y^e other, so that they two went ouer thozowe drye lande. And it fortuneth, that as sone as they were ouer, Elia sayd vnto Elisa: aske what I shall do for the, y^e I be take awaye from the. And Elisa sayde: I praye the let thy sprete be dowble vpon me. And he sayde: thou hast asked an hard thynge. Neuerthelesse, yf thou se me whā I am taken awaye fro the thou shalt haue it so: yf thou do not, it shall not be. parted this waye & that waye, & Elia went ouer. And whā the chyldren of the prophetes which were at Jericho sawe hym from a farre, they sayde: the spyte of Elia doth rest on Elia, and they came to mete him, and fell to the grounde before him, & sayde vnto him. Se: there be with thy seruantes fyfte stōge men: let them go & seke thy master: haplye the spyte of the Lorde hath taken hym vp, and cast hym vpon some mountayne or in to some valeye. And he sayde. Ye shall sende none. And whā they laye vpon him tyll he was a shamed, he sayde. Send. They sent therfore fyfte men, which sought him thre dayes and thre nyghtes, but founde him not. And whā they came agayne to him, which taryed at Jericho, he sayde vnto the: dyd I not saye vnto you, that ye shulde not go?

And the men of the cyprie sayde vnto Elia beholde, Syr, the dwellynge of this cyprie is pleasaunt as thou thy selfe seest: but the water is naught & the grounde baren. he sayde. Wrynge me a new cruse, and put salt therein. And they brought it to him. And he w^{et} vnto the springe of the waters, and cast the salt in thither, & sayde: thus sayth y^e Lorde. I haue healed this water, ther shall not come hereafter the ether deeth or barenesse. So y^e waters were healed vnto this daye, accordyng to the sayinge of Eliseus, which he spake.

And he went vp fro thence vnto Bethel. And as he was goynge vp the waye, there came lytle chyldre out of the cyprie, & mocked him, & sayd vnto him. Go vp thou bald heed, go vp thou bald heed. And he turned backe, and looked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. And there came two the Beares out of that woodd, & tare. xliij. chyldren of them. And he went from thence to mount Carmel, and from thence he turned agayne to Samaria.

The iiij. Chapter.

The kynges of Israel, Iuda and Edom lacke water, which they obtayne throughte the prayer of Eliseus. The kyng of Moab fighteth against Israel.

Jehoram the sonne of Ahab beganne to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria the. xviij. yere of Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda, and raygned twelue yeres. And he wrought euell in the syght of the Lorde: but not lyke his father and lyke his mother, for he put awaye y^e ymages of Baal, that his father had made. Neuerthelesse, he cleaved vnto the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which made Israel to synne) and departed not therefrom.

And Mesa kyng of Moab was a Lorde of shepe, and rendered vnto the kyng of Israel an hundred thousande lamhes & an hundred thousande raimmes with y^e wolles. But whā Ahab was deed, it fortuneth, that the kyng of Moab rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel. And kyng Jehoram went out of Samaria the same ceason, and nombred all Israel, & w^{et}, & sent to Jehosaphat y^e kyng of Iuda, sayinge: the kyng of Moab hath offended agaynst me, wilt thou come wth me agaynst Moab to battell? he answered: I wyll come vp, for as I am, so art thou, and as my people be, so are thy people, & thy horses as myne. And he sayde. what waye shall we go vp? And he answered. The waye thozowe the wilderness of Edom.

And so the kyng of Israel toke his iourneye, and the kyng of Iuda, & the kyng of Edom. And whā they had compassed y^e waye seven dayes, they had no water for the hooft and for the cattell that folowed them. And y^e kyng of Israel sayde. Alas, y^e Lorde hath called these thre kynges together, to deliuer the ouer into the hande of Moab. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there not here a prophet of the Lorde, that we maye enquire of y^e Lorde by him? And one of the kynges of Israel's seruantes answered and sayde: here is Elisa y^e sonne of Saphat, which powred water on the hādes of Elia. And Jehosaphat sayde: Is not the worde of the Lorde wth hym? And so the kyng of Israel, & Jehosaphat and the kyng of Edom went downe to him.

And Elisa sayde vnto the kyng of Israel. what haue I to do with the? Set the, to the prophetes of thy father, and to the prophetes of thy mother. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto him. O thynge, for the Lorde hath called these thre kynges together to deliuer the into the hāde of Moab. And Elisa sayde: as sure as y^e Lord of hostes lyueth, in whose syght I stand, and it were not, y^e I regarde y^e presence of Jehosaphat the kyng of Iuda, I wolde not loke toward the, nor yet se the. But nowe bringe me a mynstrell. And whā the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lorde came vpon him. And he sayde. Thus sayeth y^e Lorde. Make this playne grounde full of ditches. For thus sayth the Lorde: ye shall see neither wynde nor rayne, & yet the broke shalbe fylled wth water, that ye maye dryncke, both ye, and your beastes, and your catell. And this is yet but a small thynge in the syght of the Lorde, for as moch as he will geue ouer y^e Moabites also into your handes. And ye shall smyte euery stronge towne, and euery goodlye cyprie, and shall sell euery pleasaunt tree, and stoppe euery well of water, and marre euery good platte of grounde with stones. And in the morninge, whā the meate-offeryng was offred, it fortuneth, that there came water by the waye from Edom, and the contreye was fylled with water.

And whā all the Moabites heard y^e the kynges were come vp to syght agaynst the, they gathered all to geather, fro y^e youngest that that was able to put on harnesse and so vnderwarde, and stode in the border of the lande.

And they were vp early in the morninge and the sonne shone vpon the water, that the Moabites sawe the water a farre of as red as bloude, and they sayde. This is y^e bloude of slaughter: the kynges are slayne and one hath slaynt another. Nowe therfore Moab getteth the to the spoyle. And whē they came to the hoste of Israel, the Israelites stode vp and smote the Moabites, so that they fledde before them, but they folowed vpon them, & smote Moab. And they ouerthrew the cities, & on euery good parcell of lāde, cast euery mā his stone, and fylled it, and they stoote all the welles of waters, and felde all y^e good trees. Onely in the cite of brick left they the stones therof: howbeit they went aboute it with synges, and smote it.

And when the kyng of Moab sawe, that the battell was sore agaynst him, he toke wth him seuen hundred men that drew y^e swerde to haue gone thowowe, euen vnto y^e kyng of Edō: but they coude not. And then he toke his eldest sonne (that shulde haue raygned in his steade) & offered him for a burnt offering vpon the wall. And ther was great indignacyon agaynst Israel, and they departed from him, and returned to their awne lande.

The. iij. Chapter.

God geueth a certen poore woman oyle & flour by which she maketh a childe for hys hostelle: which death and is after rayned to lyfe. He maketh swete the porage: and multiplieth the loaves.

And there cryed a certen woman vnto Elisa, sayinge: thy seruau^t my husbande is deed, and thou knowest, that thy seruau^t dyd feare the Lorde.

And the creditor is come, to sett my two sonnes, to be his bondemen. Elisa sayde vnto her. Tell me what shall I do for y^e? What hast thou in thyne house? She sayde, thyne handmayde hath nothinge at all in y^e house, save a pitcher with oyle. He sayde vnto her: Go & borowe vessel for the, of them that are without euen of all thy neybores, emptie vesselles and that not a fewe. And when thou art come in, thou shalt shutt the doze after the and after thy sonnes, and powze out into all those vesselles, and sett asyde y^e which is full.

And so the woman went from him, and shutt the doze after her and after her sonnes. And they brought to her, & she powzed out. And it came to passe, that when the vesselles were full, she sayde vnto her sonne: byynge me yet a vessel. And he sayde vnto her: I haue no mo. And the oyle ceased. Then she came, and tolde the man of God. And he sayde: go & sell the oyle, & paye the y^e thou art in debt vnto, but lyue y^e & thy chyldren of y^e rest. &

And it fell on a daye, that Elisa came to Sunem, where was a great woman, & toke him in, for to eate bread. And so it came to passe, that fro that tyme forth (as ofte as he came y^e waye) he turned in thither to eate bread. And she sayde vnto her husbande. Beholde, I perceaue, that this is a holy man of God, that cometh so oft by oure place. Let vs make him a chambze (I praye the) with walles, & let vs set him there a beed, & a table, a stole & a candellsticke: that he maye turne in thither when he cometh to vs.

And it fortuneth on a daye, y^e he came thither & turned into the chambze, & laye there in, and sayde to Gehezi his seruau^t: call this Sunamite. And whan he called her, she presented hyr selfe before hym. And agayne he sayde vnto him: Tell her. Beholde, thou hast bene carefull for vs, and hast made all thys prouisiō. what shall we nowe do for y^e? woldest thou be spoken for to the kyng or to the captayne of the hoste? She answered. I dwell amonge myne awne people. And he sayde agayne, what is to be done for her? Gehezi answered. Surely she hath no chylde, & her husbande is olde. And he sayde: call her. And whan he had called her, she stode in the doze. And he sayde * by such a tyme, and as sone as the frute can lye, thou shalt embrace a sonne. And she sayde: Oh naye my Lorde, y^e mā of God, do not lye vnto thine handmayd. And the wyfe conceaued, and bare a sonne y^e same cealon that Eliscus had sayde vnto her as sone as the frute coude haue lyfe.

And when the chylde was growne, it fell on a daye, that he wēt out to his father, and to the reapers. And he sayde vnto hys father, my heed, my heed. And he sayd to a lad. Carpe him to his mother. And whan he had taken him and brought him to his mother, he sate on her knees tyll none, and then dyed. And she went vp, and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and shutt the doze about him, and went out, and called vnto her husbande and sayde: sende with me (I praye y^e) one of the younge mē & one of the asses, for I wyll runne to the man of God, and come agayne. And he sayde: wherfore wilt thou go to him seinge that to daye is nether newe mone nor Saboth daye. She answered: For health. Then she labelled an asse, & sayde to hir seruau^t: leade awaye the asse, and make her not to go slowly (because I ryde vpon her) but whan I byd the.

And so she went & came vnto the man of God, to mount Carmel. And it fortuneth: that when the mā of God sawe her farre of, he sayde to Gehezi his seruau^t. Beholde, yonder is the Sunamite. Runne therfore to mete her, and saye vnto her: Is all well with the and with thy husbande, & with the ladd? And she answered. All is well. And whē she came to the

to the man of God vp to the hyll, she caught him by the fete. But Gehezi went to her, to thrust her awaye. And y^e man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is vered within her, and the Lorde hath hid it from me, and hath not tolde it me. Then she sayde: dyd I desyre a sonne of my Lorde: dyd I not requyre the, that thou shuldest not disceane me?

Then he sayde to Gehezi: * gyde vp thy loynes, and take my staffe in thyne hāde, and go thy waye. * If y^e meete anye mā & salute him not. And yf any salute the, and were him not agayne. And laye my staffe vpon the face of the chylde. And the mother of the chylde sayde: * as sure as the Lorde lyueth, & as thy soule liueth. I will not leaue y^e. And he arose and folowed her. Gehezi went before them, & layed the staffe vpon the face of the chylde. But there was nether voyce nor any feling. Wherfore he went agayne to mete him, and tolde him, sayinge: the chylde is not awaked.

And when Elisa was come into y^e house: Beholde, the chylde was deed and layde vpon his bed. He went in therfore, & shutt the doze to the ladd and him, and prayed vnto y^e Lorde. * And went vp & laye vpon the ladd, & put his mouth on his mouth, & his eyes vpon his eyes, & his handes vpon his hādes, and whā he so laye vpon the chylde, the fleische of the chylde waxed warme. And she wēt agayne, & walked once vp and downe in y^e house, and then went vp, and layed him selfe vpon him agayne. And then y^e chylde gasped seuen times and opened his eyes. And he called Gehezi, & sayde: Call for this Sunamite. So he called her: which whē she was come in vnto him, he sayde vnto her: * take thy sōne. Therfore she went in, and fell at his fete, & bowed her selfe to the grounde, and toke vp her sonne, and went out. * Elisa came agayne to Gilgal, and there was a derth in the lande, and the chylde of the prophetes dwelt with him. And he sayde vnto his seruau^t. Set a great pot on the fyze, and make pottage for the chyldren of the prophetes. And one went out into the felde, to gather herbes, & founde a wilde vyne, and gathered therof wyld Colopuntidas his lappe full, & came, & shred them into the pott of potage: for they knewe it not. So they powzed out for the men to eate. And it fortuneth, y^e when they tasted of the pottage, they cryed out, and sayde: O thou man of God (there is derth in the pot: and they coude not eate therof. But he sayde: byynge meale. And he cast it into y^e pot, & sayde: fyll for the people, that they maye eate, and there was no moze harme in the pot.

There came a man from Baal Salisa, & brought the man of God bread of y^e fyrt frutes, eue. xx. loafes of barley, and newe corne which was yet in his bagges. And he sayde:

Geue vnto the people, that they maye eate. And his mynster answered: roby, shall I set this before an hundred men? He sayde agayne: geue it vnto the people that they maye eate. For thus sayth the Lorde * they shall eate, and ther shall be left ouer. And so he sett it before them, & they dyde eate, and left ouer, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

The. v. Chapter.

Naaman the Syrian is healed of hys leprosie. Gehezi is repented with a leprosie, because he toke money and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman, captayne of the hoste of the kyng of Siria, was a greate man, and honorable in the syght of his master: because y^e by him the Lorde had geue * health vnto Siria. He was also a myghtie man, and experte in warre, but he was a leper. And the Syrians had gone out by copanies, & had brought out of the contreye of Israel a lytle mayde, & she was with Naamāns wyfe. And she sayde vnto her ladye: I wold to God my Lorde were with the prophet that is in Samaria: for he wolde deliuer him of his leprosie. And she went in, and tolde his Lorde, sayinge: thus and thus sayde the mayde, that is of y^e lāde of Israel. And y^e kyng of Siria sayde: Come and entrein and I wyll sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israel. And he came, and toke with him ten talentes of syluer, and y^e thousande peces of golde, & ten chaunge of raymetes, and brought the letter to y^e kyng of Israel contaynyng this tenoure: Nowe when this letter is come vnto the: Beholde, I haue therewith sent Naaman my seruau^t to the, that thou mayest rydde him of his leprosie. And it fortuneth, that when y^e kyng of Israel had redde the letter, he rent his clothes, and sayde: * am I God, that I shulde slaye, & make alyue: for he doth sende to me that I shulde deliuer a man fro his leprosie. Wherfore cosyder (I praye you) and se howe he seeketh a quarell agaynst me. which whē Elisa the man of God had hearde, howe that the kyng of Israel had rent his clothes, he sent to y^e kyng, sayinge. Wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes: let him come nowe to me, & he shall know, y^e there is a prophet in Israel.

And so Naaman came to his hostelles and with his charettes, ad stode at the doze of the house of Elisa. And Elisa sent a messenger vnto him, sayinge: go and wathe y^e in Jordā seuen tymes, & thy fleische shall come agayne to the, & thou shalt be cleansed. But Naamā was wroth, & wēt awaye, & sayde. Beholde I thought wth my selfe: he wolde surely come out, and stande & call on the name of y^e Lorde his God, and put his hande on the place that he maye heale the leprosie. Are not Abana & Pharphar, ryuers of Damasco, better then all the waters of Israel: yf I waihe me also in them in them, Shall I not be cleaſed? And ſo he turned him, and departed with diſpleaſure. And his ſeruauntes came, & cōmoned with hym, and ſayde: Father, yf the prophete had bydd the do ſome great thinge, oughteſt thou not to haue done it? How moche rather then, whā he ſayth to the: waſhe, and be cleane? Then went he downe, & waſhed him ſelſe ſeuē tymes in Iordā, accordynge to the ſayinge of ſ man of God, & his fleſhe chaūged, like vnto

* Luke. iiii. c. ſ fleſhe of a lytle chylde, * & he was cleaſed.

And he turned agayne to the man of God,
he and all his cōpanie, and stode before him,
and sayde: Beholde, I knowe nowe þ there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. ¶ ¶ Nowe therfore like a blessinge of thy ser-uaunt. But he saide: * as surely as the Lorde liueth (before whom I stande) I will reccaue none. And whan the other wolde haue con-strayned hym to reccaue it, he wolde not.

And Naaman sayde: * (Euen as thou wilst, but I beseeche thee.) ¶ Shall there not be giuen to thy seruaunt as much of this erthe as two mules maye beare? For thy seruaunt will keepe forth offer neither burnt sacrifice nor offeringe vnto any other God, saue vnto the Lorde. But herin the Lorde be mercifull to thy seruaunt, that when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon, & doth worshyppe there, & leaneth on my hande, and I also worshyppe in the house of Rimmon. (When I do worshyppe I saue) in the house of Rimmon, the Lorde be mercifull vnto thy seruaunt because of this thinge. Vnto whō he sayde: go in peace. And when he was departed from him as it came

¶ when he was departed from him as it were a furlonge of grounde, Sehezi the seruaunt of Elisa the man of God, sayde: beholde, my master hath spared Naaman thys Syrian, that he wolde not receaue of hys hande those thynges þe offered. As surely as the Lorde lyueth, I wyl runne after him, & take some what of him. And so Sehezi folowed Naaman. And whē Naamā sawe him runninge after him, he lpyght downe from the charet, to mete him, and sayde: * is all well? he answered: All is well. Beholde, my master hath sent me, sayinge: se, there be come to me euernow frō mount Ephraim two yonge men of the chyldren of the prophetes: geue them. ¶ I praye the, one talēt of syluer and two chaunge of garmētes. And Raamā sayde: With a good will. Take two talentes: & he compelled him to bynde two talentes of syluer in two bagges, with two chaunge of garmētes, and layed them vpon two of his seruantes, to beare them befoze him. And whan he came in to a secrete place, he toke them frō their hande, & bestowed it in the house, & the men were let go, and they departed.

But he went in, and stood before his master. And Elisa sayde vnto him: whence comest thou? He sayde: thy seruauunt went no whether. But he sayde vnto hym: went not in yne hert with the, when the man turned agayne from his charct to mete the. ¶ Is it now a tyme to receaue moniepe, to recea-ue garmentes, olyue trees, vynepardes, she-pe and oxen, men seruauentes & mayde seruauantes? The leprosy thefore of Jaaman shall cleaue vnto the, and vnto thy seed foreuer. * And he went out from his presence

a leper, as whyte as snowe.

The.vj.Chapter.

¶ Eliseus maketh prou to swimm aboue the water. The Philistins beseege Iherl, so that two women agree together to eate their alone childe.

The chyldre of the prophetes sayde vnto Elisa: Beholde, the place where we dwell with þy, is to lye for vs. We wyll therfore go vnto Iordane, and take thence euery mā a beame, and buylde vs a place, to dwell in. And he answered: goo. And one sayde: be content I praye the, and come with thy seruautes. And he answered: I wyll come, and so he went with them.

And when they came to Iordan, they cutt downe wood. But it fortuned, that as one was felling downe of a tre, the axe hee fel.
into the water. And he cryed, & sayde: Alas master, it was lent me. And the man of God sayde. Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cutt downe a stycke, & cast it in thither, & immediatly the yxō dyd swymme.
Therfore sayde he: take it vp. And he stretched out his hande, and toke it vp.

But the kynge of Siria warred agaynst
Israel, & toke counsell with his seruantes,
and sayde: In yonder secreete place shalbe my remayninge. And the man of God sent vnto the kynge of Israel, sayinge: Beware, that thou go not ouer to such a place, for there the Sirians are lurking. Therefore the kynge of Israel sent to the place which the man of God tolde him, and warned him of, and sa-
ued him selfe from it, not once nor twyse.

And the hert of the kynge of Siria was troubled for this thinge, and he called for his seruantes and sayde vnto them: wyll ye not therewe, which of oure mē^{er} (betrayeth me) to the kynge of Israel? And one of his seruantes sayde: none my Lorde o kynge. But Elisa the prophet, that is in Israel, telleth the kynge of Israel, yea euen, the wordes þ thou speakst in thy preuye chābre. He sayde: go, & spie where he is, that I maye sende and fett him. And one tolde him, sayinge: beholde, he is in Dothā. Therfore sent he thither hories and charettes, and a myghtye hoste. And they came by nyght, & cōpassed þ citie about.

And when the seruau't of the mā of God
rose vpe early to go out: Beholde, there was an host round about the towne with horses and charettes. And his seruau't sayde vnto him:

him: Alas master, what shall we do? he answered * feare not, for they that be with vs, are moore then they that be wyth them. And Elisa prayed and sayde: Lorde (I beseeche þe) open þys eyes, that he maye se. And the Lorde opened the eyes of the yonge man. And beholde, the mountayne was full of horses, and charettes of fyre rounde aboute Elisa. And when they came downe to hym, Elisa prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Smyte thys people (I praye the) with * blindness. And he smote them with blindnes, accordinge to the desyre of Elisa. And Elisa sayde vnto them this is not the waye, nether is this the towne: folowe me, and I wyll bringe you to the mā whom ye seke. But he ledde them to Samaria.

And it fortuned, that when they were come to Samaria, Elisa sayde: Lorde, opene their eyes that they may see. And the Lorde opened their eyes, and they sawe. And behold, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Elisa, when he sawe them: My father, shall I smyte them: And he answered: Thou shalt not smyte them. But smyte those that thou hast taken with thyn awne swerde, and wth thyn awne bowe. But rather set bread and water befoze them, that they maye eat and drinke, and go to their master. And he prepared a great refecceyon for them. And when they had eaten and dröcke, he sent the a waye and they went to their master. And so the soudpoures of Syria came nomoze into the lande of Israel.

ff After thys it chaunced, that Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all his hoste & wit vp, and beseged Samaria. But there was a greate dertth in Samaria: and beholde, they beseged it, vntyll an Asses heed (was solde for foure saore syluer pens, and the fourth part of a Cab of dones donge for fyue sicles. And as y^e kynge of Israel was gouinge vpo the wall, there cryed a womā vnto him sayinge: helpe, my Lorde O kynge. he sayd: yf y^e Lord do not succoure the: wherewith can I helpe the: wth the barne, oz wth the wyne presse. And the kynge sayde vnto her: what wilt y^e? She answered: yonder womā sayde vnto me: byynge thy sonne, y^e we maye eate him to daye, and we wyll eate myne to morowe. * And so we dressed my sonne and dyd eate him. And I sayde to her the other daye: Byynge thy sonne y^e we maye eate hym, and she hath hyd her sonne. And it came to passe, that when the kynge hearde y^e wordes of the woman, he rent his clothes, and went vp on the wall. And the people looked: and beholde he had a sack cloth vnder, vpon hys fleshe. Then he sayde: * God do so & so to me, yf the heed of Elisa y^e sonne of Saphat shall stāde on him this daye. But Elisa satt in his house and the elders satt by him, & the kynge sent a man before him. But y^et the messenger came to him, he sayde to the elders: haue ye not

¶ The. viij. Chapter.

¶ Elisa propheseth piteous fates of bntailles and other thpuges to Samaria. The Syrians runne away & haue no man folowinge them. The Lorde that wolde not beleue the worde of Elisa is tro-den to death.

Ehen Elisa sayde: heare ye the wor-
de of the Lorde: thus sayth y Lorde.
* to morowe thys tyme shall a boushell of fyne floure be solde for a Sicle, and two boushelles of Barley for a Syele in the gate of Samaria. Then a cer-tayne Lorde on whose hand the kynge leaned answered the man of God, and sayde:
beholde, yf the Lorde wolde make windowes in heuen, myghte this sayinge come to passe: he sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it w
thyne eyes, but shalt not eate therof.

And there were foure leperous men at y entringe in of y gate. And they sayde one to another, why sytt we here, vntill we dye: Yf we saye: we will entre into the citie, beholde: the death is in the cytie, and we shall dye therein. And yf we sytt styll here, we dye also. Howe therfore come, and let vs fall vpo the hoste of the Sirians: If they saue oure lyues we shall lyue: Yf they kyll vs, then are we deed. And so they arose in the nyght, to go to the hoste of y Sirians. And when they were come to the vtmost parte of the hoste of Siria: beholde, there was no man there.

And so they came, & called vnto the porter of the cytie, and tolde them sayinge: we came to the pailions of the Syrians: & se, there was no man there, neither voyce of man, but hollies and asses tyed, and the tentes were, euen as they were wont to be.

And so the man called vnto the porters, & they tolde the kynges house within. And the kyng arose in the nyght, and sayde vnto his seruantes. I wpill shewe you now, what the Syrians haue done vnto vs. They knowe that we be hungrye, & therfore are they gone out of the pailions, to hyde them selues in the felde, sayinge: Whā they come out of the cytie, we shall catch them alyue, and get into the cytie. And one of his seruantes answered, and sayde. Let men take (I praye you) fyue of y^e hollies that remayne, and are left in the multitude. Beholde, & they are euen as all the multitude of Israel that are left in y^e cytie: beholde (I saye) they are euen as all the multitude of y^e Israelites that are consumed, & we wpill sende, & se. They toke therfore the hollies of two charettes, and the kyng sent after the hoste of the Syrians, sayinge: go, & se. And they went after them, euen vnto Jordan: and lo, all the waye was full of clothes and vesselles which the Syrians had cast from them in their haste.

And the messengers returned, and tolde the kyng. And the people went out, & spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And so it came to passe, that a bushel of fyne flowre was sold for a syle, and two bushelles of barley for a syle. * accordyng to the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng appointed y^e Lorde (on whose hand he leaned) to be at the gate. And y^e people trode vpon him in the gate, and he dyed, accordyng to the worde of the man of God which he sayde, when y^e kyng came downe to him. And so came the thyng to passe y^e the man of God had spoken to y^e kyng, sayinge: two bushelles of barley for a syle, & a bushell of fyne flowre for another, shalbe * to morowe this tyme in the gate of Samaria. Wher vnto that Lorde answered the mā of God, and sayde. Yee, and yf y^e Lorde made wyndowes in heauē myght it come to passe? And he sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, & shalt not eate therof. And euen so chaunced it vnto him: for the people trod vpon him in the gate, and he dyed.

And the messengers returned, and tolde the kyng. And the people went out, & spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And so it came to passe, that a bushel of fyne flowre was sold for a syle, and two bushelles of barley for a syle. * accordyng to the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng appointed y^e Lorde (on whose hand he leaned) to be at the gate. And y^e people trode vpon him in the gate, and he dyed, accordyng to the worde of the man of God which he sayde, when y^e kyng came downe to him. And so came the thyng to passe y^e the man of God had spoken to y^e kyng, sayinge: two bushelles of barley for a syle, & a bushell of fyne flowre for another, shalbe * to morowe this tyme in the gate of Samaria. soeuer thou canst, for y^e Lorde hath called for a derth, and the same shall come vpon y^e land seuen yeres. And the woman arose, and dyd after the sayinge of y^e man of God, and went both she and her household, & sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen yere. And at y^e seuen yeres ende, it fortuned, that the woman came agayne out of the lande of y^e Philistines, and went out to call vpon the kyng for her house and for her land. And the kyng talked with Gehazi the seruant of the man of God, sayinge: tell me I praye the all the great deedes that Elisa hath done: he tolde y^e kyng, howe he had restored a deed bodye to lyfe agayne: but in the meane tyme y^e woman (whose sonne he had rayled vpon agayne) cryed to y^e kyng for her house & for her land. And Gehazi sayde: My Lorde & kyng, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whom Elisa rayled vpon agayne. And whan y^e kyng asked the woman, she tolde hym. And so the kyng deliuered her a chābrelayne, sayinge: restore thou vnto her all that are hers, and all the frutes of the felde, sence the daye that she left the lande, vnto this tyme.

And * Elisa came to Damascos, & Benhadad the kyng of Siria was sycke. And one tolde him sayinge. The mā of God is come hither. And y^e kyng sayde vnto Hazeal: * take a present in thine hāde, and goo mete the man of God, that thou mayest aske the Lorde by him, whether I shall recouer of this disease. And so Hazeal wēt to mete him and toke the present with him, and of euery good thinge of Damascos, eue as moch as fourty Camels coulde beare, and came & presented hym selfe before hym, and sayde: Thy sonne Benhadad kyng of Siria hath sent me to the, sayinge, shall I recouer of this dyscase?

And Elisa sayd vnto him: go & saye vnto him: thou shalt recouer, howbeit y^e Lorde hath shewed me, y^e he shall surely dye. And he looked asyde, and was ashamed, and y^e man of God wepte. And Hazeal sayde: why wepeth my Lorde? he answered: for I knowe the euill thinges that thou shalt do vnto the chyldren of Israel: for their stronge cyties shalt thou sett on fyre, and their polige men shalt thou sle with y^e swerde & shalt dash out the braynes of their suckynge chyldren, & all to teare their women with chyldre.

But Hazeal sayde: what is thy seruait, a dogge, that I shulde do this great thyng? And Elisa answered: the Lorde hath shewed me, that thou shalt be kyng of Siria. And so he departed from Elisa, & came to his master, which sayde to him. What sayde Elisa to the? he answered: he tolde me, that thou shuldest recouer. And on the morowe it fortuned, that he toke a thicke cloth, and dypt it in water, and spread it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazeal raygned in his steade.

The fyfte

The fyfte yere of Jehoram the sonne of Ahab kyng of Israel, Jehosaphat beyng also kyng of Iuda, Jehorā the sonne of Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda, begāne to raygne. * xxxii. yere olde was he, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned eyght yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, as they that were of y^e house of Ahab: for the daughter of Ahab was his wyfe, and he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde. And y^e Lorde wolde not destroye Iuda, and that because of Dauid hys seruait, * as he promysed hym to geue hym all waye a lycht amonge hys chyldren.

* In those dayes Edō dyd wickedly whē he was vnder the hande of Iuda. For they made them a kyng of theyr awne. So Jehoram went to zair, he and all his charettes with hym. And he rose by nyght, and smote the Edomites, which compassed hym in, with the captaynes of hys charettes, & the people fledd into theyr tentes. But Edom rebelled, so that he wold not be vnder the hāde of Iuda vnto this daye. And then Lobnah began to be disobedient euen that same tyme.

The rest of the wordes that cōcerne Joram and all that he dyd, are they not wrytten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And Joram rested with hys fathers, and was buryed besyde his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And * Ahaziah his sonne raygned in his steade. In the xij. yere of Joram the sonne of Ahab kyng of Israel, dyd Ahaziah the sonne of Jehorā kyng of Iuda begynne to raygne. Two & twenty yere olde was Ahaziah when he begāne to raygne, and he raygned one yere in Jerusalem, and hys mothers name was Athaliah the daughter of Omri kyng of Israel. But he walked in the waye of the house of Ahab, and dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, euen as dyd the house of Ahab. For he was y^e sone in lawe of the house of Ahab.

And he went with Jorā the sonne of Ahab to warre agaynst Hazeal kyng of Siria, in Ramoth Gilead, & the Sirians wounded Joram. And * kyng Joram went back agayne to be healed in Jezabel of the woundes which the Sirians had geue hym at Ramoth, when he fought agaynst Hazeal kyng of Siria. And Ahaziah the sonne of Jehoram kyng of Iuda went downe to se Jorā the sonne of Ahab in Jezabel, because he was sycke there.

The ix. Chapter.

Jehu is made kyng of Israel, and killeth Jehorā the kyng therof, and Ahaziah, otherwyle called Jehoazas, the kyng of Iuda also, and causeth Jezabel to be caste downe out of a wyndowe, and the dogges eate her.

And Elisa the prophete called one of the chyldren of the prophetes, & sayd vnto him: * ggyde vpon thy loynes, and take thys bore of oyle in thyne hande, and get the to Ramoth in Gilead. And when thou comest thither, loke where is Jehu the sonne of Jehosaphat, the sone of Nimsi, and go to him, and make him aryse vpon from amonge hys brethren, & carpe hym to a secret chambze. Then take the bore of oyle, and powze it on hys heed, and saye: thus sayth the Lorde: I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel. And then open the doze, and flee without any taryng. And so the seruait of the prophete gat him to Ramoth Gilead: and when he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the host were sittyng together. And he sayde: I haue an errand to y^e, o captayne. And Jehu sayde: vnto which of all ys? he sayde: to the, o captayne. And he arose, and went into the house.

And he powzed the oyle on hys heed, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: * I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer the people of the Lorde, euen ouer Israel. Thou shalt smyte y^e house of Ahab thy master, that I maye aduege the bloud of my seruantes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the seruantes of the Lorde, of the hande of Jezabel, for the whole house of Ahab shalbe destroyed, and * I wpill destroye from Ahab, euen hym y^e maketh water agaynst the wall, and him that is psoned and forsaken in Israel: and I wpill make the house of Ahab lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, and lyke the house of Baasa y^e sonne of Ahia. And as for Jezabel * the dogges shal eate her in the felde of Jezabel, and ther shalbe none to burye her. And he opened the dore, and fledd.

Jehu came out to the seruantes of hys lord, and one sayde vnto hym, is all well? Wherefore came this madd felowe to the? And he sayde vnto the: ye knowe what manner of man it is, and what hys comunicacyō is. They sayde vnto hym agayne: it is not so, tell vs. He sayde: thus and thus spake he to me, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lorde: I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel. Then they * besyde the horologe hasted, and toke euery man hys garment, and put it vnder hym, and blewe with trompettes, sayinge: Jehu is kyng. And so, Jehu the sonne of Jehosaphat the sonne of Nimsi conspyred agaynst Joram. Joram kepte Ramoth Gilead, he and all Israel because of Hazeal kyng of Siria: and * kyng Joram returned to be healed in Jezabel, of the woundes which the Sirians had geuen him, when he fought with Hazeal kyng of Siria.

And Jehu sayde: If it be poure myndes, then let no man departe and scape out of the cite, to go, & tell in Jezabel. So Jehu gatt vpon into a charette, and wente to Jezabel, where Joram laye, & Ahaziah kyng of Iuda was come downe thither to se Jorā. And the the watchman that stode on þe towre in Jezrael. spyed the company of Jehu as he came, and sayde: I see a companye. And Jehozam sayde: take an horsman, and sende to mete the, that he maye aske whether it be peace. And so there went one on horsbacke to mete him, and sayde: thus sayth the kyng: is it peace? and Jehu sayde: what hast thou to do with peace? turne the behynde me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: the messenger came to them, but he cometh not agayne.

Then he sent out another on horsbacke, which came to them, and sayde: thus sayth the kyng: is it peace? Jehu answered: what hast thou to do with peace? turne the behynde me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: he came to them also, and cometh not agayne, and the drynge is lyke the drynge of Jehu the sonne of Nimshi: for he drincketh the charet as he were madd. And Jehozam sayde: make ready. And þe charet was made ready. And Jehozam kyng of Israel, and Ahaziah kyng of Juda went out ether of them in hys charet agaynst Jehu, and met hym in þe furlonge of Naboth þe Jezraelite. And it fortuned, that when Jehozam sawe Jehu, he sayde: is it peace Jehu? he answered: What peace shalde there be, so longe as þe whoredoms of thy mother Jezabel, and her witchcraftes are so great? And Jehozah turned his handes, and fledd, and sayde to Ahaziah: ther is falsed, o Ahaziah. And Jehu toke a bowe in hys handes, and smote Jehozah betwene the armes, & the arrowe went thorow hys hert.

And he fell downe flatt in hys charet. Then sayde Jehu to Sidkar a captayne: take him, & cast him in the plat of the grounde of Naboth the Jezraelite. For I remembre þe whan I and þe roade together in a charet after Ahab his father, þe Lorde layed this heuy burthe vpon hym. I haue sene yesterdaye þe bloud of Naboth, & the bloude of his sonnes, sayde the Lorde: & I will quyte it the in this ground, sayth the Lorde. Nowe therfore take him, & cast hym in the plat of ground, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde. But whē Ahaziah the kyng of Juda sawe this, he fledd by the waye of the gardē house. And Jehu folowed after hym, & layde: smyte hym also in the charet: & (and they smote hym) in hys charet. at þe goynge vp to Gur by Jiblea, & he fledd to Magiddo, & ther dyed. And his seruantes caried hym in a charet to Jerusalem, & buryed hym there in his sepulchre, w his fathers, in þe cite of Dauid. And in the xi. yere of Jozah þe sonne of Ahab, beganne Ahaziah to raygne ouer Juda. And whē Jehu came to Jezrael

Jezabel hearde of it, & starched her face, & fired her heed, & looked out at a windowe. And as Jehu entred at þe gate, she sayde: had I my peace which I sue hys master? And he lyft vp his eyes to the windowe, and sayde:

who is of my syde, who? And ther looked out to hym two of thre chamberlaynes. And he sayde: throwe her downe. So they thre we her downe, and her bloude dashed towarde the wall, & toward the horses, and he troade her vnder fote.

And when he was come in, he dyd eate & drinke, & sayde: go & vset I praye you ponder cursed creature, and burie her: for she is a kynges daughter. And so when they came to burie her, they founde nomore of her then the skulle, and the fete, and the palmes of her handes. Wherfore they come agayne, & told hym. And he sayde: thus is the worde of the Lorde, which he spake by the hāde of his seruante Elia the Thesbite, sayinge: * in the felde of Jezrael shall dogges eate the flesh of Jezabel. And so þe carkas of Jezabel was euen as donge vpon the earth, in the felde of Jezrael: so that no man myght saye: This was Jezabel.

The x. Chapter.

Jehu causeth the. iij. sonnes of Ahab to be slayne and after þe. xij. of hys brethren. He spyneth a meane also to kyll all the prestes of Baal. After hys deeth, hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

Ahab had. lxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sent to Samaria vnto þe rulers of Jezrael, to the elders, and to them that brought vp Ahab's children, sayinge: nowe whan this letter cometh to you, ye þe haue with you your masters sonnes, ye haue with you both charettes and horses: a strong cite haue ye also: and harness, loke which of your masters sonnes is best and most mete, and let hym on hys fathers seate, & and fyght for youre Lordes house. But they were exceedingly afrayde, & sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, how shall we then be able to stande? And he that was gouernour of Ahab's house, and he that ruled the cite, & elders also, & þe tutors sent to Jehu, sayinge: we are thy seruantes, & will do all þe shalt byd vs: we wyll make no man kyng: therfore do þe what semeth good i thine eyes.

Then he wrote another letter to the, sayinge: If ye be myne, and wyll hearken vnto my voyce, then take the heedes of the me that are youre masters sonnes, and come to me to Jezrael by to morowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were. lxx. persones, and they were with the great men of the cite, which brought them vp. And when the letter came to them, they toke the kynges chyldren, and slue them, euen. lxx. persones, & layed theyr heeddes in basnettes, and sent them to him to Jezrael. And there came a messenger, and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heeddes of the kynges sonnes. And he sayde: let them laye them on two heapes in the enterpynge in of the gate, vntyll the morynge. And

And whā it was daye, he went out, and stode, & sayde to all þe folke: ye be ryghteous. Beholde, I conspired agaynst my master, and slue him. But who slue all these? Lerne here, þe ther shall fall vnto the erth nothyng of the worde of þe Lorde, which he spake concerning the house of Ahab. For þe Lorde hath brought to passe the thynges þe he spake: by þe hāde of his seruante Elia. And so Jehu slue all þe remayned of the house of Ahab, in Jezrael: and all þe were great w him, & his kynfolkes and hys prestes, so þe he let nothing of him remayne. And he arose, & departed, & came to Samaria. And whā Jehu was in the waye to the house where the shepherdes byd there their shepe, he met w the brethren of Ahaziah kyng of Juda, & sayde: what are ye? They answered: the brethren of Ahaziah are we, and go downe to salute þe chyldren of þe kyng and of þe quene. And he sayde: take the alpye. Whō when they had taken them alpye, they slue them at the well which was by the house where the shepe are thozen, euen two and fouretye men, nether left he any of them.

And when he was departed thence, he met w Jehonadab þe sonne of Rechab comynge agaynst him. And he blessed him, & sayde to hym: is thine hert ryght, as myne hert is true w thine? And Jehonadab answered: yea that it is, & (if it be sayth he) then geue me thine hande. And whā he had geuen him his hand, he toke him vp to him into þe charet, & sayde: come w me, & se the zeale that I haue for the Lorde: & so they made him ryde in hys charet. And when he came to Samaria, he slue all þe remayned vnto Ahab in Samaria, tyll he had wypte him out, accordyng to the saying of the Lorde which he spake to Elia.

And Jehu gathered all þe people together and sayd vnto the: Ahab serued Baal a lytle. But Jehu shall serue hym more. Nowe therfore call vnto me all þe prophetes of Baal, all soch as serue him, & all hys prestes, and let none be lackyng. For I haue a grate sacrifice to do to Baal: & therfore, whosocure is mysted, he shall not lyue. But Jehu dyd it for a sutteltye, to the intēt that he might destroye þe seruantes of Baal. And Jehu sayde: Proclayme an holy conuocacyon for Baal, and Jehu sent vnto all Israel. And all þe seruantes of Baal came, þe ther was not a mā left behynde that came not. And they came into the house of Baal, & the house of Baal was full from one ende to another.

And he sayde vnto hym that was the keeper of the vestrye, bringe forth garmētes for all the seruantes of Baal. And he brought them out garmētes. And when Jehu went with Jehonadab the sonne of Rechab into þe house of Baal, he sayde vnto the seruantes of Baal: searche, and loke, that there be here w you none of the seruantes of the Lorde, but the seruantes of Baal only. And when they wēt in to offer sacrifice & burnt offeringe: Jehu appoynted. lxxx. men without, & sayd: If any of the me whom I haue brought vnder youre handes, escape, he that letteth him go, shall dye for hym.

And it fortuned, þe assone as he had made an ende of offering the burnt sacrifice, Jehu sayde to the men of warre, and to the captaynes: go in, and slepe them, let none come out. And they smote them with the edge of the swerde. And the men of warre and the captaynes cast them out, and went vnto the cite of the temple of Baal, and fet the ymages out of the temple of Baal, and burnt them. And they brake the ymage of Baal, & razed ke the house of Baal, & made a drafft house of it vnto this daye. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But fro þe synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to synne: Jehu departed not, nether from following of them: (nether forsoke he) the golde calves that were in Bethel and in Dan.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Jehu: because thou hast done ryght well, in bypnyng to passe the thyng that is ryght in myne eyes, and hast done vnto the house of Ahab accordinge to all thynges þe are in myne hert, therfore shall thy chyldren vnto the fourth generation sit on the seate of Israel. But Jehu cared not for this, to walke in the lawe of the Lorde God of Israel with all his hert: for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam, which made Israel to synne.

And in those dayes the Lorde began to cut Israel short: & and Hazael smote the in all þe coastes of Israel, fro Jordan eastward: eue all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, the Rubenites, and the þe were of Manasses, fro Aroer vnto the ryuer of Arnon: euen Gilead & Basan. The rest of the wordes þe concerne Jehu, & all þe he dyd, and all his power, are they not witten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And Jehu slept w hys fathers, & they buryed him in Samaria, and Jehoahaz his sonne raygned in hys steade. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, is xxviij. yeres.

The xj. Chapter.

Athalia putteth to deeth all the kynges sonnes except Jehozah þe sonne of Ahaziah, which is hid: den and after her deeth is made kyng.

And Athalia the mother of Ahaziah, when she sawe that her sonne was deed, she arose, and destroyed all the kynges seede. But Jehosaba the daughter of kyng Joaz, and syster of Ahaziah, toke Joas the sonne of Ahaziah, and scale hym from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, & hid his nource with hym, out of a slepyng chābre, and hyd hym from Athalia, that he was not slayne. And he was with her hyd in the house of þe Lorde

vj. yere. And Athalia did raigne ouer y lade. And the vij. yere Jehoiada sent and fet y rulers ouer hundredes, w the captaynes, & the of the garde, and toke them to hym into the house of the Lorde, and made a bonde w the, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lorde, and the wed them the kynges sonne. And he comaunded the, saying: thys is it y ye must do: one thyrde parte of you, whose dewty is to come on y Sabbath daye, shall kepe the watch of the kynges house. And another thyrde parte shall kepe the gate of Sur: and another thyrde parte shall kepe y gate, which is behynde them of the garde: and so shall ye kepe the watche of the house of Yeshah, & two partes of you, that is, all that go out on the Sabbath daye, shall kepe the watche of the house of the Lorde about the kyng, and ye shall copasse the kyng rounde about, and euery ma shall haue his weapen in his hāde. And whosoeuer cometh with in the ranges, let hym be slayne. And se that ye be with the kyng as he goeth out and in.

*ii. Paralip.
xiii. a.

And the captaynes ouer y hundredes dyd, according to all thinges that y Jehoiada the preste comaunded: and they toke euery man hys me, that were to come in on y Sabbath daye with the that shuld go out on y Sabbath, and came to Jehoiada the preste. And to the captaynes ouer hundredes, dyd the preste geue kinge Dauids speares & sylides that were in the tēple. And they of the garde stode, & euery man had his weapen in hys hande rounde about the kyng, fro y ryght corner of the temple to the left, alonge by the altar and the tēple. And he brought out the kynges sonne, & put the crowne vpon him: & deliuered hym * & the witnesse, and made hym kyng, & anoynted hym. And they clapt their handes, and sayde: God saue the kyng.

*And when Athalia heard the noyse of y ruyng of the people, she came to the people into the tēple of the Lorde. And when she looked, behold, the kyng stode by a pillar, as the manner was, and the syngers & the trōpettes by the kyng, and all the people of the lande reioyced, and blew w trōpettes. And Athalia rent her clothes and cryed: treason, treason. But Jehoiada the preste commaunded the captaynes of the hundredes that had the rule of the host, and sayd vnto the: haue her out without the tēple, y she maye be within the ranges, and yf any folowe her, kyll hym with the swearde: for the preste had sayd she maye not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. And they layde hādes on her tyll she came in to the waye, by the which the horses went in to the kynges palace: & there was she slayne. D

*ii. pa. xlii d

* And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene the Lorde and the kyng, and the people, that they shuld be the Lordes people, and also betwene the kyng and the people. And all the people of the lade wet into y house of Baal, and destroyed it, his altars also. & his ymagges brake they downe lustely, and slue Athalia the preste of Baal before the altars. And the preste set a watch ouer the house of the Lorde, and roke the rulers ouer hundredes, the captaynes & them of the garde, and all the people of the lande. And they brought the kyng from the house of the Lorde: and came by the waye of the gate of them of the garde to the kynges palace. And he sat hym downe on the seate of the kynges. And all the people of the lande reioyced, and the cytye was in quyet. And they slue Athalia w the swearde besyde the kynges palace. Seue yere olde was Jehoas, when he beganne to raigne.

The xij. Chapter.

Jehoas maketh prouision for the reparinge of the tēple, he is kille by two of hys seruantes, and Amaziabu raigneth in hys steade.

And he beganne to raigne in the vij. yere of Jechu. xl. yere raigned he in Jerusalem: & his mothers name was Zebiah of Beersaba. And he did y which was good in the syght of y Lorde, as longe as Jehoiada the preste enfourmed hym. But the hylaltars were not take awaye, for y people offered & burnt incense yet vpon the hylaltars. And Jehoas sayde to the prestes: all the syluer of dedicat thinges y be brought to the house of the Lorde in curraunt moneye, y is to saye, the money that euery man is set at, and all the money y euery man with a willing hert geueth & bringeth into the house of the Lorde, let the prestes take it to the, euery ma of his aquayntaunce, to repayre the broken places of the house, wheresoeuer any decaye is foude. And so it came to passe, that vnto the xxij. yere of king Jehoas, y prestes had mended nothing, that was decayed in y temple. Then kyng Jehoas called for Jehoiada the byshop, and the prestes, and sayde vnto the: why repayre ye not the broke places of the temple? Howe therfore, se that ye receaue nomore money of your aquayntaunce, except ye deliuer it to repayre the temple withall. And the prestes consented to receaue nomore money of the people: except to repayre the decayed places of the temple.

But

But Jehoiada the preste toke a chest and bozed an hoale in the lyd of it, & set it besyde the altare on the ryght syde, as euery ma cometh into the temple of the Lorde. And the prestes y kepte the vessels, put therinall the money y was brought into the house of the Lorde. And it fortuned, that when they saw there was moche money in the chest, * y kynges scribe and the hye preste came, vp, and tolde the money that was foude in the house of the Lorde, and put it in to a bagg.

*ii. cor. xiii. d

And they gaue the money sealed into the hādes of the that executed the worke, and that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde: and they brought it out to the carpenters and buylders (that wrought vpon the house of the Lorde) and to masons and hewers of stone: And they bought tymber and fre stone, to repayre the decay in the house of the Lorde, and to all that went out to mende the temple: howbeit there was not made for the house of the Lorde, bowles of syluer, instrumentes of Musicke, basens, trumpettes or any vessels of golde, or vessel of syluer, of the money that was brought in to the house of the Lorde: But they gaue that to the workemen, and repayred therewith the house of the Lorde. Moreover, they rekoned not wyth the men, into whose handes they deliuered that money to be bestowed on workemen: for they dyd their busynes saythfully. Howbeit there was moneye and synne money was not brought in to the house of the Lorde, for it was the prestes.

Then came Hazael kyng of Siria vp, and fought agaynst Geth and toke it, & Hazael set hys face to go vp to Jerusalem. And Jehoas kyng of Juda toke all the halowed thynges that Jehosaphat, Jehoram and Haziah his fathers kynges of Juda, had dedicated, and that he hym selfe had dedicated, and all the golde that was foude in the treasures of the house of the Lorde and in the kynges house, and sent it to Hazael kyng of Siria: and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The remnaunt of the wordes that concerne Jehoas and all that he dyd, are they not written in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Juda: And hys awne seruantes arole, and wrought treason, and slue Jehoas in the house Hillo, whan he came downe to Silla. Jozabar the sonne of Seameath and Jehozabad the sonne of Somer hys seruantes, smote hym, & he dyed. And they buried hym wyth his fathers in y ctye of Dauid. And Amaziabu hys sonne raigned in hys steade.

The xij. Chapter.

Jehoahaz the sonne of Jechu is deliuered into the handes of the Syriens, & dyeth. Joas hys sonne raigneth in hys steade. Elisa dyeth.

In the xxij. yere of Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz the sonne of Jechu beganne to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria seuentene yere. And he wrought that whych was euell in the syght of the Lorde, and followed the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat whych made Israel to synne, and departed not ther fro. And the Lorde was angry wyth Israel, and deliuered them into the hand of Hazael kyng of Siria, and into the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all theyr dayes.

And Jehoahaz besought the Lorde, & the Lorde heard him. For he considered the trouble of Israel, wher with the king of Siria troubled them. And the Lorde gaue Israel a deliuerer, so that they went out from vnder the subiection of the Syriens. And the chyldre of Israel dwelt in theyr tentes as before tyme. Neuerthelesse they departed not fro the synnes of the house of Jeroboam, whych made Israel synne, but walked i the. And there remained an Idols groue tyll also in Samaria. Neither dyd he leaue of the people to Jehoahaz, but syltye horsemen ten charettes, & ten thousande fotemen * for the kyng of Siria destroyed them, and made them lyke threshed dust. The rest of the wordes that concerne Jehoahaz, and all that he dyd, and hys power, are they not wyrtte in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Israel: And Jehoahaz slepte wyth hys fathers, and they buried hym in Samaria, and Joas hys sonne raigned in hys steade. In the xxxvij. yere of Joas kyng of Juda, beganne Jehoas the sonne of Jehoahaz to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria syxtene yere, and dyd that whych is euell in the syght of the Lorde, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, (that made Israel synne) for he walked therein.

The remnaunt of the wordes that concerne Joas & all y he dyd, & hys power wher wyth he fought agaynst Amaziabu kyng of Juda are they not wyrtte in the chronycle boke of the kynges of Israel: And Joas slepte with his fathers, and Jeroboam sat vpon his seate. And Joas was buried in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

When Elisa was fallen speke of hys synnes (wherof he dyd) Joas the kyng of Israel came downe vnto hym, & wepte before him, & sayd: * O my father, my father, & the charet of Israel, & the horsemen of the same. Elisa sayde vnto hym: take bowe & arrowes. And he toke vnto him bowe & arrowes. And he sayde to the kyng of Israel: put thine hāde vpo the bowe, & he put his hāde vpo it. And Elisa put his hādes vpo the kynges hādes, & sayde: open a window east ward: & whā he had opened it, Elisa sayde: Note, & he spote.

*iii. reg. ii. d

And

And he sayd: the arrowe of belth of the Lord: and the arrowe of helth agaynst Siria, for þu shalt smyte Siria in Apphek, tyll thou haue made an ende of them.

And he sayd: take þu arrowes: & he toke the: And he sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: smyte the grounde: & he smote thyle and ceased. And the man of God was angrie wth him, & sayd: þu shuldest haue smyte syue or syue tymes: * (or syuen tymes) & then thou haddest smytten Siria tyll thou haddest made an ende of them: where nowe þu shalt smyte Siria but thyle. And so Elisa dyed and they buryed hym, & þe souldiars of the Moabites came into þe lād, the same yere. And it chaunced as some of them were buryenge a man, and spyed the souldyars, they cast the mā into the sepulchre of Elisa. And whā the mā was rolled downe, and touched the body of Elisa: * he reuyned, and stode vpon hys fete.

* ecc. xlviii. a

But hazael vered Israel, all the dayes of Jehoahaz. And þe Lord had mercey on them & pitied the, & had respecte vnto the, because of his appointmēt made wth Abrahā, Ishaac & Jacob, and wolde not destroe the, nether cast he the from hym as yet. So hazael the kyng of Siria dyed and Shadad his sonne raygned in his steade. And Jehoahaz þe sonne of Jehoahaz wēt agayne, and toke out of the hāde of Benhadad þe sonne of hazael, the cyties which he had taken awaye out of the hande of Jehoahaz hys father, in warre: for thre tymes dyd Joas beate him, and restored the cyties vnto Israel agayne.

The xliij. Chapter.

Amaziah the kyng of Iuda puttech to deeth the manquellers of his father, and after smytch Edom. Joas dyeth & Jeroboam hys sonne succedeth in hys rowme. & after hym raygnech zacharias. Amaziah is kyled in Lachis, and Azaria raygnech in hys steade.

But Amaziah wolde not heare. And Jehoahaz kyng of Israel wēt vp, and he and Amaziah kyng of Iuda sawe ether other at Bethlames whych is in Iuda. And Iuda was put to the worse before Israel, and they fled euery man to theyr tentes. And Jehoahaz kyng of Israel toke Amaziah kyng of Iuda, the sonne of Jehoahaz the sonne of Ahaziah, at Bethlames, and came to Jerusalem & brake downe the wall of Jerusalem from the gate of Ephraim to þe corner gate, foure hundred cubytes. And he toke all the golde and syluer and all the vesselles that were founde in the house of the Lord, & in the treasures of the kynges house, and the chyldren toke he to be hys wardes & returned to Samaria agayne.

The rest of the actes of Jehoahaz which he dyd, & hys power, and howe he fought with Amaziah kyng of Iuda, are they not writte in the Chronycle boke of the kynges of Israel: and Jehoahaz slepte with his fathers, and was buryed at Samaria, amonge the kynges of Israel: and Jeroboam hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

In the xv. yere of Amaziah the sonne of Joas kyng of Iuda, was Jeroboam þe sonne of Joas

Joas made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and raygned. xli. yere, and wrought þe which was euell in þe syght of þe Lord. Nether turned he awaye from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat which made Israel to synne. He restored the coaste of Israel fro the enterynge of Hemath vnto the see of þe wilderness, according to the worde of the Lord God of Israel, which he spake by the hande of his seruauit * Jona the sonne of Amithai the prophete, which was of Seth hepher. For the Lord sawe howe that the aspycyon of Israel was excedynge bytter, in so moche that the presoned and the forsaken were at an ende. And ther was none to helpe Israel. And the Lord sayde not, that he wolde putt out the name of Israel from vnder heauen, but he helped the by the hande of Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

The xv. Chapter.

Azaria the kyng of Iuda becommeth a leper. Of Jotha, Shallum, Menahem, Pekahia, Cistiah, Jotham, and Ahaz.

* ii. pa. rrb. a

In the xxvij. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, beganne Azaria sonne of Amaziah kyng of Iuda to raygne. Syxtene yere olde was he when he was made kyng, and he raygned two and fyftye yere in Jerusalem, and hys mothers name was Jecheleiah of Jerusalem. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lord, accordynge to all thynges as dyd hys father Amaziah: saue þe the byllaulters, were not put awaye: for the people offered, and burned incense styll on the byllaulters.

* iiii. re. rii. d.

And the Lord smote the kyng, and he was a leper vnto þe dape of his deeth, * and dwelt in a leuerall house at libertye, and Jotha the kynges sonne gouerned the palace, and iudged the people of the lande. The reste of the wordes þe concerne Azaria and all þe he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of þe chronycles of the kynges of Iuda: And so Azaria slepte with his fathers, and they buryed him with hys fathers in the cytye of Dauid, and Jotham hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

In the xxxviij. yere of Azaria kyng of Iuda dyd zacharia the sonne of Jeroboam raygne vpon Israel in Samaria. vi. monethes: and wrought þe which was euell in þe syght of the Lord, as dyd hys fathers: and turned not awaye from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to synne. And Shallum the sonne of Jabez conspyred against hym, & smote hym in the syght of the people, & kyled him, & raygned in his steade.

The rest of the wordes that concerne zacharia, beholde, they are wyrtten in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Israel. Thys is also the worde of the Lord, which he spake vnto Jehu, sayinge: * thy sonnes shall sit on the seate of Israel in þe fourth generation after the. And it came so to passe.

* iiii. re. r. f

Shallum the sonne of Jabez beganne to raygne in the. xxxix. yere of Azaria kyng of Iuda: & he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Menahem the sonne of Gadi went by fro Thirza, & came to Samaria, & smote Shallum the sonne of Jabez in Samaria, & slue him, & raygned in his steade. The rest of the wordes that concerne Shallum, & the treason which he conspyred, beholde, they are wyrtten in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel. The same tyme Menahem destroied Thiphlah, & all þe were therein, & the coastes therof fro Cherzahi. And because they opened not to hym he smote it, and rpyte vp all their women with chylde.

The. xxxix. yere of Azaria kyng of Iuda began Menahem the sonne of Gadi to raygne vpon Israel ten yere in Samaria. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lord, & turned not awaye all his dayes fro the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to synne. And Phul the kyng of Assiria came vpo þe lāde. And Menahem gaue Phul a. talentes of syluer, that his hand might be with him and stablyshe the kyngdome in his hande. And Menahem made a proclamaciō for the money in Israel, that all men of substance shulde geue the kyng of Assiria fyfetye cycles of syluer a pece. And so the kyng of Assiria turned back agayne, and tarped not there in the lande. The rest of the wordes þe concerne Menahem, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtte in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel: And Menahem slepte with his fathers, & Pekahia his sonne dyd in his steade succede him in the kyngedome.

In the fyfttyth yere of Azaria kyng of Iuda, beganne Pekahia the sonne of Menahem to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria two yere, & dyd that which was euell in the syght of the Lord: and lefte not of fro the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel synne. But Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, which was a captayne of his, conspyred agaynst hym, and smote hym in Samaria, euen in the palace of the kynges house with Argob and Aria: and with him were fyfttye men of the Gilcadites: and he kyled hym, and raygned in hys rowme. The rest of the wordes that concerne Pekahia, and all that he dyd, beholde, they are wyrtte in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel.

In the liij. yere of Azaria kyng of Juda beganne Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria. xx. yere, & dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, and turned not awaye fro the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, that made Israel synne. In the dayes of Pekah kyng of Israel, came Tiglath Pelesar kyng of Assyria, and toke Iion, Abel, Bethmaacha, Tanoah, Kedesh, Hazor, Gilcad, Galile, and all the lande of Nephtali, & caried the awaye to Assyria.

And Hosea sonne of Elia conspired treason agaynst Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, and smote him, and slue him: and raygned in hys steade in the xx. yere of Jotham the sonne of Azariah. The rest of the wordes y concerne Pekah and all that he dyd, behold, they are wyrtte in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel.

The seconde yere of Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel, beganne Jotham the sonne of Azariah kyng of Juda to raygne. ffyue and twentye yere olde was he when he began to raygne: and he raygned fytene yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name was Jerusa the daughter of Zadok. And he dyd y which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde: eue accordyng to all as dyd his father Azariah, so dyd he. But the hyllalters were nott put awaye: for the people offered ad burnt incense styll in the hyllalters: he buylt the hygher dore of the house of the Lord. The rest of the wordes that concerne Jotham, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtte in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Juda. In those dayes the Lorde beganne to sende into Juda, Rezin the kyng of Siria, and Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu. And Jotham slepte w his fathers, and was buried w his fathers in the cite of Dauid hys father, and Ahaz hys sonne raygned in his steade.

The. xvi. Chapter.

Ahaz kyng of Juda consecrateth hys sonne in syer, and hath many battayles agaynst the kyng of Israel. In the steade of Ahaz raygneth Hezekiah hys sonne.

In the xvij. yere of Pekah sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel, Ahaz the sonne of Jotham kyng of Juda, beganne to raygne. Twentye yere olde was he, when he was made kyng:

and raygned fytene yere in Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was ryght in the eyes of the Lorde hys God, lyke Dauid hys father: But walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, yee, and made hys sonne to go thowen the syer, after the abhominacyons of the heythen, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered and burnt incense in the hyllalters, and on the hylls, and vnder euery thicke tree. * Then Rezin kyng of Siria and Pekah sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel came vp to Jerusalem to syght. And they fought agaynst Ahaz, but coulde not ouercome hym. At the same tyme Rezin kyng of Siria brought Tiglath agayne to Siria, and rydd the Jewes thence. And the Sirians * came to Elath, and dwell therein vnto this daye.

So Ahaz sent messengers to Tiglath Peleser kyng of Assyria, sayinge: I am thy seruant and thy sonne, come vp and deliuer me out of the hande of the kyng of Siria, & out of the hande of the kyng of Israel, which ryse vp agaynst me. And Ahaz toke the syluer and the golde that was founde in y house of the Lorde, and in the treasures of y kinges house, and sent a rewarde to the kyng of Assyria. * And the kyng of Assyria consented vnto hym. For the kyng of Assyria wet vp agaynst Damasco. And when he had taken it, he caried the people awaye to kyz, and slue Rezin.

And kyng Ahaz went to Damasco, to mete Tiglath Peleser kyng of Assyria. And when kyng Ahaz sawe an aulter that was at Damasco, he sent to ARIA the preste the paterne of the aulter, & the fastyon of it, and all the worckmanthp therof. And ARIA the preste made an aulter in all poyntes lyke to the paterne which kyng Ahaz had sent from Damasco: euen so dyd ARIA the preste make it, agaynst kyng Ahaz came from Damasco. And so, when the kyng was come from Damasco, he sawe the aulter, and the kyng wet to it, & offered theron. And he burnt his burnt-offeringe, and hys meatofferinge, and powdered hys dypnckofferyng: and sprynckled the bloude of hys peaceofferynges besyde y aulter, y was by y brassen aulter which was before the Lord, and set it wout the temple betwene the aulter and the temple of the Lord: and put it on the northsyde of the aultare.

And kyng Ahaz commaunded ARIA the preste, and sayde: vpon the greates aulter set on syer in the moynynge the burnt offeringe, & in the euen the meatofferinge, and the kinges burnt sacrifice & his meatofferinge, with the burnt offeringe of all the people of the lande, and their meatofferinge, & their dypnckofferynges: & powze therby, all the bloude of the sacrifice offerynges. But y brassen aulter will I come and se. And ARIA the preste dyd accordyng to all thynges as kyng. Ahaz commanded hym. * And kyng Ahaz brake the sydes of the botomes, and toke the lauer fro of them, and toke downe the Lauatoze fro of the brassen oren that were vnder it, & put it vpon a paucmet of stones. And the veyle for the Sabbath (that they had made in the house) & the kynges entree without turned he to the house of the Lorde, for feare of the kyng of Assyria. The reste of the wordes y concerne Ahaz, what he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda: And Ahaz slepte with hys fathers, and was buried with hys fathers in the cite of Dauid: and Hezekiah hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xvii. Chapter.

Hosea kyng of Israel is taken. And he and all hys realme brought to the Assyrians.

In the xii. yere of Ahaz kyng of Juda, beganne Hosea the sonne of Elia to raigine in Samaria vpo Israel. ix. yere, and dyd y which was euell in the syght of the Lorde, but not as the kynges of Israel that were before him. And Salimanasar kyng of Assyria came vp agaynst him, and Hosea became hys seruant, and gaue hym presentes. And the kyng of Assyria founde treason in Hosea: for he had sent messengers to So, kyng of Egypte, and brought no presente vnto y kyng of Assyria, from yere to yere: and therfore the kyng of Assyria toke hym: and put hym in pryson. * And then the kyng of Assyria came vp thowout all the lande, & gat vp agaynst Samaria, and briedged it thre yere. In y nynti yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assyria toke Samaria, and carped Israel awaye vnto Assyria, and put them in halya, in haboz by the ryuer of Goza, and in the cyties of the Medes. For it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel synned agaynst the Lorde theyr God, which had brought them out of the lande of Egypt, from vnder the bande of Pharao kyng of Egypte, and feared other Gods. And they walked in the ceremonies of the heythen, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel, & in the ceremonies which the kynges of Israel had made. And the chyldren of Israel went about to hyde those thynges that were not well, fro the Lorde theyr God. And they buylt them hyllalters in all theyr cyties, bothe in the towres where they kept watch, and also in the stroge townes. And they made the ymagines and groues in euery hye hyll, and vnder euery thych tre. And there they burnt incense in all the hyllalters, as dyd y heythen (whom the Lorde carped awaye before them) and wrought wycked thynges to angre y Lorde withall: for they serued most vyle Idoles, wherof the Lorde had sayde vnto them.

* Ye shall do no soche thyng.

And the Lorde restified in Israel, and in Juda by all the prophetes and by all y sears, sayinge. * Turne fro youre wycked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and my statutes, accordyng to all the lawe which I commaunded youre fathers, and which I sent to you by my seruantes the prophetes. * Notwithstandinge they wolde not heare: * but rather hardened theyr neckes, lyke to y stubburnesse of their fathers that dyd not beleue in the Lorde their God. For they refused hys statutes, and hys appoyntmet that he made with theyr fathers, & the witness (wherewith he witnessed vnto the) & they folowed vanyte, and became wayne, and went after the heythen that were rounde aboute the: concerning whom, the Lorde had charged the, that they shuld not do lyke the. But they left the commaundementes of the Lord theyr God, and made them Images of metall * euen two calves: and made Idole groues, & worshipped all the hoste of heauen, and serued Baall. * And they sacrificed theyr sonnes & theyr daughters in fyre, and vled witchcraft and enchauntementes: * euen sellynge them selues to worke wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde, and to angre hym.

And the Lorde was exceedinge wroth w Israel and put them out of hys syght: * that there was left but the trybe of Juda onely. Neuer theles, Juda also kept not the commaundementes of the Lorde theyr God, but walked in the ceremonies of Israel, which they made. And the Lorde cast vp all the seed of Israel, and vered them, and deliuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntill he had cast them out of hys syght. For Israel deuyded them selues from the house of Dauid, & made them a kyng, euen Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. And Jeroboam & drew we Israel awaye, that they shulde not folowe the Lorde: and made them synne a greates synne: For the chyldren of Israel walked in all the synnes of Jeroboam which he dyd, and departed not therfro, vntill the Lorde put Israel awaye out of hys syght, as he had sayde by all hys seruantes the prophetes. And so was Israel carped awaye out of theyr awne lade to Assyria eue vnto this daye.

And the kyng of Assyria brought men from Babylon, from Cutha, from Aua, fro Hanath, and from Sepharuaim, and put the in the cyties of Samaria, in steade of y chyldren of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, and dwell in the cyties therof. And it fortuneth, that at the begynnyng of theyr dwellinge there, they feared not the Lorde. And y Lorde sent Lyons amonge them, which slue them. Wherfore, men sayde to the kyng of Assyria. The nacyns which thou hast translated, & put in y cyties of Samaria, knowe not the Lorde: therefore shall they forsake the, & goe awaye. And the kyng of Assyria sayde vnto them. I v not not the lawe of the God of the lande, therfore he hath sent Lyons vpon them: and beholde they slaye them, because they knowe not the maner of worshyping of God of the lade.

Then the kyng of Assyria commaunded sayenge: carye thether one or twayne of the Preastes, whom ye brought thence, and let them go, and dwell there, and teache them of fastyon howe to serue the God of the cōtre. And then one of the Preastes which they had carped thence came, and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them howe they shulde feare the Lorde. Howbeit euery nacyon made them Gods of theyr awne and put them in the houses of the hyllaulters which the Samaritans had made, euery nacyon in their cyties wherin they dwelt. The me of Babilō made Socoth Benoth: and the men of Cuth made Mergal: and the men of Hamath made Mima. The Auites made Ribbaz, and Tharthak. And the Sepharuites burnt theyr chyldren in fyre for Adramelech and Anamelech, the Gods of Sepharuaim. And so they feared the Lorde, and made them Preastes of the hyllaulters, which sacrificed for them in the house of the hyllaulters. And so they feared the Lorde, and serued theyr awne Gods after the maner of the people, whom they carped thence.

And vnto this daye they do after the olde maner: and nether feare God, nether do after theyr ordinaunces and customes, and after the lawe and commaundement which the Lorde commaunded the chyldren of Jacob, who he called Israel. And the Lorde made an appoyntement wyth them, and charged them, sayenge: * feare none other Goddes, nor bowe youre selues to them, nor serue the nor sacrifice to the: but feare the Lorde which brought you out of the lade of Egypte with greate power and a stretched out arme: hym feare, and to hym bowe, and to hym do sacrifice. The statutes, ordinaunces, lawe and commaundement which he wrote for you, se that ye be diligent to do for euermore, & feare not any other goddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made with you, se ye forget not and feare none other goddes: but the Lorde poure God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all poure enemyes. Howbeit, they dyd not hearken, but dyd after theyr olde custome. And so these nacions feared the Lorde, and serued theyr ymages also: lyke as dyd theyr chyldren and theyr chyldrens chyldren. Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

The xliii. Chapter.

Hezekia kyng of Iuda putteth downe the brasen serpent, and destroyeth the Idoles. Salmanaasar kyngeth Israel to the Assyrians. The blasphemie of Sennacherib or Sancherib.

In the thyrde yere of Hosa sonne of Ela kyng of Israel it came to passe, that Hezekia the sonne of Abaz kyng of Iuda dyd raygne. * Twetye and fyue yere olde was he, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned. xix. yere in Ierusalem. His mothers name also was Abi the daughter of zacharia, and he dyd in which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde accordyng to all as dyd Dauid hys father. * He put awaye the hyllaulters, and brake the ymages and cut downe the groues, and all to brake the * brasen serpent that Hoses had made: for vnto thole dayes the chyldren of Israel dyd burne sacrifice to it, & he called it Nehustan. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israel, so that after hym was none lyke him amonge all the kynges of Iuda, nether were there anye soche before hym. For he claued to the Lorde, and departed not from hym, but kepte hys commaundementes, which the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the Lorde was with hym: so he prospered in all thynges which he toke in hande. And he rebelled agaynst the kyng of Assyria, and serued him not. He smote the Philistines euen vnto Gaza and coastes therof, & both castels where they kepte watches and stronge cyties.

* And in the fourth yere of kyng Hezekia, (which was the seuenth yere of Hosa sonne of Ela kyng of Israel) it fortuned, that Salmanazar kyng of Assyria came vpon agaynst Samaria, & beleged it. And after thre yeres they toke it euen in the syxte yere of Hezekia: that is to saye, in nyth yere of Hosa kyng of Israel. And Samaria was wonne. And the kyng of Assyria, dyd carye awaye Israel vnto Assyria, and put them in Halah and in Habor by the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of the Medes: because they wolde not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde theyr God: but transgressed hys appoyntment, and all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded, & wolde nether heare them nor do them.

* Therfore in the liiii. yere of kyng Hezekia dyd Sennacherib kyng of Assyria come vpon agaynst all the stronge cyties of Iuda, and toke them. And Hezekia kyng of Iuda sent to the kyng of Assyria to Lachis, saying: I haue offended: departe from me, and me, and all that thou puttest on me, that will I beare. And the kyng of Assyria appoynted vnto Hezekia kyng of Iuda thre hundred talentes of syluer, & thirtie talentes of gold. * And Hezekia gaue him all the syluer that was fonde in the house of the Lorde, & in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same reason dyd Hezekia rent of the dores of the temple of the Lorde & the pillers (whyche the sayde Hezekia kyng of Iuda had couered ouer) & gaue the to the kyng of Assyria.

And the kyng of Assyria sent Tharthan and Rabaris and Rablake from Lachis to kyng Hezekia with a great hoste agaynst Ierusalem. And they went vpon, and came to Ierusalem, & gat them vpon, & stode by the cōduyte of the vpper pole which is in the waye of the fullers felde. And whan they had called to the kyng, there came out to them, Eliakim sonne of Elia which was stuarde of houtholde, and Sobna the scribe, & Joah the sonne of Asaph, the recorder. And Rablake sayde vnto them: Tell ye Hezekia I praye you: thus sayth the great kyng, eue the kyng of Assyria: What confidence is this that thou hast? Dost thou speake soche a lyghe worde in dede? By cosicell and powre I wil be ready to make warre. On who then dost thou trust, that thou rebellest agaynst me? * Dost thou truste to the staffe of this broken reede Egypte, on which yf a mā leane, it wyl go into his hande, and pearce it. Euen so is Pharaon kyng of Egypte vnto all that trust on him. * If ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde oure God: Is not that he whose hyllaulters and his other aulters, Hezekia hath put downe, and hath sayde to Iuda & Ierusalem, ye shall worshyppe before this aultre here in Ierusalem.

Howe therfore deliuer wardes to my Lorde the kyng of Assyria, that ye rebell not, & I wyl deliuer the two thousande horses, yf thou be able to sett ryders vpon the: Why thynkest thou scoone at the presence of one of the lest dukes of my masters seruantes, & trustest to Egypte for charettes and horsmen? * Moreover, am I come now without bydinge of the Lorde to this place, to destroye it: the Lorde sayde to me: go vpon to this lade, and destroye it. And Eliakim the sonne of Helkia & Sobna, & Joah sayde vnto Rablake: speake (I praye the) to thy seruantes in the Assyrians language, for we vnderstande it: & talke not w vs in the Iewes tonge, in the eares of this people that are on the wall. And Rablake sayde vnto them: hath my master sent me to thy master and to the, to speake these wordes? hath he not sent me because of the men which sytt on the wall, that they maye eate their awne donge, & dryncke their awne piss with you?

And so Rablake stode, and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Iewes language, and spake sayenge: heare the sayenge of the great kyng of Assyria. Thus sayth the kyng: let not Hezekia begyle you, for he shall not be able to deliuer you out of myne hande: nether let Hezekia make you to trust in the Lorde, sayenge: the Lorde shall surely deliuer vs, and this cytie shall not be geuen ouer into the hande of the kyng of Assyria. Herken not vnto Hezekia, for thus sayth the kyng of Assyria.

* Deale kindly with me, & come out to me. And then eate euery man of his awne vyne, and of his awne fygge tree, & dryncke euery mā of the water of his awne well, tyll I come, and sett you to as good a lande as youres is: a lande of corne and wyne, a lande of bread and vyneyardes, a lande of oyle, of olyue trees, and of honny: that ye maye lyue, and not dye. And herken not vnto Hezekia, for he begyleth you, sayenge: the Lorde shall deliuer vs. * hath euery one of the Gods of the nacions deliuered his lande, out of the hande of the kyng of Assyria: where is the God of Hamath, & of Arphad: and where is the God of Sepharuaim, Hena & Iua: dyd they deliuer Samaria out of myne hande, & what God is it amonge all the goddes of the nacions, that hath deliuered his lande out of myne hande, shall the Lorde deliuer Ierusalem out of myne hande?

But they were of the people helde their peace, and answered not him a worde: for the kyng had comaunded, sayenge: answer him not. Then Eliakim which was the stuarde of houtholde, and Sobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to Hezekia with their clothes rent, and tolde him the wordes of Rablake.

The xix. Chapter.

The Angell of the Lorde killeth an hōdred foure thowse and fyue thousande men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is killeth of his awne sounes.

It came to passe, in the nyth yere of Hezekia hearde it, he rent hys clothes, and put on sacke, and came into the * house of the Lorde, and sent Eliakim which was stuarde of houtholde, and Sobna the scribe, & the elders of the preastes clothed in sacke, to Asaph the prophete the sonne of Amos. And they sayde vnto him, thus sayth Hezekia: this daye is a daye of tribulacion and of rebuke and blasphemie. For the chyldren are come to the byrth, and there is no strenght to be deliuered. Paraduventure the Lorde thy God wyl heare all the wordes of Rablake, who the kyng of Assyria his master hath sent, to rayle on the lyvinge God, and to rebuke him with wordes, which the Lorde thy God hath hearde: And lyfte thou vpon thy prayer for the remnant that are left. So the seruantes of kyng Hezekia came to Asaph: And Asaph

Isaie sayd vnto them: So shall ye saye to poure master: Thus sayth the Lorde: be not afrayde of þe wordes which thou hast heard, with which the younge men of the kyng of Assyria haue rayled on me. Beholde, I will put him in another mynde, and he shall heare thydinges, and so returne to hys awne lande: * And I will bringe to passe, þe shall fall vpon the swerde * euen in his awne lande.

And Rabshakeh went backe agayne, and founde þe kyng of Assyria fyghting agaynst Libna: for he had hearde, howe that he was departed fro Lachis. And whē he hearde men saye of Tirhaka kyng of þe blacke Moyses: Beholde, he is come out to fyght agaynst þe, he departed, & sent messengers vnto hezekia sayinge. Thus speake to hezekia kyng of Iuda, sayinge: let not thy God disceane þe, in who þe trustest, sayinge: Jerusalem shall not be deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast heard, what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue vtterly destroyed the. And shalt thou * (alone) escape: haue the Gods of the hethen deliuered the, which myne an-
* fectures haue destroyed: As Gozan, & haran, Rezech, & the chyldren of Eden which were in Withlasar: where is þe kyng of Hamath, and the kyng of Arphad, the kyng of the cy-
* tie of Sepharnaim, & of Hena & Iuar?

So hezekia receaued the letter of þe hande of the messengers, and redd it: And hezekia went vp into the house of the Lorde, & layde it abroade before the Lorde. And hezekia prayed before the Lorde, and sayde: O Lord God of Israel, which dwellest betwene the Cherubs, þe art God alone ouer all the kyng-
* domes of the erth, thou hast made heauen & earth Lord, howe downe thine eare, & heare: Open Lord thine eyes (I beseeche the) & se: and heare the wordes of Sennacherib which hath sent thys man to rayle on the lypunge God. Of a truthe Lorde, the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed nacys and their landes, and haue sett fyre on their Gods. For they were no Gods, but the worcke of the handes of man: euen of wood & stone. And they destroyed them. Nowe therfore, O Lorde oure God, I beseeche the, saue thou vs out of hys hāde, þe all the kyngdomes of the earth maye knowe, that thou onely art the Lorde God. And I say the sonne of Amoz sent to hezekia, sayinge: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: þe which thou hast prayed me, concerning Sennacherib kyng of Assyria, I haue hearde it. This is therfore the worde that þe Lord hath sayde of him: * The virgin enē the daughter of Sion hath despyled the, and laughed the to scoone (o þe kyng of Assyria) the daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her head at the. * Whom hast thou rayled on, & whom hast thou blasphemed? Agaynst who hast thou exalted thy voyce, and lysted by thine eyes to hys. Euen agaynst the holy of Israel. * By the hande of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lorde and sayde: w the multitude of my charettes I am come vp to the toppes of the mountaynes, euen alonge by the sydes of Libanon, and I will cut downe the hye Cedar trees and the lustie fyre trees therof: and I will go into the lod* ging of his nest, & into þe wood of his playne. I haue digged & droncke straunge waters, and w the steppe of my goynge will I drye all the water poles that are beleaged.

Hast thou not hearde, howe I haue ordey-
* ned soch a thynge a great while ago, & haue prepared it fro þe begynninge: And shall I not nowe bringe it forth, þe it maye destroye, and to bringe stronge cyties into wast hea-
* pes of stones: And þe inhabitants of the shalbe of lytle power, & saynt herted, and confoun-
* ded, and * shalbe lyke the grasse of the felde, or grene herbe, or as þe hye on the toppes of the houses: or as þe corne þis vntripe, & smyt-
* ten w blastinge. I knowe thy dwellinge, thy commynge out, and thy goynge in, * (and thy waye) & thy furre agaynst me. And because þe ragest agaynst me, and thynkest thy selfe so bleisid: this is come vp vnto myne eares, & I will put my hoke in thy nastreis, and my bytt in thy lypnes, and will bringe the backe agayne, the same waye thou comest.

And this shalbe a sygne vnto the (O he-
* zekia) þe shall eate this pere of soch thynge as growe of them selues, and the next yere soch as come vp of those that dyd growe of their awne accorde. And the thirde yere sowe ye and reape, plant vyneyardes and eate the frutes therof. And it that is escaped & lefte, of þe daughter of Iuda, shall yet agayne take rotinge downe warde and beare frute vnto warde. For out of Ierusalem shall go a rem* nant, and a nombze that shall escape out of mount Sion: the zeile of the Lorde of hostes shall bringe thys thynge to passe.

Wherfore, thus sayth þe Lorde, concerninge the kyng of Assyria: he shall not come to this cytie, nor shote an arrowe into it, nor come before it with shilde, nor cast bancke agaynst it: but shall go backe agayne the waye he came, & shall not come into this cytie sayth the Lorde. For I will defende this cytie, to saue it, for myne awne sake, and for Dauid my seruautes sake.

And so it came to passe that the selfe same nyght þe angell of the Lorde wēt out & smote in the hoste of the Assyrians an hūdzred foure skore and fyue thousande. And when þe rem* nant were vp erlye in the moynynge: they sawe, they were all deed coarles. * And so Sennacherib kyng of Assyria auoyded and departed, and went agayne, & dwelt at Ri-
* niue. And it fortunēd, þe as he was in a tēple worshyping worshypinge Mithroch hys God, Adrame-

* lech & Sarezar his awne sonnes smote hym with the swerde. And they escaped into the lande of Armenia, and Asarhaddon hys son-
* ne raygned in his steade.

The xx. Chapter.

Hezekia is speke, and receaueth the sygne of his health. He receaueth rewardes of Berodach, and is reprehended of Ilay because he shewed hym the treasure. He dyeth and Manasse hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

About that tyme * was hezekia speke vnto þe deeth. And the pro-
* phete Ilay þe sonne of Amoz came to him, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayth þe Lorde: * put thy-
* ne houtholde in an ordze, for thou shalt die, and not lyue. And hezekia turned his face to the wall, & prayed vnto the Lorde, sayenge: I beseeche the nowe, O Lorde, remēbze howe I haue walked before the in truthe and with a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy syght, and hezekia wepte soze.

And it fortunēd that * afore Ilay was gone out into the myddle of the courte, the worde of þe Lorde came to him, sayinge: tur-
* ne agayne, and tell hezekia the captayne of my people: Thus sayth þe Lorde God of Da-
* uid thy father: I haue herde thy prayer, and sene thy teares. And beholde, I will heale þe, so that on the thyrde daye thou shalt go vp into the house of the Lorde. And I will adde vnto thy dayes yet fyftene yere, and will deli-
* uer the and this cytie out of the hāde of the kyng of Assyria, and will defende thys cy-
* tie for myne awne sake, and for Dauid my seruautes sake. And I say sayde. Take a lo-
* pe of fygges. And they toke and layed it on the soze, and he recovered.

And hezekia sayde vnto Ilay. what shalbe the sygne, that the Lorde will heale me, and that I shall go vp into the house of the Lord the thyrde daye? Ilay answered: thys sygne shalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lorde will do that he hath spoken. * Shall the sha-
* dow go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees: hezekia answered: it is a lyght thynge for the shadowe to go downe ten degrees. * (neither is that my desyre,) but yf the shadow go backwarde ten degrees, it is no lyght thynge. And I say the prophete called vnto the Lorde, * and he brought the sha* dow ten degrees backwarde by which it had gone downe in the dyall of Abaz.

* The same reasoun Berodach Baladan the sonne of Baladā kyng of Babilon sent letters ad a present vnto hezekia, for he had hearde, howe that hezekia was speke. And hezekia was glad of them, and shewed them all hys treasure house syluer, golde, odoures, precious opynmente, all the house of hys ar-
* moyse, and all that was founde in hys trea* sures: there was nothynge in hys house, & in all his realme, that hezekia shewed the not.

And I say the prophete came vnto kyng D
* hezekia, and sayde vnto hym. What sayed these men, and from whēce came they to the? And hezekia sayde: they be come from a far-
* re countree, euen from Babilon. And he say-
* de agayne: what haue they sene in thy house? hezekia answered: all the thynge that are in my house haue they sene: there is nothynge amōge my treasures, that I haue not shewed them. And I say sayde vnto hezekia: heare the worde of the Lorde: Beholde, the dayes come, that all that is in thy house, and what soener thy father & haue layde vp in store vnto thys daye * shalbe carped into Babilon, and nothynge shalbe lefte sayth the Lorde. And of thy sonnes (that shall procede oute of the, and which thou shalt begette) shall they take awaye, and they shalbe chambze-
* lains in the palayce of the kyng of Babilon. And hezekia sayde vnto Ilay: wellcome be the worde of the Lorde which thou hast spo* ken: And he sayde: shall ther not be peace and truthe in my dayes?

The remnaunt of the wordes that con-
* cerne hezekia, and all hys power, and howe he made a pole and a conduyte, and brought water into the cytie, are they not written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda: * And hezekia slepte w his fathers, * and Manasse hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The xxi. Chapter.

Manasse was twelve yere olde, when he beganne to raygne and raygned fyfty & fyue yere in Jeru-
* sale: hys mothers name also was hephziba. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, euen after the abhomi-
* nacyons of the hethen whom the * Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. For he went and buylt vp the hyllaulters, * which hezekia hys father had destroyed. And he reared vp aulters for Baal, and made Idoll
* groues: as dyd Abaz kyng of Israel, and worshypped all the hoste of heauen, and ser-
* ued them. And he buylt aulters in the house of the Lorde, of which the Lorde sayde: * in Ierusalem will I put my name. And he buylt aulters for all the host of heauen, eue in two
* courtes of the house of the Lorde. * And he offered hys sonnes in fyre, and gaue hede vnto witchcraft and sojcery, and mayntened
* workers with spretes, and tellers of fortun-
* nes: and brought moche wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde to angre hym.

And he put an ymage of a grone (that he * had made) euen in the temple, of which the Lorde had sayde to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne, * in thys house and in Ierusalem
* (which

(which I haue chosen out of all trybes of Israel) wyll I put my name for euer. Neither will I make the fete of Israel more any more out of the lande, which I gaue theyr fathers: so that they wyll obserue and do all that I haue commaunded them, and accordyng to all the lawe that my seruauit Moyses commaunded them. But they hearkened not: and Manasse ledd them out of the waye to do more wyckedlye then dyd the hethen people, whom the Lord destroyed befoze the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lord spake by his seruantes p prophetes, sayinge: because Manasse kyng of Juda hath done soche abhominacions, and hath wrought more wyckedlye then all that the Amozites (which were befoze hym) dyd: & hath made Juda synne also with hys Idoles. Therefore thus sayth the Lord God of Israel. * Beholde, I wyll byynge soche euell vpon Jerusalem and Juda, that whoso heareth of it both his eares shall tynge. And I wyll stretch ouer Ierusalem & the squaryng lyne of Samaria, and the plommet of the house of Ahab. And I wyll wyppen out Ierusalem, as a mā wyppeth a dishe, and when he hath wypped it, turneth it vpon syde downe. And I wyll leaue the remnant of myne inheritance, and deliuer them into the hande of theyr enemies, and they shall be robbed and spoyled of all their aduersaries: euen because they haue done euell in my syght, & haue angered me, fence the tyme theyr fathers came out of Egypte vnto this daye.

And Manasse shedd innocent bloude exceedinge moche, tyll he replenished Jerusalem from corner to corner, besyde hys synne wherwith he made Juda to synne, and to do euell in the syght of the Lord.

The rest of the wordes p concerne Manasse, and all that he dyd, and hys synne that he synned, are they not writen in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And Manasse slepte with hys fathers, and was buried in his awne house, eue in the garden of Aza: & Amon his sonne raygned in hys steade.

* Amon was. xxii. yere olde whē he beganne to raygne, and he raygned two yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Hilemeth the daughter of Harum of Jotba. And he did euell in the syght of the Lord (as his father Manasse dyd), and walked in all the waye p his father walked in: & serued the ydoles p his father serued, & worshypped the. And he forsoke the Lord God of hys fathers, & walked not in the waye of the Lord.

And the seruantes of Amon conspyred agaynst hym, and slue the kyng in hys awne house. And the people of the lande slue all the that had conspyred agaynst kyng Amon, & the people made Josia hys sonne kyng, in hys steade. The rest of the wordes that concerne Amon, what thynges he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Juda? And they buried hym in hys sepulchre, in the garden of Aza: & Josia hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xxii. Chapter.

After Josiah hearde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Siah the prophetisse for counsell.

Josia was * epght yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned. xxxi. yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Jedida the daughter of Adaia of Boz: cath. he dyd that which is ryght in the syght of the Lord, and walked in all the wayes of Dauid his father, and bowed nether to the ryght hande or to the left.

* And it came to passe, that in the. xviii. yere of the raygne of kyng Josia, p kyng sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia the sonne of Meshulā the scribe, to the house of the Lord, sayenge: * go vp to Helkia p hys preast, that he maye somme p slyuer which is brought into the house of the Lord, which the keepers of p porche haue gathered of the people, and let them deliuer it into the hande of them that do the worke, and that haue the ouerlyght of the house of the Lord: and let them geue it to them that worke in the house of the Lord (to repayre the decayed places of the temple, euen vnto carpenters & masons, and workers vpon the walles, and for to bye tymbre and fre stone to repayre the temple. howbeit, let no rekonynge be made with the of the monye that is deliuered into their hāde, for their vse is to deale faithfully.

* And Helkia the hys preste sayd vnto Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the house of the Lord, and Helkia gaue the boke to Saphan, and he red in it. And Saphan the scribe came to the kyng, and brought him worde agayne, and sayde: thy seruantes haue bestowed p monye (that was founde in the temple) & haue deliuered it vnto them that do the worke, & that haue the ouerlyght of the house of the Lord. And Saphan the scribe shewed the kyng, sayeng: Helkia the preaste hath deliuered me a boke. And Saphan red in it befoze the kyng.

And it fortuned, p whan the kyng had hearde p wordes of the boke of the lawe, he rent his clothes. And the kyng commaunded Helkia the preast, & Ahikam p sonne of Saphan, and Achbor the sonne of Michaia, and Saphan the scribe, and Ahabia a seruauit of the kynges, sayenge: * go ye and enquire of the Lord for me and for the people, and for all Juda, cōcernynge the wordes of thys boke that is founde. For great is the wrath of the Lord that is kindled agaynst vs, because cause oure fathers haue not hearkened vnto the wordes of thys boke, to do accordyng vnto all that which is writen therein for vs.

So Helkia the hys preast and Ahikam, Achbor, and Saphan, and Ahabia went vnto Hulda the prophetisse the wyfe of Sullā the sonne of Chikua the sonne of Harham keeper of the wardrope: whyche prophetisse dwelt in Ierusalem in the house of the doctrine, and they commoned with her. And she answered them: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel. Tell the man that sent you to me: thus sayth the Lord: beholde, I wyll byynge euell vpon thys place, and on the inhabitants therof. (eue all the wordes of the boke which the kyng of Juda hath red) because they haue forsaken me, and haue burnt incense vnto other Gods, to angre me with all the wordes of theyr handes: My wrath also shall be kindled agaynst thys place, and shall not be quenched.

But to the kyng of Juda (which sent you to aske counsell of the Lord,) so shall ye saye: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel as touchynge the wordes which ye haue heard: Because thyn herte dyd melt, and because thou hast humbled thy selfe befoze me the Lord, when I heardst what I spake agaynst thys place, and agaynst the inhabitants of the same (howe that they shulde be destroyed and accursed:) and hast rent thy clothes and wepte befoze me: of that also haue I hearde, sayth the Lord. Beholde therefore, I wyll reueale the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalt be put into thy graue in peace, and thyn eyes shall not se all the euell, which I wyll bringe vpon thys place. And they brought the kyng worde agayne.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Josia readeth Deuteronomie befoze the people. He putteth downe the ydoles, after he had kyled the preastes therof. He kepeth pasture. He was kyled in ageddo, and hys sonne Jehoahaz raygned in hys steade. After he was taken, hys sonne Jehoahaz was made kyng.

And then * the kyng sent, and there gathered vnto hym all the elders of Juda and of Ierusalem. And the kyng went vp into the house of the Lord, with all the men of Juda and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, with the preastes, and prophetes and all the people both small and grete. And he red in the eares of them * all the wordes of the boke of the coneuant, which was founde in the house of the Lord. And the kyng stode by a pyler * and made a coneuant befoze the Lord, that they shulde walke after the Lord, and kepe his commaundmentes, hys wytnesses, & hys statutes with all theyr herte, and all theyr soule, and make good the wordes of the sayde appoyntment that were wyrtten in the sayde boke. And all the people consented to the appoyntment.

And the kyng commaunded Helkia the hys preaste, and the inferioure preastes and the keepers of the ornamentes, to bynne out of the temple of the Lord, all the vesselles p were made for Baal, for the Idole groues, & for all the hoste of heauen. And he burnt the without Jerusalem in the felde of Cedron, and carped the ashes of them into Bethel. And he put downe p ministers of Baal whom the kynges of Juda had founded to burne incense in the * hyllaulters and cyties of Juda, that were rounde aboute Jerusalem, and also them that burnt incense vnto Baal, to the sonne, to the mone, to the planetes, and to all the hoste of heauen. And he brought out the groue from the temple of p Lord without Jerusalem vnto the broke Cedron, and burnt it there at the broke Cedron, and stampete it to pouldre, and cast the duste therof vpon the graues of the chyldren of the people. And he brake downe the celles of the male stues that were by the house of p Lord, where the women wone hangynges for the Idole groue.

And he brought all the preastes out of the cyties of Juda, and despyled the hyllaulters, where the preastes had burnt incense: euen fro Geba to Beerseba, and destroyed the alters of the Gates, that were in p enterynge in of the gate of Josia the gouernoure of the cite which were (as a man goeth in) on the left hande of the gate of the cytie. Neuerthelesse the preastes of the hyllaulters came not vp to the altar of the Lord in Jerusalem, saue onlye they dyd eate of p swete breade among theyr brethren.

And he despyled * Topheth, which is in the valeye of the chyldren of Hinom, because no man shulde offer hys sonne or hys daughter in fyre to Molech: he put downe the horses that the kynges of Israel had geuen to the sonne at the enterynge in of the house of the Lord, by the chābre of Nathaniel the chamberlaine which was ruler of the suburbs, and burnt the charettes of the sonne with fyre. And the alters that were on the toppe of the parloure of Ahab (which p kynges of Juda had made) and the * alters which Manasse had made in p two courttes of the house of the Lord, dyd the kyng brake downe, and ranne thence, and cast the dust of them into the broke Cedron.

And the hyllaulters that were befoze Jerusalem on the ryght hande of the mounte Oliuete * (which Salomon the kyng of Israel had buyded for Asarothe Idoll of the zidons, and for Chamosh the Idoll of the Moabites, and for Milchom the abhominable Idoll of p chyldren of Ammon) toke the kyng despyled: and brake the ymages, and cut downe p Idoll groues, and fylled theyr places with the bones of men.

* iii. Regu. rii. a. Wherouer * the autler that was at Bethel, the hyllautler made by Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (which made Israel synne) bothe the autler and also the hyll, he brake downe and burnt the hyll alter and stampede it to powder, and burnt y^e Idole grone. And as Josia turned hym selfe, he spyed the graues that were in the mount, and sent and fette the bones out of the graues, and burnt them vpon the autler, to polute it, accordynge to y^e worde of the Lorde that the man of God prophesied * which tolde the same wordes.

* iii. Regu. rii. a. Then he sayde: what graue stone is y^eonder that I see? And the men of the cytie tolde hym, it is the sepulchre of the man of God, whych came from Juda, and tolde the selfe same thynges that thou hast done to the autler of Bethel. And he sayd let hym be: for that no man moue hys bones. And so hys bones were laied with y^e bones of a prophete that came out of Samaria.

And all the houses of the hyllautlers in the cyties of Samaria which the kynges of Israel had made, to angre * (the Lorde) with all: those Josia put out of the waye, and dyd to them according to all the actes that he had done in Bethel. And he sacrificed all y^e preestes of the hyllautlers y^e were ther euen vpon the autlers, and burnt mennes bones vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

* ii. Para. rii. a. And the kyng commaunderd all the people, sayeng: * kepe the feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde your God: as it is wyrtten in the boke of thys couenaunt. * There was no passeouer holden lyke that, from y^e dayes of the iudges that iudged Israel, and in all the dayes of the kynges of Israel and of the kynges of Juda. In the .xviii. yere of kyng Josia was this passeouer holden to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

And thereto workers with spyetes, & sothfayers, ymages, ydoles, and all the abhominacions that were spyed in the lande of Juda and in Jerusalem, those did Josia put out of the waye, to perfourme the wordes of the lawe, which were wyrtten in the boke, that Helkia the p^reastre founde in the house of the Lorde: lyke vnto him was there no kyng before hym, that turned to the Lorde with all hys herte, with all his soule & all hys myght accordynge to all the lawe of Moyses, nether after hym arose there any soche as he.

* iii. Regu. rii. a. Not withstandinge the Lorde turned not fro the scarcenesse of hys great wrath (wherewith he was angrie agaynst Juda) because of all the prouocacions that Manasse had prouoked hym withall. And the Lorde sayde: * I wyll put Juda also, out of my syght, as I haue done awaye Israel, and wyll cast of thys cytie Jerusalem which I haue chosen; and the house of whych I sayde: my name shalbe there.

Therest of the wordes that concerne Josia and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Juda?

* ii. Para. rii. a. In hys dayes Pharaos Necho kyng of Egypte wet v^y agaynst the kyng of Assyria to the ryuer of Euphrates. And kyng Josia went agaynst hym, and was slayne of hym at Magiddo, when he had sene hym. And hys seruantes caried hym deed from Magiddo, and brought hym to Jerusalem & buried hym in hys awne sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Jehoahaz the sonne of Josia, and anoynted hym, and made hym kyng in hys fathers steade.

Jehoahaz was .xxiii. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Hamiel y^e daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the syght of y^e Lorde, accordynge to all thynges as his fathers had done. And Pharaos Necho put hym in bonds at Ribla in the lande of Hamath, that he shulde not raygne in Jerusalem, and put the lande to a trybute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a talent of golde. And Pharaos Necho made Eliakim y^e sonne of Josia kyng in the rowme of Josia his father, and turned hys name to Jehoakim, and toke Jehoahaz awaye, whych when he came to Egypte, dyed there.

And Jehoakim gaue the syluer and the golde to Pharaos: & taxed the lande, to geue the moneye accordynge to the request of Pharaos: requyringe of euery mā (accordynge to theyr abylyte) syluer and golde: euen of the people of the lade, to geue vnto Pharaos Necho. Jehoakim was .xv. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned .xi. yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Zebuda the daughter of Bedaia of Kuma. And he dyd that which was euell in y^e syght of the Lorde, accordynge to all thinge as his fathers had done.

The .xxiii. Chapter.

Jehoakim dyeth, Jerusalem is besieged of the Babylonians. Jehoakim yeldeth hym selfe to the kyng of Babylon. And in hys rowme came Zedekiah, which was called Zedekiah.

In hys dayes came Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon v^y, and Jehoakim became hys seruant thre yere, and then turned, and rebelled agaynst hym. And the Lorde sent vnto him men of warre from amonge the Caldeys, from amonge the Syrians, out of the Moabites, and from the chyldren of Ammon: and sent them agaynst Juda, to destroye it, accordynge to the sayinge of the Lorde, which he spake by hys seruantes the prophetes. Onely, at the byddynge of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put them out of his syght, for the synnes of Manasse, accordynge accordynge to all that he dyd: and for the innocent bloude that he shed, and fylled Jerusalem with innocent bloude: and the Lorde wolde not be reconcyled.

* ii. Para. rii. a. Therest of the wordes that concerne Jehoakim, & all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Juda? And so Jehoakim slepte wth hys fathers: and Jehoachin hys sonne raygned in hys steade. And the kyng of Egypt came nomore out of his lande: for the kyng of Babylō had taken fro the ryuer of Egypt vnto the ryuer of Euphrates, all y^e pertayned to the kyng of Egypte. Jehoachin was .xviij. yere olde, & raygned in Jerusalem thre monethes. Hys mothers name also was Nechusta, y^e daughter of Elnathā of Jerusalem. And he dyd y^e which was euell in the sight of the Lorde, according to all as hys father had done. * In that tyme came the seruantes of Nabuchadnezar kyng of Babylō v^y agaynst Jerusalem, & the cytie was beleged. And Nabuchadnezar the kyng of Babylō came agaynst the cytie: & his seruantes dyd belege it. * And Jehoachin y^e kyng of Juda came out to the kyng of Babylō, he and hys mother, hys seruantes, hys lordes, and hys chamberlaynes. And the kyng of Babylō toke him, in the cyght yere of hys raygne.

* iii. Regu. rii. a. And he caried out thence all the treasures of the house of the Lorde, & the treasure of the kynges house: and brake all the vessels of golde, which Salomon kyng of Israel had made in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lorde had sayde. And he caried awaye all Jerusalem, and all the lordes, and all the strong men of warre, euen .x. M. into captiuite: and all craftes men and keepers, none remayning saue the poore common people of the lande.

And he caried awaye Jehoachin to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, his chamberlaynes, and the that were myghty in the lande: those caried he awaye into captiuite fro Jerusalem to Babylō. And all the actiue mē of warre, euen .viij. M. and craftesmen, and porters .M. all y^e were stronge and apte for warre, dyd the kyng of Babylon bring to Babylō captiue. * And the kyng of Babylon made Mathania hys fathers brother, kyng in his steade, & chaunged hys name to Zedekia.

* iii. Regu. rii. a. Zedekia was .xvi. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned eleue yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Hamital the daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, accordynge to all as Jehoachin had done. For the wrath of the Lorde was moued agaynst Jerusalem and Juda, vntyll he cast the out of hys syght. And Zedekia rebelled agaynst the kyng of Babylon.

The .xxv. Chapter.

Jerusalem is besieged of Nabuchadnezar, other: wyse called, Nebuchadnezar, and it and the temple are bothe burnt. The sonnes of Zedekia are slayne before hys eyes, and after are hys awne eyes put out. Juda is brought to Babylon, and after is Jehoachin cralled.

In the tenth daye of the tenth moneth: Nebuchadnezar kyng of Babylō came, he and all his host agaynst Jerusalem: and pitched agaynst it, and made engynes agaynst it on euery syde. And the cytie was beleged vnto the eleuenth yere of kyng Zedekia. * And the tenth daye of the tenth moneth, there was so greate hongre in the cytie, that there was no breed for the people of the lande.

And the cytie was broke v^y: and all the men of armes fledd by nyght, by a waye thowre a gate which is betwene two walles, by the kynges garden: the Chaldees lyinge about the cytie.

And the kyng went the waye toward the playne. And the soudyers of y^e Chaldees folowed after the kyng, and toke him in the playne of Jericho, and all hys armie were scattered awaye from hym, * (and lefte hym.) * So they toke the kyng, and brought hym to Nebuchadnezar the kyng of Babylō to Ribla, where they reasoned wth hym. And they slue the sonnes of Zedekia before hys eyes: and he put out the eyes of Zedekia, and fettered him with two chaynes, and caried hym to Babylō.

And the .vij. daye of the .v. moneth which is the .xix. yere of kyng Nabuchadnezar kyng of Babylō, came Nebusaradan a seruant of the kyng of Babylō, and chefe captayne of the men of warre, vnto Jerusalem: & burnt the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house, & all the houses of Jerusalem, & all great houses burnt he wth fyre. And all the soudyers of the Chaldees that were with the chefe captayne of the men of warre, broke downe y^e walles of Jerusalem rounde about. But the rest of the people y^e were left in the cytie, and them y^e were fledd to the kyng of Babylō, wth the remaunt of the comen people, dyd Nabusaradan the chefe captayne of the mē of warre carie awaye: but the captayne of the soudyers lefte of the poore of the lande, to dresse the vynes, and to tyll the grounde.

* iii. Regu. rii. a. And the pylers of brasle that were in y^e house of the Lorde, and the sockettes, and the brasen lauatoz that was in the house of the Lorde dyd the Chaldees brake, and caried all the brasle of them to Babylō. And the pottes, thowelles, dresynge knyues, spones, and all the vessels of brasle that they minystrered in, toke they awaye. And the fyre panes, and basens, and soch thinges as were of golde, & of siluer, the toke the chefe captayne awaye: euen two pylers, one lauatoz, and the the sockets which Salomon had made for the house of the Lord. The brasie of all these vessels was without waight. The height of the one pyller was xviij. cubytes, and the heed therof was brasie, and the cubytes hye and vpon the heed was there a wrethe worke and pomegranates rounde aboute, all of brasie. And of the same fassyon was the seconde pyller, with a wrethen worke.

And the chefe captayne of y me of warre toke Saraia the chefe preste, and zephoniah the hyest preste saue one, and the the kepers of the holy thynges. And out of the cite he toke a chamberlayne, that had the ouersight of the men of warre, and v. men of the that were enen in y kynges presence, which were founde in the cite: and him that was scribe to the captayne of the host, which brought out the people of the lade to warre, and the skore men of the people of the lande, y were founde in the cite. And Nebusaradan the chefe captayne of the me of warre toke these, and brought them to the kyng of Babylon to Ribla. And the kyng of Babylon smote them, and slue them at Ribla in the hande of Hanath. And so Juda was carped awaye out of the lande.

Howbeit, there remayned people in the lande of Juda, whom Nebuchadnezar kyng of Babylon lefte, & made Gedalia the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan ruler ouer the. And all the captaynes of the souldyers, and other men hearde, y the kyng of Babilon had made Gedalia gouernour: and there came to Gedalia to Nazpah: Ismael the sonne of Nethania, Johannah the sonne of Iarea, Saraia the sonne of Chanhumeth y Netophathite, and Jazania the sonne of Maachati, & the men. And Gedalia swaue to them and to the me whom they had with them, and sayde vnto the: feare not ye because ye are the seruautes of the caldees, dwell in the lande, and serue the kinge of Babilon, and ye shal be well.

But it chaunced in the seventh moneth, that Ismael the sonne of Nethania the sonne of Elisama, of the kynges bloude, came, and ten men with hym, and smote Gedalia, that he dyed: and so dyd he the Jewes and y Chaldee that were with hym at Mizpa.

And all the people, bothe small and grete, and the captaynes of warre arose, and came to Egipte: for they were afrayd of the Chaldee. Notwithstandyng yet in the seuen and thyrtye pere after Jehoachin kyng of Juda was carped awaye the seuen and twente dawe of the twelue moneth, Cullmerodach kyng of Babylō, the same peare y he begane to raygne, dyd & lyfte vp the heade of Jehoachin kyng of Juda out of the prison, and spake kyndely to hym, and set hym seate aboue the seate of the kynges that were with hym in Babylon: and chaunged hym prison garmentes. And he dyd euer cate bread befoze hym, all the dayes of hym lyfe.

Hys porcyon was a contynual porcyon that was assigned hym of the kyng, euery dawe a certayne, as longe as he lyued.

The genealogie of Ruben and Gad and of the halfe trybe of Manasse.

* Gen. xlii. a Exo. vi. b.
Num. xxi. a.

he sonnes of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel: forasmuche as he was the eldest. * and had begotten his fathers bedd, his byrthright was geuen vnto the sonnes of Joseph the sonne of Israel. howbeit, the genealogy is not reckoned after this byrthright. For Juda, be puenapled aboue his brethren, and of this trybe came schefe, and the byrthright was geuen to Joseph. The sonnes then of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel were: Henoch, Phalu, hebron and Charai.

The sonnes of Joel: Samaiah: his sonne, Gog his sonne, and Sembi his sonne, Micah his sonne, Reaia his sonne, and Baal his sonne, Beera his sonne. Whome Thiglath Pileser kynge of Assyria carryed awaye: for he was a great lord among the Rubenites. And when his brethren in theyr kynredes, reckoned the genealogie of theyr generacyons: Jeiel and zachariah were the chiefe.

And Baal the sonne of Azan, the sonne of Sema, the sonne of Joel, dwelt in Aroer: and so forth vnto Rebo and Baalmicon. And eastwarde, he inhabited vnto the entrynge in of the wylderneesse, from the ryuer Euphrates: for they had moche catell in the lande of Silcad.

And in the dayes of Saul, they warred with the Hagarites, which were ouerthrowen into theyr hande. And they dwelte in theyr tentes thowout all the east lande of Silgal.

And the chyldren of Gad dwelte ouer against them in the lande of Basan, euen vnto Saleha. And in Basan, Joel was schefe, and Sapham the nexte, then Janai and Saphat. And they brethren of the household of theyr fathers, were Michael, Meosuesam, Seba, Jozai, Jahcan, zia, Eber, Senen. These are the chyldren of Abihail the sonne of Huri, the sonne of Jerobah, the sonne of Silcad, the sonne of Michael, the sonne of Jesilai, the sonne of Jahdo, the sonne of Suz. Abi (the sonne of Abdiel, the sonne of Sumi) was a captayne of the household of theyr fathers. And they dwelt in Silcad, in Basan, and in her townes, and in all the suburbes of Sharon, and in theyr borders.

All these were reckoned by kynredes in the dayes of Jotham kynge of Juda, and in the dayes of Jeroboam kynge of Israel. The sonnes of Ruben, and of Gad, and of halfe the trybe of Manasse, were fyghtynge men, and able to beare shyld and swerde, and to shote with bowe, excercysed in warre, euen foure and fourty thousande, seuen hundred and thyskore, that wente out to the warre. And they fought with the Hagarites, with Jetur, Nephtis and Modab. And they were helped of the Lorde against the, and the Hagarites were deliuered into their hande, and so were all that were with them. For they cryed to God in the battayll, and he hearded them, because they put theyr trust in hym. And they toke of theyr catell and of theyr camels, fyfthe thousande, and two hundred and fyfthe thousande shepe, and two thousande asses, and of the soules of men, an hundred thousande: and there fell many wounded, because of warre was of God. And they dwelt in theyr steades, vntill the tyme that they were carryed awaye.

And the chyldren of the halfe trybe of Manasse dwelt in the lande, from Basan vnto Baal hermon, and Semir, and vnto mount hermon: for they were growne to a greete multitude. And these were the heedes of the householdes of theyr fathers: Ephraim, and Jeeli, Eliel and Aziel, Jeremia and Hodania, and Jaohdiel, stronge men and valeaunt, famous men, and heedes of the householdes of theyr fathers.

And they transgressed agaynst the God of theyr fathers, and went a whoyringe after the goddes of the people of the land, whiche God destroyed before them: and God stered by the spere of Phul kynge of Assyria, and the spere of Thiglath Pileser kynge of Assyria, and carryed them awaye: euen the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and the halfe trybe of Manasse, and brought them vnto Halah, Habor, Hara: and to the ryuer Gozan, vnto this daye.

* The porters were Sallum, Acub, Talmon & Ahiman and their brother, Sallum was the cheff. For they watched hytherto, euen vnto the kynges gate eastwarde, thowowe out the tentes of the chyldren of Leuy. And Sallum the sonne of Corah the sonne of Abiasaph the sonne of Corah, and his brethren the Corahites (of the house of their father) had their busynesse and offyce to kepe y^e porches of the tabernacle: and their fathers the hoste of the Lorde, kepte the enterpyng.

And Phinees the sonne of Eleazar was their foregyde, and y^e Lorde was with him. And zacharia the sonne of Mesilemia kepte the watche before the doore of the tabernacle of witness. All these were chosen me, to kepe y^e thresholds, euen two hundred & twelue, and thowowe out all y^e genealogie were they nūbzed in their villages. And them dyd David & Samuel the sear institute, because of their fidelite. So they & their chyldre had the ouersyght of the gates of the house of the Lorde, euen of the tabernacle, to kepe them.

* In foure quarters dyd they kepe the watche: towarde y^e east, west, north, & south. And their brethren remayned in the countre and came after seven dayes fro tyme to tyme with them. For the Leuytes (which had the ouersyght of the vestres & treasures of the house of God) were vnder y^e custody of foure notable porters: & they laye rounde aboute y^e house of God: because y^e keepyng therof pertayned to the, and they had y^e keyes to open every moynynge. And certen of them had the rule of y^e mynistre vassels, & brought the in and out by tale. Some of them were appointed to ouerse the vesselles, and all y^e ornaments of the Sanctuary, and the floure, wine, oyle, frankincense and swete odoures. And certayne of the sonnes of y^e prestes made oymntes of the swete odoures.

And Mathathia one of the Leuytes which was, the eldest sonne of Sallum: the Cozathite, had the ouersyght of the thynges that were made in the frenge pane. The .x. Chapter.

The battell of Saul agaynst the Philistines: in which he dyeth, and hys sonnes also.

And the Philistines fought agaynst Israel. * And the me of Israel fled before the Philistines, & were ouerthrowen & wounded in Mount Gilboa. And y^e Philistines folowed, & were scarce after Saul & his sonnes. & the Philistines smote Ichonathan & Abinadab & Malchisua the sonnes of Saul: And the battell went soze agaynst Saul,

Job. ix. g.
118. f. r. l. b.

Saul, & the archers founde hym, and he was wounded of shoters. Then sayde Saul to his wep^e bearer: drawe thy swerde, and thrust me thowow therwith, that these uncircumcised come not and do me shame. But hys wepon bearer wolde not, for he feared excedynglye. So Saul caught a swerde, and fell vpon it. And when his harnessbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell on a swerde also and dyed.

And thus Saul and his thre sonnes, and all they of hys house dyed together. And whe all the men of Israel that were in the valeye, sawe howe they fled, and that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they forsoke they^e cyties and ranne awaye, and the Philistines came, and dwelt in them.

* And it fortuneth that on the morowe when the Philistines came to stripe the deed bodies they founde Saul & hys sonnes ouerthrowen in mount Gilboa. And when they had stript hym, they toke hys heed, and hys harness, and sent them into the lande of the Philistines rounde aboute to shewe the vnto they^e Idols, and to the people. And they put his harness in the house of they^e God, & set v^p hys heade in the temple of Dagon.

And when all they of Jabes in Gilead hearde all that the Philistines had done to Saul: they arose (all the strongest of them) and fet awaye the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sonnes, and brought them to Jabes, and buried the bones of them vnder an oke in Jabes and fasted seven dayes.

So Saul dyed for hys trespass that he trespassed agaynst the Lorde, in y^e he kept not the worde of the Lorde, and in that he sought and asked counsell of a womā that wrought with a sprete, and asked not of y^e Lorde. And therfore he slue hym, and turned the kyngdome vnto David the sonne of Isai.

The .xi. Chapter.

After the death of Saul is David anointed in Hebron. The Jebusites rebell agaynst David, fro which he taketh the towne of Syon. Hys men are nūbzed.

When all Israel gathered them selues to David vnto Hebron * sayenge: Behold, we be thy bones and thy fleshe. And mozeouer in tyme past, euen when Saul was kyng, thou leddest Israel out & in. And the Lorde thy God sayde vnto the: thou shalt fede my people Israel, and thou shalt be captayne ouer my people Israel. Therfore came all the elders of Israel to the kyng, to Hebron, and David made a councail with them in Hebron, before the Lorde. And they anointed David kyng ouer Israel, * accordyng to the worde of the Lorde by the hande of Samuel.

And David and all Israel went to Jerusalem, which is Jebus: where as were y^e Jebusites, the inhabityers of the lande. And the inhabityers of Jebus sayde to David: thou comest not here. Neuerthelesse, David wanne the castell of Syon, which is called the cytie of David. And David: * sayde, whosoeuer smyteth the Jebusites fyrst, shalbe the principall captayne and a Lorde. So, Joab the sonne of Zaruia went fyrst v^p, and was made the chefe captayne. And David dwelt in the castell Syon, and therfore they called it the cytie of David. And he buylt y^e cytie on euery syde, euen from Millo rounde about, and Joab repared y^e rest of the cytie. And David prospered, and wared greates, and the Lorde of hostes was with hym.

* These are the principall men of power whom David had, and that came to hym in hys kyngdome with all Israel, to make hym kyng, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde vnto Israel. And this is the nombre of the myghtye men whom David had: Josheam the sonne of Achimom the chefe amonge thretye: he lyfte v^p hys spere agaynst thre hundred, and wounded them at one tyme.

After hym was Eleazar his vnckles sone an Ahothite, which was one of the thre myghtyest. he was with David at Pasdammun, & there the Philistines were gathered together to battell. And there was there a parcell of grounde full of barleye, and the people fled before the Philistines. And they, the thre afore sayde, kept forth into the middes of the felde, and saued it from burnynge and slue the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue a great victorie.

And the thre of the thretye chefe captaynes went to a rocke to David, into the caue Adullam. And the hoste of the Philistines abode in the valey of Rephaim. And when David was in the holde, y^e Philistines watch was at Bethlechem y^e same tyme. And David longed, & sayde: * Oh that one wolde geue me drynke of the water of the well that is at the gate at Bethlehem. And the thre brake thowowe the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well, that was by the gate at Bethlehem: & toke it, and brought it to David. Neuerthelesse, David wolde not drynke of it, but rather offered it to the Lorde, and sayde: my God forbyd it me, that I shulde do this thynge. Shall I drynke the bloude of these men, that haue put they^e lyues in jeopardy: (for with the jeopardy of they^e lyues they brought it) therfore he wolde not drynke it. And this did these thre myghtyest.

And Abisai the brother of Joab: he also was captayne amonge thre: for he lyfte v^p hys spere agaynst thre hundred, & wounded them, and had a name amonge the thre: Bee amonge thre, he was moze honorable then y^e two, for he was their captayne. howbeit, he attayned not vnto the cytie.

then Abimelech: for he slue two strong Lyons of Moab, and went downe, and slue a Lyon in a pyntime of snowe. And he slue an Egyptian, whose stature was euen spue cubytes longe, & in the Egyptians hande was a speare lyke a weavers beame. And the other went downe to hym with a waster, and plucked yf speare out of the Egyptians hande, and slue hym with his awne speare. Soche thynges dyd Baana the sone of Jehoiada, & had yf name amonge the thre myghtyest, & was honorable amonge thurtie: but attayned not vnto yf (first) thre. And David made him of hys counsell.

The other me of armes were these: Asahel yf brother of Joab, Elhanan hys vnckles sone of Bethlechem. Sammoth the Harodite, Helez the Pelonite: Ira the sone of Jekes yf Chekoite, Abieser the Anathothite: Sibacai the Husathite, Alai the Ahobite: Maharai yf Bethophathite, Heled the sone of Baana yf Bethophathite. Ittai the sone of Ribai of Gibeon that pertayneth to the chyldren of Benjamin: Benaias the Pirathonite: Hurai of the ryuers of Gaas, Abiel the Arbathite: Azmoneh the Baharumite, Eliahah the Saalbomite. The sonnes of Hassem the Gersonite, Jonathan the sone of Sage, an Harate, Ahiam the sone of Sacar the Harate, Eliphal the sone of Ur. Uria the Hethite, and Zabab the sone of Ahlai: Adina the sone of Siza a Rubenite, a captayne of the Rubenites, and thyrtye wth him. Hanan the sone of Maacah, and Josaphat a Githanite: Uria an Astherathite: Sama and Jehiel the sonnes of Hothan an Aroerite: Jediel the sone of zimri, and Johahys brother an hathizite. Eliel a Mahanite, Teribai & Josaias the sonnes of Elnaam, and Jithma a Moabite. Eliel and Obed, and Isaiel a Melobarte.

The. xii. Chapter.

What they were that went with David when he fledde from Saul.

These are they that came to David to ziklag, whyle he yet kept hym selfe close, because of Saul yf sone of Cis: and they were very stronge helpers in battell. They were weapened with bowes, & coulde hurle stones with the ryght hande and with the lyft and shote arrowes oute of a bowe, & were of Sauls brethren, eny of Benjamin. The cheffest were Abieser, and Joas yf sonnes of Sima a Gibeonite, and Jeziel and Belet the sonnes of Asmaneth. Beracah and Jehu of Anathoth. And Ismaia a gilbeonite a migh-tye man amonge thyrtye, and more then the thyrtye. Jeremah, Jehaziel, Johanan, & Josabab of Gedor. Eleusai, Jerimoth Bealia Semaria, and Sheaphatia, the Haraphites. Elcana, Jekia, Azrael, Jozer, Josheam Mahozim. Joia and Zebadiah the sonnes of Jeroram of Gedub.

And of the Gadites there separated them selves, some vnto David into the holde of yf wylberness, men of myghte, and men apte for warre, & yf coulde handle shylde and speare, whose faces were lyke the faces of Lions, and they were as swyfte as the Rooses in the mountaynes. Ezer the fyrst, Obdia the secōde, & Eliab the thyrde, Masmana the fourth, Jeremia the fyfte. Attai the syxte, Eliel the seuenth, Johanan the eyght, Elisabath the nynt, Jeremia the tenth, and Nachbaonai the eleuenth. These were of yf sonnes of Gad, and were captaynes ouer the men of warre, the small pursued an hundred, and the great a thousande. These are they that went ouer Jordan in the fyrst moneth when he had fledde ouer all hys banckes. And they put to flyght all them of the valeye both towarde the East and Weste.

And there came of the chyldren of Benjamin and Juda to the holde vnto David. And David wet out to mete them and answered, and sayde vnto the, If ye be come peasabyle vnto me, to helpe me, myne hert shalbe knytt vnto you. But and yf you come to betraye me to myne aduersaries (seynge ther is no wyckednes in myne handes) the God of oure fathers loke thereon and rebuke it. And the fyrte came vpon Amasai which was the chefe amonge thyrtye, and he sayde, thyne are we David, and on thy syde thou sone of Isai: * Peace, peace be vnto the, and peace be to thyne helpers, for thy God is thine helpe. Then David receaued them, and made them heedes of companyes of the men of warre.

And there fell some of Manasse to David when he came with the Philistines agaynst Saul to battell, * but they helped them not for yf Lordes of the Philistines toke aduysment and sent hym a waye agayne sayinge he wyl fall to hys Master Saul to the iopardie of oure heedes. As he went to ziklag, there fell to hym of Manasse: Adna Josadad, Jediel, Michael, Josabab, Elihu and zilthai, heedes of the thousandes that were of Manasse. And they holpe David agaynst the rouers. For they were all myghtie me of warre, and captaynes in the hooft. For at that tyme there came one or other to David dape by dape to helpe hym: vntyll it was a greate hooft, lyke the hooft of God.

And this is the nobre of the chefe captaynes that were prepared to battell, and came to David to hebron, to turne the kyngdome of Saul of Saul to hym, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

The chyldren of Juda that bare shylde & speare, were syxe thousande and eyght hundred ready prepared to yf warre. Of the chyldren of Simeon, men of myght to warre, seuen thousande and one hundred. Of the chyldren of Levi, foure thousande and syxe hundred. And Jehoiada was the chefe of them of Aaron, and with him thre thousande and seuen hundred. And Zadock a yonge man strong and valeaunt & of his fathers housholde. xxi. captaynes. And of the chyldren of Benjamin the brethren of Saul, thre thousande. And a greate parte of them dyd (vnto that tyme) folowe the house of Saul.

And of the chyldren of Ephraim. xx. thousande & eyght hundred myghtie men of warre and famous men in the housholde of their fathers. And of the halfe trybe of Manasse xvi. thousande, which were appoynted by name to come and make David kyng. And of the chyldren of Issacar, which were men yf had vnderstandynge in the ryght tyme, to knowe (howe to commaunde) what Israel ought to do. The heedes of them were two hundred and all their brethren were at their wyl. And of Zabulō that went out to the battayll and proceeded forth to the warre, wth all maner of instrumentes of warre, fyfte thousand that were prepared to the warre, without anye dublenesse of hart. And of Nephtali a thousande captaynes, and with them (with shylde & speare) xxxv. thousande. And of Dan prepared to battell. xxviii. thousande & syxe hundred. And of Asser that went out to the warre & kepte the forefront of the batell, fourtye thousand. And of yf other syde of Jordan, of yf Rubenites, and Gadites & of the halfe tribe of Manasse, with all maner of instrumentes of warre, an hundred & twentye thousande.

All these were men of warre, keepynge the forefront of the batell with perfect hart, and came to hebron to make David kyng ouer all Israel. And all the rest of Israel was of one accorde, to make David king. And there they were with David thre dayes, eatynge and drylking: for they brethren had prepared for them. Moreover they that were nyte them, vntyll Issacar, Zabulō and Nephtali, brought breade on Asses, Camels, Mules, & oxen, and meate: floure, fygges, raisyns, wyne and oyle, oxen, and shepe aboundantlie. For there was ioye in Israel.

The. xiii. Chapter.

The Arcke is brought agayne from Cariath Jearim to Jerusalem. Uria (otherwise called Oia) dyeth.

And David counceled with the capitaynes of thousandes and hundredes, & with all yf Lordes, and sayd vnto all the congregacyon of Israel: If it seme you good, and to be of the Lorde oure God, we wyl take and sende vnto oure brethren that are left in all the lāde of Israel, & with them also, to the preastes and Lewites which are in their cyties & Suburges, together the together vnto vs. And we wyl bynne agayne yf Arcke of the Lorde to vs: for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the congregaciō was cōtent that he shulde do so, for the thyng semed good in yf eyes of all the people.

So David gathered all Israel together from Sihor in Egypte, vnto yf entrynge of hemath, to bringe the arcke of the Lorde from Cariath Jearim. And David went vp & all Israel to an hye place towarde Cariath Jearim, that was in Juda, to fet thence the arcke of the Lord God, that dwelleth betwixt the Cherubes: where hys name is called on. And they caried the Arcke of God in a newe cartte out of yf house of Abinadab. And Uria & hys brother guyded yf cartte. And David & all Israel played before the arcke of God wth all they myght, with synnyng, and harpes, psalteries, & tymbrells and trompettes. And when they came vnto the thre hynges flowre of Chidon, Uria put forth his hande to holde the arcke, for the oxen: * because a lytle wycke. It was bled. And the Lorde was wroth with Uria, and smote hym, because he put hys hande to the arcke. And there he dyed before God. And David was out of quyetie, because the Lorde had rent a rent in Uria, & he called the name of that place: yf retyng of Uria vnto this dape. And David was afrayde of God that dape sayng: howe shall I bringe the arcke of God home to me? And so David brought not the arcke home to hym to yf cytie of David: But caried it into the house of Obededom a Gethite. And the arcke of God remayned with Obededom, euen in hys house, thre monethes. And he blessed the house of Obededom and all that he had.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Uria sendeth worde and woorkmen to David which hath two victories of the Philistines.

Shyram the kyng of Tyre sent messengers to David & tymbre of Cedar trees, with masons and carpenters, to buylde hym an house. And David perceaued, that the Lorde had confirmed hym kyng vpon Israel, and that hys kyngdome was lyfte vp on hye, because of hys people Israel. And David toke yet mo wyues at Jerusalem, and begat mo sonnes and daughters. These are the names of hys chyldren, which were borne vnto him at Jerusalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan and Salomon: Tibhar, Elisua and Elipale, Nogga, Repheg and Japhia. Elisama, Beclada and Eliphalet.

And when the Philistines heard yf David was anoynted kyng vpon all Israel, all the Philistines

Philistines went vnto seke Dauid. And Dauid heard of it, and wēt oute agaynst them. And the Philistines came in, & prauised thowre the valey of Rephaim. And Dauid asked counsell at God saying: Shall I go agaynst the Philistines, and wylt thou deliuer them into myne hande? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: go vp, for I wyl deliuer the into thine hande. And so they came vp to Baal Perazim: & Dauid smote them there. And Dauid sayde: God hath deuised myne enemies with myne hande, as a man wolde deuyde water. And therfore they called the name of that place Baal Perazim. And whā they had leste they gods there, Dauid gaue a commaundment, and they were burnt with fyre.

And the Philistines came together agayne & rushed into y valley. And Dauid asked agayne at God. And God sayde to hym: go not vp after the, but turne awaye from the, that thou mayest come vpon them ouer agaynst the peccetrees. And when thou hearest a sound go in the toppes of the peccetrees, the go out to battell: for God is gone forth before the, to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. Dauid therfore dyd as God commaunded him: & they smote the hoste of the Philistines, fro Gibeon to Gazer. And y fame of Dauid wēt out into all landes, and the Lorde made all nacyns feare hym.

The .xv. Chapter.

The Leuites bynge the Arcke agayne. Dauid dailynge before it, is despyed of his wyfe Achishol.

And Dauid made hym houses in y city of David, and prepared a place for the arcke of God, & pyched for it a tent. Then Dauid sayde the arcke of God ought not to be carped but of the Leuites. For them hath the Lord chosen to beare the arcke of the Lorde, and to minister vnto hym for euer. And Dauid gathered all Israel together to Jerusalem, to fetch the arcke of the Lorde vnto hys place which he had ordeyned for it. And Dauid brought together the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Cahath was Ariel the chefe, and of hys brethren there were an hundred and .xx. Of the chyldren of Merari: Alaiā the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred and .xx. Of the sonnes of Gerson: Joel the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and thyrtye. Of the chyldren of Elizapan: Semaiā the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred. Of the sonnes of Iehozabab: Eliel the chefe, and of hys brethren .lxxx. Of the sonnes of Uziel: Aminadab the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and twelue.

And Dauid called Zadock and Abiathar the preastes, and the Leuites, Uziel, Alaiā, Joel, Semaiā, Eliel and Aminadab: & sayde vnto them: ye that are the pryncypall fathers of the Leuites, se that ye be holy with poure brethren, that ye maye bringe in the Arcke of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it. For because ye were not there at the fyrst, y Lorde oure God made a rent amonge vs, for that we sought hym not as the falsypon ought to be. So the preastes and the Leuites sanctified them selues, to sett the Arcke of the Lord God of Israel. And the chyldren of the Leuites bare the Arcke of God, vpon theyr shoulders with staves theron, as Moyses commaunded accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

And Dauid spake to the chefe heedes of y Leuites, that they shulde appoynte certayne of theyr brethren to syng with instrumentes of Musike, psalteries, harpes and symbales that they might make a sounde, and to syng on hys with Joyfulness: And y Leuites appoynted yeman the sonne of Joel: and (of his brethren) Asaph the sonne of Berechiah: And of the sonnes of Merari and of theyr brethren Ethan the sonne of Cusiāhu. And with the theyr brethren of the secōde degree: zacharia, Ben, Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Ummi, Eliab, Benaiāhu, Maasiah, Matthathiah, Eliphalehu, Mikniāhu, Obed Edom, & Jaiel, porters. So yeman, Asaph & Ethan the syngers made a sounde with symbales of brasse. And zacharia, Aziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Ummi, Eliab, Maasalah and Banaiāhu played with psalteries on y an Alamoth. Matthathiah, Eliphalehu, Mikniāhu, Obed Edom, Jiel, and Azaziah played vpon harpes an eyght above, with courage. And Chenaniahu the chefe of the Leuites, was master of the songe, for he taught other to syng, because he was a man of vnderstandynge.

Berecia and Elcana kepte the doze of the Arcke. And Secanah, Jehosaphat, Aethanah, Amasai, zachariahu, Banaiāhu & Eliezer the preastes dyd blowe with trompettes before the Arcke of God. And Obed Edom and Jehia were keepers of y doze of the arcke.

* And Dauid and the elders of Israel and the capitaynes ouer thousandes, went to fet the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde out of the house of Obed Edom with gladnes. And when God helped the leuites, that bare the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, they offered seven oxen, and seven rammes. And Dauid had on hym a linnen garmēt, lyke as had also all the Leuites that bare the Arcke, and so had the syngers, and Chenania y ruler of the songe, with the syngers. And Dauid had vpon hym an Ephod of linnen. And all they of Israel brought the Arcke of the Lorde couenaunt with thowsynge, and blowynge of the shawme and trompettes: makynge a noyle with symbales, psalteries, and harpes.

And as the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the city of David, Michol

chol the daughter of Saul, lokynge out at a wyndowe, sawe kyng Dauid daunsynge and playnge, and she despyed hym in her herte.

The .xvi. Chapter.

Dauid ordeyneth Asaph and hys brethren, to minister before the Lorde. He hym selfe prayseth the Lorde God of Israel.

They brought in y arcke of God and set it in the myddes of the tent that Dauid pyched for it. And they offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerynge before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offerynge the burnt offerynge and peace offerynge, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde. And he dealt to all Israel (both man & woman) a cracknell of breade, and a good pece of fleshe, and a flacket of wyne.

And he appoynted certen of the Leuites to minister before the Lorde, & to repete, & to thanke and prayse the Lorde God of Israel. And Asaph was the chefe, & next to hym zacharia, Jehiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Matthathiah, Eliab, Benaiā, * Obed Edom, & Jehiel with psalteries & harpes. But Asaph made a sounde with symbales. Banaiāhu & Jaaziel preastes blew w trompettes continually before the Arcke of the couenaunt of God.

And that same tyme Dauid did appoynte cheselye to thanke the Lorde, by Asaph & hys brethren. * O geue thākes vnto the Lorde, call vpon hys name, make hys actes knowe amonge the people.

Synge vnto him & playe vnto him: talke of all hys wonderfull dedes. Reioyce in hys holy name: let the hertes of the that seke the Lorde, be glad. Seke the Lorde and hys strength: Seke hys presence allwaye.

Remembre his maruelles which he dyd, and hys wonders, & the iudgementes of hys mouth. The seed of Israel are hys seruantes: the chyldren of Jacob are hys chosen. He is the Lorde oure God: in all landes are hys iudgementes. Thynke on hys appoyntment for euer, (and on the worde which he commaunded to a thousande generaciōs.) Which he made with Abraham, and of hys othe to Isaac: which he set before Jacob for a decree, and to Israel for an euergastynge couenaunt, saynge: to the wyll I geue the lande of Canaā, to be the porcyon of your enheritaunce. When you were fewe and smalle in nombre, and sojourners therein. And they walked from nacyon to nacyon, and fro one kyngdome to another people. He suffered no man to do them wronge: but rebuked, euen kynges for theyr sake. Touche not myne appointed, and do my prophetes no harme. * Synge vnto the Lorde all the erthe: and shewe from daye to daye hys Saluacyon.

Tell of hys glorie amonge the heithen: his wonderfull dedes amonge all nacyns.

For greate is the Lorde, and worthy to be prayled exceedynge: he is to be feared above all Gods.

For all the Gods of the people are of no value: But the Lorde made heauen.

Prayse and honoure are in hys presence: strength and gladnes are in hys place.

Ascrybe vnto the Lorde ye kyngdes of people, Ascrybe to the Lorde, glorie and dominion. Ascrybe vnto the Lorde, the glorie due vnto hys name: bynge sacrifices, and come before hym, and worshyppe the Lorde with holy honoure.

Let all the erth feare hym, all though the compase of y erthe be so stablyshed that it cannot be moued: let the heauens reioyse, and let the erth be glad, and lett men tell among the nacyns, that the Lorde is kyng.

Let the see thunder and the fulnesse therof lett the felde reioyse, and all that is therein.

Then shall the trees of the wood reioyse at the presence of the Lorde, because he commaundeth to iudge the erth. O geue thākes vnto the Lorde, for he is good, for hys mercye endureth euer: and saye ye: laue vs (o God) of oure saluacion, geather vs to gether, and deliuer vs fro amonge the heithen, that we maye geue thanks to thy holy name, & triumphe in the prayse of the. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel for euer & euer, and let all people saye Amen, and prayse the Lorde.

And so, he leste there before the arcke of y Lorde couenaunt, Asaph & hys brethren, to minister before the Arcke continually, in such thynge as were to be done daye by daye, * (and that by theyr courses.) And Obed Edom & hys brethren, therskore and eyght, and Obed Edom the sonne of Jeduthun, and Hofa were apoynted to be porters. And zadock y preast and hys brethren the preastes, were before y tabernacle of y Lorde, in the hys place y was at Gibeon, to offer burnt offerynge vnto the Lorde, vnto the burnt offering aultare perpetuallye, in the mornynge and euenynge, accordynge to all y which is writen in the lawe of the Lorde, which he commaunded Israel. And with them were yeman & Jeduthun, & other that were chose (whose names were exprest) to geue thanks to the Lorde, y his mercye lasteth euer. And with them dyd yeman and Jeduthun, synge with the trompettes & symbales, symboles makynge a swete melody with instruments of Musyke and godly songes. And the sonnes of Jeduthun were porters. And all the people departed, eury man to hys house: and David returned to blesse hys house.

The. xvii. Chapter.

David is forbidden to buyde an house vnto the Lorde. Chyrlt is promysed vnder the figure of Salomon.

And it fortuned þ whan David dwelt in hys house, he sayde to Nathan the prophete: lo, I dwell in * an house of Cedar tree: but the Arcke of the Lordes couenant remaineth vnder curtaynes. And Nathan sayd to David: do all that is in thyne herte, for God is with the.

And the same nyght it fortuned that the worde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: go and tell David my seruaunt, thus sayth the Lorde, thou shalt not buyde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I brought out the chyldren of Israel vnto thys daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habitacyon to another. And wherlocuer I haue walked wyth all Israel, spake I euer one worde to anye of the iudges of Israel (whom I commaunded to fede my people), sayinge: why haue ye not buyt me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therefore, thus shalt þ saye vnto my seruaunt David: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I toke the out of the pastures whan thou wentest after shepe, that thou shuldest be captayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue bene w the whither locuer thou hast walked, & haue weded out all thyne enemyes out of thy sight: & haue made þ a name, lyke þ name * (of one) of the greatest men that are in the erthe. And I haue ordeyned a place for my people Israel and made it faste, so that nowe they maye dwell in theyr place, and moue nomore. Neither shall the chyldren of wyckednesse vex them any moare as at the begynnyng. And sence the tyme that I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Israel, I haue subdued all thyne enemyes, and I tolde the, that the Lorde wolde buyde the an house.

Thys also shall come to passe: when thy dayes be expired, þ thou must go vnto thy fathers, I wyll raise vp thy seed after þ which shalbe of thy sonnes, and I wyll prepare for hym the kyngdome. He shall buyde me an house, and I wyll itablishe his seate for euer. I wyll be hys father, and he shalbe my sonne, and I wyll not take my mercy awaye from hym, as I toke it from hym that was before the. But I wyll sett hym in myne house and in my kyngdome for euer, and hys seate shalbe sure for euer moze.

According to all these wordes, and accordyng to all thys visyō, dyd Nathan tell kinge

David. And David the kynge came & sat before the Lorde, & sayde: what am I (O Lorde God,) and what is myne household, that thou hast promoted me thus farre? And yet thys semed lyttel in thyne eyes, O God: But thou hast also spoken of thy seruautes house for a greate whyle to come: and hast looked vpon me as vpon a man of hye degree (O Lorde God.) What shall David desyre more of the for the honoure of thy seruaunt? For thou hast knowen thy seruaunt: O Lorde for thy seruautes sake, en accordyng to thyne awne hert hast thou done all thys magnificence, to shewe all great thynges. Lorde, there is none lyke the, neither is there anye God saue thou, accordyng to all that we haue hearde w oure eares. Moreover, what nacion on the erthe is lyke thy people Israel, to whom God hath vouchsafed to come and redeme the to be hys awne people, and to make the a name of excellencye and terribleness, with castyng out nacions from before thy people, whō thou hast deliuered out of Egypte?

Thy people of Israel dydest thou make thyne awne people for euer, and thou becomest theyr God. Therefore nowe Lorde, let the thyng that thou hast spoken concernyng thy seruaunt and hys house, be true for euer, that thou do as thou hast sayde: let it come to passe, that thy name maye be magnified for euer, that it maye be sayde: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel (en the God of Israel) & the house of David thy seruaunt endureth stable before the. For thou (O my God) hast tolde thy seruaunt, þ thou wylt buyde him an house. And therefore thy seruaunt hath founde in hys hert to praye before the. And nowe Lord, thou art God, and hast promised thys goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Nowe therefore, let it be thy pleasure to blesse þ house of thy seruaunt, that it maye contynue before the for euer. For whom thou blessest (O Lorde) the same is blessed for euer.

The. xviii. Chapter.

The Battelles of David agaynst the Philistines.

And after this it fortuned, þ David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, & toke Geth the townes þ * longed therto, out of the hande of the Philistines. And he smote Moab, and the Moabites became Davids seruautes, and payde hym tribute. And David smote Hadarezer kynge of zoba vnto Hanath, as he went to stablishe hys dominion by the ryuer Euphrates, And David toke from hym a thousande charettes, & seuen thousande horse men, & twetye thousande foremen, & lamed all þ charett horses, & refered of them an hundred charettes. And whē the Syrians of Damasco came to helpe Hadarezer kynge of zoba, David slue of the Syrians, xxii. thousande, and David subdued subdued Syria Damasco: And the Syrians became Davids seruautes, & brought hym tribute. And the Lorde preserved David in all that he went to.

And David toke þ sheldes of golde that were on the seruautes of Hadarezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. And fro Gebath & from Chun (cyties of Hadarezer) brought David excedyng moche brasle. Wher w Salomon made þ brasen lauatorye, * the pillers, & the vesselles of brasle.

And when Cou kynge of Hemath, heard how David had beaten all the strength of Hadarezer kynge of zoba, he sent Haduran his sonne to kynge David, to make peace w hym & to blesse hym, because he had fought agaynst Hadarezer, & beaten him (for Cou had warred w Hadarezer) & David brought, all maner of Jewelles of golde, syluer and brasle w hym. And kynge David dedicated them vnto the Lorde, with þ syluer & gold þ he brought from all nacys, from Edom, from Moab, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, & from Amalec. And Abisai þ sonne of zerua slue of the Edomites in the salte valeye, xviii. thousande, and put Soudiars in Edom, and all the Edomites became Davids seruautes. Thus the Lorde kepte David in all þ he toke in hāde.

David raygned ouer all Israel, & executed iudgemēt and ryghteousnes amonge all his people. And Joab þ sonne of zarua was ouer the hoste, and Jehosaphat the sonne of Ahilud recorder, and Zadock the sonne of Ahitub and Abimelech þ sonne of Abiathar were þ preastes, and Saufa was scribe, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites, and the Shelethites, & the eldest sonnes of David were nexte vnto the kynge.

The. xix. Chapter.

Hanon kynge of the sonnes of Ammon, doth grente iurye to the seruautes of David.

After this, it chaunced that * Nahas the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & his sonne raygned in his steade. And David sayde, I wyll shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon þ sonne of Nahas, because hys father dealt kyndelye with me: And David sent messengers to cōforte hym ouer the deeth of hys father. And the seruautes of David came into þ lande of the chyldren of Ammon to Hanon, to cōforte hym. But the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayde to Hanon: thynkest thou þ David doth honoure thy father in thy syght, þ he hath sent conforters vnto the? Are not hys seruautes come to searche, to loke, and to spye out the lande?

Wherfore Hanon toke Davids seruautes, & (and poide them) and spalled them, and cut of their cootes harde by their buttokes, and sent them awaye. And there went certayne and tolde David, howe þ men were serued. And þ kynge sent to mete them (for þ men were excedynglye ashamed) and þ kynge sayde: tarpe at Jericho, vntyll poure beardes be growen, and then returne.

And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that they stanke in þ syght of David. Hanon & the chyldren of Ammon sent a thousande talētes of syluer to hyre them charettes & horsemen, out of Mesopotamia, and out of Syria Maacha & out of zoba. And they hyred, xxii. thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maacha & his people, which came, and pytched before Heoba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them selues together fro their cyties, & came to battel. And whan David heard of it, he sent Joab and all þ hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and put them selues in araye to battel before the gate of the cytie. And þ kynges that were come, kepte them by them selues backe in the felde.

When Joab also sawe that þ frōte of the battell was agaynst him before & behynde, he chose out of all the chosen men of Israel, and put them in araye agaynst þ Syrians. And þ rest of the people he deliuered vnto the hande of Abisai his brother, & they put them selues in araye agaynst þ chyldren of Ammon. And he sayde: If the Syrians be to strong for me, þ shalt succoure me: & yf þ chyldren of Ammon preuaile agaynst þ, I will helpe þ. Plucke vp thine hert, & let vs playe the men, for oure peoples sake & for þ cyties of oure God, & the Lorde shall do þ which is good in his awne syght. So Joab & the people þ were w him, dyue nye before þ Syrians vnto þ battayl, & they fled before him. And when þ chyldren of Ammon sawe þ the Syrians were fled, they ranne awaye lyke wise before Abisai his brother, and gat them in to þ cytie. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

And when þ Syrians sawe þ they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers & fet out þ Syrians þ were beyond þ ryuer, & Sophach þ capitayne of þ host of Hadarezer wēt before them. And it was tolde David, & he geathered all Israel, & wēt to geather ouer Jordan, & came, and set vpon them. And whan David had put him selte in araye agaynst the Syrians they fought with him. But þ Syrians fled before Israel. And David destroyed of the Syrians seuen thousande charettes, & xl. thousande fote men, and kyled Sophach þ capitayne of þ hoste. And when þ seruautes of Hadarezer, sawe, that they were put to þ worse before the of Israel, they made peace w David, & became his seruautes. Neither wolde the Syrians helpe þ chyldren of Ammon any moze.

¶ The three most victorouse battelles of Dauid.

And it came to passe, that after the pe-

 * ii. Reg. vii. g. carped out the armye of the hoste, and * de-destroyed the contreye of the chyldren of Ammon, & came, & beseged Rabba, & destroyed
 it: But Dauid tarped at Jerusalem whyle Joab smote Rabba and destroyed it: * And Dauid toke the crowne of their kyng: from
 of hys heed, & founde that it had y wayght 23 of a talent of golde, and there were pzeiou-
 se stones in it, and it was ordeyned for Da-uids heed. And he brought also excedyng moche spoyle out of y eptie. And he brought out the people that were in it, and tormented them with sawes and harowes of yron,
 and with other sharpe instrumentes, and so dealt Dauid with all the epties of y chyl-
 * ii. Reg. x. d. dren of Ammon. And Dauid & all the people came agayne to Jerusalem. * After this
 it fortunied, that there arose warre at Ga-
 * Gen. xlii. a zer with y Philistines. At which tyme So-vocal the husathite slue Sippai, that was of y chyliden of * Rephaim, and they were subdewd. And there was battell agayne with the Philistines, and Elhanan y sonne
 of Jair slue Lahemi the brother of Goliath
 the Gethite, whose speare was lyke a wea-uers beame. And there chaunced yet agayne warre at Geth, where as was a man of a great stature w. xliii. fyngers, & toes. vi.
 on euery hande, and. vi. on euery fote, & was the sonne of Raphah. But whan he despyd Israel, Jehonathan y sonne of Simea Da-uids brother slue hym. These were bozne vnto Raphah at Geth, & were ouerthrowen
 in the hande of Dauid, & in the hande of his seruantes.

The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ Dauid causeth the people to be nombred: and there dyd. lxx. thousande men of the pestilence.

And Satan stode vp agaynst Israel,
 & prouoked Dauid to nobze Israel.
 And Dauid sayde to Joab and to the rulers of y people. Go ye and nobze Israel from Beer Seba to Dan, and byynge it to me that I maye knowe the nombze of them.
 And Joab answered: the Lorde make hys
 people an hundred tymes so manye moas they be. But my Lorde whig, are they not all my Lordes seruantes? why then doth
 my Lorde requyre thys thyng? why wyll
 my Lorde be a cause of trespass to Israel?
 Neuerthelesse, the kynges worde pzeuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab departed and walked thozowt all the of Israel, and came to Jerusalem agayne & gaue the nom-
 bze of the counte of the people vnto Dauid.
 And all they of Israel were a thousand

thoulande & an hundred thousande men that due swerde: and Juda was. cccc. lxx. thousande men that due swerd. But y Leuites and Ben Jamin counted he not amonge the.
 For y kynges worde was abhominable to Joab. And the Lorde was displeased with thys thyng, and smote Israel. And Dauid sayde vnto God: I haue sinned excedyngly in doyng this thyng. And now (I beseeche the) do awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruant, for I haue done very folyshe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids
 fear, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid, sayinge:
 Thus sayth y Lorde: I geue the, the choyse
 of thre thynges: chose the one of them, that I maye do vnto the. And Gad came to Da-uid, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayth the Lorde. Chose the, ether thre yeaeres fampyment, or thre monethes to be destroyed
 before thyn aduersaries, and that y swerde of thyn enemyes maye ouertake the: or else the swerde of the Lorde and pestilence
 in the lande thre dayes, and y Angell of the Lorde destroying thozowt all y coastes of Israel. And nowe aduise thy selfe, what worde I shall byynge agayne to hym that sent me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad. I am in an excedyng strait: Let me fall nowe
 into the hande of the Lorde, for passyng great are hys mercyes, but let me not fall into the hande of men.

So y Lorde sent pestilence vpon Israel,
 and there were ouerthrowen of Israel. lxx.
 thousande men. And God sent the Angel in to Jerusalem to destroye in it. And as he was about to destroye, y Lord behelde, and had compassyon on the euill, and sayde to the Angell y destroyed: it is ynough, let now thyne hande ceasse. And the Angell of the Lorde stode by y thelshyng flowre of D-nan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe y Angell of the Lord stande betwene y erth and heauen, haupnge a drawen swerde in hys hande, stretched out to-warde Jerusalem. Then Dauid & y elders of Israel whych were clothed in sacke, fell vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that comaunded y people to be nobzed? It is I that haue synned & done euell in dede, & what haue these theye done: let thyn hade (O Lorde my God) be on me and on my fathers house, but not on thy people that they shulde be punyshe.

And the Angell of the Lorde comaunded
 Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shulde
 go vp, and set vp an autler vnto the Lorde,
 in the thelshyng flowre of Dnan the Jebusite. And Dauid went vp accordyng to the sayinge of Gad, which he spake in the name of y Lorde. And Dnan turned aboute, and sawe the Angell, & hys foure sonnes were with hym, and byd them selues: But Dnan

Dnan was thelshyng wheat. And as Da-uid came to Dnan, Dnan lokyd & sawe Da-uid, and went out of the thelshyng flowre,
 and bowed hym selfe to Dauid wth his face to the grounde.

And Dauid sayde to Dnan: geue me the place of the thelshyng flowre, that I maye buyd an autler therin vnto the Lord. Thou shalt geue it me for as moche money as it is worthe, that the plage maye cease from the people. And Dnan sayde vnto Dauid: take it to the, & let my Lord y kyng do that which semeth good in his eyes: loo, I geue the oren
 also for burnt sacrificys, & y thelshyng sea-
 des for wodde, & wheate for meat offering:
 I geue it all. And kyng Dauid sayd to D-nan: not so, but I wyll bye it for as moche money as it is worth. For I wyll not take that whych is thyn for the Lorde, ner offer
 burnt offerings wythout cost.

And so Dauid gaue to Dnan for that place, spels of gold. vi. hundred by waight. And Dauid buyt there an autler vnto the Lord,
 and offered burnt offerings & peace offer-
 ynges, and called vpon the Lord, and he heard hym from heauen in fyze vpon the autler of burnt offering. And whan the Lord had spoken to y Angell, he put vp his swerd agayne into y sheathe of it. At that tyme whē Dauid sawe, that the Lorde had hearde hym in the thelshyng flowre of Dnan the Jebusite:
 he vsd to offer there. For the tabernacle of the Lord which Moses made in the wildernesse, and the autler of burnt offering were at that cealon in the hyll at Gibeon. And Da-uid coulde not go before it to aske counsell at God, for he was aferde of the swerde of the Angell of the Lorde.

The. xxij. Chapter.

*¶ Dauid wiltech hys sonne Salomon to buyde
 the temple of the Lorde: whych thyng he hym
 selfe was forbydden to do.*

And Dauid sayde: thys is y house of the Lorde God, and thys
 is the autler for the burnt offeryng of Israel.

And Dauid comaunded to geather together the straungers that were in the lande of Israel, and he sett masons to hewe fre stone, for the buylding of the house of God. And Dauid prepared plentie of yron for nayles and dozes of y gates, and to toyne with all, and abouidace of brasle without wayght, and Cedar trees wythout nombze.
 For the zidons and they of Tyze brought moche Cedar wood to Dauid. And Dauid sayde. Salomon my sonne is younge and te-der, and the house that is to be buyt for the Lorde, must excede in greatnesse, y it maye
 be spoken of and prayled in all lades. I wyll therfore make ordinaunce for it. And so Da-uid prepared many thinges before his deeth.
 And he called Salomon his sonne, & charged him to buyd an house for the Lord God of Israel. And Dauid sayde to Salomon.

 * my sonne, I thought (as it was in myne
 * ii. Reg. vii. b hert) to buyde an house vnto the name of y
 * iii. Reg. vi. a. Lorde my God. But the worde of the Lorde came to me, sayinge: y hast shed moche bloude,
 and hast made greates battelles: thou shalt
 therfore not buyd an house vnto my name, for y hast shed moche bloude vpon the erth in my syght. Beholde, a sonne is bozne to the, &
 he shalbe a man of reeste, for I wyll geue him rest from all hys enemyes round about. For his name is Salomon: and I wyll sende rest and peace vpon Israel in hys dayes. He shall buyde an house for my name, and he shalbe my sonne, and I wyll be his father, &
 I wyll prepare the seate of his kyngdome vpon
 Israel for euer. Nowe therfore my sonne, y Lord be wth the, & prospere y, & y shalte buyde
 the house to the name of the Lorde thy God, as he hath sayde of the. And the Lorde shall geue the wysdome & vnderstandyng, & shall geue the commaundmentes for Israel, that ye maye kepe the lawe of the Lord thy God.
 For then thou shalt prospere: eue whan thou takest hede & fulfyllest the statutes & lawes whych the Lorde charged Moses with, for Israel. Plucke vp thyn hert therfore, & be stronge, dredd not, nor be discouraged. Be-holde, in myne aduersyte haue I also prepared for y house of the Lord, an hundred thousande talentes of golde, & a thousande thousande talentes of syluer, & as for brasle & yron
 it canot be nobzed, for it is very moche. And I haue prepared tymbre and stone, and thou mayest puike more therto. Moreover, thou hast workemen wyth the pnowe, & masons
 and carpenters to worke in stone & tymbre,
 and many men y be active for euery worke.
 And of golde, syluer, brasle and yron, there is no nombze. Up therfore, and be doyng, &
 the Lorde shalbe wyth the.

And Dauid comaunded all y lordes of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne, sayinge: Is not y Lord yd God w you: & hath he not ge-uē you rest on euery syde: for he hath geuen y enhabitours of y lande into my hande, & the lade is subdued before the Lord & before his people. Nowe therfore set youre hertes & yd soules, to seke the Lord youre God. Up, and buyde ye the temple of the Lorde God, to bring the Arcke of the couenant of y Lord
 and the holy vesselles of God, into the house
 so buyt for the name of the Lorde.

The. xxij. Chapter.

*¶ Dauid being olde, ordeyneth Salomon kyng.
 He causeth the Leuites to be nobzed, & assigneth
 them to theyr offices.*

When Dauid was olde and full of dayes, * he made Salomon hys sonne kyng ouer Israel. And then he geathered together all y Lor-des of Israel wyth the preastes and the Le-uites.

uites. And the Levites were nombred from the age of xxx. yere and aboue, and the nombre and summe of them was. xxxviij. thousande men. Of which. xxiiij. thousande were set to further the worke of the house of the Lorde. And fyve thousande were officers & Judges. Foure thousande were porters and foure thousande prapled y^e Lorde with soche instrumentes as was made to praple wythall.

And so David put an ordre amog the devidinge the in partes. Of y^e children of Levi: Gerson, Cahath & Merari. Of the Gersonites was Laada & Semei. The sonnes of Laada. the chefe was Jehiel, zethan & Joel, thre. The sonnes of Semei: Selomith, haziel, & Haran, thre. These were y^e auncient fathers of laada. And y^e sonnes of Semei were Jahath, zina, Jeus & Beria: these foure were the sonnes of Semei. And Jahath was the chefe, zina the seconde. But Jeus and Beria had not many sonnes, therfore they were in one rekenynge, accordyng to theyr fathers householdes reckened for one auncient household.

* 2ro. vi. c.
* 3ar. vi. a.

The sonnes of Cahath: Amram, Izahar, Hebron and Uzziel, foure. * The sonnes of Amram: Aaron & Moses. And Aaron was separated, to haue the rule of the holy thynges in the place moost holpe, he and hys sonnes for euer: and to burne incense befoze the Lorde, and to mynistre vnto him, & to blesse in his name for euer. Moses also the man of God, and his chyldren, were named wyth y^e trybe of Levi. The sonnes of Moses: Gerson and Eliezer. Of the sonnes of Gerson: Sebul was the chefe. The sonnes of Eliezer: Rehabia the chefe. And Eliezer had none other sonnes: But the sonnes of Rehabia were very many. The sonnes of Izahar: Salomith, the chefe. The sonnes of Hebron: Jeriah the fyrst, Amaria the seconde, Jahaziel the thirde, and Jecameam the fourth. The sonnes of Uzziel: Micha the fyrst, and Jesia the seconde. The sonnes of Merari: Mahli and Musi. The sonnes of Mahli: Eleazar and Cis. And Eleazar dyed, and had no sonnes, but daughters, and their brethre the sonnes of Cis toke them. The sonnes of Musi: Mahli, Eder, & Jeremoth, thre. These are the chyldren of Levi after the household of theyr fathers, euen the auncient of the fathers accordyng to theyr offces, and after y^e nombre and somme of y^e names of them that dyd the worke in the seruice of the house of the Lorde, from the age of twentye yeres & aboue. And David sayde: the Lorde God of Israel hath geuen rest vnto his people, that they maye dwell in Ierusalem for euer. That the Levites also shuld nowe nomoze beare y^e tabernacle & all the vesselles for the seruyce therof: for accordyng to the last wordes of David, the Levites were nombred fro twy-

tye yere and aboue, and their offce was vnder the hande of the sonnes of Aaron, for the seruice of the house of the Lorde, in the courttes & celles, and in the purifyinge of all holpe thynges, and in the worke of the seruice of the house of God. In the newe breed in y^e fyne flower, in y^e meate offeringe, in the waters of swete breed, in the frynginge panne, in the grydiron, and in all maner of measures and cyse, and to stode euery daye in the mornyng, to thanke and praple the Lorde, and so lyke wyse at euen. And to offer all burnt-sacrifices vnto the Lorde, in y^e Sabbathes, in the newe moones, & on the festfull dayes by nombre and custome continually (as they were commaunded) befoze the Lorde. And that they shulde wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse, and on the holy place, and on the sonnes of Aaron their brethzen, in the seruice of the house of the Lorde.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

David assigneth offces to the sonnes of Aaron.

Hese are the deuysys of the sonnes of Aaron: The sonnes of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar & Ithamar. * Nadab also and Abihu dyed befoze theyr father, & had no chyldre. But Eleazar and Ithamar executed the prestes offce. And David ordered them on this maner: zadoch of y^e sonnes of Eleazar, & Ahimelek of y^e sonnes of Ithamar were accordyng to theyr offces in theyr ministracyon. And there were no auncient men founde amog y^e sonnes of Eleazar, then the sonnes of Ithamar. And thus were they ordered together: Amonge y^e sonnes of Eleazar there were syxtene rulers, accordyng to the household of their fathers: & cyght amog the sonnes of Ithamar accordyng to y^e household of theyr fathers. And thus were they put in order by lot, y^e one sorte from the other, & so were there rulers in y^e Sanctuary & Lodges befoze God, as well of y^e sonnes of Ithamar as of y^e sonnes of Eleazar. And Simeia the sonne of Nathan the scribe, of the kynred of the Levites wrote the befoze the kyng and the Lordes, & befoze zadoch the prest and Ahimelek the sonne of Abiathar, and befoze the auncient fathers, befoze y^e prestes & the Levites: one principall household beyng reserved for Eleazar and one for Ithamar.

And the fyrst lot fell to Jehoiarib, & the seconde to Jedai. The thirde to Harim, & the fourth to Schorim. The fyfte to Melchias, & the syxte to Miamin. The seuenth to Bakos, & the cyght to Abia. The nynthe to Jesua, & the tenth to Secanahu. The leuenth to Eliah, & the twelue to Jakim. The thirteenth to Jupa, & the fourtenth to Jesebeab. The fiftenth to Bilga, & the syxtenth to Jimer. The seuenth to Hezir, & the cyghtenth to Haphez. The

The nyntenth to Pathahia, and the twentieth to Jebeskel. The tweticth & one to Jachin and y^e xxij. to Samul. The xxij. to Delaiahu, and the xxiiij. to Maasiah.

These are the ordinaunces of the in their offices, whan they came into the house of the Lorde, accordyng to their maner vnder Aaron their father, as the Lorde God of Israel had commaunded hym.

The rest of the sonnes of Levi, are these: of the sonnes of Amram, Subael. Of y^e sonnes of Subael, Jehediahu. Of the sonnes of Rehabia, y^e fyrst Jesia. Of the Jazarites, Selomoth. Of y^e sonnes also of Selomoth, Jahath. His sonnes Jeriah y^e first Amariahu y^e secode, Jahaziel the thirde, & Jekamea the fourth. Of the sonnes of Uzziel, Micha. Of the sonnes of Micha, Samir. The brother of Micha was Jilia. Of the sonnes also of Jilia zechariahu. The sonnes of Merari, were: Mahli & Musi. The sonnes of Jaziah: Benio. The sonnes of Merari by Jahaziah: Benio, Sohem, zacur & Jyzi. Of Maheli came Eleazar & he had no sonnes. Of his: the sonnes of his: Jerahmeel. The sonnes of Musi: Mahli, Eder and Jerimoth. These are y^e children of the Levites after the household of their fathers. And these cast lottes next to their brethzen the sonnes of Aaron, in the presence of David the kyng, and zadoch & Ahimelek & the auncient fathers, prestes, & Levites: euen the principall fathers befoze their yonger brethzen. * (the lotte made equal distri bucyon amonge them all.)

The xxv. Chapter.

The syngers are appoynted, wyth theyr places, and lottes.

And so David and the captaynes of y^e hoste appoynted out to do seruyce, y^e sonnes of Asaph heman and Jeduthun, whan they dyd prophesye wyth harpes, psalteries and timbales. And there was a multitude of the men that were appoynted to the seruyce and ministracyon. Of the sonnes of Asaph: zacur, Joleph, Nathania and Aserela that wayted on Asaph, whych prophesied by the kyng.

Of Jeduthun: the sonnes of Jeduthun: Gedeliabu, zeri, Jelaiahu, hasabiah, and Nathithiahu syre, vnder the handes of theyr father Jeduthun, whych prophesied wyth a harpe, for to geue thakes & prayes vnto the lord. Of heman y^e sonnes of heman: Bukiabu, Nathaniahu, Uzziel, zebuel, Jerimoth, Hanania, Hanani, Eliatha, Gedalthi, Romathi, Ezer, Josbekasa, malothi, bohir, & Mahazioth. All these were the sonnes of heman whych was y^e kynges sear in the wordes of God: to lyfte vp y^e horne of y^e regall dignite. And God gaue to heman xiiij. sonnes and thre daughters. All these also were at y^e hande of their father synging in y^e house of y^e Lorde wth timbales, psalteries & harpes, whan Asaph

Jeduthun and heman executed the seruyce in the house of God, at the kinges hande. And the multitude of the wyth their brethre that were instructe in the songes of the Lorde: eue all y^e were conyng, were two hundred foure score & cyght. And they cast lottes amog the selues, howe they shulde wayte, as well for the small as for the grete, for the scoler as well as for the skole master.

And the fyrst lot in Asaph fell to Joleph. The secode to Gedeliabu, wyth his brethzen and sonnes: whych men were twelue. The thirde fell to zacur wyth hys sonnes & brethre, beyng twelue persones. The fourth to Jeri with hys sonnes and brethzen, twelue persones.

The fyfte to Nathaniahu with hys sonnes and brethzen, twelue persones. The syxte to Bukiabu with hys sonnes and brethzen, twelue persones. The seuenth to Jelaiahu with hys sonnes & brethzen, twelue persones. The cyght to Jelaiahu with hys sonnes & brethzen, twelue persones. The nynt to Nathaniahu with hys sonnes and brethre, twelue persones. The teth to Simeia with hys sonnes and brethzen, twelue persones. The eleuenth to Asaiahu wyth hys sonnes and brethzen, twelue persones. The twelue to hasabiah wyth hys sonnes and brethzen, twelue persones. The thirtenth to Subael wyth hys sonnes & brethzen twelue persones. The fourtenth to Nathaniahu wth hys sonnes & brethzen twelue persones. The fyftenth to Jerimoth wth hys sonnes & brethre, twelue persones. The syxtenth to Hananiahu wyth hys sonnes and brethre, twelue persones. The xviij. to Josbekasa wyth hys sonnes, and brethzen twelue persones. The cyghtenth to Hanani with hys sonnes & brethre, twelue persones. The nyntenth to Malothi with hys sonnes & brethzen, twelue persones. The twentieth to Eliatha with hys sonnes and brethzen, twelue persones. The xxi. to bohir with hys sonnes & brethre twelue persones. The xxij. to Gedalthi with hys sonnes and brethzen, twelue persones. The xxiiij. to Mahazioth wth hys sonnes and brethre, twelue persones. The xxv. to Romanthi Azer with hys sonnes & brethzen, twelue persones.

The xxvi. Chapter.

The porters of the temple are ordered, euery man to the gate whych he shulde kepe.

Hese are the deuysys of the porters, amonge the Corethites: Delelemiah the sonne of Roze of the chyldren of Asaph.

And the sonnes of Delelemiah were these: zachariahu the eldest, Jedibel the seconde, zebadiahu the thirde, and Jathiel the fourth, Elam y^e fyfte, Jehohanah the first, & Elioenai the seuenth. The sonnes of Obed

Edom: Semecia the eldest, Jehosabab the seconde, Joah the thyrde, Sacar the fourth, & Methuacel the fyfte, Amiel the syxte, Isachar the seuenth, Deulthai the viij. for God blessed hym.

And vnto Semecia his sonne were sonnes bozne, & ruled in the house of their father, for they were men of myght. The sonnes of Semecia: Othni, Rephael, Obed and Elzabad & hys brethren were stronge men. Elibu and Samabiahu. All these were of the chyldren of Obed Edom, the y and their chyldren, and their brethren, actiue men and of strenght to do seruice, euen lxii. of Obed Edom. And Melchiah had sonnes and brethren, actiue men xviij. The sonnes of Hosa of the chyldren of Merari: Simri the chefe, & though he was not the eldest, yet his father sett him in the cheffest place. Helkiah the seconde, Tebaliah the thirde, and Zechariahu the fourth: all the sonnes and brethren of Hosa were xlii.

Amonge these was deuyded the offyce of the porterhypppe that they shulde be auncient men, to waite woth they brethren, when they mynistred in the house of the Lord. And they cast lottes, betwene the great and small after the household of their fathers, for euery gate. And the lot on the east syde fell vpon Helmeiah. And for zachariahu hys sonne (which was a wise counsellor) they cast lottes, & hys lot came out toward the North. And Obed Edom's lot fell to the South. And for hys sonnes fell the houses of Asuppim. For Suphim and Hosa toward the west, with the gate that stondeth toward the hyer waye: one watch beyng ouer agaynst another.

In the east were syxe Leuites: & toward the North. iiii. a daye: toward the South. iiii. a daye, & toward Asuppim, two & two. In Pharbar toward the west: two at y goyng vp, & two in Pharbar. These are the deuytyngs of the porters among the sonnes of Izrahel amonge the sonnes of Merari. And of the Leuites, Abiah had the ouersyght of the treasure of the house of God, and of the treasure of the dedicat thynge.

As concernyng the sonnes of Laada whych were the chyldren of the Gerlonites. Of Laada came auncient fathers. Euen of Laada there came Serlun & Jehieli. The sonnes of Jehieli: Zethan & Joel hys brother, which were ouer the treasures of the house of the Lord. Of the Amramites also & Izaharites, Hebzonites & Ozelites, was Subuel the sonne of Serlun the sonne of Moses, a ruler ouer the treasures. And of his brethren the sonnes of Eliezer, was Rahabiah, whose sonne was Iaiahu, whose sonne was Joza, whose sonne was Zichri, whose sonne was Helomith, whych Helomith and hys brethren were ouer all the treasures of the dedycate cate thynge, which David the kynge, & the auncient fathers, the capitaynes ouer thousandes & hundredes, & the captaynes of the hoste, had dedicated out of the spoyles wone in battels: they dyd dedicate the to maisteyne the house of the Lord: & all that Samuel the sear, and Saul the sonne of Cis, and Abner the sonne of Ner, and Joab the sonne of Zaruia had dedicated, & whosoeuer had dedicate anye thynge, it was vnder the hande of Helomith and of hys brethren.

Of the Izaharites was Chenaniahu & hys sonnes, appoynted to the busynesse withoutforth ouer Israel: for they were officers and Judges. And of the Hebzonites was Abiah & his brethren, men of actiuite a thousande & seue hundred, were officers amonge them of Israel beyond Jordan westward, in all busynesse belöing to God, and seruice of the kynge. Amonge the Hebzonites was Jediah the cheffest, euen a prince among the Hebzonites & fathers of hys kynred. And in the fourtye yere of the kynghome of David, they were fought for. And there were found amonge the men of actiuite at Jazer in Gilead. And hys brethren were men of actiuite, eue two thousand & seuen hundred, auncient fathers, whiche kynge David made rulers ouer the Rubenites, Gadites, and ouer the halfe trybe of Manasse, for euery matter pertainyng to God, and for the kynge's busynesse.

The xxviij. Chapter.

Of the princes and rulers that mynistred vnto the kynge.

The chyldren of Israel: after the nombre of the, the auncient hundredes & captaynes of thousandes and hundredes, & their officers & serued the kynge by diuerse courses which came in & wet out, moneth by moneth, thowow out all the monethes of the yere. And in euery course were xliiij. thousande. Ouer the fyrst course for the fyrst moneth, was Iasobab the sonne of Zabdai. And in his course were xliiij. thousand. And the cheffest of all the captaynes of the host for the fyrst moneth, was of the chyldren of Pharez. Ouer the seconde course was Dodai an Ahohite & in his course was Hithloah a ruler: (his helper) And in the course were xliiij. thousande. The cheffest captayne of the thirde host for the thirde moneth, was Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada the hys preaste: And in his course were xliiij. thousand. This is Banaiahu, which was most myghtie amonge xxx. & aboute xxx. And in his parte was Amizabad his sonne.

The fourth captayne for the fourth moneth, was Asael the brother of Joab, & Zabadi his sonne after him. And in his course were xliiij. thousande. The fyfte captayne for the fyfte moneth was Sambut the Jezrahite, rahite: & in hys course were xliiij. thousand. The syxte captayne for the syxte moneth was Ira the sonne of Ichesa the Checkuite: & in hys course were xliiij. thousande.

The seuenth captayne for the seuenth moneth, was Hilez the Belonite, of the chyldren of Ephraim: & in his course were xliiij. thousand. The eyght captayne for the eyght moneth, was Sibechar an husathite of the kynne of Zari: & in his course were xliiij. thousand. The nynt captayne for the nynt moneth, was Abiezer an Anathothite of the sonnes of Iemin: and in hys course were xliiij. thousand. The tenth captayne for the tenth moneth, was Hahari the Netophathite of the Zarahites: and in hys course were xliiij. thousande. The leuenth for the eleuenth moneth, was Banai the Pirathonite of the chyldren of Ephraim: and in his course were xliiij. thousand. The tweluenth captayne for the tweluenth moneth, was Heldai the Netophathite & Othniel, and in his course were xliiij. thousand. And the rulers ouer the trybes of Israel were these: Amonge the Rubenites was Eliezer the sonne of Zichri. Amonge the Simeonites also was Saphatiah the sonne of Maacha. Amonge the Leuites: Banabiah the sonne of Lemuel. Amonge the Haronites: Zadock. Amonge the of Juda: Elibu of the brethren of David. Amonge them of Issachar. Omri the sonne of Michael. Amonge the of Zabulon: Ichnaiahu the sonne of Obadiah. Amonge them of Nephtali: Jerimoth the sonne of Azriel. Amonge the chyldren of Ephraim: Hosa the sonne of Azariah. In the halfe trybe also of Manasse: Joel the sonne of Obadiah. Of the halfe trybe of Manasse in Gilead: Jido the sonne of zachariahu. Amonge the of Beniamin: Jaaiel the sonne of Abner. Amonge them of Dan: Azarel the sonne of Jeroham. These are the Lordes of the trybes of Israel.

But David toke not the nombre of them vnder xx. yere: because the Lord sayd he wold encrease Israel lyke vnto the starres of the skye. And Joab the sonne of Zaruia began to nōbre: but he fynished it not, because there fell wrath for it against Israel: neither was the nombre put in to the chronycles of kynge David.

Ouer the kynge's treasures was Azmabeth the sonne of Adiel. And ouer the treasures of the felde, in the cyties & villages & castelles, was Jehonathā, the sonne of Elzabai. And ouer the worckmē in the felde that tyled the ground, was Ezer the sonne of Cheleb. And the ouersyght of the vineyardes had Semai the Ramathite. Ouer the increace also of the vineyardes, & ouer the winecellers was Sabdi the Hasiphunite. And ouer the oliuetrees & mulbertrees were in the valeys, was Baal Hanā the Gederite. And ouer the treasure of oyle, was Joas: Ouer the oren that fed in Sharon, was Setari the Saronite. And ouer the oren that were in the valeys was Saphat the sonne of Adlai. Ouer the camelles, Obil the Ismaelyte. And ouer the Asses was Johadihu the Meronothite. Ouer the shepe, was Jazis the Hagerite. All these were the rulers of the substance of kynge David. And Jehonathā David's vncle, a man of counsell, and of vnderstandyng was a scribe, and Jehiel the sonne of Bachmoni & was wyth the kynge's sonnes enstructinge them. And Abitophel was of the kynge's counsell. And Husai the Archite was the kynge's companyon. And next to Abitophel was Jehoiada the sonne of Banaiahu, & Abiathar. And the captayne of the kynge's warre, was Joab.

The xxviij. Chapter.

Because David was forbidden to buy the temple, he exhorted Salomon and the people to performe it.

And David gathered together all the Lordes of Israel: & Lordes of the trybes, the Lordes of the companyes that mynistred to the kynge by course, the captaynes ouer the thousandes & ouer the hundredes, & the Lordes that had the ouersyght ouer all the substance and possession of David, hys sonnes, wyth the chambrelaynes: all the myghtye and valeaunt and all actiue men, vnto Ierusalem. And kynge David stode vpon hys fete, and sayde.

Hear me my brethren & my people. * I had in myne hert to buyde an house of rest for the Arke of the couenant of the Lord, & for the fote stole of oure God, & had made redye, for the buyldyng. But God sayd vnto me: * Thou shalt not buyde an house for my name, because thou hast bene a man of warre, and hast shed blood. Wherefore, the Lord God of Israel: chose me before all the house of my father, to be kyge ouer Israel for euer, for in Iuda wold he chose a captayne: & of the household of Iuda is the house of my father, & amonge the sonnes of my father he had a lust to me, to make me kyng ouer all Israel. And of all my sonnes (for the Lord hath geue me manye sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to syt vpon the scat of the kynghome of the Lord in Israel. And he sayde vnto me: * Salomon thy sonne, he shall buyld me an house & ceutres, I haue chosen hym to be my sonne, & I wil be his father. I will stablysh his kyngdome for euer, If he will be strōg to do my commandmentes, & my lawes, as it goeth this daye.

Now therfore, in the syght of all Israel the congregacyō of the Lord, & in the audience of oure God: kepe & seke for all the commandmentes of the Lord your God, & ye maye enioye a good land, & leaue inheritance for your chyldren after you for euer. And Salomon my sonne, knowe thou y God of thy father, and serue hym with a pure hert, and wyth a swete courage. * For the Lorde sercheth all hertes, and vnderstandeth all the ymaginacions of thoughtes. And yf thou seke hym, he wylbe founde of the: But yf thou forsake hym, he wyl cast the of for euer. Take hede now, for y Lorde hath chosen the, to bylde hym an house of a Sanctuary. Be stronge therfore, and playe the man.

And David gaue Salomon his sonne the paterne of the porche: * (of the temple also) & of y houses that longed therto, of the store houses, vpper chambers, ynnere parlours, & of the house of the mercyscate: & the example of all that he had in his mynde, for the courtes of the house of the Lorde, & for all the celles rounde about, for the treasures of the house of God, and for the treasures of the dedycate thynges, & for the diuisions of the preastes and Leuites that wayted by course, & for all the worke manshipp, that shulde serue for the house of the Lorde, & for all the vessels that shulde serue in the house of the Lorde. For golde & for the wayght of golde, for all vessels of sondre ministracions: for all maner of vessels of syluer in weyght, & for all vessels, whatsoeuer purpose they serued vnto.

The wayght of golde for the candelstykkes, and the golde for their lampes, with the wayght for euery candelstykke, & for the lampes therof. And for the candelstykkes of syluer by wayght, both for the candelstykke and also for her lampes accordinge to the diuersite of y vse of euery candelstykke. And by wayght * (he gaue) golde for the tables of shewe breed, euen for euery table: and lyke wyse syluer for the tables of syluer. And golde for flesheholes, cuppes and drynckynge pottes: And pure golde in wayght for basens, eue for euery basen. And lyke wyse syluer by wayght, for euery basen of syluer. And for the aulter of incense, pure golde by wayght. And gold for the paterne of the charett of the Cherubes y stretched out their wynges, and couered the Arche of y couenaunt of the Lord. All (sayde David) was geuen me by wyrtynge of the hande of the Lorde, whych made me vnderstande all the worke manshipp of the paterne.

And David sayde to Salomon his sonne: Be stronge, and do manfully, feare not, nor be faynt harted. For the Lorde God, eue my God, is wyth the, and he shall not fayle the, nor forsake the, vntyll thou hast fynlyshed all the worke that must serue for y house of the Lord. Beholde, the preastes and Leuites are denibed in companyes, for all maner of seruyce that pertayneth to the house of God: they are wyth the for all maner of worke manshipp, and so are all that excell in wysedome for any maner of seruyce. Thou hast also the Lordes and all the people for euery thyng that thou hast nede of.

The xxix. Chapter.

The offernges of David & of the princes for the byldynge of the temple. David dyeth, & Salomon his sonne raygneth in his steade.

And David the kynge sayde vnto all the congregacion: * God hath specialy chosen Salomon my sonne whych is yet younge & tender, & the worke is greute, for the house shall not be for mā, but for the Lorde God. Moreover, I haue prepared w all my myghte for the house of God: golde for vessels of golde, syluer for the of syluer, brasse for thynges of brasse, yron for thynges of yron, & wood for thynges of wood: and onir stones, and stones to be sett, glystringe stones and of diuerse coloure, and all maner of precious stones, and marble stones in great aboundance. And because I haue lust to y house of my God: I haue of myne owne propre good, of golde and syluer whych I haue scitally geue to the house of my God, besyde all y I haue prepared for y holy house: euen thre thousande talentes of golde of Ophir, and seuen thousande talentes of tryed syluer: to ouerlaye the wallis of the houses withall: y golde for thynges of golde syluer for them of syluer, & for all maner of worke by y handes of artifycers. And who soeuer is willing, maye this daye consecrate his hande vnto the Lorde.

And so the auncient fathers and the Lordes of the trybes of Israel, the captaynes of thousandes and hundredes, with the Lordes that were rulers ouer the kynges worke, were wyllynge and gaue for the seruyce of the house of God, fyue thousande talentes of golde, and ten thousande peces of golde: and ten thousande talentes of syluer, and xviij. thousande talentes of brasse, and an hundred thousande talentes of yron. And they with whom precious stones were founde gaue the to the treasure of the house of y Lord, by the hande of Ichiel the Gerlonte.

And the people reioysed, whā they were so wyllynge to geue their goodes, and wyth a perfecte hert they offred vnto the Lorde. And David the kynge reioysed wyth great gladnesse. And David blessed the Lorde before all the congregacion, and sayde: Blessed be thou Lord God of Israel our father, from euer and for euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse, and power, glorie, victorie and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in erth is thyne, & thyne is the kyngdom (O Lorde) and thou excellest aboue all, euen as the heed of all. And rycheesse and honoure come of the, and thou raygneest ouer all, and in thyne hande is power and strength, and in thyne hande is to make great & to geue strenght vnto all.

And

And nowe oure God, we thanke the, and prayse thy glorious name. But who am I, and what is my people: that we shulde enforce oure selues to geue these thynges so willingly: But all thynges come of the: and of that which we receaued of thyne hande we haue geuen the. * For we be but straungers before the, and sojourners, as were all oure fathers. Dure dayes on the erth also are but as a shadowe, and there is none abydinge. O Lorde oure God, all this stuffe y we haue prepared to bylde the an house for thy holy name, cometh of thyne hande, & is all thyne. (I wote also my God) that thou trest the hertes, and hast pleasure in vnfaynednesse. And in the vnfaynednesse of myne herte. I haue willingly offred all these thynges. And nowe haue I seue thy people which are founde here, to offer vnto the willingly and wyth gladnesse. O Lorde God of Abraham, Isahac, & of Israel our fathers, kepe this for euer, as the begynnynge of the thoughtes of the herte of thy people, and prepare their hertes vnto the. And geue vnto Salomon my sonne, a perfecte herte, to kepe thy commaundmentes, thy testymonies and thy statutes, and to do all, & to bylde the house for the which I haue made prouision for.

And David sayde to all the cōgregacion: Nowe blese the Lorde poure God. And all the cōgregacion blessed the Lorde God of their fathers, and bowed downe their heades and worshypped the Lorde and the kynge. And they offred offernges vnto the Lorde. And on the morowe after y sayde daye, they offred burnt offernges vnto the Lorde. eue a thousande pouce oxen, a thousande rāmes & a thousande shepe, with their dryncke offernges. Many sacrifices offred they for all Israel, & dydeate & dryncke before the Lorde the same daye w greute gladnesse. And they made Salomon the sonne of David kynge the seconde tyme, and annoynted him pryncce before the Lorde, and zadock to be the hye preaste. * And Salomon sat on the seate of the Lorde, and was kyng in steade of David his father, & prospered, and all they of Israel obeyed him. And all the Lordes and men of power, and all the sonnes of kynge David submitted them selues, & were vnder kynge Salomon. * And the Lorde magnified Salomon in dignite, in the syght of all them of Israel, and gaue him so glorious a kyngdome as no kynge had before him in Israel.

And so David the sonne of Isay raygned ouer all Israel. And y space that he raygned ouer Israel, was fourtye yere: seuen yere raygned he in Hebrō, & xxiiij. yere raygned he in Ierusalem. And he dyed i a good age: full of dayes, ryches and honoure. And Salomon his sonne raygned in his steade. The actes of David y kynge fyrst and laste, beholde, they are written in the boke of Samuel the sear, and in the boke of Nathan y prophete, and in y boke of Gad the sear, w all his kyngdome and power & tymes, y wet ouer him and ouer all Israel, & ouer all y kyngdomes of y erth.

The fyrst Chapter.

The offernges of Salomon in the bylde of the temple, where he receaueth an answer of God, what wysdome shulde be geuen him: wyth the nomb: of his charettes and horsemen.

And Salomon y sonne of David wared stronge in his kyngdome & y Lorde his God was with him, & magnified him in y dignite. And Salomon spake vnto all Israel, to the captaynes ouer thousandes, to y captaynes ouer hundredes, to y indges and to euery offyccer in all Israel, and to the auncient fathers. And so Salomon & all the congregacion with him * went to the hye place that was at Gibeon: for there was the tabernacle of the witnesse of God, * which stoyes the seruauant of the Lorde made in the wilderness. But the Arche of God * had David brought fro Ierusalem Ierusalem, into y place which David had prepared therfore. For he had pytched a tente for it at Ierusalem. Moreover, the brassen aulter * y Bezakeel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of hur had made, was there, before the tabernacle of the Lorde. And Salomon and the congregacion went to vset it. And Salomon gat vnto there before the Lorde to the brassen aulter that was before the tabernacle of wyrt.

* 19. re. 19. c. nesse, & * offered a thousande burnt sacrificys vpon it. And y^e same nyght dyd God appeare vnto Salomon, and sayde vnto hym: aske, what I shall geue the. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercye vnto Dauid my father, and * hast made me to raygne in his steade. * Nowe therfore O Lorde God, let thy promyse which thou madest vnto Dauid my father, be true. For * I hast made me kynge ouer a people: which is lyke the dust of the earth in multitude. Wherefore, geue me nowe wysdome & knowledge, that I maye be able to go out and in before this people: for who els (woorthelp) can iudge this people that is so great?

* And God sayde to Salomon, because this was in thynne hert, and because thou hast not asked treasure, and rychesse, & honoure, and the lynes of thynne enemyes, nether yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysdome and knowledge for thy selfe, to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made the kynge: wysdome and knowledge is graunted vnto the, and I will geue the treasure, and rychesse, and glorie: so that amonge the kyniges that haue bene before the or after the, none was or shalbe lyke the. And so Salomon cam from the hylaulter (that was at Gibeon) to Jerusalem, fro the tabernacle of witnessse, and raygned ouer

* 19. re. 19. d. Israel. And * Salomon gathered charrettes and horsemen: and he had a thousande, and foure hundred chrettes, and .vij. thousande horsemen, whiche he bestowed in the charret cyries, and with the kynge at Jerusalem.

* 19. re. 19. d. And * the kynge made syluer and golde at Jerusalem, as plenteous as stones: and Cedar trees made he as plentie as the mulberry trees that growe in the valeys. And y^e horses which Salomon had, were brought him out of Egypt by the kyniges marchauntes y^e were together, which beyng of one company, toke the out at a pryce. They came also and brought out of Egypt a charret for fyre hundred peces of syluer: euen an horse for an hundred & fyftie. And so brought they horses for all the kyniges of the heathens, & for the kyniges of Siria by their awne hande.

The seconde Chapter.

Salomon sendeth to Hiram the kynge of Tyre for wood and workmen.

* 19. re. 19. d. And Salomon determined to buylde an house for the name of y^e Lorde, and an house for his kynge dome and Salomon tolde out thre skore and ten thousande men to beare burdes, and foure skore thousande men to hewe stones in the mountayne, and thre thousande and fyre hundred to ouer se them.

* 19. re. 19. d. And Salomon sent to Hiram y^e kynge of Tyre sayinge. As thou dydest deale with Dauid my father and * dydest send him Cedar woodde, to buylde him an house to dwelle

in, euen so deale with me: For I am aboute to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to offre vnto him holy thinges, and to burne swete encense, and to sett the whered before him continuallye, to offre burnt sacrificys of the mornynge and euenynge: on the Saboth dayes, in y^e fyfth daye of euery newe moone, & in the solempne feastes of the Lorde oure God: for it is an ordinance to be continuallye kepte of Israel. And y^e house which I buylde shalbe great: for great is oure God above all Gods. But who is able to buylde him an house: when that heauen, and heauen aboute all heauens is not able to receaue him: what am I then that I shulde buylde hym an house: nay, but euen to burne sacrifice before him, shal this buyldinge be: sende me nowe therfore a conynge man, y^e can worke in golde and syluer, in brasse and y^ere, in purple, cremosin and yelow sylke, and that can skylle to graue, with the conynge men that are with me in Iuda and Jerusalem, whom Dauid my father dyd prepare. Send me also Cedar trees, pyne trees & Algume trees out of Libanon. For I wote that thy seruantes can skylle to hewe tymbre in Libano. And beholde, my men shalbe wth thynne, that they maye prepare me tymbre ynough. For the house which I am determyned to buylde, shalbe wonderfull greate. And beholde, for the vse of thy seruantes the cutters and hewers of tymbre: I haue geuen .xx. thousande quarters of beaten wheate, and .xx. thousande quarters of barleye, and .xx. thousande bates of wyne, and .xx. thousande bates of oyle. And Hiram kynge of Tyre answered in wyrtunge, which he sent to Salomon. Because y^e Lorde hath loued his people, therfore hath he made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreouer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel which made heauē and erth, and that hath geuen Dauid the kynge a wyse sonne, and one y^e hath discrecion, prudence, and vnderstandynge, to buylde an house for the Lorde, & a palace for him selfe. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man, and a man of vnderstandynge (whom my father Hiram dyd vse) * the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a mā of Tyre, and he can skylle to worke in gold and syluer, in brasse and y^ere, in stone and tymbre, in purple and yelow sylke, in fyne whyte and cremosin: and can graue sondrie maner of gravinges, and to fynde out dyuerse maner of sotle worke that shalbe sett before him, with thy conynge men, & with the conynge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. Nowe therfore, y^e wheate, and barleye, oyle and wyne which my Lorde hath spokē of, let him sende vnto his seruantes. And we will cut wood in Libano, as moch as thou shalt nede, and will bring it to y^e, in shippes by see to Japho, from whence thou mayst carpe them to Jerusalem. And Salomon nobzed all the strangers that were in the lade of Israel, after the nombze of them whom his father Dauid had nombzed. And they were founde an hundred and .liij. thousande and fyre hundred. And he set. lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and. lxxx. thousande to hewe stones in y^e mountayne, and thre thousande and fyre hundred officers, to set y^e people a worke.

The .liij. Chapter.

The temple of the Lorde and the porche are buylde, with other thynges thereto belongynge.

* 19. re. 19. d. And Salomon beganne to buylde the house of y^e Lorde at Ierusalem in moūt Moria * where (the Lorde) appeared vnto Dauid his father: euen in the place that Dauid prepared in the thershyng floure of Ornan y^e Jebusyte. And * he began to buylde in the seconde daye of the seconde moneth * the fourth yere of his raygne. And these are the paterne wherby Salomon was instructed to buylde y^e house of God. The length was thre skore cubytes after the olde measure, and the bredthe. xx. cubytes. The porche, y^e was in bredthe as large as the temple, had. xx. cubytes: and the heygth was an hundred & .xx. cubytes. And he ouerlayed it on y^e pinner syde with pure golde.

And the greater house he sylde with fyre tree, which he ouerlayde with the best gold, and graued therto palm trees and cheynes. And he ouerlayed the house with precyous stone bewtyfully. And the golde was golde of Daruaim. The house (I saye) y^e beames, postes, walles and dozes therof, ouerlayed he with gold, and made grauen worke vpon the walles.

And he made y^e house moost holpe, whose length was. xx. cubytes lyke to the bredthe of the house, and the bredthe therof was also. xx. cubytes. And he ouerlayde it wyth good golde, euen with. vij. hundred talentes. And the waight of the naples of gold was fyftie sycles. And he ouerlayde y^e upper chabres with golde.

* 19. re. 19. d. And in y^e house moost holy, he made two Cherubyns of ymage worke, lyke chyldzen, and ouerlayde them with gold. And y^e wynges of the Cherubs were. xx. cubytes longe. The one wyng was fyue cubites, reaching to the wall of the house, and the other wyng was lyke wyse fyue cubytes, reaching to y^e wyng of the other Cherub. And euen so the one wyng of the other Cherub was fyue cubytes, reaching to the wall of the house, and the other wyng was fyue cubites also, and reached to the wyng of the other Cherub. So that the wynges of the sayde Cherubs were stretched out. xx. cubytes. And they stode on their fete, and looked in wardes. And he made a fore hangynge of yelow sylke purple, cremosyne, and fyne white, and cauled the pictures of Cherubs to be brodered thereon. And he made before the house, two pylers of. xxxv. cubytes hye. And the heed that was aboue on the toppes of euery one of the was fyue cubytes. And he made charynes of wrethe worke for the queere, and put them on the heedes of the pylers, & made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the cheynes. And he reared vp the pylers before the temple: one on the ryght hande, and the other on the lefte, and called y^e ryght Jachin, and the lefte Boaz.

The .liij. Chapter.

The altare of brasse, the Lauatoze, the bestelles to walthe with, the candelltyckes, &c.

* 19. re. 19. d. And he made an altare of brasse. xx. cubytes longe, and. xx. cubytes broad, and ten cubytes hye. * And he cast a brasen Lauatoze of ten cubytes from byrm to byrm, rounde in compase, and fyue cubytes hye: and a lyne of thyrty cubytes dyd compase it rounde aboute. And vnder it was the fashyn of oren which dyd compase it rounde aboute: with ten cubytes dyd they compase the Lauatoze rounde aboute, and there were, two rowes of oren which were cast of lyke molten worke. And it stode also vpon twelue oren: thre looked towarde the North, thre towarde the west, thre towarde the South, and thre towarde the East, and the Lauatoze was set vpon them, and all their backes were towarde the Lauatoze. And the thyrkest of it was an handbrede, and the byrm lyke the byrm of a cuppe, with floures of lylies. And it receaued and helde thre thousande bates.

* 19. re. 19. d. And he made ten lauers: and put fyue on the ryght hande, and fyue on the lefte, to walthe and clese in them, soch thinges as they offered for a burnt offeryng. But the great Lauatoze was for the prestes to walthe in. And he made ten candelltyckes of golde: accordinge to the paterne y^e was geue of them) and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght hande and fyue on y^e lefte. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght syde, and fyue on the lefte. And he made an hundred basens of golde. And he made the courte of the prestes, & the great courte and dozes to it: and ouerlayde the dozes of them with brasse. And he set the great Lauatoze on y^e ryght syde of the East ende, ouer agaynst the South. And Hiram made pottes, shouelles and basens, and fynelished the worke that he was appoynted to make for kynge Salomon in the house of God. The two pylers, the couerynges or two heedes on the toppes of the pylers: & the two wretthes to couer the two scalpes or heedes that were on the toppes of the pylers: and foure hundred hundred pomegranates on the two wrethes, two rowes of pomegranates on one wrethe, to couer the two toppes or heedes that were on the pylers. And he made two botomes, and lauers made he vpon the botomes: the great Lauatoz, and twelue oren vnder it. Pottes also and Houelles, fleshe hokes, and all these vesselles dyd hyr father make to kyng Salomon for y^e house of the Lorde, of byrght brasle. In the playne of Jordan dyd the kyng cast them, euen in the claye ground that is, betwene Socoth & zaredatha. And Salomon made all these vesselles in greute aboundance, for the weight of brasle coude not be rekened.

And Salomon made all the vesselles that were for the house of God: the golden aulter also & the tables to sett the shewbred vpon. Moreover, the candlestickes with their lampes, to burne after the maner before the quere, and that of precious golde: and the floweres and the lampes, and the snuffers made of golde, and that perfecte golde: and y^e dore of pure golde. And (he made) the dore of the temple, and the pinner dozes within the place moost holyc, and the pinner dozes of the temple, were gylded. And so was all the worke y^e Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fynished.

The. v. Chapter.

The Arcke is brought into the temple, which is fylled with the glorye of the Lorde.

And so all the worke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was fynished, and Salomon brought in all the thynges that Dauid his father had dedycaed, with the siluer and golde and all the Jewelles, and put them amonge y^e treasures of the house of God.

Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israel togeather and all the heedes of the trybes, and auncient fathers of the chyldren of Israel, vnto Jerusalem: to bringe y^e Arcke of the couenaut of the Lorde out of the cytie of Dauid which is zion. Wherefore all the men of Israel resorted vnto the kyng in the feaste, euen in the seuenth moneth. And all the elders of Israel came, and the Leuites toke vnto the Arcke. And the preastes and the Leuites brought awaye the Arcke and the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holy vesselles that were in y^e tabernacle, and they bare them. And kyng Salomon and all the congregacyon of Israel y^e were assembled vnto him before the Arcke, offered oxen and oren, so manye, that they coude not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And the preastes brought the Arcke of y^e appoyntement of the Lorde vnto his place, euen into the quere of the temple within the place moost holyc, and set it vnder the wynges of the cherubs, that the Cherubs stretched out their wynges ouer the place of the Arcke, & the Cherubs couered both y^e Arcke and her barres aboue on hye. And the barres of the Arcke, were so longe, that the heedes of the barres were sene without the Arcke within y^e quere, but not without. And there y^e Arcke remayned vnto this daye. But there was nothyng in the Arcke, save the two tables which Moses put therein at Horeb, when the Lorde made a couenaut with the chyldren of Israel, after they were come out of Egypt. And it fortuned, that when the preastes were come out of the holy place the sanctuary was fylled with smoke, for all y^e preastes that were present, were sanctified and dyd not then wayte by course, that both the Leuites and the syngers, vnder Asaph, Heman and Jeduthun, were appoynted to sonde offyces with their chyldren and brethren & were arrayed in fyne whyte, haungye Symbales, Psalteries, and Harpes, & stode at the East end of the aulter. and by them an hundred and xx. preastes blowinge with trumpettes. And the trompette blowers and the syngers so agreed, y^e it semed but one voyce in praylinge and thankynge the Lorde. And whan they lyfte vnto their voyce with y^e trompettes, symbales and other instrumentes of musyck, and whan they prayed the Lorde, (and sayde) howe that he is good, and that his merce lakethe euer, y^e house of God was fylled wth a cloude: so that the preastes coude not endure to mynister by the reason of the cloude. For the maiesty of the Lorde had fylled the house of God.

The. vi. Chapter.

The wordes of Salomon to the people, and the prayer that he made vnto God.

When Salomon sayde: * the Lorde hath spoken, howe y^e he wyll dwell in the cloude. And I haue buylt an habitacyon for the, and a place for thy dwellinge for euer. And the kyng turned his face, and blessed the hole congregacyon of Israel, and all the congregacyon of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be y^e Lorde God of Israel which hath with his handes, fulfilled it, that he spake with his mouth to my father Dauid, sayinge: * since the daye that I brought my people out of the lande of Egypt, I chose no cytie amonge all y^e trybes of Israel to buylde an house in, y^e my name myght be there, nether chose I any man to be a ruler ouer my people Israel: sayunge y^e I haue chosen Jerusalem, that my name myght be there, and haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Israel.

* And whan it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an house for y^e name of y^e Lord God of Israel. y^e Lord sayd to Dauid my father: for as moche as it was in thyne herte

herte to buylde an house for my name, thou dydest well that thou so thoughtest in thyne herte. Notwithstandynge, y^e shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne which is proccaded out of thy loynes, he shall buylde an house for my name. The Lorde therefore, hath made good his sayinge that he hath spoken, and I am rylen vnto the towne of Dauid my father, and am set on the seate of Israel, as the Lorde promysed, and haue buylt an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And in it haue I put the Arcke, wherein is the couenaut of the Lorde that he made with y^e chyldren of Israel. And the kyng stode before y^e aulter of the Lorde in the presence of all the cōgregacyon of Israel, and stretched out his handes. For now Salomon had made a brasen pulpit of fyne cubytes longe & fyne cubytes broad, and thre of heyghe, & had set it in the myddes of the great court, & vpon it, he stode and kneeled downe, vnto his knees before all the cōgregacyon of Israel & stretched out his handes toward heauen, & sayde: * O Lorde God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heauen and in erth, which kepest couenaut and shewest merce vnto thy seruantes that walke before the with all their hertes. Thou which hast kept wth thy seruaut Dauid my father the thynges that thou promisedst him: thou saydest it wth thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thyne handes, as it is to se this daye.

And now Lorde God of Israel, kepe wth thy seruaut Dauid my father, the thynges that thou promysedest him, sayinge: * thou shalt in my syght not be without a mā, that shall sytte vnto the seate of Israel: so that thy chyldren take hede to their wayes, to walke in my lawe, as thou hast walked before me. And now Lorde God of Israel, lett thy sayinge be true which thou spakest vnto thy seruaut Dauid. And wyll God in very dede, dwell with men on erthe? Beholde * heauen and heauen aboue all heauens do not containe the: howe moche lesse the house which I haue buylded? Let it be thy pleasure therefore to turne to the prayer of thy seruante and to his supplicacyon (O Lorde my God) to herken vnto the voyce and prayer which thy seruaut prayeth before the: and let thyne eyes be open toward this house daye and nyght, ouer this place, wherein y^e hast sayde, that thou woldest put thy name: to herken vnto the prayer which thy seruante prayeth in this place: herken vnto the prayers of thy seruante & of thy people Israel, which they praye in this place: heare thou (I saye) out of thy dwellinge place, euen out of heauē: heare and be mercyfull. * If a man synne agaynst his neybour, and take on oath agaynst him, and make him to sweare, & they both come before thyne aulter in this house: then heare thou from heauen, and worke, & iudge thy seruantes, that thou rewarde the vngodly, & recompence him his waye vpon his heed, and & iustlye y^e ryghteous, and geue him accordynge to his ryght wylle.

And yf thy people Israel be put to the worke before the enemye, because they haue synned agaynst the. Yet yf they turne & geue thanks vnto thy name, and make intercession, and praye before the in this house: then heare thou fro heauen, and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bringe them agayne vnto the lāde, which thou gauest to them and to their fathers.

* Whan heauen is shutt vp, and there be no rayne, because they haue synned agaynst the: yet yf they praye in this place, and confesse thy name, and repent from their synne for the which thou chastenest the: then heare thou in heauē, & be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy seruantes and of thy people Israel, and guyde thou the in to the good waye, to walke in, and sende rayne vpon thy lande, which thou hast geuen vnto thy people, for an inheritaunce.

And yf there be dearth in the lande, or pestylence, corrupcyon, or blastynge of corne, grasshoppers, or caterpillers, or that theye enemyes besege them in the cyties of theyr lande, & (they destroye the countreys) or whatsoeuer plage or sykennesse it be. Then what supplicacions and prayers soeuer shalbe made of any man, & of all thy people Israel, which shall knowe euery mā his awne sore and his awne greffe, and shall stretch out their handes toward this house, thou shalt heare fro heauen, euen from thy dwellinge place, and shalt be mercyfull, and geue euery man accordynge vnto all his wayes, euen as thou doest knowe euery mannes herte: for y^e onely knowest the hertes of the chyldren of men: y^e they maye feare the & walke in thy wayes as longe as they lyue in the lāde, which thou gauest vnto oure fathers.

* Moreover, the straunger which is not of thy people Israel, yf he come from a farr lande for thy greute names sake, and thy myghty hāde, and thy stretched out arme, yf they come (I saye) & praye in thy house: thou shalt heare from heauen, euen from thy dwellinge place, and shalt do accordynge to all that the straunger calleth to the for. That all people of y^e erth maye knowe thy name, and feare y^e, as doeth thy people Israel, and that they maye knowe, howe that in this house which I haue buylt, thy name is called vpon.

Yf thy people go out to warre agaynst their enemyes, by the waye that thou shalt sende the, and they praye to the, in the waye * toward this cytie which thou hast chosen, euen toward the house which I haue buylt

If they synne agaynst the, as * there is no man but he doth synne, and thou be angrye with them, and deliuer them ouer befoze their enemyes, and they take them and leade them awaye vnto a lade ferre or neare, yet yf they repent in their hert in the lande where they be in captiuite, and turne, and praye vnto the in the lade of their captiuite, sayinge: we haue synned, we haue done euell & wyckedlye, and turne agayne to the, wyth all their herte and all their soule, in the lande of their captiuite, where they kepe them in bondage, and so praye towarde theyr lande which thou gauest vnto their fathers, euen towarde the cytie whych thou hast chosen, and towarde the house which I haue buylt for thy name. Then heare thou from heauen euen from thy dwellinge place, their supplicacyon and their prayer, and iudge their cause, and be mercyfull vnto thy people, which haue synned agaynst the.

Nowe my God, let thine eyes be open, and thine eares attent vnto the prayer that is made in this place. Nowe vnto * O Lorde God into thy restinge place: thou and the Arcke of thy strengthe. O Lorde God, let thy prestes be clothed with health, and let thy sayntes reioyce in goodnesse. O Lord God, turne not awaye the face of thine anoynted. Remembre the mercyes, which thou hast promysed to Dauid thy seruaunte.

The vii. Chapter.

The fire consumed the sacrifice. The Lorde appeareth to Salomon the seconde tyme.

* 16. re. viii. c.
Leui. i. b.
* 19. re. viii. c.

And * when Salomon had made an ende of prayinge, & there came downe fyre from heauen, & consumed the * burnt offeringe and the sacrifices. And the house was fylled with the glorie of the Lorde, & the preste coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glorie of the Lorde had fylled the Lordes house. And whan all the chyldren of Israel sawe howe the fyre, and the glorie of the Lorde came downe vpon the house, they fell downe flat vpon their faces to the erth vpon the pavement, and worshipped and confessed vnto the Lorde, that he is gracious, and that his mercye lasteth euer.

And the kynge and all the people offered sacrifices befoze the Lorde. And kynge Salomon offered a sacrifice of. xxij. thousande oren, and an hundred & twenty thousande shepe. And so the kynge and all the people dedicated the house of God. And prestes waped on their offces, and the Leuites had the instrumentes of musycke of the Lorde, which kynge Dauid had made to confesse vnto the Lorde, that his mercye lasteth euer, playe a psalme of Dauid with their hande. And the prestes blew with trompettes befoze the, and all they of Israel stode. Moreover, Salomon halowed the myddle of the court, that was befoze the Lorde: for there he offered burnt offerings and the fette of the peace offerings, because the brasen aulter which Salomon had made, was not able to receaue the burnt offerings and the meate offerings and the fette.

So at the same tyme Salomon kepte a * feast of seuen dayes, and all they of Israel with him, an exceadynge great congregacyon, euen from the entringe in of Hamath, vnto the ryuer of Egypt. And in the eyght daye they made a gatheringe. For they kepte the dedicacyon of the aulter seuen dayes, and the feast seuen dayes. And the. xxij. daye of the seuenth moneth, he let the people departe into their tentes glad and merie in hert, for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid, and to Salomon, and to Israel his people. * And so Salomon finished the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house: and all that came in his hert to make in the house of the Lorde, and in his awne house, went prosperously forwarde.

And the Lorde apered to Salomon by nyght, and sayde to him. I haue hearde thy petycyon, and * haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an house of sacrifice. Yf thou vnto heauen, that there be no rayne: or yf I commaunde the locustes to deuoure the lande, or yf I sende pestilence amonge my people: and yf they that are of my people, amonge whom my name is called vpon, do humble them selues, and make intercessyon, and seke my presence, and turne from their wycked wayes, then will I heare from heauen, and be mercyfull to their synne, & will heale their lande. And fro hence forth myne eyes shalbe open, and myne eares attent vnto the prayer that is made in this place. And therfore nowe * I haue chosen and sanctified this house, & my name maye be there for euer: and myne eyes and myne heart shalbe there perpetuallye.

And yf thou wilt walke befoze me, as Dauid thy father walked, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and shalt obserue my statutes and my lawes: then will I stablyshe the seat of thy kyngdome, accordynge as I made the covenante with Dauid thy father sayinge: * I shall not be without a man, to be ruler in Israel. But & yf thou turne awaye, and forsake my statutes, and my commaundementes, which I haue set befoze you, and shalt go & serue other Gods, and worshyppe them: then will I plucke them vpon by the rootes out of my lande which I haue geuen the, and this house, which I haue sanctified for my name, will I cast out of my syght, and will make it to be a prouerbe & a least amonge all nacyns.

all nacyns. And euery one that passeth by shalbe astonied at this house, which belongeth to the most hye God, & shal saye, * why hath the Lorde deale on this fashion wyth this lande and wyth this house? The viii. Chapter.

The cities, that Salomon buylded after that the house of God was synished.

* 11. re. viii. c.
* 11. re. viii. c.

And * it fortuned, that after. xx. yere, when Salomon had buylt the house of the Lorde and his awne house: he buylt the cities that Hiram gaue him, and put of the chyldren of Israel in them. And Salomon went to Hamath zoba, and strenghted it. And he buylt Thadmoz in the wyldernes, and repayed all the stowe cities which were in Hamath. And he buylt Bethhoron the vpper and Bethhoron the nether, stronge cities, haupnge walles, gates and barres. And Baalah and all the stowe cities that Salomon had, and all the charer cities, & the cities of the horsmen, and euery pleasaunt place, that Salomon had lust to buylde in Jerusalem and Libanon, and thowre out all the lande of his dominion.

And all the people that were left of the Hethites, Amorites, Pherezytes, Heuites & Jebusites, which were not of the chyldren of Israel: but were the chyldren of them, which were left after them in the lande, and were not consumed of the chyldren of Israel, them dyd Salomon make to paye trybute vnto this daye. But of the chyldren of Israel dyd Salomon make no bondme for his worke: but they were men of warre and rulers and great Lordes with hym, & captaynes ouer his charetes and horsmen. And kynge Salomons offycers that ouersawe and ruled the people, were two hundred and fyfthe.

And Salomon brought the daughter of Pharaon out of the cytie of Dauid, into the house that he had buylded for her. For he sayd: my wyfe shal not dwel in the house of Dauid kynge of Israel, for it is holy, because that the Arcke of the Lorde is come vnto it.

Then Salomon offered burnt offerings vnto the Lorde, on the aulter of the Lorde which he had buylt befoze the porche, doyng euery thyng in his due tyme and offeringe accordynge to the commaundement of Moses, in the sabboties, newmoones, and solemne feastes, * thre tymes in the yere, that is to saye, in the feast of swete bread, in the feast of weekes, and in the feast of tabernacles.

And Salomon set the soztes of prestes

to their offces, as Dauid his father had ordered the, and the Leuites in theyr watches for to praye & minstre befoze the prestes daye by daye, and the porters by course at euery gate. * For so had Dauid the man of God commaunded. And they omptted not the commaundement of the kynge vnto the prestes and the Leuites, concernynge any maner of thyng, and concernynge the treasures. For Salomon made prouisiō for the charges, from the fyrst daye that the foundation of the house of the Lorde was layde: tyll it was synished, that the house of the Lorde was perfecte. Then went kynge Salomon to Ezion Gaber, and to Elath at the se (see syde in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent him by the hande of his seruautes, whyches ad seruautes that had knowledge of the see: and they came with the seruautes of Salomon to Ophir, and caried thence foure hundred and fyfthe talentes of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

The ix. Chapter.

The communicacyon of Salomon with the quene of Saba, and the gyftes that she gaue the other. The death of Salomon, after whom succeeded Rehoboam.

* 11. re. viii. c.
* 11. re. viii. c.

And * whā the quene of Saba hearde of the fame of Salomon, she came to proue hym in harde questions at Jerusalem, with a very great company, with camelles that bare spices & plenty of golde and precyouse stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed with hym of all that she had in her herte. And Salomon soyled her, all her questions, and there was not one worde hyd from Salomon, whych he tolde her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomon and the house that he had buylt, and the meate of his table, the fytyng of his seruautes, and the standing of his wayters, theyr apparell, his buttelars, theyr apparell, his goyng vpon, by the whych he went into the house of the Lorde, ther was nomore spete in her.

And she sayde to the kynge: the sayenge which I heard in myne awne lade, of thine actes, & of thy wysdome, is true. I beleued not y wordes of the, vntyll I came, & myne eyes had sene it. And beholde, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me: for thou exceadest y fame that I heard. Happye are thy men, and happye are these thy seruautes which stande befoze the alwaye, & heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lorde thy God, which had lust to the, to set the kynge on his seat, that thou myghtest be kynge, ordered by the Lorde thy God. Because thy God loveth Israel, and hath delpte to make them contynue euer, therfore made he the kynge ouer them to do ryght and equyte.

And

C And he gaue the kyng an hundred & xx. talentes of golde, and of spyes exceedynge great abundaunce and precious stones, neither was there any more soche spye, as the quene of Saba gaue kyng Salomon. And the seruauntes of Hiram and the seruauntes of Salomon which brought golde from Ophir, brought also Algume wood and precious stones. And the kyng made of the Algume wood, steyres in the house of the Lorde and in the kynges palace, and harpes and psalteries for syngers. And there was no loch wood sene before in the lande of Iuda. And kyng Salomon gaue to the quene of Saba euery pleasaunt thing that she asked but not so moche as she brought vnto the kyng. And so she turned and went away to her awne lande with her seruauntes.

D The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was syxe hundred. lxvi. talentes of golde, besydes that which chapmen and marchauntes brought: and all the kynges of Arabia and rulers of that countrey, brought gold and syluer to Salomon. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten golde, and vi. hundred syckles of beaten gold were spent vpon one bucklar, and thre hundred shylde made he of beaten gold, and one shylde cost thre hundred peces of golde, and the kyng put them in the house that was in the forest of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seat of Iuorie, & ouerlape it with pure golde. And there were syxe steyres to the seate wyth a fote stole of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche syde of the syttinge place, and two lyons standynge by the pomelles. And xii. lyons stode on the one syde and on the other: vpon the syxe steyres, so that there was no soche worke made in any kyngdome.

And all the dynkinge vessels of kyng Salomon were of golde, and all the vessels of the house that was in the forest of Libanon, were of precious golde: for syluer was counted nothyng worth in the dayes of Salomon. For the kynges shypes wente to Tharsis wyth the seruauntes of Hiram: euery thre yere once came the shypes to Tharsis, and brought golde, syluer, Iuorie, and apes and peccokes.

E And kyng Salomon passed all the kynges of the earth in wysdom. And all the kynges of the earth sought the presence of Salomon, to heare his wysdome that God had put in his herte: And they brought euery man his present: vessels of syluer, and vessels of golde, rayment, harnesse, spyes, horses and mules, and whatsoeuer myght be gotten, yere by yere.

F And Salomon had foure thousande stables for horses and charettes, & twelue thousande horsemen, whom he bestowed in the charret cyties, & some were with the kyng at Ierusalem. And he raygned ouer all the kynges that were fro Euphrates vnto the lade of the Philistines, ad to the border of Egypt.

G And the kyng made syluer in Ierusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteous, as the mulberry trees that growe in y valleys. And they brought vnto Salomon horses out of Egypt, & out of all lades.

H The rest of the actes of kyng Salomon, fyrst and last, are they not writte in the saynges of Nathan the Prophete, and in the prophesye of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the visions of Jedo the sear of visions, agaynst Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat: And Salomon raygned in Ierusalem vpon all Israel fourtye yeres. And Salomon slepte wyth his fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his steade.

The x. Chapter.

The folowynge of Rehoboam, and the deuyous of his realme.

A And Rehoboam went to Sichem: For to Sichem were all Israel come together, to make hym kyng. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which was fled into Egypte from the presence of Salomon the kyng) hearde it, he returned out of Egypt. And they sent ad called hym. And so Jeroboam and all they of Israel came and comoned wyth Rehoboam, sayenge: Thy father layed a greuous pocke vpon vs: nowe therfore remytte thou somewhat of the greuous seruyce of thy father and of his heuye pocke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll serue the. And he sayde to the: come agayne vnto me after thre dayes. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam counsayled wyth the elders that had stande before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and he sayde: what counsell geue ye me, to answer this people agayne? And they tolde him, sayenge: If thou be kynde to this people, and shewe thy selfe lowely to the, and speake lounge wordes to the, they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he left the counsell whiche the elders gaue him, ad toke counsell wyth the yongemen, that were growen vp wyth hym and that stode in his presence. And he sayde vnto the: what aduise geue ye, that we may answer this people, which haue comoned wyth me, sayenge: Abate some what of the pocke, whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the yonge men that were growen vp wyth hym, spake vnto hym, sayenge: Thus shalt thou answer the people that spake to the, sayenge: Thy father made oure pocke heuye: but make thou it some what lyghter for vs. Thus shalt thou saye vnto the, my lytle synger shalt be heuyer then my fathers, loynes

I loynes. * For where my father put a heuye pocke vpon you, I wyll put more to your pock: my father chastysed you w whyppes, but I wyll chastyce you with scorpions.

And so Jeroboam & all y people came to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kyng hadde, sayenge: come agayne to me the thyrde daye. And y kyng answered them cruelly: and kyng Rehoboam left y councill of the aged men, and answered them after y aduise of y yonge men, sayenge: My father made your pocke greuous, and I wyll adde thereto: my father chastysed you with whyppes, but I wyll chastyce you with scorpions. And so the kyng herkened not vnto y people: but y occasion came of God, y the Lorde myght make good his sayng, * which he spake, by the hande of Ahia the Silonite, to Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

D And when all they of Israel sawe that y kyng wolde not agree vnto them, y people answered y kyng sayenge: what parte haue we w Dauid, or enheritaunce w the sonne of Isai: let euery man of Israel go to his tent. * And now Dauid, se to thyn awne house. And so all Israel gat them to their tentes, so y Rehoboam raygned ouer no moo of y chyliden of Israel, then dwelt in the cyties of Iuda. Then kyng Rehoboam also sente Haduram y was ruler ouer y tribute, and y chyliden of Israel stoned hym w stones y he dyed. But kyng Rehoboam made speede to get him vp to his charret, to fye to Ierusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst y house of Dauid wito thys daye.

The xi. Chapter.

Rehoboam is forbydden to fyghe agaynst Jeroboam. He hath. xliiij. wyues, and. lx. concubines, and by them xlviii. sonnes, and. lx. daughters.

A And whā Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, * he gathered of the house of Iuda & Benjamin, nyne score thousande chosen men of warre to fight agaynst Israel, & to bynne y kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam. And the word of the Lorde came to Semetahu the man of God, sayenge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, & to all them of Israel that are in Iuda & Benjamin, & saye: thus sayeth y Lorde. Ye shall not go vp nor fight agaynst your brethren: retorne euery man to his house, for thys thyng is done of me. And they obeyed y wordes of y Lorde, and returned fro goynge agaynst Jeroboam.

B And Rehoboam dwelt in Ierusalem, and buylt stronge cyties in Iuda. He buylded vp Bethleem, and Etham, and Betho: Bethzur, Socho and Adullam: Gath, and Marisa: and ziph Aduraim, Lachis and Ascha: zorca Aialon and Hebron, which is in Iuda & Benjamin, stronge cyties. And he repayred y stronge holdes & put captaynes in them, and stoz of vitayle, & wyne, & oyle. And in all cyties he put shylde & speares, and made them exceedynge stronge, haupynge Iuda and Benjamin on his syde.

And the prestes and y leuites that were in all Israel, resorted to hym out of all their coastes. For the leuites left their suburges and their possession, and came to Iuda and Ierusalem: * for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them out from minystryng vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned hym prestes for the hylaltares, for the deuyles and for the calues which he had made. And after y leuites there went of all y trybes of Israel, soche as submitted their hertes to seke the Lorde God of Israel, and came to Ierusalem, to offer vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And so they strengthened the kyngdome of Iuda, and made Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon myghty thre yere longe, for thre yere they walked in y waye of Dauid and Salomon.

And Rehoboam toke hym Mahalath y daughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wyfe, and Abihail the daughter of Eliab the sonne of Isai, which bare hym chyliden Ieus, Samaria, and Zaba. And after her he toke Maaca y daughter of Absalon which bare hym Abia, Attai, Ziza, & Selomith. And Rehoboam loued Maacah the daughter of Absalon aboue all his wyues & concubynes, for he toke eyghtene wyues and thre thore concubynes, and begat. xlviii. sonnes and. lx. daughters. And Rehoboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the chefe ruler amonge his brethren, and to haue the ouersyght of the kyngdome. And he played w self, and scatered all his chyliden thorow out all the countreys of Iuda and Benjamin vnto euery stronge cytie. And he gaue them abundaunce of vitayle, and obtayned many wyues.

The xii. Chapter.

Sefak kyng of Egypte robbeth the temple of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth, & Abia his sonne succedeth hym.

A And it came to passe, that when Rehoboam had stablyshed the kyngdome, and became myghty, he forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and all Israel with him.

And

iii. reg.
iii. c.

* And it fortuned, that in the fyfte yere of kynge Rehoboam, Sefac the kynge of Egypte came vp agaynst Jerusalem, because they had transgressed agaynst the Lorde w^{ch} xii. charrettes, and lx. m. horsmen. And the people were without nombre, that came with hym out of Egypte Lubim, Sukkim, and the blackmoyses. And they toke the stronge cyties in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

Then came Semeia p^r prophete to Rehoboam & to the Lordes of Juda, that were gathered together within Jerusalem for Sefac, and sayd vnto them: thus sayd the Lord, ye haue left me, & therfore haue I also left you in p^r hādes of Sefac. Wherupon the lordes of Israel and the kynge humbled them selues, and sayde, the Lorde is ryghteous. And whan the Lorde sawe that they submitted them selues, the worde of p^r Lorde came to Semeia, sayinge: They submitte them selues, therfore I wyl not destroye them. But I wyl deliuer them somewhat, and my wrath shall not burne vpon Jerusalem by p^r hāde of Sefac. Neuerthelesse, they shalbe hys seruantes, to knowe what difference is betwene my seruice, and the seruice of the kyngdomes of the worlde.

And so Sefac kynge of Egypte came to Jerusalem, and toke awaye the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of p^r kynges house: he toke euen all. And he carped awaye the shylde of golde, * which Salomon made. In steade of which, kynge Rehoboam made shylde of brasse, and compted them to the hādes of the captaynes which had p^r ouersyght of the fote men, and that kept the entraunce of p^r kynges house. And it came to passe, that when the kynge entred into the house of the Lorde, the garde came & fet them, and brought them agayne vnto the garde chambze. And when he humbled hym selfe, the wrath of the Lorde turned from hym, that he wolde not destroye all together. And in Juda all was well.

And so kynge Rehoboam waxed myghty & raygned in Jerusalem. And Rehoboam was xli. yere olde, whē he began to raygne, & he raygned. xlii. yeres in Jerusalem, the cytie which the Lorde had chosen out of all the trybes of Israel to put his name there. And hys mothers name was Naama an Ammonitess. * And he dyd euill, because he prepared not hys hert to seke the Lorde.

The actes also of Rehoboam, fyrst and last, are they not wyrtten in p^r sayinges of Semeia the prophete, and of Iddo the sear which noted the genealogie: and there was warre alwaye betwene Rehoboam & Jeroboam. And Rehoboam slept w^{ch} his fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid, and Abia his sonne raygned in his steade.

The xlii. Chapter.

The victorie of Abia agaynst Jeroboam.

In the xlii. yere of kynge Jeroboam * began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, & he raygned thre yere i Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Michatihu the daughter of Uriel of Gibeā. And there was warre betwene Abia & Jeroboam. And Abia made prouisyon for p^r warre, haupng valeant & expert men of warre, euen. iiii. c. m. chosen men. And Jeroboam set him selfe in araye to fyght agaynst hym, w^{ch} viii. c. m. picte men which were stronge & men of armes.

And Abia stode vp vpon zemaraim an hill which is in mount Ephraim, & sayd: heare me p^r Jeroboam and all Israel. Do not you knowe, howe p^r the Lorde God of Israel gaue p^r kyngdome, ouer them of Israel, to Dauid for euer, euen to hym and to hys sonnes & with a salted couenaunt: And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat p^r seruauit of Salomon the sonne of Dauid is rylen vp, & hath rebelled agaynst his lorde. And ther gathered to hym leude men p^r chylde of Belial, & preyed agaynst Rehoboam p^r sonne of Salomon: when Rehoboam was yong & tender hearted, & coulde not stande before them.

And now ye saye, p^r ye be able to preyale agaynst p^r kyngdome of the Lorde, which is in p^r hāde of the sonnes of Dauid, & ye be a greate multitude, & haue the golden calues * which Jeroboam made you for gods. And * haue ye not cast out the prestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the leuites, and haue made you prestes after the maner of the naciōs of other lādes: so that wholoeuer cometh, & consecrateth his hāde with a ydole ore & seuen rammes, the same maye be a preste of them that are no gods.

But we belonge vnto the Lorde our God whom we haue not forsaken, and p^r prestes are p^r sonnes of Aaron, which minstre vnto the Lorde, and p^r leuites wayte vpon theyr office. They burne vnto p^r Lorde euery moynynge & euenynge, burnt sacrifices & swete incense: p^r thewe breed set they in ordze vpon a pure table: & prepare p^r candelstick of gold w^{ch} the lāpes of p^r same to burne euer at euen. And truly we kepe the watche of the Lorde oure God: but ye haue forsake him. And behold, God hym selfe is our captayne, & hys prestes blowe w^{ch} the * trōpettes, & crye alarum agaynst you. O ye chyliden of Israel, fyght not agaynst the Lorde God of your fathers: for it wyl not prospere with you.

But for all p^r, Jeroboam couayed men preyely about, to come behynde them: & so they were before Juda, & p^r layers in wayte were behynde the. And when they of Juda looked about, behold the battayll was before & behynde, & they cryed vnto p^r Lorde & p^r prestes blew w^{ch} p^r trōpettes, & p^r men of Juda gaue a shoute

Shoute. And as the men of Juda shouted, it came to passe, that God smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Abia and Juda. And p^r chyliden of Israel fled before Juda, and God deliuered them into theyr hande. And Abia & hys people slue a greate slaughter of the: there fell downe wounded of Israel. v. c. m. chosen men. And so the chyliden of Israel were brought vnder, at that tyme, and the chyliden of Juda preyed: because they leaned vnto the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, and toke cities from hym, Bethel w^{ch} the townes belongyng thereto, Jesana with the townes that lodged thereto, and Ephron with her townes. And Jeroboam recovered no strength agayne in p^r daies of Abia. And p^r Lorde plagued him, & he dyed.

But Abia waxed myghty, and married xlii. wyues, and begat. xlii. sonnes, and. xvi. daughters. The rest of the actes of Abia, his customes and hys sayinges are wyrtten in the storpe of the prophete Iddo.

The xliii. Chapter.

Of Asa kynge of Juda.

Asia slepte w^{ch} hys fathers, and they buryed hym in p^r cytie of Dauid, and * Asa hys sonne raygned in hys steade. In whose dayes the lande was in quyetnes ten yere.

And * Asa dyd that was good & right in the eyes of the Lorde hys God: for he toke awaye straunge aultars and the hyllaultars, and brake downe the ymages, and cut downe the groves, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe and comāndement. And he put awaye out all the cyties of Juda the hyllaultars and the ymages: and p^r kyngdome was quyet before hym. And he buylte stronge cities in Juda: because the land was in rest, and he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had geuen hym rest.

Therfore he sayde to Juda: let vs buyld these cities, and make about them walles, towres, gates and barres, for the lāde is pet in rest before vs, because we haue sought the Lorde oure God: we haue sought hym, and he hath geuen vs rest on euery side: & so they buylt and it prospered with them. And Asa had an armye of men that bare shylde and speares, out of Juda, thre hundred thousand: and out of Benjamin that bare shylde and due bowes, two hundred & foure score thousand, all these were valeant men.

And there came out agaynst them zarab the black mozan * with an hoost of ten hundred thousande, and thre hundred charrettes, and came as farre as Marela. And Asa wēt out before him, and they ioyned the battayll in the valey of zephata besyde Marela. And Asa cryed vnto the Lorde hys God, & sayde: Lorde, * it is no harde thige with p^r to helpe ether many, or the that haue no power: helpe vs therfore, O Lorde our God, for we trust to the, and in thy name we go agaynst thys myltitude. Thou arte the Lorde oure God, and no man shall preyale agaynst the.

So the Lorde smote the blacke mozes before Asa and Juda, & the blacke mozes fled. And Asa and the people that was with him, folowed after them vnto Serar. And the blacke mozes hoost was ouerthrowen, that there was none of them left, but were destroyed before the Lorde and before his host. And they carped awaye a myghty greate praye. And they smote all the cyties rounde about Serar. For the feare of p^r Lorde came vpon them. And they spoyled all the cyties and there was exccadyng moche spoyl in them. They smote also the tentes of catell, & carped awaye plente of shepe and camels, and returned to Jerusalem.

The xlv. Chapter.

Thynge Asa by the monycon of the prophete Azaria sacrificeth to the Lorde. He dep^r ueth his mecher of her domnyon.

As the sprete of God came on Azaria the sonne of Obed. And he went out to mete Asa, & sayde vnto him: heare me Asa, and all Juda, and Benjamin. The Lorde is with you, while ye be with hym, and when ye seke hym, he wyl be founde of you: and agayne, when ye forsake hym, he also wyl forsake you. And truly, for a longe season in Israel no mā sought the true God, no mā regarded p^r preste that taught them, no mā cared for the lawe. And when any man in hys trouble dyd turne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and sought hym, he was founde of them. And in that tyme there was no peace to hym, that dyd go out and in: but greate sedicion was there amonge all the inhabiteurs of the earth. And nacyon was destroyed of nacyon, and cytie of cytie: for God dyd moue all aduersite amonge them. Playe ye therfore the men, and let not your handes slacke, for your worke shalbe rewarded.

And when Asa hearde those wordes, and the prophete of Azaria the sonne of Obed p^r prophete, he toke courage, & put awaye the abhominable ydols out of all p^r lande of Juda and Benjamin, & out of the cities which he wāne in mount Ephraim, and renued the aultar of the Lorde, that was before p^r porch of the Lorde. And he gathered all Juda and Benjamin, and the straungers with the out of Ephraim, Manasse, & Simron. For there fell many to hym out of Israel, when they sawe that the Lorde hys God was w^{ch} hym. So they assembled at Jerusalem the thyrde monethe, the fyftenth yere of the raygne of Asa. And they offered vnto the Lorde p^r same tyme of the spoyl which they had brought v^{ch}. c. oxen, and. vii. thousande shepe.

And they made a couenaunt to seke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, with all theyr hert & all theyr soule. And whosoever wolde not seke the Lorde God of Israel, shulde dye for it: whether he were small or great, mā or woman. And they sware vnto the Lorde with a loude voyce, howtyng & blowyng wryth troyettes and shawmes. And all they in Juda reioyced at yoth, for they had sworn vnto the Lorde, with all theyr herte, and fought hym with all theyr lust, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue the rest rounde about on euery syde.

And kinge Asa put Maacha his mother out of auctorite, because she had made an abominable ydoll ^{of silver} in a groue: and Asa brake downe her ydoll, and staped it, & burnt it at the broke Cedron. But all ydolaunters were not take awaye out of Israel: though the hert of Asa was perfecte all hys dayes. And he brought into y house of God the thynges that hys father had dedicat, and that he hym selfe had dedicate: euen syluer, & golde, and Jewelles. And ther was nomore warre vnto the xxxv. yere of the raygne of Asa.

The xvi. Chapter.

Asa, for feare of Baasa kyng of Israel, maketh a couenaunt with Benhadad kyng of Siria.

In the xxxvi. yere of the raygne of Asa, came Baasa kyng of Israel vp agaynst Juda, and buylt Ramoth, to the entent that he wolde let none passe out or in ^{to Asa} to Asa kyng of Juda. And Asa fet out golde and syluer, out of the treasures of y house of the Lorde, & of the kynges house, & sent to Benhadad kyng of Siria ydwell at Damesec, and sayd: There is a confederacion betwene me & the, betwene my father & thine. Beholde, I haue sent the syluer and golde, that thou wylt come and breake thine appoyntment w Baasa kyng of Israel, that he maye departe fro me. And Benhadad graunted vnto kyng Asa, and sent to the captaynes of hys armie to the cityes of Israel. And they smote Tiron, Da, and Belmain, and the strong cityes of Nephtali. And when Baasa hearde this, he left buyldyng of Ramoth, and let his worke cease. And then Asa the kyng toke all Juda, and carped awaye the stones and tymbre of Ramoth, wherewith Baasa was a buyldyng, and he buylt therewith Geba and Mizpa.

At that same tyme, Hanani the seer came to Asa kyng of Juda, & sayde vnto hym: because thou hast trusted in the kyng of Siria, and not rather put thy trust in the Lorde thy God, therfore is the host of the kyng of Siria escaped out of thine hande. * Had not the blacke mores and Lubim an exceeding great host with many charrettes and horsemen: And yet because thou trustedest in the Lorde, he deliuered them into thine hande. For the eyes of y Lorde beholde all the erth, to strength them that are of perfecte hert towarde him. * Herin thou hast done folysly, and therfore from henceforth thou shalt haue warre. And Asa was wroth with the seer, & put him into a prison house, for he was displeased with hym because of thys thyng. And Asa destroyed certayne of the people the same ceason.

And beholde, these dedes of Asa, fyrst, & last, are wyrtten in the boke of the kinges of Juda and Israel. And Asa in the xxxix. yere of hys raygne fell speke in hys fete, and that hys disease continued very longe. And in hys syknes he sought not the Lorde, but physicians. And Asa slept with his fathers, and dyed in the xij. yere of hys raygne. And they buryed hym in his awne sepulchre, which he had made for hym selfe in the cype of Dauid, and layed hym in the bed which he had fylled with dyuerse kyndes of spices & swete odours, made by the craft of the potecaryes. And they burnt very moch spyce about him.

The xvii. Chapter.

Jehosaphat causeth the feare of the Lorde to be renewed amonge the people.

And Jehosaphat his sone raygned in hys strate, & preyntled agaynst Israel. And he put souldyers in all the stronge cityes of Juda, and sett rulers in the lande of Juda and in the cityes of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wone. And the Lorde was with Jehosaphat, because he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and sought not Baalim. But sought the Lorde God of hys father, & walked in hys commaundmentes: and not after the doynges of Israel. And the Lorde stablished the kyngdome in his hande, and all they that were in Juda, brought hym presentes, so that he had aboundance of riches and honoure. And he lyft up his hert vnto y wayes of the Lorde, and he putt downe yet more of the hylaulars and groues out of Juda.

In the thyrde yere of hys raygne he sent to hys lordes, euen to Benbail, Obadiah, Zacharia, Bethanel and to Michahu, y they shulde teach in the cityes of Juda, and with them he sent leuites: euen Semeiah, Bethaniahu, zabadihu, Asahel, Semiramoth, & Tubadonia, and with them Elisamah and Jehoram prestes. And they taught in Juda, and had the boke of the lawe of God w the, and went about thorowout all the cityes of Juda, and taught the people.

And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all y kyngdomes of the landes that were rounde about Juda, & they fought not agaynst Jehosaphat. And some of y philistines brought Jehosaphat gyftes, and tribute syluer: And therto therto the Arabians brought him catell: eue vij. M. and vij. C. rammes, and vij. M. and vij. C. hegoates. And so Jehosaphat prospered & grue vp on hys. And he buylt in Juda, castels and stronge cityes: & he had great substance in the cityes of Juda, but the men of armes & strongest souldiers were i Jerusalem.

And these are the offces of the in the houses of their fathers, the captaynes ouer thousandes in Juda. Adna the captayne, & with hym of fightyng men. iij. C. M. And next to hys hande was Jehohanan a captayne, and with hym. ij. C. and lxxx. M. And nexte him was Amazia the sone of zichri, which of his awne good wil offred him selfe vnto y Lorde, and w hym. ij. C. M. myghty men of warre. And of the chyldren of Benjamin, Eliada a man of myght, and had with hym armed me with bowe & sylde. ij. C. M. And nexte hym was Jeholabad, and with hym an. C. and lxxx. M. that were prepared for the warre. These wayted on the kyng, besydes those which the kinge put in the stronge cityes thorowout all Juda.

The xviii. Chapter.

After Ahab had asked counsell of the foure hundred prophetes, he put Michia in prison. He dyeth with the host of an arorie.

And Jehosaphat had aboundance of rychesse and honoure, and ioynded affynite w Ahab. And after certayne yeres he wet downe to Ahab to Samaria. And Ahab slue many shepe & oxen for hym, and entreated him to go vp with hym vnto Ramoth in Silcad. And Ahab kyng of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat kyng of Juda: wylt thou go with me to Ramoth in Silcad? And he answered hym: I wyl be as y, and my people shalbe as thine, and we wyl go with the to the warre.

And Jehosaphat sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: aske counsell I praye y, at the worde of the Lorde, thys same daye. Therfore the kyng of Israel gathered together of prophetes. iij. C. men, and sayde vnto the: Shall we go to Ramoth in Silcad to fyght, or shulde I cease? And they sayde: go vp, & God shall deliuer it into the kinges hande. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there yet here neuer a prophete more of the Lordes, y we might aske of him? And the kinge of Israel sayde vnto Jehosaphat: there is yet one man, by who we maye aske the Lorde. But I hate him: for he neuer prophecieth me good, but alwaye euell, and the same is Michia the sonne of Jimla. And Jehosaphat sayd: let not the kyng saye so.

And the kinge of Israel called one of his chaberynes, and sayde: fetch hether quychly Michia the sonne of Jimla. And y kyng of Israel and Jehosaphat kyng of Juda late ether of the on his seate in their apparell, in a therslyng floure beside y gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophesied before the. And one zedekia the sonne of Chanana had made hym hornes of yron, & sayd: thus sayth the Lorde: with these shalt y ouerthrowe Siria, vntill they be brought to naught. And all the prophetes prophesied eue so, sayinge: So vp to Ramoth in Silcad, and it shall prospere with the: for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the hande of the kyng.

And the messenger y wet to call Michia, spake to him, saying: beholde, the wordes of the prophetes speake good to the kyng with one assent, lett thy wordes therfore be lyke one of theirs, that thou speake that which is pleasaunt. And Michia sayd: as truly as the Lorde liueth: euen what my God sayth, that wyl I speake. And whā he was come to the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto hym: Michia, shuld we go to Ramoth in Silcad to fyght, or leaue of? And he sayde: go vp, & all shalbe well: & they shalbe deliuered into your hande. And the kyng sayde to him: So & so maye ymes do I charge the, y thou saye nothyng but y trouth to me, in the name of the Lorde.

Then he sayde: I dyd se all the of Israel scattered in the mountaynes, as shepe y haue no shepherde. And the Lorde sayde: these haue no master, let then retorne euery mā therfore to hys house in peace. And the kyng of Israel sayd to Jehosaphat: dyd I not tell the, y he wold not pphcey good vnto me: but euell?

But he sayde agayne: therfore heare y wordes of the Lorde. * I sawe the Lorde syt vpon his seate, & all the company of heauen stode on hys ryght hande & on hys left. And y Lorde sayde: who shall decaue Ahab kyng of Israel, y he maye go vp & be ouerthrowen at Ramoth in Silcad? And he sayde: one sayth this, another that. And there came out a sprete, & stode before the Lorde, & sayde: I wyl decaue him. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: Wherin? And he sayd: I will go out, & be a lyinge sprete in y mouth of all his prophetes. And the Lorde sayde: y shalt decaue him, and shalt preyntle: go out, and do euen so. And now therfore beholde, * y Lorde hath put a lyinge sprete in the mouthes of all these thy prophetes, & the Lorde hath spoken euell agaynst the. And zedekia the sonne of Chanana went to, & smote Michia vpon y cheke. & sayde: by what waye went the sprete of the Lorde fro me, to speake w the? And Michia sayde: thou shalt se the daye when thou shalt go in from chābze to chābze, for so hyde thy selfe. And the kinge of Israel sayde: take ye Michia, and byngye hym to y mon y gouernor of the cite, & to Joas the kinges sone, & ye shall saye: thus sayth the kyng: putt thys felowe in the prison house, & febe hym w bredd of afflictio & water of tresselle vntill I come agayne in peace. And Michia sayde: yf y come agayne in peace, the hath not the Lord spoken to me. And he sayde: hearken to, ye people every one of you. And so the kinge of Israel and Jehosaphat the kinge of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Gilead. And þe kyng of Israel sayde vnto Jehosaphat: I must chaunge me, when I go to the battayll: but se that thou haue thynne a wne apparell vpon the. And the kyng of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and they came to battayll. But þe kyng of Siria had commaunded the captaynes of the charrettes that were with him, sayinge: se that ye fight not agaynst small or greute, saue agaynst the kyng of Israel onely.

And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe Jehosaphat, they sayde: it is the kyng of Israel, and therfore they compassed about hym to fyght. But Jehosaphat cryed out, & the Lord helped him, and God chased them awaye from hym. For it came to passe that when the captaynes of the charettes perceaued that it was not the kyng of Israel, they turned backe agayne fro hym. And a certayn mā drew a bowe with all hys myght, and smote the kyng of Israel betwene þe ioyntes of his habergyn. And he sayd to hys charretman: turne thynne hande, þe thou mayest carpe me out of the host: for I am wounded. And the battayll ceased that daye. Howbeit the king of Israel caused his charret to stond still agaynst the Siria vntyll euen. And about the tyme of the sunne going downe, he dyed.

¶ The xix. Chapter.

¶ After Jehosaphat was rebuked by the prophet Jechu, he called agayne the people to the honoure of the Lord God.

And Jehosaphat the kyng of Juda came home agayne in peace to Jerusalem. And Jechu the sonne of Hanani the sear wēt out to mete hym, and sayde to kyng Jehosaphat: Woldest þe helpe the vngodly, and loue them þe hate the Lord? Therfore is wrath come downe vpon the, fro before the Lord. Neuertheles, there are some good actes founde in the, in þe thou hast dewen downe the groues out of the lande, and hast prepared thynne herte to seke God. And so Jehosaphat dwelt at Jerusalem: & turned & went out to the people fro Beerseba to mount Ephraim, & brought the again vnto þe Lord God of their fathers. And he set iudges in the lāde thozowout all the strong cityes of Juda, cite by cite: & sayde to the iudges: take hede what ye do, for ye execute not the iudgements of mā, but of God, which is w you in the iudgement. Wherfore now, let the feare of þe Lord be vpon you, and take hede, & be doyng the thynges þe please hym.

¶ For ther is no vnyghte wnes in the Lord oure God: * þe he shulde haue any respecte of persones, or take rewardes.

¶ Moreover, in Jerusalem dyd Jehosaphat set of the leuites, and of the prestes and of the auncient fathers ouer Israel, in þe iudgement

& cause of þe Lord. And they returned agayne to Jerusalem. And he charged them sayinge: Thus shall ye do in the feare of the Lord, w the truneth & a pure herte: What cause soeuer come to you of your brethren þe dwell in their ctyes, betwene bloud & bloud, betwene law and comaundment, betwene statutes & ordynances, ye shall warne them, & they trespase not agaynst the Lord, & so wrath come vpon you & on youre brethren. Thus do, & ye shall not offende. And behold, Amaria þe hye prest is amonge you in all matters of the Lord, & zebadia the sonne of Imael, a ruler of the house of Juda, he is ouer soch busynesses as concern the kyng: there be offycers of the leuites also before you. Take courage to you therfore, and be doyng manfully: and the Lord shall be with soche as be good.

¶ The xx. Chapter.

¶ The meruevous victorie that the Lord gaue Jehosaphat kyng of Juda agaynst the Moabites, and the chyldren of Ammon, and them of Seir.

After this also, it fortunyd þe chyldren of Moab and the chyldre of Ammon, and w them other of the Ammonites came agaynst Jehosaphat to battayll. And there came some that tolde Jehosaphat sayinge: there cometh a greute multitude agaynst the fro the other syde of the see, & out of Siria. And beholde, they be in Hasalon Tamar, which is Engadi. And Jehosaphat feared, and let him selfe to seke þe Lord, and proclaymed fastyng thozowout all Juda. And they þe were in Juda, gathered them selues together, to aske counsell of the Lord. And they came out of all the cityes of Juda, to make intercessyon to the Lord. And Jehosaphat stode betwene the congregacion of Juda and Jerusalem in the house of the Lord before the newe courte, and sayde: O Lord God of our fathers, art not thou God in heuen, and raygnest not thou on all the kyngdomes of the pethen? And in thynne hande is power and myght, and there is no man that is able to withstande the. Art not thou oure God, which dydest cast out the inhabiteurs of this lande before thy people Israel, and gauest it to the seede of Abraham thy louer for euer? And they dwelt therein, and haue buylt the a tēple therein for thy name, sayinge: * If euell come vpon vs, as the swerde of iudgement, pestilence or hongre: then, yf we stand before this house in thy presence, for thy name is in this house, and crye vnto the in our tribulacyon, heare thou, and helpe.

And now beholde, the chyldre of Ammon, and Moab, & mount Seir, by whō þe woldest not let the of Israel go, when they came out of the lande of Egypt: but they departed fro them, & destroyed the not. Se, howe they reward vs, to come for to cast vs out of thy posselion, which þe hast geuen vs to inheret. O our God, wylt thou not iudge the: for we haue haue no myght agaynst this greute cōpanye that commeth agaynst vs. Nether wote we what to do: but oure eyes be vnto the.

And all Juda stode before the Lord w their yongcones, they wyues & they chyldren: & ther was Jehasiel the sonne of zacharia the sonne of Banaiā & sonne of Jiel the sonne of Mathania, a leuite of the sonnes of Asaph, and vpon hym came the sprete of the Lord, euē in the myddes of the cōgregacion. And he sayde: hearken all Juda, and ye inhabiteurs of Jerusalem, & thou king Jehosaphat: Thus sayth þe Lord vnto you: be not afraid nor faynte herted by reason of this greute multitude: for þe battayll is not poures: but Gods. To morow go ye downe agaynst the: for they come vnto 313, & ye shall finde them at the ende of the broke before the wilderness of Ieruel. Ye shall not nede to fyght in this battayll: but steppe forth & stāde, & beholde þe helpe of the Lord which is with you: feare not, nor let poure hertes fayle you, O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. To morowe go out agaynst the: for the Lord wylbe with you.

And Jehosaphat bowed hys face to the erth, and all Juda and the inhabiteurs of Jerusalem fell before the Lord worshippinge the Lord. And the leuites of the chyldren of the Cabathites and of the chyldre of the Corabites stode vp, to prayse the Lord God of Israel with a loude voyce on hye. And whā they arose earlye in the mornynge, they gat them out vnto the wyldernesse of Thekoa.

And as they wēt out, Jehosaphat stode and sayde: heare me, O Juda, & ye inhabiteurs of Jerusalem. Put your trust in the Lord your God, that ye maye be foude saythfull. Geue credence to hys prophetes, & so shall ye prosper. And he gaue the people counsell, and set some to syng vnto the Lord, & to prayse him in the bewtpe of holynes, & to go out before the army, as they went, and to saye: prayse þe Lord for hys mercy lasteth euer. And what tyme as they begāne to laude & prayse, then the Lord stered vpon certayne of the chyldren of Ammon and Moab, which layed wayte for the that were of mount Seir: which were come agaynst Juda. And they were overthrowen with strokes amonge them selues. For the chyldren of Ammon and Moab rose agaynst þe inhabiteurs of mount Seir. And they slew and destroyed them. And whā they had made an ende of the inhabiteurs of Seir, euery one helped to destroye another amonge them selues.

And whā Juda came to the edge of þe wilderness, they looked vnto the multitude. And beholde, they were deed carcasses falle to the erth, & none escaped. And whā Jehosaphat and hys people came to take awaye þe spoyle of the, they founde amonge the aboundaunce of goodes, rayment and pleasaunt Jewels, which they toke for the selues, more the they could cary awaye: so þe they were thre dayes in gatherynge of the spoyle, it was so moch. And the fourth daie they assembled in þe valley of blessinge: for there they blessed þe Lord: And therfore they called the name of þe same place, the valeye of blessing vnto this daye. And so all the men of Juda & Jerusalem returned with Jehosaphat they heade, for to go agayne to Jerusalem with gladnesse: for the Lord had made them to reioyse ouer they enemies. And they came to Jerusalem with psalteryes and harpes, & shawmcs, euē vnto the house of the Lord. And the feare of God fell in the kyngdomes of all lādes, whā they had hearde that the Lord fought agaynst þe enemies of Israel. And so the realme of Jehosaphat was in tranquillite: and hys God gaue hym rest on euery syde.

And * Jehosaphat raygned vpon Juda, & was xxxv. yere olde when he begāne to raygne, & raygned xxv. yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Asuba the daughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of Asa his father, & bowed not therfro, doyng that which was ryght in the syght of the Lord. Howbeit the hylaultars were not taken awaye, for the people had not yet prepared they hertes vnto the God of they fathers. The rest of þe actes of Jehosaphat first & last beholde, they are wyrtten amōge the sayinges of Jechu the sonne of Hanani, which noted the in the boke of the kynges of Israel.

After this dyd Jehosaphat kyng of Juda ioyne hym selfe w Ahaziah kyng of Israel, whose mynde was to do wyckedly. He coupled hym selfe with hym, to make shippes to go to tharlis. And they made the shippes in Ezion Gaber. And Eliezer þe sonne of Dodanah of Maresa prophesied agaynst Jehosaphat, sayinge: because thou hast ioynd thy selfe with Ahaziah, the Lord hath broken thy workes. And the shippes were broken, & they were not able to go to Tharlis.

¶ The xxi. Chapter.

¶ Jehosaphat dyeth, and Jehoazam succedeth hym, which putteth to death his brethren, and is oppressed of the Philistines, and dyeth of the sygre.

Jehosaphat also * slepte w hys fathers, and was buryd with his fathers in the cite of Dauid, & Jehoazam his sōne raygned in his steade: and he had brethren which were the sonnes of Jehosaphat: Asaria, Jechiel, zacharia, Asaria, Michael, & Sephattiah. All these were þe sonnes of Jehosaphat kyng of Juda. And their father gaue the many greute gyftes of golde, and syluer, and other speciall substaunce, w stronge cityes in Juda: but the kyngdom gaue he to Jehoazam, for he was the eldest. And Jehoazam rose vp agaynst þe kyngdom of his father, and preynted, and * slue all his brethren with the swerde, & diuerse of

And he walked in the waye of the kinges of Israel, lyke as dyd the house of Ahab, for he had the daughter of Ahab to wyfe, & he wrought euell in the eyes of the Lorde. * In hys dayes the Edomites rebelled, whā they were vnder the dominyon of Iuda, and made the selues a kinge. And Jehozā wēt forth w his lordes, and all hys charettes were w hym: & he rose vp by nyght, & smote y Edomites, which copased him in, & the captaynes of y charettes. But Edom rebelled styll, so y they wolde not be vnder the hande of Iuda vnto this daye. That same time also dyd Libna departe from beyng vnder his hande, because Jehozā had forsaken y Lorde God of his fathers. Moreover, he made hyl-austers in the cyties of Iuda, and caused the inhabitants of Ierusalem to comyt fornicacyon, and prouoked Iuda to Idolatrye.

And there came a writynge to him from Elia y prophete, sayng: Thus sayth y Lord God of Dauid thy father: because y hast not walked in the wayes of Jehosaphat thy father, & in the wayes of Asa kynge of Iuda, but walkedst in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, & hast made Iuda & the dwellers of Ierusalem to go a whozing, lyke to y whoredome of the house of Ahab, & hast slayne thy brethren, euē thy fathers house, which were better then thou: beholde, w a greate plague wyl the Lorde smyte thy folke, thy childre, thy wyues, and thy goodes. And thou shalt suffre great payne: euē a dyscase of thy bowelles, vntyll thy guttes fall out by reason of thy sycknes, daye by daye.

And so the Lorde stered vp agaynst Jehozā the spete of the Philistines, & the Arabians y were besyde the blacke mores. And they came vp into Iuda, and wasted it, and carped awaye all the substance y was found in the kynges house, and hys sonnes, and his wyues: so that there was neuer a sonne left him saue Jehohabaz which was the yongest amōge hys sonnes. And after all these thynges, the Lorde smote him in his bowelles w an incurable dyscase. And it came to passe, y in processe of tyme, euē after y ende of two yeres, hys guttes fell out in his sycknes: and so he dyed of verp euell diseases. And they made no burnynge for him lyke the burnynge of hys fathers. Whē he beganne to raygne, he was xxij. yere olde, and raygned in Ierusalē. viij. yere, & lyed wretchedly: howbeit they buried hym in the cite of Dauid: but not among y sepulchres of the kynges.

The xxij. Chapter.

Ahaziabu raygneth in the rolme of Jehozan. He hu kynge of Israel killeth Ahaziabu. Achalia put- teth to deeth all y hys synners, only Joas escapeth.

And * the inhabitants of Ierusalem made Ahaziabu hys yonge sonne a kinge in hys stede. For the men of warre * that came with the host of the Arabians, had slayne all hys eldest sonnes. And so Ahaziabu the sonne of Jehozan kynge of Iuda, was made kynge. Two and fourty yere olde was he, whā he began to raygne, and he raygned one yere in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name was Athaliah y daughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Ahab, for hys mother (by her counsell) entysed him to do wyckedly. Wherefore he dyd that which was euell in the syght of the Lorde, as dyd they that were of y house of Ahab: for they were hys counselors after the deeth of his father, to his destruction. And he walked after the counsell, and went with Jehozan sonne of Ahab king of Israel, to fight agaynst Hazael king of Siria at Ramoth in Gilead: and the Siria smote Iozā. And he returned to be healed in Jezrel, of the woundes which were geuen him at Rama, when he fought w Hazael kynge of Siria. And Ahaziabu the sone of Jehozan kynge of Iuda went downe to se Jehozā the sonne of Ahab at Jezrel, because he was diseased. And it cam of God, y Ahaziabu shulde be despyled for hys comynge to Jehozā: for whā he was come, he wēt out with Jehozā agaynst Jehu the sonne of Nimfi, * whom the Lorde had anoynted to destroye the house of Ahab.

And so it came to passe y whā Jehu was executynge iustice vpon the house of Ahab, & had fōude the lordes of Iuda and the sonnes of the brethren of Ahaziabu that wayted on Ahaziabu, he slue the. * And he sought Ahaziabu, and they caught hym where he was hyd in Samaria, and brought him to Jehu. And when they had slayne hym, they buried hym: because (sayde they) he is the sonne of Jehosaphat, which sought the Lorde with all hys hert. And the house of Ahaziabu had no power to kepe styll the kyngdome.

* But when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziabu sawe y her sonne was deed, she arose and destroyed all the kynges seed in the kynred of y house of Iuda. And Jehosabeth the daughter of y kinge toke Joas the sonne of Ahaziabu, & stole hym fro amonge y kynges sonnes y were slayne, and putt hym and hys nource in a preue chambze. And so Jehosabeth the daughter of kinge Jehozā the wyfe of Jehoiada the prest, and the syster of Ahaziabu hyd hym from Athaliah that he was not slayne. And so he was w them hyd in the house of God syre yere. And Athaliah raygned ouer the lande.

The xciii. Chapter.

Joas the sonne of Ahaziabu is made kynge. Athaliah is put to deeth.

*iii. reg. vi. a

Joas * in the seuenth yere Jehoiada beyng bolde, toke the captaynes of hundredes, Azariahu the sonne of Jerobam, and Amael the sonne of Jehohanan, Azariahu the sonne of Obed, Maasiah the sonne of Adaiahu, and Elisaphat the sonne of Zichri, and made a bonde with them. And they went aboute in Iuda, and gathered the Leuites out of all the cyties of Iuda and the auncient fathers of Israel: and they came to Ierusalem. And all the congregacyon made a bonde with the kynge in the house of God. And he sayd vnto them: beholde, the kynges sonne must raygne, * as the Lorde hath sayde of the chyldren of Dauid.

This is it therfore that ye shall do: The thyrde parte of you shall (on the Sabbath) come to the prestes, Leuites, and keepers of the porches. And another thyrde parte shalbe by y kynges house, and another thyrde parte shalbe at the gate of the foundacyon, and all the people shalbe in the * courtes of the house of the Lorde. But ther shall none come into the house of the Lorde, saue the prestes & they that minstre vnto the Leuites. They shall go in, for they are holy: but all the people shall kepe the watch of the Lorde. And the Leuites shall copase the kynge rounde about and eury man shall haue hys wepon in hys hāde: and what other man soeuer doth come into the house of the Lorde, he shall be slayne: and let them be with the kynge, whan he cometh in, and whan he goeth out.

And the Leuites and all Iuda dyd accordynge to all thynges y Jehoiada the preste had comaunded, & toke eury man hys men, y came in on the Sabbath, w the y went out on the Sabbath daye: nether did Jehoiada y preste let the copanics departe. And Jehoiada y preste deliuered to the captaynes of hundredes, speares, shyldes, and boukelars, that had pertayned to kynge Dauid, and were in y house of God. And he set all the people eury mā haung hys wepō in his hande, fro the ryght syde of the tēple, to the left syde of the temple, alonge by the aulter and the temple, rounde aboute the kynge. And they brought out the kynges sonne, and put vpon him the crowne, and * the testimonie, * (and they gaue hym in hys hande, the lawe that was to be kepte) and made him kynge. And Jehoiada & his sonnes annoynted him, & sayde: God saue the kynge.

When Athaliah hearde the noyse of the people, runnynge & praylynge the kynge, she came to y people into the house of the Lorde. And she looked, and beholde, the kynge stode in his place at the enterynge in, & the Lordes and the trompettes were by the kynge, & all the people of the lande reioysed, blowinge w trompettes, & dyd playe with instrumentes of musycke, & taught to synge & prayse. But Athaliah rent her clothes, and sayed: treason, treason. And Jehoiada the preste went out to the captaynes of hundredes that were gouerners of the hoste, & sayde vnto the: haue her out without the doze of the temple: and whoso foloweth her, let hym be slayne with the swerde. For y preste sayde y they shulde not slep her in the house of y Lorde. And they layde handes on her, tyll she was come to the enterynge of the horsgate besyde the kynges house and there they slue her.

* And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene hym and all the people and the kynge, that they shulde be the Lordes people. And all the people wēt to the house of Baal, & destroyed it, and brake hys aulters and his ymages, & slue Mathan the preste of Baal before the aulters. And Jehoiada put the offces for the house of the Lorde vnder the hāde of the prestes and Leuites, * as Dauid had distrubuted them in the house of the Lorde, to offer burnt offerynge vnto the Lorde, * as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses, with reioysynge and synngynge, as it was ordeyned by Dauid. And he set porters by y gates of the house of the Lorde, that none which was vncleane in any thyng shulde entre in.

And he toke the captaynes of hundredes & all the nobles, and the gouernours of the people, & all the folke of the lande, and caused the kynge to come downe out of the house of the Lorde, and they came thowowe the hye gate into the kynges house, and set the kynge vpon the seate of the kyngdome. And all the people of y lande reioysed, and the cytie was in trāquillite, after y they had slayne Athaliah with the swerde.

The xciii. Chapter.

Joas durynge the lyfe of Jehoiada, kepte the lawe, but after his deeth he regardeth it not. He killeth Achazriah the prophete. Jehoas is killed of his awne seruantes: and after hym raygneth Amasiah.

Joas was seuen yere olde when he beganne to raygne, & he raygned fourty yere in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name also was zibia of Beer Seba. And Joas dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde all the dayes of Jehoiada the preste. And Jehoiada toke hym two wyues, and he begat sonnes and daughters.

And it chaunced after this, that Joas was mynded, to renewe the house of the Lorde and he gathered together the prestes & y Leuites, and sayd to them: go out vnto the cyties of Iuda, & gather of all Israell money, to repayre the house of youre God from yere to yere, and se that ye haue the thyng: howbeit the Leuites were slacke. And the kyng called Jehoiada that was the cheffest and sayd vnto

hym. Why requirest thou not of the Levites to bypungein, out of Juda & Jerusalem, * the collection of money accordynge to the commaundement of Moyses the seruaunt of the Lorde and the congregacion of Israel shulde offre it for the tabernacle of wyrtnesse. For wycked Athaliah and her chyldre brake vp the house of God, and all the thynges that were dedicat for the house of the Lorde dyd they bestowe for Bealim.

* iii. re. c. a. And at the kynges commaundement, * they made a chest, & set it without at the gate of y house of the Lorde. and made proclamacyon thowowe Juda and Jerusalem, to bypunge into the Lorde * the taracion of money, y Moyses the seruaunt of God set vpon Israel in the wylder nesse. And the Lordes and all the people reioysed, and brought in, and cast into the chest, untill it was full. And it fortuned, that at the same tyme they brought in y chest (vnto them which were in the kynges busynesse) by the hande of the Levites. And when they sawe y there was moche money, the kynges scrjbe (and one appoynted by the hye preast) came, and emptied the chest, and toke it, and carped it to his place agayne: thus they dyd daye by daye, and gathered moche money.

D And the kyng & Jehoiada gaue it to loch as dyd the labour and worke in the house of the Lorde, and hyed masons and carpenters to repayre the house of the Lorde, and so dyd they artificers in yron and brasse, to mede the house of the Lorde. And so the workmen wrought, and the worke mended thowowe theyr hādes: and they made the house of God as it ought to be, and strenghted it. And whē they had finished it, they brought y rest of the moneye before the kyng and Jehoiada, and ther with were made vessels for y house of the Lorde: euen vessels to minstre with all, and to serue for burnt offerynges: chargers and spones, vessels of golde and syluer. And they offered burnt offerynges in the house of the Lorde continuallye all the dayes of Jehoiada. But Jehoiada waxed olde, and dyed full of dayes. For an hundred & thyrtye yere olde was he when he dyed. And they buryed hym in the cytie of David amonge the kynges, because he dealt well with Israel, and with God and with his house. And after the deeth of Jehoiada, came the Lordes of Juda, and made obeylaunce to the kyng. And the kyng hearkenēd vnto them. And so they left the house of the Lorde God of theyr fathers, & serued groues and ydoles. And then came the wraoth of God vpon Juda and Jerusalem, for this theyr trespass sake. And he sent prophetes to them, to bypunge them agayne vnto the Lorde. And they testified vnto them: But they wolde not heare.

ff And the spryite of God came vpon zacharia y sonne of Jehoiada the preast, which stode by the people, & sayde vnto them: Thus sayth God: why transgresse ye the commaundementes of the Lorde, y pe cannot prosper: For because ye haue forsaken the Lord, he also hath forsaken you. * And they conspyred agaynst him, and stoned him with stones at the commaundement of the kyng: euen in the courte of the house of the Lorde. And so Joas the kyng remembred not the kyndnes which Jehoiada hys father had done to him, but slue his sonne. And whē he dyed, he sayd: the Lorde loke vpon it, and requyre it.

And when the yere was out, it fortuned, that the host of Syria came vpagaynst him: and they came agaynst Juda & Jerusalem, and destroyed all y Lordes of the people fro amonge the people, & sent all the spoyle of the vnto the kyng to Damasco w a small cōpanye of men, & the Lord deliuered a very great hoste into their hāde, because they had forsake y Lord God of theyr fathers. And morouer they serued Joas according to his dedes.

And whan they were departed from him, they left him in great diseases. * y a wone seruaunt conspyred agaynst him for y blonde of the chyldren of Jehoiada the preaste, and slue hym on hys bed, and he dyed, & they buryed him in the cytie of David: but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And these are they that conspyred agaynst him: zebad the sonne of Simcath an Ammonite, and Jhosabad the sonne of Simritha Moabite. And hys sonnes, and the summe of the taxe that was rayled in hys tyme, and the repayinge of the house of God, beholde, they are wrytten in y storie of the boke of the kynges. And Amaziah hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The xxv. Chapter.

Amaziah ouercometh the Edomites. And Joas kyng of Israel ouercometh Amaziah.

Amaziah was. xxv. yere olde, when he beganē to raygne, and he raygned xxix. yere in * Jerusalem. Hys mothers name was Jehodaban of Jerusalem. And he dyd that which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde: but not with a perfecte hert. And as sone as he was settled in the kyngdome, he slue hys seruaunt, that had kylled the kyng hys father. But he slue not their chyldren, because it is wrytten thus in the law & boke of Moyses, where the Lorde commaunded, saying: * the fathers shall not dye for the chyldren, nether shall the chyldren dye for the fathers, but euery man shall dye for hys awne synne. And Amaziah gathered Juda together, and made them captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, accordynge to the houses of theyr fathers, thowowe out all Juda and Benjamin. And he nombred them from twety yere olde and aboue, and founde amonge them, thre hundred thousande chosen men, able to go to battell, and that coule handle speare speare and shyld. He hyed also an hundred thousande stronge fyghtynge men out of Israel, for an hundred talentes of syluer.

C And there came a man of God to him, and sayde: Ohyng, let not the armye of Israel come with the: for the Lorde is not with Israel, nether with all the house of Ephraim. But yf thou wilt nedes be saythlesse, come on, and take the battell in hāde, and God shall make the fall before y enemy. For God hath power to helpe, & to cast downe. And Amaziah sayde to the mā of God: what shall we do then, for the hundred talentes, which I haue geuen for the hoste of Israel? The man of God answered: the Lorde is able to geue the moche more then they be.

And Amaziah sencered them to the armie that was come to him out of Ephraim, to go home agayne. Wherefore they were excedynge wroth with Juda, and returned home in greate angre.

And Amaziah toke hert and caryed out hys people, and went to the salt valley, and smote of the chyldre of Seir ten thousande. And other ten thousande dyd the chyldren of Juda take alpye, and caryed them vnto y toppe of a rocke, and cast them downe from the toppe of the rocke, that they all to burst: but the souldyers of the armie which Amaziah sent awaye, that they shulde not go w his people to battell, fell vpo the cyties of Juda, from Samaria vnto Bethhorō, & smote thre thousande of them, & toke moche spoyle.

And it chaunced, after y Amaziah was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the Gods of the chyldren of Seir, & set them vp to be hys Gods, and bowed hym selfe before the: and burned encēse vnto the. Wherefore the Lorde was wroth with Amaziah and sent vnto hym a prophete, whych layd vnto hym: why hast y sought the Gods of the people, which were not able to delpue theyr a wne people out of thynne hande? And it chaunced, that as the prophete talked with hym the kyng sayde vnto hym: haue men made the of the kynges counsell: cease, why wilt thou be beatē? And the prophete ceased and sayde: I am sure that God is mynded to destroye the, because thou hast done this, and agreest not vnto my counsell.

* Then Amaziah kyng of Juda toke aduise, and sent to Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz the sonne of Jehu kyng of Israel, & sayde come, that we maye se ether other. And Joas kyng of Israel sent to Amaziah kyng of Juda, sayinge: a thystell that is in Libanon, sent to a Cedar tree of Libanō, saying, * geue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe. And there came a wyld beast of Libanō, & troad ff downe the thystell. Thou sayest y thou hast beaten y Edomites, and thynne hert maketh the proude, to glorify thy selfe. Nowe tperfore hyde at home: why dost thou prouoke vnto euell, that thou mayest perishe, both thou and Juda with the?

But Amaziah wolde not herke to him: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them into y hāde of theyr enemyes because they sought counsell at the Gods of Edom. And so Joas the kyng of Israel came vp: and they sawe ether other, both he and Amaziah kyng of Juda at Bethsames which is in Juda. And Juda was put to y worse before Israel, and they fled euery mā to his tent. And Joas the kyng of Israel toke Amaziah kyng of Juda the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jehoahaz at Bethsames: and brought hym to Jerusalem, & tare the walle of Jerusalem: from the gate of Ephraim vnto the gate that was ouer agaynst it, four hundred cubytes. And he toke awaye also all the golde and syluer, and all the Jewelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and y treasures of the kynges house, & the ponge wardes, and returned to Samaria.

And Amaziah the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda lyued after the deeth of Joas sonne of Jehoahaz kyng of Israel fiftene yere. The rest of the actes of Amaziah fyrst and last, are they not wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israel: And after the tyme that Amaziah dyd turne awaye from the Lorde * they conspyred treason agaynst him in Jerusalem: and whan he was fled to Lachis, they sent to Lachis after hym, and slue hym there: and brought hym vp with horsesses, and buryed hym with hys fathers in y cytie of Juda.

The xxvi. Chapter.

After the deeth of Amaziah raygneth Uzziah (other wyse called Ozia) which is streychen with the lepre, and Joatham raygneth in hys rowme.

When all the people of Juda toke Uzziah (which was * syxtene yere olde) and made hym kyng in the rowme of hys father Amaziah.

And he buylt Cloth, and brought it agayne to Juda, after that the kyng was layd to slepe with hys fathers. Syxtene yere olde was Uzziah, when he began to raygne, and he raygned. lii. yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Jerholia of Jerusalem. And he did that which was right in the syght of the Lorde, accordynge to all, as dyd hys father Amaziah. And it came to passe, that he sought God * in the dayes of zacharia (which mayntened the feare of God) & as longe as he sought the Lorde, God made hym to prospere.

And he went to battell agaynst the Philistines, and brake downe the wall of Geth, & the wall of Jabne, and the wall of Asdod, & buylt cyties about Asdod & among the Philistines. And God holpe him against y Philistines, and agaynst the Arabiens y dwelt in Gurbaal

Gurbaal and Hammehumim. And the Ammonites gave tribute to Uzia, and his name spread abroad unto the entering in of Egypt: for he played the man exceedingly. Moreover Uzia built towers in Jerusalem by the corner gate, & by the valeye gate, and at the turning of the wall, and made the stronge. And he built towers in the wilderness, and digged many welles: for he had moche cattell, in the valeys and playnes, plowmen and vinedressers in the mountaynes and in Charinel, for he loved husbandrye.

And Uzia had an host of fyghtynge men that went out to warre in the armie according to the nombre of theyr office vnder the hande of Iziel the scribe & Maasiah the ruler, & vnder the hande of Hananiahu which was one of the kynges Lordes. And the hoile nombre of the auncient fathers, & of the men of myght were two thousande and fyre hundred: & vnder the hande of them was the armie of the men of warre, euen thre hundred and seuen thousande, & fyue hundred & made warre with the power of an armie, helppynge the kyng against his enemies. And Uzia provided them thorowlye out all the host, shields, speares, helmes, haberguines, bowes and spynges for to cast stones. And he made sotle engynnes in Jerusalem, which he inuented & layd on the towres and corners, to shote arrows and greates stones with all. And his name spread farre abroad, because he was helped so excellently, so he became very myghty.

But in his strength, his heart arose to his destruction: for he transgressed agaynst the Lorde his God, & went into the temple of the Lorde, to burne ense upon the altar of incense. And Asariahu the preaste went in after him, and with him foure skore preastes of the Lorde that were valeant men. And they stood by Uzia the kyng, and sayde vnto hym:  it pertayneth not to the kyng to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the preastes the chyldren of Aaron, that are consecrate for to offere incense. Come therfore out of the sanctuarye for thou hast trespassed, and it is no worshyp to the before the Lorde God.*

And Uzia was wroth, & had incense in his hande to burne it: & so whyle he had indignacion agaynst the preastes, & the leprosie sprang in his forehead before the preastes in the house of the Lorde, eue belyde the incense altar. And Asariahu the chiefe preaste with all the other preastes looked vpon him: and beholde, he was become a leper in his forehead, & they vexed him thence. And he was fayne to go out, because the Lorde had smitten hym. And Uzia the kyng continued a lepre vnto the daye of his deeth, and dwelt seuerall in an house beyng a leper and shutte out of the house of the Lorde. And Jotham his sonne had the gouernance of the kynges house, and iudged the people of the lande.

The rest of the actes of Uzia fyrst & last, dyd Ihal prophet the sonne of Amos, wrote. And so Uzia slepte with his fathers, and they buryed him with his fathers in the felde of the buryall which was belyde the sepulchres of the kynges. For they sayde: he is a leper. And Jotham his sonne raygned in his steade.

The xxvii. Chapter.

Jotham raygned and ouer cometh the Ammonites. Abaz his sonne raygned after hym.

Jotham was fyue and twenty yere olde, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned syxtene yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Jerusa the daughter of zadoc. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde in all poyntes as dyd his father Uzia saue, that he came not into the temple of the Lorde, and the people dyd yet wyckedly. He built the hys gate of the temple of the Lorde, and on the walle (where the house of ordinaunce was) he built moche. Moreover he built cyties in the mountaynes of Juda, and in the wood countreye he built castelles and towres.

He fought with the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon, and preynted agaynst the. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue hym the same yere an hundred talentes of syluer, and ten thousande quarters of wheate, & ten thousand of barlepe. So moche dyd the chyldren of Ammon geue hym the seconde yere and the thyrde also. So Jotham became myghtie, because he directed his waye before the Lorde his God.

The rest of the actes of Jotham & all his warres, & his counselacon, lo, they are writen in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda. He was xxv. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, & raygned syxtene yere in Jerusalem. And Jotham slepte with his fathers, and they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid: & Abaz his sonne raygned in his steade.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The wyckednesse of Abaz kyng of Juda. After hym raygned Hezekia.

Abaz was twenty yere old when he beganne to raygne, & raygned syxtene yere in Jerusalem, and he dyd not that which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde, as dyd his father Dauid: for he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, & made molten ymagines for Baalim. He offered incense in the valeye of the sonne of Minnom, and burnt his chyldren in fyre after the abominacions of the heithen, whō the Lord cast out before the chyldren of Israel. He offered also, and burnt incense in high alters and on mountayns and vnder euery grene tre.

Wherefore the Lorde his God deliuered him into the hande of the kyng of the Siries: which which bet him, & caried awaye a great multitude of hys captiue, and brought them to Damasco. And he was deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Israel, which smote him with a greates slaughter. For Pekah the sonne of Remallahu slue in Juda an hundred & twenty thousande in one daye, which were all fyghtynge men: and that because they had forsake the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And zichi a myghty mā of Ephraim slue Maasiah the kynges sonne, & Asica the gouernour of the house, and Elcana was next to the kyng. And the chyldren of Israel toke prisoners of theyr brethren, two hundred thousande women, sonnes, & daughters, & carped awaye moche spoyles of them, & brought the spoyles to Samaria.

But there was a prophete of the Lordes (whose name was Obed) and he went out before the host that came to Samaria, & sayde vnto them. Beholde, because the Lorde God of youre fathers is wroth wth Juda, he hath deliuered them into youre hande. And ye haue slayne them with cruellnesse, & reacheth vp to heauen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Juda and Jerusalem, and to make them bondmen and bondwomen. And do ye not lade youre selues with synne in the syght of the Lorde your God: Nowe heare me therfore, and deliuer the captiues agayne which ye haue taken of youre brethren. For els shall the great wrath of God be vpon you.

Wherefore, certayne of the heedes of the chyldren of Ephraim, as Asaria the sonne of Jehohana, Berachiah the sonne of Mesillemoth, and Jechizkiah the sonne of Shallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlai, stood vp agaynst them that came from the warre, and layde vnto them: bringe not in the captiues hyther. For where as we haue offended towarde God allreadye, ye enste to adde more to our synnes & trespasse. For our trespasse is great allready, and there is a feare wrath agaynst Israel. And vpon that, the men of armes left the captiues and the spoyles before the Lordes and all the congregacion.

And the men that were nowe rehearsed by name, rose vp, and toke the prisoners, & with the spoyles clothed all they were naked amonge them, and arayed them, & shod them, & gaue them to eate and to drinke, & anoynted them, and carped all that were feble of them vpon asses, & brought them to Jericho (the cytie of Paulme trees) to theyr brethren: & then they returned to Samaria agayne.

At that same tyme dyd kyng Abaz send vnto the kynges of Assur, to haue helpe of the. And the Edomites came agayne, and slue some of Juda, and carped awaye captiues. And the Philistines inuaded the cities in the lowe countrey, and towarde the south of Juda: & toke Bethsamcs, & Aialon, and Gedec-roth, and Socho with the towne longynge therto, and Chimna with the towne of the same: Simso, and the towne therof, and dwelt there. For the Lord brought Juda lowe, because of Abaz kyng of Juda, which made Juda naked, & trasgressed fore agaynst the Lorde. And Chilgath pilneser kyng of Assyrians came vpon him, and troubled him rather then strenghted hym. For Abaz toke awaye a porcion out of the house of the Lorde, and out of the kynges house, & out of the Lordes houses, & gaue vnto the kyng of the Assyrians: and yet it helped him not. And in the very tyme of hys tribulacion dyd kyng Abaz trespasse yet moare agaynst the Lorde. For he offered vnto the Gods of them of Damasco, which bette hym, & he sayd: because the Gods of the kynges of Syria healte the, therfore wyll I offer to the, that they maye helpe me also. But they were his destruction, and the destruction of all Israel. And Abaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God, and brake them, and shut vp the doores of the house of the Lorde, and made him high alters in euery corner of Jerusalem. And in all the cities of Juda he made high alters, to burne incense vnto other Gods, & angered the Lorde God of his fathers. The rest of hys actes and hys workes fyrst and last: beholde, they are writen in the boke of the kynges of Juda & Israel. And Abaz slepte with his fathers, & they buryed hym in the cytie of Jerusalem: but brought hym not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Israel. And Hezekia his sonne raygned in his steade.

The xxix. Chapter.

Hezekia (otherwise called Ezechias, or Ezechias) restoreth vnto the temple of the Lorde all the thinges that had not bene regarded of hys predecessours.

Hezekia beganne to raygne, when he was fyue & twenty yere olde, & raygned nyne & twenty yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Abia daughter of Zachariahu. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde, in all poyntes as dyd Dauid his father. He opened the doores of the house of the Lorde (in the fyrst yere and fyrst moneth of hys raygne) and repayred them. And he brought in the preastes and the Leuites, and gathered them together in to the rest strete: and sayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Leuites, & now be sanctified and halowe the house of the Lorde God of youre fathers, byngye fylthynesse out of the holy place. For oure fathers haue trespassed, and done euell in the eyes of the Lorde our God: and haue forsake him, & turned awaye theyr faces from the habitacio of the Lorde, and turned theyr backs on it. And belyde they haue shut vp the doores of the porche and quenched the lampes, & haue nether burnt incense, cence, nor offered burnt offerings in the holy place unto the God of Israel.

Wherefore the wrath of the Lord fell on Juda and Jerusalem: & he hath brought the to trouble, to be wounded on, and to be killed at, as ye see with your eyes. For, lo, our fathers were overthrown with the sword, and our sonnes, our daughters & our wives were carryed away captiue for the same cause. And now it is in my heart, to make a couenaunt with the Lord God of Israel: & he maye turne away his heuie indignacion from vs. Nowe therfore my sonnes, be not negligēt: for the Lord & hath chosen you to stand before him, and for to minstre and seru hym, and to burne incense.

* 2u. xiii. a

Then the Levites arose: Mahath & sonne of Amasai, & Joel the sonne of Asariahu of the chyldren of the Cabathites. And of the sonnes of Merari, Kis the sonne of Abdi, and Asariahu the sonne of Jehalelel. And of the sonnes of the Gerfonites, Joah the sonne of Summa, and Eden the sonne of Joah. And of the sonnes of Elizaphan, Simri & Jehiel. And of the sonnes of Asaph, Zechariah and Nathaniahu. And of the sonnes of heman, Jehiel & Simi. And of the sonnes of Jedutha, Shemaia and Uzziel. And they gathered their brethren, & purified them selues, & came accordyng to the commaundement of the kynge and the wordes of the Lord, for to cleanse the house of the Lord. And the preastes went into the inner partes of the house of the Lord to cleanse it, and brought out all the uncleynesse that they founde in the temple of the Lord into the court of the house of the Lord. And the Levites took it, to carpe it out into the broke Cedron. They beganne the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth to purifye, and the eyght daye of the moneth came they to the porch of the Lord: and purged the house of the Lord in eyght dayes, and in the xix. daye of the fyrst moneth they made an ende.

And they went into Hezekia the kynge, & sayde: we haue cleised all the house of the Lord, the altar of burnt offeringe, with all his vessels, & the shewbread table with all his appa- rell: and all the vessels which kynge Ahas did cast a syde when he raygned & transgressed, them we haue prepared and sanctified: and beholde, they are before the altar of the Lord. And Hezekia the kynge rose earlye, & gathered the Lordes of the cytie and went vp to the house of the Lord. And they brought seven oxen, seven rāmes, seven shepe, and seven hegoates, to be a synne offeringe for the kynge- dome, for the sanctuarie, & for Juda. And he commaunded the preastes the sonnes of Aaron, to offer them on the altar of the Lord.

And they slue the oxen, & the preastes receaued the bloude, & sprinkled it on the altar: lyke wyse, whan they had slayne the rāmes, they sprinkled the bloude vpon the altar: they slue also the shepe, & they sprinkled the bloude vpon the altar. And then they brought forth the hegoates for the synne offeringe before the kynge and the congregacyon, & put theyr handes vpon them. And the preastes slue them, and with the bloude of them they clenised the altar, to make satisfaccion for all Israel: for the kynge commaunded, & the burnt offeringe and the synne offeringe shulde be made for all Israel. And set the Levites in the house of the Lord with tymbales, psalteries and harpes: accordyng to the commaundement of Dauid and of Gad the kynges sear, and Nathan the prophete. For so was the commaundment of the Lord thowhe the hande of his prophetes. And the Levites stode, haungyng & instrumentes of Dauid, and the preastes helde the trompettes. And Hezekia commaunded to offer the burnt offeringe vpon the altar. And when the burnt offeringe beganne, the songe of the Lord beganne also, & the trompettes & the instrumentes that were ordeyned by the hande of Dauid kynge of Israel. And all the congregacion worshyped, synginge a song, and blowinge with the trompettes, & all thys continued, vntyll the burnt offeringe was fynished.

* 1. 3a. m.

And when they had made an ende of offeringe, the kynge and all that were present w hym bowed them selues, & worshyped. And Hezekia the kynge & the Lordes spake to the Levites to praye the Lord with the wordes of Dauid, & of Asaph the sear. And the Levites sang prayes with gladnesse, and other bowed them selues, and worshyped.

And Hezekia answered, & sayde: nowe ye haue consecrate youre handes to the Lord: go to therfore, & bringe in the sacrifices & thank-offerynges into the house of the Lord. And the congregacyon brought in the sacrifices & thanke-offerynges & burnt offerings, as many as were of a fre liberall hart. And the nombre of the burnt offerings which the congregacion brought, was lxx. oxen, an hundred rāmes, & two hundred shepe: which were, all for the burnt offeringe of the Lord. And ther were dedicated syxe hundred oxen, and thre thousand shepe.

And the preastes were to fewe, to sleue all the burnt offerings: but their brethren the Levites dyd helpe them, till they had ended the worke, and vntyll the preastes were sanctified. For the Levites were purer herted to be sanctified, then the preastes. And therto the burnt offerings were many with the fatte of the peace offerings & the drinke offerings: & be longe to the burnt offeringe. And so the seruice pertayninge to the house of the Lord was fynished. And Hezekia reioyced & all the people, that God had made the folke so ready: and that the thyng was so soone done.

The

The. xxi. Chapter.

Hezekia remeth the feast of paschever.

And Hezekia sent to all Israel and Juda, and wrote letters to Ephraim & Manasse, that they shulde come to the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, and offer Paschever unto the Lord God of Israel. And the kynge helde a counsell with his Lordes and all the congregacion of Jerusalem: to kepe the feast of Paschever in the seconde moneth. For they coulde not kepe it at that tyme: because the preastes were not sanctified sufficiently, neither was the people gathered together to Jerusalem. And the thyng pleased the kynge and all the congregacion. And they decreed that it shulde be proclaymed thowhe out all Israel fro Bersabe to Dan, & they shulde come, & holde the feast of Paschever unto the Lord God of Israel at Jerusalem: for they had not done it of a greates season as they shuld haue done by the lawe.

So the postes wente with letters of the hande of the kynge, & of his Lordes thowhe out all Israel and Juda: & at the commaundement of the kynge they sayd: Pe chyldre of Israel, turne agayne vnto the Lord God of Abraham, Isahac & Israel, & let euery one returne to the remaunt that are escaped you out of the hande of the kynges of Assur. And be not ye lyke your fathers, & your brethren which trespassed agaynst the Lord God of theyr fathers, which gaue them vp to be destroyed, as ye see. And nowe be not ye stiffnecked, lyke as were your fathers, but yelde your selues vnto the Lord, & entre into his holy place, which he hath sanctified for euer and serue the Lord your God, & the fearfulness of his wrath shal turne away fro you. For yf ye turne agayne vnto the Lord, then shall your brethren and your chyldren fynde compassion in the presence of them that take the captiue, and they shall come agayne vnto this land: for the Lord your God is gracious & mercifull and wil not turne away his face from you, yf ye conuerte vnto hym.

And so the postes went from cytie to cytie in the lande of Ephraim & Manasse, eue vnto Zabulō. But they laughed the to scorn & mocked the. Neuerthelesse, yet dyuerse of Asser, Manasse and of Zabulō submytted them selues, & came to Jerusalem. And the hande of God was in Juda, so that he gaue them one hert, to do the commaundement of the kynge and of the rulers, accordyng to the wordes of the Lord. And there assembled to Jerusalem moche people, and there was present a myghty great congregacio, to holde the feast of swete bread in the seconde moneth.

And they arose, & remoued the altars that were in Jerusalem. And all the vessels of incense dyd they awaye, and cast them into the broke Cedron. And they slue Paschever the fourteenth daye of the seconde moneth. And the preastes and Levites, which were ashamed, sanctified them selues, & brought in the burnt offerings into the house of the Lord. And they stode in theyr offyce after theyr maner, and accordyng to the lawe of Moses the man of God. And the preastes sprinkled the bloude, which they receaued of the hande of the Levites. For there were many in the congregacio, & were not sanctified: & the Levites dyd sleue Paschever for all that were not cleane, & that myght not execute the holy worke of the Lord. For many of the people, and very many: out of Ephraim, Manasse, Issakar and Zabulō were not cleansed, & yet dyd eate Paschever agaynst the lawe apoynted. Wherefore Hezekia prayed for the, and sayd: the good Lord be mercifull vnto the. For he set his whole hert, to seke the Lord God euen the God of his fathers: but all the other dyd not so accordyng to vnfayned holynesse. And the Lord hearde Hezekia, and healed the people. And the chyldre of Israel that were present at Jerusalem, helde the feast of swete bread seven dayes with great gladnesse, and the Levites and the preastes prayed, and magnified the power of the Lord daye by daye, vpon instrumentes.

And Hezekia spake hertely vnto all the Levites that had understaundyng and were of a good mynde toward the Lord. And they dyd eate thowhe out that feast, seven dayes longe, & offered peace-offerynges, & thanked the Lord God of theyr fathers. And the hole assemble toke counsell, to do so other seven dayes, and they helde those seven dayes with gladnesse. For Hezekia kynge of Juda toke out (from amonge his catel) for the congregacio, a thousande yōge oxen, and seven thousande shepe. And the Lordes gaue out to the congregacion a thousande yōge oxen, and ten thousande shepe. And a greates nombre of the preastes were sanctified.

And all the congregacion of Juda with the preastes & Levites, & al the congregacio that came out of Israel, and the straungers that came out of the lande of Israel, & that dwelt in Juda, reioyced: & there was great gladnesse in Jerusalem. For sence the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israel there was no soche ioye in Jerusalem. And the preastes and the Levites arose, & blessed the people, and theyr voyce was heard of the Lord, and theyr prayer came vnto heauen, his holy dwellinge place.

The. xxii. Chapter.

After that Hezekia had called agayne the people vnto the waye of the Lord, he ordeyned the preastes vnto whom he commaunded to geue theyr.

And when all these thynges were fynished, all they of Israel that were present in the cyties of Juda, went out &

*ii. pa. viii. a out and brake the ymages, and *cut downe the Idoles grones, & al to brake the hye places, and *alters, thozow out all Juda and Benjamin, in Ephraim also and Manasse, vntyll they had vterly destroyed them al. And all the childre of Israel returned euery mā to his possessions & to their awne ctyes.

And hezekia appoynted sondrye compaynes of the preastes ad Leuites after the dyuersyte of their ministracions, euery mā accordyng to his office: both preastes and Leuites, for the burnt offeringe & peace offeringes, to minstre, & to geue thanks & praye in the gates of the host of the Lord. And the kynges porcion of his substance he gaue, were dayly burnt offeringes in the morning and euenyng, & burnt offeringes for the Saboth dayes, newmones, & solempne feastes, accordyng *as it is written in the lawe of the Lord. And he had people that dwelt in Ierusalem, geue the parte to the preastes & Leuites, that they might substantiually applye the selues to the lawe of the Lord. And as sone as the kynges comaundement came abroa, the childre of Israel brought abou-daunce of first frutes, of corne, wyne, oyle, honye, & of all maner of frutes of the felde, & the tythes of all maner of thynges brought they in plenteously. And schylde of Israel and Juda that dwelt in the ctyes of Juda, they also brought in the tythes of oxen and shepe, and other holy tythes which were consecrate vnto the Lord: they God, they dyd offere, and brought the all by heapes. In the thyrde moneth they beganne to laye the heapes (in maner of a foundacion) and finished them in the seuenth moneth.

And when hezekia and the Lordes came and saue the heapes, they blessed the Lord & his people Israel. And hezekia questioned with the preastes & the Leuites concernyng the heapes. And Azaria the chefe preaste of the house of zadock, answered him, & sayde: sence the people beganne to byng the beaue offeringes into the house of the Lord, we also haue had prouyde to eate, there remayned so moch: for the Lord hath blessed his people and this heape is left. And hezekia had prepare the chambres in the house of the Lord. And they dyd prepare them, & carped in the first frutes, the tythes, and the dedicat thynges, saythfully.

ouer which Chonaniahu the Leuite had the rule, ad Semei his brother next to him. And Jehiel, Azariahu, Zabath, Arael, Jerimoth, Iosabad, Eliel, Ichmachiabu, Mahath & Manaiahu were ouer sears ordeyned by Chonaniahu, & Semei his brother was an offyccer of hezekia the kyng, and Azaria was the ruler of the house of God. (vnto whā all these thynges belonged.) And Chozai the sone of Anna the Leuite and porter of the East doze, had the ouersyght of the thynges that were offered of a freewill vnto God (and were geue in maner seuerally vnto the Lord) ad ouer the thynges most holy. And vnder his hand were Eden, Miniamin, Isua, Semelahu, Amariahu, and Sechaniahu in the citie of the preastes appoynted of the schylde to geue to their brethren the porcions, as wel to the small as to the greates.

Except that to the males that were reckoned from thre pere & aboue (amonge al that went into the house of the Lord) they schuld geue dape by dape, for the ministracion, & for the geuyng attēdaunce, & for their diuerse waytynges by course. And to the preastes & Leuites thozowe out the houtholde of the fathers, from twety pere & aboue to wayte when their courses came. And to the families of all their babes, wyues, sonnes & daughters thozowe all the congregaciō. For vpon the schylde of them were the holy thynges bestowed. And to the chylde of Aaron, the preastes, whych were in the fel-des & suburbs of their ctyes, ctye by ctye the mē (whose names were expressed afore) schulde geue porcions, euen to all the males amonge the preastes, and to all the Leuites accordyng to the nombre.

And of thys maner dyd hezekia thozowe out all Juda, & wrought it that is good, and ryght and true, before the Lord hys God. And in all the wyorkes he beganne for the seruice of the house of God, for the lawe, and for the comaundementes, he sought his God, & that dyd he with all his hert, & prospered.

The xxxii. Chapter.

Sennacherib (or Sanherib) besegge Ierusalem is strecken of the Angell. Hezekia dyeth, after whom succedeth Manasse.

After these deedes were saythfully done *Sennacherib kyng of Assur came, & entred into Juda, & compassed the stronge ctyes, and thought to winne them for him selfe. And so whē hezekia saue the Sennacherib was come, & that he was purposed to fyght agaynst Ierusalem, he toke coucel with his Lordes, and men of myght to stop the water of the fountaynes without the ctye: & they dyd helpe him. For they gathered many of the people together, & stoppe al the welles welles, and he broke that ranne thozow the myddes of the lande, sayenge: why shall the kynges of Assur come, and fynde moch water? And hezekia went to lustelpe, and built vp all the wal where it was broken, & made ordinaunce vpon the towres and to the other wall without, and repayzed Myllo in the ctye of Dauid, and made many dartes and myldes.

And he sett captaynes of warre ouer the people, and gathered them together to hym in the large strete of the gate of the ctye, and spake sentely to them, sayyng: Plucke vp your hertes, and be strong: we not afraied ner discouraged for the kyng of Assur, and for all the multitude that he hath with him: for there be moo with vs then with him. With him is an arme of flesh. But with vs is the Lord our God, for to helpe vs, and to fyght our batayles. And the people toke a courage thozow the wordes of hezekia kyng of Juda.

After thys dyd Sennacherib kyng of Assur send of hys seruantes to Ierusalem, (but he hym selfe remayned besyde Lachis: hauyng all his power with him) vnto hezekia kyng of Juda and vnto all Juda that were at Ierusalem, sayenge: Thus sayeth Sennacherib kyng of Assur: wher do ye trust, O ye that dwell in Ierusalem which is besieged? Moth not hezekia entyce you to geue ouer your selues vnto deeth, hongre, and thirst, sayeng: the Lord our God shall ridde vs oute of the hande of the kyng of Assur? hath not the same hezekia put downe hys hye places and hys alters, and commaunded Juda and Ierusalem, sayenge: Ye shall worshyppe before one alter, and burne incense vpon the same?

Know ye not, what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes: were the Gods of the people of other landes able or myghte to saue their lādes out of my hand? which of all the Gods of those naciōs (if my fathers destroyed) coulde deliuer hys people out of myne hand? And shall ye God be able to deliuer you out of myne hand? wherfore, nowe lett not hezekia deceaue you, ner persuade you of this facion, nor yet beleue him. For as no God among all naciōs and kingdomes, was able to rydde hys people out of my hande and out the hande of my fathers: how moch lesse shall your goddes be able to kepe you out of myne hand? And yet mothynges dyd his seruantes speake agaynst the Lord God, and agaynst his seruaut hezekia. And (Sennacherib) also wrote a letter, to rayle on the Lord God of Israel, & spake agaynst him, sayenge: as the Gods of the naciōs of other landes haue not bene able to deliuer their people out of myne hande. Euen so shall not the God of hezekia deliuer hys people out of myne hand. And they cryed with a loude voyce in the Jewes speach vnto the people of Ierusalem: were on the wall, to fcare them and to make them saynt harted, & that they might so take the ctye. And they spake agaynst the God of Ierusalem, as agaynst the Gods of the naciōs of the earth, which were the wyorkes of the handes of men.

But hezekia the kyng, and the prophet Iai the sonne of Amoz prayed agaynst that blasphemy, and cryed vp to heauen. And the Lord sent an angell, which destroyed all the men of warre and the Lordes and captaynes of the hoost of the kyng of Assur, & he turned his face agayne to hys owne land. * And when he was come into the house of his God, they that came of hys owne body, slue hym there with the sword. And so the Lord saued hezekia and the inhabitants of Ierusalem out of the hand of Sennacherib kyng of Assur, and from the hand of all other, and mayntened them on euery syde. And many brought offeringes vnto the Lord to Ierusalem, and presentes to hezekia kyng of Juda: so that he was magnified in the syght of all naciōs from thence forth.

In those dayes hezekia was sycke vnto the death, & prayed vnto the Lord, which answered him, & shewed hym a wonderfull miracle. But hezekia dyd not agayne vnto God accordyng to it: he had shewed hym, for his hert arose: & there came wrath vpon him and vpon Juda & Ierusalem. Notwithsta-nding hezekia submitted hym selfe (after that hys hert was rylen vp) he, & the inhabitants of Ierusalem: and the wrath of the Lord came not vpon them in the dayes of hezekia.

And hezekia had excedyng moche ryches and honour. And he gat hym treasures of syluer and golde, precious stones, and spices, myldes, and of all maner pleasaunt Iuelles: and made store houses for the frutes of corne, for wyne and oyle: and stalles for all maner of bestes, and foldes for shepe. And he made him ctyes, and had of shepe and ore great abundance. For God had geuen him substance excedyng moch. This same hezekia stopped the vpper water springes of Sicho, and brought them downe to the well syde of the ctye of Dauid. And hezekia prospered in all hys wyorkes. And when the prynces of Babylon sent vnto him Ambassadors, to enquire of the wondre & chaunced in the lande, God left hym to trye hym, and that all that was in hys hert, myght be knowne.

The rest of the deedes of hezekia, and hys goodnes, behold, they are wyrtē in the vytyon of Iai the prophete the sonne of Amoz in the boke of the kyges of Juda and Israel. And hezekia slepte with his fathers, & they buryed hym in the most worthy place of the sepulchres of the sonnes of Dauid: and all

Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem dyd hym worshyppe at his death. And Manasse hys sonne raygned in his stede.

The. xxxiiij. Chapter.

Manasse is taken prisoner, and after that he cometh out, he destroyeth the Idoles. He dyeth, and after hym succeedeth Amon, whych is helled of hys awne people, and Josias hys sonne raygneth in hys stede.

Manasse was. xij. yeare olde * when he beganne to raygne, & he raygned. lvi. yeare in Jerusale. But dyd euell in the syght of the Lord, lyke vnto the abominacions of y^e heathen, who the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel. For he went to, and buylt the hylaulter, * which hezekia hys father had broken downe. And he rered vp alters for Baalim, and made groues, and worshyped all the host of heauen, and serued them. And he buylt alters in y^e house of the Lord: where as the Lorde yet had sayd: * in Jerusale shall my name be for euer. And he buylded alters for all the host of heauen, in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde. And he burnt hys chyldren in fyre, in the valey of the sonne of himmō. He was a forcerer, he regarded the cypenge of byrdes, vsed inchauntementes, and mayntened workers wth spretes, and sears of fortunes: ad wrought moch euell in the syght of the Lorde, to angre him with all.

And he put the kerued ymage & an Idole which he had made, in the house of God. Of which house God had sayd to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: in this house and in Jerusale whych I haue chosen afore all the trybes of Israel, * wyl I put my name for euer, and will nomoze byng the seate of Israel from of the lande whych I haue ordeyned for your fathers. If so be that they wyl be diligent and do all that I haue commaunded them in al the lawe, and statutes, and ordinaunces by the hande of Moses. And so Manasse made Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the heathen, whom the Lorde destroyed before the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde spake to Manasse & to hys people, but they wolde not regarde.

Wherfore, the Lorde brought vpo the the captaynes of the host of the kyng of the Assirians, whych toke Manasse in holde, and bounde hym with chaynes, and carped hym to Babylon. And when he was in tribulacion, he besought the Lord hys God, & humbled hym selfe exceddyngly before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to hym and God was entreated of hym, and hearde his prayer, and brought hym agayne to Jerusalem into his kyngdome. And then Manasse knewe, that the Lorde was God.

After this he built a wal without the cytie of Dauid on the west syde of Gihō in the valley as they come to the fish gate, & round about Ophel, and brought it vp of a very great heygth, ad put captaynes of warre in all the strong cyties of Juda. And he toke awaye straunge Gods & ymages out of the house of God, and * all the alters that he had buylt in the mount of the house of God, and in Jerusalem, and cast them oute of the cytie. And he prepared the altar of y^e Lord, and sacrificed thereon peace offerpnyges, and thankoffpnyges, and charged Juda, to serue the Lord God of Israel. Neuertheles, y^e people dyd offer styll in the hylaulters, howbeit vnto the Lorde their God onely.

The rest of the actes of Manasse, and his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the sears and of them that spake to hym in the name of the Lorde God of Israel, beholde, they are writen in the sayenges of the kynges of Israel. And his prayer, and howe that he was hearde, and all his synnes, and his trespasses, and the places where he made hylaulters, and set vp groues, and ymages (before he was mekened) beholde, they are wyrtten among the sayenges of the sears. And Manasse slepte with hys fathers, and they buried hym in hys awne house: and Amon his sonne raigned in his rowme. Amon was two and twenty yeare olde, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned two yeare in Jerusale. But he did euell in the syght of the Lord, lyke as dyd Manasse his father, for Amon sacrificed to all y^e kerued ymages which Manasse hys father had made, and serued them, and submitted not him selfe before the Lord as Manasse hys father had mekened hym selfe. But Amon trespassed greatly. And his awne seruantes conspired agaynst him, ad slue hym in hys awne house. But the people of the lande slue all them that had conspyred agaynst kyng Amon. And the same people of the lande made Josia hys sonne kyng in hys rowme.

The. xxxiiij. Chapter.

Josia destroyeth the Idoles, and restoreth the temple, in which is founde the boke of the lawe. He sendeth to Hulda the prophetesse for counsell.

Josia was eyght yeare olde whan he began to raygne, * and he raygned in Jerusalem thyrtye and one yere. And he dyd that which was eyght in the syght of the Lorde, and walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, ad bowed nether to y^e ryght had ner to y^e left. In y^e viij. yere of hys raygne (whē he was yet a childe) he beganne to seke after the God of Dauid hys father. And in the twelue yere he beganne to pource Juda and Jerusalem from hylaulters, groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall: and they brake downe the alters alters of Baalim euen in hys presence: and other ymages that were in greater honoure then they, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall he brake and made dust of them, and strawed it vpo the graues of them that had offered to them. And he burnt the bones of the preastes vpo the altres of them, and clenfed Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he in the cyties of Manasse, Ephraim, Simeon vnto Nephthali. And in the wyl-dernesses of them rounde about, he plucked a sondre the alters and the groues, and dyd beate them and stampete them to powdze, & beate downe all the ymages thorow out all the lande of Israel: and returned to Jerusalem agayne.

In the eyghtene yere of his raygne when he had purged the lande and the temple * he sent Saphan the sonne of Amaziahu, and Maasiah the gouernoure of the cytie & Joah the sonne of Joahaz the recorder, to repayre the house of the Lorde hys God. And when they came to helkiah the hie preast, they deliuered them the money that was brought in to the house of God, whych the Leuites that kepte the entres had geathered of the hande of Manasse and Ephraim, and of all that yet remayned in Israel, and of all Juda and Ben Jamin, and of the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And they put in the handes of the workemen, that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde: and they gaue it to the labourers that wrought in the house of the Lorde, to repayre and mende the house. Euen to masons and carpenters gaue they it, to get stone and tymber, for couples and for beames of the houses, which the kynges of Juda had destroyed: And the men dyd the worke faythfully.

And the ouerscars of them to courage the forward, were Tabath and Obadiahu Leuites of the chyldren of Merari: & Secharia & Mesillam, of the chyldre of the Cahathites, and other of the Leuytes whych all coulde skille of instrumentes of Musike. And ouer the bearers of burthes and ouer all y^e wrought, in whatsoener workemanshype it were, were there Scrybes, officers and porters of the Leuites.

And whan they brought out the money that was brought into the house of the lord, helkiah the preast * founde the boke of the lawe of the Lord geuē by Moses. And helkiah answered and sayde to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the law, in the house of the Lorde, and helkiah gaue the boke to Saphan. And Saphan carped the boke to the kyng, and brought the kyng worde agayne, sayenge: all that was comytted to thy seruantes, that do they. And they haue gathered together the money that was found in the house of the Lord, and haue deliuered it in to the hādes of the ouerscars of the worke, and to the handes of the workemen. And then Sapha the scribe shewed the kyng, sayng: helkiah the preast hath geuen me a boke, & Sapha redd in it before y^e king.

And it fortuneth, that when the kyng had heard the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes: and the kyng commaunded helkiah and Ahikam the sonne of Saphan, and Abidon the sonne of Micah, and Saphan the scribe, and Aiaia a seruaut of the kynges, sayng: go & enquire of the Lorde for me and for the yare left in Israel and Juda, concerning the wordes of the boke that is found. For great is the wraoth of the Lorde that is fallen vpo vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the worde of y^e Lord, to do after all that is wyrtten in this boke.

And helkiah and they that the kyng had appoynted, went to hulda a prophetesse the wyfe of Sallum the sonne of Tokhath the sonne of Hasra keeper of y^e wardrope (for she dwelt in Jerusalem with in the secōd wall) and so they comūed with her. She answered them: thus sayth y^e Lorde God of Israel: tell ye y^e man that sent you to me. Eue thus sayth the Lorde: Behold, I wyl byng euell vpon this place, & vpon the inhabitants thereof: euen all the curses that are wyrtte in the boke which they haue reade before the kyng of Juda) because they haue forsaken me, and haue offered vnto other Gods, to angre me wth all maner workes of theyr handes, therefore is my wraoth set on fyre agaynst thys place and shall not be quenched.

And as for the kyng of Juda whych sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shill ye saye vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel concerning the wordes which y^e hast heard. Because thynē hert dyd melt, & thou dydest meke thy self before God, whē thou heardest his wordes agaynst this place & agaynst the inhabitants thereof: & humbledst thy selfe before me, and tarest thy clothes, and wepest before me, that haue I heard also sayth the Lorde. Behold, I wyl take y^e to thy fathers, and thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace, and thynē eyes shall not se all the myschere that I wyl byng vpon thys place, & vpon the inhabytors of y^e same. And they brought the kyng worde agayne. * Then the kyng sent, and gathered to gether all the elders of Juda and Jerusalem. And the kyng went vnto the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, & the preastes & Leuites and all the people great ad small: & the kyng dyd reade all the wordes of y^e boke of the couenaunt that was found in the house of the Lorde. And y^e kyng stode at hys standyng, & made a couenaunt before the Lorde, to folowe the Lorde, A ij and to and to kepe his commaundementes, his wynt-nesses, and his statutes, wythall his here wythall his soule, & to fulfyll the wordes of

the appoyntment wyrtten in the sayde boke.
And he set in theyr rowme all them that were founde in Jerusalem and Ben Jamin,
and the enhabiters of Jerusalem dyd accor-dyng to the couenaunt of the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Josia put awaye all maner of abhominacyons out of all landes that pertayned to the chyldren of Israell, and brought in all that were found in Israel, to worshyp, and to serue the Lorde theyr God.
And they turned not a syde from after the Lorde God of theyr fathers, as longe as he lyued.

The xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Josia holdeth passeour. He sygheteth agaynst the kynge of Egypt, and dyeth. The people bewyle hym.

And Josia helde the feast of passeour vnto the Lorde in Jerusalem, & they slue passeour in the fourtene daye of first moneth.
And he set the preastes in theyr offices, and ayded them in the seruice of the house of the Lorde. And he sayde vnto the Leuytes (that taught all Israel, and were sanctified vnto the Lorde) put the holy arke
in the house whych Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng of Israel, dyd buyld, there shall no other burthen be layd vpon youre shoulders: But now serue the Lorde youre God and his people Israel. And prepare yourselues by youre auncient householdes and companies, accordyng to the wyrtynge of Da-uid kyng of Israel, and the wyrtynge of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place accordyng to the deuysion of the auncient householdes of youre brethren the chyldren of the people, & after the deuysion of the aun-cient householdes of the Leuytes, kyll passeo-uer, & sanctifye and prepare youre brethren, that they may do accordyng to the word of the Lorde by the bande of Moses.

And Josia gaue to the people flockes of shepe and kyddes, all for passeour and for all that were present, thyrty thousand by tale, and thre thousande oxen, and these were euen of the kynges substance. And his Lor-des gaue wyllynge both vnto the people & to the preastes, & vnto the Leuytes. Helkia also, zacharia and Jechiel, rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto the preastes for passeour offerpynges two thousand and syxe hundred shepe, and thre hundred oxen. Conania & Semeiahu and Bethanel his brethren, and ha-labiahu and Jaiclad Josabad, rulers of the Leuytes, gaue vnto the Leuytes passeour offerpynges, euen fyue thousand shepe, & fyue hundred oxen.

And so the seruice was prepared, and the

preastes stode in theyr places, and the Leui-
tes in theyr distincte copanics at the kynges commaundment. And they slue Passeour, and the preastes sprinkled the bloude with theyr hande, & the Leuytes pulled of the saynnes of the beastes. And they fett awaye the burntofferinges, to geue them vnto the people that were denyded by auncient houses, &
that they shulde offer vnto the Lorde, lyke as it is wyrtten in the boke of Moses. And so dyd they wyth the oxen also. And they dressed the Passeour wyth fyre as the maner was.
And the other dedycat beastes: sodde they in pottes, caulderns & pannes, and denyded the amog all the people. And afterwarde, they made readye for them selues & for the prea-stes: for the chyldren of Aaron were busyed
in offerpyng of burntofferpynges and the fatt vntyll nyght: therfore the Leuytes prepared for them selues and for the preastes the son-nes of Aaron.

And the syngers, the chyldren of Asaph
stode in theyr standyng & accordyng to the commaundment of Dauid and Asaph, heman Jeduthun the kynges sear: and the porters waityd at euery gate, and myght not departe from theyr seruice: for theyr brethren
the Leuytes prepared for them. And so all the seruice of the Lorde was prepared the same daye, to offer Passeour, and to offer
burntofferpynges vpon the auter of the Lorde
accordyng to the commaundment of kyng Josia.

And so the chyldren of Israel that were present, offered Passeour the same tyme, ad
kepte the feast of swete breade seuen dayes.
And ther was no Passeour lyke to the kepte
in Israel fro the dayes of Samuel the pphete:
nether dyd all the kynges of Israel hold soch
a Passeour feast as dyd Josia and the prea-stes and Leuytes and all Juda, and Israel
were present, and the enhabiters of Jerusalem. This Passeour was holden in the eygh-tene yere of the raygne of Josia.

¶ After all this, when Josia had prepared the temple, Necho kyng of Egypt came vp to fyght agaynst Caranis besyde Euphrates, and Josia went out agaynst hym:
whych sent messengers to hym, & sayd: what
haue I to do wyth the thou kyng of Juda?
Be not thou agaynst thy self this daye: For my warre is agaynst another house, & God bade me make hall. Leue of therfore & med-le not with God whych is wyth me, lest he destroie the. Neuerthelesse, Josia wolde not turne his face from hym, but rather toke aduyse to fyght with him, and hekened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, and came to fyght in the valepe of Magedo, & the shoters shot darteres at kyng Josia. And the kyng sayd to his seruauntes:
carpe me awaye, for I am soze wounded. His seruauntes

seruauntes therfore had him out of that cha-ret, and put him in another chare (as a kynge) in another cha-ret & they had. And when they had brought him to Jerusalem, he dyed, and was buryed
in the sepulchre of his fathers. ¶ And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josia. And Jeremia lamented Josia, and all syngynge men and synginge women mourned for Jo-sia in their lamentacions, to this daye, and made the same lamentacions an ordinaunce
in Israel, & behold, they be wyrtten in the lamentacions. The rest of the actes of Josia & his goodnes which he dyd in folowynge the wyrtynge in the lawe, and his sayenges, first and last: behold, they are wyrtten in the boke
of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ After Josia raygneth Jehoahaz, after Jehoahaz
Jehoahaz, after Jehoahaz Jehoahaz, after Jehoahaz Jehoahaz, in whole tyme all the people were carped awaye to Babylon & were brought a ryme
the seuenthy yere after, by kyng Cyrus, otherwys called Chores.

¶ And the people of the land toke Jeho-ahaz the sonne of Josia, and made hi
kyng in his fathers steade in Jerusalem. And Jehoahaz was thre and twenty yeare olde, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. And the kyng of Egypt put him downe at Jerusalem, ann merced the lande in an hundred talentes of syluer, and a talent of gold. And the kyng of Egypt made Eliakim his brother kyng vpon Juda and Jerusalem, & turned his name vnto Jehoakim: and Necho
toke Jehoahaz his brother, and caried hym to Egypt. Jehoakim was fyue and twenty yeare olde, when he began to raygne, and he raygned eleuen yeare in Jerusalem: and he dyd euill in the sight of the Lorde his God.
Agaynst him then came vp Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon, and bounde hym with two chaynes, to carpe him to Babylon. The king Nabuchodonosor also caried of the vessels of the house of the Lorde to Babylon, & and put them in his temple at Babylon. The rest of the actes of Jehoakim, and his abho-minacions which he did, and carued ymages that were layde to his charge, beholde, they are wyrtten in the booke of the kynges of Israel: and Jehoacin his sonne raygned in his steade. Jehoacin was eyght yeare olde whā he beganne to raygne, and he raygned thre monethes and ten dayes in Jerusalem: and dyd euill in the sight of the Lorde. And whē
the yeare was out, kyng Nabuchodonosor sent, and fet him to Babilon with the goodly vessels of the house of the Lorde, and made zedekia (his fathers brother) kyng ouer Juda and Jerusalem.

¶ Zedekia was one and twenty yere olde,
when he beganne to raygne, & raygned eleue yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd euill in the syght of the Lorde his God, and humbled not him selfe before Jeremia the prophete at the mouth of the Lorde. And he rebelled a-gaynst Nabuchodonosor, which had recca-ued an oth of hym by God. But he was stiff-necked, and to harde herted to turne vnto the Lorde God of Israell. Moreover, all the rulers, the prestes, & the people trespassed more synnyng after all maner of abhominacyons of the heathen, and poluted the house of the Lorde, which he had halowed in Jerusalem.

¶ And the Lorde God of their fathers sent to them, by his messengers, risynge vp by tymes and sendynge: for he had compassyon on his people, and on his dwellynge place. But they mocked the messengers of God, & despised his wordes, and mylde vnto his prophetetes, vntyll the wrath of the Lorde arose agaynst his people, and tyll there was no remedy. And so he brought vpon them the kyng of Caldeye, which slue their yong men with the swerde in their holy temple, and spared
nether yong man, mayden, olde man, ner hym that stowped for age. He gaue them all into his hande.

And all the vessels of the house of God, (both great and small) and the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kyng, and of his Lordes: all these caried he to Babilon. And they burnt the house of God and brake downe the wall of Jerusalem, ad
burnt all the places therof with fyre, and destroyed all the goodly Jewles therof. And the rest that had escaped the swerde, carped he to Babilon, where they were bound to him and his chyldre, vntyll the tyme that Persia had the empire. To fulfyll the word of the Lorde
by the mouth of Jeremia, vntyll the lande had her pleasure of her Sabbothes: for as longe as she laye desolate, she kept Saboth,
vntyll seuenthy yeares were fulfylled.

¶ And the first yeare of Cyrus kyng of Persia (whā the worde of the Lorde & spoke by the mouth of Jeremia, was fynished)
the Lorde stered vp the sprete of Cyrus kyng
of Persia, that he made a proclamacion tho-
row out all his kyngdome, and that by wytyng, sayeng: Thus sayeth Cyrus kyng of Persia: all the kyngdomes of the earth hath the Lorde God of heauen geuen me, and hath charged me to buyld him an house in Jerusalem, that is in Juda. Wherfore, whosouer is amonge you of all his people, the Lorde his God be with hym, and lett hym
go vp.

The ende of the second booke
of the Chronycles.

¶ Cyrus sendeth agayne the people that was in captiuitie, and restored them their holy vessels. And commaundeth them to builde agayne the temple.

baia, the chyldren of Hakoꝝ, the chyldren of Berzilai, which toke one of the daughters of * Berzilai y Gilendite to wyfe, and was called after theyr name: these sought they evidence amonge them that had the register of byrth, and were not foude therin, therfore

were they put fro the presthod. And * Ha-thiratha layd vnto the, that they shuld not eate of y most holy, till ther rose vp a * preste
to weare y Urin and Thummim.

The whole congregacion together, was xliij. thousand, thre hūdzred and threscore: besyde their seruauntes and maydens, of who there were seuen thousand, thre hūdzred, and seuen and thyrtye. And there were amonge them two hūdzred syngynge men and wemē. Their horses were seuen hūdzred and fyxe & thyrty. Their mules, two hundred, and fyue and fourtye: and their camels, foure hundred and fyue and thyrty. Theyr asses, fyxe thousande, seuen hundred and twente. And certayne of the chefe fathers, when they came because of the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem, they offered the selues wyllynge for the house of God, to sett in hys place, and gaue gold after their habilitie vnto the treasure of the worcke, euē one and threscore thousande pecces, and fyue thousande pounce of syluer, and an hundred prestes garmentes. So the prestes and the leuites, and a certayne of the people and the syngers, and the porters, and the Nethinims dwelt in their cyties, and all Isracell in theyr cyties.

The. iij. Chapter.

After the foundation of the temple once renewed :
they sacrifice unto the Lord.

And when * the seuenth moneth came, and the childre of Israel were now in theyr cyties, the people came togeather (euen as one man) vnto Jerusalem. And there stode vp Iesua & sonne of Iosedec and his brethre the prestes, and zoobabel the sonne of Salathiel & hys brethren, and buylded the aultar of the God of Israel, to offre burnt offrynges theron, as it is writen in the lawe of Moses y^e mā of God and the aultar set they vpon hys socketes (for ther was a fearfulness amonge the because of the nations and landes) therfore they offered burnt offrynges theron vnto the Lord * in the morning & at euen. And they helde the feast of tabernacles as it is writen, & offered burnt sacrifices dayly, according to y^e nōbre & custome, daye by daye. Afterwarde they offred dayly burnt offrynges also, & in y^e new mones and in all the feast dayes that were cōsecrate vnto the Lorde, and for all them whych dyd (of their awne fre wyll) offre vnto the Lord.

ffrom the first daye of the seventh moneth
beganne they to offre burnt sacrifices vnto
the Lorde: euen whan the foundacyon of the temple of the Lord was not yet layed. They gaue money also vnto y^e masons and carpenters, and meate and dryncke and oyle vnto thei

them of zidon and of Tire, to buyng the Cedre tymber fro Liban⁹ by see vnto Toppa, accordyng to the graunt that they had of Cyrus the kynge of Persia.

In the seconde yere of their coming vnto
the place of y^e house of God at Ierusalem in the second moneth, beganne zorobabel the sonne
of Salathiel, & Iesua the sonne of Iosedec,
and the remnant of they^r brethren the prestes
and leuites, and all they that were come out of the captiuite vnto Ierusalem, & appoynted
the leuites from twente yere olde and aboue, to se, that the worke of the house of the Lorde went forwarde. And Iesua stode with his sonnes and brethren, and Cadmiell
with his sonnes, and the chyldre of Iuda, to forther the workemen of the house of God,
euen the chyldre of Henadab, with their children and their brethren the leuites.

And whan the builders layd the founda-cyon of the temple of the Lorde, the prestes stode in they^r arraye, with troyces. And the leuites the chyldren of Asaph with cymbales, to prayse the Lorde * after the maner of Dauid kynge of Israell. And they sang together, whan they gaue prayse & thanks vnto
the Lorde, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for euer vpon Israell.
And all y^e people shouted loude in praysynge
the Lorde, because the foundation of the house of the Lorde was layde. Many also of the prestes and leuites and auncient fathers,
which had sene the first house (whē the foun-
dacion of thys house was layed before they^r eyes) wepte with a loude voyce. And many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse gaue a greate sounde, in so moch y^e the people coude
not diserne the ioyful sounde and gladnes,
from the noyse of the wepyng amonge the people: for the people shouted wyth a loude
cry, and the noyse was herde farre of.

The. iij. Chapter.

The buyldyng of the temple is hyndered, and let.

But * the aduersaries of Iuda and Beniamin hearde, that the chyldren
of the captiuite buylded the temple vnto the Lorde God of Israell. And they came to zorobabel and to the principall
fathers, and sayde vnto the: We will bulde
with you: for we seke the Lorde youre God
lyke as ye do. And we haue done sacrifice vnto hym, sence the tyme of Asor hadon the kynge of Assur * which brought vs vp hy-ther. And zorobabel & Iesua and the other auncient fathers of Israell sayde vnto them:
It canot be, that you and we together shuld
buyld the house vnto our God: for we oure selues wyll buyld alone vnto the Lorde our God of Israell, * as Cyrus the king of Persia hath commaunded vs.

And it came to passe, that the folke of the land hyndered the people of Iuda, and troubled them as they were buyldyng, and hy-red counsellors against them, to hynder their deuyce, as long as Cyrus the kynge of Persia lyued, vntill the raygne of Darius king of Persia. And in the raygne of Abasuerus, (euen in y^e begynnynge of his raygne) wrote

they vnto him a complaynte agaynst the in-habitours of Iuda and Ierusalem.

And in the dayes of Artaxerxes, wrote
Withidath Tabeel and the other of hys councell, vnto Artaxerxes the king of Persia with saye wordes. And the scripture of the lettet was writen in the Syriaks speach, & v^o
interpreted in the language of the Syriaks Rehum the recorder and Samisai the scribe wrote a letter from Ierusalem to Artaxerses the kynge, as it foloweth.

Then Rehum the recorder, & Samisai the scribe, and other of their compaigne of Dina,
of Arphath, of Tarpla, of Persia, of Arach, of Babylon, of Susan, of Meha, of Elan, & other of the people * who the greate & noble Anapar brought ouer, and sett in the cytes of Samaria, & other, that are now on this syde the water. Thys is the coppe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes.

Thy seruantes, & the men that are now on this syde the water. Be it knowne vnto
the king, that the Jewes which came vp fro
the to vs, are come vnto Ierusalem (a cytie sedicious and frowarde) and buylded the same, and sett vp the walles therof, and laye
the foundacions. Be it knowne now also vnto
the kynge, that yf this cytie be buylded,
and the walles therof made vp agayne, then shall not they geue, tolle, tribute, and custo-
me, and the kynges profyte shall incurre damage. And now in the meane season we haue destroyed the temple, and wolde no longer se the kynges dishonour: Therfore sent
we out also, and certifyed the kynge: that it
maye be sought in the boke of y^e Chronycles
of thy progenitours, and so shalt thou fynde
in the booke of the Chronycles, and perceave
that this cytie is sedicious and noysome vnto
kynges and landes, and that they cause other also among them to rebell of olde, & for the same cause was thys cytie destroyed.
Therfore do we certifye the kynge that yf
this cyte be buylded agayne, and the walles
therof made vp, thou shalt hereafter haue no
porcion on this syde the water.

Then sent the kynge answere vnto Re-hum the recorder, & Samisai the scribe, and to the other of they^r compaignes that dwelt in Samaria, & vnto the other y^e were beyonde
the water, in Selā and Chebeth. The letter which ye sent vnto vs, hath bene openly redde
before me, and I haue commaunded to make search: & it is founde, y^e this cytie of olde hath made insurreccion agaynst kynges, and that rebellion

rebellion and sedicion hath bene commytted therin. There haue bene myghtie kinges also at Ierusalem, which haue raygned ouer all countrees beyonde the water: and tolle, trybute, & custome was geuen vnto the: Gene-re now therfore commaundement, that the same men be forbydden, and that the cytie be not buylded agayne, tyll I haue geuen another commaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent to do this: for why shulde y^e
kynge haue harme there thorowe?

Now when the coppe of kynge Artaxerses letter was red before Rehum and Simsai the scribe and their compaignes, they went vp in all the haste to Ierusalem vnto
the Jewes, and forbad them with violence and power. Then ceased the worke of the house of God at Ierusalem, and continued
so vnto the seconde yere of Darius kynge of Persia.

The. v. Chapter.

By the exhortacion of Aggeus and zachary is the temple buylded agayne.

The prophetes, Aggeus and zachary the sonne of Iddo, prophesied vnto the Jewes that were in Iuda and Ierusalem,
in the name of the God of Israel. * Then gat vp zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Iesua the sonne of Iosedec, and beganne to buyld the house of God at Ierusalem, and with them were the prophetes of God, which helped them. At the same tyme came to the Tathnai which was captayne on this syde the water, and Starbaznai, and their compaignes, and sayde
thus vnto them. Who hath commaunded you to buyld thys house, and to make vp these walles? Then tolde we them the names of the men, that made thys buyldyng. But the eye of their God was vpon the elders of the Jewes, that they coude not cause them to cease, tyll the matter was brought to Darius, and then they answered by letters ther vnto.

This is y^e coppe of y^e letter, that Tathnai (which was captayne on this syde the water) and Starbaznai, and the counsellors of Apharsh (which were on this syde the water) sent vnto kynge Darius. And the matter that they sent vnto him, was written thus within the lettet: Vnto Darius the kynge, all peace. Be it knowne vnto the kynge, that we went into the lande of Jewry to y^e house of y^e great God, which is buylded wth mighty greate stones, and beames are layed in the walles, and the worke goeth fast forth, and prospereth in their handes. Then asked we
the Elders, & sayde vnto the as it foloweth:
Who commaunded you to buyld this house, & to make vp the walles therof? We asked their names also, that we might certifie the,

and wyte the names of the men that were
they^r rulers.

But they answered vs with these wor-des, and sayde. We are the seruantes of him that is God of heauen and earth, and buylded
the house that was buylded many yeres agoe * which a greate kynge of Israell buyl-ded, and set vp. But after y^e our fathers had prouoked the God of heauen vnto wrath,
* he gaue them ouer into the hande of Nabuchodonozor the king of Babylon, & of the Caldees, which brake downe this house, and caried y^e people awaye captiue vnto Babilō.

* But in the fyrst yere of Cyrus the kynge
of Babylon, the same kynge Cyrus gaue comaundement concernyng thys house of God,
that it shulde be builded agayne. And y^e vesselles of golde & syluer of the house of God,
which Nabuchodonozor toke out of the temple that was at Ierusalem, & brought them into the temple at Babylon, those dyd Cyrus the kynge take out of the temple at Ba-bilon, * and they were deliuered vnto one Salsazar by name, who he made captayne, and sayde vnto him. Take these vessels, and go thy waye, and sett them in the tēple that is at Ierusalem, and lett the house of God be buylded in hys place. Then came the same Salsazar, and layde the foundacyon of the house of God which is at Ierusalem. Sence
y^e tyme also vntill now hath it bene in buyldyng, and yet is it not fynished. If it please the kynge now therfore, lett there be se-arche made in the kynges libraye which is there at Babilō, whether it haue bene kynge Cyrus commaundement, that thys temple of God at Ierusalem shulde be buylded and lett hym sende vs the kynges mynde concernyng the same matter.

The. vi. Chapter.

At the commaundement of Darius kynge of Persia,
after the temple was buylded and dedicate, the chyldren
of Israell kept the feast of vntenured breade.

Then commaunded kynge Darius,
and they made search in the libraye,
euen in the place where they layde
vp the treasure at Babylon. * And there was founde in a coffer (in the place that is in the lande of the Medes) a volume: and therin was it thus wyrtten, and soche a me-moziall: In the fyrst yere of kynge Cyrus,
gaue the same kynge Cyrus commaunde-ment concernyng the house of God at Jerusalem, that the same house shulde be buyl-
ded in y^e place where they offere the sacrifices,
* and to ioyne the walles together of thre
score cubytes heygth, and thre score cuby-tes bredth. Thre rowes of rough stones, and one rowe of tymber, and the expences shal be geue of the kynges house. And lett the golde and syluer vessel of the house of God (which Nabuchodonozor toke out of the tēple at

ple at Jerusalem, and brought vnto Babylon) berestored, and brought agayne vnto the temple at Jerusalem to their place in the house of God.

W Get you farre from them therfore, thou Chahnai captayne beyonde the water, and Scharbuzanai, and poure councelers: Apher sechei, which are beyonde the water, get ye awaye from the. Let the worke of y^e house of this God alone, that the captayne of the Jewes and their Elders maye buylde y^e house of God in his place. I haue commaunded what shalbe done to the Elders of Iuda for the buylding of the house of God, that there shalbe diligent hede take of the kynges goodes, euen of the rentes beyonde the water, ad geue vnto the men, that they be not hyndred. And yf they haue nede of calues, rammes & lammes, for the burnt offeringe of the God of heauen, wheate, salt, wyne and oyle, after the custome of the prestes at Ierusalem, let the same be geuen them daylie with out anye delaye, that they maye offre swete saouours vnto the God of heauen, and praye for the kynges lyfe, and for his chyldre. And soch a commaundement haue I geuen that what man soeuer he be that altereth this worde, there shal a beame be taken fro his house, and set vp, and he shalbe hanged thereon, and his house shalbe made adoughyll for the same thynge.

E And the God that set his name there, destroye all kynges, & people, that put to their hande to altere to breake downe y^e house of God which is at Ierusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be done with spede.

Then Chahnai the captaine of the countrey beyonde the water, and Scharboznai with theyr councelers (to whom kynge Darius had sent) did their diligence: And y^e Elders of the Jewes builded, and they prospered thorow the prophecieng of Aggeus the prophet and zachary the sonne of Iddo: and they builded, and layed vp the foundation, according to the comaundement of the God of Israel, and after the commaundement of Cyrus, and Darius & Arthaxerxes kynges of Persia. And the house was fynished the thyrde dawe of the moneth Adar, euen in the fyrte yere of the raygne of kynge Darius.

* i. Dar. vii. b

* And the children of Israel, y^e prestes, the Leuites, and the other children of the captiuite helde the dedicacion of this house of God with ioye, and offered at the dedicacion of this house of God, and hūdzred oxen, two hundred rammes, foure hundred goates: ad for the reconcilinge of all Israel twelue he goates, accorpyng to the nombre of the tribes of Israel, & set the prestes in their sondry courses, & the Leuites in their diuerse offices to minister vnto God at Ierusalem, as it is written in the boke of Moyses.

And the children of the captiuite helde Passouer vpon the fourteenth dawe of y^e fyrst moneth: for the prestes and Leuites were purified, so that they were all cleane together, and kylled Passouer for all the chyldre of the captiuite, and for their brethre y^e prestes, and for them selues. And the children of Israel which were come agayne out of captiuite, and all soche as had separated them selues vnto them from the fylthynesse of the hyethen of the lande: to seke the Lorde God of Israel, did eate, and helde the feast of vniuened bread seven dayes with ioye: for the Lorde had made them glad, and turned the hert of y^e kynge of Assur vnto them, to strengthen their handes in the worke of the house of God, euen the God of Israel.

The vii. Chapter.

By the commaundement of Arthaxerxes, Edoas taketh his companions the chyldren of Israel, and returneth to Ierusalem.

After these actes, there was in y^e raygne of Arthaxerxes kynge of Persia, one Edoas the sonne of Saraiah, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Helkia, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of zadoc, the sonne of Ahitob, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of zeraia, the sonne of Uzi, the sonne of Bucki, y^e sonne of Abisua, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron y^e chefe prest. Thus Edoas also went vp from Babylon, and was a perfite scribe in the lawe of Moyses, which the Lorde God of Israel did geue. And the kynge gaue him all that he requyred, because the hande of the Lorde was vpon him. And there went vncertayne of the chyldren of Israel, of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, ad of the Aethinims vnto Ierusalem, in the seventh yere of kynge Arthaxerxes. And he came to Ierusalem in the fyfth moneth, euen in the seventh yere of the kynge. For vpon the fyrst dawe of the fyrst moneth, beganne he to go vp from Babylon: & on the fyrst dawe of the fyfth moneth came he to Ierusalem, because the good hande of God was vpon him. For Edoas prepared his hert to seke the lawe of the Lorde, and to do it, and to teach the precept and iudgement in Israel.

And this is the coppe of the letter, y^e kynge Arthaxerxes gaue vnto Edoas the prest & scribe, which was a wyrtter of the wordes and commaundementes of the Lorde and of his statutes ouer Israel. Arthaxerxes a king of kynges, vnto Edoas the prest & scribe of the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and salutation. I haue comaunded, that all they of the people of Israel, and of the prestes and Leuites in my realme (which are mynded of their awne good wyll to go vp to Ierusalem)

rusalem) go with the: and therfore art thou sent of the kynge and of his seven councelers, to vylet Iuda and Jerusalem, accordeinge to the lawe of thy God, which is in thy hande: And that thou shuldest take with the syluer and golde, which the kynge and his councelers offere of their awne good wyll vnto the God of Israel (whose habitacyon is at Jerusalem) and all the syluer and golde y^e thou canst fynde in all the countrey of Babylon, w^{it} that the people offere of theyr awne good wyll and the prestes geue for the house of theyr God which is at Jerusalem.

E Take thou the same, and bye diligently with the same money, oxen rammes, and lammes, with their meate offerings and drinck offerings, and thou shalt offer them vpon the altare of the house of youre God which is at Jerusalem. And loke what it lyketh the and thy brethzen to do with the remnaūt of the money, that do after the wyll of youre God. And the vessels that are geuen the for the ministraciō in the house of thy God, those deliuer thou before God at Jerusalem.

And whatsoeuer thynge moze shall be nedfull for the house of thy God, which is necessary for the to spende, thou shalt receaue the charges out of y^e kynges treasure house. I kynge Arthaxerxes haue commaunded all the treasures beyonde the water, that loke whatsoeuer Edoas the prest and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen, requireth of you, that ye fulfyll the same spedyly, vntyll an hundred talentes of syluer, vntyll an hundred quarters of wheate, and tyll an hundred Batthes of wyne, & tyll an hundred Batthes of oyle, & salt without measure. Whatsoeuer also belongeth to the lawe of the God of heauē, let the same be done without anye delaye for the house of the God of heauē, that he be not wroth agaynst y^e realme, & agaynst the kynge, and his chyldren.

And we certifie you, that ye haue no auctorite to requyre taxinge and custome, and yearly rentes vpon any of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, Aethinims ad ministers in the house of his God. And thou Edoas (after the wysdome of thy God, that is in thy hande) sett iudges and arbiters (by my auctorite) to iudge all the people that is beyonde the water, euen all soch as knowe y^e lawe of thy God: ad the that knowe it not, those se that ye teach. And whosoever wyll not fulfyll the lawe of thy God, ad the kynges lawe, let him haue his iudgement without delaye, whether it be vnto death, or to be rooted out, or to be condemned in goodes, or to be put in pzeon.

* Blessed be the Lorde God of oure fathers, which so hath inspired y^e kynges hert, to garnysh the house of the Lorde, that is at Jerusalem: and hath enclyned his mercy vnto to me in the presence of the kynge, & his councelers, and before all the kynges hye estates. And I was comforted (euen as the hande of the Lorde my God was vpon me) & so gathered I the heades of Israel together, that they myghte go vp with me.

The viij. Chapter.

The nombre of them that returned to Ierusalem with Edoas.

These are the principall fathers of Iuda, and this is their register that wente vp with me from Babilō, what tyme as kynge Arthaxerxes raygned. Of the chyldren of Phinehes, Serlōm: of the chyldren of Athamar, Daniel: of the chyldren of Dauid, Hatus: of the chyldre of zecania amonge the chyldre of Phatos, zachary, and with him were nobzed an hundred and fyfte men. Of the chyldren of the captayne of Moab, Elioenai the sonne of zerahia, and with him two hundred men. Of the chyldren of zechania the sonne of Iahasiel, and with him thre hundred men. Of the chyldren of Adin, Abed the sonne of Jonathan, and with him fyfte men. Of the chyldre of Elam, Isai the sonne of Athalia, and with him seuentie men. Of the chyldre of Saphatia, zebadia the sonne of Michael, and with hym foure score men.

Of the chyldre of Joab, Obadia the sonne of Jehiel, and with hym two hundred and eyghtene men. Of the chyldren of Selomith the sonne of Iosephia, and with him an hundred and thre score men.

Of the chyldren of Bribai, zachary the sonne of Sebai, and with him eyght and twentie men. Of the chyldren of Aigad, Johanan, the sonne of Hakatan, and with him an hundred and ten men. Of the chyldren of Adoniam, that were the last, whose names were these: Eliphelet, Jehiel and Samanah, and with them thre score men. Of the chyldren of Biguai, Aithai, and zabud, and with the seuentie men. And I gathered them together by the water that renneth towarde Ahava, and there abode we thre dayes. And I looked amonge the people and the prestes & founde there none of the chyldren of Levi. Then sent I to Elieser, to Ariel, Semcia, Elnathan, Farib, Elnathan, Nathan, zachary and to Hesullam the rulers, and to Joarib ad Elnathan which were men of vnderstandyng, and to those gaue I commaundement vnto Iddo the cheffest at Casphia, that they shulde fetch vs ministres for y^e house of oure God, and I tolde them what they shulde saye vnto Iddo, and to his brethzen the Aethinims at Casphia.

And (thorow the good hāde of oure God vpon vs) they broughte vs a wyse man fro amonge the chyldren of Moab the sonne of Levi, the sonne of Israel, and Sarabia with

with Edoas. viii. c.

hys sonnes and his brethren, euen cyghrene. And Hasabab, and with him Ilat of the chyldren of Merari, with his brethren and they sonnes, twentie. And of the Rechinims, who David & the Princes gaue to mynister vnto
the Leuites, two hundred & twenty of Rechinims, which all were named by name.

And euen there at the water, besyde Aha-
ua, I proclaimed a fast, that we myghte huble oure selues before oure God, and seke of him a ryghte waye for vs, and for oure children and for all oure substance. For I was named to requyre of the kynge, souldiers & horsen, to helpe vs agaynst the enemy in the waye: but we sayd vnto the kynge: The hande of oure God is vpon all the that seke hym
in goodnes, and (hys domynion) hys violence
and wrath is agaynst all them that forsake him. So we fasted, and besought oure God
for this, and he hearde vs.

And I toke out twelue of the chiefe prea-stes, Sarabab and Hasabab, and ten of their brethren with them, and weyed them & syluer and golde, & vessels that were appoynted
for the house of oure God, which the kynge
and his counsellors and his Lordes, and all Israel that were there at hande, had geuen together. And I weyed vnto their hande sixe hundred & syftie talentes of syluer, & in syluer vessel an hundred talentes, & in golde an hundred talentes: twentie basens of golde of a thousande peces, and two costly ornaments of good brasse, as cleare as golde: and I sayde
vnto them: Ye are consecrate vnto the Lorde,
lyke as the vessels are holy also, and the golde
and syluer are geue of a good wyll vnto the Lorde God of youre fathers. Watch ye, and kepe it: for ye shall weye it downe before the chiefe preastes and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Israel at Ierusalem in the treasuries of the house of the Lorde. Then toke I prea-stes and Leuites that weyed syluer & golde and vessel, to bringe it to Ierusalem, vnto the house of oure God. And we brake vp, from the water of Ahaua on the twelue daye of the fyrst moneth, to go vnto Ierusalem: and the hande of oure God was vpon vs, & de-liuered vs from the hande of the enemy, & ad-
of soch as layde wayte for vs by the waye.
And we came to Ierusalem, and abode there thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the syluer & golde and vessel weyed in the house of oure God, by the hande of Meremoth
the sonne of Uzia the preaste, and with hym was Eleazar the sonne of Phinehas, & with them was Josabab the sonne of Iesua, and Noabia the sonne of Benoi the Leuites.
According to the nombere and weyght of eu-ery one, was the weyght all wyrtten vp at the same tyme.

And the children of the captiuite, which were come out of prison, offered burnt offe-

rynges vnto the God of Israel: twelue bullockes for all Israel, syxe and nyntye rammes, seuen and seuentie lambes, twelue hegoates for a synofferynge, all to the burntofferynge of the Lorde. And they deliuered the kynges commission vnto the kynges officers, & to the capitaynes that were on thys syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

The ix. Chapter.

Esdras complayneth on the people that had turned them selues from God, and married with the gentiles.

When these thynges were done, the rulers came to me, & ad-sayde. The people of Israel, and the preastes, and Leui-tes are not separated from the people of the landes (as touchynge their abhominat-ions) namely of the Cananites, Hethites, Hherites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians, & Amozites. * For they haue taken the daughters of the same to the selues and to their sonnes, and the holy sede is mixte with the nations in the lande: and the hande of the princes & rulers hath bene principall in this trespass.

* And when I hearde this saying, I retemy clothes and my rayment, and I plucked of the heer of my heade, and of my beerd, and sate mourning. And there resorted vnto me all soch as feared the wordes of the Lorde God of Israel, because of the trasgression of the people of the captiuite. And I sate mour-nyng vntill the euenynge sacrifice. And about the euenynge sacrifice, I rose vp from my benynges, and rente my clothes and my rayment, and fell vpon my knees, and spred
out my handes vnto the Lorde my God,
and sayde.

O my God, I am ashamed, and darre not lyfte vp myne eyes vnto the face of my God: for oure wyckednesses are growne ouer oure heed, & adoure trespass is waxen grete vnto the heauen. Sence the tyme of oure fathers haue we bene in grete trespass vnto this daye, * & ad-because of oure wyckednesses haue we and oure kynges bene deliuered into the hande of the kynges of the nacionys, into the swerde,
into captiuite, into shame, and into confusion of face, as it is to se this daye.

And now is there a lytle & sodayne gra-cioulnes come from the Lorde oure God, in causynge some of vs to escape, and that he maye geue vs a name in hys holy place, and that oure God maye lyghte oure eyes, and geue vs a lytle lyfe to take breath in oure bodage. For we are bondmen, & oure God hath not forsaken vs in oure bondage, and hath enclyned mercy vnto vs in the syghte of the kynges of Persia, to geue vs lyfe, to lett vs
the house

the house of oure God, and to redresse the desolacion therof, and to geue vs a wall in Juda and Ierusalem.

And now, O oure God, what shall we saye after this: for we haue forsaken thy co-mmandementes, whych thou hast commaun-
ded by thy seruantes the prophetes, sayeng:
The lande vnto which ye go to possesse, it is an vncleane land, because of the fylthynes of the people of the landes, whych with theyr abhominacions haue made it full of vnclea-nesse on euery syde. * Therefore shall ye not geue youre daughters vnto their sonnes, & ad-their daughters shall ye not take vnto your sonnes, ner seke their peace & welth for euer,
that ye maye be strong, & enioye the good in the land, & ye & youre chyliden maye haue
the inheritaunce of it for euermore.

And after that all these thynges are come vp vnto vs (because of oure euell dedes & grete trespasses) thou oure God hast thrust do-wne oure wickednesses, & hast geue vs a de-lyuerance, * (as it is comen to passe this daye.)

And yf we turne backe agayne, to let go thy commandementes, and make contracte
with the people of these abhominacions, wilt thou not then be wroth at vs (as not without cause) tyl we be utterly consumed, so that nothyng remayne, and tyll there be no deliueraunce? O Lorde God of Israel, part ryghteous, for we remayne yet escaped, at it is to se this daye. Behold also, in thy presence are we in oure trespasses, & because of it maye we not stande before the.

The x. Chapter.

The people repente, and curre, and put awaye
theyr straunge wyues.

And when Esdras prayed after
this maner, & knowleged, wepte, & laye before the house of God, there resorted vnto him out of Israel a very grete congregacyon of men and we-men, and chyliden: & the people wepte very fore. And Sechania the sonne of Jehiel one of the children of Elam, answered, and sayde
vnto Esdras. We haue trespassed agaynst oure God, and haue taken straunge wyues of the people of the land. Now there is hope yet in Israel concerning this thyng: for now
we wyll make a couenant with oure God,
and put awaye all the wyues (and soch as are borne of them) accordinge to the counsell of the Lorde, and we wyll be in the feare of the commandementes of oure God, that we maye do accordyng to the lawe. Get the vp, for thys matter belongeth vnto the. we also wyll be wyth the, be of good conforte therfore, and do it.

* Then rose Esdras, and toke an oth of the chiefe preastes and Leuites, and of all Israel, that they shulde do accordyng to thys worde: & they sware. And Esdras stode vp from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Iohanan the sonne of Elia-

sib. And when he came thither, he dyd eate
no bred, nor dranke water: for he mourned
because of the trasgression of the people that had bene in captiuite.

And they caused a proclamacyon to go thorow out Juda and Ierusalem, vnto all the chyliden which had bene in captiuite, &
they shuld geather the selues together vnto Ierusalem. And that whosoener came not wyth in thre dayes accordyng to the deuys
of the rulers and Elders, all hys substance
shulde be forfett, and he shulde be put out fro
the congregacyon of the captiue.

Then all the men of Juda and Ben Ja-
min geathered them selues together vnto Ierusalem wythin thre dayes, euen the twe-tic daye of the nyenth moneth: and all the people sate in the strete before the house of God,
and trembled because of thys matter, & for the rayne. And Esdras the preaste stode vp,
and sayde vnto them. * Ye haue trasgressed
and haue taken straunge wyues, to make y
trespace of Israel yet more: confesse now therfore vnto the Lorde God of youre fathers,
and do hys pleasure, and separate youre sel-ues from the people of the land, & from the straunge wyues. And all the congregacyon answered, and sayd with a loude voyce: It
shalbe so, and we will do as thou hast sayde.
But the people are many, and it is a rayne
whether, and the people are to faynt to tarre
without in the strete, neither is this a worke
of one daye or two, for we haue offended very sore in this thyng. Let oure rulers stand therefore in all the congregacyon, and lett all them whych haue taken straunge wyues in
oure cyties come at the tyme appoynted,
and let the Elders of euery cytie and theyr Judges be with them, tyll they haue turned the wrath of oure God awaye from vs concernyng this matter.

Then were appoynted Jonathan the sonne of Asabel, and Jahalia the sonne of Thekua ouer thys matter: And Josullani
and Sabatha the Leuites helped them.
And the chyliden of the captiuite dyd euen
so. And Esdras the preaste, and the auncient heades thorow the house of theyr fathers,
all men of great fame, separated the selues,
and sat them downe on the fyrst daye of the tenth moneth, to examen the matter. And vntill the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth they were fynishyng the busyness wyth all the men
that had taken straunge wyues.

And amonge the chyliden of the prea-stes there were men founde that had taken straunge wyues, namely amonge the chyldren of Iesua the sonne of Josedec and of hys brethren, Maliah, and Eliezer, Jariab and Gedalia, and they gaue theyr handes
there

of Daseah, and Mesulam the sonne of Beso-dia, they layde the beames therof, and set on the dozes, lockes and barres of it. Nexte unto them, buylded Malattiah of Gibeon, and Jadon of Merano, men of Gibeon, and of Mylpa, where he that was captayne of this syde the water had a mansion. Nexte unto him buylded Asiel the sonne of Harhahab & goldsmith. Nexte unto him also buylded hananiah the sonne of Harakahim, and they re-payred Jerusalem vnto the brode wall. Nexte unto them buylded Rappahiah the sonne of hur, the ruler of the halfe parte of Jerusalem. Nexte vnto hym buylded Jedania the sonne of Harumaph ouer agaynst his house: ad
nexte vnto him buylded Hatus the sonne of Hasabnia. But Melchiah the sonne of Harim and Hasub & sonne of the captayne of Moab
buylded the other pece, and the tower besyde
the fornaces. Nexte vnto him buylded Sal-lum a spynners sonne, the ruler of y^e halfe parte of Jerusalem, he and his daughters.

The valley gate buylded Hamun, & the cysterns of zanoa. They buylded it, and set on the dozes, lockes and barres therof, and a thousande cubites on the wall, vnto y^e won-ge porte. But the wonge porte buylded Mel-chiah the sonne of Rechab, the ruler of the fourth parte of Bethchar: he repayed it, ad
set on the dozes, lockes and barres therof.
But the wellgate repayed Shallu the sonne of Chohosah, the ruler of the fourth parte of Milsa. He buylded it, and layde the bea-mes, and set on the dozes, lockes, and barres
therof, and the wall vnto the pole of Siloah
by the kynges garden, and vnto the steppes that go downe from the cyttle of Dauid. After him buylded Achemiah the sonne of Abok, the ruler of the halfe parte of Bethzur,
vntyll the other syde ouer agaynst the sepulchres of Dauid, and to the pole that was re-
payred, and vnto the house of the myghtie.

After him buylded the Leuites, Rehum
the sonne of Bani: and nexte vnto him buyl-ded Hasabia the ruler of the halfe parte of Reilah in hys quarter. After hym buylded they brethren. Bauai the sonne of Henadad the ruler of the halfe parte of Reilah: and after hym buylded Ezer the sonne of Iesua the ruler of Milsa the other pece, harde ouer a-gaynst the goynge vp to the house of ordinauce that was in the corner. Agayne, after hym brake forth Baruch the sonne of za-chai of indignacyon, and repayed the other pece from the turnyng corner vnto the doze of the house of Eliasib the hye prest. After hym also buylded Merimoth the sonne of Aria the sonne of Hacos the other pece, from the doze of the house of Eliasib, euen as longe as the house of Eliasib extended. After hym buylded the prestes, the men of the playne. After hym buylded Ben Jamin and Hasub ouer agaynst they house: and after hym wrought Asaria the sonne of Maasia

the sonne of Anania nexte vnto hys house.
After hym also buylded Benut the sonne of Hanadad the other pece, from the house of Asaria vnto the turnyng of the wall, and vnto the corner.

After hym buylded Pala & sonne of Asai
ouer agaynst the corner and the hye tower,
which lyeth out ouer from the kynges house, that was besyde the courte of the prison.
After hym buylded Phedania the sonne of Pharhos
(as for y^e Bethinims they dwelt in the strōg
holde vnto the watergate, towarde the east, and to the tower that lyeth out.) After hym buylded they of Chelua the other pece ouer agaynst the greete tower, that lyeth out warde, vnto the wall of the stronge holde.

But from aboue the horsgate forth, buyl-ded the prestes, euery one ouer agaynst his house. And after the buylded zadok the sonne of Immer ouer agaynst his house. After hym buylded also Semeia the sonne of Sechania the keeper of the Eastgate. After him buylded Hanania the sonne of Selemia, and Hanun the sonne of zalaph the syxte, the other pece. And after him buylded Mesula
the sonne of Barachia ouer agaynst his store house. After him buylded Malachia the goldsmithes sonne, vntyll y^e house of Bethinims, and of the merchauntes ouer agaynst
the gate of Bephrad, and to the parler in the corner. And betwene the parlour of the corner vnto the Shepegate buylded the gold-smithes and the merchauntes.

The iiii. Chapter.

The buyldynge of Jerusalem is hyndred and let,
but the Jewes buylded it, byrnyng readye harnesse,
lest theyr enemyes shulde invade them.

But when Sanabalat heard that we buylded the wall, he was wroth in hym selfe, and toke greete indignaciō, & mocked y^e Jewes, and sayde before his brethren & the soul-
dyers of Samaria: what do these impotēt Jewes? wyll the bethen suffre them? Shall they offre? Shall they persourne it in one daye? Shall they make y^e stones whole agayne that are brought to dust, and brent?
And Tobiah y^e Ammonite was besyde him,
ad sayde: Though they buylde, yet yf a fore
go vp, he shall breake downe theyr stonpe wall. Heare (O thou oure God) for we are despised, turne their shame vpon their awne heade, & geue the ouer into despisyng in the lande of their captiuite. Couer not their wickednesse, & let not their synne be put out i thy presence: for they haue prouoked y^e buylders.
And so buylded we the wall, & it was ioy-
ned whole together, vnto y^e half beygth ther
of. And the people were mynded to labour.

And

And it fortuned, y^e when Sanabalat, and Tobiah, & the Arabians, Ammonites, & Mo-odites heard, y^e the walles of Jerusalem were mad vp, and y^e the gappes begane to be stopped, they were very wroth, & conspired all together to come, & fyght agaynst Jerusalem, ad
to make the people an hynderaunce therein.
Nevertheless, we made our prayer vnto our God, & set watchmen by the, which buylded daye & nyght ouer agaynst them. And Juda sayd: the strength of the bearers is to feble, &
there is yet moch moze morter, & we are not able to buyld on the wall. And our aduersaries sayd: they shall not knowe nether se, tyll
we come in the middes amōge the, and slaye
the, and hinder the worcke. But it fortuned
y^e when the Jewes (which dwelt besyde the)
came, they tolde vs as good as ten tymes, y^e
in all places where ye go vnto, they are appointed to fal vpo vs. Therefore let y^e people after their kiredes wth their swerdes, spea-
res & bowes bench in y^e lowe places behynd
the wal, & I looked, & gat me vp, & sayd vnto
the chefe me, to y^e rulers, & to y^e other people,
be not ye afrayed of the, * but thinke rather vpo the greete Lord, whych ought to be feared, & fight for your brethren, your soncs, y^e daughters, your wines, & your houses. Ne-uertheles, it chaūced that when our enemies hearde, that we had gotten worde of it. God brought their counel to naught, & we turned
all agayne to y^e wal, euery one vnto his labd.
And fro that tyme forth it came to passe y^e the half parte of the yong men did the labour, &
the other half parte of the helde the speares,
shylde, bowes, and brestplates: & the rulers
stode behynde all the house of Juda, which buylded on the wall, and bare burthens fro
those y^e laded the. With one hande dyd euery
one worcke, & wth the other helde he hys wea-
pō. And euery one y^e buylded, had his sword, gyrde by hys thygh, ad so buylded they. And the trompet blew besyde me.

And I sayd vnto the principal men, to the rulers, and to the other people: the worcke is great and large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farre from another. Loke in what place therfore ye heare the noyse of the trom-pet, resorte ye thither vnto vs, * & our God
shal fight for vs, & we will be labouryng in the worcke. And the halfe part of the helde y^e speares fro y^e mozynng spyng, tyll the star-res came forth. And at the same tyme said I vnto the people: euery one abyde with hys
seruaunt at Jerusalem, that in the night seaso
we maye watch, and labour on the daye tyme. As for me and my brethren, my seruau-tes, and the me of the watch (which were behynde me) we put neuer of oure clothes, no-moze then the other dyd they harnesse, laue
onely because of the water.

The v. Chapter.

The people are vexed with hongre. He re-quyeth not the buyng of a captayne.

Ad there arose a great cōplaynte of y^e
people, and of theyr wyues agaynst their brethren the Jewes. For there were some that sayd: our sonnes and daughters and we are to many, therefore wyll we take corne for the, y^e we maye eate, and lyue.
Some also there were that sayde: let vs lett
our landes, vyneyardes and houses to pledge, and take vp corne in the darth. But som
there were that sayde: let vs borowe money
for the kynges trybute & that vpon our landes and vyneyardes. Behold, oure bodies as the bodies of oure brethren, and oure chy-dren as theyr chyldren: elles shulde we subdue our sonnes and daughters vnto bondage, and some of oure daughters are subdued
vnto bondage all ready, & no strength is there in houre hādes, and other men haue our landes and vyneyardes.

And when I heard their cōplaynte and soch wordes, it displeased me sore, ad I ad-uised so in my mynde, y^e I rebuked the coun-cellers, and the rulers, and sayde vnto them:
Euery one of you is to chargeable vnto hys
brother. And I brought a greete congrega-cyon agaynst them, and sayd vnto them: we (after oure abilitie) haue bought our brethren
the Jewes, which were solde vnto y^e heathē.
And wyll ye sell your brethren agayne vnto
the heathen, after that they haue bene selde vnto vs? Then helde they theyr peace, and coude fynde nothynge to answer.

And Achemia sayde: It is not good that ye do. Dought ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heathen y^e are our enemyes? I and my brethren, and my seruauntes do lend them money & corne: but as for vsurpe, let vs leaue it. Therefore, thys same daye I pray you se that ye restore them
theyr landes agayne, theyr vyneyardes, oyle gardes, and their houses, and remytte the hyndred part of the money, of the corne, wyne and oyle that ye haue wonne of them. Then sayd they: we will restore the agayne, & wyll requeyre nothing of the, and will do as y^e hast spoken. And I called y^e prestes, & toke an oth of them, y^e they shuld do so. And I shoke my lappe, & sayde: God shalke out euery mā after the same maner from hys house & labour, y^e maynteyneth not this word: euen thus be he shaken out, and voyde. And all the congregacyon sayde: Amen, and prayled the Lord.
And the people dyd so.

And fro the tyme forth y^e (the lyng) committed vnto me to be a captayne of the that were in the land of Juda, euen fro the .xx. yere vnto the .xxxij. yere of kyng Arthaverses (that is .xij. yere) I wth my brethren lyued
not of soch sustenance as was geue to a captayne. For y^e olde captaynes y^e were before me,

me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, ad had taken of them bread and wyne, and xl. syckes of syluer: yee, and their seruantes had oppressed the people. But so dyd not I, and that because of the feare of God. But I laboured also in the worke vpon the wal, and bought no lande. And all my seruantes came thither together vnto the worke. Moreouer, there were at my table an. C. and. l. of the Jewes and rulers, which came vnto me from among the heathen, that are about vs. And ther was prepared for me dayly an oxe and. vi. chosen they, and byrdes, & cuer once in. x. dayes a greete summe of wyne. Per requyred not I the lpyunge of a captayne, for the bondage was greuous vnto the people. *Thinke vpon me my God vnto y best, according to all y I haue done for thys people.

4. ii. Edras. and. xii. b

The. vi. Chapter.

The buyldyng is yet agayne buylded and left.

And whē Sanabalat, Tobiah, & Geselem the Arabian, and the other of our enemyes heard that I had buylded y wall: and that ther were no mo gappes ther in (howbeit at the same tyme had I not hangged the dozes vpon the gates) Sanabalat & Geselem sent vnto me, sayenge: that we maye mete and take counsell together in the villages that are in the playne of the cytie. And heuerthelesse, they thought to do me euell. And I sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: I haue a great busynesse to do, and I cannot come downe. The worke shulde stande stil, yf I were nelyget, and came downe to you. Howbeit, they sent vnto me as good as foure times after the same maner. And I gaue the the same answer. Then set Sanabalat hys seruant agayne vnto me the fyfth tyme, w an open letter in hys hand, wherein was written: it is tolde the heathen, and Geselem hath sayde it, that thou and the Jewes thinke to rebell: for the which cause thou buyldest the wall, that thou mayest be their kyng in these matters, and hast ordeyned the prophetes to preach of the at Jerusalem, and to saye: he is kyng of Iuda.

23 And now shall thys come to the kynges eares: come now therfore, ad let vs take our counsell together. And I sent vnto hym, sayenge: there is no such thynges done as thou sayst: for thou saynest the out of thynne awne herte. ffor they were all mynded to make vs afrayed, sayenge: they shall withdrawe their handes from the worke, that it shall not be fynished. Howbeit, I strengthened my hande the more. And I came vnto the house of Seemaia the sonne of Delaia the sonne of Shebabeel, and he had shut hym self within, and sayde: let vs come together into the house of God, enen vnto the myddes of the tple, and shutte the dozes of the temple: for they wyll come to slaye the, yee, enen in the nyght wyll

they come to put the to death. And I sayde: C shulde any soch man as I be? Who is that, beynge as I am, that wil go into the temple, to saue his lyfe? I wyll not go in.

And I perceaued, that God had not sent hym. Yet spake he prophecy vpon me, neuerthelesse, Tobiah and Sanabalat had byred him for money. Therfore toke he the money that throughe feare I shulde so do, and synne: that they might haue an euell reporte of me, to blasphemie me. My God, thinke thou vpon Tobiah and Sanabalat accordynge vnto these theyr wordes, and of the prophet Noadiah, and of the other prophetes, that wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was fynished on the fyue and twetye daye of the moneth Elul, in two and fyfty dayes. And when all our enemyes hearde ther of, all the heathen that were about vs, were afrayed, and theyr courage fayled them. And they perceaued, that thys worke came of our God. And at the same tyme were ther many of the chiefe of Iuda, whose letters wente vnto Tobiah, and agayne from Tobiah vnto them (for there were many in Iuda, that were sworne vnto hi: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sechania, the sonne of Arah, & his sonne Jehonathā had the daughter of Mesullam, the sonne of Barachia, ad they spake good of hym before me, and tolde hym my wordes) and Tobiah sent letters, to put me in feare.

The. vii. Chapter.

After the wall once buylded, ys the watch appointed. They that returned from the captiuite are nombred.

Now when the wall was buylded, I charged on the dozes also, and the porters, syngers & leuites were appoynted. And I commaunded my brother Hanani, and Hanania the ruler of the castel at Jerusalem: for he was a faithfull mā, and feared God more then dyd many other, and I sayde vnto the: let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened, vntyll the sonne be whote. And whyle they were stādinge in the watch, they shutt the dozes and barred the. And we appoynted certayne cytelings of Jerusalem, appoynted to be watchmen, euery one to kepe hys watch, and euery one to be ouer against hys house. As for y cite, it was large of rowme, and great, but the people were fewe therein, and the houses were not buylded.

And my God gaue me in my hert, that I gathered together the principall men, & the officers, and the people, to nombze them, ad I fōude a register of the nōbre of the * which came vp before out of the captiuite: & fōunde wyrtē ther in: these are the sonnes of y land that wente vp from the captiuite of the carynge awaye (whom Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon had brought awaye) & came agayne to Jerusalem & Iuda, euery one vnto vnto his cytie. They which came w zorobabel are these: Jesua, Nehemia, Asariah, Ramia, Rahamani, Mardochee, Belsā, Mesperath, Beguai, Rahum and Baanah.

The preastes. The chyldre of Jedaiah of the house of Jesua, nyne hundred and thre ad seuentye: the chyldre of Immer, a thousande and two & fyfthe: the chyldren of Phasur, a thousand, two hundred & seuen & fort ye: the chyldren of Harim, a thousande & seuentene.

The Leuytes. The chyldren of Jesua of Cadmiel and of the chyldren of Hoduah, foure & seuentye. The syngers. The chyldren of Asaph, an hundred and eyght and fort ye. The porters: The chyldren of Shallum, the chyldren of Ater, the chyldren of Talmon, the chyldren of Acub, the chyldre of Hatita, the chyldren of Sobai, all together an hundred and eyght and thyrtye.

The Nethinims. The chyldren of Ziba, the chyldren of Bahupha, the chyldre of Tebahoth, the chyldren of Ceros, the chyldren of Sia, the chyldren of Phadon, the chyldren of Lebanah, the chyldren of Hagaba, the chyldren of Salmai, the chyldren of Hanan, the chyldren of Gidel, the chyldren of Saher, the chyldren of Reaia, the chyldren of Rezin, y chyldren of Necoda, the chyldren of Safam, the chyldren of Ula. the chyldren of Phaleah, the chyldren of Becsai, the chyldren of Meunim, the chyldren of Nephussim, the chyldren of Bachuc, the chyldren of Hacupha, the chyldren of Harhur, the chyldren of Bazlith, the chyldren of Hehida, the chyldren of Harfa, the chyldren of Barcos, the chyldren of Sissera, the chyldren of Chamah, the chyldre of Neziab, the chyldren of Hatipha.

The chyldren of Salomons seruantes: the chyldren of Sotai, the chyldren of Sophereth, the chyldren of Pherida, the chyldren of Jaala, the chyldren of Darcon, the chyldren of Siddel, the chyldren of Saphatiah, the chyldren of Hatil, the chyldren of Bochereth of zabaini, the chyldre of Amon. All these Nethinims and the chyldren of Salomons seruantes, were thre hundred & nyntie and two.

And these wente vp also of Thel Mela, Thel Harfa, Cherub, Adon and Immer: but they coude not shewe theyr fathers house nor theyr se de, and that they were of Israel. The chyldren of Dalaiab, the chyldren of Tobia and the chyldren of Necoda, fyre hundred and two and fort ye. And of the preastes, the chyldren of Habaiah: the chyldren of Hacos, the chyldren of Bersilai, whych toke one of the daughters of Bersilai the Silcadite to wyfe, and was named after their name. These soughte theyr wytyng in y register of theyr generacion, but they were not fōunde, therfore they were put from the presthode. And Hathirsata sayd vnto them, that they shulde not eate of the moost holy, tyll there came by a preaste whych shulde were Arim and Thumin.

And so y whole cōgregacyō together was two & fort ye thousande, thre hundred, & thre skore: besyde their seruantes and maydens, of whom there were seuen thousande, thre hundred and seue and thyrtye. And they had two hundred and seue and fort ye syngyng men and women. Their hozles, seue hundred and fyre & thyrtye, & their Mules: two hundred & fyue & thyrtye. The camels, foure hundred & fyue & thyrtye: fyre thousande, seuen hundred and twentye asses.

And certayne of the auntyet fathers gaue vnto y worke. Hathirsatha gaue to the D ij treasure treasure a thousand peces of gold, fyfte hundred & thirtie prestes garnementes. And some of the chiefe fathers gaue vnto the treasure of the worke, twentie thousande peces of gold & two thousande & two hundred pounde of syluer. And the other people gaue twentye thousande peces of golde, and two thousande pounde of syluer ad thre skore and seuen preastes garmentes. And p prestes & Leuites, the Porters, and the syn-gers, & the other of the people, ad the Beth-nims, & all Israel, dwelt in their cyties. And the seuenth moneth came, and the chylde of Israel were in theyr cyties.

The viij. Chapter.

Eldras gathereth together the people and readeth to them the lawe. They kepe the feast of tabernacles of bothes.

And all the people gathered them selues together as one man in the strete that was before the watergate, and they sayde vnto Eldras the scribe, that he shulde fetch the boke of the lawe of Moses, whych the Lorde comaunded to Israel. And Eldras the preast brought p lawe before p congregacion both of men and women, ad all p coude vnderstande dyd herken vnto it, vpon the fyrst dape of the seuenth moneth, and hered therein in the strete p was before the watergate (from the moynge vntyll the noone dape) before men and women that dyd herken to it: and the cares of all the people were inclyned vnto the booke of the lawe. And Eldras the scribe stode vpon an hye pulpit of wood, whych they had made for the preachinge, & besyde hym stode Mathathia, Sema, Anania, Uriah, Helkia, and Maasiea, on hys ryghte hande: and on hys left hande stode Bedaia, Misael, Malchia, Basum, Hasebadana, zachary, and Mesulam.

And Eldras opened the boke before all the people, for he stode aboue all the people. And when he opened it, all the people stode vp. And Eldras prayled p Lorde the greates God. And all the people answered Amen, Amen, with their handes vp, & bowed them selues, and worshipped the Lorde, fallynge downe vpon their faces to the ground. And Jesua, Baam, Serabiah, Jami, Acub, Se-bathai, Hadaia, Maasia, Celita, Azaria, Tozabad, Hanā, Bedaia: and the Leuites caused the people to geue hede vnto the lawe, & the people stode in their place. And they red in p boke of the lawe of God distinctly & playnly, so p men vnderstode the thinge that was red. And Nehemiah (whych is Bathirsatha) & Eldras the preast & scribe, and the Leuites that caused the people to take hede, sayd vnto all the people: thys dape is holy vnto the Lorde poure God: be not ye soyr, and wepe

not. For all the people wepte, when they herde the wordes of the lawe.

And he sayd vnto them: go poure waye, and cate the fat, & drinke the swete, & sende parte vnto them also that haue not prepared them selues: for thys dape is holy vnto oure Lorde, be not ye soyr therfore: for the ioye of the Lorde is poure strength. And the Leuites styllled all the people, and sayd: holde poure peace, for the dape is holy, were not ye poure selues. And all p people wete theyr waye to cate and drinke, and to sende parte vnto other, and to make greates myzth, because they had vnderstand the wordes that were declared vnto them.

And on p nexte dape were gathered together the chiefe fathers amonge all the people and the preastes and Leuites, vnto Eldras the scribe, that they myght vnderstand the wordes of p lawe. And they fonde wyrtten in the lawe (whych the Lorde had comaunded by Moses) that the children of Israel shulde dwell in bothes in the feast of the seuenth moneth: & p they shulde cause it to be declared and proclaimed in all theyr cyties, & thow out Jerusalem, saye: go forth vnto the mount, and fetch Olyue braunches, Pyne braunches, Myzbraunches, Balme-braunches, and braunches of thicke trees, to make bothes, as it is wyrtten.

And so the people wete forth, and fette the, and made the bothes, euery one vpon p rofe of his house, & in theyr courtes, & in the courtes of the house of God, and in the strete by the watergate, and in the strete by porte Ephraim. And all the congregacion of them that were come agayne out of the captiuite, made bothes, & sat vnder p bothes: for sence the tyme of Josua p sonne of Nun vnto this dape, had not the chylde of Israel done so, and ther was very greates gladnesse. And euery dape from the fyrst dape vnto the last, red Eldras in the boke of the lawe of God. And seuen dayes helde they the feast, and on the eyght dape, they gathered together, accordynge vnto the maner.

The ix. Chapter.

The people repent, & forsake theyr strange wyues, Eldras receyeth the benyfytes of God, and the synners of the people.

In the foure & twety dape of this moneth came the chylde of Israel together agayne, wyth fastinge and sack clothes, and erth vpon them, and they that were of the seide of Israel were separated from all the straunge chylde, & stode & knowleged theyr synnes, & the wyckednesses of theyr fathers, & stode vp in theyr place, & red in the boke of p lawe of the Lorde their God foure tymes on p dape, and they knowleged, & worshipped p Lorde their God foure tymes on the dape. And p Leuites stode on hye, namely Jesua, Bani, Cadmiel, miel, Sabanah, Bani, Serebiah, Bani, & Chanani, & cryed loude vnto the Lorde theyr God. And the Leuites, Jesua and Cadmiel Bani and Halabnia, Serebia & hodia, Se-bania, and Bhatthahia, sayde: stande vp, and prayle the Lorde p God for euer: & let thankes be geuen vnto the name of thy glozpe, whych excelleth all thakelgyunge & prayse. Thou art Lorde alone. Thou hast made hea-ue, & the heauen of all heaues, with all theyr hoost, the earth & all thinges p are therein, the see & all p is therein: & thou pseruest the all, and the hoost of heaue worshippeth p. Thou art the Lorde God, that hast chosen Abram, & broughtest hym out of Ur in Chaldea, & and calledst him Abrahā, and foundest hys bert faythfull before the, & and madeest a cō-nenānt wyth him, to geue vnto hys seide the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amozites, Phereites, Jebusites and Gersites, and hast made good thy wordes: for p art ryghteous, & and hast consydered the mysery of oure fathers in Egypte, and hearde their cō-playnte by the reed see, and shewed tokens & wonders vpon Pharaō, and on all hys scr-uantes, and on all the people of hys lande: for thou knewest, that they were presumptuous and cruell agaynst the, and so madeest thou the a name, as it is thys dape. And the reed see dydest thou deuyde in sunder before them, so that they went thow the myddes of the see dape shode: and theyr persecuters threwest thou into the depe (as a stone) in p myghtie waters, & leddest them on the dape tyme in a cloudy pyller, & on the nyghte season in a pyller of fyre, to shewe the lyghte in the waye that they wente.

Thou camest downe also vpon mount Sinai, & spakest vnto them from heaue, and gauest them right iudgmentes, true lawes good comaundementes and statutes, and declaredst vnto them thy holy Saboth, and comaundest them preceptes, ordinaunces, and lawes, by the hand of Moses thy seruant: and gauest them byed from heauen when they were hongry, & broughtest forth water for them out of the rock when they were thyrstye: and promysedst them, that they shuld go in, and take possession of the land, ouer whych thou haddest lyfte vp thyne had for to geue them.

But they & oure fathers were proude and hardnecked, so p they folowed not p comaundementes, and wolde not obepe, nether were mynde full of the wonders that thou dydest for them: but became obstynate and heady, in so moche, that they turned backe to theyr bondage for theyr disobeyence. And thou my God forgauest, and wast gracypus, mercypfull, pacypent, and of greates goodnesse, and forsokest them not. And though they made a moultē calfe (& sayde: Thys is thy goddes that brought the out of the land of Egypte) and dyd greates blasphemyes, yet forsokest thou them not in the wyldernes, accordynge to thy greates mercy. And the cloudy pyller departed not from them on the dape tyme to leade them the waye, nether p pyller of fyre in the nyght season, to shewe them lyghte in the waye that they wente.

And thou gauest them thy good sprete, to enfourme them, & ad withheldest not thy Anna from theyr month, & and gauest the water whē they were thyrstye. For thy pears lōge madeest thou prouisyō for them in the wyldernes, so p they lacked nothyng, & their clothes waxed not olde, ad their fete swelled not. And thou gauest them kyngedomes and nacpōns. & partedst them accordynge to their porcions, so p they p-tessted the lande of Schon kyng of heseboi, and the lande of Og the kyng of Basan. And their chyldezen multipliedst thou as the starres of heauen, and broughtest them into the lande, wherof p haddest spoken vnto theyr fathers, that they shulde go into it, and haue it in possession.

And the chyldezen went in, and possessed the land, & and thou subduedst before them the inhabyter of the lande, euen the Cananites, and gauest them into theyr hāde, with their kynges and the people of the lāde, that they might do with them what they wolde. And they wanne theyr stronge cyties, and a fat lande, and toke possession of houses that were full of all maner of goodes, welles digged out, vineyardes, oylegardes, and many frute full trees: and they dyd cate, & were fylled, and became fat, and lyued in welth thow thy greates goodnes. Nevertheless they were disobedyt, & rebelled agaynst the, and cast thy lawe behynde their backes, and lewe thy prophetes (whych exhorted them earnestly, that they myght bring them agayne vnto the) & dyd greates blasphemyes. Therfore, p gauest them ouer into the hād of their enemyes, that vexed them.

And in p tyme of their trouble whan they cryed vnto the, p hardest them from heauen: & thow thy greates mercy thou gauest the saluours, whych helped them out of the hande of their enemyes. But whē they came to rest, they turned back agayne, to do cuell before the: therfore lestest thou them in the hande of theyr enemyes, so that they had the domynion ouer them. And whā they cōuerted, and cryed vnto the, thou herd est them from heauen, & many tymes hast thou helyed them accordynge to thy greates mercy, & testyfydest vnto them, that thou myghtest byng them agayne vnto thy lawe.

Not withstandynge, they were proude, & herkened not vnto thy comaundementes, but synned in thy lawes (whych yf a man do

he shall lyue in them, and turned the shoulder away, and were styffnecked, and wolde not heare. And many peeres dyddest thou forbear them, & testifydest vnto the thowow thy sperte, euen by the hande of thy prophetes, and yet wolde they not heare. Therefore gauest thou them into the hāde of the naciōs in the lādes. And for thy great mercyes sake thou hast not vterly consumed them, nether forsaken them: for thou art a gracious and mercypfull God.

*ii. Esdras.
Ezra. ii. a.
and. ccciii. a.

* Now therefore oure God, thou greates God, myghtye and terrible, thou that kepest couenaunt & mercy, regarde not a lytle all the trauaple that hath happened vnto vs, and oure kynges, oure princes, oure preastes, oure prophetes, & our fathers, and all thy people, sence the tyme of the kynges of Assur vnto this daye. And truly, thou art iust in all þ thou hast broughte vpon vs: for thou hast done ryght. As for vs, we haue bene vngodly, & oure kynges, & oure princes, oure preastes, & oure fathers haue not done after thy lawe, nor regarded thy commaundementes, & thy earnest exhortacyons, wherewith þ hast exhorted them, & they haue not serued the in their kyngdome, & in thy greates goodes that thou gauest them, and in the large and plentifulous lande which thou gauest before the, & haue not conuerted frō their wycked workes. Beholde, we are in bondage this daye: & so is the lande that þ gauest vnto oure fathers, to enioye the frutes & goodes thereof, beholde, there are we bondmen. And greates is the increase of it vnto the kynges, whom þ hast set ouer vs, because of oure synnes, & they haue domynion ouer oure bodies and catell (euen as they will them selues), and we are in great trouble. And i all this make we a sure couenaunt, & wypte it, and oure princes, Leuites & preastes seale vnto it.

¶ The. x. Chapter.

¶ The names of them that sealed the couenaunt betwene God and the people.

A The sealers were: Nehemiah (þ is) Hathiratha þ sonne of Hachaliah and Zedekia, Saraia, Achariah, ad Jeremij, Phaschur, Amaria, Malchia, hatas, Sehamiah, Halluch, Harim, Merimoth, and Obadia, Daniel, Jenthon, & Baruch, Mesulaim, Abia, and Miamin, Maasia, Belgai and Semeia, these were preastes. The Leuytes were: Jesua the sonne of Azania, Benmi amonge the chyldren of Benadad and Cadmiel. And their bzethre: Sechania, Hodia, Celita, Belaia, Hanan, Micha, Rehob, and Hasabiah, Sachur, Serobia, Sabanua, Hodia, Bani & Beninu. The heades of the people were: Phares, the captayne of Moab, Elam, zathu, and Bani, Boni, Aggad, Bebai, Adonia, Begoai, Adin, Ater,

And þ other people, the preastes, Leuites, porters, syngers, Bethinims, & all they that had separated the selues frō þ people in þ lādes vnto þ lawe of God, w their wiues, their sonnes, and their daughters, ad as many as coulde vnderstonde, & they lordes that had rule of them, receaued it for they bzethren.

* And they came to sweare, and to bynde them selues with an ooth to walke in Gods lawe, whych was geuen by Moses the seruaunt of God, ad that they wolde obserue & do accordyng vnto all the commaundementes, iudgementes & statutes of the Lord oure God: * and that we wolde not geue oure daughters vnto the people in the londe, nether to take their daughters for oure sonnes.

* And þ the people of the lande broughte ware on the saboth, & all maner of vitayles to sell, that we wolde not take it of them on the saboth & on the holy dayes. * ad that we wolde let þ seuenthy peare be fre, concernyng all maner of charge.

¶ And we decreed a statute vpon oure selues to geue yearly the thyrd parte of a spyle to the mynistracion in þ house of oure God, to the shewbyrd, to þ daylye meatofferynge, to the daylye burntofferynge of the sabothes, of the newe mones, and feast dayes, & to the thynges that were sanctified, & to the offerynges of attonement, to reconyle Israel wyth all, and to all the busynes in the house of oure God.

¶ And we cast the lot amonge the preastes, Leuites and the people, for offerynge of the wood to be brought vnto þ house of God from peare to peare, after the houses of oure fathers that it myght be bzent at tymes apoynted, vpon the aultare of þ Lord God, as it is wypte in the lawe: and to byng the fyrstlynges of oure land, & the fyrstlynges of oure frutes of all trees, peare by peare, vnto the house of the Lord: and the fyrstlynges of oure sonnes, and of oure catell, as it is wypten in the lawe: and the fyrstlynges of oure oxen & of oure shepe, whych we shulde bring to the house of oure God, vnto the preastes that mynister in the house of oure God: and that we shuld byng the fyrstlynges of oure dowgh, and of oure heueofferynges, and the frutes of all maner of trees, of wyne also and of oyle, vnto the preastes to the chestes of the house of oure God. And the tythes of our lande vnto the Leuites, that the Leuytes myght haue the tythes in all the cyties of oure mynistracyon.

And

And the preast the sonne of Aaron shall wyth the Leuites haue also of the tythes of þ Leuites, so that the Leuites shall byng vnto the tythes of they tythes vnto the house of oure God, to the store houses and to the treasure houses. For the chyldren of Israel & the chyldren of Leui shall byng vnto the heueofferynges of the corne, wyne and oyle vnto þ store houses, there as are the vessels of þ sanctuary, and the preastes that minister, & the porters and syngers, that we forsake not þ house of oure God.

¶ The. xi. Chapter.

¶ Who dwelled in Jerusalem after it was buylded and who in the cyties of Iuda.

A And the rulers of the people dwelt at Jerusalem. The other peoplc also cast lottes, that amonge ten, one parte shulde go to Jerusalem into the holy cytie to dwell, and nyne partes to be in the cyties. And the people thanked all the men, that were wyllynge to dwell at Jerusalem.

¶ These are the heades of the lande, that dwelt in Jerusalem and in the cyties of Iuda, euerie one in hys possessyon, and in they cyties: they of Israel, the preastes, Leuytes, the Bethinims, and the chyldren of Salomons seruautes. And at Jerusalem dwelt certayne of the chyldren of Iuda and of Ben-Jamin.

¶ Of the chyldren of Iuda: Achaia the sonne of Asa, the sonne of Zachary, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Saphatia, the sonne of Mahalalell, of þ chyldre of Phares. And Maasia the sonne of Baruch, the sonne of Chal Hosc, the sonne of Hasaia, the sonne of Adatia, the sonne of Joarib, the sonne of zachary, the sonne of Siloni. All these were the chyldren of Phares that dwelt at Jerusalem: euen foure C. thre score and eyght valiant men.

¶ These are the chyldre of Ben-Jamin: Salu the sonne of Mesullam, þ sonne of Joed, the sonne of Bedaia, the sonne of Calatia, the sonne of Masia, the sonne of Jthiel, the sonne of Isai. And after hym Sabai, Selai nyne hundreth and eyght & twentye. And Joel the sonne of zichri had the ouersyght of the: ad Iuda the sonne of Sema was next ouer the cytie.

*ii. Esdras.

* Of the preastes: Jedatiah þ sonne of Joarib, Jachin. Saraiah the sonne of Heli the sonne of Mesullam, the sonne of zadoc, þ sonne of Meraioth, þ sonne of Abitob, was prince in the house of God: and hys bzethren þ perfourmed the worke in the temple. viij. Cand. xxiij. And Adatia the sonne of Zeroham, the sonne of Blalaliel, þ sonne of Amzi, the sonne of zachary, the sonne of Phaschur the sonne of Malchia and his bzethren chefe amonge the fathers: two hundreth and two and fortye. And Amasai the sonne of Israel the sonne of Abasai, þ sonne of Moslemoth, the sonne of Immer: and hys bzethren were valiant men, an hundreth and eyght & twentye. And they ouerscar was zabbai a sonne of one of the great men.

* Of the Leuytes: Semeia the sonne of Hasub the sonne of Alerikam, the sonne of Hasabiah the sonne of Būm: and Sabathai and Josabab of the chefe of the Leuites, had the ouersight of the outwarde busynes of þ house of God. And Mathania the sonne of Micha, þ sonne of zabdi, þ sonne of Asaph, was the principall to begynne the thankengeyng and prayer. And bakbukia the seconde amonge hys bzethren, and Abda the sonne of Sammua, the sonne of Galai, the sonne of Jeduthun. All þ Leuites in the holy cytie were two hundreth foure score and foure. * And the porters Acub and Calmō, & they bzethren that kepte the portes, were an hundreth and two and seientye. As for the resydue of Israel, the preastes and Leuites, they were in all the cyties of Iuda, euerie one in hys inheritaunce.

¶ And the Bethinims dwelt in Ophel: and ziba and Gipsa was set ouer þ Bethinims. The ouerscar of the Leuites at Jerusalem, was Asa the sonne of Baani, the sonne of Hasabiah, the sonne of Mathania, the sonne of Micha.

¶ Of the chyldren of Asaph there were syngers aboute the busynes in þ house of God: for it was the kynges commaundement concernyng them, that the syngers shulde deale faythfully euerie daye as was accordyng.

¶ And Mathala the sonne of Meselabel of the chyldren of zerah the sonne of Iuda nexte the kyng in all matters concernyng the people, and they byllages, and landes. And some of the chyldren of Iuda that were wythout in the townes of they lande dwelt at Bariath Arbe, and in the byllages therof, at Didon, and in the byllages therof: and at Jecabzeel, and in the byllages therof: at Jesua, Moladah, Bethphalet in the towne of Sual: Beerseba, and in they byllages, at Sikelag and Moconah, and in they byllages: And at Enremmon, zarah, Jerimuth, zonoa, Odollam and in they byllages: At Lachis, and in the fel-des therof: At Ascha, & in the villages therof: and they dwelt from Bersabe vnto the valley of Binnon.

¶ The chyldren also of Ben-Jamin of Geba, dwelt a Machmas, Aia, Bethel and in they byllages. And at Anathoth, Rob, Ananiah, Hazor, Ramah, Gethaim, Hadid, zeboim, Babelath, Lod, and Ono, the carpenters valley. And the Leuytes had possessyon both in Iuda and in Ben-Jamin.

¶ The

The preastes and Leuites which came with Zorobabel to Jerusalem are numbered, & the wall is dedycate.

These are the preastes and Leuites that wente up with Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel & with Iesua: Sararia, Jeremi, & Esdras, Amaria, Maluch, Hatus, Serchania, Rehum, Merimoth, Iddo, Genthoi, Abia, Wiamin, Maaria, Belga, Semia, Joiarib, Jadaia, Salu, Amok, Helkia, and Jadaia. These were the heades among the preastes, and they brethren, in the dayes of Iesua. The Leuites were these: Iesua, Benini, Cadmil, Sarabia, Juda and Nathania which was ouer the office of thankesgeuyng, he and hys brethren: Bacbukia and Himmi and they brethren, were aboute them in the watches.

Iesua begat Joakim. Joakim also begat Eliasib, & Eliasib begat Joiada. Joiada begat Jonathan, and Jonathan begat Jadaia. In the dayes of Joakim were these the chefe fathers amonge the preastes: vnder Sararia, Maaria: vnder Jeremi, Hanania: vnder Esdras, Melullam: vnder Amaria, Jehonathan: vnder Hilico, Jonathan: vnder Sebania, Ioseph: vnder Harim Adna: vnder Maarioth, Helca: vnder Iddo, zachary: vnder Genthoi, Melullam: vnder Abia, zichri: vnder Wiamin and Moadia, Piltai: vnder Belga, Samua: vnder Semia, Jehonathan: vnder Joiarib, Mathenai, vnder Jadaia, Cili: vnder Helai, Kelai: vnder Amok, Eber: vnder Helchia, Hasabia: vnder Jadaia, Nathanael.

And in the tyme of Eliasib: Joiada, Jonathan & Jadaia, were chefe fathers amonge the Leuites and the preastes, written vnder the raygne of Darius the Persian. The chylde of Leui, & principall fathers were written in the Chronicles, vntill the tyme of Jonathan the sonne of Eliasib. And these were the chefe among the Leuites, Hasabia, Serbia and Iesua the sonne of Cadmil, and they brethren in their presence, to geue prayse & thankes, accordyng as Dauid the ma of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer agaynst another. Nathania, Balbukia, Obadia, Melullam, Calamon and Abub were porters in the watch at the thresholds of the gates. These were in the dayes of Joakim the sonne of Iesua the sonne of Iosedec, and in the dayes of Nehemia the captayne, and of the preaste Esdras the scribe.

And in the dedycacyon of the wall at Jerusalem, they sought the Leuites out of all they places, that they myghte be brought to Jerusalem, to kepe the dedicacyon & gladnesse, with thankesgeuynges, and singinge with Cymbales, Psalteries, and harpes. And the chylde of the syngers geathered them selues together from euery syde out of the playne countree aboute Jerusalem, and from the vyllages of Betho phathi, from the house of Gilgal, and out of the countrees of Seba and Ainaucth: for the syngers had buylded them vyllages rounde aboute Jerusalem. And the preastes and Leuites were purifed, and clenched the people, and the gates and the wall.

And I brought the princes of Iuda vpon the wall, and appoynted two greete queers of men to geue thankes, whych were on the ryghte hande of the wall toward the Donggate, and after them wente Hosaia, and halfe of the prynces of Iuda, and Aharis, Esdras, and Melullam, Juda, Beniamin, Semia and Jeremi: and certayne of the preastes chylde with trompettes, namely zachary the sonne of Jonathā, the sonne of Semia, the sonne of Nathania, & sonne of Michaia, the sonne of zacur, the sonne of Alaph, and hys brethren Semia, Alaracel, Melalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathanael & Juda and Hanani, with the muscalle instrumentes of Dauid the man of God.

And Esdras the scribe went before the, and besyde the wellgate, they wente vpon ouer agaynst them vpon the steppes of the ctyte of Dauid at the goynge vp of the wall beyonde the house of Dauid, vnto the Watergate Eastwarde.

The other queer of them that gaue thankes, went ouer agaynst them, and I after them, and the halfe parte of the people vpon the wall, beyonde the fornacgate, vntill the brode wall, and beyonde the porte of Ephraim, & beyonde the Oldgate, beyonde the fythgate, and the tower of hananiel, and the tower of Hea, vntill the Sheppegate. And they stode still in the presongate, and so stode the two queers (of them that gaue thankes) in the house of God, and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the preastes, namely Eliakim, Maasia, Wiamin, Michaia, Elionai, zachary and Hanania, with trompettes, and Maasia, Semeiah, Eleasar, Arsi, Jehohanan, Melchiah, Elam and Ser. And the syngers sange loude, haupnge Iestabiah for they ouersee.

And the same daye, they offred greete sacrifices and reioysed: for God had geuen the greete gladnesse, so that both the wyues & chylde were ioyfull, and the myrth of Jerusalem was herde farre of.

At the same tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treasure houses (wherin were the heue offerynges, the fyrtlynges & the tythes) that they shulde geather them out of the felde aboute the ctytes, to distribute them vnto the preastes & Leuites according to the lawe: for Iuda was glad of the preastes preastes, & Leuites, that they stode & waited vpon the office of their God, which is a pure office. And the syngers & porters stode after the commaundment of Dauid & of Salomō his sonne: for in the tyme of Dauid & Alaph, were the chefe syngers founded, & the songes of prayse & thankesgeuyng vnto God. In the tyme of Zorobabel & Nehemia, dyd all they of Israel, geue porcions vnto the syngers & porters, euery daye hys porcion, and they gaue tythes vnto the Leuites: and the Leuites gaue tythes agayne, vnto the children of Aaron.

The. xiiij. Chapter.

The lawe is read, & when they haue heard it, they separate from them all strangers &c.

And the daye dyd they reade in the booke of Moyses, & the people hearkened thereto, & there was founde written therein, that the Ammonites & Moabites shulde neuer come into the congregacyon of God, because they mett not the chylde of Israel w bread & water, but hyred Balaā agaynst them, & he shuld curse them: and oure God turned the curse into a blessing. Now when they herde the lawe, it fortuneth, that they separated from Israel euery one that had myrte hym selfe therein. And before this had the preaste Eliasib & ouer the tythe of the treasury of the house of oure God, & he was kynsman vnto Tobia: & had made him a great chambze, & there had they afore tyme layed the offeringes, frankensce, vessell, & the tythes of corne, and wyne and oyle (accordyng to the commaundement geue to the Leuites, syngers and porters) and the heue offerynges of the preastes.

But in all this tyme was not I at Jerusalem: for in the two & thyrtye yere of Artaxerxes kyng of Babylō, came I vnto the kyng, and after certayne dayes obtayned I lycence of the kyng to come to Jerusalem. And I gat knowledge of the euell that Eliasib dyd vnto Tobia, in the house of God, and it greued me sore, & I cast forth all the vessels of the house of Tobia out of the chambze, and commaunded them to cleaue the chambzes. And thither brought I agayne the vessels of the house of God, with the meat offering, and the incense.

And I perceaued, that the porcions of the Leuites were not geue them, and that euery one fled to his land, euen the Leuites and syngers & porters & worke. The reprobud I & rulers, & sayd: why is the house of God forsaken? And I gathered the together, & set the in their place. Then brought all Iuda the tythes of corne, & wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And I made treasurers ouer the treasure, eue Semeiah the preast, & zadoc the scribe, and of the Leuites, Phadaia, & vnder their hand was Hanan the sonne of zacur the sonne of Nathania: for they were counted faythfull, and their office was to distribute the porcions vnto their brethren. * Thynke vpon me O my God here in, and wipe not out my mercy that I haue shewed on the house of my God, and on the offices therof.

At the same tyme sawe I some tredynge wyne prestes on the Saboth, & byrnyng in thefes, & altes laden w wyne, grapes, figges & byrnyng all maner of burthens vnto Jerusalem, vpon the Saboth daye. And I rebuked the earnestly the same daye that they sold the vitayles. There dwelt me of Tyre also therein, which brought fyre and all maner of ware, & solde on the Saboth vnto the children of Iuda in Jerusalem. Then reprobud I the rulers in Iuda, & sayde vnto the: what euell thyng is this ye do, & breake the Saboth daye? Dyd not your fathers enen thus, & our God brought all this plage vpon vs & vpon this ctyte? And ye make the wrath more yet vpon Israel, in that ye breake the Saboth.

And it fortuneth, that the portes of Jerusalem beganne to be darke in the euenyng before the Saboth, I commaunded to shut the gates, & charged, that they shuld not be opened tyll after the Saboth: & some of my seruantes set I at the gates, & there shulde no burthe be brought in on the Saboth daye. Then remayned the chapmen & marchautes once or twyce ouer nyght without Jerusalem with all maner of wares. Then reprobud I them sore, and sayde vnto the: why tary ye all nyght about the wall? If ye do it once agayne, I wyll laye handes vpon you. From the tyme forth came they nomore on the Saboth. And I sayde vnto the Leuites & they shulde cleaue the selues, and that they shulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Saboth daye. Thynke vpon me (O my God) concernyng this also, & spare me, accordyng to thy great mercy.

And at the same tyme sawe I Jewes, that married wyues of Afood, of Ammon and of Moab, & their chylde spake halfe in the speach of Afood, & coude not speake in the Jewes language, but by the song myght a man perceaue euery people. Then I reprobud them, & cursed them, & smote certayne men of the, & made the bare, and toke an oath of the by God: Ye shal not geue your daughters vnto their sones, nether shall ye take their daughters vnto your sones, or for your selues. Dyd not Salomō the kyng of Israel synne for soch: and yet among many hepythen was there no kyng like him, whych was deare vnto his God, & God made him kyng ouer all Israel, & yet neuer theles, outlandish women caused hi to synne: Shall we then obeye vnto you, to do all this great euell, & to trasgresse agaynst oure God, and marre strange wyues?

And one of the chylde of Jehoiada the sonne

sonne of Eliab the hye preast, had made a cōtracte with Sanabalat the Hozonite: but I chased him from me. (O my God) thynke thou vpon them that desyle the presthode, & the cōuenant of the presthode & of the Leuites. Thus clensted I the from all soch as were outlandish, and appoynted the courses of p̄ preastes & Leuites, euery one in his office, & to offre the wod at tymes appoynted, and the fyrst frutes. Thinke thou vpon me (O my God) for the best. (Amen.)

The ende of the seconde boke of Esdras, otherwyle called the boke of Nehemia.

The boke of Esther

The fyrst Chapter.

(The kyng Ahasuerus maketh a royall feast, wherunto the quene Vasthi wyl not come, for whiche cause she is deposed.)

In the dayes of Ahasuerus whiche raygned from India vnto Ethiopia (ouer an hundred and seuen and twenty landes) enen in those dayes whan the kyng Ahasuerus sat on his seate royall, which was in Susan p̄ chefe cytie, in p̄ thirde peare of his raygne, he made a feast vnto all his princes & seruautes. And the myghtye men of Persia & Media, the capitaynes also & rulers of his countrees were before him, & he shewed the riches and glozpe of his kyngdome, & the glorious worshippe of his greatnesse, many dayes longe, euen an hundred and foure score dayes.

And when these dayes were expyred, the kyng made a feast vnto all p̄ people, p̄ were in Susan the chefe cytie, both vnto great & small, seuen dayes long in the court of p̄ garden by the kynges palace: where there haged white, grene & palow clothes, fastened with cordes of fyne sylke & purple in syluer ryn- ges, vpon pylers of Marble ston.

The benches also were of golde & syluer made vpon a pavement of grene, white, palow and black Marble. And they drank in vessels of golde, & chainged vessel after vessel. And the kynges wyne was moch, accordyng to the power of the kyng. And p̄ drinke was so apoynted p̄ none shulde compell anye man, for so the kyng had cōmaunded by the officers of his house, p̄ euery one shuld do as it liked him. And p̄ quene Vasthi made a feast also for the women in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seuenth dape when the kyng was mery after p̄ wyne, he cōmaunded Memucan, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagthan, Zethar & Carchas, the seuen chamberlaynes (p̄ dyd serue in the presence of kyng Ahasuerus) to fetch the quene Vasthi with p̄ crowne regal into the kynges presence that he myght shewe the people and princes her fairnesse, for she was bewtifull. But p̄ quene Vasthi wolde not come at p̄ kynges word by his chamberlaynes. Then was p̄ kyng very wroth, & his indignacion kyndled in him.

And the kyng spake to the wylse men, that had vnderstanding in the ordinaunces of the land, for the kynges matters must be hadled before all soch as haue knowlege of the lawe and iudgement: and the (cheffes and) next vnto hi were, Carsena, Sethar, Admata, Char- sis, Mares, Marfena, & Hamucan, the seue princes of Persia, and Media, whiche sawe the kynges face, & sat aboue in the kyngdom. What lawe (saith p̄ kyng) shuld be executed vpon the quene Vasthi, because she dyd not accordyng to the worde of the kyng Ahasuerus, whiche he cōmaunded by his chamberlaynes? And Memucan answered before the kyng and the princes: the quene Vasthi hath not onely done euell agaynst the kyng, but also agaynst all the princes and agaynst all the people p̄ are in all p̄ landes of kyng Ahasuerus: for this dede of the quene shall come abzode vnto all wemen, so p̄ they shall despised their husbādes before their eyes, and shal sape: the kyng Ahasuerus cōmaunded Vasthi p̄ quene to be brought in before hym, but she wold not come. And so shall the princesses in Persia & Media sape likewise vnto all the kynges princes, whiche they heare of this dede of the quene, thus shall there aryle to moch despytefulness & wroth. If it please the kyng therfore, let there go a commaundmēt from him, & let it be writte accordyng to the lawes of the Persians and Medians (and not to be transgressed) p̄ Vasthi come nomore before kyng Ahasuerus, & let p̄ kyng geue her kyngdome vnto another, that is better then she.

And when this commaundment of the kyng (which shalbe made) is published thorow out all his empire (whiche is greate) all wemen shall hold their husbādes in honoure both among great and small.

This

This pleased the kyng & the p̄ynces: and the kyng dyd accordyng to the word of Memucan. For he sent letters forth in to all the kynges lādes, in to euery land, accordyng to the wytyng therof, & to euery people after their lāguage, p̄ euery man shulde be lord in his awne house. And this caused he to be spoken after the language of his people.

The ii. Chapter.

(After the quene is put awaye, certen goodly young damoselles are searched out. & of otherwyle called Esther, pleased the kyng, & is made quene. Mar- docheus openeth vnto the kyng those that wolde be- traye hym.)

After these actes, whiche the displea- sure of kyng Ahasuerus was now layed, he thought vpon Vasthi, & what she had done, & what was concluded agaynst her. Then sayd the kynges seruautes that ministred vnto him: Let there be sayre young virgins sought for the kyng, and the kyng appointed certayne men in all the landes of his empyre, whiche he charged p̄ they shuld byng together all the sayre pong virgins vnto Susan the headcite, to the wemen buylding, vnder the hand of Hagei the kynges chamberlayne, that kepte the wemen, to geue them their apparrell. (Other thinges necessary to be had.) And that the damsell whiche pleased the kyng shuld be quene in Vasthis steade. And this pleased the kyng, and he dyd so.

In the cyte of Susan there was a Jewe, whose name was Hardocheus, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Semei, the sonne of Cis a mā of Temini, which was carped awaye fro Jerusalem, whiche Ickonia the kyng of Iu- da was led awaye, (whom Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon carped thence) & he nozibed Hadassa (that is Esther) his vncles daughter: for she had nether father nor mother, and she was a sayre & beutifull dāsell: whiche Hardocheus (whiche her father & mother was deed) receaued for his awne daughter.

So it fortuneth that when the kynges commaundmēt & cōmulsion was published, and many damosels were brought together in the cite of Susan vnder the hande of Hagei. Esther was brought also vnto the kynges house vnder the hand of Hagei the keeper of the wemen, & the damsell pleased him, and she founde fauoure in his syght. And he caused ornamentes to be geuen her & soch thynges as belonged to her, and appoynted her seuen colpe damselfs out of the kynges house, & fauoured both her and her gentyll wemen singularly in the house of the wemen. But Esther shewed not her people & her kyndred: for Hardocheus had charged her, that she shuld not tell it. And Hardocheus walked euery dape before the court of the wemens house, that he myght knowe howe Esther dyd, and what shulde become of her.

And when the appoynted tyme of euery damself came, that she shuld go into p̄ kyng Ahasuerus, after that she had bene twelue monethes in the deckyng of the wemen (for their deckyng must haue so moch tyme, namely syre monethes with Balme & Myrr, & syre monethes with good spices, so were the wemen beutified) then went there one damosell vnto the kyng, & whatsoeuer she requyred: so that it were comely, that must be ge- uen her to go wyth her out of the wemens buylding vnto p̄ kynges palace. In the en- dyng she went, and in the morow agayne into the seconde house of the wemen aby- ding vnder the hand of Saasgas the kynges chamberlayne, whiche kepte the concubi- nes. And she came in vnto the kyng nomore, excepte it pleased the kyng to haue her, and that he called her by name.

Now when the tyme came of Esther the daughter of Abihai the vncle of Hardoche- us (whiche had receaued her as his awne daughter: that she shuld come into p̄ kyng, she despyed nothyng, but what Hagei the kynges chamberlayne the keeper of the we- men, sayde.

And Esther found fauoure in the syght of all them p̄ looked vpon her. And Esther was taken vnto kyng Ahasuerus into his house royall, in p̄ tenth moneth which is p̄ moneth Tebeth, in p̄ seuenthyeare of his raygne.

And the kyng loued Esther aboue all the wemen, & she found grace and fauoure in his syght before all the virgins: so that he set the crowne of the kyngdome vpon hir head, and made her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kyng made a great feast vnto all his princes and seruautes, which feast was because of Esther & caused p̄ landes to be in quynes, & gaue giftes, as became p̄ royaltie of a kig.

And when the virgins were gathered to- gether the seconde tyme, Hardocheus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Esther shewed her kyndred and her people, accordyng as Hardocheus had bydden her: for Esther dyd after the worde of Hardocheus, lyke as yf she had bene yet vnder his gouernance. At the same tyme, whyle Hardocheus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chāber- laynes Bizthan and Theris which kepte the doze, were wroth, & sought to laye their han- des on p̄ kyng Ahasuerus: wherof also Har- docheus gat knowledge, & and tolde it vnto quene Esther, & Esther certified the kyng therof in Hardocheus name. And when in- quisicion was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was writen in the Chronycles before the kyng.

The iii. Chapter.

(Haman the sonne of Haman, after he was created abrayned of the kyng that all the Jewes shuld be put to death, & cause Hardocheus had not done hym worship, as other had.)

After these actes dyd y^e kyng Ahasuerus promote Haman the sonne of Amadatha y^e Agagite, & set him hye, & set hys seat about all y^e princes that he had with him. And all the kynges seruautes that were in the kynges gate, bowed their knees, and worshypped Haman: for the kyng had so commaunded cōcernyng him. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and worshypped him not. Then the kynges seruautes whych were in the kynges gate, sayde vnto Mardocheus: why transgresseth thou the kynges commaundment? And whē they spake thus dayly vnto him, he folowed them not, and they tolde Haman, that they myght se how Mardocheus matters wolde endure: for he had told them, that he was a Jewe. And when Haman sawe, that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto him, nor worshypped him, he was full of indignaciō, and thought it to lyttell to laye handes only on Mardocheus: for they had shewed him y^e naciō of Mardocheus, wherfore he sought to destroye all the Jewes, that were thowow out the whole empyre of Ahasuerus, and that were of the naciō of Mardocheus.

In the fyrst moneth (that is the moneth Nisan) in the twelue yere of kyng Ahasuerus they cast whur (that is a loit) before Haman from daye to daye, and from moneth to moneth, to the twelue moneth that is the moneth Adar. And Haman sayde vnto kyng Ahasuerus: There is here a people scattered abroad and disperfed among all people in all the landes of thyne empyre, & they haue their lawes contrary from all people, & do not after the kynges lawes, nether is it the kynges profet to suffre them after thyne maner. If it please the kyng, let it be wyrtten, that they maye be destroyed, & so wyll I weye downe ten thousand talētes of syluer, by the handes of y^e workmen, to be brought into the kynges treasure. And the kyng toke his rynge from his hand, & gaue it vnto Haman the sonne of Amadatha the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kyng sayde vnto Haman: Let the syluer be geuen the, and do with that people as it pleaseth the.

D Then were the kynges scribes called on y^e thirtieth daye of y^e fyrst moneth ( Nisan) and there was wyrtten (according as Haman commaunded) vnto all the kynges officers & to the captaynes that were in all the landes, and to the rulers of euery people in the countreyes on euery syde, accordyng to the wyrtting of euery naciō, and after their language, in the name of kyng Ahasuerus was it wyrtten and sealed with the kynges rynge. And the wyrttynges were sent by postes into all the kynges landes, to rote out, to kyll, and to destroye all Jewes, both yong & olde, chyldren & women in one daye (namely vpon the thirtieth daye of the twelue moneth, whych is the moneth * Adar) & to spoyle their goodes.

This was the summe of the wyrttyng, y^e there shulde be a commaundment geuen in all landes, and published vnto all people, that they shulde be ready agaynst the same daye. And the postes went in all y^e hast, accordyng to the kynges commaundment. And in Susan the chefe cytie was the commaundment deuised. And y^e kyng & Haman sate & dracke: whan in the meane tyme the cytie of Susan was disquieted.

The. iij. Chapter.

Mardocheus geueth the queene knowledge of the cruell decre of the kyng agaynst the Jewes.

When Mardocheus perceaued all y^e was done, he rente his clothes and put on sack cloth, with ashes, and wet out into the myddes of the cytie, and cryed loud and lamentably, & came before the kynges gate: but he myght not entre within y^e kynges gate, because he had sack cloth on. And in all lades, countrees, & places, as farre as the kynges worde and commaundment extended, there was greate lamentaciō among the Jewes, fasting, weping, and mourning, and many laye in sack clothes & i ashes. So Esthers damosels and her chāberlaynes, came & told it her. Then was the queene exceedingly astonied. And she sent raymēt, that Mardocheus shulde put on, & laye the sack cloth from him. But Mardocheus wold not take them. Then called Esther hathath one of the kynges chamberlaynes (whych stode before her) and gaue him a commaundment vnto Mardocheus, y^e he might knowe what it were, wherfore he dyd so. So hathath wet forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of y^e cytie, whych was before the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde him of all y^e had happened vnto him, & of the summe of syluer y^e Haman had promised to weye downe into y^e kynges treasury, because of y^e Jewes y^e he wolde destroye the (& he gaue hym the coppe of the kynges commaundment, that was deuysed at Susan, to destroye the, that he might shewe it vnto Esther) & to speake to her, and charge her, that she shuld go in to the kyng, and make her prayer and supplicaciō vnto him for her people.

And whē hathath came in, he told Esther the wordes of Mardocheus. And agayne, Esther spake vnto hathath, & commaunded him to saye vnto Mardocheus: all the kynges seruautes, & the people in the landes of the kyng, knowe that whosocuer cometh within the court vnto the kyng, whether it be man or woman, whych is not called, y^e commaundment is, y^e the same shall dye, excepte the

the kyng holde out the golden scepter vnto him (in token of graciously) for then he shall lyue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come into the kyng now this thyrtye dayes.

And they certifyed Mardocheus of Esthers wordes, & Mardocheus bad saye agayne vnto Esther, thynke not to saue thyne awne lyfe, while thou art in y^e kynges house, before all Jewes: for yf y^e holdest thy peace at this tyme, the shall the Jewes haue helpe and deliuerance out of another place, & thou & thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come to the kyngdom, for this causes sake? Esther bad the queene Mardocheus this answer: So thou thy waye, & gether together all the Jewes that are found at Susan, and fast ye for me, that ye eat not and drynke not in thre dayes, nether daye nor nyght. I and my damosels will fast lyke wise, and so will I go into the kyng, which thing yet, is contrary to the commaundment: and yf I perithe, I perithe. So Mardocheus went his waye, & dyd all that Esther had commaunded him.

The. v. Chapter.

Esther entreteth into the kyng and byddeth hym and Haman to a feast. Haman prepareth a galloose for Mardocheus.

Ad on the thyrde daye it fortuneth, that Esther put on her royall apparell, & stode in the court of the kynges palace within, ouer agaynst y^e kynges house. And the kyng late vpon his royall seate in the kynges palace ouer agaynst the gate of the house. And when the kyng sawe Esther the queene standyng in the court, she found grace in hys syght. And the kyng helde out the golden scepter that was in his hande toward Esther. So Esther stepte forth, and touched the toppe of the scepter. Then sayde the kyng vnto her: What wyll thou queene Esther? and what requyrest thou? aske euen the halfe of the empire, and it shall be geuen the. And Esther answered. If it please the kyng, let the kyng & Haman come this daye vnto the bancket, that I haue prepared for hym. And the kyng sayde: cause Haman to make hast, that he maye do as Esther hath sayde.

So the kyng & Haman came to the bancket y^e Esther had prepared, & the kyng sayde vnto Esther at the bancket of wyne: what is thy peticion: that it maye be geuen the. And what requyrest thou? If it be euen the halfe of the empire, it shall be done.

Then answered Esther, and sayd, my peticion and desyre is, yf I haue founde grace in the syght of the kyng, and yf it please the kyng, to geue me my peticion, & to fulfill my request, then let the kyng & Haman come to the bancket y^e I shall prepare for th m. and so will I do tomorrow, as the kyng hath sayde.

Then went Haman forth the same daye ioyfull and mery in his mynde. And whē the same Haman sawe Mardocheus in y^e kynges gate, y^e he stode not vp & kneeled before hym, he was full of indignaciō at Mardocheus. Neuertheles, Haman refrayned him selfe: & whē he came home, he sent, and called for his frendes, & zares his wyfe, and Haman tolde them of the glozy of his ryches, and the multitude of his childezen, & all together howe y^e kyng had promoted him so greatly, & howe that he had set him aboue the princes & seruautes of the kyng. Haman sayd moreover: See & Esther y^e queene dyd let no man come in with the kyng vnto the bancket that she had prepared, excepte me, & tomorrow am I bidden vnto her also with the kyng. But in all this am I not satisfied, as longe as I se Mardocheus the Jewe spytyng at the kynges gate. Then sayd zares hys wyfe and all hys frendes vnto him: Let them make a galloose of fyfte cubites hye, and tomorrow speake thou vnto y^e kyng, that Mardocheus maye be hanged thereon, & go thou in merely with the kyng vnto the bancket. And Haman was wel content with all, & caused the gallooses to be made.

The. vi. Chapter.

The kyng turneth ouer the Chronicles & findeth the liberte of Mardocheus, and then to the confusiō of Haman, commaundeth Mardocheus to be had in honoure.

The same nyght could not the king slepe, and he commaunded to bring the Chronicles and storyes: whych when they were red before the kyng they happened on the place where it was wyrtten, how Mardocheus had told that Bigthana and Theres y^e kynges chāberlaynes (whych kept the thre holdes) sought, to laye handes on kyng Ahasuerus. And the kyng sayd: what worshyppe & good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore? Then sayde the kynges seruautes that mynistred vnto hym: There is nothyng at all done for hym. And the kyng sayde: Who is in the court? (for Haman was gone into the court wythout before y^e kynges house, that he myght speake vnto the kyng to hange Mardocheus on y^e tre (that he had prepared for hym.)) And the kynges seruautes sayde vnto hym: beholde, Haman standeth without in the court. And y^e kyng sayd: let him come in. And when Haman came in, the kyng sayd vnto hym: what shall be done vnto the man, whom the y^e kynge volde sayne bringe vnto worshyppe? Haman thought in his heart: Whom desyret the kyng to bring vnto worshyppe more then me? And Haman answered the kyng: Let the man who the kyng pleaseth to bring vnto worshyppe, be brought hyther, that he maye be arayed with the royall garmentes which the kyng vseth to weare: & the horse y^e the kyng rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royall royall maye be set vpon his heed. And let this rayment and horse be deliuered vnder the hand of one of the kynges princes, that they maye araye the man withall (whō the kyng is disposed to byng to honoure) & cary hym vpon the horse thowow the strete of the cytie, ad proclayme before him: thus shalt it be done to the man, whom the kyng please to byng to honoure.

And the kyng sayde: make hast, and take as thou hast sayde, the rayment & the horse: and do euē so vnto Mardocheus the Jewe. & sytteth before the kynges gate, & let nothing fayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Haman the rayment & the horse, and arayed Mardocheus, ad brought him on horsebacke thowow the strete of the cytie, and proclaymed before him: Euen thus shall it be done vnto the man whō the kyng is disposed to honoure. And Mardocheus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Haman gat hym home in all the hast mournynge bare headed, ad tolde zares his wyfe and all hys frendes, euery thing that had happened him. Then sayd his wyfe men and zares his wyfe vnto him: It ys be Mardocheus, of the seide of the Jewes, before whō thou hast begonne to fall, thou shalt not preuaile agaynst hym, but shalt surely fall before him. And whyle they were yet talkynge with him, came the kynges chamberlaynes, & caused Haman to make hast, to come vnto the bancket that Esther had prepared.

The viij. Chapter.

¶ The queene byddeth the kyng & Haman agayne, and prayeth for her selfe and her people. She ariseth Haman, & he bys hanged on the gallows, wherby he had prepared for Mardocheus.

And the kyng and Haman came in to the bancket that queene Esther had prepared, and the kyng sayd vnto Esther on the seconde daye at the bancket of wyne: what is thy petition (queene Esther) that it maye be geuen thee? And what requyrest thou? See, aske euē half of the empyre, & it shall be done. And Esther the queene answered, & sayd: If I haue found grace in thy syght (O kyng) and yf it please the kyng, then graunt me my lyfe at my desyre and my people, for my petitions sake: for we are solde, & to my people, to be destroyed, to be slayne & to perishe. And wold God we were solde to be bondmen and bond women, then wold I hold my tounge: for the enemye poudreth not the kynges harme. The kyng & Mardocheus answered, and sayde vnto queene Esther: who is he? And where is he, y darre presume in hys mynde, to do after y manner? And Esther sayd: the enemye and aduersary is this wicked Haman.

Haman, was exceedingly afrayed before the kyng and the queene. And the kyng arose from the bancket and from the wyne in hys displeasure, & went into the palace garden.

And Haman stode by, & besought queene Esther for his lyfe: for he sawe, that there was a mischefe prepared for him of the kyng all ready.

And when the kyng came agayne out of the palace garden into the place where they dranke wyne, Haman had layed hym vpon the bed, & Esther sat vpon. Then sayd the kyng: wyl he force the queene also before me in the house? As sone as that worde went out of the kynges mouth, they couered Hamans face. And Harboia one of the chāberlaynes that stode before the kyng, sayde: Beholde, there standeth a galowes in Hamans house fyftie cubytes hie, wherby he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for the kyng. The kyng sayde: hang him thereon. So they hanged Haman on the galowes, that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wyath pacified.

The viij. Chapter.

¶ After the death of Haman is Mardocheus exalted, and then are there comfortable letters sent vnto the Jewes.

In the same daye dyd kyng Ahasuerus geue the house of Haman, the Jewes enemye, vnto queene Esther. And Mardocheus came before the kyng: for Esther tolde, howe that he belonged vnto her. And the kyng put of his spynge rynge, wherby he had taken fro Haman, & gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Esther set Mardocheus ouer the house of Haman. And Esther spake yet more before the kyng: & fell downe at his fete wepyng, & besought him, that he wold put away the wickednes of Haman the Agagite, and hys deuyce that he had ymagined agaynst the Jewes. And the kyng (accordynge to the manner) helde out the golden scepter toward Esther. (wherby was declared a token of gracifullnes.) Then rose Esther, and stode before the kyng, and sayd: yf it please the kyng, & yf I haue found grace in thy syght, and yf it be acceptable before the kyng, then let it be wyttē, that the letters of the deuyce of Haman the sonne of Hamadatha the Agagite, maye be called agayne: wherby letters he wrote, to destroye the Jewes, which are in all the kynges landes. For how can I suffre and se the euell, that shall happen vnto my people? Or how can I loke vpon the destruction of my kynred?

And the kyng Ahasuerus sayd vnto queene Esther, & to Mardocheus the Jewe: Behold, I haue geuen Esther the house of Haman, whō they haue hanged vpon a tre, because he layed hand vpon the Jewes. Wyte ye also for the Jewes, as it lyketh you in the kynges name, & seale it with the kynges rynge (for the wytynges that were wyttē in the kynges name, and sealed with the kynges rynge, durst no man dylatull.) Then were the kynges scribes called at the same tyme, euē in the thirde moneth moneth, that is the moneth * Sivan, on the thre and twenteth daye.

And it was written (accordynge to all as Mardocheus commaunded) vnto the Jewes, and to the princes, to the debites and captaynes in the landes which are fro India vntill Ethiopia, namely an hundred and seuen and twentye landes, vnto euery one accordynge to the wyting therof, & vnto euery people after theyr speche, & to the Jewes accordynge to theyr wytyng and language.

And he wrote in the kynges name, and sealed it with the kynges ringe. And by postes that rode vpon horses, and swift poyng Mules, sent he the wytynges, wher in the kyng graunted the Jewes (in what cyties soeuer they were) to gather them selues together, and to stande for their lyfe, and for to rote out, to slaye, & to destroye all the power of the people and land that wold trouble the. with chyldren and wemen, and to spoyle their good vpon one daye in all the landes of kyng Ahasuerus, namely vpon the thirtenth daye of the tweluth moneth, which is the moneth * Adar.

The some of the wytyng was, howe there shulde be a commaundment geuen in all landes and published among all people, and that the Jewes shulde be ready agaynst that daye, and to auenge them selues on their enemyes. And so the postes that rode vpon the swift horses and Mules, made hast with all speede, to execute the kynges worde: & the commaundment was deuised in Susan the cheste cytie.

And Mardocheus went out (from the palace and) from the kyng, in royall apparell of yelow and whyte, and with a great crowne of golde, beyng arayed with a garmēt of sylke and purple, and the cytie of Susan reioysed and was glad: and vnto the Jewes there was come (a new) lyght and gladnesse, ioye and worshippe. In all landes & cyties, into what places soeuer the kynges worde ad commaundment reched, there was ioye & myght, prosperite & good dayes among the Jewes: in somoch, that many of the people in the lande became of the Jewes belefe, and the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The ix. Chapter.

¶ At the commaundment of the kyng, the Jewes put their aduersaries to death. The sonnes of Haman are hanged. The Jewes kepe a feast daye in remembrance of their deliuerance.

In the tweluth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpon the thirtenth daye of the same, whan the kynges word and commaundment shulde be done, euē vpon the same daye that the enemyes shulde haue destroyed the Jewes to haue oppressed the, it turned contrary wyse, euē that the Jewes shulde subdue their enemyes. For then gathered the Jewes together in their cyties wythin all the landes of kyng Ahasuerus, to laye hand on such as wolde do them euell, and no man coulde withstand them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the landes, and princes & debites, & officers of the kyng, promoted the Jewes, for the feare of Mardocheus came vpon the. For Mardocheus was greute in the kynges house, and the reporte of him was noysed in all landes, how he increased and grewe.

Thus the Jewes smote all theyr enemyes with a sore slaughter, and slewe & destroyed, and dyd after their wyll vnto suche as were their aduersaries. And at Susan the cheste cytie slew the Jewes, and destroyed fyue hundred men: & slewe Pharandatha, Dalphou, Apsaththa, Phozatha, Adalia, Aridatha, Pharmastha, Arilai, Aridai, ad Clazatha, the ten sonnes of Haman the sonne of Hamadatha the enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no handes. At the same tyme was the kyng certyfied of the nobre of those that were slayne in the cytie of Susan. And the kyng sayde vnto queene Esther. The Jewes haue slayne ad destroyed fyue hundred men in the cytie of Susan, & the ten sonnes of Haman. What haue they done thynkest thou in the other landes of the kyng? And what is thy petition, that it maye be geuen thee? or what requyrest thou more to be done? Esther answered: If it please the kyng, let him suffre the Jewes tomorrow also to do accordynge vnto this dayes commaundment, that they maye hang Hamans ten sonnes vpon the tre. And the kyng charged to do so, ad the commaundment was deuised at Susan, & they hanged Hamans ten sonnes. For the Jewes that were in Susan gathered the selues together, vpon the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, & slew thre hundred men at Susan, but on their goodes they layed no handes.
